19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th July, says that the changes introduced in the time-table of the Madras Railway ever since 1st July regarding the arrival and departure of mail and passenger trains at Méttupálaiyam, subject the people of the place to great disadvantage. He says that, under the present arrangement, the mail train arrives at 9 A.M. and departs at 2-30 P.M., and the people who go to Coimbatore on business relating to the Court, Collectorate or Bank, have hardly time enough to attend to their business. The correspondent prays the Railway authorities to sanction the running of a local train as prayed for in the memorial submitted to the Traffic Manager by one S. A. Kandasami Pillai, at the time mentioned therein, namely, to leave Méttupálaiyam at 8 A.M. and arrive Pódanúr at 9-30 A.M., and leave Pódanúr at 5 P.M. and arrive at Méttupálaiyam at 6-30 P.M.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 6th, 1897.

Desirability of sanctioning the running of a local train from Pódanúr to Méttupálaiyam as requested in a certain memorial.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 10th, 1897.

Inconveniences caused by the recent changes in the train service on the Madras Railway.

20. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 10th July, referring to the inconveniences caused by the recent changes in the train service on the Madras Railway, says that as 6 P.M., the time fixed for the local train to leave Calicut, is too early and inconvenient an hour for passengers from distant places, it should be altered. It suggests that even if no other alteration is made, the strength of the railway police stationed at Calicut should at least be increased as the earlier departure of the train is likely to occasion a larger number of thefts.

(k) General.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 27th, 1897.

Complaint that road-cess is being used in other directions.

21. The Lokopakari, of the 27th June, says that, under the system of Provincial contracts, Local Governments have to make a very large contribution for Imperial expenditure, and are, in consequence, driven to utilise the road-cess for purposes other than those intended. The paper remarks that this is unjust and adds that while the Government of India is anxious to acquire fresh territories, it evinces no solicitude to promote the well-being of the millions already under its protection and rule.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 29th, 1897.

Necessity for a runner in the Post office at Milatur.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 29th June, requests the Postal authorities to sanction the appointment of a runner for the Post office of Milatur to carry mails to the railway station of Thittai, about five miles from the place.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengódu, June 27th, 1897.

Advisability of opening a Telegraph office at Tiruchengódu.

23. A correspondent to the Viveka Thivakaran, of the 27th June, says that, for purposes of sending telegraphic money orders, the people of Tiruchengódu are obliged to go to Salem or Erode and thus experience great hardship. The correspondent thinks that the opening of a Telegraph office at Tiruchengódu is desirable and assures the authorities that this undertaking will not cause them any loss.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 6th, 1897.

Graduates and the Revenue service.

24. The Sasilekha, of the 6th July, is of opinion that the cause of the loud complaints made by the people against the Revenue officials lies in the prevailing practice of raising petty clerks on small salaries, with no educational qualifications, to the posts of Sub-Magistrates and Tahsildars. It remarks that such men working for 5 or 6 years as Tahsildars, generally make a fortune of thousands of rupees, and that graduates find it hard to obtain admission into this department. It regrets that, notwithstanding the public opinion in favour of filling up these responsible posts from among graduates only and the orders of Government and the Board of Revenue to the very same effect, the District Collectors have not as yet been pleased to act up to them. It believes that, if the higher appointments in this department were given to graduates, all the graduates might find employment and perhaps a sufficient number of them might not even be available, and concludes that supply would never exceed the demand as asserted by the Anglo-Indian Press.

QASIM-UL AKHBAR, Bangalore, June 28th, 1897.

Grant of titles.

25. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th June, in approving of the grant of titles to Mr. P. Kristna Moorti, Member of the Council of Regency, Mysore, the Prince of Arcot, Saiyid Muhammad Sahib, and Ghulam Raza Sahib, Superintendent of Post offices, heartily thanks His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock for the same, and congratulates the recipients.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, July 5th, 1897.

Calcutta riot.

26. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 5th July, in inserting a translation of the telegrams concerning the Calcutta riot, says that it appears that a bad time is coming for Europeans. However it is understood that the owner of the land on which the demolished mosque stood, and which was the cause of the riot, intends acting in accordance with the desire of the Muhammadans to save himself from future difficulties. If this news, the editor says, is correct, the riot will be brought to a speedy termination.

The alleged creation of ill-feelings between the Hindus and Muhammadans.

27. The same paper mentions with great regret that the "Aryans" of Muradabad creating ill-feelings between the Hindus and Muhammadans of India by wounding the religious feelings of the latter. The editor, in this connection, says that the book styled "The Doctrines of Islam" by Lala Kurparam Shurmajhugranavy has been the main cause of this complaint.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, July 5th, 1897.

Poona outrages.

28. Referring to the Poona outrages, the Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 5th July, observes that no educated and respectable persons should have taken part in the dastardly attempt to murder an officer, who was chief of the staff entrusted with the duty of carrying out the measures for the prevention of the bubonic plague, and that the object of the murderers was, it appears, to show the disgust of the Poona people at the Plague Act. The editor hopes that the authorities will not only try to trace out and award exemplary punishment to the perpetrators of this heinous offence, but will also find out how far the Plague Act interferes with the religious beliefs and usages of the natives.

III.—Legislation.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 1st, 1897.

A suggestion to amend section 19 of the draft Devastanam Bill of the Hon'ble Mr. Anantha Charlu.

29. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st July, referring to section 19 of the draft Devastanam Bill of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Anantha Charlu, which provides for the appointment of an officer for the District Committee on Rs. 50 and an officer for the Central Committee on Rs. 100, observes that the pay of the officer for the Central Committee is inadequate considering the responsibility of the office. As one entrusted with the task of supervising the work of the District Committees and of checking their irregularities, he must hold a position as high as that of a Deputy Collector, in order that he may be above corruption, and command the respect of district officers, such as Collectors.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 12th, 1897.

The question of gagging the press.

30. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th July, says:—Much should have transpired in the twenty-four hours that intervened between Mr. Farbright's question and that of Sir William Harcourt with reference to the press laws in India. We cannot but think that Sir William's question indicates that repressive measures are in contemplation and are likely to be soon published. The leaders of the opposition are generally in the confidence of ministers in matters of this kind. It is time that the Indian press and people made themselves heard before any step is finally taken.

IV.—Native States.

Sasilekha, Madras, July 2nd, 1897.

The Vizianagram estate.

31. The Sasilekha, of the 2nd July, remarks that the managers of the Vizianagram estate have all been very able men and that the Maharani is desirous of administering the estate herself with the aid of a European Government servant as her Diwan, and that, if her prayers were acceded to, she would forego the 36 lakhs of rupees bequeathed to her in the late Maharaja's will. There is no necessity, the paper says, for the Court of Wards to step in even if the son of the late Maharaja's uncle were adopted, as the management of this estate was not assumed by Government on certain previous occasions when the then Maharajas were in their minority. It therefore suggests that Government will do well to give effect to the Maharani's wishes.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, July 7th, 1897.

The increased subsidy from the Mysore State.

32. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 7th July, remarks thus:—It is very hard that the British Government should insist upon the payment of the increased subsidy by the Mysore State at a time when the sovereign is a minor, and the affairs of the State are in the hands of a Council of Regency, and the State is not in a condition to bear the burden. A government by a number of persons is not conducive to the prosperity of the State, and the recent disaster in the palace is a calamity that should move the heart of the Imperial Government. We therefore hope that, in consideration of the loyalty shown by the State to Her Majesty the Queen during the recent Jubilee celebrations, the British Government will, as a matter of favour, postpone the levying of the increased subsidy at least until the Maharaja attains his majority and takes the reins into his own hands.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 5th, 1897.

A protest against the employment of Kafirs in the Hyderabad service.

33. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th July, hears that a notice has been published in Hyderabad complaining against the Prime Minister for the employment of Kafirs in the service of the State and warning the Nizam of the danger of employing non-Mussalmans as Government servants.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, July 3rd, 1897.

Corruption of Tahsildars in Travancore.

34. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 3rd July, referring to the corruption that prevails among the Tahsildars in the Travancore State, remarks that even this class of officials who were once remarkable for their honesty has become open to corruption. Most of the Tahsildars are said to be uneducated men who have risen from the lower ranks of the service, and the attention of the Sirkar is therefore invited to the desirability of improving the service by the introduction of men of education and capacity.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 3rd, 1897.

Disapproving of the collection of revenue in kind by the Travancore Sirkar.

35. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 3rd July, referring to the custom of collecting the revenue by the Travancore Sirkar both in money and kind, says that where the Sirkar collects it in paddy it does so by fixing the price of paddy at a rate which is generally far below the current price. The Sirkar collects the paddy usually at $3\frac{1}{2}$ annas a parah when the current price is from 8 to 12 annas a parah. As this practice of the State levying the revenue in paddy at a low price and selling it at a higher rate is not only disadvantageous to the tenants but also causes them heavy loss, the Sirkar should either do away with the present system of collecting the revenue in kind or collect it at the current market price.

A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes about the same subject in terms of bitter complaint.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, July 3rd, 1897.

Diamond Jubilee and Mr. Plowden.

36. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 3rd July, says that Mr. Plowden, though present in Hyderabad, made no arrangements for the celebration of the Jubilee, and thinks that Mr. Plowden has been mortified owing to the "recent Ooty incident" and the non-grant of any title to him. This, the editor thinks, is due to the fact that the Foreign office and His Excellency the Viceroy view his policy with disapproval. Mr. Plowden is, it is stated, looked down upon in Hyderabad in the same manner as Sir Philip Curry is in Turkey. Sir Philip Curry is charged with having destroyed the friendly relations which existed between England and Turkey. The policy of Mr. Plowden has the same effect in Hyderabad. The editor requests Government to keep an eye on the policy of Mr. Plowden and to prevent him from interfering in State affairs and acting against treaty engagements.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 6th, 1897.

Famine in Vayalpadu.

37. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 6th July, regrets to note that in Vayalpadu, Cuddapah district, rice, cholum and ragi are selling, respectively, at 5, $7\frac{1}{2}$ and 10 seers a rupee, and that a large number of dealers export grain by train and thereby add to the distress of the poor people, who are unable to purchase food-grains at famine rates. The Government officials in the place are from top to bottom quite merciless and submit contradictory reports on famine which prevent the authorities from deciding to open relief works. The Collector does not care for the people, who are consequently in poor health, while the ryots in the villages subsist upon roots and leaves, and are scarcely able to keep body and soul together. The correspondent asks if all this does not mean famine.

38. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th July, is very much concerned to hear that want of rain for the past few days has caused the crops to wither in Malabar, and that food-grains are becoming scarce and signs of famine are unmistakably showing themselves and that to complete the distress of the people, cholera is also increasing.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 12th, 1897.

The season in Malabar.

39. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 26th June, expresses itself to the following effect:—We hear that Mr. Fawcett, District Superintendent of Police, Malabar, has reported that distress is prevailing in several parts of the district, but the Collector, Mr. Dance, has done the contrary. It needs no saying that if Government is to pass an order on a matter about which two important district officers have pronounced conflicting opinions, the opinion of a third person is absolutely necessary. Our belief is that if Government is to take the opinion of the public, they will have no alternative but to accept Mr. Fawcett's report. We have often referred in our columns to the prevailing distress in Malabar; and if Government consider that the statements made by us are quite unfounded and fail to grasp the situation, then the opinion of Mr. Fawcett also would deserve to be disregarded. Our desire is not to misinform Government and their officers by misrepresenting matters, but we only wish to bring to light the actual state of affairs without concealing them. One can imagine to what extent distress prevails in the Calicut municipality when one is informed that out of a population of 67,000 in the municipality nearly 15,000 presented themselves for the dole of rice that was distributed on the Diamond Jubilee day at Calicut; and as this distribution was made from the custom-house on the seashore, poor women and children of the Nayar caste were debarred from going. From this it may be presumed that in the town of Calicut itself nearly one-third of the population is in distress. When the condition of the town is like this, what ought to be the state in the interior! The palm-trees * in the Ernad taluk are almost exhausted, and each tree now fetches from 30 to 35 rupees. The extent of the distress can be easily gauged from the number of persons that so eagerly come to buy pieces of palms that are broken up and sold at Ferok. Rice is sold in town at 11 measures a rupee and in the interior nearly 10 measures. Those who have a surplus of five or six hundred paras of paddy to be sold annually are driven to the necessity of buying rice for their consumption. When this is the actual state of affairs, we are not only surprised but pained to hear that Mr. Dance, who professes to know the real state of the country, has reported that there is no famine in Malabar. Our belief is that it was owing to the Collector's having had no opportunity to come in contact with the people and ascertain their present condition that he made such a report. Recently some hundred poor persons went to the Collector's house and cried out for relief and the Collector gave them Rs. 20 from his own pocket; and if we consider these facts we cannot but say that the Collector is very sympathetic and that he would not have made such a report if only he had known the truth of the matter. As the officials have a false notion that Malabar is not a district that can be visited by famine, it is likely that they may not suspect its present real condition. But as Mr. Fawcett has publicly come forward and admitted the fact of its distress, the people are deeply indebted to him. We fully trust that our

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 26th, 1897.

Official report and famine in Malabar.

[* A kind of flour is prepared out of the pith of these trees and consumed by the poor when no other food-stuffs are available.—Tr.] sympathetic Collector Mr. Dance also will soon ascertain the present condition of the district and do the needful.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 30th, 1897.

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 30th June, while referring to the distress in Malabar, says that as the Malayalis have also contributed their quota towards the Famine relief fund, the Government will not forsake them at the time when they themselves are in need of relief from that fund. It suggests that if the Calicut-Cannanore Railway work be immediately commenced many will be able to earn their livelihood thereby.

A correspondent also in the same issue of the paper writes about the distress prevailing in Tellicherry and the neighbouring places.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 10th, 1897.

40. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 10th July, dwells at great length on the distress prevailing in Malabar. Owing to the consumption of unwholesome food many poor people are dying daily of cholera and other diseases. It appears there are only very few among the poor who take one conji meal a week. Owing to the scarcity of food-grains ryots have consumed the seed-corn and are consequently unable to cultivate their lands. If the present state of affairs continues, the condition of the district will be very serious. The article therefore urges upon Government the necessity of opening relief works and suggests that the Calicut-Cannanore Railway work be taken on hand at once.

Severe distress in Malabar; Government to open relief works.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 26th, 1897.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th June, reporting that a European plague officer was shot to death and another was seriously injured at Poona, surmises that the extreme severity of the plague rules which has caused so much discontent among the people of that place, may have been the cause of the murder.

The probable cause of the murder at Poona.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 1st, 1897.

42. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 1st July, makes the following suggestions for improving the administration of India:—

A few suggestions regarding Legislative Councils.

(1) Legislative Councils in India should not pass measures, nor sanction expenses, which are very much against the wish of the non-official members.

(2) The number of non-official members in a Council should be double that of the official members.

(3) The non-official members of the Legislative Councils in India should form a council of their own and should each of them send a representative to Parliament.

(4) The Council of the Secretary of State for India should be abolished.

(5) A commission should be nominated to inquire into the actual affairs in India once in three years and submit its report to Parliament and Imperial Government. This commission should hold its sittings in India only.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 30th, 1897.

43. The Andhraprakasika, of the 30th June, referring to the murders of Lieutenant Ayerst and Mr. Rand in Poona on the Jubilee day, and the suggestions of the Globe and the Pall Mall Gazette to gag the vernacular press in India, asks if the suggested measure would in any way compensate for the murder of those officers. It fails to see how it is justifiable to gag the vernacular press in the whole of India by way of punishment for a crime in Poona, and how it becomes a civilized Government to punish a whole nation for the crimes of individuals thereof.

Murders in Poona and the Vernacular Press.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 2nd, 1897.

The Sasilekha, of the 2nd July, referring to the same subject, remarks that the steps taken by the Collector of Poona to impress the power of the British Government on the minds of the Poona public were totally out of place, especially as the murderers had not yet been caught. It regrets to note that, while matters are such, the public of Poona are branded as disloyal and that an additional police force has been imposed on them, charging the cost of its maintenance (1½ lakhs of rupees) to the Poona municipality. It believes that these proceedings are only worthy of a Nabob's government and not of the reputed justice of British administration. It deeply regrets that disloyalty should thus be imputed to the Poona people who have had enough to suffer from famine and pestilence. Whatever may be said of other parts of Her Majesty's vast empire, nowhere in India, the paper affirms, can rebels or insurgents be met with.

44. The Andhraprakasika, of the 30th June, states that Muniswami Raju, of the Madras Emigration Depôt, and five of his men were convicted of coercing certain mofussilites for emigration purposes and fined Rs. 20 and 15, and remarks that the punishment is altogether inadequate considering the gravity of the crime. It suspects that the said Muniswami Raju and his men must have ere this coerced or enticed away a large number of men in the same manner, and that many instances of the same unlawful procedure might be discovered if attention were directed to its detection. It suggests that the Police Commissioner may be required to inspect the emigrants before embarkation so as to ascertain how many of them are willing and how many unwilling to emigrate.

Coercing emigration.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 30th, 1897.

45. The Messenger of Truth, for July 1897, hears that the gentleman consulted by Government on the subject of working the iron mines discovered in Salem returned his opinion declaring that the initial expenses of the enterprise would be very great. The paper, however, suggests that, if Government itself could undertake the business at the outset, prohibiting the importation of iron-wares into India, the country would prosper with the growth of native industries in aid of agriculture, while the evils of recurring famines also would cease.

Iron mines in Salem.

MESSENGER OF TRUTH, Madras, July 1897.

46. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 30th June, remarks that the Diamond Jubilee of Her Majesty the Queen has been rendered memorable by a number of most terrible calamities in India—such as the famine, the plague and the earthquake. Never was such a combination of disasters in a single year.

The Diamond Jubilee year—a year of calamities to India.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, June 30th, 1897.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th July, says: "Although India has been groaning under various calamities, the Indian Princes and the peoples have not stinted in anything in celebrating the sixtieth year of Her Majesty's reign. They have spent large amount of money in short-lived amusements and pleasures. Nothing substantial has been done. The Government has not shown its appreciation of the people's loyalty by any reduction of taxes or by conferring upon them any fresh privileges. We do not say that the people are dissatisfied on this account. All that we mean is that if any substantial benefit had been done to India, the people would have had more cause to rejoice and bless Her Majesty's memorable reign."

The Diamond Jubilee of Her Majesty.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 5th, 1897.

48. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 8th July, has a leading article in which, after giving particulars of the assasination of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst, says: "In the interests of the public safety the Government appointed certain Europeans to enter private houses and find out sufferers from the plague and to carry them to the hospitals, and these Europeans only performed their duty. They might have been harsh in their treatment of the people, but it is wrong on the part of the people to blame them both in speech and in writing for simply doing their duty. This appears to be the cause of the outrage. The Government of Bombay is of opinion that these murders were committed at the instigation of the people of Poona who have become seditious and wanted to show their disaffection towards Government by committing outrages upon its servants. If this is true, then it is just and proper that they should be made to pay the heavy penalty that is to be imposed upon them, for there is no more heinous crime than disloyalty. But we hope that Government is wrong in its opinion, and we are sorry that the innocent are to suffer equally with the guilty."

The Poona murders.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, July 8th, 1897.

In this country also there are men who try to breed disaffection between Europeans and Natives, but there is no right-minded man who does not abhor their tactics. These alone should be considered patriots who try to preserve good feelings between the rulers and the ruled, and we hope that these murders will not lead to any lasting breach between the two classes of Her Majesty's subjects.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, July 3rd, 1897.

Sedition in India.

49. A leading article in the Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 3rd July, runs thus:—The murderous outrage made in Poona on Mr. W. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst, by which the latter was killed outright and the former lies in a precarious condition, is another of the not infrequent incidents which show that the temper of the Hindu and Muhammadan people of India is not so staunchly loyal and peaceful towards Her Majesty's Government as it has in recent years been the fashion to assert. Both the outrages took place in open daylight and in the midst of vast crowds of people on a public road, a fact which shows that sedition and murderous feelings towards the British Government are not so latent as they were supposed to be some years ago, but have begun to display themselves openly and by open acts of violence, as in this incident at Poona; but the singularity in this outbreak of sedition is not, it seems, confined to the Hindu and Muhammadan budmashes, but is to be found even amongst so peaceful a section of the natives of India as the Brahmins, for in the attack on Messrs. Rand and Ayerst, the aggressors were Brahmins of Poona. It is stated that a letter written to Mr. Rand a day before the attack, evidently by an educated Brahmin, but which did not reach him till on the very day on which the attack was made on him, ran as follows: "You will die to-day, the Queen two days after, and many others will follow, and soldiers will all be killed." It is added, and generally believed at Poona, that the motive of the attack on Mr. Rand is ascribed to ill-feeling on the part of Brahmins towards him, as, a year or two ago, he had occasion to pass sentence on some Brahmins in connection with disturbances that took place at Wai, in the Bombay Presidency, in which they took part. His action, it is further stated, on that occasion, seems to have embitted the feelings of the community against him, while the enforcement of the plague regulations in Poona also caused dissatisfaction amongst the same class of people. It is therefore believed that out of revenge, the cowardly attack was made on him, and that the subsequent shooting of Lieutenant Ayerst was only intended to cover the retreat. Such are the motives ascribed for the perpetration of murderous acts which have deprived one officer of the Government of his life, and has placed the life of another officer in jeopardy; but we are not inclined to believe in the truth of the first statement, for if the Brahmins of Poona were incited to feelings of hatred and revenge against their victim, a year or two ago, on the ground stated above, they would have carried out their object long ago, instead of nursing their wrath for so long a period, for it is an ascertained fact that amongst orientals, the practical accomplishment of revenge by some overt deadly action against their victim does not lie over for any long period, but is compassed about as swiftly as possible. Mr. Rand has been at Poona acting in his capacity as a magistrate during the past year or two since he sentenced the accused Brahmin rioters at Wai, and we may take it as a fact that there were many opportunities during that time in which their object might have been easily accomplished. In fact, it seems to us that no reasonable cause can be assigned why they should delay the accomplishment of their design for so long a time. The other motive ascribed for this attempted murder of Mr. Rand seems to us to be based on more reasonable grounds, namely, that the feelings of revenge against the victims were aroused by the action of Mr. Rand in carrying out the plague regulations in Poona. As a magistrate, and under the stringent order of the Government of Bombay, Mr. Rand, no doubt, carried out those regulations without regard to caste or creed, and this fact, in our judgment, must have given the Brahmins of Poona very grave offence.

The Brahmins of India, as we all know, are an extremely conservative people, and very jealous of their caste pretensions and privileges; and hence it is that the action of the committees in carrying into effect the regulations for the management of the plague has been resented by the Brahmins of Poona and they wreaked their vengeance on the man who only carried out the orders of the Government whose servant he is. The fact is an attack on Mr. Rand, a representative of the Government, but the intent and object of it was the Government itself, for the letter to Mr. Rand speaks of the death of Her Majesty the Queen and the slaughter of her soldiers. These is no doubt in our mind that the attempt on Mr. Rand's life and the murder of Lieutenant Ayerst are not merely matters of personal revenge on those officers, but involve a political significance which the British Government of India do not seem to rightly understand or duly appreciate. The act signifies a direct attack on the orders and decrees of Her Majesty's Government of India, for the perpetrators of it knew quite well that they were murderously attacking officers of that Government who were only obeying the orders made incumbent on them, and so indirectly the assassins aimed the blow at the constituted authority of the British Government in India. We are of opinion, then, on the whole, that the melancholy incident at Poona, in which one British officer was killed and the other dangerously wounded, is of larger significance than the reasons assigned for it and partially believed in by the public. The meaning of the deed was simply political. It seems to say to Her Majesty's British Government in India—"You have given us full liberty of speech and written expression of our thoughts and feelings through a free press and the privilege of public gatherings, at which we may speak our minds out. We say, then, that we dislike your rule in which we are under subjection. We shall, therefore, not hesitate to give expression to our disregard of the Queen's Government in our country both by speech and action and also by the utterances of a fee press which you, with foolish generosity, have granted to us." It is a singular fact that the vernacular press of the country has said nothing, good, bad or indifferent on this sorrowful occurrence in Poona, but has maintained a significant silence, which is equivalent to encouragement of such foul deeds by the people against the prestige and authority of the British Government in India. That Government must, therefore, accept the unwelcome but palpable truth that, amidst all the outward calm, the British empire in India has hidden elements of sedition and revolt amongst its various subject races, and this must always be so in any Government whatsover in the world—the conquered will always be fretting and chaffing against the chain of the conquerors.

50. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 30th June, remarks thus: While people are suffering from famine in the north, and everyone who has a heart to feel for the sufferers has contributed his mite towards the famine fund, it is a matter for regret that so much as Rs. 700 a month each should be paid out of that fund to several Europeans employed to superintend the distribution of relief. Is it proper that Europeans should eat away the bread that has been obtained by begging for the starving millions? Is famine in India a matter of rejoicing to Europeans as the Jubilee is?

Waste of charitable famine fund on European employés.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, June 30th, 1897.

51. The Suriodaya, of the 2nd July, has a leading article to the following effect:—Everybody knows how a charitable fund for the relief of sufferers from famine has been raised. From every town and village the rich and poor alike have been induced by tales of woe to contribute towards the fund in the hope that every pie they paid would go to relieve some starving wretch. The Government has contributed almost nothing. A few officers have subscribed something, but they get a thousand times the amount from the people. They fatten on the revenues collected from the ryots. Strictly speaking the Government ought to keep a fund for the relief of famine or borrow money for the purpose and reduce the expenditure for the following years to pay off the loan. The famine fund once started has been spent in wars on the frontiers. Millions are spent on the army, the country is always in debt. It is we that are to suffer. When the people who pay the taxes are starving, it is we that should come to their relief, and if we do not, they must die.

Waste of the charitable famine fund.

SURIODAYA, Bangalore, July 2nd, 1897.

Under these circumstances, it is natural to expect that the charitable fund contributed by us should be carefully spent so that not a pie of it may be wasted. But we find that in Bengal seventeen unemployed Europeans have been appointed as Superintendents and Deputy Superintendents of famine relief operations, viz. :—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Shahabad .. .. | Two District Superintendents on Rs. | 200 each. |
| Saran .. .. | One District Superintendent „ „ | 200 |
| Champaram .. .. | Four District Superintendents „ „ | 600 each and |
| | One District Superintendent „ „ | 300 |
| Mozufarpore .. .. | Four District Superintendents „ „ | 300 each and |
| | One District Superintendent „ „ | 200 |
| Durbhanga .. .. | Two District Superintendents „ „ | 300 each and |
| | Four Do. „ „ | 200 „ |

In addition to these salaries they are paid a hundred rupees each as horse allowance. Thus Rs. 6,600 are spent monthly. This amount would suffice to feed 3,000 people in a month or to feed and clothe 2,000 people. These Europeans are not residents of India or known as respectable. How can they be expected to distribute relief impartially? Why should not the work have been entrusted to some respectable Indian gentlemen? It is such waste that destroys the confidence of the people.

In short why do people pinch themselves and pay their taxes in times of prosperity? Is it not in the hope that they would be protected in times of difficulty? It is, therefore, the duty of Government to protect the lives of the people in times of famine. What should we say of those who waste the money collected for famine relief from the people on their own kith and kin? Is this not calculated to disgust those who have already paid and prevent those who may wish to pay hereafter?

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 12th, 1897.

An informer about the Poona outrage.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th July, says: A Poona Gowli volunteered to give information about the Poona outrage. He says he was invited to join the plot which he refused to do. He gives several names but varies in particulars. Nothing further is yet known.

Trouble in India.

53. The same paper in the article on the Poona outrages remarks thus :— Whether the persons who actually fired the shots were the only culprits or whether they were incited to commit the foul deeds remains to be discovered. There are incidents that point both ways. But it is our firm conviction that the murders were committed on account of the plague regulations. Those in charge of plague work carried out their instructions in a manner that caused the greatest amount of annoyance to the people, and we know that the people of Poona resented this. Soldiers are not the tenderest of individuals. A memorial was sent to the Governor of Bombay, but little or no notice seems to have been taken of it. The official version is that the charges made therein were all false. But the public want to know how it was that no public investigation took place, and the charges brought are generally believed to be true. The Government of Bombay went still further astray about the heavy fine it has inflicted upon the city. We think this is very unjust, for the punishment falls upon the innocent as well as the guilty alike. Surely this is not the way to make people more contented or happy. It will make them more dissatisfied and they will complain more than they did before. The Government should have waited till the detectives had done their work. It looks as if they acted hastily and the decision arrived may be such that the step taken by the Government will have to be retracted.

Then speaking of the Calcutta riots, the article continues: The hut was simply made an excuse to riot. It seems likely that the late victories of the Turks in Greece have excited the Muhammadans of this land and so they are determined to give trouble. The country has been sorely afflicted of late. It has had a terrible famine; it has had pestilence. It has had an earthquake and now we are having outrages in one place and riots in another. It is the wish of all that a better spirit will soon prevail.

54. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 10th July, says in a leading article:—From the long accounts of the Calcutta riots, it is evident that certain Mussalmans of Calcutta intend to act in a spirit of revolt and rebellion against the constituted authority of the British Government, and what seemed at first merely a racial question between Hindus and Muhammadans has now been converted into a serious mutiny in which they defy the British Government. Although the pretended cause is a piece of land, yet it seems to us that the Muhammadans in every part of the world are elated with the circumstance that they have defeated and humbled the Greeks and want to show that they are a power in the land.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, July 10th, 1897.

The riots in Calcutta.

55. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 28th June, referring to the Jubilee Honours' list, remarks that it is a matter for regret that the Zamorin of Calicut, who is in every way worthy and entitled to receive some title, was overlooked by Government on the occasion.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 28th, 1897.

Regretting that the Zamorin of Calicut was not given any title on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee.

56. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 5th July, regrets to say that the Mappilas of Cannanore and Taliparamba and some other places in Malabar did not take part in the Diamond Jubilee celebrations in those places, nor did they pay a pie towards the expenses. The Sultan Ali Raja, of Cannanore, gave orders to the Kazis to offer prayers in all the mosques on the Jubilee day, but some of the Mappilas even objected to this on the ground that it will not only be displeasing to the Sultan of Turkey, but it is also against the doctrines of Islam to offer prayers in their mosques for a foreign sovereign who does not profess the same faith. It remarks that this disloyal and defiant attitude of the Mappilas was due to their fanaticism and also to their misapprehension that the English are hostile to the Turks in the Turko-Grecian war. The article expresses the deepest abhorrence and detestation of the action of these Mappilas and doubts whether there such disloyal and foolish men are to be found in any other country or in other nations.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 5th, 1897.

The Diamond Jubilee celebrations in Malabar and the Mappilas.

57. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 26th June, invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of opening an hospital at Malappuram for the public use. The correspondent adds that although there are separate hospitals for the use of the European regiment and the punitive police stationed at Malappuram, yet they are practically of no use to the people in general.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 26th, 1897.

Wanted an hospital at Malappuram for the public use.

58. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 3rd July, invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of making certain rules for regulating the collection of tolls by the market contractors in Malabar from persons who bring things for sale in markets. It appears that the market contractors collect tolls at varying rates and oppress these poor persons.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 3rd, 1897.

Arbitrary collection of tolls by the market contractors in Malabar.

59. The Kerala Chandrika, the Kerala Patrika, and the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd, 3rd and 7th July, respectively, express their detestation of the dastardly crime committed in Poona on the Jubilee day, and hope that the perpetrators of the crime will be soon detected and punished as they richly deserve. The papers strongly deprecate the attempts of the authorities and the Anglo-Indian papers to throw the responsibility of the crime on the people of Poona and express regret at the tendency of the these papers to attribute the murders to the seditious articles which are said to have appeared in the Poona vernacular press regarding the stringent working of the plague regulations. That the Anglo-Indian officials also concur with the Anglo-Indian journals is evident from the speech of Mr. Lamb, District Magistrate of Poona, delivered at a public meeting held in that place soon after the recent murders. The Patrika remarks that so long as the Anglo-Indian papers which write without rhyme or reason, and officials of the type of the Poona District Magistrate exist in this country, it is impossible for the vernacular editors to vindicate their character from the malicious charges made against them. Such public utterances of Government servants are sure to shake the confidence of the people in Government.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, KERALA PATRIKA, KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July, 2nd, 3rd and 7th, 1897.

Poona tragedy.

A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th July, referring to the same subject, remarks to the following effect:—The Bombay Government has issued a notification offering a reward of Rs. 20,000 to those who detect the miscreants who murdered the two European officials, but the subsequent action of that Government clearly shows that it has in various ways thrown obstacles in the way of the realisation of its object. The opinion of the Anglo-Indian papers is that this dastardly crime was caused by the appearance of seditious articles in the native newspapers and this view is amply supported by the speech of the Poona District Magistrate. We are not now in a position to review all that Poona papers have written, but it is anyhow certain that they could never have incited people to murder Europeans or act in opposition to Government. Nor will any man of common sense support such a thing. When the Government have full power under the existing law to institute proceedings against any vernacular journal that creates disaffection against the Government, the cry for the repression of the vernacular press is due to nothing but the hostility of the Anglo-Indians. Our opinion is that the speech of the Poona Magistrate echoing the sentiments of the Anglo-Indians is not only out of place but has also transgressed the limits of moderation. Such a forward action on the part of a Government servant is highly injudicious and unsatisfactory. Except in times when the people act contrary to the order of Government, the appointment of such a costly punitive police as has been proposed to be established at Poona is absolutely unjust and unreasonable. It is a matter for regret that the Government does not consider that in implicating the whole population of a town in an outrage committed by a few insensible and cowardly men and levying an unjust tax from them as a fine its own action is calculated to shake the confidence of the people in Government. The Government may, perhaps, think that the people will be cowed by such threats, but it is idle to suppose that honest and respectable people will countenance the action of Government though they may not be prompted to act in opposition. Another act of the Bombay Government which is equally, if not more, unjust than the above, was the refusal into admit to the cemetery the native gentlemen who went to attend the funeral of Mr. Rand. This cannot but produce a sort of hatred in the minds of the respectable Indian gentlemen. These two actions of Government are hasty, unjust, partial and ill-considered. The miscreants may not, in our opinion, be detected without the co-operation of the natives, and this co-operation is not likely to be heartily rendered by the natives if Government persists, on these inconsiderate acts. The real enemies of the British Government are to be found among these inconsiderate officials and the Anglo-Indian journalists that play second fiddle to them and not among the vernacular press.

[Issued 24th July 1897.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 14 of 1897.

REPORT
ON
NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS
FOR THE
Fortnight ending the 31st July 1897.

---

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| Insult to the representative of the German Emperor during the Jubilee celebrations in England | 171 |
| Refusal of Greece to accept the terms of peace proposed by Turkey | ib. |
| England and Greece | ib. |
| A Muhammadan volunteer | ib. |
| A riot alleged to be created by the Turks in a village in Thessaly | ib. |
| Refuting the statement of Sir Saiyid Ahmad Khan that the Sultan is not the Khalif of Islam, etc. | ib. |
| Appeal to Muhammadans for aid to the Turkish orphans, etc. | 172 |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Expediency of appointing either Mr. Arthur Sullivan or Mr. Jones as Commissioner of Police, Madras | 174 |
| Theft of cash-boxes from the District Court of Tanjore and District Munsif's Court of Trichinopoly | ib. |
| Nuisance committed on the seashore of the Madras beach | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| The desirability of conferring the Advocate-Generalship of Madras on a native | ib. |
| A complaint that courts in mofussil are kept open late at night | ib. |
| A complaint against the Stationary Sub-Magistrate of Tanjore | ib. |
| (c) Jails— Nil. | |
| (d) Education— Nil. | |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| A request to the Madras municipality to allot a new burial ground for the Parayahs at Mylapore | 175 |
| Delay caused by Government with regard to the confirmation of the nomination of a chairman to the Tanjore municipality | ib. |
| An advice to the Commissioners of the Madras municipality | ib. |
| Fire in Cocanada | ib. |
| Dirty lanes in Cocanada | ib. |
| Local self-government | 176 |
| Malabar Local Fund Engineering department | ib. |
| Vaccination fees in the Calicut municipality | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| A case of rape at a certain railway station | ib. |
| East Coast Railway | ib. |
| Madras Railway Company to change the time-table regarding the local train that leaves Calicut at 6 A.M. | ib. |
| Who should be appointed as the Special Deputy Collector for the acquisition of lands for the construction of the Calicut-Cannanore Railway | 177 |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (h) Railways—cont. | |
| The proposed site for the erection of the East Coast Railway terminus | 177 |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Necessity for a road between Dévakóttai and Sarukani. | ib. |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Some suggestions to the Postal authorities regarding newspapers | ib. |
| Doings of Mr. Tremenheere, Collector of the Nilgiris. | 178 |
| Karadikonda relief works and Mr. Shipley | ib. |
| Want of harmony between a sub-registrar and his clerks. | ib. |
| The termination of the Calcutta riot | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| District boards | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Cochin Sirkar to construct a canal for agricultural purposes. | 179 |
| Bad condition of roads and bridges in Travancore | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| The true cause of the outbreak of famine in India | ib. |
| The prospects of the season and famine relief | ib. |
| Scarcity in Malabar | ib. |
| Famine in Malabar | 180 |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| A remark on the contemplation of the authorities to restrict the liberty of the vernacular press | 181 |
| A suggestion to Government regarding the Calcutta riot | ib. |
| Calcutta riot and Poona murder being the outcome of the preachings of the congress | ib. |
| The order of Bombay Government in connection with the Poona murders criticised | ib. |
| Report of His Excellency Lord Sandhurst on the behaviour of the Plague officers | ib. |
| Observations regarding the murders in Poona | ib. |
| Suggestions to mitigate the sufferings of the operatives working in factories | 182 |
| Advisability of nominating a commission to inquire into the charges framed by the Poona people | ib. |
| The Poona outrages and the native papers | ib. |
| The gagging of the Native press | 183 |
| The outrages in Poona | ib. |
| The punishment of the Poona people | ib. |
| The treatment of the Poona women by the soldiers | ib. |
| The sufferings of the Poona women | ib. |
| Gagging of the press | 184 |
| The address of the people of Mysore to Her Majesty rejected. | ib. |
| The Poona tragedy | ib. |
| Comments on the Poona tragedy | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | June 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 15th July 1897. |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 10th and 17th July 1897. |
| 5 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 17th July 1897. |
| 6 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | 17th ,, ,, |
| 7 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 10th and 17th July 1897. |
| 8 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 8th, 16th and 24th July 1897. |
| 9 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 4th, 11th ,, 18th ,, ,, |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 14th and 21st July 1897. |
| 11 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 375 | 12th July 1897. |
| 12 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 800 | 12th, 19th and 26th July 1897. |
| 13 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 10th and 17th July 1897. |
| 14 | "Tharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 80 | 1st, 8th, 15th and 22nd July 1897. |
| 15 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 1st and 8th July 1897. |
| 16 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 4th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 17 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 8th, 10th, 13th, 15th, 17th, 20th and 22nd July 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 18 | "Satwa Sadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | Not known. | June 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Rajayogi" .. .. .. .. | Cocanada .. .. .. | 300 | 5th July 1897. |
| 20 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 17th and 24th July 1897. |
| 21 | "Desopakari" .. .. .. | Ellore .. .. .. | 350 | 4th, 11th, 18th and 25th July 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 16th, 20th, 23rd and 27th July 1897. |
| 23 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 17th, 21st, 24th and 28th ,, ,, |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 370 | 19th and 26th July 1897. |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 200 | 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 26 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 16th, 23rd and 30th July 1897. |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 1,800 | 22nd and 29th July 1897. |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 552 | 21st ,, 28th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 29 | "Sarvathra Mitram" .. .. | Alleppey .. .. .. | 721 | 28th June 1897. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 30 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 682 | 15th and 25th July 1897. |
| 31 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 825 | 12th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 32 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 700 | 20th July 1897. |
| 33 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 280 | 11th and 21st July 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. .. | 1,000 | 10th, 17th and 24th July 1897. |
| 35 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 12th, 19th and 26th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 830 | 14th and 21st July 1897. |
| 37 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 754 | 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 38 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 12th and 19th July 1897. |
| 39 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 10th ,, 17th ,, ,, |
| 40 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 15th July 1897. |
| 41 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 150 | 11th and 17th July 1897. |
| 42 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 8th, 12th, 15th and 19th July 1897. |
| 43 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 18th and 28th May 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 26th July, says:—The gentleman who represented the German Emperor in the Jubilee procession, when passing by a military club, had a very bad reception. He met it by significantly touching the Eagle on his helmet. In Trafalgar Square he was groaned at and some wit in the crowd shouted "Do you want to know the way to the nearest telegraph office?"

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 26th, 1897.

Insult to the representative of the German Emperor during the Jubilee celebrations in England.

2. Referring to the proposed terms of the peace between Turkey and Greece, the Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 8th July, says that the persistent refusal on the part of Greece to accept the terms offered will be of no use, since the Turkish forces which have been concentrated in Thessaly will advance to Athens and after occupying it will use coercion to get the terms accepted.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, July 8th, 1897.

Refusal of Greece to accept the terms of peace proposed by Turkey.

3. The same paper says that The Proof—a paper published in Germany—in attributing the destruction of the Greeks to England, remarks that England fearing Russian and German co-operation with Turkey did not bombard any of the Turkish islands. The editor, in disapproving of the above remark, observes that the British Government has aided Muhammadans at different times, and is still rendering them help, and hopes that the strained relations between England and Turkey will soon terminate.

England and Greece.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 12th July, has the following letter from a Muhammadan volunteer from Rangoon, viz.:—"I, Bashir Ahmad, of the Panjab, a student of the Madrasa-i-Shoukat-ul-Islam, Rangoon, inform the Muhammadan world in general and the Muhammadans of India in particular that I wish to volunteer my services to fight against the infidels, but being unable to afford passage money, I hope that any of the Muhammadn's of India will kindly defray the expenses of the intended voyages and send me to the scene of warfare.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, July 12th, 1897.

A Muhammadan volunteer.

"(Signed) BASHIR AHMAD, of the Panjab.

"Door No. 13, Street No. 38, Rangoon."

5. Referring to a London telegram of the 6th July, announcing on the authority of a telegram from Greece that some 2,000 Turks and Albanians have created a riot in a village in Thessaly, that many of its inhabitants have left it and have taken refuge in the mountains around and that some have been killed or wounded, the same paper says that the statement is quite absurd since the province is under the occupation of the Turks, and there is no necessity for creating a riot therein. The Greeks have circulated such a rumour for the purpose of casting a slur on the name of the Turks.

A riot alleged to be created by the Turks in a village in Thessaly.

6. The Alhami, of the 11th July, states that Sir Saiyid Ahmad Khan in the Aligkur Institute Gazette says that (1) Muhammadans, who are the subjects of Government, should not have celebrated the Sultan's victory, (2) the Sultan is not Khalif of Islam, and (3) the victory gained by the Turks is not a religious triumph. In refuting the above statement the editor remarks that the flattery of Sir Saiyid is viewed with scorn. The celebration of the Turkish victory is not contrary to any regulation of Government, but it may be unpalatable to those bigoted people in England who incited the Greeks to disastrous warfare. The victory was celebrated by Muhammadans for the following reasons, viz.: (1) their forefathers entered India with the aid of the Turks and ruled there for many centuries, (2) they and the Turks are

Alhami, Madras, July 11th, 1897.

Refuting the statement of Sir Saiyid Ahmad Khan that the Sultan is not the Khalif of Islam, etc.

co-religionists, and (3) the Sultan is the defender of all sects of Islam and the protector of their religious places—Mecca and Medina. The people of England though they have no such connection with Greece, yet sacrificed their lives to help her. Will the Muhammadans of India like to remain subjects of the British Government, if Christians cannot become subjects of the Sultan as, it is alleged, was said by Sir Philip Currie, the British Ambassador at Constantinople, in connection with the evacuation of Thessaly? The people of England showed sympathy with the Armenians, Cretans and Greeks, and thus taught us to sympathise with, and show our love to, the Sultan and the Turks. In religious matters Government can do nothing and nobody can obey Government in this respect. If any man says that he does, he endeavours to deceive an undeceived Government. The Sultan is the Khalif of Muhammadans and Sir Saiyid will not agree to this proposition because he is the pupil of Mr. Gladstone, who is the foe of the Sultan. The editor in conclusion says that if Christians conquer Muhammadan territories, destroy their houses, shoot down their innocent children, offer indignity to their mosques, violate the chastity of their women and convert them into slaves, Muhammadans can never be passive spectators. It is their religious duty to resist and help those who resist. Those slain in such a war will obtain the kingdom of both worlds. What have the Christians of Crete not done to the Muhammadans of the Island? A war against the former is a religious war, and true Muhammadans will never shrink though Government may be displeased with their action.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, July 17th, 1897.

Appeal to Muhammadans for aid to the Turkish orphans, etc.

7. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 17th July, has a very long letter from Mulla Abdul Qaiyum, residing in Shah Ali Banda's Mohalla (quarters), Hyderabad, appealing to Muhammadans in general and to the Muhammadans of India in particular for aid to the wounded Turks as well as to the orphans and widows of those killed in Crete and in the recent Turko-Greek war. Of this letter the following is an abstract, viz.:—

The reason why we Muhammadans are degraded in the estimation of others, why calamities befall us and why we are deprived of such worldly blessings as are enjoyed by the Christians of Europe, is that we have completely neglected our religious doctrines, and do not act according to the commandment of God, and obey Him, the Prophet and the rulers of Islam. Oh Muhammadans! it was our religious duty to have recognized the Khalif, but we failed to do so, and spent our lives leaderless as a flock of sheep without a shepherd. Hence other nations obtained sway over us, and converting us into slaves, derived benefit from our riches, our lands and our learning.

Oh Muhammadans! we were ordained to live in concord, but we armed ourselves against each other, and fighting to the bitter end lost wealth, prestige and confidence and thus made ourselves an object of ridicule and mockery to the nations. No nation, no followers of any prophet in the world are held in respect who have no king, nor religious guide, nor are safe from falling a prey to others. As this is the case, how long will you neglect to be obedient in religion and render help to your religious leader, the Commander of the Faithful, the Khalif of Islam, the Sultan of Turkey? May God perpetuate his dynasty! How long will you remain without a religious guide? Do you not remember the sayings of the Prophet to the effect that whoever dies without knowing his religious guide, dies the death of an infidel?

You know what kind of Imam and Khalif Sultan Abdul Hamid Khan is. He (the Sultan) is not vicious, despotic or slothful. He is matchless in excellence, justice and equity. As he is the keeper of the sacred places, he is entitled to the chieftainship and leadership of all Muhammadans and Muhammadan rulers. Such a monarch have you abandoned! nor do you even render him pecuniary aid while he is in distress.

Is not a Sultan, who for the safety and welfare of the Muhammadan rule and religion gives up his own ease and comfort, entitled to your sympathy and co-operation? If you have no regard for such a monarch, how will you show your faces to God?

Your ancestors in carrying out the commandments of God considered it an honour and pride to sacrifice their lives and property as well as those of their women and children for the sake of God and of His Prophet. Hence their name is still green and will be remembered till the resurrection day.

As a mere matter of human sympathy, too, it is incumbent on us to help the Turkish widows, orphans and wounded.

The Jews of Syria and Egypt have shown sympathy and the Emperor of Russia, our enemy in religion, has sent many hundreds of cots for the use of wounded Turks. Must we not give at least pecuniary aid in the difficulties which the Christians of Europe have, for the purpose of eradicating Islam, created for its followers? Now-a-days even the Hindus are putting us to shame. Munshi Amba Parshad, proprietor of the Jami-ul-Ulum, Muradabad, has written a very effective article as regards the aid to be afforded to the oppressed Turks, and has himself showed readiness to help them, and a brave Hindu of Madras volunteered his services to the Sultan of Turkey.

Oh Muhammadans! know well that Turkey is the only Islamic Empire in which the honour and prestige of Islam remains intact. Hence it behoves all Muhammadans, especially the Muhammadans of India, to help the Sultan as they are the subjects of a just and equitable Government, whose administrative regulations have given them complete freedom in such matters. If we do not take advantage of this freedom and help our Khalif, who in this world will be less worthy than we?

When the Christians of Europe saw that the Turkish Empire was making exceedingly great progress through the God-granted intelligence, sagacity and sound judgment of Abdul Hamid, they thought, if this state of affairs were allowed to continue, they would not be able to effect the dismemberment of Turkey and the eradication of Islam. Hence they adopted measures to entangle him in internal disputes. They stirred up the Armenians to strife and put pressure upon the Sultan to make them free, but not succeeding in this, with the object of getting autonomy for Crete, they excited the islanders to rebellion, persuaded the Greeks to send troops to their aid, and besieged the Island to prevent the Sultan from sending reinforcements to the oppressed. Thousands were consequently rendered homeless and are now wandering from door to door, gosha women are exposed to the gaze of the public, and thousands of Muhammadan corpses, unshrouded and unburied, lie scattered about in putrefaction.

A few newsmongers have spread a baseless rumour that the British Government, which is an old friend of Turkey and yet has friendly relations with her, will prevent us from aiding the Turks, in spite of the fact that the British Government has six crores of loyal Mussalmans under its sway. The rumour is absurd.

The writer continues: "I have commenced corresponding with the Turkish Consul-General at Bombay and the Pashas in Egypt, and Constantinople, and obtained permission from the Turkish Consuls at Bombay and Madras for receiving subscriptions. The following letter, dated 5th May 1897, has been received by me:—

'From

'MUHAMMAD QADER BEG EFFENDI,

'Turkish Consul-General.

'My dear Mulla Abdul Qaiyum Sahib,

'I beg to inform you that I received a telegram on the 1st of Muharram from Constantinople permitting me, as I have already informed you, to receive subscription. The work I had to do has been done through the kindness of God. Now it is your turn. You should not make any delay in this respect for the destitute, orphans and wounded are in great need of help. Please collect subscriptions from all the Muhammadans in your district. I shall get you receipts from the committee in Constantinople for the amount which you may send from time to time. The said telegram also informs me that he who subscribes more than 300 rupees will be presented with a special medal.'

"Now, subscribers, have no excuse of the fear of the British Government. Hence it behoves you to send subscriptions to me or to Maulavi Abdur Rab, my nephew, residing in the house of Maulavi Masuhuz Zaman Khan Sahib in Shah Ali Banda's Mohalla, who will give receipts for the amount and also other receipts from Constantinople bearing signature of the President of the Constantinople Committee. I will be responsible for getting you receipts. The whole proceeding will be under my supervision.

"Oh Muhammadans! your number in India is six crores. If you wish to give even four annas per head per annum it will come to 1½ crores. Every Muhammadan should consider it a religious duty and help the Sultan in the same way as the Roman Catholics help the Pope."

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 10th, 1897.

Expediency of appointing either Mr. Arthur Sullivan or Mr. Jones as Commissioner of Police, Madras.

8. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th July, says that as Mr. Bagshawe, the Commissioner of Police, is going on leave, it is incumbent on His Excellency the Governor to appoint, for the vacant post, an officer of more than ordinary fitness and great local experience. The paper remarks that the place had been long held by distinguished military officers, and that of late burglary and robbery have increased in the town. The paper suggests the names of Mr. Arthur Sullivan, who is now at Vellore on a pay of Rs. 1,400, and of Mr. Jones, the Chief Presidency Magistrate, as most fitted for the post.

Jananukulan, Tanjore July 17th, 1897.

Theft of cash-boxes from the District Court of Tanjore and District Munsif's Court of Trichinopoly.

9. The Jananukulan, of the 17th July, reports that the cash-boxes of the District Court of Tanjore and the District Munsif's Court of Trichinopoly are missing, and that the loss is estimated at about Rs. 1,000 and 170, respectively. The paper hopes that the police will be on the alert to detect the culprits and get them punished so severely as to have a deterrent effect.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 22nd, 1897.

Nuisance committed on the seashore of the Madras beach.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd July, draws the attention of the Madras police to the nuisance committed by the people on the seashore of the Madras beach, and to the inconvenience caused to persons who resort to it for enjoying the evening sea breeze.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 10th, 1897.

The desirability of conferring the Advocate-Generalship of Madras on a native.

11. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th July, wishes that the Advocate-Generalship of Madras should be conferred on a native. The paper regards the announcement in the newspapers that Mr. Starling, of the Bombay Bar, has been appointed as Advocate-General of Madras, as a rumour intended to misguide people. The paper is at a loss to know why the Secretary of State for India has not confirmed Hon'ble Mr. Bashiyam Aiyangar in the post he now holds.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, July 10th, 1897.

A complaint that courts in mofussil are kept open late at night.

12. The Jananukulan, of the 10th July, reports that in mofussil the authorities hold their cutcherry from 7 A.M. to 11 A.M., and that they very often keep the court open till 9 or 10 P.M., and that the parties going to them on business consequently suffer much inconvenience and hardship. The paper quotes two instances from the diary of Mr. Mukthichithambara Mudaliyar, Sub-Magistrate of Mannárgudi, in which the time, at which deposition of witnesses was taken, is noted as 9 P.M. in one case and 11 P.M. in another case.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, July 17th, 1897.

A complaint against the Stationary Sub-Magistrate of Tanjore.

13. The Jananukulan, of the 17th July, reports that Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar, the present Stationary Sub-Magistrate of Tanjore, shows much leniency towards Brahmins and supports the allegation by saying that in a certain case that was brought before him for inquiry, in which nearly 30 persons were charged with having committed nuisance, 11 persons who were Brahmins were acquitted and the rest, who were non-Brahmins, were fined. The paper further reports that in a case of cattle robbery disposed of by the Sub-Magistrate in question, he acquitted the prisoner and ordered the cow, the subject of robbery, to be impounded. The paper, dilating on the usefulness of the cow and on the adoration paid to it by the Hindus, regrets to report that the cow in question has been in the pound for over a month and a half, much almost starved, and that such treatment of the animal is likely to wound the feelings of the Hindus.

(e) Local and Municipal.

14. The Pariyan, of the 17th July, complains that the present burial ground set apart for Parayahs in Mylapore is damp and marshy, almost unsuitable for the purpose for which it is intended, and requests the Municipal authorities to allot a new site for them.

PARIYAN, Madras, July 17th, 1897.

A request to the Madras municipality to allot a new burial ground for the Parayahs at Mylapore.

15. The Jananukulan, of the 17th July, is at a loss to know why Government has not confirmed the nomination of Pundi Appasawmy Vaudayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality, although six months have elapsed since his election was communicated to Government for approval. The paper prays Government to pass orders without further delay as the Deputy Collector, who is in charge of the municipality, cannot find time to discharge satisfactorily the additional duties devolving on him.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 17th, 1897.

Delay caused by Government with regard to the confirmation of the nomination of a chairman to the Tanjore municipality.

16. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd July, regrets to learn that the President of the Madras Municipality rejected, without adequate inquiry, the memorial of the residents of Triplicane requesting him to prosecute one Lingesam Pillai for having buried the corpse of his child in the burial ground specially allotted for caste-Hindus at Triplicane, on the representation that he is a caste-Hindu, while in fact he is a Valluvan. The paper says that as the Commissioners of the Madras municipality have been addressed upon the subject, it behoves them to deal with it carefully, for it is often matters of this kind that give room for serious disturbances and breach of peace.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 22nd, 1897.

An advice to the Commissioners of the Madras municipality.

17. The editor of Rajayogi, of the 5th July, stating that 40 huts in the vicinity of "Santha Cheruvu" in old Cocanada caught fire on the 4th instant, remarks, in English, "That a number of huts should find place in the midst of substantial buildings likely to cause danger to the latter is undesirable. The municipality should take notice of this. In some parts of the town the construction of huts is prohibited by the municipality. It is a wise step no doubt. But the spot in question, we think, also requires to be exempted from the license for hut-building."

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, July 5th, 1897.

Fire in Cocanada.

18. A correspondent to the same paper, approving of the condition of the main roads in the town, "wonders how people live in side-streets and lanes" there, and proceeds to describe them in English: "Those lanes which are generally very narrow are ever filled with all sorts of rubbish and dirt. The people that live in the huts which line the lanes are mostly flesh-eating and, having no backyards, all their cleansing, washing, bathing, etc., must be done only in the small space before them. Nastiness is therefore the result and one's feet must tremble to walk through it. The very atmosphere is hateful. This, however, is the case in dry season and in winter one need not go far to know about hell. In these days of increasing population, when epidemics are so ready to spring up from any the least insanitation, I think thorough cleanliness, and that in a town like Cocanada, is most necessary. In my opinion these lanes should be more looked to than any other, inasmuch as infection, if it ever spread, must spread from quarters like these.

Dirty lanes in Cocanada.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 27th, 1897.

Local self-government.

19. The Sasilekha, of the 27th July, suggests that Government should kindly issue strict orders to the municipal councils to elect only non-officials for the post of "chairman" when competent gentlemen of that class are available, and to have recourse to officials, only when others are not forthcoming.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 24th, 1897.

Malabar Local Fund Engineering department.

20. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 24th July, invites the attention of the President of the Malabar District Board to the necessity of appointing qualified men in the Engineering department of the board. It appears that as most of the officers now in the department have no knowledge of engineering, important and costly works, such as bridges, etc., executed under their supervision, are not properly and satisfactorily done and the board is consequently put to great loss. It would be easy for the board to avoid such scandalous waste of public money by appointing passed candidates who are now available in large numbers to the vacancies now and then occurring in the department; but from the recent action of the board it would appear that it is not alive to this fact. A vacancy was created by the transfer of Mr. K. Govindan, overseer of Ponnáni, to South Canara, and although the District Board Engineer recommended to the President that a candidate who has passed the Overseer's test should be appointed to this vacancy, yet the recommendation was not followed and one Subramani Aiyar, who is an assistant draughtsman and who is said to have no knowledge of engineering, has been recommended for the post.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 26th, 1897.

Vaccination fees in the Calicut municipality.

21. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 26th July, disapproves of the recent resolution of the Municipal Council, Calicut, to the effect that any person who may desire that the vaccinators should go to his house for vaccination should, in the first instance, apply to the council producing a fee of two annas. As vaccination is not yet popular with the masses, the above resolution is not likely to find favour with them. Perhaps the councillors think that as vaccination has been made compulsory in the municipality the people should obey whatever they are pleased to issue. This system of levying a fee is not only oppressive to the people but will also retard the progress of vaccination.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 15th, 1897.

A case of rape at a certain railway station.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th July, reports on hearsay that at a certain railway station two Plague officers, named Salt and Cleaveland, removed from the railway carriage three female passengers for examining them under the plague rules, and that, on their way to the hospital, they took the females to a hut and committed rape on them. The paper says that if such nefarious acts are done on the railway line, then why should not the Hindus, to whom chastity is more precious than wealth, throw the blame on the British Government? Would not such acts create immense heart-burning in them?

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 16th, 1897.

East Coast Railway.

23. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 16th July, remarks that the changes recently introduced into the time-table of the East Coast Railway are not satisfactory. He complains that the number (2) of trains running, the number of carriages attached to each train and the "stoppage times" at the stations are quite insufficient for the requirements of traffic.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 12th, 1897.

Madras Railway Company to change the time-table regarding the local train that leaves Calicut at 6 A.M.

24. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th July, referring to the recent changes made in the time-table of the Madras Railway, urges the necessity for changing the time for the departure and arrival of the local train at Calicut on the ground that as the local train leaves Calicut at 6 A.M., and the local train from Madras arrives at Calicut at 6 P.M., passengers are seriously inconvenienced and ample facilities are further afforded to thieves to come to the town by the evening train and commit thefts and go back by the morning train without being detected. The article suggests that if the company does not for some reason or other intend to change the present arrangement, the strength of the railway police should be increased and, in addition to the beat constables, a special police should also be appointed to patrol the town. It is further suggested that as petty articles are likely to be stolen in case the goods arriving by the evening train are removed to the goods-shed at night, the waggons should be kept sealed the whole night and allowed to be opened only in the morning.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 26th, 1897.

Who should be appointed as the Special Deputy Collector for the acquisition of lands for the construction of the Calicut-Cannanore Railway.

25. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 26th July, referring to the construction of the Calicut-Cannanore Railway, says that as the matter of taking lands for the construction of the line is a very onerous and responsible business which requires a good deal of local knowledge as well as a thorough acquaintance with the land tenures of the country, the Deputy Collector who is appointed for the purpose of taking up lands should be a Malayali who has experience in revenue matters and a knowledge of the land tenures of the district, and suggests the appointment of either Mr. T. Gopalan Nayar, Treasury Deputy Collector, Chittoor, or Mr. A. Ramacha Nedungadi, Deputy Collector, Chingleput, for the post. The article states that it is reported that both Mr. Kannan, B.A., Head-quarter Inspector, Calicut, and Mr. Jacques, Huzur Sheristadar, have been recommended for the place, and it does not take exception to the appointment of either. But it prefers the appointment of Mr. Jacques on the ground that he draws a higher salary and has more experience in revenue matters than Mr. Kannan. The name of Mr. P. Krishna Menon, who is an experienced Tahsildar and who draws a salary of Rs. 250, is also suggested for the appointment.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, July 12th, 1897.

The proposed site for the erection of the East Coast Railway terminus.

26. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 12th July, hears that it is proposed to construct the terminus of the East Coast Railway near the Central Station, Madras, and in approving of the proposal says that it is the place best suited for the purpose. However it asks Government to get public opinion on the matter before issuing final orders.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 10th, 1897.

Necessity for a road between Dévakóttai and Sarukani.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th July, says that if a road be constructed between Dévakóttai and Sarukani—a distance of eight miles—it will be highly useful and facilitate traffic between Dévakóttai and other places beyond Sarukani.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 8th, 1897.

Some suggestions to the Postal authorities regarding newspapers.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 8th July, observes that the present system of requiring editors of newspapers to make quarterly payments in advance, calculating on the number of copies of the publication that will be sent by post, is felt as a hardship; as, during any particular quarter, the circulation of a newspaper may suffer a heavy reduction and the editor may thereby have to pay more postage than is due for the copies actually circulated. After commenting on the usefulness of newspapers and the duty of Government to encourage their circulation, the paper suggests the following modifications:—1st, that the existing rule be abolished; 2nd, that quarter of an anna postage labels be issued for being affixed to newspapers; 3rd, that, if possible, a further reduction in the rate of postage be made from quarter of an anna to one pie and a half.

The same correspondent observes that the village postal administration needs improvement as, at present, letters are delivered in villages once in four or eight days, and sometimes never at all.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 17th, 1897.

Doings of Mr. Tremenheere, Collector of the Nilgiris.

29. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th July, writes as follows regarding the Collector of the Nilgiris, Mr. Tremenheere:—The Collector of the Nilgiris should be an officer of exceptional ability, moderation and tact; for disputes often arise between the European planters on the hills and the native inhabitants, the former often preferring complaints of fraud against the natives and using all their influence to get the latter punished. So long as Collector is impartial, things go on smoothly and the natives do not suffer at the hands of the Europeans. In Mr. Burrows and Mr. Rees, the Nilgiris had excellent Collectors. But things have changed since Mr. Tremenheere assumed charge of the Collectorate six months ago. Mr. Tremenheere is impatient, wanting in sound common sense, and suspicious. He was unpopular in Tinnevelly, Bellary and Tanjore, and has become exceedingly unpopular where he is now. Under him the police may act as they please. He wants to remove all the officers under him, had the houses of some of them searched by the police, and has set up the police against the magistracy. He is not fit to be a Collector, but may prove a good Police officer. He may be sent to Poona to detect and bring to punishment the murderers of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst. His Excellency the Governor will, it is earnestly prayed, inquire into the matter and take steps for the removal of the grievances complained of.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 20th, 1897.

Karadikonda relief works and Mr. Shipley.

30. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 20th July, notes that a European drummer who was appointed an overseer on the relief works at Karadikonda, Anantapur district, fined a Brahmin maistry for late attendance, and beat him when he attempted to explain himself, and that on the Brahmin going to him subsequently with a companion to tender his resignation of his appointment, he charged them both with assault and causing hurt before the Gooty Magistrate. Mr. Shipley, the Collector of Anantapur, happening to be at Gooty at the time, and believing what the European overseer had complained of, proceeded direct to Karadikonda and stopped all relief works there. The correspondent regrets to observe that about three thousand coolies had in this way to sacrifice their means of livelihood to Mr. Shipley's partiality for his countryman.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 21st, 1897.

Want of harmony between a sub-registrar and his clerks.

31. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st July, says that owing to the absence of harmony between the sub-registrar and the clerks of the sub-registry office, Pazhayangadi, Malabar, the work of the office is not properly and regularly discharged and consequently the parties are put to great inconvenience. The opinion is expressed that unless either the sub-registrar or the clerks or all of them are soon transferred, the result will be very serious.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, July 12th, 1897.

The termination of the Calcutta riot.

32. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 12th July, hears with great pleasure that the Calcutta riot has terminated, and says that this regrettable occurrence has cast a slur on the fair name of the community. But for the foolish action of such bad characters as are generally found in every community, the Muhammadans in general cannot be blamed. The native press has unanimously expressed its displeasure at the action of the miscreants in fault. The editor hopes that the authorities will not suspect the fidelity of Muhammadans in consequence.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 16th, 1897.

District boards.

33. The Sasilekha, of the 16th July, remarks that the power conferred on district boards to recommend two members for the Legislative Council has made them alive to their various rights and duties. It is of opinion that the constitution of the district boards must be remodelled and improved, and more power granted to the non-official members. Otherwise, the paper believes, the non-official members will continue as now to figure as mere subordinates of the official members.

IV.—Native States.

34. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 11th July, invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar to the loss annually sustained by the ryots for the want of a drainage canal to carry off the surplus rain water collected in the paddy fields at Mūlamkuzhi and other places in the Cochin taluk. The cultivators are said to be prevented from carrying on their agricultural operations in season by the stagnation of water in the fields for days together.

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, July 11th, 1897.

Cochin Sirkar to construct a canal for agricultural purposes.

A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes a lengthy article about the same subject.

35. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 10th July, referring to the deplorable condition of certain roads and bridges in the Travancore State, says that although the Sirkar allots a large sum of money annually for the maintenance of roads and bridges in the State, yet as it does not properly scrutinise the expenditure of the Public Works Department, the allotment is not spent in a manner beneficial to the tax-payers.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, July 10th, 1897.

Bad condition of roads and bridges in Travancore.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

36. The Lokopakari, of the 4th July, asserts that the real cause of famines in India is the poverty of the people and not failure of rain, as is erroneously supposed; for, says the paper, that even during times of famine large quantities of food-grains are exported from India, so that if people could only afford to pay, they could buy as much food-grain as they might require. The paper adds that the reason why the severity of famine is not felt very keenly in England is that there the people are rich enough to buy even at enhanced rates of prices. The paper concludes with the remark that it behoves Government to enrich the people by reducing taxation, by disseminating education, by opening industrial schools and by encouraging commerce.

Lokopakari, Madras, July 4th, 1897.

The true cause of the outbreak of famine in India.

37. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 24th July, after pointing out that owing to the persistent holding off of the monsoon something like a panic has seized the people, says that the distress in the affected districts is seriously deepening, and that there has been an increase of over 10 per cent. in the numbers on relief works. The editor suggests the deepening and repairing of the existing tanks as a better form of famine-relief work. He says "scattered as these reservoirs are all over the country, they should be made capable of holding supplies of water, and their value cannot be doubted. The number of tanks to be seen everywhere shows that they must have been of great use to the people in past times and there are no reasons why they should now be neglected. Canals cannot be dug everywhere and railways are of no use so far as agricultural operations are concerned, whereas tanks can be dug anywhere and if rendered capable of holding a sufficient supply of water must be of unquestionable benefit."

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, July 24th, 1897.

The prospects of the season and famine relief.

38. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 26th July, says that there is scarcity throughout the Malabar coast, and that while measures are taken both in Travancore and Cochin to meet the distress, in Malabar alone where the condition appears to be much worse than in the Native States, the prevailing scarcity

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 26th, 1897.

Scarcity in Malabar.

has yet to be officially recognised, although the local papers have been crying themselves hoarse.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 14th, 1897.

Famine in Malabar.

39. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 14th July, says that the distress in Malabar has become so acute as to require adequate and prompt relief from Government. It remarks that if there is any official in the district who denies this fact, he will find it difficult to support his position. The editor says that he has been getting several letters describing the distress of the people in the interior. Now-a-days very few people in the interior cook rice for their food. The majority of them are alleged to be living upon palm-flour. In several places the people boil and eat greens, such as Cassia tora, etc , without salt and they, it appears, consequently die of diarrhœa, etc. The editor is astonished to see that the famine in Malabar has not yet been officially recognised. It seems that a certain official has reported that as the mōdan and samai crops are about to be reaped, there will be a mitigation of the present scarcity very soon. If any one has reported so, it is because of his ignorance of the district. First of all the cultivators themselves are said not to have reaped the crops at all, for, when the time came for reaping the samai, the ears were damaged by floods and when the mōdan was shooting into ear there were heavy rains and the grains thereby became chaff. Even if the harvest of these crops was good, how can that in any way tend to alleviate the sufferings of the people wholly ? The official in question ought to be asked to explain it. There will be no good to the district from the appointment to high offices of outsiders who have no knowledge of the country except to do injury to the people by misrepresenting matters to their European superiors on occasions like these.

A leader in the Manorama, of the 12th July, referring to the distress prevailing in Malabar, remarks that it is absurd to say that there is no famine in that district, and in support of its contention compares the present prices of rice and ragi in Malabar with those of the affected districts and shows that the grains are sold at higher prices in the former than in the latter. The article says that several poor persons are dying of cholera brought on by starvation, and it has on inquiry ascertained that among the fatal cases of cholera in the Calicut taluk last week, some actually died of starvation. If the Government does not take steps for giving relief to the poor till the end of August—the time when the harvest begins—several of them are likely to die of starvation whatever cause we may assign to their death—whether cholera or other diseases.

The Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th July, has also a leader on the distress in Malabar. The paper, after dwelling upon the matter at some length, exhorts wealthy men in the district to collect subscriptions and distribute food to the distressed without waiting for the Government to take the lead.

A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes that as the rain commenced very late this year the seeds that were sown first did not germinate. The low lands which were re-sown were afterwards flooded and the tender crops were destroyed. Owing to the failure of rain in Tiruvathira Nhattuvēla season the transplanted crops were withered. Now the rain is very excessive and it has therefore almost damaged the crops that were expected to thrive well. Money is very scarce. Even the wealthy are in want of money and paddy. What, under these circumstances, must the condition of the poor be? Famine and pestilence have spread throughout the district.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 24th, 1897.

A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th July, regrets to observe that the Collector of Malabar has not taken official recognition of the famine that prevails in that district. It says that owing to the scarcity of food-grains and also to the increase in their prices the distress prevailing among the poor has become very acute. A memorial is said to have been sent to the Collector by some of the citizens of Calicut regarding the distress, and it is therefore to be hoped that the Collector will at least hereafter take notice of the matter and do the needful.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

40. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th July, says that Government is under the impression that the recent murders in Poona were the result of the disaffection supposed to have been spread among the people by the local vernacular newspapers against the Plague officers, and that the curtailment of the liberty of the vernacular press is seriously contemplated. The paper remarks that the authorities should inquire whether the charges brought against the Plague officers in the vernacular newspapers are true, and, if they turn out to be untrue, they should punish that particular paper which has given currency to an untruth. The paper thinks that, in the interests of good administration, it is inexpedient to interfere with the liberty of the vernacular press, which is just beginning to be appreciated by the people of this country.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, July 8th, 1897.

A remark on the contemplation of the authorities to restrict the liberty of the vernacular press.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th July, observes that the demolition of the so-called musjid could not be the only cause which led the Muhammadans of Calcutta against the Europeans of the place; the disparaging utterances of the British and Anglo-Indian press against the Sultan of Turkey, who is held by the Muhammadans in great veneration, must have wounded their feelings and irritated them against Europeans. The paper suggests to the authorities the advisability of passing a rule forbidding the erection of places of worship, churches or temples or mosques, without the previous sanction of Government, and thinks that such a rule will prevent the outbreak of fanatical riots.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 8th, 1897.

A suggestion to Government regarding the Calcutta riot.

42. The Pariyan, of the 10th July, writes as follows:—While the people of India are enjoying the great blessings conferred by the British Government, not the least of them being the equality of all castes, the congress is doing great mischief by preaching to the people about imaginary wrongs, and creating in their minds a feeling of hostility towards Europeans. The Poona murders and the Calcutta riots are the outcome of the mischief that is being wrought by the congress party.

Pariyan, Madras, July 10th, 1897.

Calcutta riot and Poona murder being the outcome of the preachings of the congress.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th July, regards the order passed by the Bombay Government, touching the murders at Poona, as unjust. It says that it is not desirable that the whole population of Poona should be made to suffer on account of the mischief of some wicked men. The paper observes that the Hindus are a meek, gentle and loyal people who can be easily governed by kind treatment.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 10th, 1897.

The order of Bombay Government in connection with the Poona murders criticised.

44. The Swadesamitran, of the 13th July, reports that His Excellency Lord Sandhurst has telegraphed to the Secretary of State that the Plague officers discharged their duties with moderation, and that all accounts of misdeeds of soldiers alleged to have been committed in the discharge of their duties are nothing but concoctions of the people. The paper says that the grievances of the people of Poona will bear testimony to the fact that the report of His Excellency Lord Sandhurst is a misrepresentation.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 13th, 1897.

Report of His Excellency Lord Sandhurst on the behaviour of the Plague officers.

45. The Lokopakari, of the 11th July, writes as follows:—A Government ought not to distrust its subjects. The rulers and the ruled should be in harmony. When such good feeling exists a country is safe against foreign invasions. A house divided against itself goes to ruin. If there should be no sympathy in India between the natives and Englishmen, it would open the door for the Russians and that would subject the natives to endless troubles, for the country cannot expect to have another Government so good as the British Government. It being so, it will be suicidal on the part of the people of this country to cause any annoyance or disturbance to Government. They ought to represent to the authorities their grievances submissively and respectfully. There are wicked men everywhere. So in Poona some ruffians must have murdered Mr. Rand. But it is not proper for Government to punish all the people of Poona or gag the vernacular press for the wrong done by some individual. The murder of Mr. Rand all people must be sorry for. But it behoves the authorities to examine the cause or the motive for the deed. It must be because of the severity with which the plague rules were enforced by Mr. Rand in Poona. The inhabitants of Poona disliked him for his severity. Soldiers were allowed to go into the inmost recesses of native houses, drag from their homes even people who did not suffer from the plague and to show no consideration for the feelings of the fair sex. The newspapers of Poona loudly complained against the wanton doing of the soldiery. Why did not Government abate the severity of the plague rules? If people had been pacified the death of Mr. Rand would never have taken place. The deed must have been done by some one whose feelings had been enraged against Mr. Rand. What could the people in general do for it? Again, why charge the Brahmins alone of Poona? The Mussalmans of Poona must have suffered as much, if not more, because of the examination of their gosha women. Elsewhere the Mussalmans petitioned to Government for a modification of the plague rules and their prayer was granted. If the same wise course had been adopted in Poona the present troubles would not have arisen. But it is not just that Government should punish the whole population of a town.

Lokopakari, Madras, July 11th, 1897.

Observations regarding the murders in Poona.

PARIYAN, Madras, July 19th, 1897.

Suggestions to mitigate the sufferings of the operatives working in factories.

46. The Pariyan, of the 19th July, says that in factories and workshops, even of such respectable firms as Messrs. Orr & Sons, operatives are treated ill, being made to work for more hours than they can bear, and fined heavily and subjected to corporal punishment, and that no provision is made for the education of boys and girls. The fines often exceed the wages earned, and altogether the condition of workmen is miserable. Even females are treated in the same way. The paper prays for a law laying down that the owners of factories should not work their men for more than eight hours a day, that fines should not exceed the daily wages, that women should be treated with due consideration, that young boys and girls should receive schooling for two hours a day, and that inspectors should be appointed to examine the factories and to see that the rules are carried out and that the workmen are not treated roughly.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 20th, 1897.

Advisability of nominating a commission to inquire into the charges framed by the Poona people.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th July, says that His Excellency Lord Sandhurst, the Governor of Bombay, could not be in a proper frame of mind to listen patiently to the complaints of the Poona people, and that no justice can be expected in the inquiries conducted by the officers of the Bombay Government. The paper suggests the appointment of a commission consisting of Europeans and natives, unconnected with Bombay Government, for inquiring into the grievances of the Poona people. Lord Sandhurst's telegrams to the Secretary of State for India denying the truth of the allegations made by Professor Gokhale indicate a mind prejudiced by a foregone conclusion.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 19th, 1897.

The Poona outrages and the native papers.

48. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 19th July, says:—There are already grounds for coming to the conclusion that the apprehensions entertained by the Bombay Government that the murders of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst were due to the seditious preaching of the native papers have no foundation whatever. When Mr. Rand and his assistants of the Plague committee let loose upon the people the beast-like soldiers, who, without regard for the caste and religious prejudices of the people or to their feelings, marched out respectable women into the streets, examined their bodies and subjected them to all kinds of insults, it is very natural that the native papers should have resented such treatment and cried aloud to make themselves heard by the authorities. As the authorities, however, paid no heed to these cries some budmashes, who felt themselves aggrieved by such treatment should have wreaked their vengeance on the Plague Commissioner whom they considered as the author of all these insults. The murders therefore have no political importance and there is no reason for accusing the vernacular papers of preaching sedition against Government.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, July 16th, 1897.

The gagging of the Native press.

49. The Suryodaya, of the 16th July, says that there is no more loyal press in India than the Native press. The people know that under no other Government they can enjoy such liberty as under the British Government and they prize this liberty accordingly. If Government should try to gag the press they will show to the people that they are afraid of their actions being talked of by the papers.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 26th, 1897.

The outrages in Poona.

50. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 26th July, writing on the working of the plague regulations in Poona and on the allegations made by Professor Gokhale in England that two women were violated by the soldiers and that one of them committed suicide, says:—Mr. Gokhale must have had authentic information before he made such serious allegations, and it is the duty of the Government to appoint a commission to inquire into the whole matter. It is dangerous to take the denial of the officials as a gospel truth. But it is to be feared that Professor Gokhale will find it extremely difficult to prove his statement because the guardians of those women who were outraged by the soldiers will not come forward for fear that they might be taken to be the assassinators of Messrs. Rand and Ayerst, if they should come forward with their grievances.

The punishment of the Poona people.

51. The same paper, after saying that there could be no doubt that the murders took place in consequence of the irritation caused by the plague regulations, and condemning those who took the law into their own hands, remarks that the Government of Bombay was too hasty in imposing a punitive police force on the whole of the people, on the theory that the murders were committed at the instigation of the people generally, for which there is absolutely no evidence. This will cause much discontent and the people will become sullen. It will certainly not tend to make them more loyal, more contented, more happy. Just the opposite will be the case and the Government of Bombay will have itself to thank for whatever may happen. It had the sympathy of the people with it, but the tyrannical manner in which it has behaved is likely to destroy any feeling of the kind, and create something just the opposite. The order should be at once rescinded, for it will be certain to work much harm.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, July 28th, 1897.

The treatment of the Poona women by the soldiers.

52. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 28th July, says:—The Anglo-Indian papers would have us believe that the conduct of the soldiers in carrying out the plague regulations was most honourable and worthy of commendation, on the ground that no woman has come forward to accuse the soldiers. But this shows entire ignorance of the nature of Hindu women. They would rather suffer insults than come forward with charges against soldiers, because such a course would expose them to excommunication and the ridicule of the community. The mere fact, therefore, that there are no complaints does not prove that no outrages were committed by the soldiers.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, July 30th, 1897.

The sufferings of the Poona women.

53. The Suryodaya, of the 30th July, has an article of which the following is a close translation:—It is a known fact that, when the plague was prevailing in Poona, military soldiers had been employed to go and inspect the houses, and every one may know the sufferings inflicted by these heartless young soldiers on the women. The people of Poona complained of all these sufferings to the Parliament. When the Parliament referred to the Governor of Bombay, he said that it was all false. But he was silent because he could give no answer when he was asked whether the soldiers treated with dishonour the women who were in the hospitals. This by itself is sufficient admission that they were so treated by the soldiers. Although the Poona people have been patiently enduring all this, yet they have been burdened with a tax of three lakhs of rupees to maintain an additional police force, on the ground that the natives of the place, and chiefly the Mahratta Brahmins, instigated the murder of Mr. Rand. If insults such as were committed in Poona had been committed in any other place there would have been a great trouble (a great rebellion). And yet it is said that Mr. Rand was assassinated by some European who was an enemy of his. If this is true, then the injustice done by Government will become patent to all.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, July 17th, 1897.

Gagging of the press.

54. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 17th July, says that the proposal to gag the native press is uncalled for. The native press is more loyal to the British Government than the English press, because the people know that they cannot be happier under any other Government. If the Gagging Act be revived it would show the weakness of the Government, and make the people think that the Government is afraid of their actions being criticised.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, July 30th, 1897.

The address of the people of Mysore to Her Majesty rejected.

55. The Suryodaya, of the 30th July, says that an address to Her Majesty the Empress was drawn up by the people of Mysore to be presented on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee, and they requested the Diwan and the Resident to forward it. But both these have refused to do so. This is an insult to the people of the province. As long as the present Diwan is in power he would not allow the people to raise their heads.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, July 14th, 1897.

The Poona tragedy.

56. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 14th July, referring to the Poona tragedy, expresses the opinion that the murders were certainly the outcome of the conspiracy of some persons who were discontented with the stringent operations of the plague regulations, but deplores the hasty action of the Bombay Government in the matter of the imposition of the punitive police on the whole population of the town. It remarks that if, as the Government presumes, it is proved that this outrageous act was committed with the sanction and support of at least certain sections of the people, then the imposition of the punitive police would be just and reasonable. It is surprising that when the Poona vernacular papers wrote articles accusing the Plague officers of high-handedness and outrageous conduct, the Bombay Government permitted the appearance of articles which were calculated to create disaffection against, and distrust in, Government. If it is a fact that there are several other papers in India that indulge in intemperate language and criticisms of this character, the adoption of a strong measure against the vernacular press is highly necessary.

The Kerala Patrika, of the 17th July, has also a leader on the Poona tragedy in which the imposition of the punitive police by the Government is said to be a hasty and ill-considered act. The article is one which is more or less culled from the native English newspapers which have dwelt upon the subject and which criticise the action of the Bombay Government.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, July 19th, 1897.

Comments on the Poona tragedy.

57. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 19th July, referring to the plague operations which resulted in the murders of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst, says that Mr. Rand, in his enthusiasm for stamping out the plague in Poona, may have paid little heed to the representations made by the people regarding the iniquities of the soldiers who were conducting the searches and the Government also, out of its regard for Mr. Rand, may have abstained from taking notice of the memorial which was submitted by the Poona people. This apathy of the authorities may have enraged the aggrieved party and some of the vernacular editors of Poona may therefore have lost their heads and written highly objectionable articles calculated to excite the people; and one or more persons who were victims to the tyranny of the soldiers or some ruffians instigated by them may have wreaked vengeance on Mr. Rand by shooting him. Under the circumstances it is a pity that the Bombay Government and the Anglo-Indian papers which sing its praise should be so inconsiderate and one-sided as to hold that the whole population of Poona should pay the cost of the punitive police, and that an enactment should be passed to repress the vernacular press on the presumption that the murders were due to the conspiracy of the whole people of Poona and that they were incited to do this crime by the seditious writings in the vernacular papers. It is hoped that the British Cabinet and the Parliament will intervene and prevent such iniquitous proposals being given effect to.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th April, alluding to the above subject, remarks that it is simply cruel and unjust on the part of the Bombay Government to inculpate the whole population of the town in these deplorable murders and levy a tax from them when they are already in a distressed condition owing to the famine and plague.

The Kerala Patrika, referring to the Poona affairs, says that the reluctance on the part of the rulers to give effect to the pledges given by Her Majesty in the Proclamation of 1858, when the administration of India was transferred to the Crown, is not only due to their selfishness but also to their want of confidence in the people. The rulers do not relish the idea of the educated Hindus demanding, as a matter of right, the privileges for which they are qualified, and they are therefore even prepared to act in violation of the pledges instead of fulfilling them. The fees levied in colleges and schools are said to be prohibitory and the object of the rulers in doing this is to make higher education less accessible to the Indians. Sufficient encouragement is not afforded by Government to the growth of indigenous industries and commerce, etc., and the imposition of various taxes and duties has greatly paralysed such industries. The exclusion of natives from the higher offices in the civil and military departments, the raising of loans in foreign markets, indifference in the matter of lessening the financial burden of the country by the reduction of civil and military expenditures and by the employment of a large number of educated natives instead of Englishmen, the poverty of the country and the disarmament of the people, etc., are all bitterly complained of. The article, while disapproving of the Poona punitive police and the repression of the vernacular press, remarks that this invidious and unjust treatment of the Indians, who are second to none in their loyalty to Government, is due to nothing but want of confidence in them. The opinion is expressed that however cruel and tyrannous a king may be it is not in the nature of the Hindus, as it is in that of the Englishmen, to attack him, and the shocking murder of King Charles I. is cited as an instance in point; while it is said that it is impossible to show that a similar occurrence has taken place in India. If a country is governed without mutual confidence between the rulers and the ruled there will not be satisfaction to either. The article therefore hopes that the Government will give effect to the proclamation above referred to at least in part though not wholly, and adopt such other measures as are conducive to the welfare of the people without looking upon them with distrust.

[Issued 7th August 1897.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 15 of 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th August 1897.

---

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—Foreign Politics.

The Sultan and the British Government .. .. .. 190
Appealing to the Muhammadans of India to pay to the Sultan a specified sum annually .. .. .. .. ib.
Collision between the British troops and the Bashi Bazooks in Candia .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Slaughter of Turkish soldiers by the Christian rebels in Crete .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Mapillahs of Calicut and the Turkish victory .. .. ib.
Mr. Gladstone and the Sultan .. .. .. .. .. 191

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—

A request to the Superintendent of Police, Tanjore district .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Complaints of theft .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Theft in the temple of Tiruválúr, Tanjore district .. ib.

(b) Courts—

A suggestion regarding the village munsifs in this Presidency .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Necessity for giving relief to the District Court, Tanjore. 192

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

The present system of education and its evils .. .. ib.
Annual Survey schools for karnams .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

A suggestion to the municipal council, Kumbakónam .. ib.
Some irregularity in the union administration of Namakkal .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 193
A remark on the resolution of the Mannárgudi municipal council about encroachments in the town .. .. ib.
A request to the Revenue authorities of the Coimbatore district .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Hardship suffered from want of good drinking water in Negapatam .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A request to the Madras municipality .. .. .. ib.
Cost of medical examination of railway passengers at Bezwada .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Masulipatam municipality .. .. .. .. ib.
Gódávari taluk boards .. .. .. .. 194
Interpellation in the municipal councils .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

A prayer to His Excellency Lord Havelock .. .. ib.
A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock .. .. ib.

(g) Forests—

Nil.

(h) Railways—

Nil.

(i) Public Works—

A suggestion to the Public Works Department authorities, Tanjore district .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A request to the Local Fund authorities, Tanjore .. 195

PAGE

II.—Home Administration—cont.

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Complaint against raising toddy-rent of cocoanut, palmyra and date trees .. .. .. .. .. 195
Abkári administration .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Rewards in salt and abkári cases .. .. .. .. ib.

(k) General—

Remarks on the establishment of the punitive police in Poona .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Disturbances in Poona. The arrest of Hon'ble Mr. Tilak. Is he to be made a scapegoat of? .. .. ib.
Hon'ble Mr. Tilak and the Kesari .. .. .. .. 196
Arrest of two Sirdars in Poona .. .. .. .. ib.
Complaint against the chief medical officer of Vadakkanjeri .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock .. .. ib.
Postal deliveries in Calicut .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Calcutta riot .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The fidelity of the Muhammadans towards the British Government .. .. .. .. .. .. 197
Requesting the Muhammadans of the Gódávari district to help the oppressed Muhammadans of Crete .. ib.
The Amir of Kabul and the Pioneer .. .. .. ib.
The Simla case .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

III.—Legislation.

Legislative elections .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Modification suggested in the Breach of Contract Act, No. XIII of 1859 .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

IV.—Native States.

Amalgamation of the Hyderabad Imperial Service troops with those of the Contingent .. .. .. .. .. 198

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Famine in Gódávari .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Relief works in the Northern Circars .. .. .. .. ib.
Severity of famine in Cuddapah .. .. .. .. ib.
Famine in the Cuddapah district .. .. .. .. 199
The condition of the people in the Central Provinces .. ib.
Suggestions regarding the famine relief operations in Malabar. ib.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

A request to Government to stop for a time the exportation of food-grains .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Denial of the representations made by some officers about Mr. Tremenheere .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The zemindar of Bódináyakkanúr's orders in respect of the Parayas of the place .. .. .. .. .. .. 200
Violence committed on a girl near Aranthángi, Tanjore district .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

VI.—Miscellaneous—cont.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| Deprecatory attempt of Government to suppress the Vernacular press of India | 200 |
| Checks calculated to prevent the outbreak of famine in India. | ib. |
| A suggestion to the Revenue Board and Government | ib. |
| Fear entertained about curbing the freedom of the Vernacular press | 201 |
| Bad time for India and a suggestion to the people to be patient and submissive | ib. |
| Refusal of the Bombay Magistrate to bail Hon'ble Mr. Tilak. | ib. |
| Fear entertained in England of sedition in India | ib. |
| Remarks of the Arya Jana Priyan on the affairs of Poona | 202 |
| The Bombay Government and the deportation of the two Sirdars of Poona | ib. |
| The attempt of the Government of India to discredit the Indians | 203 |
| Remarks on Mr. Tilak's trial | ib. |
| Remarks on the speech of Lord Sandhurst | ib. |
| The case against the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak | ib |
| Remarks on the expenditure of the Government of India | ib. |
| Some suggestions to the congress associations in India | 204 |
| Some suggestions to the High Court, Bombay | ib. |
| Vain alarms of disaffection in India | ib. |
| Hindus and Muhammadans in India in friendly relations | 205 |
| Moulvi Rabi-ud-din Ahmed on Poona affairs | ib. |
| A press association | ib. |
| Poona affairs | ib. |
| The permanent touchstone of Indian administration | 206 |

VI.—Miscellaneous—cont.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| Arrest of Mr. Tilak | 207 |
| Gagging the Vernacular press | ib. |
| Muhammadans in India | 208 |
| An advice to the people of India | ib. |
| Poona murders | ib. |
| The Vernacular press | 210 |
| Lord Sandhurst and Poona affairs | ib. |
| The misfortunes of India | 211 |
| The Khana outrage and Lord Sandhurst's denials | ib. |
| The affairs in Poona | ib. |
| The arrests at Poona | ib. |
| The Vernacular press | 212 |
| The special police in Poona | ib. |
| High-handed deeds of the civilians in Bengal | ib. |
| Poona affairs | ib. |
| The panic in India | 213 |
| The manager of the Kavalappara estate under the Court of Wards to be removed from office | ib. |
| Remarks on the arrest of the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak | ib. |
| The Poona case and the natives | 214 |
| Misfortunes of the inhabitants of Poona | ib. |
| The Bombay Government and native newspapers | 215 |
| The freedom of the press and the Government | ib. |
| Reward for the arrest of the murderers of Mr. Rand | ib. |
| The Hon'ble Badr-ud-din Tyabjee's speech as regards the Native press | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | July 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 1st Aug. 1897. |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 10th, 24th and 31st July and 7th Aug. 1897. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | 24th and 31st July and 7th Aug. 1897. |
| 6 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 25th July and 1st and 8th Aug. 1897. |
| 7 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 24th and 31st July and 7th Aug. 1897. |
| 8 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 28th July and 4th Aug. 1897. |
| 9 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 24th and 31st July and 7th Aug. 1897. |
| 10 | "Tharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 80 | 1st and 8th Aug. 1897. |
| 11 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 24th July and 1st and 8th Aug. 1897. |
| 12 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 24th and 31st July and 7th Aug. 1897. |
| 13 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 450 | 1st and 8th Aug. 1897. |
| 14 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 800 | 2nd and 9th Aug. 1897. |
| 15 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 8th Aug. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 19th, 24th, 27th and 29th June, 31st July and 3rd, 5th, 7th, 10th and 12th Aug. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 576 | July 1897. |
| 18 | "Sunday School Lessons" .. .. | Guntur .. .. .. | 100 | Aug. ,, |
| 19 | "Satwa Sadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 250 | Apr. ,, |
| 20 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | Aug. ,, |
| 21 | "Samrajyapradayini" .. .. | Vellatore .. .. .. | .. | 25th July 1897. |
| 22 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 100 | July 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 23 | "Kistna News" .. .. .. | Bezwada .. .. .. | 500 | 15th July 1897. |
| 24 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | |
| 25 | "Vignanavardhani" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 100 to 150 | 15th and 31st July 1897. |
| 26 | "Patrikasaraprakasika" .. .. | Tuni .. .. .. | 300 | 30th July 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Rajayogi" .. .. .. .. | Cocanada .. .. .. | 300 | 12th and 19th July 1897. |
| 28 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 31st July and 7th Aug. 1897. |
| 29 | "Desopakari" .. .. .. | Ellore .. .. .. | 350 | 1st and 8th Aug. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 30 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 30th July and 3rd, 6th, 10th and 13th Aug. 1897. |
| 31 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 31st July and 4th, 7th and 11th Aug. 1897. |
| 32 | "Vibudharanjani" .. .. .. | Ellore .. .. .. | 260 | 2nd, 9th, 16th and 23rd July 1897. |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 33 | "Sudarshana" .. .. .. | Udipi (South Canara) .. | 400 | July 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 370 | 2nd and 9th Aug. 1897. |
| 35 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 200 | 7th ,, 14th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Suriyodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 6th ,, 13th ,, ,, |
| 37 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 1,800 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| 38 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 552 | 4th ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 39 | "Sarvathra Mitram" .. .. | Alleppey .. .. .. | 721 | 30th July 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 40 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kottayam .. .. .. | 1,000 | 7th Aug. 1897. |
| 41 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 2nd and 9th Aug. 1897. |
| 42 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 754 | 7th Aug. 1897. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 43 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 26th July and 2nd Aug. 1897. |
| 44 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 24th and 31st July 1897. |
| 45 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th July 1897. |
| 46 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 150 | 25th July and 1st Aug. 1897. |
| 47 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 22nd, 26th and 29th July and 2nd Aug. 1897. |
| 48 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 7th June 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

Alhami, Madras, July 25th, 1897.

1. Referring to the proposed terms of the peace between Turkey and Greece, the Alhami, of the 25th July, expresses a hope that the high-minded and just British Government will protect the rights of the Sultan as much as it can and will sympathise with His Majesty in the same way as the British Cross Society has sympathised with the wounded Turks by sending a thousand pounds for their benefit.

The Sultan and the British Government.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, July 24th, 1897.

2. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 24th July, has another letter from Abdul Qaiyum, of Hyderabad, in which the writer says that all Muhammadans should agree to acknowledge one only Khalif, and that regard can fall on no one but the Sultan. He requests the Muhammadans of India, in addition to what they may subscribe towards the relief of the wounded Turks of to-day, to pay to the Sultan's treasury 4 annas per head per annum for the benefit of the families of those who may be killed in wars which may be expected to break out. The writer solicits the Government of the Nizam to remit to Constantinople the amount (more than Rs. 30,000), being balance of collections after the Russo-Turkish war, for the benefit of wounded Turks, and balance of collections for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Hejaz, an amount which has not as yet been utilised. In conclusion, the writer mentions the names of the persons who have subscribed to the fund started for the benefit of the Turkish wounded.

Appealing to the Muhammadans of India to pay to the Sultan a specified sum annually.

3. The same paper says it is advisable to contradict the telegram which alleges that a collision took place between the British troops and the Bashi Bazooks in Candia. But in fact the policy of the British in these days is unfriendly to Muhammadans and other nations. Relations between British and Muhammadans are strained in every place in which they have mutual dealings.

Collision between the British troops and the Bashi Bazooks in Candia.

4. The same paper quotes a letter from an Italian officer to his brother to the effect that Turkish soldiers who were caught by Christian rebels in Crete were ruthlessly slaughtered, their women and children were tortured and their stomachs were rent open, but the Christian officers in charge of the naval force took no notice whatever. Such is the civilization and fellow-feeling of Europe, where chief aim is to destroy the only Muhammadan power in Europe. The Christians in every Turkish country are always ready to commit raids and to break the peace, with a view to escape from Turkish rule. The Christians, influenced by this motive, have rebelled in several Turkish possessions, such as Armenia and Crete.

Slaughter of Turkish soldiers by the Christian rebels in Crete.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Aug. 2nd, 1897.

5. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 2nd August, mentions that a correspondent writing from Calicut refers to the celebration there of the Turkish victory over the enemies of religion. The Mapillahs did not take part in it. In connection with the steps taken in Madras for affording aid to the Turkish widows and orphans, a few notices for subscription have been received in Calicut through Haji Abdul Aziz or through Abdulla & Co., but nothing has been done. The Diamond Jubilee was celebrated in the premises of the newly formed (Anjuman-i)-Hymayat-ul-Islam. Maulana Saiyid Sana-ulla Sahib has been travelling all over Malabar refuting Christianity and inculcating the doctrines of Islam. The Saiyid has started a tri-weekly paper called The Telegraphic Summary from the commencement of the Turko-Greek war and has formed an association to commemorate the Turkish victory. On 25th July the celebration was held. The Muhiuddin Pillay mosque was brilliantly illuminated on the occasion. The whole night prayers were offered and the Quran read. On the following day a procession was formed, which proceeded through the Lushkar Bazaar to the mosque in the military lines. The said Saiyid Sahib delivered a lecture outside the mosque before a very large gathering. At its conclusion, prayers were offered for the long life and prosperity of Sultan and Queen and for the continuance of friendly relations between their Majesties. The Saiyid also prayed saying "Oh God! for the favour and generosity shown to us by the gracious Queen, for the ease and comfort we enjoy under her auspicious shadow, for the good already done, and the good which is being done to us, for the religious freedom enjoyed by us, there is nothing to ask of Thee to grant Her Majesty, which can be a sufficient recompense; but if, according to our faith and belief, there be any worthy recompense, it is that she should receive the faith of Islam. Hence all of us pray to Thee to grant her that faith, and to let her be our Queen in the next as she is in this world, and thus make us happy."

Mapillahs of Calicut and the Turkish victory.

6. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 31st July, has an article headed "The Mischief-making Premier" to the following effect:—The old and decrepit Mr. Gladstone has fallen into his dotage. He and his followers have become blind to reason, as their ears are full of the false and malicious statements made by calumniators and revolutionary parties against the Turkish Government. The editor here inserts translation of a letter of Mr. Gladstone, dated 17th May 1897, alleged to have been written to a home paper about the proposal of the Sultan to send a representative to be present at the Diamond Jubilee. Mr. Gladstone expresses a desire that the representative of "the great assassin" should be treated in England according to his deserts. This letter, the editor says, called upon the roughs of London to disgrace and ill-treat the representative of the Sultan on the Jubilee day, and accordingly they have girded up their loins, and Munir Pasha could not be present at the celebration. By such an act on the part of Mr. Gladstone the honour of Christendom has been sullied. The editor hopes the British Government will suitably punish Mr. Gladstone.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, July 31st, 1897.

Mr. Gladstone and the Sultan.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

7. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 31st July, reports that a jutka proceeding to Tiruvádi from Tanjore was waylaid on the 24th night and that the passengers were beaten and robbed of their things worth Rs. 500. The correspondent adds that highway robbery is of frequent occurrence on the said road, and that it is due to the insufficiency of the police force at the Tiruvádi police station to patrol the roads. It is hoped that the District Superintendent of Police will attend to the matter.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 31st, 1897.

A request to the Superintendent of Police, Tanjore district.

8. A correspondent to the Vettikkodiyon, of the 7th August, complains that thefts and dacoities are of frequent occurrence in the villages of Periyakuppam near Tiruválúr railway station, Sembiyam near Perambúr, and Tirumahishi.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 7th, 1897.

Complaints of theft.

9. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th August, regrets that neither the authorities of the Tiruválúr temple nor the police evince any interest in the detection of the culprits who committed theft in that temple.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 12th, 1897.

Theft in the temple of Tiruválúr, Tanjore district.

(b) Courts.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 7th August, states that the village munsifs of this Presidency exercise police, civil, magisterial and revenue powers within their limits. He suggests to Government the advisability of taking away from them police, civil and magisterial functions and conferring them on competent men who may hold the office honorarily.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 7th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the village munsifs in this Presidency.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 10th, 1897.

Necessity for giving relief to the District Court, Tanjore.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th August, says that the work of the District Court at Tanjore has been very heavy for some time past, and has become still heavier of late, by the transfer of Mr. Venkobachariyar, Sub-Judge, who exercised the powers of an additional Sessions Judge. Cases posted up for hearing on a particular date are not taken up on the appointed day and are adjourned, thus causing great inconvenience to the parties concerned. The correspondent recommends the creation of another District Court in the district or the appointment of a Sub-Judge invested with the powers of a Sessions Judge.

(d) Education.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, July 12th, 1897.

The present system of education and its evils.

12. The Rajayogi, of the 12th July, writes thus (in English):—"Let us turn to the practical bearing of education and see whether the education imparted in our schools is suited to the requirements of the country. India is the land of agriculture and the present education does in no way aid to improve it. Of what earthly use then are our Orient Readers, Histories, Geographies, Trigonometries? Can any one who is dubbed with B.A., B.L., or M.A. expect to benefit the land by making it to yield one more blade of grass or one more ear of corn? Now the population has been increasing by leaps and bounds, the country is becoming impoverished day by day through the drains of land-tax, water-tax and so on, the famine has almost become chronic in the country and many people are dying of starvation consequent on the failure of crops or disappointment of monsoons! At such a juncture, what is needed to uplift the country from the fallen state if not the improvement of agricultural operations? How is this to be achieved but by a study of our system of agriculture, the nature of our land, the requirements of our soil? We have seen how western scientists have failed in this respect, how the agricultural college established in the metropolis has not been able to bring forth any good, and how the Government could not effect any improvement in the agricultural condition of the people. It is because they did not, in the first instance, make a close study of the land and its requirements. It is therefore necessary that our young men should learn from the ryot as to his system of ploughing, rotation of crops and system of manuring, etc. Indispensable is it, therefore, to teach agricultural education side by side with general education! Every institution must have an agricultural farm attached to it, so that the pupils might learn this as well. By so doing we will be bettering ourselves and our country."

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, July 9th, 1897.

Annual Survey schools for karnams.

13. The Vibudharanjani, of the 9th July, received on the 5th August, condemns the order requiring the karnams, who have once passed the Survey examination, to pass again and again the same test every year, as quite unjust and inconsiderate. It describes their condition as being sufficiently wretched without this additional burden. They are obliged to be humbly submissive to all the Government servants from the Collector down to the peon, and to remain at the taluk head-quarters for six months in the year, despite their low salaries and heavy work. The paper hears that the said order will be put into force from August 1897, and considers the step to be as repugnant as any rule would be if it required B.As., M.As., qualified Deputy Collectors and Tahsildars to pass their examinations again and again.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 24th, 1897.

A suggestion to the municipal council, Kumbakónam.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th July, complains that the Kumbakónam municipal authorities take no steps whatever to keep the backyards of houses in the streets near the Cauvery free from the accumulation of stagnant water by percolation. The correspondent says that people are put to much inconvenience and that the drainage channel constructed by the municipality at a cost of many thousands of rupees is of no use to the public. It is earnestly hoped that the municipal council will attend to the grievance.

15. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 1st August, complains that the Union authorities of Namakkal have not removed the overgrowth of prickly-pear and other plants around the place, and draws their attention to their removal to save people from snake-bite.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1897.

Some irregularity in the union administration of Namakkal.

16. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 2nd August, reports that at a meeting of the municipal council, Mannárgudi, it was resolved that the bazaar-men of the place encroaching upon the municipal land in front of their shops should be compelled to pay rent for the same. The correspondent adds that the resolution will not have the desired effect of checking encroachments, though it may improve the income of the municipality.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Aug. 2nd, 1897.

A remark on the resolution of the Mannárgudi municipal council about encroachments in the town.

17. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 7th August, draws the attention of the Revenue authorities of the district of Coimbatore to the petitions submitted by the people of the district for the construction of a public road between the Savadipoliem railway station and Modakkurchi.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 7th, 1897.

A request to the Revenue authorities of the Coimbatore district.

18. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 9th August, invites the attention of the local municipal council to the hardship suffered by the people from want of good drinking water.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Aug. 9th, 1897.

Hardship suffered from want of good drinking water in Negapatam.

19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitan, of the 10th August, draws the attention of the President and Commissioners, Madras municipality, to the necessity of constructing a public latrine on the road leading to Popham's Broadway from the toll-gate, Teynampet, as the absence of such accommodation on the road-side puts people to great inconvenience.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 10th, 1897.

A request to the Madras municipality.

20. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 30th July, observes that the medical examination of passengers suffering from the plague at Kondapalle, on the East Coast Railway, has been very unsatisfactory, and that the transfer of the inspectional operations to Bezwada was hailed by the people with joy. The cost of this medical examination should, he says, be properly borne by Government, as it is unfair to burden the Bezwada municipality with it when the arrangements for the examination are made for the safety of the public.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 30th, 1897.

Cost of medical examination of railway passengers at Bezwada.

21. The Kistna News, of the 15th July, complains that many parts in the town of Masulipatam are covered with bushes, hedges and dirty pools, serving as habitations for worms and snakes, that all the side lanes are in a most insanitary condition, that roads are very bad and lights too few, and that drinking water is hard to obtain. It finds fault with prickly-pear, etc., being used as fences for avenue trees, inasmuch as the same bring on fevers. It observes that, if rains set in, the water stagnates in the streets producing a stench, there being no drains to carry it off. Referring to the privilege granted to the rate-payers of electing eight councillors, the paper regrets to note that no arrangements seem to have been made for the exercise of this privilege, as the two vacancies, which lately occurred, had to be filled up by Government itself.

KISTNA NEWS, Bezwada, July 15th, 1897.

The Masulipatam municipality.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, July 23rd, 1897.

Gódávari taluk boards.

22. The Vibudharanjani, of the 23rd July, adversely criticises the proposal of the Vice-President of the Gódávari District Board to raise the number of members on the taluk boards in the district. First it objects to any addition to the present numbers, as it will only result in loss of money, the incapacity of the existing members amply testifying to the difficulty of securing the services of persons able to understand their rights and duties and willing to work for the public good. Next it takes exception to increasing the number of boards themselves, for, besides the difficulty of finding proper Presidents and Vice-Presidents, except the Tahsildars, who, if appointed, would pass their individual opinions as if they were the Board's resolutions, there is the additional difficulty of obtaining in each taluk more than 4 or 5 members, who can act with independence, except perhaps in Cocanada, Rajahmundry, Ellore and Narsapur, which have their own boards. Lastly, it refers to pecuniary difficulties as want of funds is evident from the absence of good roads, water-works, hospitals, choultries and schools. The paper therefore recommends the formation for the present of only two boards, with 40 members in each, one for the taluks above, and the other for those below, the Gódávari.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 28th, 1897.

Interpellation in the municipal councils.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th July, referring to the right of interpellation granted to the municipal councillors under the new Municipal Act, says that it will not materially alter the condition which existed previous to this legislation so long as the chairman is empowered to refuse to answer any question without assigning any reasons and without recording them in writing. The article therefore suggests that the law should be so altered as to prohibit councillors from asking unnecessary and trifling questions, but at the same time safeguarding the chairman's refusal to answer important questions.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 27th, 1897.

A prayer to His Excellency Lord Havelock.

24. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th July, writes as follows:—The Secretary of State for India has ruled that there will be a renewal of settlement only once in thirty years. This is the time for His Excellency the Governor to pass favourable orders on the land-tax of the Presidency, as he himself is said to have expressed that the present assessment is heavy. The land-holding population of this Presidency groan under heavy taxation. Else, why should lands in Trichinopoly, Pattukkóttai, and other taluks be distrained by Government for arrears of revenue? Memorials from the Gódávari, the Kistna, Malabar and other districts against the severity of the recent settlement are pending before His Excellency the Governor for disposal; and if His Excellency will be pleased to pass favourable orders on the subject of land-tax, his name will ever be remembered by the people with grateful feelings.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 3rd, 1897.

A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 3rd August, requests His Excellency the Governor to be pleased to pass favourable orders on the Tinnevelly settlement operations pending before him for disposal.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 3rd, 1897.

A suggestion to the Public Works Department authorities, Tanjore district.

26. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 3rd August, reports that the beds of the irrigating channels of Odampokki and Sukkanaru, branches of the Vettár, Tanjore district, are silted up with sand brought down by the current, and that much loss is in consequence sustained by the owners of the lands under irrigation of the said channels. It is hoped that the Public Works Department of the district will attend to the grievance.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th August, complains that the cracks in the parapet walls on the Vennár bridge, Tanjore, are wide in some places, and that accidents may happen in consequence. He hopes that steps will be taken to repair the bridge soon.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 10th, 1897.

A request to the Local Fund authorities, Tanjore.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

28. The Swadesamitran, of the 31st July, complains that the Madras Government has raised the toddy-rent of cocoanut, palmyra and date trees, and that the enhancement has put the lessees and purchasers of toddy to much hardship. Many toddy-shops in Madras have been distrained by the Abkári officers for arrears of rent due to Government. Toddy, the paper observes, is freely taken for food by the lower classes of people in this country and heavy taxation on an article of necessity is unjust.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 31st, 1897.

Complaint against raising toddy-rent of cocoanut, palmyra, and date trees.

29. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 6th August, notes with surprise the capacity of the British Government to preserve perfect order and peace in the country and also to collect with ease the innumerable taxes imposed. In particular he refers to the various taxes imposed on the palmyra tree, on toddy, on the liquors distilled from the same, and on the sale of the liquor, etc., and expresses his surprise at the idea that they are intended to discourage drunkenness in India. He cannot see the good of imposing these taxes when the vice is daily increasing in spite of them. If the Government really intend to deliver the country from the evils of intoxication, why should it not, he earnestly asks, prohibit the importation of foreign liquors, and why should it allow these liquors to reach the hands of the Indian population, never before accustomed to these wretched spirituous drinks.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 6th, 1897.

Abkári administration.

30. A leader in the Manorama, of the 9th August, alluding to the concurrence of Government in the opinion of the Board that no modification can at present be effected in the rules for the grant of rewards in salt and abkári cases, refers to the large number of salt and abkári cases in Malabar resulting in conviction, and says that this large number is not due to any attempt to check illicit manufacture and sale as stated by the Board, but to the fact that, when there are only a few cases, the superior officers find fault with their subordinates, and that even if false convictions are procured there is a prospect of getting the rewards.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 9th, 1897.

Rewards in salt and abkári cases.

(k) General.

31. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th July, criticises the establishment of the punitive police in Poona as a hasty and ill-advised act of His Excellency Lord Sandhurst, and remarks that the Government must have taken such a bold step to wreak its vengeance on the natives of the place in response to the cry of some Anglo-Indians. It is said that the worship of Sivaji by the Poona Brahmins, and the strictures passed on the plague rules in the vernacular papers, provoked the establishment of the punitive police. The paper, in conclusion, observes that section 25 of the Police Act does not sanction the entertainment of a special police force either for the reasons above set forth or for punishing people who fight for some privileges.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 24th, 1897.

Remarks on the establishment of the punitive police in Poona.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th July, writes as follows:—Ever since the time of the murders in Poona, the Government of India has been exerting its best to check the Vernacular press. The Anglo-Indian newspapers set up a cry that the Kesari, a paper published in Poona, was the first cause of those murders and that its editor should be punished. The Government of Bombay was also of the

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 29th, 1897.

Disturbances in Poona. The arrest of Hon'ble Mr. Tilak. Is he to be made a scapegoat of?

same opinion. Hon'ble Mr. Tilak was arrested under warrant at Poona by the Bombay Police on Tuesday last at 10 o'clock in the night; and it has been resolved to place him under trial. He was not let on bail on that night. The offence with which he is charged is under section 124A of the Indian Penal Code. That section says that if a person, by writing or otherwise, speaks against Government and provokes sedition, he shall be transported for life or suffer imprisonment for three years. But the section provides that it is no offence to criticise the acts or orders of Government. That being so, why should not Government regard the utterances in the Kesari as criticisms of its orders? The Government of Bombay has now dared to do many bold acts. Because some journals in England expressed their opinion in favour of curbing the Vernacular press of India, the Government of Bombay has been emboldened to act in this manner. It will bring but evil repute to the Governor of Bombay when such inglorious acts are done.

Hon'ble Mr. Tilak and the Kesari.

33. The same paper dwells at length upon the merits of Hon'ble Mr. Tilak, his public spirit and usefulness, and the influence of the paper—the Kesari—which he edits. The paper says that Mr. Tilak is of the orthodox party, is highly respected, and possesses unbounded influence in Poona.

Arrest of two Sirdars in Poona.

34. The same paper, speaking of the arrest of two Sirdars in Poona, writes as follows:—The two Sirdars are men of great influence in Poona and one of them is the guru or priest of several Maharajas in the north. It is unjust that the Government of Bombay should dare to do these deeds.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 31st, 1897.

Complaint against the chief medical officer of Vadakkanjeri.

35. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 31st July, reports that accommodation and treatment were refused to some wealthy and other in-patients at the hospital of Vadakkanjeri under orders of the chief medical officer of the district, for no other reason than that the latter, at his sudden inspection, found the patients referred to absent from the hospital building. The correspondent adds that the patients have been ordered to go to a hospital 15 miles away for treatment, and that it would be a hardship to them.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 7th, 1897.

A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th August, says that it is time for His Excellency the Governor to return to Madras from the hills, and that he will very probably inspect some districts of the Presidency on his way. The paper wishes that His Excellency will be pleased to hold durbars in the stations that may be visited, so that he may have an opportunity of personally hearing from the people what they have to say on the subject of land-tax, income-tax, forest assessments, and the like. The paper observes that Lord Havelock, unlike his predecessors in office, takes a personal interest in the welfare of his subjects and that the interviews he may give to them will enable him to add to the benefits of his administration.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 31st, 1897.

Postal deliveries in Calicut.

37. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 31st July, referring to the changes in the arrival of mails at Calicut consequent on the alterations in the train service on the Madras Railway, invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of making arrangements for two deliveries in Talli, Chalappuram, etc., where several lawyers, officials and other business men reside and also of employing one more additional delivery peons.

ALHAMI, Madras, July 25th, 1897.

Calcutta riot.

38. The Alhami, of the 25th July, comments upon the recent riots and says that it is understood that the Maharaja Jotundra Mohan placed the land, on which the demolished mosque stood, entirely at the disposal of Government, but that the Government prevented him from giving possession thereof to Muhammadans. The editor observes that, if this is correct, the action of Government is incomprehensible. The grant of the land to the Muhammadans would not only have removed the ill-feelings existing between them and the Hindus, but also would have proved that the Government was not prejudiced in the matter. The editor, appealing to the Muhammadans, urges that it is inadvisable for them to press demands upon Government by making mischief, and advises them to conduct themselves in a submissive manner.

39. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 29th July, in a leader headed "The Fidelity of Muhammadans," says it is natural with Muhammadans to obey their ruler for the time being and the law. They have inherited this quality from their Arabian forefathers and it will abide with them for ever. A reference to their past history will show that they have not only obeyed Muslim but also non-Muslim rulers. They are religiously ordained to be loyal and faithful to their rulers of whatever nationality they may be. During the great Indian Mutiny the rebels behaved in a most barbarous manner towards their rulers, whereas hundreds of leading Muhammadans saved the lives of many European gentlemen, ladies and children. During this critical time the Hyderabad State not only helped the Government in the suppression of the mutiny, but also protected the British Raj until the arrival of British regiments from home. This act on the part of the State is still remembered with gratitude by many a British statesman. There are many present instances of Muhammadan loyalty in India, amongst these the chief is that they have not joined the congress. The editor further observes that Muhammadans get greatly excited when their religious ceremonies are interfered with, but are easily pacified when their grievances are redressed. The British Government may place complete reliance on their loyalty and should attend to their wants and grievances.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, July 29th, 1897.

The fidelity of the Muhammadans towards the British Government.

40. The Alhami, of the 1st August, has a letter from a correspondent who mentions that the Muhammadans of the district of Gódávari in general, and those of Rajahmundry and Ellore in particular, celebrated the Turkish victory and prayed for the Khalif in every mosque, but have not as yet given anything for the benefit of the oppressed Muhammadans of Crete.

Alhami, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1897.

Requesting the Muhammadans of the Gódávari district to help the oppressed Muhammadans of Crete.

41. In refutation of the statement of the Pioneer to the effect that the Amir is untrustworthy, the same paper mentions that recently when the Mada Khil tribe sent an appeal to the Amir for aid, he refused it and said that, unless they submitted themselves to the British Government, he would not aid them. The editor, in drawing the attention of the Pioneer to this, asks whether the loyalty of the Amir can still be doubted?

The Amir of Kabul and the Pioneer.

42. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 31st July, in concurring with the judgment given by the Privy Council in the Simla case in which Maulani Yusufuddin Sahib, of Hyderabad, was concerned, says that the illegal procedure adopted in the execution of the warrant for his arrest has cast a slur on the Panjab court and on the judicial authorities.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, July 31st, 1897.

The Simla case.

III.—Legislation.

43. The Hindujanasamskarini, for July, considers it necessary that officials should be prohibited from being appointed voting delegates in the elections of members by the municipalities and district boards for the Legislative Council.

Hindujanasamskarini, Madras, July 1897.

Legislative elections.

44. A leader in the Manorama, of the 2nd August, referring to a ruling of the Madras High Court upholding the arrest of persons for breaches of contract in places outside the jurisdiction of the magistrate issuing the warrants for arrest, says that if the Manorama, Calicut, Aug. 2nd, 1897.

Modification suggested in the Breach of Contract Act, No. XIII of 1859.

Government of India, heeding the representations of planters, abstain from making the necessary modification in the Act (No. XIII of 1859), many an innocent and helpless man will often be involved in danger. It also asks how labourers who have not entered into any agreement and who are arrested under this warrant and deported to foreign countries or forests unknown to them, can prove the absence of any contract; whom they can cite as their witness and what funds will they have with which to engage a counsel. In consideration of these facts it is hoped that the Government of India will soon modify the law permitting the arrest and deportation to other countries of persons under the Act.

IV.—Native States.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, July 30th, 1897.

45. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 30th July, hears that the British Government intends amalgamating the Hyderabad Imperial Service troops with those of the Contingent. But why should the India Government desire to put the Nizam in continuous pecuniary difficulties? The districts of Cuddapah, Kurnool and Bellary were given to meet the expenses of the subsidiary force and Berar for the Contingent. It is not known which district will be demanded for the expense of the Imperial Service troops, if the proposal is carried out. The editor observes that Government should, in consideration of the old friendship of the Nizam, give back Berar and let alone the Imperial Service force, which adds to the glory of the State. The Nizam is ready to sacrifice his State on behalf of the Government, and it is not advisable that its fair proportions should be curtailed.

Amalgamation of the Hyderabad Imperial Service troops with those of the Contingent.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Hindujanasamskarini, Madras, July 1897.

46. The Hindujanasamskarini, for July, states that the "Koyas" in the Agency tracts, in the Gódávari district, took to looting villages finding no other means of livelihood. It hears that cultivation and trade have come to a standstill there, and that riots are on the increase owing to 300 Koyas having been thrown into jail. The journal believes that the immediate establishment of a relief kitchen in those parts will restore peace and order.

Famine in Gódávari.

47. The same paper remarks that relief works were introduced too late in the Northern Circars for people to go with sufficient strength of body to work on them.

Relief works in the Northern Circars.

Sasilekha, Madras, Aug. 10th, 1897.

48. The Sasilekha, of the 10th August, regrets to observe that famine is very severe in Cuddapah. It remarks that the almost incessant telegrams from Government ascertaining whether there has been any decrease in the number of coolies working on the relief works have made the district officers to so contrive things as to enable them to send affirmative replies. These officers have therefore cut short the amount of charitable relief and enhanced the work to be performed by the coolies. In the light of the above facts, the paper anticipates a reduction in the number of relief coolies, and says that it cannot be attributed to subsidence of famine but to a desire on the part of the coolies to starve and die in their homes instead of suffering from the troubles they are put to by Government servants and ultimately dying uncared for at the relief works. It remarks that, even if rains set in, it must take a long time for coolies, fed once a day, to recruit their strength, and asserts that it is unbecoming of Government to cause the poor people to first resort to the relief works, then to reduce their wages and subject them to serious sufferings. Hearing that the present tahsildar of Pulivendla, well acquainted with the work of granting agricultural loans, will be transferred to some other place, the paper remarks that the ryots will almost die by the time the new tahsildar understands the work he will have to do. It regrets to hear that the overseer on the relief works at Yerraguntla is coercing the coolies to work after the fixed hours in the evenings, that charitable relief on Sundays has been put a stop to, that no recess is allowed at midday, and that fines are imposed frequently and unnecessarily. In fact, the officers are altogether devoid of mercy and the people are dying out of starvation. "O, Governor Garu," writes the paper, "it is enough, enough and enough that you have sung and danced on the cool hills for these five months; please get up and visit for once Cuddapah in a special saloon, and examine the condition of the people and cattle that are suffering from want of food and fodder and water, and are dying in groups and groups, and then return. Then you will understand the real cause of reduction in the number of coolies on the relief works. If you do not act thus, you will earn ill-fame which you will afterwards find very hard to cast off. Protect the poor in these days of famine and earn lasting fame like the Duke of Buckingham. Be kind, rise, rise and visit Cuddapah and examine things for yourself."

Severity of famine in Cuddapah.

Famine in the Cuddapah district.

49. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 6th August, observes that prices of food-stuffs are rising in Madanapalle, Cuddapah district, and that the cattle are suffering for want of fodder. The condition of the people and rebukes from the Board of Revenue have not been able to influence Mr. Tate, the District Collector, who seems to have sworn not to help the famine-stricken people. The tahsildars are unable to do anything. Next, referring to the order of the Madras Famine Committee empowering the Collector instead of the district committee to determine whether famine prevails in any locality, the correspondent remarks that there is no reason why a Collector should be permitted to interfere with the disposal of a fund made up of contributions from the people, and that the district committee alone should have control over its management, especially because it is impossible for the poor sufferers to obtain any relief so long as Mr. Tate continues to be the Collector.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 6th, 1897.

The condition of the people in the Central Provinces.

50. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 9th August, says that people in the Central Provinces have been forced by starvation to eat the flesh of dogs and of human beings.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 9th, 1897.

Suggestions regarding the famine relief operations in Malabar.

51. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 31st July, is glad to notice that the authorities have at last awakened to the acuteness of the distress prevailing in Malabar. The Collector is said to have applied to Government to make a grant of Rs. 20,000 from the Famine Relief Fund for affording relief in the district; and the opinion is expressed that as this sum would be quite inadequate for the whole district, it should be set apart for localities where there is no scope of starting relief works. When His Excellency visited Malabar last year, His Excellency said that some new roads would be constructed in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad. If this as well as the Calicut-Cannanore Railway work be taken in hand at once, ample facilities will be given to the poor to earn their livelihood.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 31st, 1897.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

A request to Government to stop for a time the exportation of food-grains.

52. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 24th July, speaking of the hardship and suffering that people are put to owing to the high prices of all food-grains, etc., exhorts Government to stop for a time exports of all articles of food, or to buy a store of them and sell them cheap to poor people.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, July 24th, 1897.

Denial of the representations made by some officers about Mr. Tremenheere.

53. The Parayan, of the 24th July, denies that Mr. Tremenheere, Collector of the Nilgiris, has been guilty of any wrongful acts in his administration, and says that he is a thoroughly strict and impartial officer, bent on doing good to the people and putting down the malpractices of his subordinates. After quoting instances in which Mr. Tremenheere brought to punishment ministerial officers who had misbehaved, the paper goes on to say that wherever that officer had served he had proved himself the friend of the people and lover of justice.

PARAYAN, Madras, July 24th, 1897.

The zemindar of Bódináyakkanúr's orders in respect of the Parayas of the place.

54. The same paper publishes a correspondence from Bódináyakkanúr, in the district of Madura, which is to the following effect:—That, under the orders of the zemindar of Bódináyakkanúr, Kamanan Servai and the headmen of castes, there was a general meeting of the people of eighteen villages around, when it was agreed that, under the rule of the white Paraya (i.e., Englishmen), the black Paraya had grown insolent and claimed equality with the higher castes and that, inasmuch as that rule would soon come to an end, they, the various castes assembled, would have the Parayas serve under them as before; and the Parayas present were asked if they were willing to do so. When they expressed their unwillingness to serve, the zemindar and others resolved that no one in the eighteen villages should give any work to any Paraya, that no articles should be sold to them in the bazaar, and that none should even speak to a Paraya. If any ryot or cultivator should violate the said injunctions, he would be subjected to severe penalties.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 25th, 1897.

Violence committed on a girl near Arantángi, Tanjore district.

55. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 25th July, reports that a girl, aged 16, was returning with waterpot filled from a well near Arantángi (Tanjore district) and was on her way assaulted by two wicked men who carried her away to a place near the road-side and committed violence on her body. Unable to endure the pain, she fell in a swoon; a passenger who noticed her in that condition rendered her help and sent her home in heavy grief. Her mother and brother, when they came to know of the occurrence, went to the Sub-Magistrate's Court at the place; but learning that it would cost them at least a hundred rupees successfully to conduct the case against the culprits, they gave up the idea of complaint. The correspondent asks the police to inquire into the matter.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 29th, 1897.

Deprecatory attempt of Government to suppress the Vernacular press of India.

56. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th July, deprecating the attempt of Government to suppress the Vernacular press of India, concludes as follows:—"By means of the Vernacular press, the ignorance of the people is being gradually removed, and if at this time the publication of vernacular papers should be stopped, it would be an evil time indeed for Government. If these papers should cease to exist, every falsehood might obtain currency among the people and throw them into fright. Therefore it behoves Government not to pass any law interfering with the Vernacular press."

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 31st, 1897.

Checks calculated to prevent the outbreak of famine in India.

57. The Swadesamitran, of the 31st July, draws the attention of Government to the following points calculated to be effective checks on the outbreak of famine in India:—(a) Improved irrigation; (b) reduction of the land-tax and a permanent land assessment; and (c) construction of rail-roads.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 31st, 1897.

A suggestion to the Revenue Board and Government.

58. The Jananukulan, of the 31st July, says that the complaint preferred against one Valavan Chetty, the trustee of the Gopala Chetty Chattram, South Street, Tiruvádi, to the Revenue authorities, for his discontinuance of the chattram dharmam and misappropriation of its income, has not yet been disposed of; and requests the Revenue Board and Government to dismiss the trustee, to recover the amount alleged to have been misappropriated by him, and to make arrangements for the resumption of the chattram dharmam.

59. The Lokopakari, of the 1st August, writes that the Secretary of State for India and the Government of India are seriously contemplating measures for curtailing the freedom of the Vernacular press; but such a measure is deemed almost impossible, as the British Parliament is prepared to veto any legislation of the India Government on the subject. Sir William Wedderburn and other Liberals are bringing round some members of the Conservative section of the Parliament to their side, in view to oppose the contemplated interference with the liberty of the Vernacular press.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1897.

Fear entertained about curbing the freedom of the Vernacular press.

60. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd August, says that this is a bad time for India as the people have incurred the displeasure of the English Government, and that it behoves them to remain patient and submissive. The paper, after describing the state of affairs in Poona, remarks that things should be allowed to take their own course and that people should nevertheless represent their grievances to Government boldly, honestly, and respectfully. The English Government, observes the paper, will never think of ruining India. If people will represent things just as they are, God will help them.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 3rd, 1897.

Bad time for India and a suggestion to the people to be patient and submissive.

61. The same paper unfavourably comments upon the action of the Bombay Magistrate in refusing to bail Hon'ble Mr. Tilak, and says that the accused has not committed murder or theft to deserve the treatment. A correspondent to the same paper writes that two offers of Rs. 50,000 each have come from a zemindar in Calcutta and a merchant in Bombay to meet the expenses of the trial of Mr. Tilak, and that many vakils of Madras have expressed their willingness to help the defence during the trial.

Refusal of the Bombay Magistrate to bail Hon'ble Mr. Tilak.

62. The same paper writes as follows:—

Fear entertained in England of sedition in India.

WHERE IS SEDITION?

A vain fear has arisen now among Englishmen. Those who do not know this country may entertain that fear; but no one who knows the country well will be frightened by it. Some vague fear is spreading among Englishmen that the people of India will join together and do some mischief to the English Government of the country. What a vain fear is this! Is it possible for the people of India to combine together and drive the English from the land? Will such expulsion be beneficial to us? Will it be just? Let us for a while consider each of these questions. Our country is vast in extent, is inhabited by various peoples in its different parts; their languages are different; and their manners and customs likewise are different. How are these to combine together? When did they ever combine? What a vain idea of all India uniting, when the Muhammadans in one part of the country, the Sikhs in another, and the Mahrattas in a third were fighting with one another. These people are like crows (i.e., can never unite). People who have not united till now, will they unite hereafter? And suppose union possible. How is it possible for the people of India to drive out the English? Where have they arms, money or mutual trust? The Hindus will not trust the Mussalmans, nor the Mussalmans trust the Hindus; again the Sikhs will not trust the Mahrattas. Will not a mighty people like the English easily crush such Indians? Will not Englishmen who are so wealthy and whose power shines all over the world, crush the people of India like little insects, if these should rise against them? Who can conquer the English? Again, who will benefit by the expulsion of the English from India? The people of India have improved in every way ever since Her Majesty began to rule over them. Rail-roads, telegraph, post offices, and other things have conferred upon the people great blessings. We do not say that there are no grievances at all. The evils of a foreign Government must be endured. Money will go from India to England. Englishmen will enjoy the highest offices in India. India will be drained. He who takes honey from the honey-comb will sip honey no doubt; and so Englishmen who have conquered India will necessarily seek their own interest. Self-interest is the most important of all things with man. Will not Englishmen, who have come here thousands of miles away from their country, home, kith and kin, seek their own interest? Are they not also men? What we have to consider is, can we get a Government like the British Government? We can never. Though a foreign Government, what a blessing to the people it is! Though some people say that it is a Government which impoverishes the people, we can never get such a good Government. It is the laws enacted by the British Government that enable us to meet together, hold assemblies of the people, know each other, publish newspapers and boldly discuss public questions. It is now that we begin to understand well the true characteristics of a Government. It is now that people begin to know what their rights are. Will God help us, if we do aught against a Government that has given us these blessings? Simply because some papers have written something against Government—two Englishmen have been murdered in Poona, some idle Mussalmans have rioted against Englishmen in Calcutta, a moulvie in Lucknow said that if it should please the Sultan of Turkey he would break the waistbone of the Queen-Empress—it is cruel to argue from these that the people of India will be traitors to the British Government. Is there any cause for Englishmen in India to be alarmed? Where is gone all their experience? Throwing off the yoke of the British Government, to what Government are we to submit? Some Anglo-Indians may frighten their countrymen in England, as a device to induce the British Parliament to discountenance the prayer of the Indians for a reduction of military and civil expenditure. All their cry of vague fear may be to stir up the people of England to defeat the aims and aspirations of the Indians. Alas! we do not know what it is! If India should forsake England, and England should forsake India—should such a day ever come—it would be an evil day to the people of this country. This is true.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1897.

Remarks of the Arya Jana Priyan on the affairs of Poona.

63. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st August, commenting on the action of the Bombay Government with reference to the recent occurrences in Poona, finds fault with Lord Sandhurst for having prompted the Secretary of State for India to deny the truth of the allegations regarding the misdeeds of the soldiers employed in the Poona plague operations without due inquiry. The paper remarks further that the proper course for the Bombay Government to adopt was (1) to trace out the murderers of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst, (2) to inquire into the truth of the complaints against the plague operations, and (3) then to take notice of the conduct of such newspaper editors as may deserve blame. The present action of Government seems intended to strike terror into the minds of the people of Poona, and the paper condemns it as unjust and calculated to impair the good name of the British Government for impartiality and justice.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 5th, 1897.

The Bombay Government and the deportation of the two Sirdars of Poona.

64. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th August, remarks as follows on the action of the Bombay Government in deporting the two Sirdars of Poona without trial:—The two Sirdars were not arrested under any warrant of a magistrate. The Bombay Government framed no charges against them. The Governor of Bombay arrested them under the powers said to be vested in him under a Regulation of 1827. It was only in 1858 that the Government of India was transferred to the Crown. The action of the Bombay Government in picking up a regulation passed in the time of the East India Company and giving it an application now is arbitrary. Until now, nobody was even aware of the existence of such a law. When such a law is in force, there is no room for us to be proud of the privileges we enjoy. What is the use of the trial by jury? What good can High Courts do? Of what use are Legislative Councils to us? Englishmen living in England will simply laugh at the existence of the law in question. It is the duty of a Government not to commit any man to prison without giving him the benefit of a trial. The action of the Bombay Government regarding the Sirdars will reflect much discredit on English administration in India. We should hold meetings all over the country and pray to the British Parliament to repeal the old enactment.

The attempt of the Government of India to discredit the Indians.

65. The same paper, commenting upon the agitation of Anglo-Indians regarding the supposed existence of seditious feeling in India, remarks that the motive which prompts the agitation may be to prevent all reduction of expenditure in India and deprive it of the benefits that may result from the Welby Commission; for, says the paper, if British Parliament should believe in the existence of disaffection in India, it would not think of reducing the Indian military expenditure.

Remarks on Mr. Tilak's trial.

66. The same paper says that it is from the High Courts people can hope for impartial justice. The appeals preferred to them against the decisions of the lower courts, in the Salem riots' case, the Chingleput scandal case, and the Bhangabasi case are quoted as instances of the impartial administration of justice. The paper observes that there is no cause for anxiety in Mr. Tilak's case, as he is to be tried by the Bombay High Court, and that it is incumbent on the people to help him with money in order to enable him to engage the services of a competent barrister.

Remarks on the speech of Lord Sandhurst.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 7th, 1897.

67. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th August, referring to the circumstances that necessitated Professor Gokhale to tender an unconditional apology to the Bombay Government for the representations published by him in the Manchester Guardian, remarks as follows on the speech of Lord Sandhurst at the last meeting of the Legislative Council:—The Governor of Bombay spoke in very high terms of the services rendered by the Plague officers. British soldiers engaged in the work of detection were lauded up to the skies. His Lordship admitted personal responsibility for all the plague operations. The complaints preferred against the plague committee were said to be false. Whatever the Governor might say on the subject, people would be slow to believe him. His Lordship would be blamed for having employed soldiers in a task which even experienced civilians could not satisfactorily perform. Nothing short of a complete inquiry will bring to light the real facts of the case.

The case against the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 8th, 1897.

68. The Lokopakari, of the 8th August, explaining at length the charge against Mr. Tilak, concludes as follows:—We hope that, by the blessing of God, the anger of the Bombay Government will be allayed, that the High Court will be just, and that the stain cast upon Mr. Tilak will be removed. All pray to the Government of India not to think ill of the people, pardon the editors of newspapers who have given expression to feelings of impatience and anger, protect the people and establish contentment and peace. We pray to God to promote friendly feelings between Englishmen and Indians, and let the good government of India by England flourish!

Remarks on the expenditure of the Government of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 10th, 1897.

69. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th August, writes as follows on the expenditure of the Government of India:—The several Provincial Governments in India are obliged to contribute a considerable portion of their income to the Imperial Exchequer. The Government of India spends all its money on expensive wars. The wants of the people in the various Presidencies and Provinces are not attended to. At the last Budget meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal complained that the fraction of the Provincial revenues which he was allowed to retain for the improvement of his Presidency was utterly inadequate, and that he was therefore unable to improve the condition of the people of his Province. The same view of the situation was expressed by His Excellency Lord Havelock at the last Budget meeting of the Madras Legislative Council. The Secretary of State for India has announced to the British Parliament that some changes in this direction are under the consideration of the Government of India. We have yet to learn what they may be. The Madras Government has taken no steps to improve the irrigation of the Presidency, notwithstanding the increase of land-tax year after year. The pay of the overworked taluk establishment in the Presidency has not been raised. Provincial Governments will be powerless to do any good to the population committed to their care, so long as the Imperial Government is allowed to monopolise all their revenues. We think that Provincial Governments should be empowered to retain three-fourths of their income for the benefit of their Provinces and to contribute only a fourth to the Imperial Exchequer. This will tend to a reduction in the expenditure of the Government of India on wars, useless hill roads and the like. It is only when the non-official members of Legislative Councils have a voice on questions of expenditure, that the extravagance of the Indian Government will be checked.

Some suggestions to the congress associations in India.

70. The same paper, after briefly noticing the benefits of the congress agitation in India, makes the following suggestions to the Indian congress associations:—Arrangements should be made to keep Englishmen in England informed of the grievances of India from time to time. The London congress committee should be financially strengthened and representatives sent there from India to explain to Englishmen the difficulties of the Indians. Subscriptions should be raised in the Presidencies of Bengal, Bombay and Madras, and the money so collected should be utilised for sending weekly telegrams to English newspapers regarding the state of affairs in India. Meetings should be held all over the country and the masses enlightened on the benefit of discussing public questions.

Some suggestions to the High Court, Bombay.

71. The same paper says that the Chief Justice of the Bombay High Court is a good Mahratta scholar and an officer of considerable experience, and that it is therefore desirable that he should hear Mr. Tilak's case. It is also suggested that the jurymen should be selected both from Natives and Europeans alike.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 12th, 1897.

Vain alarms of disaffection in India.

72. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th August, writes as follows:—It is well known that the Sultan of Turkey has always had the support of the British Government, that, but for that support, European Turkey would have been long dismembered and partitioned among the neighbouring powers of Europe. The Christian subjects of the Sultan have often set up the cry of oppression at the hands of the Mussalmans and the English press has heaped abuse upon abuse upon the Sultan; and members of the British Parliament have applied to him such epithets as murderer, ruffian. The English press has been of late publishing all manner of unfounded misrepresentations about India, as if there was confusion in this country and the people were disaffected towards the British Government. Believing these tales the Turkish newspapers would seem to be writing against the Government of India. But what if they should do so? Why should that disturb the equanimity of Englishmen of the Indian Government? What did Englishmen do when their journals spoke ill of the Sultan? And yet when an insignificant Mussalman in Lucknow prattled something against the Queen-Empress, why should Government take notice of the man and punish him? Why should the people of Poona be troubled for the murder committed by an unknown individual? Why should the people of this country be distrusted? Whatever the Turks or others may choose to say about Englishmen, one thing is certain, i.e., that the people of India will always be loyal to the British Government. If Englishmen may freely abuse the Turks, why should they be disturbed in mind when the Turks do the same to them. Their conduct illustrates the Tamil proverb: If a vessel is broken by the mother-in-law, it is a mere earthen vessel and of no consequence; but when the same is broken by the daughter-in-law, it is of gold and great is the loss of it. England and India should ever inseparably blend together even as milk with water.

73. The same paper observes that the Hindus and the Muhammadans of India have long lived together in friendly relationship, and that although, during the time of the Moslem rule, the former were now and then oppressed, still the two managed with each other well enough. The paper further remarks that when the Muhammadans ruled over India, the Hindus were employed as ministers of State, &c.; that the rulers made this country their home; that India's wealth did not go to other countries; that common home, common interests, and mutual sympathies kept them together in friendliness; and that the same relationship, in spite of occasional disturbance, has continued to this day, although the British obtained possession of this country by bringing about a temporary separation between the two races. The paper hopes that these two sections of the Indian people will ever be in harmony with each other.

Hindus and Muhammadans in India in friendly relations.

74. The same paper, referring to a communication of Moulvi Rabi-uddin Ahmed in the Daily Graphic on the present state of affairs in Poona, says that the Moulvi is highly esteemed both in India and England for his learning and moderation, that he knows all about Poona, that his utterances about the great agitation of feeling and annoyance caused both to the Hindus and Muhammadans in Poona by the plague operations in that city cannot be discredited, and that his informants must be Mussalmans. The Moulvi, says the paper, denies that the people of Poona or elsewhere are actuated by any ill-will towards Government. The paper contends that it was a serious mistake to have appointed soldiers for the search duty, and that a soldier, even with the best of intentions, might, from ignorance, do things calculated to wound the feelings of the people.

Moulvi Rabi-uddin Ahmed on Poona affairs.

75. The same paper thinks it desirable to have a press association in India, and regrets that Government should treat the vernacular papers with contempt, forgetting that it would be but strengthening itself by supporting the Vernacular press. The paper observes that the press will remove the ignorance of the people, explain the action of Government to them, and let Government know the merits and defects of its servants, and that it is therefore unwise of Government to think of gagging the press.

A press association.

76. The Sasilekka, of the 30th July, referring in general to the English journalists who have repeatedly asserted that the Poona murders were attributable to the Kesari conducted by Mr. Tilak and demanded its suppression, says they make noice incessantly like jackals on the burial-ground and the Bombay Government has adopted their opinions. It asks why the remarks of Mr. Tilak in the Kesari could not be construed by Government as a fair criticism on its acts, and says that the Government of Bombay has grown headstrong and begun to intimidate the people. No journalist in India has ever been convicted of an offence under this section (124-A) of the Indian Penal Code. The Government of Bombay thought of this course (charging editors with sedition) as the English journalists had expressed themselves that the liberty conceded to the Vernacular press should be withdrawn. It opines that the reputation of the Governor of Bombay and his Councillors is prejudicially affected by such disgraceful measures.

Poona affairs.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 30th, 1897.

The Andhraprakasika, of the 31st July, referring to the arrangements made for the segregation of persons suffering from the plague, remarks that the employment of soldiers for plague inspection in Poona, while native sepoys were employed for the same purpose in Bombay, was very improper. Moreover, the paper understands from the (Bombay) press that, when complaints against their acts poured in from all quarters, the Government of Bombay did not concern itself with them, but simply left their disposal to the plague committee. It might be thought, it says, that, as the Government was well aware of the inadvisability of sending soldiers to go into Hindu zenanas, there must have been some special reason for having allowed it in Poona, while it was not so done elsewhere. The paper, however, earnestly hopes that the Government being responsible for the welfare and safety of the people will secure just administration in the present complicated state of affairs in Poona.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, July 31st, 1897.

HINDUJANASAMSKARINI, Madras, July, 1897.

The Hindujanasamskarini, for July, referring to the order of the Government of Bombay directing the expenses of the punitive police force in Poona to be met in the first instance from the Government treasury and recovered then from the Poona municipality, suggests that it is not proper that Government should act vindictively.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, July 19th, 1897.

The Rajayogi, of the 19th July, writes thus (in English):—"For the sake of one or two disloyal citizens that the whole municipality should be burdened with the heavy taxation reflects seriously on the Bombay Government. When it cannot be established that the whole population of the city or the majority thereof have either participated actively in the crime that has been recently committed or directly or indirectly abetted it or neglected to prevent it knowing it to have to be committed, it is quite unjust that a heavy punishment should be inflicted on the city of Poona. We cannot realise any circumstances that create at least a strong presumption that the citizens of Poona should be disloyal to the British rule. Hence we are constrained to say that a strong feeling of revenge is at the bottom and the punishment devised for the people by the Government is not only unjustified but also cruel in the highest degree. There is no necessity at all for the appointment of a costly additional police force. The section of the Act directing the employment of the extra police requires the place to be 'in a disturbed and dangerous state' or to be such 'in which the conduct of the inhabitants shall,' in the opinion of the Government, 'render it expedient temporarily to increase the strength of the police.' Except that one man was murdered on the Jubilee day and another was attempted to be murdered, there is nothing else indicative of the dangerous or disturbed state of the place warranting the strengthening of the police force. It is hardly conceivable that the outrage which darkened the Jubilee celebration were the result of a conspiracy of the people. It may be probable that one or two had conspired to commit the most inhuman crime, but the whole population cannot be made answerable. Of course the Almighty knows the offenders who will be brought to light ere long. The commission of the offence was quite solitary; the act was most cowardly and it was done in the dark. Such being the scene of the action the place cannot be construed to have been in disturbance or danger. There is no proof that the attempt was an organized one. It seems to us, therefore, that in the course of punishment inflicted upon Poona people by the Government, no cause was ever served, nor was the power of administration strengthened. On the other hand, the heart-burning of the people for the undue hatred on the part of the administrators against the guilty and the innocent alike will be too great to mend matters afterwards. This is the time for the rulers to be dispassionate and show true spirit of statesmanship more calmly. It is well that the residents of Poona held a meeting to protest against the injustice done them by the Government by submitting to them a memorial vindicating the characters of the people and praying for the removal of the burden off their heads. We are quite at one with the people of Poona in their requisition, and hope that the newly-organized police force will be dispersed or maintained without the people being made to pay for it.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, July 12th, 1897.

77. The Rajayogi, of the 12th July, writes thus (in English):—"If the great principles which she has enunciated for the guidance of her agents in India are properly and conscientiously carried out, Her Majesty's full intentions, no less than the wishes of the people, would be satisfied; they are the corner-stones of British rule in India; and, as Sir William Hunter happily remarks, 'the permanent touch-stone of success of Indian administration is how far it gives effect to Her Majesty's words in spirit and in truth.' Individual statesmen have, indeed, tried to evade the spirit of the Queen's pledges; and some have not even hesitated to declare that the Proclamation is only a diplomatic document which is not to be seriously taken into account. But the trend of British policy in India has, on the whole, been in the direction of those great and liberal principles which are embodied in the Queen's Proclamation. Considering the length of time which has passed since the transfer of India to the Crown, and the magnificent moral and educational progress made among the people, the extent to which Her Majesty's words have been given effect to 'in spirit and in truth,' has been anything but adequate. To the people of India, as Sir William truly says, was assured the rights of British subjects. But are they treated as British subjects? From the African colonies come the cries of down-trodden and oppressed Indian subjects of Her Majesty, who are scornfully denied the rights of British citizenship. In India itself the disadvantage of colour is a bar to our aspiration even to a membership of the Board of Revenue. How could the people of India feel, under such circumstances, that they are assured the rights of British subjects? Mr. G. Subramania Iyer told us in his letter, published yesterday, how shabbily the Indian officers were treated on the occasion of the Jubilee in London, while the men from the colonies were being coaxed and worshipped. This kind of treatment cannot make India feel herself a part of Greater Britain. Even the little observances on such occasions have a great effect on the feelings of people; and those who arrange for these ceremonials, no less than those who actually administer the affairs of the empire, have need to bear in mind the principles of policy which the Proclamation embodies and enunciates, and to endeavour, as far as in their power lies, to carry out those principles in their measures and policy; for, to repeat Sir William's happy sentence, 'the permanent touch-stones of success of Indian administration is how far it gives effect to Her Majesty's words in spirit and in truth.'"

The permanent touch-stone of Indian administration.

HINDUJANASAMSKARINI. Madras, July 1897.

The Hindujanasamskarini, for July, writes:—"Certain harsh measures were introduced into Poona for extirpating the plague. The people complained of their inability to submit to them. It seems those complaints are to be found in the vernacular papers there. Perhaps some of those that felt unable to bear the sufferings or others have wounded Mr. Rand and shot Lieutenant Ayerst. A reward of Rs. 20,000 was offered to any informant disclosing the offender. Information has not yet been received. The murderers are not natives. There is a rumour that they must have been Europeans. The Government of Bombay imposed upon the citizens of Poona a punitive police force costing a lakh-and-a half of rupees a year, under the impression that the act must have been committed by some members of the Mahratta Brahmin community to which Mr. Tilak belongs. The Poona municipality has pleaded its inability to bear the police-tax.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 30th, 1897.

78. The Sasilekha, of the 30th July, regards the action of the Bombay Government in sending 100 soldiers and 150 sepoys with police inspectors for the arrest of Mr. Tilak as quite childish, and considers that it casts a slur on the fair reputation of British administration.

Arrest of Mr. Tilak.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, July 16th, 1897.

79. The Vibudharanjani, of the 16th July, received on the 5th August, states that Government officers have long been attempting to suppress the journals that have been exposing their faults, and remarks that the Calcutta riots and the Poona murders afford opportunities for those that are hunting after honours and "tails" (titles) like Mr. Bhownaggree, andfor those officials who do not care for the welfare of the natives, to recommend the gagging of the Vernacular press. It regrets that Government should entertain such an idea, while its subjects are praying for the stability of the British rule and for securing the enjoyment of greater privileges as reward for their loyalty. The attempt to punish a whole town or the whole native population for the crimes of one or two individuals is, it asserts, inconsistent with the prestige and reputation for justice of the civilized English people. If any journals publish anything antagonistic to the opinions of Government, it is right to punish the proprietors of those journals should the writings, on inquiry, be found to contain false statements; but to think of gagging all the newspapers in the whole country is appalling. It opines that it really amounts to ordering that grievances should not be brought to the notice of Government.

Gagging the Vernacular press.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 4th, 1897.

Muhammadans in India.

80. The Andhraprakasika, of the 4th August, referring to the Lucknow sedition case in which Moulvi Hidayat Rasul was convicted of exciting feelings of disaffection against Government, observes that the Muhammadans in India are very jubilant over the success of the Sultan of Turkey in the late Greeco-Turkish war, and that they forget themselves and their allegiance to the British Government. Remarking that disobedience to the laws of one's Government is sure to bring on one's ruin, it shows that the said Moulvi had to suffer the consequences of his disloyal and seditious addresses despite the warnings of the District Magistrate. It further remarks that the Moulvi has escaped with simple imprisonment for one year as the Government of India is a constitutional Government, and that it is impossible to imagine what his fate would have been if he had committed the same crime in Turkey.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 10th, 1897.

An advice to the people of India.

81. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 10th August, strongly advises the people of India to persevere, after the example of the Irish, in representing to Government with courage and without fear the defects in the administration, assigning reasons for such representations. Whatever may be the difficulties to be encountered in doing so, the people must patiently bear them and realise the object in view. Referring to the suggestion of gagging the Vernacular press, he remarks that it is unbecoming to resort to such an unmerciful step in order to punish the mischief of some one individual.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, July 12th, 1897.

Poona murders.

82. A leader in the Rajayogi, of the 12th July, says:—"Ere this we observed that Mr. Rand, the Plague Commissioner in Poona, who had been shot on the Jubilee day, was yet alive, but at last Poona sacrificed him. The gentleman went to the (Divine) court of justice to reap the fruit of the seed he had sown while living. Some stupid men in Poona hurt him for causing them trouble when he was alive, but the gentleman is now, even though dead, tormenting the citizens in a greater measure. The punitive police-tax to be imposed on the inhabitants of Poona is due to the murder of Mr. Rand. The Anglo-Indians and the Anglo-Indian journalists are reviling the Hindus on the plea of this murder. They say that the Vernacular press should be suppressed, as the murder has been caused by the writings in the Vernacular newspapers, tending to excite wrathful feelings in people. Our own countryman, Mr. Bhownaggree, M.P., commends it. All this is unjust and has arisen from anger and hatred; for, in the first place, it is not known who committed this murder. Perhaps a European has committed it. Further, even if a Hindu has done it, disloyalty cannot be the cause of it. If people were disposed to entertain feelings of disaffection to the Government, why would the murder of an inferior officer like Mr. Rand occur? What treason is there by murdering such an inferior officer? Even insane persons, therefore, if moved by such feelings, will not commit such a crime. Next, as regards the second cause for the murder of the gentleman, some say it lies in the horrid acts perpetrated by the soldiers in Poona under the pretext of affording relief from the plague. If this be the cause, there is no need for a general conspiracy among the people for the crime. The Government, believing the plague to be a contagious disease, resolved to segregate the sufferers and to treat them in sheds erected outside the town. Leaving aside the consideration whether the scheme served the purpose or not, and whether any of the patients ever returned cured from the plague hospitals or not, we may say there is not the slightest doubt that the Government had acted with well-intentioned motives for the welfare of the people in taking this step. But, judging from the conduct of those who were employed to enforce this resolution of the Government, no man of respectability could help feeling that the said scheme was more alarming than the disease itself, and that it was much better to fall a prey to the plague than to submit to its regulations. Instead of employing proper Hindu, Muhammadan or European gentlemen for finding out persons suffering from the plague in the town and segregating them in hospitals erected at the end of the town, the work was entrusted to beast-like soldiers. There are many instances in which these soldiers have committed acts of violence, entering inhabitants' houses all on a sudden. The people had more to suffer from them than from the plague itself. In spite of this, the citizens long bore their troubles like lambs with patience, and, when it became intolerable, they set up a yell, as lambs do when attacked by ferocious dogs. The educated, revered, discreet and civilised townsmen met together and submitted a memorial to the Government. The atrocious acts by these soldiers mentioned in this memorial number eleven: (1) Entering houses, seizing persons affected by the plague as well as those not so affected, and forcibly taking them to hospitals; (2) behaving unreasonably towards persons unaffected despite the advice of the hospital assistants accompanying them; (3) taking not only the sufferers but also their relatives and friends and even the passers-by; (4) not allowing time for those that are thus taken to secure their property; (5) not giving information, when requested, as to whether any particular patient in the hospital was alive or dead; (6) taking no kind of care for the welfare of the people; (7) refusing not only to take the well-intentioned advice preferred by people who enter the houses along with them, but disgracing them; (8) committing sacrilege by entering kitchens and places of worship (in the houses); (9) swallowing eatables found in the houses; (10) pocketing all good things found there and coercing (the inmates) for supply of liquors, &c.; (11) above all this, seizing the ladies in the houses indiscriminately, causing them trouble and insulting them, alas! and doing such actions as affected their modesty. All these cruelties were committed. But the Government paid no attention whatever to such complaints, though represented in writing by all the respectable gentlemen of the Hindu and Muhammadan communities. The feelings of the citizens of Poona, who were eye-witnesses to such atrocities, can only be imagined by the readers. Perhaps the murder was committed by some short-sighted and stupid man who was greatly excited at these wrongs. Consider what tumult would have been created if these atrocities were committed in England or some other European country. There the aggressors would have been cut to pieces and their blood drunk by the aggrieved. Consider, also, to what trials the innocent Mr. Gandhi has been subjected by the white-skinned gentlemen. The Hindus are as meek as lambs and so they patiently submitted to these wrongs. This is but right. The Hindus should have such patience; for patience is their principal ornament. It is immaterial to us whatever Europeans may be, but to us patience is all essential. It is the first duty of the Hindu to be patient under any trying circumstances. The first truth which Christ learnt, when he visited India, is thus expressed by him: 'If a blow is hit on the right cheek, turn the left.' Among Christians, this principle is found only in books. But in India it is in practice. The Hindus have to regret very much that a Hindu—while Hindus hold patience as their prime virtue—should out of vengeance have committed this cruel murder, no matter however painful might have been the wrongs he had suffered. It is necessary that he should be duly punished and every one should hate him as having brought ruin on the whole community. And they are doing so. The Hindu community never commits atrocious acts. It is uncharitable of the British people to revile them all on the strength of this incident. It is insane to assume that the writings in the vernacular papers have excited the citizens, while the wrongs daily suffered by them at the hands of the soldiers are patent. It is the Anglo-Indian press and not the Vernacular press that endangers the country's welfare. It is not proper to punish a whole community for the acts of an individual."

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 13th, 1897.

The Vernacular press.

83. The Sasilekha, of the 13th August, writes thus:—"The Vernacular press will probably have to suffer once more. It is said the editors of English newspapers may daily revile the Hindus and Muhammadans of India through their journals, just as their tongues may lead them, but the journals our natives edit should keep their mouths shut. How strange! The Government of Bombay, in attempting to repress the plague in Poona, employed soldiers to separate the plague-stricken people from their families and take them to hospitals at a great distance. When it is declared by intelligent Europeans themselves that it is an improper act, may not the vernacular journals say so? It is said that it is honourable if the English journalists abuse us, and that it is sedition if our journalists retort. Are there disloyal subjects in our India? Natives do not know even the word disloyalty. Having been in want of food, raiment and lodging-place in their native country, they (Anglo-Indian journalists) come as paupers to our country, take to journalism, and abuse the natives. Following their example, our people commence to abuse (them). The Government officers having no stamina in their backbone are afraid of the writings of these Anglo-Indian journalists, and dance in accompaniment to their songs. This is unbecoming of Her Majesty's servants. The wrong-doer, whoever he may be, must be liable to punishment. It is improper to keep quiet when the Anglo-Indian reviles the natives in his journal and attempt to put a seal on the lips of the native journalist as he begins to open his mouth. As the mother croaks, so does the child, says the proverb. If the Anglo-Indian journalists write articles respectfully and properly and treat with kindness those whose salt they eat, the native journalists also will acquit themselves most respectfully. When those great learned men themselves forget the distinction between right and wrong and begin to revile, will the native journals be silent? If the people born and brought up in the country pray to the Government for the grant of a privilege, the English journalists begin to oppose any concession even before the prayer is actually uttered. The European gentlemen themselves, high in the official service, have recognised the National Congress. When the congress was held at Calcutta on one occasion, Lord Dufferin, the then Governor-General, honoured the congress-delegates by inviting them to a banquet. In spite of this, not a single Anglo-Indian journal has ever spoken about this congress respectfully. Our countrymen have prayed that Civil Service Examinations should be held in India simultaneously with those in London, and though the Parliament has acceded to the prayer, the whole of the Anglo-Indian press in our country opposed the measure and exclaimed that natives were not fit for these high appointments. We are always pleased whether our rulers grant us our prayers or not. Though an attempt was once made in the time of Lord Lytton to gag the Vernacular press, the proposal was not approved of by Her Majesty's ministers. This is a proper act. If a vernacular journalist should excite disloyalty among the people, he might be punished under section 124 of the Indian Penal Code, but it is not proper for the English, who are incarnations of justice, to attempt at withdrawing the privilege of the whole Vernacular press indiscriminately. Is it just to try to cut down the tree which has been growing these 80 years from the tiny plant implanted by the then Governor-General in 1818, and which is now yielding fruit? Will Lord Elgin agree to this cruel action in 1897? The Anglo-Indian journalists are dancing up and down to see the vernacular papers suppressed and their own recommendations treated as vedic mantrams. There is no doubt that Her Majesty's ministers in England will deeply consider the matter and then take action. To be brief, the Anglo-Indian journalists should quietly exercise their authority so as to be satisfactory to the people in general. If they behave so, we can strongly assure that no danger will ever arise from the Vernacular press to the British Government in India."

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 6th, 1897.

Lord Sandhurst and Poona affairs.

84. The Sasilekha, of the 6th August, attributes the cause of the disturbances in Poona to Lord Sandhurst's want of administrative experience; for he did not, says the paper, accede to the prayers of the Poona people to introduce into Poona the same arrangements as had been made in Bombay for the repression of the plague.

85. The Suryodaya, of the 6th August, says:—It had been predicted by ancient sages that at the end of 5,000 years of the Kaliyug India would undergo great calamities, and the prediction seems very likely to be fulfilled; for when there are still two years more to the time mentioned, the calamities have actually commenced. Famine and plague and wars have done a great deal of destruction, and, as if to fill the cup of misery, European soldiers were let loose on the people of Poona and the people were consequently obliged to leave the city and to take shelter in other places. The outrages committed by the soldiers did not come to the knowledge of the authorities and when the vernacular papers attempted to bring them to their notice, the editors of those papers were accused of seditious writing and arrested. The British Government, which hitherto had been considered kind, has now turned cruel, and patriotic and honourable men are sent to jail without trial. The injustice of those in authority never comes to the knowledge of Her Majesty, and we are sorry to see signs of still greater misfortunes in store for India.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Aug. 6th, 1897.

The misfortunes of India.

86. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 2nd August, speaking of the Khana outrage, says that it is glad that the Indian Association has telegraphed the incident to the English press. It will prove a wholesome corrective to Lord Sandhurst's denials. What is possible at Khana is possible at Poona. And it may be well to remember that the Assistant Surgeon was presumably better educated than the average private soldier.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 2nd, 1897.

The Khana outrage and Lord Sandhurst's denials.

87. The Suryodaya, of the 6th August, after giving an account of the murders of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst and of the arrest of Mr. Tilak, says that the charge on which the latter has been arrested is one of sedition said to have been uttered on the occasion of the Sivaji anniversary. Mr. Tilak seems to have said that the Penal Code was not a code of morals binding on sovereigns and that therefore many kings in ancient times had killed wicked men, and that the Mahabharata inculcated that there was no sin in murdering wicked men for the good of the public. The editor then goes on to say that this speech has been construed by Government into encouraging the murders of the Europeans, and remarks that if such a strong Government as the English Government with such a large army on its back is afraid of newspapers, it is not strange that others should be so. The British Government had earned a name for justice and it was believed that under it nobody would be punished without a fair trial. The editor regrets that by its recent doings it has lost the confidence and respect of the people.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Aug. 6th, 1897.

The affairs in Poona.

88. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 5th August, speaking of the recent arrests in Poona, says that the arrest of such great Sirdars as the Natu brothers has created great panic in the country, and hopes that Government will give them a fair trial and punish them only if they are found guilty. Meanwhile, it says, it is the duty of every loyal citizen who loves peace and good government to try to allay the panic.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Aug. 5th, 1897.

The arrests at Poona.

Karnataka Prakasika, of the 2nd August, has the following article:—"It will be with great regret that people of India will hear of the arrests at Poona. We must say that these arrests, so far as can be seen, are quite uncalled for. The Government of Bombay has made a blunder and a great one. This is the general opinion, and we feel certain it will turn out to be correct. It cannot with truth be said that the newspapers published in Poona are faultless. Some of them have sent forth matter that was very objectionable. There is no doubt that much that was written bordered on sedition. But if it was seditious, if the conductors of the papers brought themselves under the law, they should have been punished at the time; they should not have been allowed to go on till a catastrophe occurred and then be arrested. If seditious writings appeared in the press at Poona what were the authorities about that they did not notice it; that they let it run on, so that the writers believed that they could act with impunity? The authorities will find that it is a very difficult matter to prove sedition, and we shall be very much surprised if they are able to prove it as regards the men they have arrested. The Government has gone systematically to work, it has conducted the whose matter in a very cool manner; but it remains to be seen whether the result will prove that it was in the right. If it cannot, then it will lose much in dignity and prestige. The development of the whole matter will be looked upon with the greatest interest and anxiety in all parts of the country, and we may be sure that after this it will be made clear what is the law and what is not. We must wait a little longer to see what will happen. In the mean time nothing has been made out as regards the Poona murders, and it seems likely that the crimes will be added to the long list of those that have been undetected."

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 2nd, 1897.

In another article the same paper says that the thoughtless acts of Government in Poona have produced greater terror than even the famine and the plague put together. In a civilized Government those who are accused of any offence ought to be given a fair trial and punished only if they are found guilty. But the policy pursued by the Government of Bombay is neither in keeping with the traditions of a civilized Government nor in accordance with law.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 9th, 1897.

89. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 9th August, speaking on the question of gagging the Vernacular press, acknowledges that some of the vernacular papers have gone astray, but still holds that an Act for its restraint is not required, as it thinks that the existing law is sufficient, or, if it is not, it might be made so and a special law is unnecessary. A special Act would affect both the innocent and the guilty, and would do more harm than good and is certain to cause much dissatisfaction among many classes. If, in the face of the experience gained by Lord Lytton's measure, Lord Elgin should insist on passing a repressive measure, it will deserve all the reprobation that can be heaped upon it. The editor also takes exception to the restriction on the press of the civil and military stations in Native States, and hopes that this restriction would also be removed.

The Vernacular press.

90. The same paper, speaking of the special police force quartered in Poona, says:—We should not be surprised if it should be abandoned. Lord Sandhurst is well-intentioned, but his hands were forced by the Anglo-Indian press and by his Councillors who are both civilians. We hope that he will soon see through the prejudices of the Anglo-Indian press and retrieve his reputation by the removal of the special police and setting free the Natu brothers, and thus inspire confidence in the minds of the people. He ought to shape his course from what may hereafter be disclosed on the detection of the murderers of Mr. Rand.

The special police in Poona.

91. The same paper says:—There is no end to the Nabob-like deeds of the civilians in Bengal. Each seems to have his own eccentricities. Captain Gordon, Magistrate of the Kamrup district, cannot bear to see natives riding on horseback. As soon as he sees one on horseback, however respectable the latter may be, he at once horsewhips him. He has ordered the shopkeepers not to sell more than one measure of grain to anybody, and if anybody ventures to disobey him he whips him until he bleeds. One Goria, a rich merchant, has two elephants. The Captain wanted those elephants for some work; but as the merchant refused to lend them, he was ordered to receive thirty lashes with the whip and was only saved by promptly sending a telegram to the Chief Commissioner.

High-handed deeds of the civilians in Bengal.

SURIYODAYA, Bangalore, Aug. 13th, 1897.

92. The Suriyodaya, of the 13th August, after expressing satisfaction at the release on bail of Mr. Tilak and the large subscriptions which people have promised for his defence fund, says:—We learn from some of the English papers that the author of the Poona murders is a European and that a certain person is prepared to detect this murderer. The Government has quartered a punitive police force on the city at a cost of 3 lakhs without first trying to detect the murderer or murderers. It has arrested and deported respectable and patriotic gentlemen on the theory that the murders were instigated by the papers. This is vicarious punishment. Whatever the Muhammadans and their papers may do, nobody ever finds fault with them. It is the mild Hindu that is tyrannized over. The Hindus were submissive and loyal when the country was governed by Muhammadans as well as when governed by the Hindu rajas. They are loyal now to the British Government, and, whoever may be their sovereign in future, they are not likely to oppose him. We are, therefore, very sorry that Lord George Hamilton expressed his opinion in Parliament that the murders in Poona were committed by the Hindus from political motives. We hope the Parliament will not be led away by the representations of the Governor of Bombay, but appoint a commission to make independent inquiries and to bring the guilty to book.

Poona affairs.

The panic in India.

93. The same paper says that there is a feeling of insecurity in India owing to the deportation of the Natu brothers without any trial. A hundred years ago there was a similar feeling in India, but it is a matter for regret that such a feeling should again prevail under the British Government.

The manager of the Kavalappara estate under the Court of Wards to be removed from office.

94. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 31st July, referring to the misunderstanding which exists between the Naittian of Kavalappara estate, which is now under the Court of Wards, and the manager of the estate, says that the ill-feeling between them has become so great that the authorities should interfere and reconcile them both. The article suggests that the best thing to do under the circumstance is to send the manager away on pension.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 31st, 1897.

Remarks on the arrest of the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak.

95. A leader in the same paper says that the arrest of the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak, who is one of the leading and popular citizens of Poona and is a congressman, will certainly create intense excitement and sorrow throughout the Indian Empire. The Poona tragedy is said to be the cause of Mr. Tilak's arrest, but the object of Government in arresting him under section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code is, it is remarked, simply to test whether the law, as it stands, is sufficient to secure the conviction of persons exciting disaffection against the Government and also to crush the Vernacular press. Mr. Tilak has done a great deal of good to Poona, and his arrest and imprisonment in jail in this arbitrary fashion cannot but cause great panic among the people. Those who know Mr. Tilak well will never believe for a moment that he will interfere in silly matters and create disaffection against Government of this sort. It is very seldom that a man could be found like Mr. Tilak who so dearly loves his own country. The Anglo-Indians are the chief enemies of Mr. Tilak, for it is owing to his indefatigable exertions that the people of the Western Presidency have not been converted into puppets in the hands of the Anglo-Indians. They are therefore very anxious to ruin him somehow. The prejudice entertained by the Anglo-Indians against Mr. Tilak has become so deep-rooted that they invariably connect Mr. Tilak with every popular movement in Poona. The foremost of such men are the Anglo-Indian journalists who live upon the people's money and work against their interests. The words of these Anglo-Indian journals are regarded by Government as gospel truth. They influence the Government in all its actions and we cannot say what interpretations might be put upon section 241 and who might be brought under its clutches. To one who does not act against his conscience, jail is no place of disgrace. The English historians have depicted the character of Sivaji, the king of the Mahrattas, in the vilest manner possible, but Mr. Tilak has praised and ennobled it. Moreover, a statue of that Maharaj was, in defiance of the determined opposition of the jealous Anglo-Indians, erected in Poona on the 31st December 1895. Thousands and hundreds of thousands of people from different parts of the country came to attend the ceremony, and when they questioned, their reply was that they did not know anything about the ceremony, but they came to attend Mr. Tilak Sahib's meeting. The news of the arrest of such a clever and popular gentleman cannot but cause great dissatisfaction to the people; and their sympathies will surely be with him.

Alluding to the same subject, a leader in the Manorama, of the 2nd August, remarks:—Mr. Tilak had written some articles in his paper making serious allegations against the plague committee in respect of their working the plague regulations; and the Bombay Government must have issued the order for the arrest of Mr. Tilak under the belief that these articles had excited people and that the murders committed by some wicked persons were due to such excitement. Once upon a time, a certain king having decided that some one or other should be hanged for a murder which had been perpetrated in his kingdom, picked up an innocent man of the Komatti caste and executed him, on the principle that "the stout and big-made Komatti is the fit person for the high and magnificent pole." It will be a matter for congratulation to the British administration, if it escapes the calumny that the Bombay Government has acted upon the same principle in arresting Mr. Tilak, because of its inability to apprehend the real culprits in the murder case. Great excitement now prevails throughout India on account of this. It is hoped that some satisfactory solution will be found to allow this feverish state of excitement.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 7th, 1897.

96. Under the heading of the Poona case and the natives, the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 7th August, states in a sub-leader that the arrest and remand to custody of Natu brothers and Mr. Tilak may for reasons known only to Government, but not divulged, has excited much public commiseration and has won for these gentlemen a wide reputation. In the town of Calicut this is at present the all-absorbing topic of conversation. There is no one who commends the act of Government. The refusal to admit Mr. Tilak to bail is talked of as very harsh. It is an indisputable fact that this unfavourable public comment was called forth by the extreme high-handedness of Government. There would have been no ground for misapprehension on the part of the public, if the Government had divulged the cause of the arrest and the evidence which necessitated the adoption of such a step. The name of Mr. Tilak would not have gained such a wide reputation, had it not been for the treatment accorded to him by Government. If the charge brought against him falls to the ground, and if he is acquitted, this act of Government will unquestionably be deemed as a blessing to him in disguise. If, on the contrary, the case ends in conviction, then the public with one voice will say that Mr. Tilak was punished for the murder of Mr. Rand, which was perpetrated by some others. Terminate as it may in one way or another, nobody will commend the act of Government. The refusal to admit Mr. Tilak to bail lends countenance to such unfavourable public comment. Mr. Tilak is now committed to take his trial at the next sessions which will begin only on the 10th September. That he should abide this long period in jail can help Government in no way to gauge the force or the applicability of the section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code. The fact of Mr. Tilak's remand to jail by the Bombay Government shows that it was prompted to that act by some reason, and the death of Mr. Rand may be presumed to be the reason. If this conjecture of ours is true, then it admits of no doubt that the act of Government is characterised by cowardice. Had the Poona police been efficient, it would have detected the culprit and spared the Government the necessity for such an act as this. Whatever the case may be, the act of Government has caused a public panic.

The Poona case and the natives.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 9th, 1897.

97. A leader in the Manorama, of the 9th August, says that the saying that "misfortune never comes single" is verified in the case of the inhabitants of Poona. They suffered successively from famine, plague and cholera, which were soon followed by the inspection for the prevention of plague and by the confusion caused thereby. Then came the establishment of a punitive police and the arrest and deportation or committal of some of the leaders of the place. The names of these leaders are then given with the charges against them, and the readers are left to draw their own inferences from the facts.

Misfortunes of the inhabitants of Poona.

98. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 7th August, under the heading of "the Bombay Government and Native newspapers," after giving an account of the Poona tragedy and of the arrest of the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak and others, says that there has been no parallel to these cases since the proceedings against Nuncomar instituted during the time of Mr. Warren Hastings, the first Governor-General; that if the case is decided against the Government, there is no doubt that it would enact measures similar to those enacted during the time of Lord Lytton for gagging the Vernacular press; and that in the present case the Government should effect its object without causing the least dissatisfaction to the general public and not give the people cause to suspect that its actions are actuated by motives of vengeance for the death of Mr. Rand, &c. It doubts whether the refusal to release on bail a man like Mr. Tilak, whose position is a guarantee against his absconding to elude justice, does not proceed from the fact that the authorities are not devoid of prejudice.

MALAVALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Aug. 7th, 1897.

The Bombay Government and Native newspapers.

99. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 22nd July, has a leader headed "Charges of sedition against the Native press, unreasonable apprehensions of Government." In the leader it is said that on account of the murders committed in Poona, and the riots which took place at Calcutta, the Government seems, on the suggestion of the Anglo-Indian press, to contemplate adopting measures restricting the freedom of the press, which are quite inconsistent with its position and its strength. It is a wonder that the British, which is the most powerful of Governments, should think of taking such action. The freedom of the press is the most valuable of the many blessings which India enjoys under the English. If any paper inserts a seditious article, it can be dealt with according to the law laid down in the Indian Penal Code. A hope is expressed that the Government will act in this matter with deliberation and prudence, and will not restrict the freedom of the press on account of the misdeeds of few miscreants.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, July 22nd, 1897.

The freedom of the press and the Government.

100. In disapproving of the reward offered by the Government of Bombay for the arrest of Mr. Rand's murderers, the Alhami, of the 25th July, says the reward, which now amounts to Rs. 20,000, will, if no trace of the murderers is found within a week, very likely be increased to 300,000, and this enormous sum will tempt any guiltless old man to come forward and falsely confess the crime. The editor advises Government not to worry the people of Poona, nor to appoint a punitive police according to the suggestions of the Anglo-Indian press. Otherwise, it says, results may follow similar to those produced by the administration of the Plague Act. The paragraph puns on Mr. Rand's name, "Rand (رنڈ)" being a Hindustani word for "widow." How came he by this odd name? To shoot a Rand was a great crime, for why should one heap further afflictions on the widow's head. At least in our religion this is forbidden.

ALHAMI, Madras, July 25th, 1897.

Reward for the arrest of the murderers of Mr. Rand.

101. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 22nd July, mentions that the Mukhbir-i-Dakan, of Madras, approves the speech Mr. Badr-ud-din Tyabjee delivered at a Muhammadan meeting recently held in Bombay; and thinks that the Native press is not responsible for the Poona tragedy, and that it only pointed out the amendments which should, it thought, be made in the Plague Act, in the hope that Government would adopt them. It is unjust to revive the Press Act on account of the Poona tragedy. If the punishment of rigorous imprisonment prescribed in the Penal Code for persons charged with writing inflammatory and seditious articles is not sufficient, "a warning and a binding over to keep the peace" in addition thereto will be sufficiently deterrent in all such cases.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, July 22nd, 1897.

The Hon'ble Badr-ud-din Tyabjee's speech as regards the Native press.

[Issued 25th August 1897.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 16 OF 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st August 1897.

---

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| Remarks on the Frontier expeditions | 220 |
| The war in the north-west of India and the Amir of Afghanistan | ib. |
| A hint to Government regarding its attitude towards the Amir of Afghanistan | ib. |
| The Amir and the troubles on the frontiers | ib. |
| The Amir at the bottom of the frontier troubles | ib. |
| The causes of the war on the frontier | ib. |
| The Amir, faithless | 221 |
| Muhammadans and the success of Turkey | ib. |
| Turkey and Greece | ib. |
| Turkey and Egypt | ib. |
| Alleged envoy from Kabul to Stamboul | ib. |
| Lesson from the recent war | 222 |
| Proclamation by Shaikh-ul-Islam, of Liverpool | ib. |
| Sir Saiyid Ahmad Khan and the celebration of the Turkish victory in India | 223 |
| Peace negotiations between Turkey and Greece | ib. |
| An appeal to Muhammadans in general for aid to the Turkish wounded and orphans | ib. |
| Expulsion of low-class Greeks from Constantinople | ib. |
| Turkey and the Great Powers | ib. |
| The Sultan of Turkey and the English | 224 |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| The Police department | ib. |
| Murder committed by some thieves at Periyapatti in Coimbatore district | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Suggestions to Government and the High Court of Madras regarding the trial and appeal of small cause suits | ib. |
| The District Magistrate of Anantapur | 225 |
| A hard case of Mr. Kunhi Kannan, a late Deputy Collector | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Opinion on Dr. Duncan's proposal to make the Handwriting test open only to First Arts men | ib. |
| The Indian science of medicine | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| The distress of the people of Tiruchengódu in Salem | ib. |
| Hardship felt by the levy of burning-ground fees | 226 |
| Defects in sanitation pointed out | ib. |
| A suggestion to the Madras municipality for improving the footpaths in various localities | ib. |
| Insufficient water-supply in Triplicane | ib. |
| Scarcity of water in Proddatur | ib. |
| "Interpellation in municipal councils" | ib. |
| Sanitary arrangements in the Calicut municipality | 227 |
| Repairs of municipal roads as relief for famine-stricken labourers | ib. |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (e) Local and Municipal—cont. | |
| Revision of house-tax in the Calicut municipality | 227 |
| The insanitary condition of Captain's tank | ib. |
| Cholera in the interior of the Calicut taluk | ib. |
| Suggesting not to close the butchers' shops outside the market in Bangalore | 228 |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Assessment of high-land crops | ib. |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Establishment of tannas or examining stations in South Malabar | ib. |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Railway to Coorg | ib. |
| The irregularities on the Southern Mahratta Railway | ib. |
| Defects in accommodation at the Bangalore city railway station | ib. |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Nil. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| The opium revenue of India | 229 |
| The pernicious effect of the reward system | ib. |
| Rewards in salt and abkári cases | ib. |
| (k) General— | |
| A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock | 230 |
| A suggestion to the Librarian, Connemara Library, Madras | ib. |
| A suggestion to the Medical authorities in Madras | ib. |
| A complaint about lepers | ib. |
| Remarks on the corruption of officials | ib. |
| The case of a poor man who died for want of proper treatment | 231 |
| Agricultural loans in Cuddapah | ib. |
| The Amir and the Government of India | ib. |
| The Amir and the frontier tribes | ib. |
| Loyalty of the Muhammadans of India towards Government | 232 |
| The Amir of Afghanistan and the Government of India. | ib. |
| Price of native blood | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| The Madras University representative in the Legislative Council yet to be elected | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Remarks on the administration of Pudukkóttai | ib. |
| The Ilvars of Travancore | 233 |
| Famine in Travancore | ib. |
| No additional high school required in Changanasseri | ib. |
| Famine in the Cochin State | ib. |

PAGE

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Famine in Cuddapah .. .. .. .. .. .. 233
Famine-relief works .. .. .. .. .. .. 234
The Koyas of the Gódávari district .. .. .. .. ib.
Famine in Malabar, and the difference of opinion between the Collector and the Secretariat .. .. .. .. ib.
Famine in India .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Famine relief in Malabar .. .. .. .. .. 235

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Observations on the proposed measure for curtailing the liberty of the Vernacular press .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on Mr. Bhownagiri's definition of sedition .. 236
Advice to those who wish to go to Natal .. .. .. ib.
The present state of affairs in India .. .. .. .. ib.
Suggestions about the coming congress .. .. .. ib.
Why should Government fear the people of India at all? .. ib.
Mr. Bhownagiri and India .. .. .. .. .. 237
Prayer of a meeting of the Muhammadans in London .. ib.
The present political situation .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A request to Government to furnish the editors of Vernacular newspapers with the press reports submitted to it by the Translators to Government .. .. .. .. .. ib.

PAGE

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS—cont.

Suggestions for the coming congress .. .. .. .. 237
Collection of subscriptions in Madura to help Mr. Tilak .. 238
Too much spent upon railways .. .. .. .. ib.
Newspapers and popular meetings .. .. .. .. ib.
Improvement of Indian industries .. .. .. .. ib.
Indian people and the Government .. .. .. .. 239
Poona affairs .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Vernacular press and the English journals .. .. ib.
Murder of natives by Europeans .. .. .. .. ib.
Attempts at gagging the Native press .. .. .. .. ib.
A threatening letter to Mr. Moore, Collector of Surat .. 240
Mr. Tilak and the Native press .. .. .. .. ib.
The disaffection of the Muhammadans in India .. .. ib.
Indian subjects of the British Government .. .. .. ib.
The unrest in Poona .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The evil results of the English rule in India .. .. .. 241
Famine allowance suggested for low-paid servants of Government .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 242
Insufficient stock of stamps in the Palghat taluk treasury, etc. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
State Secretary's reply to Mr. McNeill's question .. .. ib.
Bombay sedition .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 243
The Amir, a suspect .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The plague and the Poona murders .. .. .. .. ib.
The Anjuman-i-Hymayat-i-Islam of London and the Press. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 15th Aug. 1897. |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 3 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 14th and 21st Aug. 1897. |
| 4 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | |
| 5 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 16th and 24th Aug. 1897. |
| 6 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 14th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| 7 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 11th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 200 | 19th ,, 26th July and 16th Aug. 1897. |
| 9 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th ,, 23rd Aug. 1897. |
| 10 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 14th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| 11 | "Dharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 15th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| 12 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 16th Aug. 1897. |
| 13 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 14th and 21st Aug. 1897. |
| 14 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tirachengódu .. .. | 439 | 15th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 1,200 | 22nd Aug. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 14th, 17th, 19th, 21st, 24th and 26th Aug. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Satwa Sadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 250 | July 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 18 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 1st Aug. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 14th, 21st and 28th Aug. 1897. |
| 20 | "Rajayogi" .. .. .. .. | Cocanada .. .. .. | 300 | 26th July and 2nd ,, ,, |
| 21 | "Desopakari" .. .. .. | Ellore .. .. .. | 350 | 15th and 22nd Aug. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 14th, 18th, 21st, 25th and 28th Aug. 1897. |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 17th, 20th, 24th and 27th Aug. 1897. |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 370 | 16th, 23rd and 30th Aug. 1897. |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 200 | 21st and 28th Aug. 1897. |
| 26 | "Suriyodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 20th Aug. 1897. |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 1,800 | 26th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 552 | 18th and 25th Aug. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 29 | "Mysore Desabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 14th, 18th, 21st, 25th and 28th Aug. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 30 | "Sarvathra Mitram" .. .. | Alleppey .. .. .. | 721 | 16th Aug. 1897. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 11th and 21st Aug. 1897. |
| 32 | "Nazrani Deepika" .. .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. .. | 700 | 10th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 925 | 13th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 34 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 682 | 15th Aug. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 35 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 730 | 11th, 18th and 25th Aug. 1897. |
| 36 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 754 | 14th, 21st ,, 28th ,, ,, |
| 37 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 575 | 16th and 23rd Aug. 1897. |
| 38 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. .. | 1,000 | 14th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 39 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 9th, 16th and 23rd Aug. 1897. |
| 40 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 7th, 14th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th and 15th Aug. 1897. |
| 42 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 5th, 9th, 12th, 16th, 19th and 23rd Aug. 1897. |
| 43 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 17th June 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Aug. 14th, 1897.

Remarks on the Frontier expeditions.

1. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th August, remarks that the war carried on by the Government of India in the hilly frontier in the north is very costly and that it drains India of its resources. It is said that success in the war will not bring about any good to the country, and that useless expeditions are undertaken by Government to find employment for its vast military forces. The paper criticises the policy of Government in spending large sums of money to please the Amir of Afghanistan, who is said to be ever bent upon doing evil.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1897.

The war in the north-west of India and the Amir of Afghanistan.

2. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th August, remarks that the war in the north-west of India is carried on by Government with great vigor and that the Mahmund sect are making depredations in Lahore and its surroundings. They are described to be a fierce and troublesome people. The Amir of Afghanistan is said to have stirred them up against the English, with the object of getting from the latter a large sum of money under the pretext of silencing the rebels. The paper suggests to Government the advisability of leaving matters to themselves.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1897.

A hint to Government regarding its attitude towards the Amir of Afghanistan.

3. The Vikata Dutan, of the 21st August, speaking of the troubles in the North-west frontiers, finds fault with the policy of Government in worshipping the Amir of Afghanistan and paying him a subsidy, while his attitude towards the British Government is suspicious. The paper thinks that Government ought not to entangle itself in the affairs of the border tribes and spend India's money on fruitless wars. The Raja of Cooch Behar has volunteered his services to fight against the hill tribes: other rajas may be encouraged to do so, and thus the expenses of the war may be diminished.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 23rd, 1897.

The Amir and the troubles on the frontiers.

4. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd August, in a leading article expresses an opinion that the affairs on the North-west frontier are assuming a threatening attitude, and thinks that the Amir of Afghanistan is actually fostering these rebellions and helping the rebels with men. The best Afghan general, it says, with a large army is near the scene of action, and it is known that he has allowed his men to join the Mahmunds. The Amir has also supplied the tribesmen with arms, hence the loss that has been sustained. For some time past the conduct of the Amir has been suspicious. He called together a large number of Mullahs and has written a book on Jehad. He has sent a special envoy to Turkey and an envoy from the Sultan lately visited Afghanistan. Altogether the outlook is very serious.

The Amir at the bottom of the frontier troubles.

5. The same paper says there is strong evidence to believe that the Amir is the director of all the tribal wars on the frontiers. He has called away his envoys from Simla, Bombay, Calcutta and other places, and on inquiry by the Government of India it has been found that the envoy at Bombay has sold all his moveables and gone away to Kabul with a set of Edison's telephone apparatus and other things. Although the Amir does not openly profess hostilities, there is reason to believe that the people who besieged the fort of Sabakdara were set up by him.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 30th, 1897.

The causes of the war on the frontier.

6. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 30th August, says:—It seems clear that the Amir of Afghanistan, in spite of all his protestations, has had something to do with the present rising. All the tribes would not have risen simultaneously if they had not received encouragement. The Amir called together a number of Mullahs and it is thought that he told them to go among the tribes and incite them to revolt. The ruler of Afghanistan has become excited on account of the victories the Sultan has gained in Greece. It may be he sees a chance of seeing Muhammadanism come to the front again and become as strong as it once was. However, the Indian Government has a long and arduous task before it.

7. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 25th August, states as follows:—It is on the understanding that an alliance with a neighbouring prince is calculated to promote the welfare of the Indian Empire that the English have striven to maintain peace with the Amir, but it admits of no doubt that the Amir has grossly misunderstood the whole matter. The annual grant of 18 lakhs allowed to him by the Government of India for the upkeep of his army in a state of efficiency has been partly utilised by him in providing himself with fire-arms, etc. The Government has taken upon itself the responsibility of protecting him from foreign enemies, on his agreement to abstain from entering into political relation with other States. It is an indisputable fact that, in having sent an ambassador to Constantinople to congratulate the Sultan on his recent victory, he has violated this condition. The attitude of the Amir in connection with the present frontier disturbance is also very objectionable, inasmuch as his commander-in-chief had allowed his men to help the rioters. Moreover, the Amir has published a pamphlet to incite his subjects to rise in rebellion and to massacre the infidels. The Amir appears to have attached no importance whatever to the treaty of alliance which in all the European States will, in these days of enlightenment, be regarded with great solemnity and maintained inviolate. The treatment accorded to the Amir's son, the Shazada, during his sojourn in England, testifies to the regard the Government of India had for him. The Government of India is deemed to have bestowed too much of honour and distinction on him. It is to be believed that the Amir has lost his head by listening to the advice of his friends in Russia. Whatever the real state may be, there can be no two opinions in the matter that the Amir has often acted in gross abuse of the confidence reposed in him by the Indian Government, and that without the least excuse. The Amir and even Russia will find our Government too firm-footed to be easily displaced from the frontier.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 25th, 1897.

The Amir, faithless.

8. The Muhammadan, of the 9th August, publishes a translation of selections from Al-Movayyid, of Cairo, on the progress of Islam. The note is that Europe should rejoice at the unanimity of Muhammadanism. England, though she has reduced the Indians to mere effeminacy, fears the trifling meetings formed for helping Turkey. Why should Muhammadans not rejoice in the success of Turkey? Would not Christians exult in the triumph of the Cross?

MUHAMMADAN, Madras, Aug. 9th, 1897.

Muhammadans and the success of Turkey.

9. The Muhammadan, of the 16th August, continues its selections from Al-Movayyid of Cairo. The Sultan himself likes the proposals of Europe and is bent on preserving peace, but the Turkish nation and military people differ from him in this respect. * * * The Mussalmans, Jews and Christians in Thessaly like to be ruled by Turkey, and they hate the Greek Government. * * The strength of the Turkish forces is being gradually increased. * * Had Russia not interceded, Greece had disappeared from the map of Europe. * * No sooner is peace concluded between Turkey and Greece, than the former will turn her mind to Egypt.

MUHAMMADAN, Madras, Aug. 16th, 1897.

Turkey and Greece.

Turkey and Egypt.

10. The same paper contains a leader asking if Reuter is sure the envoy is an Afghan? or if he be an Afghan that he is an envoy. Cannot an Afghan be a tourist to Stamboul? There is nothing to connect these travellers with Kabul. The Amir is no fool to act in this way. And if Turkish press condemn British Indian administration, what about the abuse levelled against Turkey by sentimental Philhellenes in England? The Muslim press in India proves the loyalty of the Moslems. Disapprobation, when expressed, is not disaffection. The best interests of the Moslems are bound up with British supremacy.

Alleged envoy from Kabul to Stamboul.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Aug. 16th, 1897.

Lesson from the recent war.

11. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 16th August, has a translation of a letter written by Muhammad Mahmud of Calcutta to the Crescent of Liverpool, which is to the following effect:—The Greco-Turkish war is now almost over. The vaunting and vain glory of the Greek warriors gave way before the formidable troops of our Khalifa-i-Islam.

The Muhammadan of the 9th August 1897 also has this letter.

Poor, silly Greece! she has now understood that she can never match with Turkey. The world has now seen that the much-despised "sick man" is not so unwell as the Powers believed. The Christian powers have now their eyes opened. They have discovered that the Sultan is not a frail feverish being, as they say, but a monarch whose strength is such that the mighty armies of Christendom dwindle away before the intrepidity of his Osmauli warriors. The Powers have, moreover, seen that it is useless and foolish on their part to think any more of expelling the Sultan out of his dominions and wresting the kingdom from his hand, and that although the Turks have now fallen from the eminence which they occupied, yet the same spirit of courage and fortitude flows in the veins of the Turks.

Who has not mourned over the death of Ghazi Hafiz Pasha who fell fighting like a lion for God, for His Prophet and the Faith? Who has not felt his bosom swell with admiration towards those brave and generous Pashas, viz., Ghazi Usman Pasha, Adham Pasha, Hamid Pasha and others, at whose undaunted courage, firmness and strict adherence to the Holy Faith the world gazes with wonder.

Now as to the war. The Sultan being victorious he justly claims to add Thessaly to his dominions. Thessaly was in the possession of the Turks till the disastrous campaign of 1877–78, when it was through sheer injustice annexed to the Greek dominions. They have now re-conquered Thessaly. Then is it wrong on their part to ask the Powers to annex it to the dominions they now possess? No, certainly not. If the Sultan had been defeated the Christian powers would, like "wolves at their prey," from all sides have harassed him unmercifully, and would have proceeded to the division of his kingdoms. Woe to Christian bigotry and fanaticism!!!

The fanatic Christians now see that the Amir-ul-Momenin is not a worthless ruler, but a monarch whose personal qualities are superb, whose wisdom, justice, generosity, kindness and courtesy are such as fill the mind with awe and reverence; and lastly, whose intellectual gifts are the counterpart of his fine moral nature. True it is as you as Sheikh-ul-Islam, of the British Isles, wrote in the Crescent that "when the history of Turkey comes to be written with a dispassionate pen, the name of Ghazi Abdul Hamid Khan will be recorded as that of one of the greatest Caliphs who has ever occupied the Ottoman throne."

In conclusion I thank you most heartily for the disinterested endeavours you are undertaking in order to spread the light of Islam in England, which is now covered with spiritual darkness and confusion.

The Muhammadan of the 9th August 1897 also has this proclamation.

Proclamation by Sheikh-ul-Islam, of Liverpool.

12. The same paper has a translation of a proclamation by the Sheikh-ul-Islam, of Liverpool, which is to the following effect:—Abdullah Quilliam, by the grace and permission of the One Eternal God, Sheikh of the True Believers in the British Isles, to his brother Muslims throughout the world, greeting.

Know, O my brethren, that it has pleased the Almighty to give triumph to the armies of the Faithful in Greece, whereby the name and memory of the Holy Prophet has been once more exalted, the sneers and boastings of the unbelievers brought to naught and the proud driven back before the triumphant soldiers of the Amir-ul-Momenin.

According to all the laws of Allah, the precepts of His Prophet and even the customs of man, the spoils of war are the property of the victors and the land conquered by the valour of arms belongs to the conqueror.

Yet, because in this case the victor is a Muslim and the conquered are Nasuranee, certain Christians are endeavouring to induce the six great European powers to interfere between the conqueror and the conquered, and to prevent the Mussalman from reaping the reward of his valour, assisted as it has been by the blessing of God.

Mussalmans, our Kitab-i-Shareef, the thrice-blessed Qoran, has declared that "all Muslims are brethren." The triumph of the Ottoman Muslim is your, is my triumph, an undeserved insult to one Muslim is an insult to every Muslim in the world.

Interference with our Caliph in the exercise by him of his undoubted rights under the laws of God and the customs of nation by any combination of Christian powers is an insult to the whole Mussalman community.

But, brethren, let not the just vials of your wrath pour themselves out in idle words or foolish deeds. Remember ye the command of the Eternal One! Bear ye the insults of the unbelievers for a time with patience. Yet let your voices be heard loud and clear in protest against this vile and wicked attempt to prevent the Mussalman retaining the justly-merited fruits of his well-earned victories.

Those of you who reside in lands under the dominion of those of an alien faith should be doubly careful in this crisis. Ye dwell among strangers: "They worship not that which ye worship, neither do ye worship that which they worship." Therefore, beloved brethren, be circumspect and discreet.

Yet every Mussalman who resides in any land over which the British flag floats possesses by law the inalienable right to petition his Sovereign the Queen-Empress and the Imperial Parliament of the British Empire.

Sir Saiyid Ahmad Khan and the celebration of the Turkish victory in India.

13. The same paper says that a correspondent to the Paisa Akhbar of Lahore says the reason why the Muhammadans are not grateful for the help given in the Crimean war and have not thanked the helping Powers is that they helped Turkey for their own selfish motives and received something in return. The Muhammadans are jubilant at the Turkish victory over the Greeks because nearly all the Christian powers were bent upon Turkey's destruction. This being the case, if Greece had gained a victory over Turkey the dismemberment of the latter empire would have surely taken place. Thank God this has been averted and hence the rejoicings.

Peace negotiations between Turkey and Greece.

14. With reference to a London telegram of the 14th August announcing that, as difficulties have arisen in the payment of indemnity to Turkey, peace negotiations are still delayed, the same paper mentions that the Turks demand instalment of the indemnity before evacuating Thessaly, but Greece owing to its insolvent condition is unable to pay.

An appeal to Muhammadans in general for aid to the Turkish wounded and orphans.

15. The same paper mentions, on the authority of the Al-Movayyid, an Arabic paper of Cairo, that the commission which has been formed at Constantinople for adopting measures for the relief of the Turkish wounded and orphans has issued notices calling upon the people of Turkey and Egypt to render aid to the widows, etc., and observes that the above demand is not only from the people of Constantinople and Egypt, but from all over the Muhammadan world. "If this is the case," it asks, "will you, oh Muhammadans, still keep your purses closed and will you not give anything to these widows, orphans and the distressed?"

Expulsion of low-class Greeks from Constantinople.

16. The same paper mentions, on the authority of Crescent of Liverpool, that since low-class Greeks have been expelled from Constantinople, the number of riots there has been greatly reduced.

Turkey and the Great Powers.

17. A correspondent to the Muhammadan, of the 23rd August, writing from Goa, protests against the injustice of the Great Powers in depriving Turkey of what it has acquired by right of conquest from aggressive Greece.

MUHAMMADAN, Madras, Aug. 23rd, 1897.

18. Another correspondent to the issue of the same paper of 26th August, also writing from Goa, criticises the selfish and hypocritical game of England in Egypt, says some incorrigible blockheads in England applied the vilest epithets to H.I.M. the Sultan, ask England to remember the character of the suppression of the mutiny, when it criticises Turkish repression of rebellion. Why should the English keep Egypt and the Turks lose Thessaly?

The Sultan of Turkey and the English.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Dharma Samvarthani, Tiruvádi, Aug. 22nd, 1897.

19. The Dharma Samvarthani, of the 22nd August, writes as follows:—The evidence given before the Welby Commission pointed out the corruption and inefficiency of the Police department in India and the hardships and troubles that people are put to in consequence. The only way of improving the police is to employ men of good education and character in the force. It is not enough to choose men of a certain height. What is wanted in the men to be appointed is education. At present ninety-nine out of a hundred possess little education, and their only recommendation is that they are unfit for any other service. It is said that the corruption of the Police force is due to the inherent defects of native character, there being but a handful of Europeans in it, while the great bulk of them are natives; but the argument is not sound, inasmuch as the natives employed in other branches of service are not liable to the same charge. It must be said that the Europeans employed in the department are not men of high education either: most of them are ignorant of the ways of natives and the peculiarities of this country, and allow themselves to be guided by their Inspectors who are mostly chosen from among head constables. To import into the service a better class of men, higher pay than at present may have to be given. The service must be improved at any cost. Very little encouragement is now shown to educated men for entrance into the department. The few who enter it have to become bad like the rest of the force or resign their appointments. A clever but wicked head constable may contrive to turn out of the service an efficient and honest officer. This state of things is due to the ignorance of the Police Superintendents. We say, pay well and employ good men and the Police department will surely improve.

The Police department.

Lokopakari, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1897.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 22nd August, reports that a gang of robbers entered the village of Periyapatti, Coimbatore district, on the night of the 21st July, assaulted three villagers and inflicted such severe blows on one of them that he died on the 25th idem in the taluk hospital at Udamalpetta, to which he and his companions had been taken. The paper says that three men who had been arrested on suspicion have been discharged. As the sufferers are poor ryots, the paper thinks that they are not likely to take steps for the detection of the culprits, and that unless Government will institute strict inquiry into the matter, the murder of an innocent man will remain undetected and the guilty will enjoy safety.

Murder committed by some thieves at Periyapatti in Coimbatore district.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Aug. 19th, 1897.

21. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 19th August, says that the Subordinate and Munsif Courts in this Presidency set apart two days in the week for the disposal of small cause suits, and that the number of cases annually decided by the Subordinate Courts alone is calculated to be between 1,500 and 2,000. Thus it will be seen that a Subordinate Court has to decide on an average between 50 and 100 cases at every sitting. It is said that the Judges in their hurry to get through the work, rule the examination of plaintiffs alone sufficient in some cases. As no regular appeals can be preferred against the decision of Subordinate and Munsif Courts to District Courts in such cases, and as the power of revision rests exclusively with the High Court, the correspondent suggests the advisability of giving the power of revision to District Judges and of making Subordinate and Munsif Courts try small cause suits on three days every week.

Suggestions to Government and the High Court of Madras regarding the trial and appeal of small cause suits.

22. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 20th August, states that the District Magistrate of Anantapur transferred to his own file from that of the Gooty sub-magistrate a case of assault brought by a European overseer against a Brahmin maistry and a Muhammadan, that he dealt with the case in a summary way, convicting both the accused under section 352 of the Indian Penal Code and sentencing them to be whipped, and that, on his subsequently finding his sentence to be illegal and unjust, he altered it to one of rigorous imprisonment for less than a month. The correspondent is at a loss to know how the magistrate can ever modify a sentence pronounced in an open court, and prays that the Government and the High Court will go into the case, because the accused are too poor to put in a review petition. He asks how justice can be secured when such ignorant men are appointed District Magistrates, and remarks that it is but fair to deprive the magistrate in question (who has acted illegally on account of his partiality for his countryman) of his magisterial powers. This incident may indeed seem trifling, but the infringement of the law, says the writer, is a serious blemish in the administration of justice.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 20th, 1897.

The District Magistrate of Anantapur.

23. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 25th August, referring to the questions intended to be put to the Secretary of State for India by Sir W. Wedderburn regarding the punishment of Mr. Kunhi Kannan, a Deputy Collector, for bribery, remarks with wonder that the untiring perseverence of Mr. Kunhi Kannan to prove his innocence is only equalled by the persistent neglect on the part of the authorities to give him a patient hearing. As Sir Arthur Havelock, our Governor, has already given sufficient proof of his partiality to justice and truth, we believe that His Excellency will ere long do the needful in the matter. Every one acquainted with the case is of opinion that it is very hard that he should not be given an opportunity to vindicate his character.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 25th, 1897.

A hard case of Mr. Kunhi Kannan, a late Deputy Collector.

(d) Education.

24. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th August, characterises the proposal of Dr. Duncan to make the Handwriting test in future open only to First Arts men as unjust and impracticable. The paper says that the carrying out of the Director's scheme will cause unnecessary changes in the Public Service notification.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 14th, 1897.

Opinion on Dr. Duncan's proposal to make the Handwriting test open only to First Arts men.

25. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st August, speaks highly of the Indian art of medicine and of the wonderful cures effected by Indian medicines and drugs, and ascribes the decline of the art to the indifference of Government to its usefulness. If the art were encouraged and Indian pharmacy utilised in public hospitals, the paper thinks that there would be a reduction in expenditure on hospitals, while medical relief might be given to a much larger number of people than at present.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1897.

The Indian science of medicine.

(e) Local and Municipal.

26. The Viveka Thivakaran, of the 15th August, complains that, while the poor people of Tiruchengódu in the Salem district are suffering from scarcity of food and water, the union assessment is being raised. The paper prays that the district authorities and Government will try to relieve the people from their distress and suffering.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengódu, Aug. 15th, 1897.

The distress of the people of Tiruchengódu in Salem.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1897.

Hardship felt by the levy of burning-ground fees.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th August, points out the great hardship that is felt by poor people in Madras and some other municipalities in having to pay, according to a prescribed scale, to the keepers of burning and burial grounds, for the disposal of dead bodies either by burial or cremation. The correspondent says that the rates of payment are often oppressive, and instances the fee of eight annas, levied for the burial of infants, as beyond the means of many poor people who live upon small daily wages, such as two or three annas. It is prayed that Government will take the matter into its consideration and provide for the disposal of dead bodies, without cost, in cases where the owners of them cannot afford to pay.

PARIYAN, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1897.

Defects in sanitation pointed out.

28. The Pariyan, of the 21st August, says that it is the duty of the Sanitary Commissioner to supervise the sanitation of small villages and hamlets. The attention of that officer is drawn to the insanitary condition in which most of them are, and the nuisance to which the poor people are exposed by the construction of latrines near their huts. The paper, in concluding, observes that the sale of rotten edibles and of sour toddy is unchecked by the sanitary authorities, although it contributes much to the sickness of the poor.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 26th, 1897.

A suggestion to the Madras municipality for improving the footpaths in various localities.

29. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th August, points out that the footpaths on the western and southern sides of the Government House premises and on the sea-shore and other parts of the town are rendered miry by the rains and that it is very unpleasant to walk on them. It is suggested that the paths may be paved with pebbles. The paper brings to notice that these paths are also used by men suffering from loathsome diseases like leprosy.

Insufficient water-supply in Triplicane.

30. A correspondent to the same paper says that the inhabitants of Office Venkatachella Mudaliar street in Triplicane suffer much from want of water, because of the insufficient supply served by the pipes in the morning hours. It is remarked that, while the municipality exacts water assessment from the people, it is unmindful of the difficulties experienced by them owing to the scanty supply of water.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1897.

Scarcity of water in Proddatur.

31. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 17th August, regrets to note that the inhabitants of Proddatur, Cuddapah district, are severely suffering from want of water. There is scarcely any water available for drinking purposes, as the canal and the two tanks in the village are completely dry. Stream-water got from a distance of a mile is used by some, muddy and stinking as it is, while the others are using the wretched water obtainable here and there in the village. Water for other purposes also is equally hard to obtain, the wells in the village having become almost empty. The correspondent is anxious to see what steps Government will take for the relief of this distress, and is at a loss to know how people can at all live without water to drink.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, July 26th and Aug. 2nd, 1897.

"Interpellation in municipal councils."

32. The Rajayogi, of the 26th July and 2nd August, writes thus (in English):—"Certain rules anent interpellation under section 250 (m) have been published for the information of the public inviting objections, if any, to the same. We have no reasons to raise our voice against any of the provisions excepting sections 2 and 4 which require to be modified, if the well-being of all mofussil councils is at heart. Section 4 gives autocratic power to the chairman who may disallow any question put to him by his brother councillors under the plea of its not being consistent with public interests—a sorry excuse after all—and what is worse, such questions need not be entered in the council proceedings. It is the dread of publicity alone that curbs the whimsical ways of a despotic officer and places him in a straight path. If this is withheld, the privilege of interpellation becomes a privilege in name—a mere farce. Under these circumstances, it is desirable, in the interests of reason and justice, that this rule should be so amended as to contain a condition compelling the chairman to set forth his reasons in writing for disallowing the question. It should further be laid down that the councillors shall have power to appeal to the Government, which should of course have the right of considering the importance or otherwise of the question and the correctness of the chairman's action.

"Section 2 imposes that every councillor who wishes to ask a question shall give at least ten clear days' notice in writing. This period is needlessly long considering that six days only were found sufficient with members of the Provincial Legislative Councils. We cannot easily conceive why a longer notice is necessary in the case of municipal councils, especially as the information that may be required by councillor can be gathered only from the records of the office, whereas in the case of Legislative Councils, to answer a question satisfactorily the Government may have to call for information from the heads of districts or from other distant quarters. We consider that three days' time is more than enough."

33. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 11th August, referring to the arrangements recently made for combating the spread of cholera in the Calicut municipality, is of opinion that the municipality has not taken the necessary precautions for preventing the spread of the disease and that there is a lack of supervision in the cholera shed on the beach, and it is remarked that on the whole the Calicut municipality has not been doing all that it ought to do in the matter of sanitation.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 11th, 1897.

Sanitary arrangements in the Calicut municipality.

34. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th August, in noticing with pleasure the action of the chairman of the Cochin municipality in undertaking to conduct the repairs of all roads within the municipality, which are in need of repairs, as a means of affording some relief to the famine-stricken labourers, suggests the same course for adoption by the Calicut municipality and the Malabar district board.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1897.

Repairs of municipal roads as relief for famine-stricken labourers.

35. A leader in the Manorama, of the 16th August, referring to the recent revision of house-tax in the Calicut municipality, remarks that the revision is on the whole unsatisfactory and requires further correction and settlement before final adoption. The principle of assessment is admitted to be to tax houses according to their rental value in the particular locality in which they are situated; but this principle does not appear to have been followed in very many cases. Instances are quoted to prove this statement, and the attention of the chairman and of the councillors is invited to the matter with a request that they will make the necessary corrections and alterations. It is further suggested that the Collector also should send for the lists and examine them and issue the necessary orders, and that three or four of the councillors should be formed into a committee for examining the assessment books and inspecting the buildings of each division and for revising the assessment accordingly.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 16th, 1897.

Revision of house-tax in the Calicut municipality.

36. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 25th August, referring to the insanitary condition of the Captain's tank in Calicut, suggests that it would be well if the proposal of Mr. D. Maneckjee to fill it up and plant trees thereon were accepted by the municipality.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 25th, 1897.

The insanitary condition of Captain's tank.

37. Referring to the prevalence of cholera in places outside the limits of the Calicut municipality, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 28th August, urges upon the Calicut taluk board the necessity of appointing a sanitary inspector and two coolies for each of the affected villages and an itinerating hospital assistant for the whole taluk, who should carry with them a good supply of medicines.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 28th, 1897.

Cholera in the interior of the Calicut taluk.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 5th, 1897.

38. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 5th August, says that its local contemporary The Daily Post suggests to the President of the Civil and Military station, Bangalore, that he should close the butchers' shops which have been recently opened in different parts of the Civil and Military station, Bangalore, on the ground that they are not under the supervision of the market sergeant, and that unwholesome mutton is sold in them and the public health endangered. The Qasim, however, observes that every sheep for the market is slaughtered in the municipal slaughter-house, which is under the supervision of the Veterinary Surgeon, and that mutton is therein exposed to the air the whole night. This being the case, from what place does the unwholesome mutton complained of come? By maintaining these shops the public are saved from the trouble of going to market. It also suggests the opening of a few more like shops in places which are remote from the market.

Suggesting not to close the butchers' shops outside the market in Bangalore.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1897.

39. A paragraph in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th August, after referring to the fact that in the Palghat taluk, unlike other taluks of the district, millet and horsegram, which are dry-land crops, are also assessed, asks how Government can be justified in levying a tax on motan and ellu (gingelly-seed) cultivated on parambas which are already paying a tree-tax, and again on millet, etc., only in the Palghat taluk. Further observing that if it be considered unfair to subject other taluks also to a grievance which is specially endured by the Palghat taluk, the paragraph concludes with a hope that the authorities concerned will, for the sake of justice, see their way to removing the hardship in the case of Palghat.

Assessment of high-land crops.

(g) Forests.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 28th, 1897.

40. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 28th August, urges upon Government the necessity of establishing tannas or examining stations in South Malabar, as in North Malabar and other places, for the inspection of timber conveyed from private forests. Absence of such an arrangement entails much loss upon the owners of private forests. From the indifference of Government in the matter, one might imagine that the Government is interested in the ruin of private forests in order that it might monopolise the whole trade.

Establishment of tannas or examining stations in South Malabar.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 24th, 1897.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th August, invites the attention of Government to a correspondence in its columns pointing out the necessity for the construction of a railway to Coorg, and alleging that it will not be wasteful investment of capital, and that, as there are it present large numbers of people come to that province from the neighbouring districts in quest of labour, the work may be started as a famine-relief work.

Railway to Coorg.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Aug. 28th, 1897.

42. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 28th August, makes the following complaints about the Southern Mahratta Railway:—Its trains are always irregular. Most of the carriages are not lighted at nights. Smoking in carriages is freely indulged in. People are huddled together like cattle in overcrowded carriages. In some of the stations the station-masters oppress the passengers and those who send goods are put to all sorts of inconvenience.

The irregularities on the Southern Mahratta Railway.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 5th, 1897.

43. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 5th August, says people travelling on the Southern Mahratta Railway often complain that third-class passengers greatly suffer for want of a secluded place for gosha ladies at the city station, Bangalore. There is a waiting room in the station for third-class passengers, but it does not contain a suitable place for gosha ladies, in consequence of which they remain waiting outside in the sun. If the Railway authorities were to enclose a corner of the room and set it apart for gosha ladies, it would be very convenient.

Defects in accommodation at the Bangalore city railway station.

Complaint is also made that no arrangements exist for the provision of drinking water. At small stations on the line Brahmins, who are appointed for the purpose, supply water to passengers, but it is astonishing that no such arrangement has been made in the city station, and the station-master, whose duty it is to look after this matter, does nothing. The editor suggests the immediate appointment of a Brahmin to supply water to passengers whenever required.

The editor proceeds to observe that the Railway authorities do not publicly notify changes made in their time-tables from time to time. This causes great inconvenience to passengers from the civil and military station or cantonment, as they have to go to the station for the mere purpose of ascertaining the times at which trains start. The editor advises the Southern Mahratta Railway authorities to promulgate such changes for general information in English and in native newspapers.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 30th August, speaking on the remark said to have been made by the Secretary of State for India that it is a matter of satisfaction that there was a fall in the opium trade of India, says that far from indicating any decrease in the consumption of the opium, the fall in the opium revenue shows that the Chinese are growing their own opium and buy less of the Indian drug. The editor thinks that the Government should never yield to the cry of the anti-opium party or think of suppressing the growth of opium. Any attempt at such a suppression would not only defeat its own object, but would be attended with great loss of revenue to India, while the preventive establishment would cost a great deal without any corresponding benefit.

The opium revenue of India.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 30th, 1897.

45. A paragraph in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th August, regrets that the Government concurred in the opinion of the Board that no modification could at present be effected in the rules for the grant of rewards in salt and abkári cases. The paragraph further says that so long as the reward system is not altogether done away with, the subordinate officers of the department would continue to concoct cases, and that innocent men would be punished; that the reward system and the compulsion from higher authorities to show more cases are fraught with evil to the people; and that unless these two things are altogether stopped, the administration of justice cannot be satisfactory.

The pernicious effect of the reward system.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1897.

A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 14th August, referring to the same subject, makes the following remarks:—"If the Government and the Board think that the reward system cannot be modified, it is indispensable that at least the defect in the law be remedied and the accused be given an opportunity of a judicial hearing. The passing of an order which injuriously affects the people who work for their living is, in its opinion, a great injustice.

46. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 18th August, referring to the question of granting rewards in salt and abkári cases, makes the observation that the Board is greatly mistaken in saying that the reward system requires no modification. It also asks what greater encouragement can be given for trumping up false charges than the present system. The superior officers take their subordinates to task if the number of cases is not large. The magistrates are prepared to convict in all cases brought before them, and rewards are granted in all the cases in which conviction has been secured.

Rewards in salt and abkári cases.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 18th, 1897.

A leader in the Manorama, of the 23rd August, referring to the same subject, questions the propriety of the law that any confession alleged to have been made before any servant of the Salt and Abkári department, however low his position may be, is admissible in evidence against the accused, while such admissions are not accepted even when made to Superintendents of Police in the Police department.

A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 28th August, also referring to the same subject, suggests a modification in the reward system. It says that the reward is now given to petty officers for securing conviction in large number of cases. This works as an incentive to those officers who are without any culture to trump up charges against the innocent. Acting on the equitable principle that the preventing justice is better than punishing injustice, it will be advisable for the Government to give reward not to those petty officers who multiply cases to secure their own advantage, but to such of them who by their vigilance restrain the carrying out of illicit sale of toddy, etc. If this method is adopted, the poor tappers will be saved much hardship and the illicit sale, etc., will be put a stop to and revenue to Government will also be protected. The present staff of Inspectors, etc., will be found quite sufficient for the purpose, and the proposed organisation of two forces, i.e., the preventive and the detective, can profitably to Government be dispensed with. It hopes that this suggestion will be acceptable to Government.

(k) General.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Aug. 14th, 1897.

47. The Vikata Dutan, of the 14th August, requests His Excellency Lord Havelock to allow the ryots of the different places intended to be visited by him, on his return to Madras, an opportunity of expressing to him their grievances. It is hoped that the people will represent their real difficulties, as it is almost certain that the Governor will bear them in mind and adopt remedial measures.

A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock.

PARIYAN, Madras, Aug. 14th, 1897.

48. The Pariyan, of the 14th August, draws the attention of the Librarian in charge of the Connemara Library to the disturbances and distractions to which the readers within the building are subjected, and hopes that he will rectify matters.

A suggestion to the Librarian, Connemara Library, Madras.

49. The same paper says that the employment of a nurse in the Royapettah Hospital, Madras, is very necessary for the benefit of its female patients, and draws the attention of the Medical authorities to the point.

A suggestion to the Medical authorities in Madras.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1897.

50. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th August, complains that lepers are freely allowed to walk in the streets of Madras and that no steps are taken by the authorities to put a stop to the nuisance caused thereby.

A complaint about lepers.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Aug. 21st, 1897.

51. The Jananukulan, of the 21st August, writes as follows :— The opportunities for corruption or bribe-taking are many in the Revenue, Criminal and Police departments of Government, and it is well known that officers serving in them are most of them very corrupt. The Judicial department has been an exception to the rule; District Judges, Sub-Judges and District Munsifs being generally honest. Corruption now seems to be creeping into the judicial service also. A few years ago, two Sub-Judges were punished with imprisonment for corruption, while a third who was likewise accused was retired on pension, and a fourth was lately dismissed from service after trial. We now hear a rumour that a District and Sessions Judge receives in important cases that go to him thousands and ten thousands of rupees as bribes. Till we know for certain what the truth is, we refrain from publishing the name and the station of the officer in question. So there is corruption in all departments of the administration. Many are the ways of bribe-receiving. One officer employs his trusted agent as the medium of corruption; another receives money through some vakil; a third employs a relation of his for the purpose; a fourth gets it through his wife. Again one employs one's own man as a commissioner for inquiry and gets a share of the fee; another confines his corrupt practices to cases in which he decides justly; a third makes a parade of his honesty in open court but receives money secretly; a fourth is content to be paid in kind, such as cattle, carriages, etc., or buys them at half prices. To expose these cases of corruption and to bring the offenders to justice is next to impossible. The law, as it is at present, punishes the giver and the taker of bribes. While such is the case, how can it be expected that poor people will come forward and brave the danger of lodging complaints against powerful officials? The task is hopeless. Besides it is not the interest of the man who buys justice for money to expose himself or the officer who helped him. If corruption is to be put a stop to, the first remedy is to cancel the provision of law which makes the giver of bribe liable to punishment. Such a measure will facilitate the work of detection; and if the higher officers will co-operate, corruption may be considerably checked. But unfortunately young civilians, who are strangers to the country and ignorant of the language of the people, are entrusted with great powers. People dread the officials as a class and corruption remains unchecked.

Remarks on the corruption of officials.

52. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th August, writing from Vadekkancheri (near Palghat) reports as follows:— SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 24th, 1897.

The case of a poor man who died for want of proper treatment.

One Raman, who had been beaten severely by some men, was sent to the local hospital by the magistrate for medical examination, treatment and certificate. The apothecary in charge of the hospital wrote back to say that the man required careful treatment, but that as the District Surgeon had recently forbidden the admission of in-patients, he the apothecary could not take him in. The magistrate referred the question to the District Magistrate, who ordered that the man might be treated as an out-patient. He was, however, poor, houseless and helpless, and in his bad health had to seek lodgings on pials of houses and endure great hardships. The apothecary, however, pitied the poor man and rendered him all the help he could; while in this condition he was attacked by cholera, and none would give him shelter. Thus left helpless, he is said to have died. Who is responsible for his death?

53. The Sasilekha, of the 20th August, observes that the special tahsildar appointed in Jammalamadugu for disposing of applications for the grant of agricultural loans is unable to turn out any work, inasmuch as special deputy tahsildars and revenue inspectors are not yet appointed to assist him in the discharge of his duties. The ryots are submitting numerous applications for loans for purchasing fodder. These applications are, the paper regrets to observe, returned to the applicants after a month for not having been written in the prescribed forms. It asks why the authorities should insist on the use of a particular form, and why they should not grant the loan after satisfying themselves as to the sufficiency of the property offered as security. It refers to four particular cases in which the applications of persons in the village of Chinna Pasavula were rejected, nearly a month after their submission, for not having been written in the prescribed forms, though the security offered was not insufficient. The fact of the work of the subordinate officers being so unsatisfactory is attributable, says the paper, to the indifference shown by the Collector of Cuddapah in famine matters. SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 20th, 1897.

Agricultural loans in Cuddapah.

54. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 16th August, says the reason why a threatening letter was sent to the Amir by the Government of India and why forces are being concentrated at Rawal Pindi is that the Amir has rendered aid to the frontier tribes against the British Government. SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Aug. 16th, 1897.

The Amir and the Government of India.

55. The same paper mentions that the Paisa Akhbar, of Lahore, referring to a rumour that the Amir of Afghanistan has sent four battalions (consisting of horse and foot) and a battery in aid of the troops stationed at

The Amir and the frontier tribes.

Khost, thinks that the Amir might have sent the troops for preventing the Meada Khail tribe or the Waziris from entering Afghanistan. Anent the apprehensions of the Civil and Military Gazette that the Amir's book about Jehad and the Turkish victory have created religious fanaticism amongst the Muhammadans of India, the Paisa observes that the book has not yet reached India. The Turkish victory has made Muhammadans jubilant and nothing else. The British Government has not treated the Muhammadans of India in such a manner as to make them forget its favours. They have already proved themselves faithful to the British Raj. Hence there is no reason why their loyalty should now be doubted.

Loyalty of the Muhammadans of India towards Government.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1897.

56. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 21st August, says that the Government of India doubts the loyalty of the Amir for the following reasons, viz., the rising of the Khatwal tribe, the alleged communication by Mulla Majnun with Afghanistan, the rising of the Mehmandis on the instigation of Mulla Huda, the news of the arrival of an Afghan envoy at the Court of the Sultan, the book on Jehad and the celebration of the Turkish victory in Kabul. All this has led to a note from the Government of India to the Amir. It is understood, the editor says, that the Amir has issued an order to his people prohibiting them from taking part with Mulla Huda. But these instructions are not sufficient to prevent the Afghans from executing their evil designs. It beboves the Amir to adopt stringent measures and inflict severe punishment upon the Mehmand tribe so that the Government may see he is a real friend. Otherwise the Amir will suffer in the same way as Sher Ali and Yaqub Khan have suffered.

The Amir of Afghanistan and the Government of India.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, Aug. 15th, 1897.

57. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th August, in writing that an European who was charged with the murder of his native syce at Delhi escaped with a slight fine, observes that several Europeans who had committed the same offence have been similarly let off unpunished. Government and its responsible officers are committing a serious blunder by deviating from the path of justice. This action on their part has created great feeling among the natives of India.

Price of native blood.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 24th, 1897.

58. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th August, speaking of the elections for the Legislative Council held at Trichinopoly and Bezwada, points out that the University of Madras has yet to elect its representative in the Council, Rev. Dr. Miller's term having expired, and hopes that Government will soon call upon that body to exercise its right of election and fill up the vacancy.

The Madras University representative in the Legislative Council yet to be elected.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 19th, 1897.

59. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th August, writes as follows:—It is the duty of the Indian press to watch the administration in the Native States of India. But for the authority exercised over them by the British Government, their condition would be exceedingly miserable. As it is, they are not all that they need be. In some States the Maharaja interferes too much with the administration and hampers the action of the Diwan in every way; while in others, the Diwan is everything, the Maharaja caring only for a liberal allowance for his expenses. There are three Native States subject to the control of the Madras Government, namely, Travancore, Cochin and Pudukkóttai. In Travancore, the administration is said to be conducted carefully. In Cochin, the Maharaja and the Diwan are young and are reported to be hasty in some of the measures introduced by them: they will soon learn the truth of the proverb that patience will conquer all difficulties. In Pudukkóttai, however, things seem to be going the wrong way. The Maharaja takes no interest in the administration; most of his time is spent on the Kodaikánal hills; his pleasures—such as hunting, racing—absorb all his time and attention; and his only care is to get money from the State for his expenses. When Mr. A. Seshia Sastriar was in charge of Pudukkóttai, the administration was excellent. But since the assumption of the rule by the young Maharaja, matters are said to be going from bad to worse. The new Diwan may be a man of experience, but he is under no supervision. Lately three officers resigned their service in the State—the Chief Judge, who discharged his duties honestly and efficiently; an Engineer in charge of the D.P.W., who had served the State for ten years; and Mr. S. Narayanasami Aiyar, who had long been at the head of the State College and earned distinction. All three were of great help to the Diwan, and they have resigned. And why? Has the Political Agent inquired into the matters and reported? We hope the Government of Sir Arthur Havelock will inquire into the state of administration in Pudukkótai. In addition to visiting Travancore and Cochin, His Excellency will do well to visit Pudukkóttai and learn for himself the state of affairs there.

Remarks on the administration of Pudukkóttai.

60. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 21st August, speaking of the civil disabilities to which the Ilvars of Travancore are subject in that State, such as exclusion from public appointments, observes that, though as a community they are very backward, some of them have received good education and have obtained appointments in Mysore and British India. The paper is gratified to learn that the Ilvars have brought their case to the notice of the British Parliament, and hopes that the Government of Travancore will at least allow the Ilvar boys free admission into the State schools without distinction of caste.

The Ilvars of Travancore.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Aug. 21st, 1897.

61. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd August, says that in Travancore there is now widespread famine and cholera, and the people are dying of starvation in large numbers, and the Government has not yet taken any steps to give relief to the poor.

Famine in Travancore.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 23rd, 1897.

62. A leader in the Nazrani Deepika, of the 10th August, referring to the proposal of the Travancore Sirkar to establish a Government high school in Changanasseri, where there is already a Mission high school, says that the one already in existence there is quite enough for the public need, and suggests that the proposed one might be established in some other locality where it is more needed. Reference is also made to the fact that the existing Mission school has this advantage, i.e., that unlike the Protestant mission schools it does not give religious instruction. Objection is also taken to the acquisition by the Sirkar for public purposes of the land on which it was proposed to erect a building for the Mission school.

No additional high school required in Changanasseri.

NAZRANI DEEPIKA, Kóttayam, Aug. 10th, 1897.

63. A leader in the Kerala Mitran, of the 21st August, regrets that the Cochin State has hardly done anything for the relief of its subjects suffering from famine and pestilence, and urges it to follow the course adopted by the Travancore Sirkar and the British Government, such as opening relief works, etc.

Famine in the Cochin State.

KERALA MITRAN, Cochin, Aug. 21st, 1897.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

64. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 17th August, remarks that Government servants in Cuddapah are trying to obtain Government favour by reducing the number of coolies on relief works. The work of the coolies has greatly increased, while their wages have substantially diminished. The correspondent regrets to note that, contrary to the provisions of the Famine Code requiring payment of wages to mothers with babies at 2 lb. of paddy a day, they are being paid at the rate of only 11 pies a day. The former overseer on the Erragunta relief works used to impose heavy fines and bring down the wages to 5 or 6 pies a day, and even the present overseer does not pay more than 7 or 8 pies a day. New coolies are refused admission. The correspondent believes that the authorities do so with the object of curtailing the numbers on relief works. He attributes the cause of the diminution in the number of coolies to increased work and reduced wages, to the prevalence of a rumour that the coolies will forcibly be taken to the Nilgiris and to the fact that some of the coolies resort to villages, down the canal, for work there. Observing that grants of loans to ryots for purposes of buying seeds have been withheld by the Cuddapah executive committee, the correspondent remarks that Government help will be quite useless unless given in proper time, and regrets to note that the officers in Jammalamadugu have lately refused such grants to about a hundred ryots.

Famine in Cuddapah.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1897.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 20th, 1897.

Famine-relief works.

65. The Sasilekha, of the 20th August, referring to the great fall in the number of coolies on the relief works in Ganjám and Cuddapah, prays that Government will not be hasty in disestablishing the relief works. It remarks that abolition of relief works does not prove the subsidence of famine, and that the coolies will themselves voluntarily leave the works as soon as the season proves favourable. It remarks that the fall-off in the number of coolies in Bellary being only 4,000 out of 150,000, the very large fall in the numbers at Cuddapah (14,000 out of 85,000) cannot be attributed to anything but the enhancement of work and curtailment of wages. The number of coolies in Anantapur is on the increase. It says it is aware that the Collectors of these three districts are intelligent and prudent, but is at a loss to account for the fact of there being so much difference in them as regards famine relief, when the season does not appear to be more favourable in one district than in another. It therefore prays that Government will kindly consider these matters before proceeding to stop the relief works.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 27th, 1897.

The Koyas of the Gódávari district.

66. The Sasilekha, of the 27th August, regrets to note that the Koyas in the Bhadráchalam taluk of the Gódávari district are severely suffering from famine. Rains have indeed set in in some places, but the crops will not be gathered for two months more. Meanwhile these poor hillmen have neither forest leaves and roots to eat nor standing crops to pledge for raising loans. They are therefore living upon the tender leaves of the bamboo, in consequence of which cholera has broken out among them. Food-stuffs are not available in the taluk, and so they have to resort to the Government depôts on the other side of the Gódávari. But the present condition of the river is such that it takes about 10 or 14 days for the grain-boats to go up the river from Rajahmundry to Kunadaram, and about the same time for the supplies to reach Dommigudem, the principal village in the taluk. Sometimes the floods are so heavy that even steamers cannot resist the current. Moreover, the Gódávari and the Sabhari have been in floods destroying the crops in the low lands, and seeds are not available for sowing a second time. The paper therefore prays that large quantities of paddy will be sent to depôts for sale, that the Famine Relief Committee will allot some funds for helping the Koyas, and that the Agency tracts will be connected with other parts of the country by land-routes.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 23rd, 1897.

Famine in Malabar, and the difference of opinion between the Collector and the Secretariat.

67. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd August, says that Mr. Dance, the Collector of Malabar, has observed the existence of famine in Malabar, while the Revenue Secretariat believes that there can be no famine in Malabar. It is significant, however, that, during the week ending with the 7th instant, the number of reported deaths in Malabar from cholera alone is 1,861. The paper says that Mr. Stokes will never yield without a struggle however unholy it may be.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Aug. 14th, 1897.

Famine in India.

68. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 14th August, speaking of the causes of famine in India, says that as long as India was governed by Hindu kings, the people were happy and contented, but when Mlechchas took possession of the country the happiness was turned to misery. It was under Muhammadan rule that famine first began to appear in India and, since the English rule was established, famines have been occurring almost every year. The Muhammadans were only outwardly opposed to the Brahmins because they knew that without Brahmins they could not carry on the administration. Although the English do not openly show their enmity to the Brahmins, yet being afraid of their intellectual superiority, they try to set other classes against the Brahmins. The other classes, therefore, are giving up their traditional occupations in their desire to supplant the Brahmins. Hence industries have died out and all people are competing only for one kind of employment, namely, Government service. Hence famines are the order of the day.

69. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 21st August, referring to the measures intended to be adopted for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Malabar, says that the conditional promise of the Madras committee that it would send an amount equal to the sum collected in the district for famine relief is unjustifiable and the acceptance by the Calicut committee of that conditional promise is inexpedient. It is then suggested that as famine relief in Malabar is a matter of urgent necessity, at least the sum already contributed from that district be immediately obtained and relief operation begun.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 21st, 1897.

Famine relief in Malabar.

Another article in the same issue of the paper suggests how the relief should be administered. It is not advisable to purchase rice in the local bazaars, but it should be specially indented for and obtained, as the tradesmen's profits would swallow up a considerable portion of the amount set apart for the purpose. The system of giving rice should be restricted and that of giving conjee (gruel) resorted to as much as possible.

Another article in the same issue of the paper suggests that the provisions of the Agriculturists' Loans Act be made better known to the people of Malabar, so that they might avail themselves of those provisions at this trying season, and invites the attention of the Collector and of the Famine committee to this subject.

A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 25th August, complains that in the conjee (gruel) provided at some of the places in Calicut there is no sufficient quantity of rice, and that some of the ticket-holders fail to obtain the whole or any portion of the quantity of rice mentioned in their tickets.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

70. The Pariyan, of the 14th August, writes as follows on the proposed measures of depriving the Vernacular press of India of its liberty:—

PARIYAN, Madras, Aug. 14th, 1897.

Observations on the proposed measure for curtailing the liberty of the Vernacular press.

The evil of such a step will be great indeed. It will deprive the people of India of the only means they now have of bringing to the notice of Government the numerous acts of maladministration, which its native subordinates, from the lowest to the highest grade, commit. In many places almost all Government appointments are held by members of one and the same caste, and the mischief they do will remain unchecked and unnoticed by Government, if there be no free Press to expose it. Besides it is the Press which serves to unite together, by a common bond of sympathy, all the different castes and sections of the Indian people. True that the Press has, in some instances, deviated from its strict duty, espoused the cause of the mischievous National Congress, and has been guilty of other foolish acts; but the Vernacular press discharges a most useful function. Government may check or punish the wrong-doers, but it will not be wise to condemn the Vernacular press as a whole for the faults of individual members, and deprive India of one of its great blessings, namely, a free Press.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Aug. 15th, 1897.

71. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th August, writes as follows:—"If Mr. Bhownagiri's definition of sedition be a correct one, then, we believe, every newspaper is seditious. It comes to this. Any editor criticising an action of Government in a strong language may be construed to incite the native population against the British rule. If Mr. Bhownagiri's idea of sedition be accepted to be correct, then it is better to abolish the boon of a free Press within the British territory. We are glad to find that even the present Conservative Government does not agree with Mr. Bhownagiri in this respect. We deprecate inflammatory or scurrilous writing, but we think that a free Press has a double blessing. It gives opportunities to persons to express themselves freely and unreservedly, and it empties the mind of the people of discontent and pent-up feelings against Government which, if unexpressed, would lead to worse results. Mr. Bhownagiri is making himself unpopular."

Remarks on Mr. Bhownagiri's definition of sedition.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Aug. 16th, 1897.

72. A correspondent to the Nilalochani, of the 16th August, draws the attention of those intending to proceed to Natal to the stringent rules framed by the Government of that settlement against the landing of the Indians, and advises them to wait till the disposal of the memorial submitted to the Home Government for the cancelment of the said rules.

Advice to those who wish to go to Natal.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Aug. 16th, 1897.

73. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th August, writes as follows on the present state of affairs in India:—Many are the evils that have befallen India since the beginning of the present year. Famine and plague have caused the people heavy misery and taxed the energies of our Government to the utmost. And now troubles have arisen in the North-western frontiers. The Chitral expedition of last year which cost the Indian Government such heavy expenditure would, it was thought, put an end to all disturbances in the frontiers; but fresh troubles have commenced. Vast forces have been sent to the frontiers, and Government is taking all necessary steps for the effectual protection of the country. This is a time when all India should act with one mind, when Government and the people should co-operate. There is no doubt that the Hindus will behave as they ought. We are confident that even the Muhammadans of India, who have reaped such benefits from the rulers of the country, will be loyal to the British Government and not countenance the doings of their co-religionists in the frontiers. The action of Government in the matter of Poona is to be regretted; but that is a small matter and a little exercise of prudence on the part of Government will satisfy the people. The Anglo-Indian press most improperly indulges in free abuse of the natives of the country, and we hope that it will cease to do so in future.

The present state of affairs in India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1897.

74. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th August, urges the Indian public to put forth their best efforts to render the coming congress a great success and to falsify the utterances of its enemies. The paper says that every part of India should be well represented in the congress and that, if possible, an influential member of the British Parliament should be invited to preside over it.

Suggestions about the coming congress.

75. The same paper writes as follows:—The dissatisfaction that exists among the people of India is, undoubtedly, due to the shortcomings of the administration. During the last twenty years, Indian Government has followed a selfish policy, unmindful of the interests and welfare of the people. The way in which the revenues of India are spent shows that no heed is paid to the well-being of the tax-payer. The complaints of the people are not listened to. The country is growing poorer; the great bulk of the people are agriculturists and they suffer by the operations of the Settlement department; and Indian manufactures have declined. Failure of rain for a single year drives the people in thousands away from their homes to wander in quest of relief. In every district and every village there is discontent. Even in the days of Lord Lytton it was not so great as it is now. And all this is due to the apathy of Government to the welfare of the people. And yet how strange it is that the Vernacular press of India should be blamed as fostering disaffection in the minds of the people? Sir Lepel Griffin thinks that the English and Vernacular newspapers published in India by the natives of the country are a source of danger to the British Government. Such danger is imaginary. The British Government of India has nothing to fear from its Indian subjects who are perfectly quiet and peaceful, who only ask for a redress of their grievances and who are fully alive to the blessings they enjoy under their present rulers.

Why should Government fear the people of India at all?

76. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th August, remarks that Mr. Bhownagiri is an enemy to the Indians, as he prejudices the minds of the Members of the House of Parliament against his own countrymen. He is said to be an opponent of the Indian congress and of the Vernacular press. The paper says that he was knighted in honour of Her Majesty's Diamond Jubilee, and fears that much evil may befall India if he should be appointed as the Viceroy of India through the influence of the Conservative Ministry now in power.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 19th, 1897.

Mr. Bhownagiri and India.

77. The same paper reports that the Muhammadans living in London convened a meeting on the 9th July last and expressed their disapproval of the condemnation of Government and its measures by some native papers in India. It was the prayer of the meeting that the seditious newspaper writers should be punished as they deserved, without any attempt on the part of Government to curtail the liberty of the Vernacular press.

Prayer of a meeting of the Muhammadans in London.

78. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 21st August, after enumerating the miseries endured by the people of India during the time of the Muhammadan rule, and eulogising the British Government for the vast benefits conferred on them, hopes that the present frontier troubles will not lead to any war with the Amir of Afghanistan or the Muhammadan powers in general or pave the way for Russian aggression. Should such troubles arise, the paper thinks that the fate of the people of India would be like that of a garland of flowers in the hands of a monkey!

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1897.

The present political situation.

79. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st August, speaking of the importance of the Vernacular newspapers, and how their usefulness will depend upon the encouragement given to them by the people, and the good sense and judgment shown by their contributors, suggests to Government the advisability of communicating to the editors of those papers the press reports submitted to it by its Translators, so that if the reports be imperfect or inaccurate, the necessary additions and modifications may be supplied by the editors concerned. The paper advises the editors of Anglo-Indian papers to be friendly to their brethren of the Vernacular press and help them with their advice, instead of running them down as is done at present.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1897.

A request to Government to furnish the editors of Vernacular newspapers with the press reports submitted to it by the Translators to Government.

80. A correspondent to the same paper suggests the following subjects for the consideration of the coming congress:—

Suggestions for the coming congress.

(1) The appointment of a native of India as an ordinary member of Council in the Viceregal and Presidential Councils.

(2) The right of sending to the British Parliament a number of representatives from India.

(3) Whether it is necessary to retain the Council of the Secretary of State for India.

(4) The strengthening of the British congress committee with additional funds.

The writer remarks that the administrative capacity of the natives of India has greatly improved as may be inferred from the appointment of Dadabhai Nowrojee as a member of the Royal Commission on Indian expenditure. He would choose the Indian representatives in the British Parliament from the Indian congress committee. In the opinion of the writer, the present Council of the Secretary of State for India may safely be abolished and a new Council formed consisting of a few Members of Parliament and those who aspire to Indian Governorships and Viceroyalties. Such an arrangement will, the writer says, effect a great saving of expenditure. Great stress is laid on the necessity for strengthening the British congress committee with funds, to enable it to start a congress press in England, to publish and circulate gratis to the British public copies of the Indian congress reports, and to convene a large public meeting in England in February or March to be attended by Members of Parliament, both of the House of Lords and of the House of Commons, and lay before that meeting for expression of opinion the congress reports.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1897.

Collection of subscriptions in Madura to help Mr. Tilak.

81. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 22nd August, reports that funds are now being raised in Madura to help Mr. Tilak, and that a sum of hundred rupees will soon be made up.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Aug. 24th, 1897.

Too much spent upon railways.

82. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th August, deprecates any further extension of railways in India on the ground that the interest payable on their capital is a heavy drain upon the limited revenues of India. The paper thinks that all the railways recommended have been constructed for averting famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 26th, 1897.

Newspapers and popular meetings.

83. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th August, writes as follows:—Two things are necessary for the good government of India—newspapers and popular meetings. It is by means of these that the wants and grievances of the people can be made known to our rulers. We must remember that our rulers have come from another country and are strangers to India. It becomes our duty, therefore, to convey to them our opinions and sentiments. In the Southern districts of the Presidency popular meetings have not been frequently held of late. It is the duty of the leading men of the south to take an earnest interest in public affairs and be the medium of communication between the rulers and the people. Again we must bear in mind that we are living in a critical time. We must first of all make sure of the truth of what we wish to represent to Government; the statements made by men, who will not come forward to prove their assertions, will be discredited. The memorial submitted by the Dekhan Sabha of Poona was discarded by the Government of Bombay, for the reason that most of those who signed the memorial could not be traced. Many acts of Government are conducted secretly. It will not do for us to speak of them from mere vague conjecture. It is the duty of those who have now been elected as people's representatives for the Legislative Council to ascertain the real wants and grievances of the people and represent them to Government.

Improvement of Indian industries.

84. A correspondent to the same paper writes as follows:—The chief cause of famine in India is the absence of industries. True that there are some manufactories in Bombay and Calcutta. In Madras there are very few of them. The matter deserves the serious attention of Government, and legislation is necessary. Government should guarantee the payment of all deficits of interest below 3 or 4 per cent. per annum to all companies started for industrial purposes, or pay a grant of Rs. 10 a head in workshops employing more than 100 labourers, or open two large industrial schools for the Southern districts and two for the Northern districts of the Presidency. Government may start a paper manufactory and purchase thence all the paper it requires. It may likewise start manufactories for other industries. At present India's money goes to enrich foreign manufacturers while her sons are starving. The various district boards may be made to co-operate with Government. Industries which will give livelihood must be devised for the poor people of this country.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1897.

Indian people and the Government.

85. The Andhraprakasika, of the 21st August, regrets to observe that the people of India are now much worse off than before, and that their actual starvation is the real cause of the spread of epidemic diseases and the increase in the death-rate. It remarks that the indifference shown by Government to people's complaints tends to create dissatisfaction in their hearts. Referring to Sir Lepel Griffin's sounding of alarm that the position of the British Government in India is endangered by the English and Vernacular journals conducted by natives, the paper assures that no danger will ever arise from the Native press. It believes that the feeling of dissatisfaction is due to Government's want of regard for (confidence in) its subjects and its indifference to attend to their grievances. It is therefore unable to see the propriety of accusing the Native press, when the cause of the dissatisfaction exists in the Government itself. It, however, strongly assures the Government that no fear of danger need be entertained from the people of India.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, July 26th and Aug. 2nd, 1897.

Poona affairs.

86. The Rajayogi, of the 26th July and 2nd August, writes thus (in English):—"On the night of the 27th July the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak was arrested by the Bombay Government on a charge of exciting and attempting to excite disaffection by inflammatory articles published in some of the Poona newspapers. Along with this honourable gentleman some more persons who are the editors of some Vernacular newspapers were also brought under arrest and taken to the lock-up. This news is now the cause of great excitement in Poona. Unfortunately Mr. Tilak was refused to be granted bail, which is a very harsh step adopted by the magistrate in respect of a great Hindu gentleman of Mr. Tilak's stamp who is a professor of a college and a member of the Legislative Council, and as such cannot be expected to run away out of the clutches of the law. There is no primâ facie case yet against him, except that he is arrested under some suspicious grounds. The Bombay High Court has been, we are sorry, very much prejudiced against the so-called offender in refusing to grant him the bail instead of evincing a sound judicial temperament and independence."

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 27th, 1897.

The Vernacular press and the English journals.

87. The Sasilekha, of the 27th August, repeats the statements made in the English journals that certain gentlemen in India have written to Sir M. Bhownagiri expressing the desirability of withdrawing the privileges conceded to the Vernacular press; that they furnished him with a copy of a vernacular journal containing grossly abusive language towards Her Majesty the Queen-Empress; and that the language is so abhorring that it could not be read before Parliament. If this be true, the paper asks for the names of the said gentlemen and of the vernacular journal, and remarks that the editor of such a journal deserves punishment. It concludes that this is nothing but a trick played by the English journals.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 23rd, 1897.

Murder of natives by Europeans.

88. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd August, speaking of a case in the District Magistrate's Court of Lahore, says that the accused Kelly was let off by the magistrate with a fine of Rs. 50, although there was strong evidence against him, and hopes that the matter would draw the attention of the Panjab Government; for violent deaths of natives at the hands of Europeans are, in its opinion, becoming too frequent and the practice should be put a stop to by exemplary punishment.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 16th, 1897.

Attempts at gagging the Native press.

89. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 16th August, says that the Anglo-Indian press is the sole cause of the misunderstanding under which the Government of Bombay is labouring with regard to the loyalty of the Indian people and to the nature of the Native press. The paper, therefore, hopes that Government will see for themselves and not be led away by the misrepresentations of the Anglo-Indian press into taking the very serious step of gagging the Native press.

A threatening letter to Mr. Moore, Collector of Surat.

90. The same paper learns from a Guzerati paper that Mr. Moore, the Collector of Surat, received an anonymous letter in which the writer said that he had come from Poona after murdering Mr. Rand, and if an opportunity offered itself he would also assassinate him (Mr. Moore).

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Aug. 14th, 1897.

Mr. Tilak and the Native press.

91. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 14th August, in an article on the arrest of Mr. Tilak, says that there are two motives for the arrest of Mr. Tilak—one is to strike terror into the minds of the people and the other is to put an end to the criticism of Government measures. The Government is afraid that if the Press is allowed to criticise Government, the people will understand what their rights are and try to obtain them.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Aug. 28th, 1897.

The disaffection of the Muhammadans in India.

92. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 28th August, is at a loss to know why the Turkish press should write against the British Government in India when Turkey owes so much to the British Government, and thinks that the disaffection of the Indian Muhammadans might be due to the violent writings in the Turkish papers on the Government of India. The news of the Calcutta riots and the subsequent punishment of the rioters might have been carried to Constantinople. This might perhaps be the cause of the violent language of the Turkish press. The Sultan can, if he like, put an end to such writings, but his own jealousy might have been roused by the recent Jubilee celebrations in England.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Aug. 18th, 1897.

Indian subjects of the British Government.

93. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 18th August, has a leading article in which, after recounting the benefits which the people of India have derived from the British Government, says that the Indian people cherish nothing but sentiments of loyalty to the Sovereign power, and wonders why Government should entertain any suspicion about their loyalty, or why some editors of newspapers and other private men in Poona should have been arrested. It thinks it the duty of Government to set right any paper that might have gone wrong, but that it is by no means safe to gag the Press altogether. The Press is the only medium by which the Government can gage the minds of the people, and when the Government finds that people have any grievances to complain of, it must encourage the Press to give expression to the popular opinion rather than smother it altogether. If Government should gag the Press it will create a great sensation.

Then speaking of the arrest of the brothers Natu, the paper says that it has caused great alarm among the people, which is not at all calculated to increase their loyalty or to suppress any disaffection. Popular grief always leads to rage and rage to unrest. It is not becoming a politic Government to give rise to such feelings in the people.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Aug. 25th, 1897.

The unrest in Poona.

94. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 25th August, says:—"When Sir W. Wedderburn asked a question in Parliament concerning the Dekhan Sabha memorial on the irregularities in the carrying out of the plague operations, the Secretary of State for India denied all charges and sang the praises of the soldiers who were employed for the purpose. But some of the records which demonstrate the praiseworthy conduct of the soldiers are now coming to light." The paper then quotes a number of cases wherein the soldiers employed behaved in an objectionable manner, of which the following are a few:—

Bhiku Bin Tatya Shimpi, inhabitant of Saniwarpet (Poona).—A search party came to my house on the 19th of April and took away my daughter Manu Bai to the plague hospital and destroyed all the bedding and clothes in my house. The next day the doctor sent her back home as not suffering from plague.

Lakshman Balakrishna Maghe.—On the 23rd April soldiers forcibly took me to the hospital where, at the request of Mr. V. N. Apte, I was examined by the doctor and released as having no plague. When I returned home I found all my clothes and bedding destroyed, my cash-box in disorder and jewels worth Rs. 75 missing.

Sripat Gopal Kulkarni, an old man of 80.—On the 16th April a search party of some ten or twelve soldiers entered my house in Sukrawarpet. Four of them seized me and I was obliged to strip myself stark naked. They then made me stand and sit alternately several times. While I did this the soldiers danced around me.

Sambhugiri Gosair.—On the 23rd April a whitewashing party came to the temple. They took the image of Siva, broke it and threw it into the fire. They also broke the images of Ganapati, Maruti and Nandi in a neighbouring house.

Balakrishna Ramachandra, pujari of the Vitoba temple in Nanapet.—On the 24th April a search party came to the temple, and although there was no plague they broke down the walls and broke a leg of the image Garuda.

The paper then says: "We can enumerate a very large number of such cases, but space does not permit us to do so. It is dangerous for Government to suppress all these grievances. It is therefore necessary that a searching public inquiry should be held."

95. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 25th August, in a leading article makes the following observations:—Many of the Indians think that the British Government is the best and that native rule was oppressive. But this notion arises from a want of deep consideration. The British Government only seems to make us happy, but their ultimate object is their own gain. Under the pretence of improving us they teach us the English language, but this is only with the object of undermining our faith in our Sastras and of turning us away from our religion and not from any real desire to save us. To induce our men to learn English they first held out hopes of employments under Government to those who studied it. When, in course of time, all people began to study, they gave employments only to those who passed examinations. Then those who passed claimed appointments, and consequently the examinations were made more and more difficult in order that few may pass it. The main intention of Government is that all should learn English but not fully, they should not have time to know their own (former) greatness, and that the English language and English manners and customs should prevail everywhere and gradually the Indian languages, manners and customs should disappear. This is the ultimate object of the English Government.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Mysore, Aug. 25th, 1897.

The evil results of the English rule in India.

Our countrymen, too, being led away by these professions begin the education of their children with the English alphabet. The result is our boys have no occasion to know our own customs and manners. The Brahmins give up their proper religious education and their daily ceremonies, and become atheists. They take pleasure in wearing English dress and in eating with non-Brahmins. That they also take largely to drinking is clear from the abkári accounts of Mysore alone. With the exception of these changes, we do not see in what respect the English have improved the Hindus. The Englishmen give no encouragement to local industries, but bring their own home-manufactured articles for sale here. Just as the bamboo-insect enters the bamboo and gradually eats it away in the inside and makes it rotten, so the English having entered India have gradually undermined our Hindu manners and customs, spoiled our education and our ancient wisdom, destroyed our industries and our cultivation, and our reverence for our religion and our love for our country. Thus by making us like themselves they have changed us and loosened our faith in our religion. This is the greatest good that they have done to us and we see no other. As if this were not enough, even our women have begun to follow the men, and attempts are being made to educate them too. Already a great many of the women who have received education have changed their customs and dress. If they, too, come to the same state as the men, then the object of the English would have been accomplished.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1897.

Famine allowance suggested for low-paid servants of Government.

96. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th August, after giving a brief account of the famine prevailing in Malabar, remarks that if the subordinate officers had made themselves bold to acquaint Government from time to time with the actual state of things in the country, there would not have been so much delay in obtaining aid from Government, and suggests the necessity of giving, as a temporary measure, famine allowances to low-paid servants of Government, i.e., to those drawing less than Rs. 10 or 15 per mensem. The order of the Cochin Sirkar directing payment, during the continuance of the famine, of an allowance of 25 per cent. of the salaries, to its employés who are in receipt of less than Rs. 10 per mensem, is also noticed with pleasure in this connection.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 14th, 1897.

Insufficient stock of stamps in the Palghat taluk treasury, etc.

97. A correspondent in the Kerala Patrika, of the 14th August, invites the attention of the authorities to the fact that as the Palghat taluk treasury does not always maintain a sufficient stock of stamped papers, it is often unable to comply with the indents in full and the indents have therefore to be re-written or altered. The same writer in another part of the letter asks the authorities to have the new copyists' room, which is attached to the local sub-court, properly roofed, as in its present state it is leaky and likely to collapse and prove dangerous to persons using it.

State Secretary's reply to Mr. McNeill's question.

98. A leader in the same paper, referring to the reply given by the Secretary of State to a question asked by the Hon'ble Mr. McNeill, M.P., says:—We have no ground to believe that the Secretary of State has any sufficient reasons other than the present provocation to express so bad an opinion of the Indians. From the Secretary's reply it appears that the murder of Mr. Rand is due to his having treated the rich and the poor alike. We are not prepared to say whether or not this is a fact. Even if we were to admit that it is so, how does it follow that it is of political importance? From the murder of Mr. Rand what political advantage can be gained by the people? A transported convict assassinated Lord Mayo, the Governor-General, in the Andaman Islands. At that time no one gave it a political aspect. The people generally have not suffered any hardship from the plague operations carried on by Mr. Rand, the Plague Commissioner. A few might have suffered and some one of them might have done the deed. It may doubtless be asserted that it is most painful that the whole Indian nation should be condemned for the murder of Mr. Rand, who had incurred the ill-will of a few—very few—people. What else can be said than that it is the misfortune of the people that the Government, powerful enough to punish traitors and oppressors of the people, should give expression to such an opinion. If this opinion of the Secretary of State had been given, supported by facts, all impartial men should have concurred in it. How many natives have been killed by Europeans in India? No one has till now attempted to find out this motive. The faculty of deliberation of the Secretary of State who condemned the people generally, basing his arguments on a fact which was the outcome of the disaffection of an individual or a body of individuals and of the members who agreed with him, is really commendable. The opinion of the Secretary of State is that the natives who have been arrested are men of ill-repute. If so, how was it Mr. Tilak, one of them, was appointed a member of the Legislative Council? If the Secretary of State had considered whether he became a man of ill-repute all of a sudden or whether he was already so, such a baseless and thoughtless reply would not have been given in Parliament. According to the principle that the will of the Sovereign is the law, what could we do but accept whatever they say. However it must be specially remembered that it is not commendable on the part of administrators to show a want of confidence in the people who always rely upon the British Government and look to it for their improvement. If the reply given by the Secretary of State is carefully considered, it clearly shows that he has a desire to stop the development of the Indian press. How far that object will be gained remains to be considered.

MUHAMMADAN, Madras, Aug. 19th, 1897.

Bombay sedition.

99. The Muhammadan, of the 19th August, publishes translations of the articles for which Mr. Tilak was arrested under the heading "Disloyalty in the Bombay Presidency."

The Amir, a suspect.

100. A leader in the same paper says the Muhammadan has always tried to think no ill of the Amir, but that this determination must yield to stubborn facts, and refers to a note alleged to have been sent by Government to the Amir concerning recent outbreaks. The Amir, however, will never be more than covertly hostile. * * The Afghan masses, it believes, would not require much stimulating to turn their arms against the English, upon their hatred of whom the Russians know how to play. The recent firman to the tribesmen, though satisfactory, is late in the day. In Afghanistan we have a wolf by the throat.

The plague and the Poona murders.

101. A letter in the same issue of the same paper says the Vernacular press cannot be held responsible for Mr. Rand's death. English have no sympathy with the natives. There is discontent. The English soldiers hastened on the crisis by indulging in what they would call "fun." Those who have lived in Asiatic countries know how intense is the jealousy about women, how an admiring eye is an inexpiable pollution. The Government was right to bring the sedition-mongers to justice, but would be guilty of an impolitic act in suppressing or fettering the Vernacular press.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 12th, 1897.

The Anjuman-i-Hymayat-i-Islam of London and the Press.

102. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 12th August, mentions that a meeting of the Anjuman-i-Hymayat-i-Islam of London was held there on the 9th in which the action of a section of the Native press in making cowardly attacks on the Government of India was condemned, and it was proposed to advise the Government that it should award exemplary punishment to those editors of the Native press who misrepresent its objects, but should not interfere in the freedom of the Press. It was also proposed to request the British Government to prevent a section of the English press from using insulting language towards the Sultan, as such conduct on the part of the English press greatly annoys the Indian Mussalmans.

[Issued 10th September 1897.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 17 of 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th September 1897.

CONTENTS.

I.—Foreign Politics. Page

Frontier wars .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 247
An embassy from the Sultan of Turkey to the Nizam .. ib.
The war on the frontier .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The wars in the frontier .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Amir's attitude towards the British Government .. 248
The frontier disturbances .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Presents to the Sultan of Turkey .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the British Government .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—
Chembyam police case .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Shortt, Police Inspector, Nilgiris .. .. .. 249
The Kumbakónam police .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Police in the Tanjore district .. .. .. .. ib.
Police in Kumbakónam .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Hammick's scheme for police reform .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—
Non-bailable offences .. .. .. .. .. 250
The District and Sessions Judge of Tanjore .. .. ib.
District Munsif's Court, Tiruválúr .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Garth and the Bombay High Court .. .. .. ib.
The independence of the Judges of High Courts in India. ib.
Trial of a European soldier for killing a punkah cooly .. ib.
Mr. C. Kunhi Kannan's memorial to the Secretary of State .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 251
Removal of public offices to Tirúr .. .. .. .. ib.
The Palghat Sub-Judge not to be transferred at present . ib.
Remarks on Mr. Kunhi Kannan's appeal to the Secretary of State .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—Nil.

(d) Education—
The education of Parayas .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Education of Panchamas .. .. .. .. .. 252

(e) Local and Municipal—
Footpaths in Madras .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Municipal hospital, Kurnool .. .. .. .. ib.
The Wallajah road in Madras .. .. .. .. ib.
The Kumbakónam municipality .. .. .. .. ib.
Latrines on the Mount Road, Madras .. .. .. ib.
Road between Vellore and Kátpádi .. .. .. ib.
Insanitary condition of Vellore .. .. .. .. ib.
The municipality of Vániyambádi .. .. .. .. 253
The Pottamarai tank in Kumbakónam .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—Nil.

(g) Forests—Nil.

(h) Railways—
Extension of railways in India is an evil .. .. ib.

(i) Public Works—Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—Nil.

(k) General—
Mr. Tate, Collector of Cuddapah .. .. .. .. ib.
Official corruption .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Moplah riot in Malabar .. .. .. .. ib.
Punishment inflicted upon the editor of Pratoda .. 254
A dispensary for Ammápéttai .. .. .. .. ib.
India Government in a comic situation .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Tate of Cuddapah .. .. .. .. .. ib.
No sub-registry office required at Olavakkót .. .. ib.
The relations between the Nayitiar and the manager of the Kavalapara estate .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration—cont. Page

(k) General—cont.
Forcible release of prisoners from the sub-jail at Manjéri 254
Tahsildars to have magisterial powers .. .. .. 255
The Jehad is obligatory in certain circumstances .. ib.
The promised rewards .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Fortitude in battle .. .. .. .. .. .. 256
The duty of allegiance .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The necessity for a ruler .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The tenets of the Wahabis .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The peroration .. .. .. .. .. .. 257
The Amir's dream .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Amir and the frontier disputes .. .. .. ib.

III.—Legislation.

Elected members of the Legislative Council .. .. .. ib.
A representative of the Parayas wanted in the Legislative Council .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 258
Majority in the case of religious conversions .. .. .. ib.

IV.—Native States.

An auditor-general wanted for Travancore .. .. .. ib.
Extension of the Verapoly reserve .. .. .. .. ib.
Post office at Nagercoil .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Report on the administration of Cochin .. .. .. ib.
Famine in the Cochin State .. .. .. .. .. ib.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Relief works in Kurnool .. .. .. .. .. .. 259
Famine in Talipparamba, etc. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Remarks on the Anglo-Indian press .. .. .. .. ib.
The bad government of Lord Sandhurst in Bombay .. ib.
Punishment passed upon the editor and proprietor of Pratoda. ib.
Displeasure of Government .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Bombay Government and the Vernacular press .. 260
The Vernacular press of the Madras Presidency .. .. ib.
Pandita Rama Bai .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to the famine relief committee .. .. ib.
Silver rupees of 1840 .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Sivaji cult .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 261
Misappropriation of famine relief fund .. .. .. ib.
The Madras famine relief fund committee .. .. .. 262
The trial of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
An association of the editors of Vernacular newspapers .. ib.
Comment upon the trial of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. ib.
The zemindars of the Madras Presidency .. .. .. ib.
Comment upon Tilak's trial .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Offer of military service by native rulers .. .. .. ib.
Disquiet in India .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 263
The Tilak trial .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Causes of the poverty of the Indian ryot .. .. .. ib.
The doings of the Bombay Government .. .. .. ib.
Searches in Poona still continued .. .. .. .. 264
Government of Bombay's attitude towards the trials of the newspaper editors .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The feelings of Government towards the people of India .. ib.
The Government of India and the Vernacular press .. ib.
Disposal of the current coins by the Bank .. .. .. ib.
The relations between the Indians and the Anglo-Indians .. ib.
The arrest of Hydayat Rasul and some people of Poona .. ib.
The Anglo-Indian press and the Sultan of Turkey .. .. 265
The Indian Vernacular press .. .. .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | Aug. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 1st Sept. 1897. |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 28th Aug. and 4th and 11th Sept. 1897. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | |
| 6 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 1st and 8th Sept. 1897. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 29th Aug. and 5th and 12th Sept. 1897. |
| 9 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 500 | 30th ,, ,, 6th ,, 13th ,, ,, |
| 10 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 28th ,, ,, 4th Sept. 1897. |
| 11 | "Dharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 1st and 8th Sept. 1897. |
| 12 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 29th Aug. 1897. |
| 13 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 24th ,, and 1st Sept. 1897. |
| 14 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 28th ,, ,, 4th ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 8th Sept. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 28th and 31st Aug. and 2nd, 4th, 7th, 9th and 11th Sept. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 576 | Aug. 1897. |
| 18 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | Sept. ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Rajayogi" .. .. .. .. | Cocanada .. .. .. | 300 | 9th and 16th Aug. 1897. |
| 20 | "Desopakari" .. .. .. .. | Ellore .. .. .. | 650 | 29th Aug. and 5th Sept. 1897. |
| 21 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 4th and 11th Sept. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 31st Aug. and 3rd, 7th, 10th & 14th Sept. 1897. |
| 23 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st, 4th, 8th, and 11th Sept. 1897. |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 24 | "Sudarshana" .. .. .. | Udipi (South Canara) .. | 400 | Aug. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 370 | 6th and 13th Sept. 1897. |
| 26 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 200 | 4th ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 27th Aug. and 3rd and 10th Sept. 1897. |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 1,800 | 2nd and 9th Sept. 1897. |
| 29 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 552 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 30 | "Mysore Desabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 4th, 8th, and 11th Sept. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st and 11th Sept. 1897. |
| 32 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 925 | 3rd Sept. 1897. |
| 33 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 682 | 25th Aug. and 5th Sept. 1897. |
| 34 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 700 | 30th ,, ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 35 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 754 | 4th Sept. 1897. |
| 36 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 1st ,, ,, |
| 37 | "Manorama" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 575 | 30th Aug. and 6th Sept. 1897. |
| 38 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. .. | 1,000 | 28th ,, ,, 4th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 39 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 30th Aug. and 6th Sept. 1897. |
| 40 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 28th ,, ,, 4th ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th ,, 1897. |
| 42 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras.. | 150 | 29th ,, ,, |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 26th & 30th Aug. and 2nd & 6th Sept. 1897. |
| 44 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 27th June 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Lokopakari, of the 29th August, remarks that the frontier wars are very expensive, add to the burdens of India and can bring no good to the British Government which can gain nothing by the conquest of barren hills or by the subjugation of turbulent and barbarous people. The paper advises Government to be satisfied with the infliction of adequate punishment upon the tribes that attacked the British garrison and to think of annexing their lands to British India.

Frontier wars.

Lokopakari, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1897.

The Swadesamitran, of the 4th September, speaking of the war on the frontiers, remarks that it is costly and useless, but that, as the Government has once commenced the war, it behoves it to use all its endeavour to bring it to a successful result, as failure will be a disgrace to British arm and to the people of India, and may provoke idle Muhammadans in this country and give, besides, a handle to Russia.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1897.

The Swadesamitran, of the 7th September, speaking of the frontier war, advises Government to accept the military aid offered by the native rulers of India, and observes that such acceptance will please them and that, in fact, the interests of the native rulers and of the British Government are one and the same. The paper regards the present war as vain and unprofitable, and remarks that it delights the Muhammadans in this country as much as it does the English soldier, and that where four Muhammadans meet together, war is the subject of their talk, while the Hindu seems to take it coolly as a matter of course.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 7th, 1897.

2. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 8th September, says that it hears that an Arab has been sent as an embassy by the Sultan of Turkey to the Nizam.

An embassy from the Sultan of Turkey to the Nizam.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Sept. 8th, 1897.

3. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 6th September, speaking of the probable causes of the rising of the frontier tribes, does not think that the trouble is due to the unrest aroused in the Indian Mussalmans by the abuse of the Sultan and Muhammadanism in England, because what is spoken on English platforms could not have much influence on the wild tribes of the frontier. It is rather inclined to think the movement due to the account of the victories of the Sultan in Greece. That victory is regarded by them as a proof that Muhammadans are equal to anything, and they are encouraged from behind by the Amir.

The war on the frontier.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 6th, 1897.

Then speaking of the cost of the war, the editor says that the country will find it very hard to provide money for it, especially after the severe strain put upon it by the famine. It continues: "The taxes are heavier than the people can bear. To many it seems only right that the Imperial Government should contribute a portion, if not the whole, of the cost of the war. The fighting concerns not only India but also England. The tribes have been taken in hand in order to form a strong barrier against Russia, and were this power to invade India, England would suffer as well as this land, consequently the former ought to help now to make the frontier secure. Common fairness calls upon England to contribute her share to the cost, and should she refuse the world ought to think very badly of her and would do so. A direct appeal should be made to England by the Government and people of India that a portion at least of the cost should be borne by that country."

4. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th September, speaking of the war on the frontiers, says that more troops are being sent to the scene of war than are apparently required, and attributes this precaution to the suspicion that the Amir, or at least his people whom he is unable to control, may join the rebels. It complains that Government does not enlighten the people on the subject, and is very much concerned that India can ill-afford the expenditure after meeting the cost of famine, and the plague, and the effects of exchange.

The wars in the frontier.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 13th, 1897.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 1st, 1897.

The Amir's attitude towards the British Government.

5. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st September, which is an extract translated from the Madras Standard, says that the Amir confirms his friendship with the British Government as will be seen from a letter he sent to the Government of India.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 4th, 1897.

The frontier disturbances.

6. Referring to the disturbances now prevailing in the North-western frontier of India, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 4th September, says that it can never be supposed that these disturbances take place without the knowledge of the Sultan and the Amir, and that as the Muhammadans occupying the frontier districts are not a race which would remain quiet, it is dangerous for the Government of India to place confidence in them.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Sept. 6th, 1897.

Presents to the Sultan of Turkey.

7. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 6th September, on the authority of the Al-Muvid—an Arabic daily of Egypt—writes that King Menelik of Abyssinia has sent a letter couched in most friendly terms and presents to the Sultan, and it is learnt from European papers that the Emperor of Japan also proposes sending a special embassy under Prince Izugafa with a friendly letter and with presents to the Sultan. The Muslims should be grateful to Greece, inasmuch as her war with Turkey has manifested to the world that the Turkish empire is very powerful and magnanimous.

Remarks on the British Government.

8. The same paper. The Turkish paper, The Al-Maalumat, of Constantinople, published under the supervision of the Qasar-i-Yeldiz, writes that the little motherland (England) is dependent on its colonies, but more especially on India, the inhabitants of which country are mostly Muhammadans, who in religious matters obey their Khalif. England was able to establish influence over her Muslim subjects by means of the former friendship that she had with Turkey. Lord Beaconsfield did his best to strengthen Turkey against the rest of Europe. Then England saw clearly that her rule in India could be firmly established only if the Turks were allowed to remain in possession of the Euphrates valley. On the other hand, Lord Salisbury does not seem to sufficiently safeguard England's interests in India, inasmuch as he is making the Muhammadans his enemies and England's former popularity is gradually disappearing.

The Turkish paper, The Sabah, of Constantinople, writes that from the informations received from India, it is clear that that country is becoming a regular hot-bed of strife and disturbance. British Government appears to pursue a ruinous policy towards the people, from which it is feared serious results will emanate. The people of India patiently bear every burden imposed on them in the hope that the Government will help them during famine and scarcity, but this help is withheld and they are not sufficiently relieved. The construction of canals and railways merely changes the face of the country but does not rescue the famine-stricken people. The Sabah turning to the Poona murders says British Government is blamed therefor yet England is quite indifferent. This apathy on her part will produce serious results.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 28th, 1897.

Chembyam police case.

9. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th August, after giving the details of the case of rape brought against four constables of the police station at Chembyam and two other men, regrets that the Sessions Judge of Chingleput, who tried the case, acquitted the prisoners, although the assessors who sat in the case returned a verdict of guilty. The correspondent observes that it is very seldom that the misdeeds of the police come to light, and even in the few cases in which they are exposed the offenders escape punishment.

Mr. Shortt, Police Inspector, Nilgiris.

10. The Lokopakari, of the 29th August, says that Mr. Shortt is the Chief Police Inspector on the Nilgiris, receives the high salary of Rs. 350 per mensem, and has acquired considerable landed property on the hills very cheaply. At a sale of land for arrears of revenue, Mr. Shortt is said to have appeared in his uniform and purchased land worth Rs. 500 for Rs. 15, and again land worth Rs. 400 for Rs. 20. The paper quotes it as the opinion of the Hindu that the conduct of the said officer is irregular, that his pay is very high and that, in his place, an officer on a lower pay may be appointed.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1897.

The Kumbakónam police.

11. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 6th September, complains that the bazaar street in Kumbakónam is not properly patrolled by the police in the night-time, and hopes that the inspector of the town will see that the constables do not spend their time at dramatic exhibitions, and do not enter into vain talk with women who walk alone in streets in the night-time.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 6th, 1897.

Police in the Tanjore district.

12. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 13th September, commenting upon the degeneracy of the Tanjore district police, mentions instances in which members of the Tanjore district police force have been charged with crimes of one kind or another. The station-house officer of Tiruválúr, one Venugopala Nayudu, was accused of suppressing wilfully a case of robbery and sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment. He has preferred an appeal to the Sessions Court and has been let on bail pending the result of the appeal. Several constables have been accused of theft and offences under the Police Act and have been punished. Again some charges were brought against a police inspector who did duty in Pattukkóttai, and some constables, as also against a head constable and some constables of Avaidaiyárkóvil, charges in which women were concerned; but the complaints were dismissed for want of evidence. Again in the Karunthattangudi and Dharmapuram murder cases the Sessions Judge of Tanjore animadverted strongly on the conduct of the police as having been swayed by corrupt motives. The theft committed in the Tanjore District Court-house has not yet been detected, nor has any clue been found to the death of a mason who was found dead in the temple of Tiruvádi. The paper remarks that, judging from these cases, the police must be said to be not the protectors of person and property but the reverse of what they are intended to be. The paper goes on to observe that Mr. Agar was till lately the District Superintendent of Police, that he is an officer said to be efficient and highly esteemed by Government, and yet it is in his time that the police are accused of having misbehaved and neglected their duty!

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 13th, 1897.

Police in Kumbakónam.

13. A correspondent to the same paper says that the Kumbakónam policemen are to be found nowhere in the night-time, and that there are loud complaints of theft everywhere.

Mr. Hammick's scheme for police reform.

14. The Hindujanasamskarini for August remarks that the changes suggested by Mr. Hammick in his scheme for police reform, now under consideration of the Government, are based on good principles, but observes that the reputation of the department will continue to suffer, unless and until competent and duly qualified men are appointed with decent salaries for the responsible and authority-exercising posts of station-house officers, which correspond with those of the sub-inspectors in the Salt and Abkári department. Noting that the Revenue, Judicial, Public Works and other departments are without any special or departmental hospitals, the journal thinks the maintenance of police hospitals to be ill-advised and unnecessary, and suggests that the Government expenditure may be greatly curtailed by abolishing them and forming police wards, if necessary, in the various municipal and local fund hospitals in the different districts.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Aug. 1897.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 28th, 1897.

Non-bailable offences.

15. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th August, writes as follows:—The difficulty that was experienced in getting Mr. Tilak bailed, pending trial by the High Court, proves the necessity that there is for amending those sections of the Criminal Procedure Code that relate to bail. The Bombay Presidency Magistrate who committed Mr. Tilak to the High Court would not let the accused on bail on the ground that if he did so, it would be thought that, in his opinion, the case against the accused was not strong. So, as the law is interpreted, it is only in cases in which a Judge or a Magistrate has reason to believe that the evidence against an accused person is not strong that he may be released on bail in non-bailable cases. But how can a Judge know before trial how the evidence will tend in a particular case? What may at first sight appear a strong case may turn out to be weak when witnesses are examined. When a case is brought by the police, the presumption is that sufficient evidence will be forthcoming to sustain the prosecution. If Judges act upon that presumption, no person will be bailed during trial in non-bailable cases. As a rule, Judges and Magistrates exercise their discretion in non-bailable cases and the law is not rigorously enforced. Till a person is found guilty and convicted by a competent tribunal, he must be presumed to be innocent; and if sufficient bail is tendered to secure his appearance at the trial, he must be liberated on bail. This is but just. The Criminal Procedure Code requires to be amended accordingly, authorising Judges and Magistrates to set free an accused person on bail sufficient to ensure his attendance in court at the time of the trial.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Aug. 28th, 1897.

The District and Sessions Judge of Tanjore.

16. The Jananukulan, of the 28th August, observes that till some months ago Mr. Hamnett, the District and Sessions Judge of Tanjore, was spoken of very highly; but that latterly there have been murmurs of dissatisfaction with him. The paper ascribes this change of opinion to the judgments delivered by him in certain important cases, namely, 1st, appeal in Mangeshva Rao's case; 2nd, Karunthattangudi murder case; and 3rd, Dharmapuram mutt murder case. Mr. Hamnett's judgment in those cases were, the paper thinks, opposed to the opinion of their merits entertained by some leading district officials and other people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 31st, 1897.

District Munsif's Court, Tiruválúr.

17. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 31st August, complains, on hearsay, that parties experience great difficulty in procuring copies of documents in the District Munsif's Court at Tiruválúr, Tanjore district.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 7th, 1897.

Mr. Garth and the Bombay High Court.

18. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th September, condemns as unjust the order of the Bombay High Court in refusing permission to Barrister Mr. Garth to appear in Mr. Tilak's case. The paper hears that three Judges of the Bombay High Court—Messrs. Ranade, Tyabji and Parson—were against the order of exclusion.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1897.

The independence of the Judges of High Courts in India.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th September, observes that one of the good features of the British administration in India is the independence of the Judges of the High Courts, who generally act as a check upon the executive members of Government. The paper remarks that it will be a boon to the people to make the whole Judiciary of India independent of Government by vesting all judicial appointments in the High Courts and by making the salaries of Judges the same as those of Collectors.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 13th, 1897.

Trial of a European soldier for killing a punkah cooly.

20. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th September, says:—A European soldier was tried at the Bombay Sessions on a charge of having kicked a punkah cooly to death, and the jury declared him not guilty before the close of the trial. In this trial the jury consisted of eight Europeans and one Indian. We hope in the trial of the Honourable Mr. Tilak, which commences to-morrow, will be the same in the reverse order. Mr. Tilak has as much right to be tried by his own countrymen as the European soldier.

Mr. C. Kunhi Kannan's memorial to the Secretary of State.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 30th, 1897.

21. Referring to a question which Sir William Wedderburn intends asking the Secretary of State for India at the opening of the next Sessions of Parliament relative to a memorial submitted by Mr. C. Kunhi Kannan, formerly a Deputy Collector and now Diwan to the Sultan Ali Raja of Cannanore, a leader in the Manorama, of the 30th August, expresses the opinion that if Mr. Kunhi Kannan is debarred by law from proving his innocence in an inquiry by a judicial court, the all-powerful Government should certainly afford him some other means of proving it, and hopes that the British Government will, in this instance, give a just reply which will be satisfactory to the general public.

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st September, referring to the same subject, hopes that at least hereafter Mr. Kunhi Kannan's cries will not be "a voice in the wilderness," and doubts whether, if the Government does not at this time take any action in the matter when all the people think it a great hardship that he should not be allowed an opportunity of proving that the evidence which led to his conviction is a false fabrication, it would not somewhat affect the reputation of the British Government for the administration of justice.

Removal of public offices to Tirúr.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 4th, 1897.

22. In view of the superiority in point of importance of Tirúr over Betatnad, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 4th September, suggests the removal of the local District Munsif's and Sub-Magistrate's Courts to the former place, and also refers to the want of a police station in the neighbourhood of the Tirúr railway station.

The Palghat Sub-Judge not to be transferred at present.

23. Referring to a rumour that the present Sub-Judge of Palghat is shortly to have a transfer to Tinnevelly, a correspondent in the same paper praises this officer for his ability and prompt discharge of duties, and desires that he be retained where he is for at least five years.

Remarks on Mr. Kunhi Kannan's appeal to the Secretary of State.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 6th, 1897.

24. Referring to the reply given by the Secretary of State to the question asked by Sir William Wedderburn relative to Mr. Kunhi Kannan's appeal, a leader in the Manorama, of the 6th September, says:—The matter for regret is that this is a case in which the Madras Government has once refused to interfere. However, we believe that Sir Arthur Havelock, the present Governor, who is a most impartial and eminent man, and who wants to administer justice properly, is not a person who will, if he finds that there is real hardship in this case, still insist on following an erroneous decision which was given once before. If it be that Mr. Kunhi Kannan was convicted on false evidence, it cannot, of course, be the fault of Mr. Dumergue who instituted the preliminary inquiry in this case. Mr. Kunhi Kannan also had not then produced the document to show that the records produced were false. Mr. Kunhi Kannan could not then prove it. We fully hope that the actions of the Madras Government and the Government of India in this case will be such as to confirm the belief of the people that justice could ultimately be obtained from the British Government.

(d) Education.

The education of Parayas.

PARIYAN, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1897.

25. The Pariyan, of the 4th September, writes as follows:—The concessions granted by the Director of Public Instruction for the education of Paraya boys are practically inoperative in the town of Madras. The concessions are (1) that in Municipal and Local Fund schools Paraya boys will be taught on payment of half the prescribed fees; (2) that in schools especially established for the benefit of Parayas, no fees will be levied from Paraya boys. In Madras there are no Municipal schools, and the only Government institution is the Presidency College, which is too high for Paraya boys. All the other schools in the town are conducted by missionaries or other private agencies, supported by municipal grants. In these schools Paraya boys are not admitted on payment of half fees, nor is there any rule enforcing admission at reduced rates. It is true that higher rates of grants are given for Paraya boys. But what is wanted is a rule compelling managers of schools which admit Paraya boys to levy fees from them only at half rates as a necessary condition for the payment of grants.

PARIYAN, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1897.

Education of Panchamas.

26. The Pariyan, of the 11th September, complains that in the rural parts of the country there are no schools for Panchama boys except those started by Christian missionaries, whose chief object is conversion to their religion, and who close their schools where the people do not embrace Christianity. The paper observes that the Hindu land-owners do not like to see their Panchama tillers of land improving themselves by education or otherwise, and that the municipalities and local fund boards are not forward in opening schools for the benefit of the Panchamas. The paper therefore recommends the appointment of a special officer entrusted with the work of visiting villages and of establishing schools for the benefit of the Panchamas.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 28th, 1897.

Footpaths in Madras.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th August, suggests that the footpaths adjoining the principal roads in Madras may be paved with bricks or stone-slabs, instead of pebbles, as at first suggested by him.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1897.

Municipal hospital, Kurnool.

28. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 29th August, complains of the delay in getting medicines in the Municipal hospital at Kurnool, and says that people have to wait for some hours before the compounders make up the prescriptions.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 2nd, 1897.

The Wallajah road in Madras.

29. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd September, reports that the Wallajah road was flooded by the rains of the preceding day, and invites the attention of the Commissioners for the 7th ward to the same, with the request that they will take steps for clearing the said road of the rain-water that submerges it.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 6th, 1897.

The Kumbakónam municipality.

30. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 6th September, complains (1) that public latrines in Kumbakónam are not kept in a cleanly condition, and (2) that the chairman seldom goes out to inspect the town.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 7th, 1897.

Latrines on the Mount Road, Madras.

31. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th September, draws the attention of the Madras municipality to the necessity of constructing latrines on the Mount Road, Madras, and remarks that, in connection with certain cases in which women stood charged with the commission of nuisance on that road, one of the magistrates of the town observed that it was the absence of public latrines that necessitated the prosecution of poor people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 9th, 1897.

Road between Vellore and Kátpádi.

32. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 9th September, complains that the road between the Vellore town from the Pálár bridge to Kátpádi, a distance of $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles, is without lights, and that passengers suffer much in consequence, and hopes that the Local Fund Board will attend to the matter.

Insanitary condition of Vellore.

33. A correspondent to the same paper complains that cholera is raging in the town of Vellore, that the town is very unclean and insanitary, and that the municipality does not attend to its duties.

34. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th September, says that a native of Vaniyambádi complains of the defective administration of that municipality. One of the complaints is said to be that there are three rivers within the municipal limits and that they have no bridges over them. Another complaint is that people are prosecuted and fined for letting the house drains into the streets. These drains, the paper remarks, must empty themselves in the streets or the backyard, and it is less of a real nuisance to let them into the streets while in the backyards they must pollute the wells.

The municipality of Vániyambádi.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1897.

35. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 13th September, complains that the Pottamarai tank in Kumbakónam stinks as foul as ever, notwithstanding the money wasted upon it by the municipality. He also complains that, in addition to many taxes which oppress the people, the house-tax is also being raised, and that the hearing of appeals is a farce.

The Pottamarai tank in Kumbakónam.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 13th, 1897.

(h) Railways.

36. The Lokopakari, of the 29th August, dwelling at some length upon the constitution of the British Parliament and the responsibility of the Secretary of State for India to the House of Commons for the administration of India, regrets to find that very few Members of Parliament take a real interest in Indian affairs, and points out that only 20 members attended the House when the Indian budget came up lately before it for debate. The paper condemns further expenditure upon railways in India as tending to throw fresh burdens upon the Indian tax-payer and to enrich the English capitalist. The money spent upon railways, says the payer, may be profitably spent upon works of irrigation in this country.

Extension of railways in India is an evil.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1897.

(k) General.

37. The Lokopakari, of the 29th August, speaks of Mr. Tate, Collector of Cuddapah, as unsympathetic to the people suffering from famine and opposed to helping them, notwithstanding all the orders of Government and the Board of Revenue to the contrary. The paper says that the Collector does not grant any remission of revenue for failure of crops and prays to Government for his transfer from Cuddapah.

Mr. Tate, Collector of Cuddapah.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1897.

38. The Jananukulan, of the 4th September, says that corruption among Government officials is on the increase, and yet under the law, as it is at present, it is next to impossible to get the corrupt officers punished. The paper observes: "Suppose a Judge receives a bribe of ten thousand rupees in a case and twenty thousand in another; it may be the subject of talk everywhere, and yet none will dare to complain; for, under the law administered by the English Government, the giver of bribe is punished as well as the receiver. Can you imagine a law more favourable to the bribe-taker? These bribe-takers are like day-robbers. You may as well punish a man who makes over his property to a robber to escape his cruelty, as punish a person who is obliged to give a bribe to a corrupt official for fear of worse consequence." The paper suggests to Government the advisability of adopting a summary mode of dismissing officials who are condemned as corrupt by popular opinion, and of putting down the growing evil of official corruption.

Official corruption.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Sept. 4th, 1897.

39. The Lokopakari, of the 5th September, speaking of the troubles caused to the people of Malabar by the frequent riots of the Moplahs, says that it is high time for Government to deal with the rioters as severely as possible and put a stop to these periodic troubles.

The Moplah riot in Malabar.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 5th, 1897.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 6th, 1897.

Punishment inflicted upon the editor of Pratoda.

40. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 6th September, after giving some details of the case against the editor of Pratoda, thinks that the article upon which the charge was framed was of a seditious character, but that the punishment was excessive. The paper warns the Vernacular papers to be careful as to what they publish, their duty being to be impartial judges between Government and the people.

A dispensary for Ammápéttai.

41. A correspondent to the same paper complains that the important station of Ammápéttai, in the Tanjore district, where a fair is held every Sunday, is without a dispensary.

VIKATADUTAN, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1897.

India Government in a comic situation.

42. The Vikatadutan, of the 11th September, writing in a comic vein, represents Government as involved in mistakes and troubles and harassed by plague, famine, and wars, and venting all its spleen and anger upon the Vernacular press, as if editors of newspapers were going to rouse the people to war with drawn swords and cause general destruction. The paper also represents the Muhammadans of India here and there as if disaffected with Government. The paper concludes thus:—Some of the subscribers to the Vikatadutan from different places write about the perverse doings of Muhammadans with fear. Their letters are not published in the paper. "One or two days ago in a letter written by a friend, a Sait in the Nilgiris is said to collect in his house a number of Mussalmans by inviting them to dinner, as Davud, Davud, where they preach against the British Government, and talk as if in a short time Englishmen would be flayed alive as a cock is flayed. The said letter says that Englishmen should be cautious. The writer says that he will not write (i.e., give out) his name."

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 31st, 1897.

Mr. Tate, of Cuddapah.

43. The Sasilekha, of the 31st August, regrets to hear that while the Collectors of Anantapur, Bellary and Kurnool are representing to the Board of Revenue the necessity of granting remissions in cases of failure of crops and of postponing the collection of kists, Mr. Tate, of Cuddapah, has refrained from replying to the Board's letters on the subject. It observes that the Government servants in Cuddapah are loudly complaining of Mr. Tate's indifference in this matter, that bills submitted months ago have not yet been disposed of, and that the authorities had found fault with him for similar conduct on a previous occasion. It remarks that instead of being frequently at variance with him, it would be well for Government to transfer him to another district in some other capacity.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 30th, 1897.

No sub-registry office required at Olavakkót.

44. Referring to a rumour that it is proposed to establish another sub-registry office at Olavakkót or Kotumba in the Palghat taluk, a correspondent in the Manorama, of the 30th August, says that no office should be established at Olavakkót as it would be very near Palghat and Mankara offices, but one at Kotumba or Parai would be convenient to the public and profitable to Government; and invites the attention of the District Registrar and the Government to this suggestion.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 4th, 1897.

The relations between the Nayitiar and the manager of the Kavalapara estate.

45. Referring to the present unfriendly relations between the Nayitiar and the manager of the Kavalapara estate, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 4th September, suggests, in the interests of all concerned, that the manager should be removed without any delay.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 6th, 1897.

Forcible release of prisoners from the sub-jail at Manjéri.

46. Referring to the recent forcible release by some Moplahs of some of the under-trial prisoners from the sub-jail at Manjéri, a leader in the Manorama, of the 6th September, says:—We pray to God that all persons concerned in this outrageous deed may soon be captured and punished in such a way that it might strike terror into the hearts of others. This, however, ought not to be regarded as a real outbreak; because, if it were such, the fact of the rioters having been in possession of arms and large quantities of ammunition would make it a much more serious affair than the previous ones. The authorities should therefore take all possible precautions to prevent its development into an outbreak.

Tahsildars to have magisterial powers.

47. Referring to the present Moplah disturbances in the Ernad and Walavanad taluks, and referring also to the absence of magisterial powers in tahsildars who have to perform various onerous functions on such occasions, a correspondent in the same issue of the paper says:—This (withdrawal of magisterial powers from tahsildars) does not affect the separation of the revenue and judicial functions. If it should be so, the Collector and the divisional officers should be dispossessed of the power of District Magistrate and 1st-class Magistrate, respectively. So long as these two are combined in one individual, it would rather be better to allow the tahsildars to exercise magisterial powers than class them among senior revenue inspectors. Perhaps one thing may be done. In the same way as the District Magistrate who is a 1st-class Magistrate is empowered to call for and transfer cases from the files of other 1st-class Magistrates, the power of control over the sub-magistrates of one taluk may be conferred on the tahsildar of that taluk. No inconvenience has been caused in some districts of the Madras Presidency where magisterial powers are now exercised by some of the tahsildars, notwithstanding that they have to go out in camp. The correspondent in conclusion requests the editor to publish this with a view to bring it to the notice of the District Magistrate and the Government.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Aug. 30th, 1897.

The Jehad is obligatory in certain circumstances.

48. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 30th August, has a translation of extracts * from the Amir's book on Jehad to the following effect:—The first dissertation states that the Jehad is obligatory on the Muslims, as the Quran says: "Fight with all the idolators as they fight with you." But most of the commentators define the Jehad to be a "farz-i-kifaya," that is, a duty which is performed if a few of the community come forward as substitutes for the remainder to execute it. When, however, the Muhammadans are hemmed in on all sides by the infidels, the Jehad then assumes its obligatory character on all the Muhammadans and ceases to be "kifaya." It is enjoined upon the Mujahids (crusaders) that they should fight the infidels so long as sedition does not cease, infidels are not reduced to subjection, and the worship of one true God is not disseminated among them. God further enjoins: "Fight for the cause of God with those who fight with you, but do not transgress, for God does not love transgressors."

* The Muhammadan of the 26th Aug. 1897 also has these extracts.

The promised rewards.

God loves those who fight for the defence and protection of their religion and of the community. The Prophet says: "The Jehad expiates all the sins of Mujahids, but does not release them from obligations due from them to others." A verse of the Quran says:—"Those who believe in the Prophet, and devote their lives and properties to the cause of God (fighting with the infidels), are amply rewarded, and He has prepared gardens for them in the next world." The Prophet says: "Whoever supplies edibles, arms and other necessaries of war to the Mujahids and himself stays at home, is entitled to seven hundredfold reward. If he personally takes part in the Jehad the reward is multiplied by seven lakhs." The Prophet says: "One prayer of those persons who defend the frontiers of Muhammadan territories is equivalent to five hundred prayers of those who stay at home and do not proceed to the frontier to keep watch and ward."

When Muhammadan countries are invaded by infidels, it is the bounden duty of every Muslim, male or female, old or young, master and slave, to proceed to the scene of war without the permission of husband, guardian, or master as the case may be. It is binding on Muslims to wage Jehad under the banner of any king, no matter whether he be just or tyrannical. They should not spare even their dear lives and properties to conduct the holy war,

It is written "Thou shalt in nowise reckon those who have been slain in the cause of God to be dead: nay, they are alive with their Lord, rejoicing for what God of His favour has granted them." The Prophet says: "For a martyr there are six attributes, viz., (1) all his sins are forgiven; (2) he is exempted from punishment after death; (3) he is freed from anxiety on the Judgment Day; (4) he is crowned with the diadem of glory; (5) he is married to seventy black-eyed houris; and (6) intercession for seventy of his relatives is granted." The tradition says: "Whoever leaves home for the purposes of Jehad and dies on the way, or is killed by a fall from his horse, or is bitten by venomous animals, is certainly reckoned to be martyr and enters Paradise. Those who return alive from Jehad deserve the same reward as the martyr, and are in the same position with him."

Fortitude in battle.

The Quran says: "O true believers, when ye meet a party of the infidels stand firm, and remember God frequently, that ye may prosper; and obey God and his Apostle, and be not refractory, lest ye be discouraged and your success depart from you; but persevere with patience, for God is with those who persevere. When ye meet the unbelievers marching in great numbers against you, turn not your backs unto them, for whoso shall turn his back unto them on that day unless he turneth aside, to fight or join another party of the faithful, shall draw on himself of the indignation of God, and his abode shall be Hell and an ill journey shall it be thither."

The duty of allegiance.

For the proper administration of the Islamic world, God has enjoined on all the Muslims to observe His order, viz., "to obey God, His Apostle, and their rulers, whatever religion they may profess." The Prophet says: "Listen to and obey the orders of your ruler, no matter if he be an Ethiopian."

If any one of you experience anything disagreeable from the hands of the ruler, he should bear it patiently; and should not forswear his allegiance."

"Your king is the shadow of God on the earth. Who is wronged, seeks protection of him."

"Whoever insults his king incurs the anger of God, and who honours him is blessed by God."

"A tyrannical ruler is better than constant anarchy."

The necessity for a ruler.

The second dissertation commences by stating that it is obligatory on all Muhammadans to appoint a ruler who should be a guardian of the faith and protector of the faithful. A ruler must possess the following qualifications, viz., he must be a Muslim, a free man, a male, intelligent and adult, and finally able to enforce his orders, etc. The ruler has a threefold duty to perform: to do away with the renegade and the atheist; to exterminate innovators and to kill rebels, traitors and thieves; to acquire diplomatic qualifications; to cultivate intellectual powers and to exercise the qualities of bravery and generosity.

Subjects are bound to observe the following duties towards their ruler:—To pay allegiance to him; to obey his deputy; to submit to him when once chosen, although he does not possess all the qualifications required; to avoid finding fault with his dress and outward appearance, and to observe a respectful tone in speaking to him; to love him, to speak highly of him, and to carry out his orders; to render assistance to him in time of exigency; to be sincere in the advice they give him.

The tenets of the Wahabis.

The third dissertation contains a refutation of the tenets of the Wahabis who assert that it is not allowed to invoke the prophets and the saints; that the dead cannot hear; that the Prophet and the saints are incapacitated from doing any good or harm to man, and so forth.

The following tenets of the Wahabis in relation to apostleship are also traversed, viz., that the Holy Prophet is not superior to all men in every respect; that the Prophet is not the last of the apostles; and that it is not certain whether there is such a thing as intercession on the Judgment Day; and if there is, that it is not known who will be the intercessor.

"Jehad" denies further the following tenets in connection with the exposition of the holy law, viz., that a doctor of Islam is one who can deduce the rules of laws from the Quran and the Hadis, and feels no necessity to follow any of the four Imams; that the common people should not follow any of the aforesaid four Imams and that it will suffice if they follow any Alims (learned people); that the common people need not follow one and the same Alim in all particulars, but they are at liberty to adopt the view of any Alim if they regard it as correct; that most of the rulings of the four Imams are erroneous; that it is inculcated by the Prophet to lift the hand when going to bow the body in prayer and to raise it again when going to stand erect.

The peroration.

The Wahabis are to all appearance pious Muslims. But it can be judged from the tenets they hold that they are hardly better than infidels, and therefore prayers led by them are not allowed. The founder of this sect was Abdul Wahab, who was born in 1200 A.H. in Najad in Arabia. It is said that he was of Jewish origin and bore spite towards Islam, and thus tried his best to sow the seed of discord among Muslims.

The Amir's dream.

On Friday night the 28th Ziqaad (corresponding to 31st May 1897), His Highness stated that just before dawn he dreamt the following dream:—

"A large and magnificent carpet, wrought in flowers, the threads of which were uneven, was lying by the side of nine other carpets which were finely woven and most beautifully wraught."

The Amir interprets the dream to mean that his descendants will rule Afghanistan and its dependencies for ten generations.

The Amir and the frontier disputes.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 30th, 1897.

49. In refutation of the statement that the Amir of Afghanistan has connection with the frontier disputes, which was based on the supposition that the turbulent tribes possess rifles made at Kabul, the Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 30th August, says it is foolish to think so since the relations between the Amir and the Government of India have been most cordial for many years, and in consequence of this the Amir has taken many Englishmen into his service and has conferred on them high posts such as those of engineers, doctors, etc., has established many workshops on the English model, has directed his subjects to be trained under British artisans especially imported for the purpose, and has deputed his son Sirdar Narsullah Khan as his representative to England. In acknowledging the cordial treatment accorded to his son at home, he has more than once declared openly that he had been greatly benefited by the British Government. The Amir is not so foolish as to be at enmity with his powerful benefactors (the British Government) who, he knows, have at different times taken Afghanistan and can again do so if deemed necessary. The editor proceeds to say that the frontier disputes are not of to-day. While Waziristan was under the Amir, these tribes, instigated by bigoted Mullas, had stirred up constant rebellions against the Amir himself. The present disputes are due to the restlessness created around Chitral since its annexation to the British dominion. In conclusion the editor hopes that the Government of India will adopt necessary measures for re-establishing peace and tranquility on the frontier and for making the tribes subservient and will save the Indian exchequer and the valuable lives of the English troops from loss.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Elected members of the Legislative Council.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Sept. 1st, 1897.

50. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st September, speaking of the recent election to the Legislative Council, speaks approvingly of the choices of the people, and exhorts the members chosen to do their duty by the people and Government, and invites the attention of Government to the remark made by Hon'ble Mr. Subba Rao that the Legislative meetings held last year were few, that this was due to the absence of Government on the hills for seven months in the year, and that therefore it was difficult to get through much work. The paper expresses the hope that more meetings of the Council will be held in the future.

PARIYAN, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1897.

A representative of the Parayas wanted in the Legislative Council.

51. The Pariyan, of the 4th September, says that the five members chosen by the district boards and the municipalities of the Presidency for the Madras Legislative Council belong to the Brahman and the other three classes of the Indian community, and do not represent the large class of Parayas who till the land and follow other useful avocations. The paper thinks it desirable that this community should have a representative in the Legislative Council, just as Muhammadans and European planters have representatives to advocate their respective interests in that assembly.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 3rd, 1897.

Majority in the case of religious conversions.

52. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 3rd September, referring to a common notion that minority ceases at 12 in the case of those who embrace another religion, says that this law is very inequitable and that in this case the majority should begin after 21, as at the former age men cannot have any discretion of their own.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Sept. 4th, 1897.

An auditor-general wanted for Travancore.

53. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 4th September, recommends the appointment of a competent auditor for auditing and regulating the accounts of Travancore which are in confusion, even as they have appointed an officer in Cochin.

Extension of the Verapoly reserve.

54. The same paper says that the Travancore Sirkar has issued a notice to the effect that the Verapoly reserve will be extended so as to include the hills and jungles known as Asumbumalaikkadu extending from Pechupparai to Mayandragiri. This, the paper thinks, will be felt as a great hardship by the people who are settled at the foot of the hills and who carry on cultivation on the hill-sides, and still more by those who have invested large sums of money in coffee plantations on the hills. The paper hopes that Government will deal justly with those who will suffer by the extension of the reserve and make good their loss by detaching the plantations from the reserved tracts.

Post office at Nagercoil.

55. The same paper complains of the unsatisfactory work of the post office work at Nagercoil.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Sept. 4th, 1897.

Report on the administration of Cochin.

56. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 4th September, remarking on the administration report of the Cochin State, lately issued by the Diwan, says that the amount spent on the funeral ceremonies of the late Raja was Rs. 61,982 and other charities amounted to Rs. 57,774, thus making a total of nearly a lakh and a half, and asks how such a small State can make any improvement in its administration if such a large portion of its revenues is spent on charities. It further observes that the expenditure on the forest establishment considerably exceeded the revenue derived from that source. No regular accounts are kept of the income and expenditure in that department.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Sept. 1st, 1897.

Famine in the Cochin State.

57. A leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 1st September, referring at great length to the famine prevailing in the Cochin State, says that if any help is intended to be rendered by the Sirkar in this connection, it should no longer be delayed; and makes certain suggestions which are that one conjee meal should be given daily at Sirkar expense in all the important towns of each taluk to the poor who cannot afford to work, and that relief works such as the opening and repair of certain roads and canals should be started for others.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

58. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 29th August, says that the recent decrease in the number of men attending the relief works in that part of the district which adjoins Kurnool is due to the severity of the work exacted from them and not to any improvement in their condition inducing them to return to their villages.

Relief works in Kurnool.

Lokopakari, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1897.

59. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 30th August, referring to the state of famine in Talipparamba and its neighbouring villages, says that unless Government aid is forthcoming the people of those places will soon be ruined. The same correspondent also prays for the immediate repair of certain minor bridges in the neighbouring villages as there have been various accidents of late owing to their unsatisfactory condition.

Famine in Talipparamba, etc.

Manorama, Calicut, Aug. 30th, 1897.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

60. The Vijayathvajam, of the 24th August, complains of the conduct of the Anglo-Indian papers in provoking Government against the people, and regrets that there is no provision in the Penal Code for punishing men who are guilty of causing a breach of good understanding between the rulers and the ruled by unjustly provoking the former against the latter. The paper thinks that the Indian people are loyal and obedient and gratefully appreciate the blessings conferred upon them by the British Government.

Remarks on the Anglo-Indian press.

Vijayathvajam, Dévakóttai, Aug. 24th, 1897.

61. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd September, writes as follows:—Lord Sandhurst seems to be as bad an administrator as Sir Grant Duff was in our Presidency; and the Bombay Presidency is now as full of trouble and confusion, as, when in the time of Sir Grant Duff, loud complaints and bewailings came from the ryots of Chingleput and the people of Salem. Lord Sandhurst seems to be a tool in the hands of his English officials. His Lordship possesses great ability and reading, but appears to have no judgment. His Lordship is unjustly oppressing the Mahrattas and is bent upon, and is devising means for, the destruction of Vernacular press. The editor of Pratoda has been heavily punished, and the editors of Kesari and Vaibhava are undergoing trial. It is not right that Lord Sandhurst should treat the Bombay Presidency in this manner. All Bombay is now in confusion. People are much dissatisfied with Government. It is necessary that the Secretary of State for India should at this time send a competent Governor for the Bombay Presidency in the place of Lord Sandhurst, who is totally unfit to be entrusted with its administration at present. Lord Elgin is not fit to be Viceroy of India at this time either. His Lordship has provoked needless wars in the North-west frontiers and is idling away his time at Simla. This is a bad year for India. Our Presidency suffered much in the time of Sir Grant Duff; but better times followed. So Bombay will soon have its good days. There is no happiness without trouble.

The bad government of Lord Sandhurst in Bombay.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 2nd, 1897.

62. The same paper commenting upon the sentence passed by the Sessions Judge of Sattara upon the editor and the proprietor of the Pratoda, respectively, observes that the severity of the punishment has struck terror into the minds of all people in India, that the English press strongly condemns the sentence as unjust and cruel, that the office of the Secretary of State for India has published a communication in the London papers to the effect that the sentence may be modified on appeal by the Appellate Court and that the same editor was once before convicted for defamation.

Punishment passed upon the editor and proprietor of Pratoda.

63. The Vikata Dutan, of the 4th September, bewails the fate of his countrymen in having incurred the severe displeasure of Government, which is said to burn fiercer than anything else and is more terror-inspiring than famine, plague or earthquake.

Displeasure of Government.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1897.

The writer ascribes the arrest of Tilak, the deportation of Natu brothers, and lastly the punishment of transportation for life inflicted upon the editor of Pratoda in Sattara to the displeasure of Government. He quotes from that paper the passage upon which the charge of sedition is based and asks whether the punishment is just, or in proportion to the offence committed. He warns his fellow-editors against ambitious writing and concludes with the advice—Let us be true to Her Majesty the Queen, and all will be well yet. The anger of Government will cool down!

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 5th, 1897.

The Bombay Government and the Vernacular press.

64. The Lokopakari, of the 5th September, after dwelling at length upon the blessings which the Indian people enjoy under the British Government, and the loyalty and the submissiveness of the people to the rulers, expresses regret at the action of Bombay Government towards the Vernacular press whose editors are now terror-stricken, and observes that, if the Government of Bombay had not taken so serious a notice of what after all is a trifling matter, but had administered a rebuke to the erring papers, the course would have been made creditable to Government and evinced magnanimity.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 7th, 1897.

The Vernacular press of the Madras Presidency.

65. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th September, is glad to learn that the Madras Government thinks well of the vernacular papers of this Presidency, as being generally free from defamatory articles against Government, and being conducted with care. In this opinion the paper fully agrees and observes further that vernacular newspapers are comparatively of recent growth in Madras, that they require the support of the people and of the Government, and if duly encouraged they are likely to become very useful. The paper regrets that the Government of India should, at this stage of their growth, aim a blow at them and perhaps destroy them. The paper exhorts the editors of the vernacular papers to conduct themselves carefully and to publish nothing that is not true, and hopes that the present bad time will soon pass away; that famine, pestilence and war will come to an end; and that likewise the anger of Government will be appeased.

Pandita Rama Bai.

66. The same paper says that Pandita Rama Bai has published a letter affirming her statements regarding the unsatisfactory arrangements in the plague hospitals, and contradicting the opinion expressed by Lord Sandhurst. The paper asks whether His Lordship will send the Pandita to gaol.

A suggestion to the famine relief committee.

67. The same paper remarks that rain has fallen everywhere and famine may be expected soon to pass away from this Presidency, and suggests to the famine relief committee the advisability of helping the poor ryots with money to enable them to purchase cattle, as otherwise they must have recourse to the ruinous money-lender for help.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Sept. 8th, 1897.

Silver rupees of 1840.

68. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th September, writes as follows:—Confusion has been caused in the minds of the native merchants of Madras regarding a question of silver currency. It is said that the bankers of Madras, the Madras municipality and the European trading firms in the town refuse to receive as current coin all rupees which bear the Queen's impress of 1840, and to return them to those who offer them for payment, while some cut them in two halves and then return them. Who is to suffer the loss consequent upon the sudden rejection of silver coins which till now have been accepted as legal tender? Now the price of silver has gone down so much that the silver weight of Rs. 100 is worth only Rs. 60. We do not believe that without the sanction of Government European merchants will refuse to receive old silver rupees as current. If Government has ordered their non-acceptance as legal tender, then Government must make good the loss to those who have in their possession old rupees. If Government does not do so, its credit will be gone. We therefore trust that Government will receive into its treasury all old rupees and issue, instead, new coins.

69. The Desabhimani, of the 8th September, writes in English as follows on the Sivaji cult:—"A new expression has been added to the literature of the world for which the credit belongs to some of our countrymen of the Western Presidency. The Sivaji cult is perhaps the newest article forged in the modern workshop of thought. It is not our present purpose to inquire whether it will prove a useful commodity. We shall content ourselves with merely looking on it and studying its form and other external properties as well as its nomenclature. The Sivaji cult signifies, according to authoritative interpretations, an adherence to the principle that murder is justifiable and laudable under certain conditions which, briefly stated, are—first, that the victim of the deed should be a tyrant and a real object of detestation; secondly, that the murderer should be convinced of the righteousness of the deed; and, thirdly, that the act should be quite disinterested and unprompted by the expectation of any recompense in return. If this be a correct analysis of the essential points of the creed, a few reflections naturally suggest themselves as to the appropriateness of its designation. Was Sivaji consciously the founder of the theory? If we are to trust history, which describes the Mahratta chieftain as a reckless, illiterate freebooter, we should think he was neither capable of evolving such schemes from his mind, nor would he have cared in the least for such fancies. He was an embodiment of action and seldom paused to weigh the moral character of his deeds. He sought dominion and power by any human means possible, and he won them because the times favoured it. He appeared just at the moment when the Moghul power was beginning to decline and he could boast of having hastened its downfall. We imagine he would have laughed at it heartily himself, if his followers had sought to proclaim him as the champion of virtue and honour. His conduct in murdering Afzul Khan he would have regarded as a feat of extraordinary skill which no doubt, in a sense, it was; but at the same time we may believe he would not have hesitated to acknowledge it as an act of consummate treachery. It is clear, then, that there is an incompatibility between the assassination of Afzul Khan and the ethical principles which are supposed to underlie and explain that crime. The attempt to connect them together must be viewed as a token of an absence of the logical sense. Even allowing, for the sake of argument, that Sivaji did act under the impulse of such a doctrine, was he the first or the only one that ever did so and could claim the satanic glory redounding from it? History, both ancient and modern, furnishes repeated examples of men acting from similar motives, one of the most typical among them being the assassination of Cæsar by Brutus and his friends. The institution of Freemasonry—Continental Freemasonry at least—if we may credit some accounts given of it, has been a most powerful and terrible agent directing its energies on the principles now associated with the Sivaji cult. Nihilism is entitled to a similar distinction; in fact, murder appears to be the legitimate vocation of the adherents of this nefarious doctrine. The authors of the violent deaths suffered by President Lincoln and President Carnot surely were truer apostles of the creed in question than Sivaji. The wretch who, the other day, slew Senor Canovas belongs to the same illustrious guild. Where, then, is the fitness of the designation that we are examining? The truth is that the act of Sivaji, in its naked and actual form, was of a deeper dye of treachery and villainy than those other crimes we have referred to, because it was unrelieved by any of those spurious motives of honour and philanthropy by which they were believed by their doer to be dictated. In fact, it approaches in its character the first manslaughter ever perpetrated on earth—that of Cain. It would be as well to speak of the cult of Cain as of the cult of Sivaji."

The Sivaji cult.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Sept. 8th, 1897.

70. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th September, regrets to learn that a portion of the funds collected for the relief of the famine-stricken people is misappropriated by the village karnams. The paper says that misappropriation of famine funds by the distributing agency has been much less this time than it was during the famine of 1877, and that native officers in many places are taking every care that the funds are properly distributed and reach the men whom it is intended to benefit.

Misappropriation of famine relief fund.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 9th, 1897.

The Madras famine relief fund committee.

71. The same paper eulogises the action of the Madras famine relief fund committee and observes that they have worked well and distributed the fund at their disposal with judgment for the relief of the famine-stricken people in this Presidency. The paper approves of their resolution to devote the balance of two lakhs of rupees to payment of advances to artisan classes for starting them in business afresh.

The trial of Mr. Tilak.

72. The same paper, speaking of the trial of Mr. Tilak before the Bombay High Court, finds fault with (1) the refusal of the Court to allow Mr. Garth, of the Calcutta Bar, to appear for the defence, and (2) the composition of the jury with five Europeans out of nine. The paper observes that, before the same Judge of Bombay, when lately a European soldier was tried for murder, the jury was composed of eight Europeans and one native. These circumstances, the paper says, create a feeling of doubt in the minds of ordinary people.

An association of the editors of Vernacular newspapers.

73. A correspondent to the same paper recommends the formation of an association of the editors of Vernacular newspapers, and observes that such an association organised at Madras, and holding periodical meetings, and conducting business regularly, will help to improve the vernacular papers of this Presidency, secure for them better support and recognition from the public, from the Anglo-Indian press, and from Government. The association should, the correspondent thinks, hold an annual gathering to which all friends of the press and leading gentlemen from various places should be invited. The correspondent goes on to observe that as Government is reported to contemplate the curtailment of the liberty of the Vernacular press, it will be the duty of such an association to petition to the Parliament for inquiry by a mixed commission of Europeans and natives whether the Vernacular papers are working mischievously against Government and preaching sedition, or, on the other hand, whether they serve to promote loyalty to Government among the people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1897.

Comment upon the trial of Mr. Tilak.

74. Commenting upon the trial of Mr. Tilak, the Swadesamitran, of the 11th September, remarks that the verses sung during the celebration of Sivaji's annual festival should not be construed as signifying disrespect to the British Government. The paper observes that people generally extol the past as they do when they speak of a good Government as being like the rule of Rama, of whom they really know nothing.

The zemindars of the Madras Presidency.

75. The same paper says that the zemindars of the Madras Presidency have submitted a memorial to the Secretary of State for India praying for a law by which their zemindaris shall be declared indivisible, and thereby preserved from gradual diminution and final extinction. The paper approves of the prayer, but says that the Secretary of State for India is not likely to care for it, or for the fate of the zemindars, but will gladly let them die out. The paper also blames the zemindars for being without union among themselves and not caring for the well-being of their tenants.

Comment upon Tilak's trial.

76. The same paper thinks that the Judge who tries Mr. Tilak should not deliver his judgment unless the verdict of the jury should be unanimous.

Offer of military service by native rulers.

77. The same paper speaks approvingly of the offer of miiitary service in the present frontier war by the Maharajas of Pattiala and Dholpur, and hopes that Government of India will accept the offer, as such acceptance will be highly gratifying to the friendly Rajas and beneficial in bringing together the troops of the Native States and the British Government in a common cause.

78. The Lokopakari, of the 12th September, denies that there is any disquiet among the Indian people, and says that the press in England is misled by the telegrams sent from India by Anglo-Indians who magnify the state of affairs in this country. The paper affirms that the Vernacular papers do not preach sedition and that the people of India are as loyal to the British Government as ever they were. The paper calls on the leaders of the Indian National Congress to come forward now and to represent to Government the real state of things and appease the anger which the rulers bear towards the ruled. The paper laments that in the Diamond Jubilee year of Her Gracious Majesty the Queen-Empress, India alone, of all Her Majesty's dependencies, should be unhappy and that its people should be suspected of disloyalty.

Disquiet in India.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 12th, 1897.

79. The Sasilekha, of the 10th September, remarks that two unsatisfactory points are noticeable in the conduct of Tilak's trial. The first refers to its unequal contest, for the Government has engaged the services of five eminent lawyers, whereas Mr. Garth has been refused permission to defend the accused. The second refers to the constitution of the jury. As even a petty soldier has the right of being tried by his own countrymen as jurors, and as the Anglo-Indians have been freely expressing their belief in Mr. Tilak's guilt, it would have been satisfactory, the paper states, if there had been six Hindus instead of six Europeans on the jury.

The Tilak trial.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 10th, 1897.

80. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 9th September, thinks that the true causes of the poverty of the Indian ryot are not what the educated Indians suppose, viz., the heavy taxation on land. The true causes why the Indian ryot is unable to stand the very first attack of famine or pestilence are: (1) his ignorance, (2) his disregard of all rules of sanitation, (3) his adherence to old customs, and (4) his litigiousness. Then commenting on each of these the editor says: His ignorance makes him disregard all rules of sanitation. He heaps rubbish in and around his house, and keeps cattle within the house and thus lives constantly exposed to attacks of epidemic diseases. His adherence to old customs makes him spend large amounts on ceremonies and marriages and thus puts him within the power of the money-lender. Instead of settling all minor disputes among themselves, the Indian ryots take a peculiar delight in going to law courts, and they even mortgage their land merely for the sake of gaining a suit, regardless of the cost which it might involve.

Causes of the poverty of the Indian ryot.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Sept. 9th, 1897.

81. The Suryodaya, of the 10th September, after giving an account of the prosecution of Mr. Tilak and the editor of the Pratoda in Sattara, says that before the Poona murders no notice was ever taken of the writings in native papers however violent they might be. Now a crusade has been commenced against newspaper editors and other noble men who are arrested and put in prison. Many are of opinion that this course of proceeding is unbecoming a civilised Government like the British. Even if the people were to rebel under the leadership of newspaper editors, the Government can very easily crush such a revolt with its vast army. Why should the Government be afraid of the editors? Even if all the native troops should join the people in rebellion, the Government has resources to put it down in no time. Is it not therefore unjust to wage war against poor editors who are simply working for the good of the public? Newspapers are the interpreters between Government and the people, and all of them are loyal to the British Raj. When they criticise individual officers of Government, these officers set up the Government against the press. But a great deal of good has been done by the press criticising Government measures. Therefore it is but wise and proper that the press should have the same liberty in India as it has in England.

The doings of the Bombay Government.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Sept. 10th, 1897.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 13th, 1897.

Searches in Poona still continued.

82. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th September, hears that searches are still being made by the Poona police for the manuscripts of Mahratti pamphlets on the Sword of Sivaji and the Pagri of Bapu Gokle, and that these searches, which are made without any regard to the persons and places, are causing great dissatisfaction among the people.

Government of Bombay's attitude towards the trials of the newspaper editors.

83. The same paper hears that Pandita Rama Bai is desirous of giving evidence in the Poona Vaibhava case, but fears that since her evidence will be adverse to the Government, the Court may refuse to take her evidence.

The feelings of Government towards the people of India.

84. The same paper says that the Calcutta Indian Association has wired to England the refusal by the High Court of Bombay to allow Mr. Garth to appear for the accused in the Tilak trial, but is of opinion that since the authorities both in England and India are acting in concert in the matter of these prosecutions, there is little chance of his getting any redress in England.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Sept. 11th, 1897.

The Government of India and the Vernacular press.

85. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 11th September, regrets that Government had hitherto abstained from prosecuting seditious papers, although some of the papers have been writing such articles all along, and hopes that the Government will continue the policy it has now begun against the dregs of the Vernacular press of the country. There can be no fear, it thinks, of any evil resulting from such policy, because the respectable portion of the Vernacular press and the whole of the Anglo-Vernacular press are altogether on the side of law and order, and peace and progress, and these things mean to them the loyal support and maintenance of Her Majesty's British Government in India.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Sept. 1st, 1897.

Disposal of the current coins by the Bank.

86. Referring to a circular alleged to have been issued by the Secretary of the Madras Bank to the Agent of the Bank at Cochin enjoining the cutting and returning to owners of all coins that are below a specified weight, a leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 1st September, questions the propriety of such an order, and suggests that either such coins be received from present holders into the Bank or Government treasury and new coins issued instead, or that they be bought up for a fixed price.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 3rd, 1897.

The relations between the Indians and the Anglo-Indians.

87. Referring to the relations subsisting between the Indians on the one side and the Anglo-Indians on the other, a leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 3rd September, remarks:—"Even if there be a few native newspapers which sometimes indulge in undue criticisms regarding the unjust doings or hasty interferences of some of the Government officials, it is quite a mistake to suppose that they do so because they are devoid of love or loyalty to Government. Improving the friendly relations between the Indians and the Anglo-Indians means giving greater strength and firmness to the relation between England and India."

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 30th, 1897.

The arrest of Hydayat Rasul and some people of Poona.

88. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 30th August, has a letter written by a correspondent named Ismail to the Choudwin Saddi (place of publication not known). The correspondent in approving of the action adopted by the authorities in arresting Moulvi Hydayat Rasul and some of the leading people of Poona, says what has been done in this respect is quite consistent with maintaining peace and tranquility in the country. All this has been brought about by the people of India themselves. The congress people are not rebels, yet their cause is not that of India. They have declared that the Government administers the country in an oppressive manner. Such an statement will surely create ill-feeling in the minds of the people of India generally against the Government. If they had not done so, Hydayat Rasul and the Poona people would not have seen such an evil day. At to the freedom of the Native press, the correspondent says though he does not like that it should be restricted, yet if the Government revives the Press Act he will not think it unjust as the press has certainly misused its liberty.

The Anglo-Indian press and the Sultan of Turkey.

89. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 4th September, has an article from the Advocate of India (place of publication unknown) to the following effect:—The Home as well as the Anglo-Indian papers are riding rough-shod over the Ottoman empire. Their papers make virulent attacks not only upon the Turks, but, as a matter of fact, on Muhammadans in general. This has led the Turkish papers to retaliate. The English papers are further trying to sow seeds of ill-feeling between the Amir and the Indian Government. With reference to the above, the Jaridah observes, it is incumbent upon the Government of India to prevent by legal check the Anglo-Indian press from writing such inflammatory articles.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1897.

The Indian Vernacular press.

90. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 6th September, in connection with the arrest of the editors of some Indian Vernacular press in Bombay for publishing seditious articles, observes that the tone of such articles is assuredly tended to excite public feelings. Any man of common sense will admit that the Indians are very fortunate in having a civilised, just and merciful power, such as England, to rule over them. Under the British Government the people are enjoying a happy and peaceful life, justice is dealt out to the poor and the rich alike, and the Indians are enjoying both religious and political liberty. In conclusion, the Qasim hopes that some thoughtless native papers which, on account of mere foolishness, insert articles which are likely to create ill-feelings between the ruler and the ruled, will in future discharge their functions with more care.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Sept. 6th, 1897.

[Issued 25th September 1897.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 18 of 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 30th September 1897.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| The frontier wars | 269 |
| Suggestions for putting an end to the frontier war | ib. |
| The danger in which India stands | ib. |
| The Novoe Vremya and the Amir of Kabul | ib. |
| Opinion on the Amir's book on jehad | ib. |
| A meeting of the Muslim Patriotic League in the Oriental Academy, London | 270 |
| Construction of a railway line from Port Said as far as Bussorah | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Gangs of idlers in Madras | ib. |
| The police and jutka-drivers in Cuddalore | ib. |
| Theft at Dévakóttai | 271 |
| The Tiruvádi murder case | ib. |
| Muthukrishna Naidu's case | ib. |
| The Tanjore district police | ib. |
| Theft in Karúr | ib. |
| Complaint against the Calicut police | ib. |
| The conviction of a police sub-inspector | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Proposals for improving the class of village munsifs | 272 |
| Reflections on the conviction of Mr. Tilak | ib. |
| Remarks on Mr. Tilak's case | ib. |
| Reflections upon two murder cases tried by the Sessions Judge of Tanjore | 273 |
| The unpopularity of the town sub-magistrate of Tanjore, Mr. Ramachendra Aiyar | ib. |
| List of persons qualified to serve as assessors and jurors in the Sessions Court at Tanjore | ib. |
| Appeal in Tilak's case | ib. |
| Sub-Inspector Muthukrishna Naidu's case | 274 |
| The Tilak case | ib. |
| The conviction of Tilak | ib. |
| Remarks on the conviction of Tilak | ib. |
| Village munsifs in Kóttayam taluk, Malabar | ib. |
| The conviction of Mr. Tilak | 275 |
| Principal munsif, Calicut, to be given powers to try small cause suits to the value of Rs. 200 | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Primary schools in the Tellicherry municipality | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| A complaint against the Local Fund union of Tiruválúr | ib. |
| Reduction of pay to Local Fund school teachers | ib. |
| Insanitary condition of Negapatam | ib. |
| The municipality of Madras | ib. |
| The profession tax | 276 |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| A complaint against the tahsildar of Ramallakot | ib. |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Recent accident on Southern Mahratta Railway between Bangalore and Mysore | 276 |
| The accident on the Mysore State Railway | ib. |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Nil. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| The punishment inflicted upon the editor of the Protoda | ib. |
| The grievances of the karnams | 277 |
| The disaster in the Kolar gold mines | ib. |
| Feeling among Muhammadans in general | ib. |
| Zemindars in the Madras Presidency | ib. |
| The zemindari of Vizianagram | 278 |
| Hindus and Muhammadans | ib. |
| A threatening letter to Mr. Percy Grey in connection with Moulavi Hidayat Rasul's case | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Certain old regulations to be amended | 279 |
| The Malabar Marriage Act | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| The Maharaja of Pudukkóttai | ib. |
| The administration of Mysore | ib. |
| Political Agent's interference in Baroda | 280 |
| Deprecating the proposed new survey and settlement in Cochin | ib. |
| Stamp-vendors in Travancore | ib. |
| Famine in Travancore | ib. |
| The present outlook in Travancore | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Famine in the Southern districts of the Madras Presidency | 283 |
| The extent of poverty in India | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| The zemindari of Vizianagram | ib. |
| Anger of the rulers of India | 284 |
| A retrograde policy | ib. |
| A soldier's misconduct | ib. |
| Rejection of old rupees as currency | ib. |
| Remarks on Mr. Tilak's case | ib. |
| Remarks on the present situation in India | ib. |
| Press and public opinion | 285 |
| Remarks on England's rule of India | ib. |
| Mr. Tilak's conviction | ib. |
| War and waste of money | ib. |
| India, an object of God's wrath | ib. |
| Remarks on the arrest of the Mappila prisoners escaped from the Manjéri sub-jail | 286 |
| Commenting upon the use of water-marked paper | ib. |
| Remarks on the conviction of Mr. Tilak | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | Sept. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 15th Sept. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 3 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 18th Sept. 1897. |
| 4 | "Vikatadutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | 18th and 25th Sept. 1897. |
| 5 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 16th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 6 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 7 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 19th ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 15th Sept. 1897. |
| 9 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 200 | 23rd Aug. and 13th and 20th Sept. 1897. |
| 10 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 20th and 27th Sept. 1897. |
| 11 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 11th, 18th and 25th Sept. 1897. |
| 12 | "Dharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 15th and 22nd Sept. 1897. |
| 13 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 12th Sept. 1897. |
| 14 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 11th and 18th Sept. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 15 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 14th, 16th, 18th, 21st, 23rd, 25th and 28th Sept. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 16 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 100 | Aug. 1897. |
| 17 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakur (Nellore district.) | 300 | 1st Sept. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 18 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 15th Aug. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Desopakari" .. .. .. | Ellore (Gódávari) .. .. | 650 | 12th and 19th Sept. 1897. |
| 20 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 15th, 18th, 22nd, 25th and 29th Sept. 1897. |
| 22 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 17th, 21st, 24th and 28th Sept. 1897. |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 23 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 78 | 18th and 25th Sept. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 20th and 27th Sept. 1897. |
| 25 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 2,600 | 16th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 625 | 15th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 28 | "Mysore Desabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 15th, 18th, 22nd, 25th and 29th Sept. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 29 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 825 | 13th and 24th Sept. 1897. |
| 30 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 700 | 20th Sept. 1897. |
| 31 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 280 | 21st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 32 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. .. | 1,000 | 18th and 25th Sept. 1897. |
| 33 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 34 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 775 | 15th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 752 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 36 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 13th, 20th and 27th Sept. 1897. |
| 37 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 14th, 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 38 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 13th and 15th Sept. 1897. |
| 39 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras .. | 150 | 14th, 19th and 26th Sept. 1897. |
| 40 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 13th, 14th, 16th, 20th, 23rd and 27th Sept. 1897. |
| 41 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 6th July 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd September, commenting upon the frontier war and the vast military arrangements for conducting it, remarks that several old military officers condemn the war as unnecessary. The paper thinks that Lord Elgin is entirely guided by the Military department and himself exercises no control over it, that it is a misfortune to this country that its affairs should be at this time in the hands of a Viceroy like Lord Elgin, and hopes that Her Majesty the Queen may be pleased to appoint a competent Viceroy.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 23rd, 1897.

The frontier wars.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th September, thinks it very desirable that a change should be brought about in the frontier policy and the tribesmen should be taught to place confidence in the British Government. It further recommends that the whole North-west frontier should be placed under one official who thoroughly understands the nature of the work entrusted to him and is capable of performing it. Officers like Sir Robert Sandeman and Colonel Warburton were able to keep the wild tribes in order and they were contented to live under the rule of the British. One such man should be placed in charge of the whole frontier and the lines on which he should work should be laid down and nothing should be left to his own whim or fancy.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 20th, 1897.

Suggestions for putting an end to the frontier war.

3. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th September, quotes the following from Mr. Forbes Mitchell's correspondence to the Statesman :—"The Government of India are standing on a mine which only requires the match to be applied to shake the British Empire to its foundations. If Russia ever intends to invade India, now is her time. With silver at twenty pence per ounce, let her coin and scatter a few lakhs—she need not go up to crores—in Central Asia, Afghanistan and North-west frontier with a few thousands amongst the Moplahs of Malabar and the hands of Government will be full enough to divert them from the study of their exchange compensation for the cold season."

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 27th, 1897.

The danger in which India stands.

4. The Alhami, of the 12th September, mentions that the Novoe Vremya complains that England has often helped the enemies of Russia with money and war materials, but Russia did not retaliate though nothing prevented her from doing so. If Russia at this critical moment assures the Amir of her friendship, the Amir will withdraw her forces stationed on the northern frontier of Afghanistan and set them against the British Government. The Novoe Vremya thus secretly persuades the Amir to declare hostilities against the British Government and assures him that he will be crowned with success as, it says, England in her first war with Afghanistan has shown the white feather, and the Hindus and Muhammadans of India are, at present, quite discontented. With reference to the above sentiments, the Alhami remarks that nothing can be more hostile.

Alhami, Madras, Sept. 12th, 1897.

The Novoe Vremya and the Amir of Kabul.

5. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 13th September, says that it is understood that Reuter's representative had an interview with Maulavi Rafi-ud-din Ahmad Sahib, Hindustani Munshi to the Empress, when the Maulavi spoke to the following effect as regards the Amir's book on jehad :—It is erroneous to think that the Amir has written the book with the object of making a jehad against England, or to stir up Muhammadans. The book only treats of the conditions and the circumstances under which jehad is justifiable and of the religious doctrines to be observed by holy warriors. No mention is made in it either of England, or of any non-Islamic or non-Christian kingdoms. The chief ulamas of Mecca have already come to the conclusion that jehad with England is unjustifiable.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Sept. 13th, 1897.

Opinion on the Amir's book on jehad.

The Muhammadans of India have no doubt gloated over the Turkish victories in the recent Greeco-Turkish war, still they will not be influenced by any instigations to oppose England. They know fully well which Government is most beneficial to their interests. It will be an indelible stigma on the British administration, if it believes that Muhammadans seek foreign aid in political matters. Moreover, the Indian Muslims have nothing to do with the frontier risings, which are the direct and natural outcome of the gradual spread among the wild and ignorant frontier tribes of passionate unrest, aroused by the British occupation of Chitral.

The Shams in eulogising the above Maulavi's views, observes that the Muhammadans in truth have no share in the frontier risings. The frontier tribes are a wild people and it is natural with them to organise such movements.

A meeting of the Muslim Patriotic League in the Oriental Academy, London.

6. The same paper says that at a meeting of the Muslim Patriotic League recently held in the Oriental Academy, London, a resolution was passed expressing regret at the frontier risings, and requesting the leading members of the Muhammadan community to give voice to their disapproval and to exhort them to behave in a loyal and friendly manner towards the British Government, having in view the peace and tranquility, etc., enjoyed by them under the auspicious shadow of the Gracious Queen. The Shams in approving of the resolution says that if any mishap occurred to British rule in India, the whole country would be engulfed in a catastrophe, and would become the hot-bed of internal intrigues. The peace and tranquility of the country will be past, and the Hindus and Muhammadans would fly at each other's throats. The Mahrattas would rise on one side and the Rajputs and Sikhs on the other. This would probably result in the fall of India in the hands of another European power, such as France or Russia. In that case the people of India could not expect to enjoy freedom of action in all matters as they now do under the British rule.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Sept. 16th, 1897.

Construction of a railway line from Port Said as far as Bussorah.

7. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar of the 16th September. The Al-Muvaid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) in opposing the application of a British company regarding the grant of a contract for the construction of a railway line from Port Said as far as Bussorah, writes that the English have on several occasions caused disturbances to be created in Hedjaz and Yemen, etc., against the Turkish Government, and have in consequence lost much of their credit and hence they should not be allowed to carry out their evil intentions. The Qasim observes that the above opinion is based on the belief that friendly relations will never be re-established between the Turkish and British Governments. This is erroneous since these Governments are located in such places and their mutual interests are such as will naturally compel them to remain firmly tied together with the bonds of friendship, however they may try to sever them.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 14th, 1897.

Gangs of idlers in Madras.

8. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th September, complains that gangs of idlers infest several roads in Madras and commit theft with impunity, the police making no effort to check their misdeeds. He mentions in particular the road from Mulaikkottalam to Elephant Gate, the Buckingham Canal, the Kotwal Bazaar, the Flower Bazaar, the Evening Bazaar, Robinson Park and Popham's Broadway.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Sept. 15th, 1897.

The police and jutka-drivers in Cuddalore.

9. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 15th September, reports that jutka-drivers who keep their carriages near Tiagumudali Choultry in Cuddalore are very troublesome, exact exorbitant hire, sometimes refuse to take those who go in their jutkas to the appointed places, and in their idle hours gamble and quarrel, and that the police constable who is stationed there levies his blackmail from the jutka-drivers and lets them unmolested in the mischief and annoyance they cause to the people that pass by. The correspondent is grieved to hear that a drunken jutka-driver gave with his whip a beating to a boy that was driving by, and yet it was given out that a number of lads had assaulted the jutka-driver and the beaten boy himself was taken to the police station for committing breach of peace.

Theft at Dévakóttai.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th September, reports that thefts are of frequent occurrence in Dévakóttai.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 18th, 1897.

The Tiruvádi murder case.

11. The Dharmasamvardhani, of the 22nd September, complains of the delay which the police inspector deputed on special duty for the detection of the alleged murder in the temple of Tiruvádi is making in conducting his investigation in the case. The paper seems to think that the police officer is not doing his duty with earnestness and is apparently not hopeful of the success of his endeavours to detect the culprits.

DHARMASAMVARDHANI, Tiruvádi, Sept. 22nd, 1897.

Muthukrishna Naidu's case.

12. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd September, commenting upon the Sub-Inspector Muthukrishna Naidu's conviction before the Presidency Magistrate, Egmore, observes that his just punishment will be a warning to wicked police officers like him.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 23rd, 1897.

The Tanjore district police.

13. The Jananukulan, of the 25th September, observes that the annual administration report of the Police department gives credit to the Tanjore police for efficient detection, and asks why the police have failed to detect the culprits in the following cases :—

(1) Tanjore palace robbery in which the property lost was worth Rs. 30,000.

(2) Robbery in the Tanjore district court-house of money and stamps worth Rs. 1,000.

(3) Robbery in the Tanjore district jail of articles worth Rs. 253.

(4) Robbery of temple jewels worth Rs. 2,000 in the temple at Tiruválúr.

The paper remarks that it is a mistake to apply the term efficient to a police force that has failed to detect robberies committed in such strongly-guarded places as those noted above.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Theft in Karúr.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 25th September, reports a case of house-breaking and theft in Nicholson Petta street in the town of Karúr and several cases of house-breaking in the same locality.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Complaint against the Calicut police.

15. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th September, says that recently some thieves broke open into and entered the house of the drawing master of the Calicut Training school at night and by threatening the inmates to death carried away all the property therein. The police inquired into the case, but they are said to have dropped the matter, saying that there was no clue for detection. Several rumours are afloat about this theft. If Mr. Hammick himself holds an inquiry into the case, there is likelihood of several matters being unearthed.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 15th, 1897.

The conviction of a police sub-inspector.

16. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th September, in commenting upon the case in which Muthukrishna Naidu, Sub-Inspector of the Madras City Police, and two others were convicted by the Chief Presidency Magistrate of perjury and fabrication of false evidence by a public servant and sentenced to different terms of imprisonment, says that the punishments awarded to them have given universal satisfaction in Madras. The accused in almost all cases invariably used to contend that the evidence produced by the police had been concocted, and as it is difficult for them to prove it, the police are not only on the safe side but are also triumphant over their success. To such police the conviction of Muthukrishna will be a good lesson.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 24th, 1897.

(b) Courts.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Sept. 11th, 1897.

Proposals for improving the class of village munsifs.

17. The Jananukulan, of the 11th September, says that the men who now hold the offices of village maniyam and munsif jointly are mostly worthless, low in character and inefficient, and that respectable men do not take up the appointments because of the rough treatment which they receive at the hands of taluk officials. The paper proposes the separation of the two offices, an educational qualification for the men to be appointed as munsifs, a monthly pay to them, and an office and a small establishment of a peon and a clerk. To meet the charges, the paper recommends the levy of batta for the summons issued by the munsifs, together with court-fees, etc. The paper believes that the cost proposed will be trifling when compared with what people have to pay for obtaining justice in the higher courts which they are now obliged to resort to because of the extremely unsatisfactory work turned out by the present class of village munsifs.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Sept. 16th, 1897.

Reflections on the conviction of Mr. Tilak.

18. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th September, writes as follows:—Just as a lion, when frightened by a sudden noise in the forest, fancies it to have been made by an innocent deer, and springs upon it, so the Bombay Government has sprung upon the editors of Vernacular newspapers. The conviction of Mr. Tilak may have satisfied the Bombay Government, but it has failed to convince the people of the justice of the sentence. If Bombay Government wished to strike terror into the minds of the people and frighten them, they have gained their object. The proper thing now to do would be to delete the words contained in the Queen's Proclamation of '58, viz., "In your contentment lies our welfare"! and substitute the words "In your fear lies our welfare"! Government may frighten the people, but cannot secure their good-will. Our physical body is subject to the command of our Government, but not our minds. People, however, are yet in hopes that even in times of trouble Government will not swerve from the course of justice, and Government must show this by deed.

A correspondent to the same paper bewails the sentence passed upon Mr. Tilak and says that the people will not accept it as just. He affirms that one like Mr. Tilak belonging to the orthodox party in India cannot possibly be guilty of sedition, and regards the present time as one of misfortune to the Indians and of rejoicing to their enemies. He observes that the people have nothing else to do but submit to the will of God in resignation and that better days will come.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 16th, 1897.

Remarks on Mr. Tilak's case.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th September, speaking of Mr. Tilak's case, goes into the personal history of Mr. Tilak and says that he is a genuine patriot, took an active part in all questions affecting the good of the country, is disliked by Englishmen in Bombay for his outspoken straightforwardness. The paper is sorry that the trial should have been conducted before the Hon'ble Mr. Strachey who belongs to a family of life-long enmity to India and who has been a Judge of the Bombay High Court only for a year. The paper likewise condemns the composition of the jury with a preponderance of Englishmen and believes that the adverse verdict must have been due to that circumstance. The paper disapproves of the verdict as unjust and exhorts Indians not to be discouraged and disheartened, but to strive on in their struggle for liberty.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 18th, 1897.

The Swadesamitran, of the 18th September, writing on the same subject, says:—It will not do for us to indulge in excess of grief over the end of Mr. Tilak's case. Excess of grief is unmanly. We must do all we can to take the case up to higher tribunals. There is an appeal open to the Privy Council.

If that Court should uphold the judgment of the Bombay High Court, then there is an end of all press liberty in India. The interpretation of the law of sedition by the Hon'ble Justice Strachey cannot be right. Absence of affection does not necessarily imply hatred. If the Judge's view is correct, it is wrong to criticise any act of Government. The congress meetings must then be seditious. People must echo right, right to everything that Government does. The greatest blessings conferred upon this country by the British rule are freedom of the press, and liberty to hold public meetings and express publicly the views of the people on the acts of Government. Many Englishmen are trying to deprive this country of these blessings of liberty. It must be our endeavour to oppose their movement. The charge delivered to the jury by the Bombay High Court Judge contains several misdirections. We must open the eyes of Englishmen in England and the British Parliament to the injustice done by Government in India. Our grievances will then be redressed. The people of England will not tolerate injustice.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Sept. 18th, 1897.

Reflections upon two murder cases tried by the Sessions Judge of Tanjore.

20. The Jananukulan, of the 18th September, writes as follows:—The police reported that a murder had been committed in Karunthattangudi near Tanjore, that it had been hushed up and that they (the police) had traced, after great labour, the perpetrators of the deed and charged them with the offence of murder. The Sessions Judge who tried the case recorded his finding thus: "My findings are that no murder has been proved, that there is no evidence to which the slightest credence can be attached even raising a suspicion that murder was committed, and that there is certainly no evidence on which the accused can be convicted, even if a murder was committed. The assessors both found the accused guilty of murder—a most perverse finding with which I should have disagreed, if it had come from jury and made a reference to the High Court under section 307, Criminal Procedure Code." Again the police reported that a murder had been committed in Dharmapuram near Máyavaram, and that they had detected the culprits and prosecuted seven men for the offence. The Sessions Judge found that the prosecution had failed to prove the commission of murder and acquitted the accused, concurring with the verdict of the assessors. If in both these cases the finding of the Judge be correct, the police have been greatly to blame for causing a world of annoyance, shame, and trouble to innocent men; and it is the duty of the head of the department to investigate into the conduct of the police. The Judge distinctly affirms that there was no evidence against the accused in both these cases. If so, why did the police prosecute, the magistrate commit, and the assessors find guilty in one case? We hope that Government will be pleased to send for the records of the case, find out who is to blame, and redress the wrong. Such a course will redound to the greatness of Sir A. Havelock, who is famed for his just administration.

The unpopularity of the town sub-magistrate of Tanjore, Mr. Ramachendra Aiyar.

21. The same paper is sorry to hear that the town magistrate of Tanjore is becoming more and more unpopular, while his predecessor Mr. Muhammad Abdul Hai Sahib was liked by all.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Sept. 25th, 1897.

List of persons qualified to serve as assessors and jurors in the Sessions Court at Tanjore.

22. The Jananukulan, of the 25th September, complains that the list published of persons qualified to serve as assessors and jurors in the Tanjore Sessions Court bears evidence of careless preparation, that several of them possess no educational qualification such as will fit them for the responsible duty of assessors and jurors, and that the inclusion of village officers in the list is inadvisable. The paper notices instances of an insolvent and of a person who has been deaf for the last twenty years included in the list.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Appeal in Tilak's case.

23. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th September, says that although the Bombay High Court has refused permission for appeal to the Privy Council in Tilak's case, an appeal will be made. The paper remarks that it is not Tilak alone who is concerned in the matter, but it is the interest of the native community to have the appeal taken to the Privy Council and get a final verdict.

VIKATADUTAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Sub-Inspector Muthukrishna Naidu's case.

24. The Vikatadutan, of the 25th September, speaking of the general satisfaction which the conviction of the Sub-Inspector Muthukrishna Naidu has given, thinks that a heavy fine, it may be with a reduced term of imprisonment, would serve as a better warning to other police officers than mere imprisonment.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 20th, 1897.

The Tilak case.

25. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th September, thinks that the sentence passed upon Tilak is very severe considering his position in society, and that the result of the trial has caused great pain throughout India. Even if the writings were seditious it says the prosecution was unnecessary, and a hint from the Governor would have sufficed to make him change his course and prevent him from touching upon dangerous matters. But now he will be looked upon as a martyr and the Government will be considered as having persecuted him. However the editor is of opinion that there is no reason to ascribe sinister motives to the Government, as some of the papers have done. The worst result of this is that a great deal of discontent will be caused and that it will probably cause a wider breach between the rulers and the ruled than is the case at present.

The conviction of Tilak.

26. The same paper in a leading article says:—That the Government and the Anglo-Indians, from the Secretary of State down to the Government of India and of Bombay, were determined to have Tilak convicted by hook or by crook is evident from the facts that the trial was held in the High Court so as to allow no chance of appeal to the accused in case of conviction and that the jury was composed of six Europeans, and from the refusal of the Judge to examine experts as to the meaning of the articles in Mahrathi. The whole arbitrary procedure in the case of Tilak will no doubt have the effect of putting an end to all Vernacular papers. Ever since the National Congress began to hold its annual gatherings a jealousy has crept into the hearts of all Anglo-Indians, with a few exceptions, and they are doing all in their power to put obstacles in the way of national progress in India.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Sept. 22nd, 1897.

Remarks on the conviction of Tilak.

27. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 22nd September, after pointing out various defects in the trial of Tilak—such as the composition of the jury, the want of a knowledge of Mahrathi in the Judge as well as in the jury, the one-sidedness of the Judge's summing up, etc.—accuses the Judge of heartlessness and bad taste in going immediately after pronouncing such a serious sentence into the company of Europeanl adies and gentlemen that had assembled in the court and entering into gay conversation with them. The paper then goes on to describe the pain and sorrow that the sentence passed upon a man of Tilak's position and influence has caused in the hearts of the people, and remarks that the trial and sentence have caused greater discontent in the people than all the writings of Tilak—even supposing they were seditious—could have created, and that the object of Government would have been attained if Tilak had been asked to apologise publicly for his writings, and the people would have highly appreciated the generosity and kindness of the Government.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Sept. 24th, 1897.

The Suryodaya, of the 24th September, writing on the same subject, says:—It is no disgrace to an editor of a newspaper to be sent to jail, because they are martyrs to the good of the people. Their punishment is the people's, and it is the people that will be dissatisfied. The editor therefore hopes that Tilak's appeal would be granted.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 15th, 1897.

Village munsifs in Kóttayam taluk, Malabar.

28. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th September, invites the attention of the authorities to the unjust practice of some of the village munsifs of Kóttayam taluk levying, in civil suits instituted in their courts, fees in the shape of summons-batta, cost of plaint, fee for registration of vakalaths, etc. It appears that unless these charges are paid by the parties, these functionaries do not, as a rule, accept the plaints.

29. Referring to the conviction of the Hon'ble Mr. Tilak, a leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th September, says that the deep sorrow felt by the Calicut public at the news of Mr. Tilak's conviction cannot be adequately expressed. The conviction of Mr. Tilak may be a matter of great gratification to the irresponsible Anglo-Indian editors and Anglo-Indians who are jealous of the prosperity of the Indian people, but it will not be viewed with satisfaction by the natives. The article is of opinion that the Judge and the jury collusively convicted Mr. Tilak.

The conviction of Mr. Tilak.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 18th, 1897.

30. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 20th September, says that as Mr. K. C. Achyuta Menon, acting principal munsif, Calicut, has not been given powers to try small cause suits to the value of Rs. 200, a large number of suits has fallen in arrears, parties are put to great trouble and the file of the sub-court has, moreover, become very heavy. The High Court said that as Mr. Achyuta Menon has not much experience as a munsif, he cannot be given that power. If the High Court thinks so, then an experienced hand who could be given that power ought soon to be appointed to the post under reference. The article attributes these evils to the High Court having ceased to consult the District Judges concerned when making appointments.

Principal munsif, Calicut, to be given powers to try small cause suits to the value of Rs. 200.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 20th, 1897.

(d) Education.

31. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th September, invites the attention of the chairman of the Tellicherry municipality to the desirability of paying the salaries of teachers of Municipal Primary schools regularly. It appears that owing to the want of funds the municipality has not paid the salaries of these teachers for five months.

Primary schools in the Tellicherry municipality.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 15th, 1897.

(e) Local and Municipal.

32. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th September, complains that the Local Fund union of Tiruválúr, Tanjore district, does not attend to its duties. The town is said to be in a very insanitary condition.

A complaint against the Local Fund union of Tiruválúr.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 14th, 1897.

33. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 15th September, is sorry to hear that the pay of the low-paid Local Fund school teachers is to be reduced, and says that it must be particularly hard when prices of the articles of consumption are so high as they are at present.

Reduction of pay to Local Fund school teachers.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Sept. 15th, 1897.

34. The Nagai Nilalochani, of the 20th September, complains that cholera prevails in Negapatam, that the sanitary officers of the town do not attend to its cleanliness, that sewage collections are not daily removed but are allowed to stagnate, that night-soil is heaped up in corners of streets without removal, and that water in which rice is boiled is thrown into streets and causes stinking.

Insanitary condition of Negapatam.

NAGAI NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Sept. 20th, 1897.

35. The Sasilekha, of the 28th September, remarks that the effect of adopting Mr. P. Subrahmanya Iyer's proposal at the municipal meeting about labour law will be to deprive the scavengers in Madras of their present freedom, which alone affords them any inducement to undertake their disagreeable work. The scavengers in Madras, who generally hail from the district of Nellore, will have to be content with their salaries of Rs. 5 or 6 a-month, giving up all the perquisites they now receive from their private employers. To require these scavengers to produce medical certificates when applying for leave will be felt to be very oppressive. On the whole the result of the proposed system will be to curtail their income and subject them to various restrictions. They might therefore be driven to throw up their work and take to agricultural pursuits in their native villages. What can the municipality do then? Next as regards the house-owners in the city, the paper says that when the scavengers cease to be private servants, and lose their perquisites, they will become insubordinate to the house-owners and cause much inconvenience to them, who will have to run after and report to municipal overseers every such little inconvenience.

The municipality of Madras.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 28th, 1897.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Sept. 13th, 1897.

The profession tax.

36. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 13th September, writes that the Advocate-General of Bengal is of opinion that profession tax is assessable on the Governor of Madras, as he is the ruler of the whole of the Madras Presidency, wherever His Excellency may remain and perform his duties as such, but that His Excellency contends that he, under section 111 of the Madras Municipal Act, is not liable. The Shams thinks that the above section is only applicable to those appointments and offices which are purely local and not to the office of the Governor. It suggests the addition of a proviso to the effect that the office of the Governor does not fall under that section. It also inquires why the municipality should persist in levying the tax on the Governor when it has not done so as regards his predecessors.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1897.

A complaint against the tahsildar of Ramallakot.

37. The Lokopakari, of the 19th September, reports that the Board of Revenue have found the tahsildar of Ramallakot in Kurnool guilty of rejecting, without cause, petitions presented by the ryots of his taluk and of failing to recommend remissions of revenue in cases of failure of dry crops. It is said that the Collector has been directed to inquire into and report upon the conduct of the tahsildar.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Recent accident on Southern Mahratta Railway between Bangalore and Mysore.

38. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th September, after giving particulars of the accident on the Southern Mahratta Railway between Bangalore and Mysore on the night of the 22nd idem, and of the heavy loss of life caused by it, prays that Government will institute proper inquiry into the cause of the disaster and order payment of liberal compensation to the relatives of those who perished.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 27th, 1897.

The accident on the Mysore State Railway.

39. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th September, blames the railway authorities for having failed to take precautions to be apprised of danger, especially as it was well known that rain was causing damage to the railway line. On a former occasion when an accident happened on the Eliyur railway line ten years were struck off from the total stipulated length of time prescribed in the contract with the Railway Company. But the present accident is a more serious one and would justify the Government at once taking possession of the line and thus relieving the people of the fear of accidents from bad management.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 14th, 1897.

The punishment inflicted upon the editor of the Protoda.

40. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th September, is grieved to learn that the editor of the Protoda, who has been sentenced to transportation for life—a sentence which is expected by the India Office itself to be modified on appeal—is treated by the jail authorities as a common malefactor and subjected to all manner of hardship. The paper condemns the action of the Bombay Government in tolerating such a treatment as unworthy of British rule.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th September, says that the village karnams of the districts of South Arcot, Chingleput and North Arcot had sent up a memorial to the Government of India pointing out that, under the old state of things, their incomes were much greater than now, i.e., about 10 per cent. of the revenues of their villages, but that, under the present arrangement, their emoluments have been very much curtailed. The memorialists, it is said, state that their work is very heavy, that they have to stay at the taluk headquarters for six months in the year, and that their expenses and trouble in consequence have increased. The memorialists pray that, in consideration of all the circumstances, their pay may be raised to a maximum of Rs. 20 per mensem according to the revenues of the villages in which they do duty.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 16th, 1897.

The grievances of the karnams.

42. Referring to the disastrous accident in the Kolar gold mines which ended in serious loss of life among the workmen there, the Pariyan, of the 18th September, prays that the British Government will attend to the matter, investigate fully the cause of the said accident, and if, as is alleged, it was caused by the breaking down of the ladder, punish those who are responsible for such neglect, and make such other arrangements as will in future guard against the occurrence of such accidents; for, says the paper, it is the duty of Government to protect the lives of poor workmen, and although Kolar is in Mysore, it behoves the paramount power to attend to all important matters of this nature.

PARIYAN, Madras, Sept. 18th, 1897.

The disaster in the Kolar gold mines.

43. The Vikatadutan, of the 25th September, is sorry that there is a general feeling of hostility to Englishmen among Muhammadan communities, as is evident from the tone of the Mussalman press everywhere, and that this feeling seems, to some extent, to be shared by Mussalmans in India. The paper says that a correspondent has written to the Madras Times to the effect that there is a widespread rumour in Negapatam that at the approaching Muhammadan festival in that town there will be a riot or disturbance of peace. The paper goes on to observe that, although there is no reason why the British Government of India should in the least be concerned by all this, it is still a matter for regret that, notwithstanding all the help which Britain has rendered to Mussalmans here and elsewhere in the world, they should cherish any hostile feeling towards their benefactors.

VIKATADUTAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Feeling among Muhammadans in general.

44. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 21st September, referring to the recent memorial to Government by the zemindars of this Presidency to have their estates declared impartible, remarks that Government should consider the various aspects of the question before acceding to their prayer. He says that, according to the Hindu shastras, all the sonos of a Hindu father are equally entitled to his property, and that the rule of succession is subject to no special limitations applicable to zemindari estates. As the extent of zemindari estates may vary from a large area of numerous villages to a small piece of land, the rule of succession must be such as can be applicable to all the landholders whether it be consonant with the shastras or otherwise. He suggests that, instead of the zemindars praying to the Government to frame a special rule of succession by primogeniture to the detriment of their younger sons, they (the zemindars) might agree to bind themselves to renounce worldly pleasures after the birth of a son and become hermits, thus precluding all chances of begetting more sons. There would then be no inducement for them to memorialise a benign Government to pass an unjust and illegal enactment. The British Government in India has, he observes, pledged its word to allow the natives the benefit of their own laws, any modification by way of legislation being resorted to only with the support of the enlightened public and when it is manifestly for the good of the people. The present request coming from one section only of the parties concerned ought not to be complied with, and the interests of the younger sons of the zemindars also must be consulted. The memorial in question has failed prove that any advantages accrue from the proposed measure either to the Government or the country at large. On the other hand, if the estates continue to be partible, each son will try to improve his own share of the estate and the ryots will be less subject to oppression. Again there is great difference between a large estate in the hands of a single holder and a number of small estates in the hands of different individuals; for the zemindars being generally imprudent, the extravagance of a single zemindar of a large estate is productive of much danger to the whole estate, whereas, in the other case, some portions at least may have the chance of being well-managed. The correspondent then illustrates his remarks by referring to the estates of Karvetnagar, Kálahasti, and Nuzvid. The late Rajas of Kálahasti and Karvetnagar having no mind to partition the estates among their brothers, managed them in their entirety and left them encumbered each with a debt of about 70 lakhs of rupees; whereas the Nuzvid estate, which was divided among the brothers, is now in a good condition. Remarking that, in a joint undivided family, the junior members are rarely active to co-operate with the managing member, and noting that the same men, when partition takes place, work hard to their own good and that of the public, he argues that partition even among zemindars will be conducive to the public welfare. He further proceeds to say that, in zemindaris, the construction of irrigation works is nowhere undertaken, that agricultural loans are never granted, that no just and proper settlement of land-cess has been attempted, and that the ryots are all very poor, not one of them being worth a lakh of rupees. The zemindari ryots are, he remarks, anxiously waiting for the time when all the zemindari estates will become Government land, as it provides all the means for improving their condition.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 21st, 1897.

Zemindars in the Madras Presidency.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 28th, 1897.

The zemindari of Vizianagram.

45. The Sasilekha, of the 28th September, remarks that, though Mr. Willock is acquainted with the circumstances of the zemindari of Vizianagram, the appointment of such an old and high-salaried officer as manager of the estate is not desirable. It believes that a young officer of the rank of a Sub-Collector will make a proper manager in the present complicated state of affairs which demands the personal supervision of the officer in the various parts of the zemindari. It further remarks that, as Mr. Willock has long been in the district, he has his likes and dislikes, and that impartiality can only be secured by the appointment of an officer who has had no connection with the estate.

ALHAMI, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1897.

Hindus and Muhammadans.

46. The Alhami, of the 19th September, writes:—It is an erroneous idea on the part of some non-English papers to say that if Hindus and Muhammadans act in sympathy and concert they can overthrow British power in India. Most of the Hindus are grateful to the British Government for the divers blessings conferred on them by it, and this is a tangible proof of the fact that British rule in India will last long. If on any occasion such a misfortune, as the expulsion of the English from India were to fall on us, it would cause immense loss to our education and culture.

A threatening letter to Mr. Percy Grey in connection with Moulavi Hidayat Rasul's case.

47. The same paper has the following threatening letter alleged to be written by one Abdul Majeed, son of Moulavi Muhammad Buksh, zemindar in the district of Ghazipur, now residing in Lucknow, to Mr. Percy Grey, the Deputy Commissioner, in connection with Moulavi Hidayat Rasul's case:—

"You are informed by this note that your life is in jeopardy. You have ordered the arrest of our respectable Moulavi Hidayat Rasul on a charge of using insulting language towards Queen Victoria. Be it what it may, we will now openly use insulting words to the Queen and let us await the result. You will see that every European's head will be cut off when either you or any Englishman may award punishment to the above Moulavi, and a mutiny, similar to the one that occurred in 1857, will break out in Lucknow, causing streams of blood to run in its streets. You English people have exercised many oppressions on us and now it is high time to unfurl the Muslim banner and to kick you out like a football. We will, by the help of His Imperial Majesty the Sultan of Turkey, re-establish Muhammadan supremacy in India and your Queen Victoria will cease to rule. May God punish the British.

(Signed) A FEW MUHAMMADANS."

With reference to the above letter, the Alhami observes that it is mere foolishness on the part of Abdul Majeed to write such a letter, and if he has in fact done so every one will think him to be a demented person. Had he really any sympathy with the above Moulavi Sahib he would have afforded him some legal aid. But this action of the writer is just like pouring oil on fire. In conclusion, the Alhami advises Government not to punish such persons but let them off deeming them fools or lunatics.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Certain old regulations to be amended.

48. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 27th September, referring to the deportation of the Natu brothers of Poona under the Bombay Regulation of 1827, says that as the retention of such a regulation in the statute book which gives power to Government to arbitrarily and summarily deport persons from the country is not in keeping with the fair name, traditions and justice of the British Government, it ought to be either amended or expunged from the code. The same opinion is expressed in regard to the regulations which are similarly in force in Bengal and Madras.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 27th, 1897.

The Malabar Marriage Act.

49. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th September, states that the Malabar Marriage Act, as it stands at present, is not likely to be availed largely by the people. Only 36 marriages were registered under it up to date. As the novelty is fast wearing away, the enthusiasm is sure to subside. It urges, therefore, a modification of the Act as soon as possible, in order to wrest it from falling into the neglect to which it seems to be destined.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 25th, 1897.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

The Maharaja of Pudukkóttai.

50. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd September, says that the Maharaja of Pudukkóttai is now on the Nilgiris on a visit to His Excellency the Governor, and hopes that Sir A. Havelock will give the Maharaja sound advice and induce him to stay in his State instead of squandering away his time at other places, as His Highness has been doing ever since the State was handed over to him.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 23rd, 1897.

The administration of Mysore.

51. The Suryodaya, of the 17th September, says that the Hindu is wrong in praising the administration of Mysore, while the Madras Mail has correctly represented the state of things in the province It says:—Those who know the real state of affairs in Mysore will not hesitate to pronounce it the worst governed country in the world. The Deputy Commissioners have too much power in their hands, they are themselves Rajas in their districts. The amildars combine so many different powers in themselves that they act just as they please. In the time of Diwan Rangacharlu, the Deputy Commissioners and amildars were transferred every six months or year, but now some of these have been in the same place for six and twelve years without any near prospect of a transfer. The people, thus, are great sufferers.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Sept. 17th, 1897.

The Desabhimani, of the 15th September, writing on the same subject, says that the administration of the province is very unsatisfactory owing to the indifference of the Diwan who, being now tired of work, has left the councillors to do much as they please. Each councillor wants some of his favourites to be made Assistant Commissioners, while the Diwan has his own favourites too. Four men have been chosen by competition, so that the number of Assistant Commissioners has been increasing and there is no work for them to do. The councillors interest themselves only in providing berths for their favourites and none of them cares to listen to the grievances of the ryots. When complaints are made to the Diwan or remissions asked, he refers them to the respective councillors, who in their turn refer them to the Diwan. There thus seems to be no responsible head. Mr. Krishnamurthi, the councillor, does not grant remissions of revenue for fear that consistency may require him to grant remissions on his own jaghir. The editor therefore hopes that since the term of three years for which the existing councillors were appointed is drawing to a close, a new set of councillors will be appointed.

DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Sept. 15th, 1897.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bungalore, Sept. 20th, 1897.

Political Agent's interference in Baroda.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th September, says:—It seems that the Agent to the Governor-General at Baroda has forbidden the procession of Ganapati melas in the city of Baroda. This is very strange. To do so, authorised by whom it is difficult to conjecture, against the social custom of the citizens of a native capital is very curious and astounding. It is believed that the Guikwar will not fail to take notice of this.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Sept. 21st, 1897.

Deprecating the proposed new survey and settlement in Cochin.

53. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st September, deprecates the proposal of the Cochin Sirkar to to conduct a new survey and settlement in that State. The opinion is expressed that the Sirkar is not justified in conducting a new settlement and enhancing the revenue, which is already heavy, when there are nearly forty lakhs of rupees lying idle in the State treasury, and when the State does not at present intend to undertake the construction of any railways or other large works of public utility.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Stamp-vendors in Travancore.

54. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 25th September, says that as the stamp-vendors in Travancore do not sell stamps at the places specified in the license, great inconvenience is caused to parties purchasing stamp-papers. It appears that the vendors who are licensed to sell papers are generally men who earn their livelihood by writing petitions and documents; and so they sell papers from the verandahs of sub-registry and other public offices, disregarding the conditions laid down in the license. It is therefore suggested that if the employés of post offices, which are now located in various places, are licensed to sell stamp-papers and the usual discount allowed to private vendors is given to them, people will not be put to so much inconvenience and expense as at present and these low-paid officials will, moreover, be benefited by it.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 26th, 1897.

Famine in Travancore.

55. In the Kerala Patrika, of the 26th September, a correspondent from Chenganasséri states that the Diwan of Travancore, whose recent tour was undertaken with the express object of ascertaining the extent of famine, made no inquiry whatever as to the condition of the people, nor did he concert any measure for the relief. It is much to be regretted that it did not occur to the Diwan on his tour that he should make inquiry into the welfare of the inhabitants of this place who are the subjects of the Travancore State. Being naturally of an ungenerous disposition, he requires to be incited to acts of liberality by the representation of other responsible officials. But they seem to be sworn to silence on the subject. It is hoped that the paper will bring this matter to the notice of His Highness the Maharaja.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Sept. 18th, 1897.

The present outlook in Travancore.

56. Referring to the present outlook in Travancore, the Malayala Manorama, of the 18th September, writes thus (in English):—

"At the very outset we wish it to be distinctly understood that in offering these criticisms which we believe to be necessary and beneficial, upon the present condition of affairs in Travancore, we are not at all to be taken as of the opinion that the people of this country are, on the whole, worse off in any way than their fellow-subjects in British territory. Nay, if at all, we believe that the balance of advantages lies the other way. For while the advantages of being the subjects of Sovereign Native Princes are many and abiding, the disadvantages are comparatively few and removeable. In British India, with an exhausted treasury, but with famine, pestilence, frontier disturbances, exchange compensation allowances, council drawings, a costly civil service, a forward military policy, the scientific frontier and many other items, each demanding the minutest attention, the lot of the tax-payer is no enviable one. The absence of these terrible drains upon the exchequer is a lasting and ever-increasing advantage to Native States like Travancore. Moreover, our rulers are free to develope the resources of the country on national lines, paying particular attention to local and hereditary characteristics, and they are not, for the fear—natural in an alien Government—of offending some vague prejudices or ruffling some meaningless susceptibilities of the masses, put to the necessity every now and then of indefinitely postponing or even altogether dropping urgently-needed legislative enactments. Witness, for example, the different fates of the Religious Endowments Bill and the Age of Consent Bill in British India and of the latter measure in the Native State of Mysore.

"On the other hand, the disadvantages of Native States are, as has been said, comparatively few and temporary, and may most of them be traced to one source—the laxity and general inefficiency of the executive. These can be easily removed by a discriminating change in the personnél of the administration. The British Government, by removing from us all cause of anxiety with regard to foreign invasion and other things, has left us in an atmosphere that is highly favourable for rapid and unfettered progress all round. If only our executive authorities 'knew the seasons when to take occasion by the hand,' they could have gained for the Travancore of their day and for themselves, what Raja Sir T. Madhava Rau gained for the Travancore of his generation and for himself, what Sir K. Seshadri Aiyar has at the present moment secured for Mysore and for himself, and what Mr. Rajagopala Chari, by his enlightened and energetic rule, will very probably earn for Cochin and for himself—the unique position of being the cynosure of interest throughout England and India. How often must Sir David Barbour, Sir James Westland and others have cast envious glances at the ease and facility with which the Diwan of Mysore rushes to the successful promulgation of measures over which they fear to tread. The present Diwan of Travancore had his opportunity and he has abundantly proved that he is not the man to make proper use of it. The two other persons besides the Diwan that are at the head of affairs, viz., the British Resident and His Highness the Maharaja, are not actively engaged in the management of affairs. Their legitimate sphere does not extend to the details of the various departments. So far as the influence of His Highness the Maharaja goes, it is mostly conducive to the well-being of the State. Many have been the occasions which have revealed that our Sovereign has a warm heart overflowing with the milk of human kindness and eager to promote in every possible way the best interests of the governed. Unfortunately this cannot with equal readiness be said of all the British Residents. Some of them have been lulled to languor by the right royal luxuries of the Residency and by the obliging zeal of the Diwan to promote the various social functions or philanthropic schemes that either the Resident or his wife might be interested in. What a welcome and widely felt relief as compared with the effect produced by the supineness and non-intervention policy of most of his predecessors, there was in the blunt and matter-of-fact directness with which our late Resident Mr. Thomson used the powers vested in him. Whether Mr. Rees will be strong enough to break through the soft meshes that have been woven round the Residency or whether he will be lost like a recent eulogist of Travancore in the columns of the Pioneer, in admiration at the contemplation of the many signs—on paper—of progress (which are, however, belied by hard facts in the experience of those most concerned), this remains yet to be seen.

"Thus it is evident that the person who is to be held primarily answerable for the present gloomy outlook in Travancore is neither His Highness the Maharaja nor the British Resident, but the Diwan. This outlook could not be more emphatically expressed than in a sentence that so level-headed a journal as the Madras Mail allowed its well-informed Travancore correspondent to utter in a recent communication to that paper—a sentence to the effect that corruption is rampant in Travancore and that the Resident, the Maharaja and the Diwan are all of them aware of it. All we have to say under this head will be, in one sense, an amplification of this sweeping remark. If the Resident and the Maharaja should begin to actively participate in the details of the administration to such an extent as to deserve being held, conjointly with the Diwan, as responsible for its results, their action would either degenerate into constant petty interferences that would seriously inconvenience the smooth working of the machine, or render all parties equally indifferent in the matter of preserving it in a sound and efficient state. Fortunately, we are not confronted with this sorry spectacle. The Maharaja has shown himself ready to second the Diwan in every progressive and beneficial schemes that he might propose. But ever since Mr. Shungrasubier assumed charge of the reins of Government, this has gone on degenerating from bad to worse, so much so that it has now reached a stage for an exact parallel of which we must go back to the days previous to the advent of Sir T. Madhava Rau. The one redeeming feature in this sad decline is the annual increase of revenue. Even with regard to the way in which this increase has been brought about we have to say something later on. If the Diwan knows that corruption is rampant in the State and if he attributes this to circumstances over which he has no control—and we grant that such circumstances are not altogether wanting—should he not then, in the name of common sense and common humanity, cease to lend the sanction of his name as the nominal head of this corrupt edifice which clearly he is powerless to purify, for the perpetration of deeds that jeopardize the happiness of many people. The Diwan himself has worked hard for possessing what is above and beyond the necessaries and comforts of his life—he has worked hard for, and at last succeeded in, crowning his official life by the insignia of the Companionship of the Indian Empire. When any idle newspaper scribbler had the audacity to give publicity to statements that would efface the roseate tint of his carefully prepared administration reports and thus to put obstacles in the way of this devoutly desired consummation, the impatience or even the anguish which would darken his brow, was piteous to behold. His own experience ought to have taught him to pay more regard to the interests of his fellow-beings who are entrusted to his care and who are as sentient as he himself. These interests which his subordinates trifle with are of far greater moment to them than any number of C.I.Es. is to the Diwan. In short he ought to have either put an end to this miserable condition or refrained from playing with the life and death of humanity. Are in the hands of unscrupulous officials whose one only pursuit in the world is that of aggrandizing themselves?

> 'The government and safety of mankind,
> Trifles of such light moment, to be left
> Like some rich toy or ring or fancy'd gem'

"Mr. Shungrasubier has grown grey in the service of his Sovereign, and it is certainly most disagreeable to have to write of him in this strain. If we had consulted our personal sentiments alone, we would not have set ourselves the mournful task of reproaching a venerable old man with an ignoble clinging to office longer than he could hold it with advantage to the public and with honour to himself. Men in great places by refusing to retire when it were reasonable that they should do so are thereby like old townsmen that will be sitting at their street-door offering 'age to scorn.' Mr. Shungrasubier is rightly held by the people as responsible for all the evils that now exist in the country. He ought to know this and take steps not to offer in this way his old age to scorn. No one can watch long the workings of his mind without being struck with the many excellent qualities of the man. He is far above every taint of corruption; he is shrewd and profound so far as the range of his observation goes, though this range is sometimes exceedingly narrow; he has raised himself by dint of sheer hard work from the lowest grade in the official ladder to its top. These and many other things may without the slightest exaggeration be said in favour of him. But all these good points are rendered ineffectual by the antiquated character of his notions, by his intense conservatism and above all by his lack of enthusiasm. While the former have prevented him from signalising his régime by any important measure the absence of the last-named quality, while it has damped the spirit of those possessed of a passion for a life of activity, progress and disinterested service, has at the same time given a free hand for all triflers and tramplers of justice in their most unscrupulous course of life. Even in the case of good men no virtue is safe that is not enthusiastic and no heart can be pure that is not passionate. How much more will this hold good in the case of those who shape their course of life in accordance with the trend of the current and who are ready to take every possible advantage of a slackening of the chain that keeps them in the narrow path of justice. Seeing our Diwan we can well believe that prudence carried to excess is the only quality that sticks to a man after sixty; and we can sympathise with those who mourn that medical science by prolonging the life of those whom natural selection would have crushed out of existence, has left the guidance of the world in old and incompetent hands. We believe we are therefore justified in holding that the absence of this contagious, vivifying, purifying, ennobling, invigorating enthusiasm in the Diwan it is that has made corruption rampant in the State. If he had more of life in him we could have put up with many of his other shortcomings.

> ''Tis life, whereof our nerves are scant,
> Oh life, not death for which we pant,
> More life, and fuller, that (we) want.'"

In continuation of the same article the same paper of the 25th idem writes:—

"Such, in brief, is the theory we venture to put forward in explanation of the remarkable phenomenon that in spite of the presence, at the head of affairs, of a man whose mental powers and intimate knowledge of the details of every department derived by long service in various capacities throughout the State, are acknowledged on all hands, we are still plagued with a subordinate service that is rotten to the core; the corrupt members of it understand the bend of the Diwan's mind, and so they do not fear him. It is on this account especially, as a memorable and wholesome departure from the tame policy hitherto pursued, that we applaud the recent summary, if somewhat harsh, dismissal of the Alangad magistrate. Though this gentleman is a Bachelor of Arts of the University of Madras, he has shown himself capable of such misdeeds as will be considered to be a serious blot upon the character even of those who cannot lay claim to such educational qualifications. He affords one more proof, if need be, of the fact that no kind of previous training and good intentions will be effective safeguards against the temptation presented by good opportunities for misbehaviour. An open door tempts a saint. What we have to complain of here is that offenders of far darker dye have either been allowed to escape, or not been disturbed at all from their disreputable occupations. Some time ago Mr. Govinda Pillai, the then Diwan Peishkar of Quilon, formulated a number of very serious charges against a tahsildar of the old type, and put himself to much inconvenience by personally conducting the case; and though the accused was convicted and sentenced to pay a fine and undergo a certain term of imprisonment by the District Magistrate of Alleppey, Mr. Maltby, he was finally acquitted by the High Court and reinstated by Government. The people of this country are especially lacking in the power of combined action against the oppression of persons in authority. On this particular occasion, the vigorous action of the popular Diwan Peishkar overcame their timidity and many persons came forward and testified against the magistrate. With the honourable acquittal and reinstatement, however, of this official against whom people had been emboldened to speak out by the certainty of his never being reinstated, all probability of such combinations being formed in future came to an end. Whatever the truth of this case may be, there is no gainsaying the fact that the tone of the whole subordinate magisterial service is exceedingly low. Many of the tahsildars are old and quite innocent of any knowledge of English; and retirement with pensions being within sight of them, there are not wanting among them persons who have redoubled sheir exertions to enrich themselves. But it is no doubt futile to hold, while the case of the Alangad tahsildar is fresh in everybody's memory that education is any barrier against corruption. Considering that the happiness, honour, and prosperity of the people are most directly bound up with the conscientious discharge of duty by the subordinate magistrates and considering also the poor equipment of a considerable number of those occupying this very responsible position, the conviction is irresistible that the whole department stands urgently in need of a thorough cleansing, and of the introduction of fresh blood into its enfeebled and vitiated channels. Further, the scale of salary obtaining in the service must be revised in such a way as to offer sufficient inducement for persons of recognised probity and uprightness of character to enter it, and to place them above the necessity of condescending to look for 'filthy lucre ill-gotten.' If this were done, the country would have worn an altogether different aspect. This work of the reorganisation, invigoration and elevation of the standard and tone of the magisterial service is undoubtedly one of the most crying needs of the country at the present day."

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

57. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th September, says that although a copious fall of rain in the Northern districts has removed all fear of the famine continuing there any further, the famine seems to have transferred itself to the Southern districts. Salem, Pudukkóttai, Madura, Tinnevelly and non-irrigated parts of Tanjore are now suffering from want of rain, and fodder is insufficient. The people are afraid that the expenses of the frontier wars will seriously interfere and make Government curtail their expenditure on famine-relief operations to the great detriment of the people.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 27th, 1897.

Famine in the Southern districts of the Madras Presidency.

58. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 22nd September, says:—The last census has shown that of the population of India somewhere between three and four crores always suffer from hunger and except in the mango season they never have their stomachs full. Does not this furnish sufficient proof that India is growing poorer?

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Sept. 22nd, 1897.

The extent of poverty in India.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

59. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th September, writes as follows:—The Maharaja of Vizianagram, well known for his princely liberality, died lately in the prime of life, bequeathing his estate by his will to his mother's brother's son, who is now a minor. The question is who is to manage the estate during the minority of the young zemindar. If the Maharaja had in the same will appointed his mother, who is alive, as the young minor's guardian, no difficulty would have arisen. Vizianagram is the largest zemindari in the Presidency and yields a revenue of about 18 lakhs of rupees. It is said that some European officers are endeavouring to get themselves appointed as managers of the estate. Messrs. Willock and Price are among them. The mother of the deceased Maharaja is anxious to manage the samastan herself. She is a capable lady and may be safely entrusted with the management. The people of the zemindari are anxious that the lady should manage and the old régime should continue. Government have not passed any orders upon the subject. We hope that our noble-minded Governor will permit the lady to manage the samastan and cause rejoicing to the people.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 14th, 1897.

The zemindari of Vizianagram.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 16th, 1897.

Anger of the rulers of India.

60. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th September, writes as follows:—Anger is ruinous and suicidal. No good can come out of it to anybody. These men are under the influence of this passion, they commit crimes and go the way to ruin. What is true of individuals is also true of Governments. A Government misled by anger can never prosper. Did Napolean, whom all Europe feared, prosper? It is patience that has enabled England to attain her present prosperity and maintain her greatness for centuries. Lord Canning treated India with mercy and since his days our country has been ruled with kindness. Now the anger of the Bombay Government has caused the people of the Bombay Presidency great misery. Anger cannot help a Government so much as kindness. At present Her Majesty the Queen-Empress is not helped by a benevolent Ministry. It behoves Her Gracious Majesty to sympathise with the condition of India, and direct her Indian officers to rule the country with affection and good-will to its people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 18th, 1897.

A retrograde policy.

61. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th September, regards the present action of Government as a retrograde policy and in violation of the pledges given by Her Majesty in Her Gracious Proclamation of 1858 that the people of India will be treated as British subjects. The paper observes that the people of this country have learnt from Englishmen the use of a free press and free expression of opinion at public meetings. The paper believes than Indians can never be guilty of sedition.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1897.

A soldier's misconduct.

62. The Lokopakari, of the 19th September, reports that one Ranganada Mudaliar, employed in the Accountant-General's office, while walking towards the sea-shore at 2 P.M. on Monday the 14th idem, was asked by a soldier for a match stick and, on his replying that he had no match sticks with him, the said soldier thrust his bamboo stick into one of the eyes of Ranganada Mudaliar. The latter is said to have complained to his European superior officer who, at once, arranged for the arrest of the offender.

Rejection of old rupees as currency.

63. The same paper complains that merchants and bankers in Madras refuse to receive as legal tender old silver rupees, and that this must cause heavy loss to those who have with them old rupees of the year 1840.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 20th, 1897.

Remarks on Mr. Tilak's case.

64. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 20th September, remarks that for the foolish utterances of Mr. Tilak, a light punishment, i.e., a nominal imprisonment and heavy fine would have served him as a warning.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Sept. 24th, 1897.

Remarks on the present situation in India.

65. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th September, writes as follows:—We human beings cannot know everything; our knowledge is limited; but one thing is certain, that each one of us must suffer the consequences, good or bad, of our deeds or karma. Is it not the result of karma that there is all this confusion and trouble in India?—fire, plague and war, and estrangement between the rulers and the ruled. The public treasury is empty; there is war in the frontier; and plague and famine are ravaging the country. The deed of some ruffian in Poona has caused great ill-feeling which will not be healed in a short time. It becomes the duty of both to forget the past and work together peacefully. Affection of the people cannot be secured by severity, but can be secured only by kindness.

66. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th September, writes as follows:— A free press and public opinion are important factors in the administration of England; their influence is very great. Wherever the English flag is planted there public opinion or the voice of the people is respected. It cannot be different in India. Whatever may be the attitude of the Indian Government towards the Vernacular press of India now, it will change soon. The British Cabinet will never consent to depriving the Indian press of its liberty. The judgment of the Bombay High Court in Tilak's case is applicable not only to the Vernacular papers but to the Anglo-Indian papers as well.

Press and public opinion.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1897.

67. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th September, writes as follows:—It is not for nothing that Englishmen have undergone all the trouble of conquering India. He who conquers must enjoy the fruit of conquest. So did the Mussalman conquerors of India. So do Englishmen. If we were conquerors we should do the same. Human nature is the same everywhere. We work for our benefit. Still as Her Majesty the Queen-Empress of India has vouchsafed to us that we shall be treated like Englishmen and that no distinction will be shown between the two people, we have a right to press our claims. Englishmen will always be true to their word and India cannot have so good a Government as it has at present.

Remarks on England's rule of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 28th, 1897.

68. The Sasilekha, of the 17th September, remarks that the sentence of transportation for life passed on the editor of a Satara vernacular journal and the conviction of Mr. Tilak by European jurors are deeds of indescribable cruelty on the part of the British. It asserts that the object of the jury system is to secure to the prisoner the benefit of a trial by his own countrymen, and regrets that while even British soldiers on Rs. 15 are tried for murdering a Hindu by their own countrymen as jurors, who ultimately acquit them, a great man like Mr. Tilak was not given this privilege. It notes that some of the Anglo-Indians and their journals have from the first expressed their opinion that Mr. Tilak should be shot, and asks how justice can be secured when persons holding such opinions are selected as jurors.

Mr. Tilak's conviction.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 17th, 1897.

69. The Sasilekha, of the 28th September, observing that English, Anglo-Indian and Native journalists and retired civilians residing in England are all opposed to the frontier wars, regrets to find that His Excellency Lord Elgin has not been disposed to set any value on the opinions of so many journalists and respectable gentlemen, and remarks that the Burmese war and the annexation of Burma have resulted in the imposition of the income-tax on the Indian subjects. We have made enemies, it says, of the barbarian tribes who have so long been indifferent about our country. We ourselves have constructed the roads in the otherwise impassable mountainous tracts, and the effect is the facilitating of the entry of the enemy into India. If any Indian dares raise his voice to ask whether this improper course is reasonable, Lord George Hamilton is ready to punish him under section 124 A of the Indian Penal Code. It notes that taxes have been imposed on all kinds of articles, and insinuates that taxes might hereafter be levied on marriages and pilgrimages, and remarks that it would be impossible to describe the grievance of the people resulting from it. Stating that the Government pleads want of funds when ryots apply for loans to dig wells, it asks how the people can entertain feelings of affection for the Government in such a state of affairs, and remarks that many intelligent men have expressed themselves against the folly of wasting the wealth of India on these wild tribes.

War and waste of money.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 28th, 1897.

70. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th September, recounts the various calamities that India has suffered—such as the famine, the plague, the earthquake, etc., and adds—all these have not only made the Government of India unnecessarily suspect the people, but also forget the principles of justice and look upon the editors of Vernacular papers as the authors of all the discontent in India. But instead of actually destroying them they adopt other equally efficient measures to put them down. Such a policy on the part of the Government has caused great depression, fear and grief to the people everywhere.

India, an object of God's wrath.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 27th, 1897.

KERALA CHANDRIKA AND MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 13th and 20th, 1897.

Remarks on the arrest of the Mappila prisoners escaped from the Manjéri sub-jail.

71. The Kerala Chandrika and the Manorama, of the 13th and 20th September, respectively, referring to the arrest of the Mappila prisoners who escaped from the sub-jail, Manjéri, are glad to notice that the speedy termination of this disturbance, which would otherwise have assumed a serious crisis, was entirely due to the prompt and effective arrangements which were made by the district officials for the arrest of the prisoners, and that they should therefore be thanked both by the Government and the public. The Chandrika says that the authorities were very indiscreet in having locked up as many as 60 prisoners in this sub-jail which cannot conveniently accommodate more than 21, and hopes that they will not hereafte rgive room to be thus found fault with. This incident must, however, have taught the authorities the necessity of stationing in almost all the sub-jails a larger number of guards than is generally the case.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 18th, 1897.

Commenting upon the use of water-marked paper.

72. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th September, commenting upon the notification regarding the introduction of the use of water-maked paper manufactured by the Titaghur Paper Mills Company, of Calcutta, says that so far as the documents and petitions filed in Revenue offices and Courts are concerned, the use of the paper in question may be made compulsory, but to enforce the use of the paper for the purpose of adding, if such addition is necessary, to the document written on stamp paper by parties at their free-will is quite inadvisable. It is true that the use of this paper instead of the plain one is beneficial to the people, but then they ought to be given an option in the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Remarks on the conviction of Mr. Tilak.

73. The Kerala Patrika, of the 25th September, states as follows in a leader:—The Bombay Government and some Englishmen are jubilant over the sending to jail of Mr. Tilak, who is of immense popularity and of great patriotism, just as the Duke of Wellington was over the arrest of the Emperor Napolean; yet the High Court, which is looked to as the mainstay of justice, has suffered infinitely in the estimation of not a few. In perfect ignorance of this consequence, the Anglo-Indian papers still write defamatory articles without discrimination. Any one who pays a moment's attention to this attitude of theirs will be led to presume that a desire to ruin the Hindus runs rampant in their minds. In the opinion of the Englishman, published in Calcutta, punishment awarded to Mr. Tilak is too light. That those who are of English origin, and who regard the punishment awarded under section 124 A as very light, should maintain silence, after making that remark, strikes us with wonder. According to the Pioneer, the punishment of Mr. Tilak is more effectual than the gagging of the papers, but we are of opinion that the effect produced is diametrically opposed to what the Pioneer thinks. The character of a man is not affected by his being incarcerated for acts other than unlawful. Those who are committed to jail by Government unfairly and on account of prejudice will be warmly cherished in the minds of the patriotic natives as their well-wishers and promoters of their good. They deem it an honour to go to jail with Mr. Tilak as Mr. Surendranath thought. It is unbecoming of a Government, which the natives look upon with reverential awe, to regard the Hindus as cowards by nature and accord to them such treatment and allow the irresponsible Anglo-Indian papers to insult them. In the view of the English papers, it is proper to punish the editors of vernacular papers for their impartial statement of facts, but we and some others are of a different opinion. When the press of a country is given full liberty to discuss grievances, such discussion is likely to absorb all the energy of the writers, leaving nothing to spare for action. It must be specially borne in mind that he who inflates himself too much is sure to burst in the end. Mr. Tilak will, no doubt, experience much misery during the 18 months of his prison life, and yet he will find solace in the sympathy and compassion of the people at large, which have followed him to his prison. Acting on the advice given by Mr. Surendranath Bannerji, every one should frankly, honestly and with no reserve, give out his opinion without being intimidated by this (act of Government). There was not a single meeting held in Madras Presidency anent the Tilak conviction, and this goes to show the amount of patriotism of the people of the Presidency. The fact that the people of Madras have concealed their true sentiments on this occasion amply proves that, so far as this Presidency is concerned, section 124 A of the Penal Code is not a desideratum. Bravery is an indigenous virtue which cannot bear transplantation.

---

Issued, 9th October 1897.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 19 of 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th October 1897.

---

CONTENTS.

---

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

A comparison between the loyalty of the Russians and the people of India .. .. .. .. .. .. 291
Evacuation of Egypt .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—

The Malabar police sports .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The high-handedness of the Liverpool police .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—

The Sessions Judge of Satara .. .. .. .. 292
Mr. Justice Strachey .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The conviction of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. ib.
Sanction refused for Mr. Tilak to appeal to Privy Council .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on Tilak trial .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Wynaad sheristadar-magistrate's delay in writing judgments .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 293

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

University examiners in Telugu .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

A plague case in the General Hospital, Madras .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Nil.

(g) Forests—

Nil.

(h) Railways—

The recent accident on the Southern Mahratta Railway . ib.
The late accident on the Mysore State Railway .. ib.
The railway accident in Mysore .. .. .. .. ib.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont.

(i) Public Works—

Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Nil.

(k) General—

Canals and railways in India .. .. .. .. 294
The present state of India .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Inconsistencies in the gradation list of the Palghat Raja's family .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Frontier disturbances .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The British Government and the Indian subjects .. ib.
Suggesting the appointment of spies in connection with the North-west frontier risings .. .. .. 295

III.—LEGISLATION.

Nil.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

An open letter to the Diwan of Mysore .. .. .. ib.
The representative assembly a farce .. .. .. .. ib.
Agricultural banks in Mysore and the difficulties of the ryots. ib.
Iniquities of the preventive officers in Travancore .. .. ib.
The present outlook in Travancore .. .. .. .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Severe distress in parts of South Canara .. .. .. 296

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

The Poona murders .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Cow-protection Society's operations in Cutch .. .. ib.
Prosecutions for sedition .. .. .. .. 297
The plague operations in Poona .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the present state of India .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Vignanavarthani" .. .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 100 to 150 | 15th Sept. 1897. |
| 2 | "Satvasadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 250 | Aug. 1897. |
| 3 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | Oct. 1897. |
| 4 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 576 | Sept. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 5 | "Desopakari" .. .. .. | Ellore .. .. .. | 650 | 26th Sept. 1897. |
| 6 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 2nd and 9th Oct 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 7 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 2nd, 9th, and 13th Oct. 1897 |
| 8 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st, 5th, 8th, and 12th Oct. 1897. |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 9 | "Sudarshana" .. .. .. | Udipi .. .. .. | 400 | Sept. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 10 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 78 | 2nd and 9th Oct. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 11 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 4th and 11th Oct. 1897. |
| 12 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 1st and 8th Oct. 1897. |
| 13 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 2,600 | 30th Sept. and 14th Oct. 1897. |
| 14 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 625 | 29th Sept. and 6th and 13th Oct. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 15 | "Mysore Desabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 2nd, 9th, and 13th Oct. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 16 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st Oct. 1897. |
| 17 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. .. | 700 | 30th Sept. 1897. |
| 18 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 682 | 25th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 730 | 29th Sept. 1897. |
| 20 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 754 | 9th Oct. 1897. |
| 21 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 575 | 11th ,, ,, |
| 22 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 2nd and 9th Oct. 1897. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 23 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 4th and 11th Oct. 1897. |
| 24 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 2nd ,, 9th ,, ,, |
| 25 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras.. | 150 | 3rd and 10th Oct. 1897. |
| 26 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 30th Sept. and 4th Oct. 1897. |
| 27 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 16th July 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th October, commenting upon the late attempt at the life of the Czar, remarks that the hatred in which the Czar is held by a section of his subjects is perhaps due to the despotic character of the Government which gives the people very little liberty, and the reason assigned by the Czar for refusing a reasonable amount of liberty to his subjects is that they are not fit for it. But in the opinion of the editor this is hardly true, and no sovereign can be considered secure on his throne unless he is loved by his subjects. In India, however, there are no haters of Government as in the European countries. Having been in a state of subjection to various kinds of sovereigns they have acquired the habit of quietly submitting to the will of their sovereign. The Government, however, is afraid that giving education to such a quiet-going people will make them disloyal. But the people of this country, unlike the Russians, have not the least desire to overthrow the Government. All that they clamour for is a more considerate treatment at their hands.

A comparison between the loyalty of the Russians and the people of India.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 4th, 1897.

2. The Alhami, of the 3rd October, writes that France has always embarrassed the British Government regarding the evacuation of Egypt, and observes that the British do not interfere in the internal affairs of the country but merely help the Khedive in the management and administration of general affairs. France, on the contrary, has annexed Tunis to her dependencies in face of an undertaking to withdraw her troops.

Evacuation of Egypt.

Alhami, Madras, Oct. 3rd, 1897.

The same paper, writing on the above subject, states that great excitement is prevailing in Egypt regarding the British occupation, and says that the agricultural and mercantile classes are in favour of the British. The other classes of Egyptians do not like the British occupation. The Khedive himself is strongly opposed to the British and the Egyptian army also does not like the presence of foreign troops. The Ulamas have openly preached in the streets of Cairo against the British Government and Turkey claims suzerainty over Egypt. Some European powers, who press on the British Government the evacuation of Egypt, do so from hostile motives.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

3. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th September, referring to the recent Malabar police sports, says that the manual exercise, physical drill and shooting of the reserve and special police were excellent and much admired by all present. The District Superintendent of Police, Mr. Fawcett, is unsparing in his endeavour to improve the tone and character of the Malabar police and his endeavours have begun to bear fruit. The article after dwelling upon the subject at some length remarks that the authorities ought to pay the police as salary a sum which would suffice them to live upon.

The Malabar police sports.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Sept. 29th, 1897.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 11th October, quotes an extract from the Crescent (a Muhammadan paper published at Liverpool), of which the following is an excerpt: —The existence of a mosque in Liverpool is matter for criticism at the hands of several fanatical Christians, who exhibit their morality by hurling vituperations against Muslims and spreading false and malicious slanders and silly stories about Islam. Such slanderers are the most despicable of our foes. The Crescent in support of the above statement relates an incident which occurred in Medina Home, established for Muslim children in Liverpool, where a Christian woman made a false report to the police that a little child was being offered up as a sacrifice to the idol called Muhammad. On this the police effected an entrance into the home but found all quiet.

The high-handedness of the Liverpool police.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Oct. 11th, 1897.

In conclusion, the Shams condemns the action of the police and regards them as dishonest.

(b) Courts.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Sept. 1897.

The Sessions Judge of Satara.

5. The Hindujanasamskarini for September observing that the punishments in the Pratoda case are unnecessarily severe, the paper being circulated among 180 subscribers only, says: "Mark what a wise Judge he is; his name is Mr. H. F. Aston. It is the European officers of his stamp who, bringing afflictions upon the Indian people, abuse the laws of India through ignorance."

Mr. Justice Strachey.

6. The same journal remarks that the impropriety of placing young men in high situations may be inferred from the conduct of Mr. Justice Strachey whiling away his time by "playing and singing" with his European friends after finishing the "summing-up" in the Tilak trial.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Oct. 6th, 1897.

The conviction of Mr. Tilak.

7. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 6th October, speaking of the sentence passed on Mr. Tilak by the Sessions Judge, says:—The sentence is certain to cause very great sorrow to the people. Why should he be punished? Did the people on reading his article take arms and oppose the Government? Does not the Government betray a consciousness of their own defect which they should have tried to mend rather than punish a man for pointing it out? Does it not incense a people if one whom they love is punished unjustly? Many people say that in punishing Mr. Tilak who had devoted his life to the good of his fellow-subjects, the Government has punished fate for not allowing justice to prevail (sic).

The paper then finds fault with the Judge's interpretation of the word "disaffection" as want of affection, and concludes with a prayer that the grief now caused among the people by the sentence may not lead them into any rash act.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 9th, 1897.

Sanction refused for Mr. Tilak to appeal to Privy Council.

8. Referring to the fact that the Bombay High Court has refused its sanction for Mr. Tilak to appeal to the Privy Council, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 9th October says:—"It is a matter for consideration whether this is a reasonable decision or not. Section 124A of the Indian Penal Code is no doubt law, but as this is the first time it was ever applied, and it is not yet decided whether the meaning of the words therein used was or was not intended to be the same as that assigned to them by the Sessions Judge, it was the duty of the High Court, which is generally believed by the people to be the fountain of justice, to have sent this case on to the Privy Council. Though for the purpose of punishing Mr. Tilak this action of the Honourable Judges is accepted by some, no one would allow it so far as the law is concerned (sic). According to Mr. Justice Strachey's interpretation of the word, 'disaffection' means 'absence of affection.' Any one having no affection for the sovereign would become liable to punishment under section 124A. But in the opinion of some others it means to act against the king or to abet the doing of it. Though there are thus two different opinions, the Judges who heard the petition without making any comments thereon only said that if the whole correspondence were considered, the Sessions Judge was correct in his opinion. There is no doubt that this is very absurd."

Remarks on Tilak trial.

9. Referring to the result of the Tilak trial, a correspondent in the same issue of the paper says:—Of the nine jurors at Tilak's trial, six were composed of Europeans who were thus made to sit in judgment upon matter written in the Mahrathi language, while short time ago when a European military officer was tried for the murder of his punkawallah in the same Sessions Court of Bombay, the jury consisted of eight Europeans and one native. It would not be surprising if the general public should infer from these and other circumstances that it is not men like Mr. Tilak but the responsible administrators of India who create in the minds of the Hindus a want of confidence in the sovereign. Referring to the frontier disturbances, the same writer remarks:—"That the British Government is so far attached towards India is on the whole good for the people of this country; but it becomes a bad policy of Government to often provoke the frontier ribes into war without being able to win them over."

Wynaad sheristadar-magistrate's delay in writing judgments

10. Referring to a rumour that one Ramachendra Iyer, sheristadar-magistrate of the Wynaad taluk, has been asked to explain why he did not write his judgments in certain cases disposed of by him, a paragraph in the Manorama, of the 11th October, thinks that it would be strange if the accusation were a fact.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 11th, 1897.

(d) Education.

University examiners in Telugu.

11. The Sasilekha, of the 1st October, complains that most of the University examiners in Telugu are men not engaged in teaching Telugu classes or otherwise connected with the study of Telugu language, and that they are therefore incompetent to be examiners. It asserts that as there is a recognised rule that only those that teach particular subjects should be appointed examiners in those subjects, Telugu pundits (whether English-knowing or otherwise) engaged in actual teaching alone should be selected as examiners and not others.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 1st, 1897.

(e) Local and Municipal.

A plague case in the General Hospital, Madras.

12. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 11th October, in bringing to the notice of the Municipality and the Medical authorities that a personal servant of a doctor from Poona died from plague in the General Hospital, Madras, suggests the adoption of such effectual measures as will tend to prevent the spread of the disease in Madras.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 11th, 1897.

(h) Railways.

The recent accident on the Southern Mahratta Railway.

13. The Sasilekha, of the 1st October, with reference to the recent disaster on the Southern Mahratta Railway, asks why the Southern Mahratta Railway Company failed to appoint surveyors, watchmen and gang-coolies, whether the pilot engine had examined the place before the starting of the train, and whether the Consulting Engineer was in the habit of examining the bridges from time to time. It remarks that the bridge should have been reconstructed some time ago, and asks if there were no authorities to control the Southern Mahratta Railway Company to conduct its operations with that vigilance as the Madras Railway Company brings to bear on its work.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 1st, 1897.

The late accident on the Mysore State Railway.

14. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th October, speaking of the accident on the Mysore State Railway, says: It is generally thought that everything was not done to prevent the loss of life. Patrols should have been told off to examine all the bridges. Had this been done, the accident would not have happened. Nothing less than a searching inquiry would satisfy the people. It is thought that there is a slovenliness about the management of affairs on the railway that requires to be corrected.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 4th, 1897.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Oct. 1st, 1897.

15. The Suryodaya, of the 1st October, attributes the railway disaster entirely to the carelessness of the railway employés and calls upon the Government of India and of Mysore to hold an investigation, and wishes the sufferers by the accident to sue the Railway Company for damages.

The railway accident in Mysore.

(k) General.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 1st, 1897.

16. The Sasilekha, of the 1st October, remarking that the present famine in India would have been much more severe had it not been for the various canals, tanks and anicuts, observes that water-communication should be extensively adopted hereafter. It notes with pleasure that the canals under the Indus, the Ganges, the Brahmaputra, the Gódávari, the Kistna and the Pennair have fertilised large tracts of barren lands, mitigated the evils arising from failures of rains and afforded means of livelihood for a vast population. It only regrets that this system of water-communication has not been duly extended, and that no allotment has been made for its extension in the budget of this year. Canals are less expensive than railways and are not only useful as works of irrigation and communication, they are also profitable to the country in another way; for the money expended on them goes to enrich the people of the land, whereas the expenditure incurred on account of railways benefits foreigners that supply railway plant.

Canals and railways in India.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Oct. 8th, 1897.

17. The Suryodaya, of the 8th October, after stating that India was happy under the British rule ever since the country was wrested from the Mogul and other petty despots, says that now a bad time has come, and the cause of all the present troubles may be traced to the plague operations in Poona and the victory of the Turks over Greece. The former led to the murder of two Europeans and the Government thought that the vernacular newspapers were responsible and consequently has been persecuting the editors. The latter has induced the Muhammadan tribes on the frontier to rise in arms against the British authority. It is unjust for the Government to insult the savage tribes on the west and waste so much blood and money, and then to make India bear all the expenditure. The remedy tried for putting down disaffection in the people, namely, the prosecution of newspapers for sedition, has had the very reverse effect and has made the discontent more pronounced. The editor, therefore, is very much grieved and thinks that ruling the people according to the proclamation of Her Majesty the Queen (of 1858) can alone reconcile the people and create good-will between the rulers and the ruled.

The present state of India.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 11th, 1897.

18. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 11th October, referring to certain omissions and inconsistencies alleged to exist in the gradation list of 1049 which the Board has ordered to be adopted in future in the Palghat Raja's family, entreats the Collector Mr. Dance to hold an inquiry into the matter and hopes that the Government and the Collector will do the needful.

Inconsistencies in the gradation list of the Palghat Raja's family.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 4th, 1897.

19. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 4th October, refers to the statement of a gentleman travelling from Lahore to Bombay to the effect that armies from every quarter are being detailed to the North-western frontier and that this has created a tremendous sensation in the Panjab provinces, observes that it is not known from what sources Government will meet the expenses of such a large army when Indian finance is in a very poor condition, and with what motive does Government undertake such a hard task when it knows that the Amir will never join with the frontier tribes. Such expeditions entail enhanced expenditure which is to be deprecated most strongly.

Frontier disturbances.

20. The Alhami, of the 10th October, quotes an extract from the Indian Mirror (place of publication not mentioned), of which the following is an excerpt:—Since our prosperity depends upon that of the Government, we suggest to our Government to adopt such policy as would tend to check the dissemination of sedition and disaffection, and to exercise discretion and judgment when disturbances are looming on the frontier. But why does Government take legal steps against subjects who admit their loyalty towards it?

'ALHAMI, Madras, Oct. 10th, 1897.

The British Government and the Indian subjects.

In conclusion, the paper assures the Government of the fact that no educated man of enlightened views will ever assume a hostile attitude towards Government. What the Indians want is merely reform in the administration, not a change of Government, for the Indians know fairly well that they cannot govern themselves and that a change of Government will not be beneficial to their interests.

21. The same paper in connection with the frontier disturbances urges upon British military officers the necessity of appointing competent spies. The Alhami suggests the infliction of a fine of Rs. 400 for every weapon found in the hands of a tribesman.

Suggesting the appointment of spies in connection with the North-west frontier risings.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

22. The Suryodaya, of the 8th October, has an open letter to the Diwan of Mysore in which the Diwan is found fault with for increasing the revenue at the expense of the ryots and spending the money in creating new appointments for the Madrasees and unnecessarily increasing the number of Assistant Commissioners. The letter further says that in pretending to continue the policy of his predecessors he is holding the farce of an annual representative assembly before whom he reads his self-laudatory report on the administration, but gives no real power to the representatives.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Oct. 8th, 1897.

An open letter to the Diwan of Mysore.

23. The Suryodaya, of the 1st October, says that the representative assembly of Mysore is a mere farce, inasmuch as the representatives chosen are mostly village officers who cannot criticise the Government and who are too ignorant to know the real requirements of the country.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Oct. 1st, 1897.

The representative assembly a farce.

24. The Mysore Deshabhimani, of the 2nd October, says that though the agricultural banks established in Mysore are ostensibly meant for the good of the ryots, yet those very banks prove the ruin of several. Three or four ryots join together and borrow money, and when any one of them fails to pay the debt the rest have to make good the sum. The amildars, to whom the work of lending the money is entrusted, take perquisites from the applicants for the loans. The jodidars and inamdars also borrow money on the security of their lands, but they do not see that they would soon lose their lands. A large number of jogidars are attending on the Deputy Commissioners in the hope of getting money, but their petitions are not soon attended to. For instance, the jodidar of Naraganahalli has been waiting the pleasure of the Bangalore Deputy Commissioner, and he has not yet received any orders on his petition.

MYSORE DESHABHIMANI, Bangalore, Oct. 2nd, 1897.

Agricultural banks in Mysore and the difficulties of the ryots.

25. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 1st October, invites the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the iniquities of the preventive officers stationed at Paravur. It appears that these officers, aided by an influential person of the place, levy blackmail from persons who deal in articles on which tariff has been imposed and allow them to import such articles into the State from the Cochin territory without duty. Owing to the fraudulent practices of these officers innocent traders are put to great loss and trouble in various ways.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Oct. 1st, 1897.

Iniquities of the preventive officers in Travancore.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Oct. 9th, 1897.

The present outlook in Travancore.

26. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 9th October, of which the heading is "The present outlook in Travancore," is written in English. It dwells at length upon the corruption alleged to prevail in most of the departments of the State, and says that Mr. Shankarasubbier is not the man to apply the necessary remedy. It then says that agriculture in the State is in a primitive condition and that no manufactures worthy of the name exist in the country in spite of its possession of an exchequer that is always full; how the late Diwan notwithstanding all his shortcomings tried to encourage the development of manufactures by guaranteeing payment of interest to shareholders of the now defunct Paper Mills Company and how the present Diwan has refused to redeem that promise; how wretched is the condition of many public roads and of various footpaths, canals and maramattu roads, and how he has by excuses delayed the introduction of railways into Travancore. After remarking that all efforts to stop short with a Tinnevelly-Quilon Railway ought to be discarded, the writer trusts that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock will succeed in overcoming all bad arguments palmed off upon him and in conferring upon the people of that country the long-delayed blessing of railway communication.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

SUDARSHANA, Udipi, Sept, 1897.

Severe distress in parts of South Canara.

27. The Sudarshana for September says that the price of rice having risen to abnormal rates in the Coondapoor taluk of South Canara, some 400 people of the Kharve caste looted the grain stored up by some of the rich people, and the Head Assistant Collector of the place punished about 175 of the rioters with whipping. The editor remarks that this is the first time since the rebellion of Kallianappa that such a large number of people combined together to plunder, and that although it is gratifying to find Hindus and Muhammadans combining for a common purpose, it is a matter for regret that they should have combined for such a mean act. The editor further says that the prominent men of Udipi fearing a similar riot have raised a fund to buy up rice and to sell it at low rates to the poor people.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 8th, 1897.

The Poona murders.

28. The Sasilekha, of the 8th October, notes that the murderer of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst has at last been detected, and observes that the Anglo-Indian journalists barked like mad dogs, attributing the murders to the encouragement given by Mr: Tilak and other gentlemen, representing the whole Brahmin community of Poona as being seditious and recommending it to be severely punished. It regrets that the inexperienced Governor of Bombay believed these insane utterances and committed Mr. Tilak to jail. Had it not been for these murders, no one would have ventured to impute sedition to the Vernacular press. The Times of India laid the offence at the door of Mr. Tilak, while the Bombay Gazette expressed that the wretch (Damodar Chapekar) had intimated that Natu had done it. The delay in the detection of the culprit was owing to the incompetency of the Bombay and Poona police. Had they been diligent, there would have been no occasion for the Anglo-Indian journalists to revile the natives. The Brahmin community of Poona had to bear the blunt of obloquy for want of efficiency on the part of the high-salaried European police officers. It is at a loss to know what these officers will do to hide their shame for having unnecessarily exposed the innocent citizens of Poona to public ridicule. Had His Excellency Lord Sandhurst been as wise a Governor as His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock, there would have been no tumult, no exultation on the part of the Anglo-Indians and no calamities for the native community to endure.

29. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th October, says that the Cow-protection Society of Bombay have sent a memorial signed by 20,000 men to the Rao of Cutch praying him to put an end to the exportation of cattle fit for agricultural purposes. But the paper says that people are bound to give up their cattle freely if they are wanted for the use of Government troops.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 4th, 1897.

The Cow-protection Society's operations in Cutch.

30. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 6th October, after expressing great satisfaction at the news that the Government has abandoned the prosecution of the Modavritta for sedition, says that the relation between the Government and the people is analogous to that between the mother and her children. The children are likely to commit offences, but the mother instead of strangling them to death on that account should give them a light punishment so that they might grow obedient. Then alone the child will grow healthy and the mother be known for her wisdom. But at present the attitude of Government is anything but that of a mother towards her children. It is more like that of a tiger towards a calf, and the people are therefore afraid how all this will ultimately end.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Oct. 6th, 1897.

Prosecutions for sedition.

31. The same paper says that in the house-to-house search for plague cases in Poona, Lieutenant Lewis entered and desecrated some temples. Complaints were made to Mr. Lamb the Collector, who, however, is patiently hearing the complaints against the search parties, and it is hoped that he would not allow any irregularities in future.

The plague operations in Poona.

32. The Malayalam Nazrani Dipika, of the 30th September, has an article on the present unrest in India caused by famine, earthquake, plague, Tilak prosecution and the frontier expeditions. It says that as the natives who once considered the Anglo-Indians as demi-gods and licked the dust of their feet have by their education and enlightenment begun to feel their awkward position and claim equal rights and privileges with their Anglo-Indian brethren, these Anglo-Indians are greatly enraged and they have therefore a sort of hatred for the educated natives. The Anglo-Indians strive hard to discredit the National Congress, a loyal and constitutional movement, and misrepresent its aims and aspirations; and to achieve their object they are hard at work to create a strong ill-feeling between the British Government and the people. The press prosecutions in Bombay are the results of this. Russia has a strong desire to conquer India and she has been trying for it for a long time. Both the powers are well aware that the British army is unable to cope with the Russian, but it is the unquestioned loyalty of the princes and people of India to the British throne that creates a fear in her mind for accomplishing her sinister designs on India. If the British Government does not adopt measures for speedily restoring peace in the country which is in a state of great agitation on account of the famine, pestilence and other stirring occurrences and take the people into its confidence as before, there is every probability of greater calamities occurring which would tell equally upon the Government and the people and also bring the glory of the Indian Empire into imminent peril.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Kóttayam, Sept. 30th, 1897.

Remarks on the present state of India.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 20 OF 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st October 1897.

---

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

The Amir's proclamation .. .. .. .. .. 301
The Afridi sepoys .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—

Complaint against the Calicut town police .. .. ib.
The cause of the escape of prisoners from the sub-jail, Manjéri .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 302
A theft case in Calicut not inquired into by the police. ib.
Daylight robbery at Mylapore .. .. .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—

Nil.

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

Sanskrit education .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

Insufficiency of light in the Calicut municipality .. 303
Election in the Calicut municipality .. .. .. ib.
Comments on the reply of His Excellency to the Cochin municipal address .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Commenting upon the Land Revenue administration report of the Madras Presidency .. .. .. ib.

(g) Forests—

Nil.

(h) Railways—

Accidents and thefts on railways .. .. .. .. ib.

(i) Public Works—

Nil.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont.

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Nil.

(k) General—

Noticing with pleasure the appointment of Mr. Dance as the permanent Collector of Malabar .. .. 304
Pollution of a temple in Poona .. .. .. .. ib.
Muhammadans and the British Government .. .. ib.
Benefits of the British rule in India .. .. .. ib.
The educated young men of India and the British Government .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Maharaja of Kapurthala's opinion on the present disturbances of India .. .. .. .. .. 305

III.—LEGISLATION.

The Madras Legislative Council .. .. .. .. ib.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

A criticism on the Dasra address of the Diwan of Mysore .. ib.
The need for useful public works in Mysore .. .. .. ib.
Who should act for Sir K. Seshadri Aiyar? .. .. .. ib.
Who is to act for the Diwan of Mysore? .. .. .. 306
Imperfections in the administration of Mysore .. .. ib.
A criticism on the article on the administration of Mysore in the Madras Review .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Unsatisfactory state of affairs in Hyderabad .. .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Nil.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Petty warfare .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 307
Seditious preaching by Afghan Mullas in Behar .. .. ib.
The desirability of prohibiting the circulation of certain foreign newspapers in India .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The death of the mother of the Natu brothers of Poona .. ib.
Theft of explosives stored up at Ferok .. .. .. ib.
Certificates of honour .. .. .. .. .. .. 308

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Andhrabhasha Sanjivani" .. | Madras .. .. .. | 100 | Sept. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 1st Sept. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 3 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 16th and 23rd Oct. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 15th, 19th, 22nd, 26th and 29th Oct. 1897. |
| 5 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th, 20th, 23rd and 27th Oct. 1897. |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 6 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 78 | 16th, 23rd and 30th Oct. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 7 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 18th and 25th Oct. 1897. |
| 8 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 15th, 22nd and 29th Oct. 1897. |
| 9 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 2,600 | 21st and 28th Oct. 1897. |
| 10 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 625 | 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 11 | "Mysore Desabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 16th, 20th and 23rd Oct. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 12 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 682 | 25th Oct. 1897. |
| 13 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 925 | 14th ,, ,, |
| 14 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 700 | 11th and 20th Oct. 1897. |
| 15 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 16th and 23rd Oct. 1897. |
| 17 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 18 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 13th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 19 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 754 | 16th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 20 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 18th and 25th Oct. 1897. |
| 21 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 9th, 16th and 23rd Oct. 1897. |
| 22 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 15th Oct. 1897 |
| 23 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras .. | 150 | 17th and 24th Oct. 1897. |
| 24 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 11th, 14th, 18th and 21st Oct. 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Alhami of the 17th October. The following is the summary of the proclamation issued by the Amir of Cabul in Eastern Afghanistan:— ALHAMI, Madras, Oct. 17th, 1897.

The Amir's proclamation.

The British Government maintains a friendly policy towards Afghanistan. It never had nor has any intention of annexing that country, but only wishes to save it from the encroachments of foreign intruders. The tribesmen having been reconciled to the British authority and having accepted allowances and made agreements, fomented disturbances and rebellion for no reason whatever. Since you have not consulted me when taking this step, you are not justified in throwing the blame upon me.

Why do you take these disturbances in the light of Jehad? The time for Jehad will come, and when it does come, it will be announced to you. If you acquit yourselves bravely on that occasion, I shall be glad to call you religious leaders. As long as you abide strictly by your religious principles, I shall not interfere in your religious matters, nor shall I prevent you from prosecuting your own objects. The present disturbances have nothing to do with religion.

As regards allegation that the British occupation of Chitral gave rise to these disturbances, I assure you that the object of the British Government in occupying Chitral has been to populate it and to strengthen its position, so that it may serve as a barrier against any future invasion, but not to increase its revenues.

In short, I have nothing to do with you or with your affairs, for I don't trust you. I am not such a fool as to annoy and offend others for your sakes. What you wish is that I should be up in arms against the British, and in case I do such a foolish thing, I am sure you people will do nothing in the end but mock at me.

2. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 18th October, in commenting on the formal order of the Governor-General to the effect that the Afridi sepoys will not be required to fight against their own kith and kin, but that those pensioners who have fought against Government shall forfeit all claims to consideration, and will be struck off the pension list, observes that the shameless and treacherous conduct on the part of the pensioned Afridis in having joined with the enemy and in having taken up arms against Government casts a slur on the fair name of their tribes, and that Government has been too lenient towards the Afridis in having permitted them not to fight against their own kinsmen. SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 18th, 1897.

The Afridi sepoys.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

3. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 16th October, says that a Mahratta servant was one morning found dead in the house of his master, another Mahratti by caste, in the Calicut town. There was a cut nearly six inches long on the neck of the dead body, but there was no sign of any blood having come out of the wound. From the position of the wound it would appear that it was not a self-inflicted one nor could it be supposed that it was a case of suicide. The police, who are inquiring into the matter, have proceeded on the assumption that it is a case of suicide. The article seems to think that the police are trying to pervert the course of justice, and remarks that it is a disgrace to the police if they cannot detect the murder that was perpetrated in the heart of the town and just in front of the police station. KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 16th, 1897.

Complaint against the Calicut town police.

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th October, referring to the same subject, says that the doctor who examined the dead body pronounced the opinion that death was not caused either by suicide or by accident, but the police are said to have taken a different view. The opinion is expressed that unless the inquiry is taken from the hands of the town police, who appear to have lost the public confidence, and entrusted to an honest and able police inspector such as Mr. Kottayi Raman, the truth will never come out.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 16th, 1897.

The cause of the escape of prisoners from the sub-jail, Manjéri.

4. Another leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 16th October, says that the prisoners who had escaped from the sub-jail, Manjéri, were arrested and hauled up before the last Sessions and were convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment and transportation for life, but in the statements made by some of the prisoners before the Sessions Judge, it was mentioned that it was not for harassing the public or for causing disturbance in the country that they absconded from the jail, but it was for killing Mr. Wilkinson, Assistant Superintendent of Police, who had troubled and insulted Mappila women. It is not likely that these ignorant Mappilas would determine to resort to this extreme measure if there was no truth in their allegations. Whatever may be the fault of these illiterate Mappilas, yet to make them more desperate through the inconsiderate action of the authorities is not at all conducive to the repression of crimes.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1897.

A theft case in Calicut not inquired into by the police.

5. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th October, referring to the theft that occurred in the house of one Iswara Pattar at Mankavu, Calicut, on the 19th idem, writes that although the owner lodged a complaint before the taluk magistrate the next day with a list showing the properties lost, the police have not yet made any inquiries into the matter. The correspondent remarks that it is a matter of great grievance to the people if the authorities do not pay any attention to cases of this sort.

On the above correspondence the editor asks, in a footnote, when murders committed in the town of Calicut are not properly detected, is it necessary to say what ought to be the fate of cases of theft? The opinion is expressed that it would be better if the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police bestowed a little more attention upon such matters.

ALHAMI, Madras, Oct. 17th, 1897.

Daylight robbery at Mylapore.

6. The Alhami, of the 17th October, in referring to the daylight robbery committed at Mylapore where the house of Mr. Vadinatha Iyer, Professor, St. Thomé College, was broken into, asks with surprise where should poor and helpless go, if such robberies are committed in broad daylight in the very heart of a populous town the police notwithstanding.

(d) Education.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1897.

Sanskrit education.

7. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th October, says that it is a matter of great congratulation to the people of India that His Excellency the Governor spoke so encouragingly about the Sanskrit education on the occasion of the prize distribution in the Ernakulam College, and thinks that none of the previous Governors have spoken so highly of Sanskrit education and acknowledged that that education is far superior to English education. Some people may be induced to ask whether the order of the Governor, who attaches so much importance to Sanskrit education expressing the inability of Government to make any grant to the Pattambi school, which has been specially established to impart Sanskrit education, is not inconsistent with the opinion now expressed by His Excellency. The remark is made that, to improve Sanskrit education and also to create a taste in the people for that education, a substantial aid from Government is absolutely necessary. In conclusion, the article doubts whether it is right to say that at the present time too much importance should not be attached to English education in India.

(e) Local and Municipal:-

8. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 14th October, complains of the insufficient lighting of lamps in some parts of the Calicut municipality. It appears that neither the Municipal authorities nor the councillors, in whose divisions the lamps are not properly lighted, see whether the lighting contractor does his duties satisfactorily and regularly.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 14th, 1897.

Insufficiency of light in the Calicut municipality.

9. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 16th October, says that it is a pity that the Municipal authorities have not given effect to the Government order granting the privilege of election to the municipality though the list of voters was prepared some months ago. The article, after dwelling upon the matter at some length, hopes that the councillors will, without delay, take steps to have the privilege enforced.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 16th, 1897.

Election in the Calicut municipality.

10. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd October, commenting upon the reply given by His Excellency the Governor to the Cochin municipal address, says that the advice given by His Excellency in the matter of storing up rain-water in reservoirs on the house-terraces, as is done in the West Indies, is impracticable in Cochin on account of the peculiar structure of its houses and the nature of its climate. Very few of the inhabitants of Cochin may find it possible to bring water from the Aluva river for drinking purposes, etc., but as the majority of them are unable to do so on account of their poor circumstances, it is the duty of Government to consider the case of these people. It is very regrettable that His Excellency thought it worth his while to give such an impracticable reply and hoped thereby to satisfy the people.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 23rd, 1897.

Comments on the reply of His Excellency to the Cochin municipal address.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

11. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 18th October, in commenting upon the Land Revenue administration report of the Madras Presidency for 1896, reminds Government that the deplorable condition of the Wynaad taluk, brought about by the recent settlement, has not yet been improved, and this fact ought to be taken into consideration by them in conducting the settlement of Malabar. The fact that the Malabar district stands first in the matter of processes issued for the sale of lands for recovering the arrears of revenue in this year also evidently shows that the patta-holders in that district are in a greatly impoverished state. There were 7,324 attachments in fasli 1305 as against 6,316 in 1304, and in 75 out of 100 cases properties had to be sold for recovering the arrears. The report says that Government has called for a report as to the causes which have led to the large relinquishment of holdings by ryots in the Wynaad taluk, and also to the extensive sale of landed properties for arrears of revenue, and Government has not yet been furnished with the reply. The article trusts that the sympathetic Collector of Malabar, Mr. Dance, will now have the chance of bringing to the notice of Government the real fact that the distress occasioned to the people of Wynaad is due to the result of the ruinous settlement that was recently made in that taluk.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 18th, 1897.

Commenting upon the Land Revenue administration report of the Madras Presidency.

(h) Railways.

12. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th October, writes that accidents on railways are occurring rather too frequently, and that Government should therefore adopt such measures as are calculated to prevent such accidents. The correspondent further adds that, if rice and other articles are sent over railways, the bags containing rice, etc., are generally found to be tampered with and contents partly removed. It is therefore suggested that, in cases in which the railway servants have stolen the articles, the company should be made liable to make good the loss sustained by the owners.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1897.

Accidents and thefts on railways.

(k) General.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1897.

Noticing with pleasure the appointment of Mr. Dance as the permanent Collector of Malabar.

13. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th October, while noticing the appointment of Mr. Dance as the permanent Collector of Malabar, says that it is a matter of very great pleasure that Mr. Dance, who knows the condition of the district very well and who has always the welfare of the people at heart, has been confirmed in his acting appointment.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 18th, 1897.

Pollution of a temple in Poona.

14. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 18th October, in referring to an article in the Kesari of the 5th regarding the pollution of a temple in Sadasivapetta, Poona, by one Mr. Louis and a lady doctor of the plague-search party, observes that if the above statement of the Kesari is really true, no doubt Mr. Louis and the lady doctor deserve punishment at the hands of the Government, and that Government should not connive at their actions which are likely to create mischief and excite the feelings of the people. The above individuals, in spite of the remonstrances of the people against entering the temple, which they hold sacred, did enter and touch the idol.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Oct. 16th, 1897.

Muhammadans and the British Government.

15. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 16th October, writes that, according to Muhammadan traditions, Muhammadans are strictly enjoined by their Prophet to be loyal to their rulers, no matter of whatever religion they may be. Hence it is incumbent upon Muhammadans to act according to the sayings of the Prophet and to lead a loyal life under the benevolent shadow of the British Government which tries to deal squarely and fairly with us. It has granted us religious toleration and under it we enjoy liberty and the protection of our lives and property.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 18th, 1897.

Benefits of the British rule in India.

16. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 18th October, writes that British rule in India is in every way most beneficial to our interests. Railways, telegraphs, telephones and postal systems—things unknown to ancient kings—have been established. Besides this, the subjects enjoy every kind of liberty. No restrictions are placed upon the exercise of their religion. On the contrary, Russian subjects do not enjoy such liberties. If Government were to take away the liberty of the Vernacular press, it would reflect great discredit on the fair name of the British administration. It is the Anglo-Indian press that tries to lower the natives in the estimation of their rulers by poisoning its ears against them. In conclusion, the Shams says that it is incumbent on us to be grateful to the British Government for the peace and harmony that we enjoy under it.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 25th, 1897.

The educated young men of India and the British Government.

17. A correspondent writing to the Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 25th October, says that it behoves the educated young men of India, who belong to the Indian National Congress, to be grateful to the British Government for its generous policy.

It is held by a few natives that the decision arrived at in Mr. Tilak's case is oppressive and tends to interfere in the freedom of the people of India. This is erroneous since many of those who are acquainted with Mr. Tilak think that it would have been much better for the country if he had been punished still more severely.

This correspondent proceeds to observe that the tone of the Native press is seditious and should be moderated by such native leaders as profess much but, in fact, do nothing. It is the benevolent Government, and not the professed sympathisers, which saves the famine-stricken people.

18. The Shams-ul-Akhbar of the 25th October. The Al-Muraed (the Arabic daily of Cairo) quotes the following opinion on the present disturbances in India, alleged to have been given by Maharaja of Kapurthala during an interview with the correspondent of the Sabah of Constantinople :— SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 25th, 1897.

The Maharaja of Kapurthala's opinion on the present disturbances of India.

India is full of many tribes who regard themselves independent and have their own chiefs. There are, among these tribes, many Muhammadans who hold the Sultan of Turkey in great respect and are His Majesty's well-wishers. The Arakzais and Afridis are war-like and desperate. They frequently rebel against the British Government. They are very religious and excitable. The cause of the present risings on the frontier is the lack of foresight on the part of the British Government.

III.—LEGISLATION.

19. The Sasilekha, of the 29th October, remarks that the expansion of the Indian councils is merely illusory and not substantial; for the members have no rights but that of interpellation, while the Government is not bound to answer the questions put. Again, the Government resides on the hills for eight months in the year, and it is with great difficulty that two or three meetings are arranged for the remaining four months. SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 29th, 1897.

The Madras Legislative Council.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

20. The Deshabhimani, of the 16th October, in criticising the administration report of the Mysore State, wonders at the skill of the Diwan in showing a surplus in spite of the increased expenditure of nearly Rs. 14,20,000 and a fall in the revenue of nearly 5 lakhs, and remarks that the whole secret of this apparent surplus lies in the appointment of a Comptroller who has always been a creature of the Diwan. The editor regrets that there is none in the service who has the good of the country at heart and the courage to expose the whole rottenness which is concealed by the apparent surplus which the Diwan is able to show every year. DESHABHIMANI, Bangalore, Oct. 16th, 1897.

A criticism on the Dasra address of the Diwan of Mysore.

21. The same paper, after commending the action of the Diwan in constructing bridges across the Hemavati and Bhadras, reminds him that his administration is drawing to a close and therefore calls upon him to utilise the surplus in revenue which he has shown in his administration report for public works of a similarly useful nature, so that he might leave some enduring marks of his administration in the country. The editor has no confidence in the would-be successors of the Diwan, who have already shown their indifference to this branch of the Government administration.

The need for useful public works in Mysore.

22. The Suryodaya, of the 22nd October, in speaking of the probable successor to Sir K. Seshadri Aiyar during his absence on leave for six months, says that Mr. Thambu Chettyar, who acted as Diwan on former occasions, has not won the confidence of the people and is regarded by them as favouring his own co-religionists. As regards Mr. Krishnamurti, the editor remarks that he has not been known for his sympathy with the people and has neglected many opportunities which he might have made use of for doing good to his countrymen. Yet, as he is a Mysorean, the people wish that he may be tried for the short period that Sir Seshadri will be away. The editor does not like the idea of extending the period of Mr. Justice Ramachandra Aiyar's service in the State, although the present Diwan has a desire to do so, Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar being a Madrasee. SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Oct. 22nd, 1897.

Who should act for Sir K. Seshadri Aiyar ?

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 25th, 1897.

Who is to act for the Diwan of Mysore?

23. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th October, in discussing who is to act for Sir K. Seshadri Aiyar during his absence on leave, says that although Mr. Thambu Chettyar has the best claim, yet as he has to retire from service three months hence, it would not be advisable to put him to act without also giving him an extension. The editor, therefore, thinks that it would be well to try Mr. Krishnamurti, who has all the qualifications necessary for the Diwanship and has had a long and meritorious service of twenty-seven years in the State, and that his appointment is sure to give satisfaction to the people.

MYSORE DESHABHIMANI, Bangalore, Oct. 23rd, 1897.

Imperfections in the administration of Mysore.

24. The Mysore Deshabhimani, of the 23rd October, complains that, as the Maharaja is a minor and the Regent a gosha lady, everything that has to be brought to the notice of Her Highness has to pass through the Private Secretary. This gentleman is entirely under the thumb of Mr. Campbell, and the latter has no will except that of the Diwan. Hence only such of the petitions that are presented by the people are brought to the notice of Her Highness as the Diwan likes and the rest are consigned to the waste paper basket.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Oct. 27th, 1897.

A criticism on the article on the administration of Mysore in the Madras Review.

25. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 27th October, in criticising an article in the Madras Review on the administration of Mysore, objects to some of the statements made in the Review as follows:—

(1) The Review says: "On the rendition of Mysore in 1881, it was resolved by the Government of India that gradually European officials in the State should be replaced by natives of India, but the present councillors have, in contravention of this, been giving employment to unqualified Europeans." This is only partially true. The Government of India simply say that European agency should give place to native agency; but by "native" they do not mean natives of India, but only natives of the Mysore province. To the natives of Mysore, Madrasees are as much aliens as Europeans, only with this difference, that Europeans, if employed under the State, do not bring down all their kith and kin and get employments for them too, while the Madrasees do so. The subjects of Mysore think it is better to have Europeans than Madrasees, because the lower appointments at least will then fall to the lot of the Mysoreans.

(2) Again the writer in the Review says that Sir Seshadri Aiyar has greater belief in the Representative Assembly than either the late Maharaja or the late Diwan. This, too, is not true. The Diwan, so far from encouraging criticism of his measures, has put an end to the standing committee of the assembly and has made the assembly all but a farce.

(3) The Review thinks it a great mistake on the part of the Government of India to have changed the nature of the council from being a consultative body into an executive body, and says that the Diwan ought to have had undivided responsibility in the administration, as he had under the late Maharaja. This, too, is open to objection. It is not true that the Diwan was unfettered under the late Maharaja. It is a well-known fact that the Maharaja, especially in the latter part of his administration, was very often upsetting the Diwan's proposals and acting against the Diwan's wishes in consultation with the Resident and other Europeans. The Government of India has certainly done what is good for the State in appointing an executive council to assist the Diwan, who, if allowed the sole responsibility, would not certainly have given satisfaction to the people.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 25th, 1897.

Unsatisfactory state of affairs in Hyderabad.

26. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th October, says:—Affairs in Hyderabad never seem to have been satisfactory. Mr. Plowden and the Nizam are constantly at loggerheads with each other and matters are stated to have come to a crisis.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

27. The Sasilekha, of the 15th October, regrets to find that the (Indian) authorities are not disposed to set any value upon the opinions of gentlemen like Colonel Hanna and General Chamberlain, who say that the British in India should confine themselves to India proper, bounded by the Himalayas on the north and the sea on the other sides. It remarks that the great military officer and diplomatist, General Chamberlain, is a far abler man than the generals who have expressed themselves in favour of the present wars. It is not surprised to find that the number of the famine-stricken people in India is estimated at 5 crores; for, when 80 crores of rupees were expended on wars during the last 20 years, would not the people get famished? The forecast is so appalling that it is impossible to say what the condition of the country may be 20 years hence. The paper therefore calls upon the enlightened public of India to forsake their petty jealousies, to hold monster meetings and submit to Her Majesty's Ministers memorials explaining the consequences of these wars upon the condition of the people.

Petty warfare.

Sasilekha, Madras, Oct. 15th, 1897.

28. The Suryodaya, of the 15th October, says that two Muhammadan Mullas from Afghanistan addressing a meeting consisting of Muhammadans and Hindus, said that British officials were trampling upon the blacks and that therefore the British should be driven out of India and the Sultan of Turkey should be installed in Delhi as Sovereign of India. They exhorted their hearers to collect funds for this purpose. A subscription list was then opened and Rs. 250 collected.

Seditious preaching by Afghan Mullas in Behar.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, Oct. 15th, 1897.

29. The same paper says:—The Government has prohibited the circulation of Turkish newspapers in India. We do not see why the Government should not also treat the Egyptian and Arabic papers in the same way.

The desirability of prohibiting the circulation of certain foreign newspapers in India.

30. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th October, in speaking of the death of the mother of the Natus of Poona, says that the peculiar circumstances under which the death took place will send a pang into the heart of every Hindu, and will create great indignation in the minds of the people against those who were the indirect cause of accelerating her death. No reasons have yet been shown which would justify the imprisonment of her two sons. The peculiar feelings of the Hindus in the matter of the death of parents are unknown to Englishmen. As ministering to parents in their last moments and performing their funeral ceremonies is a religious duty in the Hindus, its non-observance not only gives them great pain but is also attended with excommunication and public contumely. The action of the Bombay Government in deporting and imprisoning men without showing any cause and of the Government of India in sanctioning such high-handedness is little short of Russian despotism. Even a student of the lowest class would see there is no material difference between the despotic Government of Russia and the professedly constitutional Government of the British. Lord Lytton became unpopular towards the latter part of his administration, but the administration of Lords Elgin and Sandhurst has beaten that of Lord Lytton in unpopularity.

The death of the mother of the Natu brothers of Poona.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 25th, 1897.

31. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 14th October, says that the building near Ferok, in which explosives have been stored up, was broken open at night by some thieves and some of the explosives taken away by them. The article remarks that as it is quite inadvisable to store up dynamites, fuse, caps, etc., in one building, they should be kept separately under proper guard and the attention of the authorities is invited to the matter.

Theft of explosives stored up at Ferok.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Oct. 14th, 1897.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1897.

. Certificates of honour.

32. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th October, while congratulating those gentlemen of Malabar who were given certificates of honour by the Government of India in connection with the Diamond Jubilee, remarks that although some may consider that the nomination of some particular persons for the honour, while there are several others who are equally entitled and a few others who are better entitled, was an indiscreet action, yet the Government of India is not so much to be blamed. The blame lies on those who were responsible for such nominations.

Referring to the subject, a correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes that on account of the certificate of honour a certain official got a present of Rs. 25, and it was perhaps due to the circumstance that he does not wear a mundu (piece of cloth) that the present took the shape of money rather than that of the customary piece of cloth.

Issued—8th November 1897.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 21 OF 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th November 1897.

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

War in the North-west .. .. .. .. .. .. 311
Probable cause of the present war .. .. .. .. ib.
Seditious utterances and movements of the Afghans at Behar. ib.
Probable cost of the present war .. .. .. .. ib.
Reflections on the close of the frontier war .. .. .. 312
The frontier wars .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the frontier expedition .. .. .. .. ib.
The Amir of Kabul and the Indian Government .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—
A warning to the police .. .. .. .. .. 313
A serious charge against a certain constable .. .. ib.
The Ferok police .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Highhandedness of the Talipparamba police .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—
Remarks on Civil Courts' commissions .. .. .. 314
A prayer regarding the murder case of Dharmapuram mutt .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Desirability of appointing a Hindu as the village munsif of Adirámpatnam .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Advisability of issuing a circular to magistrates requiring them to use their discretion before committing persons to the Court of Sessions .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Complaint against the district munsif, Cannanore .. 315
Bench Magistrates, Calicut .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—Nil.

(d) Education—Nil.

(e) Local and Municipal—
Remarks on the contemplation of Government to raise house-tax in the City of Madras .. .. .. ib.
Election of the chairman of the Tellicherry municipality .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—Nil.

(g) Forests—Nil.

(h) Railways—
Advisability of providing every third-class railway carriage with an urinal .. .. .. .. .. 316
Insufficient lighting on the Madras Railway .. .. ib.

(i) Public Works—Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—Nil.

(k) General—
A rumour regarding rupees minted in 1840 .. .. ib.
Expediency of making Gódalúr a disbursing post office ib.
Necessity for a sub-registrar's office at Neduvassal-vattam .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Desirability of passing a rule regarding civilians going on hunting excursions .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A report against the vaccine depôt at Tanjore .. .. ib.
Wretched condition of the steps on the southern side of the temple tank at Tiruvallúr .. .. .. .. ib.
A complaint against the postmaster of Mahabalipuram .. 317
His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock and his good government .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont.

(k) General—cont.
A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock .. .. 317
Severity of cholera in Ammapett .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on Mr. Tremenheere .. .. .. .. ib.
A hint to Government regarding Mr. Tremenheere .. ib.
A complaint against the Postal authorities .. .. 318
The Hindustani Translator to Government .. .. ib.
Approving of the appointment of Mr. Dance as the permanent Collector of Malabar .. .. .. ib.
Muhammadans and the public service .. .. .. ib.
Bengali press .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Benefit of the British rule .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Christian morality .. .. .. .. .. .. 319
Attacks on the Native press .. .. .. .. ib.
Native sepoys and British soldiers .. .. .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Nil.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

A few suggestions regarding the construction of houses in Bangalore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Diwanship of Mysore .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Acting Diwan of Mysore .. .. .. .. .. 320
Remarks on the reception accorded to His Excellency by the Maharaja of Travancore .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Survey and settlement in the Cochin state .. .. .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Famine and cholera in Cuddapah .. .. .. .. ib.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Collection of toll at the entrances of Hindu Devastanams .. ib.
Offer of a military contingent by the Government of Australia .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 321
Reflections on Mr. Tilak's letter .. .. .. .. ib.
A desire that the meeting of the congress this year should be an exceptional success .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Who is the ruler of India—the Governor-General or the Commander-in-Chief? .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Parliament's pecuniary aid to the Government of India .. 322
Mr. Maclean, M.P., on Indian affairs .. .. .. .. ib.
Bombay Government is not to blame .. .. .. .. ib.
An advice to the people of this country .. .. .. ib.
Necessity for the release of Mr. Tilak and Nattu brothers .. ib.
Reflections on the action of the Government of Bombay .. ib.
A few hints to the congress .. .. .. .. .. 323
Discontinuance of certain Urdu newspapers .. .. .. ib.
The cause of the unrest in India .. .. .. .. ib.
The subjects to be discussed at the next meeting of the congress .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Distinction made between Europeans and natives by the plague authorities .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Iniquities of the boatmen plying boats in Elattur-Badagara canal, etc. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 324
Leper hospital, Cochin .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | Oct. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 1st and 15th Oct. 1897. |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 25th Sept. and 2nd, 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th Oct. 1897. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | 2nd, 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th Oct. 1897. |
| 6 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 2nd, 8th and 16th Oct. 1897. |
| 7 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 2nd, 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th Oct. 1897. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 13th Oct. 1897. |
| 9 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 29th Sept. and 20th Oct. 1897. |
| 10 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 27th Sept. 1897. |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 4th, 11th, 18th and 25th Oct. 1897. |
| 12 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th Oct. 1897. |
| 13 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 8th and 16th Sept., and 1st, 8th, 16th and 24th Oct. 1897. |
| 14 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 18th Sept. and 3rd, 10th, 17th and 30th Oct. 1897. |
| 15 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 25th Sept. and 2nd, 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th Oct. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 30th Sept. and 2nd, 7th, 9th, 12th, 14th, 16th and 19th Oct. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 4,000 | Nov. 1897. |
| 18 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakúru .. .. .. | 300 | 1st Oct. 1897. |
| 19 | "Satvasadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 250 | 30th Sept. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 15th Sept. 1897. |
| 21 | "Vignanavardhani" .. .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 100 to 150 | 30th Oct. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 30th Oct. and 6th and 13th Nov. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 30th Oct. and 3rd, 6th, 10th & 13th Nov. 1897. |
| 24 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 2nd, 5th, 9th and 12th Nov. 1897. |
| | KANARESE. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 78 | 6th and 13th Nov. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 26 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 1st, 8th and 15th Nov. 1897. |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 2,600 | 4th and 11th Nov. 1897. |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 625 | 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 400 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 30 | "Mysore Desabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 27th and 30th Oct., and 3rd and 6th Nov. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 25th Oct. and 4th Nov. 1897. |
| 32 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 25th ,, ,, 5th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. . | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 30th ,, ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 34 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st Nov. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 35 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 30th Oct. 1897. |
| 36 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 1st and 8th Nov. 1897. |
| 37 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 780 | 27th Oct. and 3rd and 10th Nov. 1897. |
| 38 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 30th ,, and 6th Nov. 1897. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 39 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 1st and 8th Nov. 1897. |
| 40 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 30th Oct. 1897. |
| 41 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th ,, ,, |
| 42 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras.. | 150 | 31st ,, and 7th Nov. 1897. |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 25th and 28th Oct., & 1st & 4th Nov. 1897. |
| 44 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 26th July 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 25th September, writes as follows:— War in the North-west is taking serious turn day by day. The Muhammadans attack the British troops unexpectedly, lying in ambush; hence much difficulty is experienced in overcoming them. They would not have ventured to commit such excesses had it not been for the support of the Amir. They are in possession of a large stock of arms and ammunition purchased at Kabul. British troops are being sent to Peshawar almost every day by special trains. How this affair will end is awaited with interest. It is said that Sir Mortimer Durand, a person who has great experience in the local affairs of North-west, in the course of a speech delivered in London, remarked that it would be impossible to bring this war to a close without great loss of life and money on the part of British Government. It would have been better had Government abstained from undertaking this war. But having once undertaken it, it should be its duty to see that it gains the day anyhow, lest the ignorant section of the Muhammadan community might grow impatient and cause disturbance. As the Russians are ever watching for an opportunity to pounce upon India, the British Government will do well not to give them an occasion to enter India. The present state of things is really critical and Government should be vigilant. It is really unfortunate that, at this crisis, India has not a proper Governor-General. It is hoped that, after this war is over, Government will avoid as far as possible engaging itself in unnecessary wars of this kind.

War in the North-west.

Travancore Abhimani, Nagercoil, Sept. 25th, 1897.

2. The Nilalochani, of the 27th September, says that when the Mir-Munshi of the Amir was asked to explain the cause of the present war, he replied that the Chiefs and Mullahs occupying the boundary lines were at the bottom, and that the best way of punishing them would be to withhold the pecuniary help rendered to them by the British and Afghan Governments. The paper presumes that the present war is the outcome of a great desire on the part of the Chiefs and Mullahs to make more money by compelling Government to buy them off in view to avoid their disturbance.

Probable cause of the present war.

Nilalochani, Negapatam, Sept. 27th, 1897.

3. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 2nd October, reports that two Mullahs from Afghanistan arrived at Behar and delivered in the bazaar street of that city a lecture named "Jigath," meaning stirring the people to undertake a religious war, remarking that the Muhammadans had been maltreated, that the English would be driven out of India, that the Amir of Afghanistan would be crowned at Delhi, that India would thus be governed by the Muhammadans, that the present frontier war was only to threaten the English, that a regular war would be commenced later on, and that it was to meet the expenses of such a war that they were collecting subscriptions, and so forth. The paper adds that Rs. 250 was collected forthwith, and observes that while Russia, which is one of the greatest powers in the world, has not the moral courage to come upon India, how can these weaklings do any harm to the English in India? The paper regards the actions and utterances of the Mullahs and Muhammadans as the outcome of a diseased brain.

Seditious utterances and movements of the Afghans at Behar.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1897.

4. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 4th October, speaking of the present war, says that nearly 40,000 armed men are now engaged at the frontier, and that their upkeep costs nearly £100 a head per month, aggregating to almost six crores of rupees. It further observes that should this war continue for three months more, it would cost Government nearly twenty crores of rupees, and that this large sum must be too heavy an infliction on India, seeing that she is already groaning under the effects of plague, cholera, famine and other national calamities.

Probable cost of the present war.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Oct. 4th, 1897.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Oct. 9th, 1897.

5. The Vikata Dutan, of the 9th October, remarks that the recent victory of the Sultan and the outbreak of riots at Calcutta and Manjéri induced Government to doubt the loyalty of its Muhammadan subjects and to send for a large military contingent from England. It adds that the present frontier war, which has almost come to a close as the Afridis have surrendered themselves to the British and are proposing terms for the payment of the expenses of war, belied the misapprehension of the British and brought to prominence the loyalty of the Amir and the Muhammadans. The paper advises the British as well as the Muhammadans not to give credence to the silly statements made in the Muhammadan newspapers of foreign countries.

Reflections on the close of the frontier war.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 1st, 1897.

6. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st November, writes thus on the policy of the English Government with regard to the tribes on the frontier:—"We have already said that the war now being carried on on the frontier was quite uncalled for. The policy that dictated it is wrong, and this result has been much loss of life and much money spent. The war is not yet over; there may be a great struggle in store for the troops at the front, and many more lives may have to be sacrificed before peace can be restored. It has been carried out in accordance with what has been called the 'forward policy,' a policy which seems always to have the fear of Russia before its eyes. We do not believe for a moment that the Russians have the slightest intention of ever invading India. They have quite enough to do in Europe. Besides we believe Russia is aware that she could not properly rule India. The civilisation is too complex, the work to be carried out is so diverse that the Moscovite would never be able to accomplish much if anything. The Russians did well in a semi-civilised country with wild tribes; but the case is different in India. India is now far more advanced politically than Russia, and if the Russians took possession of it, not only would the rate of progress be stopped, but it would have to be put back. We believe the Russians are aware of this, consequently they do not desire to conquor India. Such being the case, we see no reason why the tribes in our frontier should be interfered with in order to prevent the Russians coming into the country. The right plan would be to draw a line beyond which these wild tribes should not approach except as peaceful traders and travellers. They might be at liberty to do what they liked in their own land. There would then be no frontier wars, no loss of life, no spending of money.

The frontier wars.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 30th, 1897.

7. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 30th October, while denouncing the frontier expedition, says that although the British will undoubtedly gain victory over the tribes who are too weak and incapable to fight continually with the British, yet we are at a loss to understand what earthly benefit India can derive therefrom. The result of the war would be waste of money, loss of lives and consequent increase in the number of widows. It is very unjust on the part of Government to trouble again the people who are already in an impoverished state on account of famine, earthquake and many other oppressive acts. The wish is expressed that as the disturbances on the frontier are not in any way dangerous to India, the Government ought to terminate the war as soon as possible and turn its attention towards the welfare of the people.

Remarks on the frontier expedition.

The Kerala Chandrika, of the 25th October, referring to the same subject, says that although the conquest of the frontier tribes will add to the strength of the Indian Empire, yet the only matter for regret is that India should have to bear all the expenses involved in such expeditions.

ALHAMI, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1897.

8. The Alhami of the 31st October. The Habl-ul-Mateen, of Calcutta, in refutation of the suggestions of some of the Home papers—that if Government wishes now to capture Afghanistan, it would be easy for it to do so, as the frontier tribes will shortly be extirpated root and branch, and thus afford an opportunity for a well-equipped army on the frontier to proceed to Afghanistan and gain an easy victory—observes that even if the Indian Government takes Afghanistan, with a heavy loss of lives and money, it will be impossible for Government to maintain it, as the Afghans will not abide by the Indian laws, and that Russia, its bitter enemy, has already reached as far as Herat. In face of all these difficulties, strengthening the bonds of friendship with the Amir is much more valuable and conducive to happy results than the capture of his territories. If, at the present juncture, the Amir were to take up arms against the British, all the frontier tribes, who are now assuming a pacific attitude, will join with him, and possibly Russia will also afford him secret help. The Habl-ul-Mateen in winding up the article advises Government not to act according to the suggestion of the Home papers.

The Amir of Kabul and the Indian Government.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

9. The Desabhimani, of the 29th September, writes in English as follows:—"The notorious Muthukrishna Naidu has at last been convicted and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment. The universal satisfaction expressed by large crowds of spectators that witnessed the trial would make one believe that this Police officer, who was regarded as the best detective in the City Police, had come to his eminence by very suspicious means. The line of conduct adopted by this notorious convict is not unfrequently followed by the police in general. When a crime has been committed, the police have to detect the culprit and unless this is done they get a wigging from their authorities. The poor policeman is therefore driven to the necessity of pitching upon some one or other as the offender. Alas! how many poor people are now undergoing imprisonment, having been the victims of police conspiracy. This state of things can be mended if promotions were made to depend not on the number of detections but on the rarity of cases.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Sept. 29th, 1897.

A warning to the police.

"The conduct of the police in towns is rather tolerable, their chief work being concentrated to work up nuisance cases; but in villages their conduct is deplorable so much so that villagers dread the police more than they do actual robbers and thieves.

"It is hoped that men in authority will take steps to stop such abuses and turn the police into a blessing to the country."

10. A correspondent to the Viveka Thivakaran, of the 3rd October, observes that the punishment inflicted by the Taluk Magistrate of Tiruchengódu on Rahimdeen, a constable who was charged with theft and attempt to commit rape on a certain dancing woman, is inadequate considering the fact that he was in the habit of arresting young village women at nights on a charge of nuisance and, on the pretext of keeping them in custody in the police station, violating their chastity and driving them off before daybreak.

Viveka Thivakaran, Tiruchengódu, Oct. 3rd, 1897.

A serious charge against a certain constable.

11. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th October, invites the attention of the authorities to the various evils arising from the factiousness of the Ferok police. A correspondent has, it appears, written to the paper that, in the matter of the recent dynamite theft case at Ferok, the procedure and conduct of the local police were highly reprehensible. The remark is made that as matters are likely to go from bad to worse if the present state of affairs continue, the whole staff of the police stationed at Ferok should be transferred from the place.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Oct. 27th, 1897.

The Ferok police.

12. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes about the iniquities of the Talipparamba police as follows:—Some two days ago three constables of the above station got drunk at night and went to a house situated near the chira (tank) and called the inmates of the house who were women and got the door opened. The constables then uttered certain indecent words and tried to outrage the modesty of the women, who being struck with terror went inside and shut the door. The constables, who were greatly enraged at it, went into the garden and pulled out all the vegetables cultivated by the women and destroyed them and then left the house. Two Embrandri Brahmins who were then passing by the chira, hearing the hubbub, questioned the constables about the matter. The police then arrested them for nuisance and took them to the police station, half a mile away from the place, beating them severely on the way. When they came near the station gate they took a gold ring and three rupees from one of the Embrandris and let off both. The next day the Embrandris were preparing to put in a complaint against these constables, but some of their comrades interfered and compromised the matter, the ring being returned to the owner. Alluding to the above correspondence, the editor remarks that if the allegations made by the correspondent are true, it is a matter for great surprise and that it ought to be properly inquired into by Mr. Bidie himself.

Highhandedness of the Talipparamba police.

(b) Courts.

TRAVANCORE, ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Sept. 25th, 1897.

Remarks on Civil Courts' commissions.

13. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 25th September, referring to the procedure now followed in District and Munsifs' Courts of appointing persons on payment of a certain commission to do such duties as administering oath, searching property and taking depositions at home of persons who could not attend the court, suggests the desirability of appointing peons and gumastahs of the court for such work and thus giving them some pecuniary encouragement rather than selecting outsiders for such purposes. The paper also requests the authorities to fix once for all the scale of commission payable for such work in view to avoid the arbitrary grant of fees now in vogue.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 16th, 1897.

A prayer regarding the murder case of Dharmapuram mutt.

14. The Jananukulan, of the 16th October, is surprised to learn that the accused in the murder case of the Dharmapuram mutt were acquitted in spite of the strong evidences against them. The paper requests Government to review the records of the case and administer justice.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 30th, 1897.

Desirability of appointing a Hindu as the village munsif of Adirámpatnam.

15. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 30th October, requests Government to appoint a Hindu as the village munsif of Adirámpatnam, which, according to the recent census, has 10,800 inhabitants, of whom 5,300 are Hindus, the rest being Muhammadans. He protests against the order of the Collector that the unanimous consent of the Muhammadans for the appointment of a munsif for that village should be obtained, and that the person to be selected for the purpose should be a Muhammadan. The correspondent's protest is based on the circumstances that the Muhammadans are extremely bigoted, and are therefore likely to be partial to their own community, that all the Muhammadans of the said village are engaged in one and the same profession and are related to one another, and that none of them has any respectable social position or educational qualifications. He concludes by saying that the Hindus, on the contrary, are not so bigoted and partial as their Muhammadan brethren, and that many of them possess the necessary qualifications, and requests the authorities concerned to select a proper person from among the Hindus to be the munsif of the said village.

Advisability of issuing a circular to magistrates requiring them to use their discretion before committing persons to the Court of Sessions.

16. The same paper complains that sub-magistrates, from their ignorance of law, often commit to the Court of Sessions even petty cases triable by themselves. It says that this procedure, while entailing on the parties concerned unnecessary trouble, delay and expense, imposes additional and unnecessary work on the District Judges, who are not therefore able to dispose of their civil work without delay. The paper requests the authorities to issue a circular to all magistrates requiring them to use their discretion before they commit persons to the Court of Sessions for trial.

17. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 8th November, writes that the district munsif of Cannanore generally attends the court at 1-30 P.M. and leaves it by 4 P.M. It is a matter of great regret that the munsif consults his own convenience only without giving the slightest thought to the inconvenience to which the parties are put thereby. Another matter of complaint against the munsif is that, to get through the work in time, he does not examine witnesses properly.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 8th, 1897.

Complaint against the district munsif, Cannanore.

18. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th November, invites the attention of the Collector of Malabar to the inconveniences experienced by the Bench Magistrates of Calicut and the parties by the removal of the Bench Magistrates' Court to the Stationary Magistrate's Cutcherry, and also by the placing of the Bench Magistrates under the direction of the Stationary Magistrate. The article says that the present arrangement should be changed and the Bench Magistrates' Court should be brought to the Town Magistrate's Court and they should be placed under the presidency of either the Town Magistrate or the Assistant Collector or the Deputy Collector.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 10th, 1897.

Bench Magistrates, Calicut.

(e) Local and Municipal.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th October, referring to the contemplation of Government to enhance house tax in the City of Madras in view to increase the municipal resources for the purpose of introducing the drainage system in certain parts of the city, observes that not only house-tax but also all other taxes, such as wheel tax and professional tax, which are generally paid only by men of high social position, should be raised. The paper thinks that if the collection of house tax and wheel tax, which is at present unsatisfactory, be properly looked after, and the expenses of the present municipal establishment be carefully scrutinized, the Madras municipality could effect a good saving. The paper hopes that the citizens of Madras will bestow careful attention on this subject of great importance.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 7th, 1897.

Remarks on the contemplation of Government to raise house tax in the City of Madras.

20. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 3rd November, says that a meeting of the Tellicherry municipal council was recently held to elect a chairman, and Mr. Fernandes, head clerk of the Sub-Collector's office, and Mr. Lemerle, of the local bar, who had offered themselves as candidates, got seven and four votes, respectively. As the number of votes obtained by Mr. Fernandes was not double that obtained by Mr. Lemerle, it was resolved to hold another election, which is fixed for the 30th November. The article, while strongly protesting against the candidature of Mr. Fernandes for several reasons, supports the candidature of Mr. Lemerle, and remarks that when Mr. Lemerle was the chairman on a previous occasion, he conducted the administration very ably and satisfactorily and the municipal finance was also greatly improved. The Sub-Collector is an ex-officio councillor of the municipality, and when his head clerk becomes the chairman, the Sub-Collector himself will practically be the chairman. The present condition of the municipality is very deplorable and the councillors should therefore consider over the matter deeply and elect Mr. Lemerle as the chairman.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 3rd, 1897.

Election of the chairman of the Tellicherry municipality.

The Kerala Patrika and the Manorama, of the 6th and 8th November, respectively, alluding to the same subject, express a similar opinion. The Manorama says that Mr. Fernandes ought to retire from the field if the object aimed at by local self-government is to be fully realised.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1897.

Advisability of providing every third-class railway carriage with an urinal.

21. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd October, after pointing out how third-class railway passengers greatly contribute to the revenue of the railway company, and regretting the inconvenience they are put to in consequence of the absence of latrine accommodation from those carriages, while passengers of first and second classes who do not contribute so much to the income of the company are not subject to such a hardship, feels sanguine that this grievance will be redressed if His Excellency Lord Havelock be pleased to bestow a little attention on the subject.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 30th, 1897.

Insufficient lighting on the Madras Railway.

22. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 30th October, says that as the lights in the local train running from Calicut to Tirur in the evening go out by the time it reaches Ferok, passengers have to sit in the dark throughout the journey. It therefore invites the attention of the Railway authorities to the matter.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1897.

A rumour regarding rupees minted in 1840.

23. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd October, complains that rupees minted in the year 1840 are rumoured to be uncurrent, and that some merchants giving credence to the rumour reject such rupees when tendered, although there is no Government order to that effect. He requests Government to detect and punish such merchants.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengódu, Oct. 3rd, 1897.

Expediency of making Gúdalúr a disbursing post office.

24. A correspondent to the Viveka Thivakaran, of the 3rd October, reports that the delivery of posts in Samakkulam is considerably delayed for the reason that it is thirteen miles from Coimbatore. The correspondent thinks that if Gúdalúr, which is only three miles from the place, be made a disbursing post office, it would prove advantageous to the people.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Oct. 4th, 1897.

Necessity for a sub-registrar's office at Neduvassalvattam.

25. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 4th October, requests the authorities to open a sub-registrar's office in Neduvassalvattam, on the ground that its absence subjects the people of the place to great hardship and inconvenience.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Oct. 8th, 1897.

Desirability of passing a rule regarding civilians going on hunting excursions.

26. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th October, reports that a European shot a peacock at Ambala, and that on a dispute arising in consequence between him and two natives, the latter were killed. The paper requests Government to pass a rule in the case of civilians going on hunting excursions even as it has done in the case of soldiers.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 9th, 1897.

A report against the vaccine depôt at Tanjore.

27. The Jananukulan, of the 9th October, speaking of the vaccine depôt at Tanjore, reports that the cow lymph used there for purposes of vaccination during this year has in very many cases proved totally ineffectual, and requests the authorities concerned to inquire into the matter and adopt such measures as will make vaccination a success in that place.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Oct. 9th, 1897.

Wretched condition of the steps on the southern side of the temple tank at Tiruvallúr.

28. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 9th October, reports that the steps on the southern side of the temple tank at Tiruvallúr are in so wretched and dilapidated a condition that they are likely to prove dangerous to the devotees who frequent the shrine at that place in large numbers. The paper hopes that the Deputy Collector of the taluk will adopt measures to get the steps repaired as early as possible.

29. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 9th October, complains that the postmaster of Mahabalipuram, instead of having letters directly delivered to the addressees, sends them through any passer-by he meets with, and that the letters in consequence do not reach the parties concerned. He hopes that the authorities will attend to this piece of irregularity.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Oct. 9th, 1897.

A complaint against the postmaster of Mahabalipuram.

30. The Lokopakari, of the 13th October, writes as follows:—It is gratifying to observe His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock evince great interest in the well-being of the people whom he rules over. His Excellency seldom lets slip an opportunity to do good to the people, and always shows due respect to public opinion. His Excellency appointed the Raja of Bobbili as a member of the Legislative Council in the place of the late Maharaja of Vizianagram, which was viewed with universal satisfaction. His Excellency, in compliance with the request of the public, ordered the release of Mr. Mangesha Rao, who was unjustly punished, and thus convinced the public of his benignity. His Excellency rarely entrusts anything to his Councillors but does everything himself to promote the interest of the public. His Excellency has adopted suitable and timely measures to prevent the spread of famine in this Presidency, and allowed the public to celebrate Her Majesty's Diamond Jubilee as they pleased, without any personal interference. His Excellency is at Madura at present. People who are aggrieved should represent their grievances in a loyal and respectful manner. They should also be grateful to Government for all the benefits they enjoy at present. His Excellency has directed that most of the things which are required for the use of public offices, such as wax-cloth, padlock, etc., should be purchased locally. This system while encouraging local industry has enabled Government to effect a saving to the extent of Rs. 1,53,865 during the year 1896-97. Papers have been purchased from the local paper mills for about Rs. 5,834, and there is yet a balance of Rs. 7,224 left unspent. Orders have been issued for the purchase of printing ink which is of local manufacture. All these measures will undoubtedly encourge local industry. His Excellency has been pleased to direct the grant of agricultural loans to the ryots in the famine-affected districts in the north of this Presidency, the grant of remission in some cases, and the opening of relief works which saved many lives from death by starvation. We pray to the Almighty to bless our merciful Governor with long life.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 13th, 1897.

His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock and his good government.

31. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th October, rejoices to learn that His Excellency Lord Havelock has appointed Mr. N. Subramaniem Administrator-General—a post which was hitherto held only by Europeans. The paper hopes that His Excellency will confirm Mr. Bashiyam Aiyangar in his post as Advocate-General, and also reinstate Mr. Mangesha Rao in his old appointment and encourage him by giving him a suitable promotion in consideration of the fact that he encountered endless difficulties on behalf of Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 14th, 1897.

A request to His Excellency Lord Havelock.

32. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 16th October, reports that cholera is raging in Ammapett and that the opening of a hospital in that place will be of immediate relief to the people in distress.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 16th, 1897.

Severity of cholera in Ammapett.

33. The Paryan, of the 23rd October, hearing that Mr. Tremenheere will be appointed to succeed Mr. Gabriel Stokes as Revenue Secretary, thinks that his appointment will do immense good to the people. It says that Mr. Tremenheere is a patient and conscientious officer who will never overlook corruption.

PARAYAN, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1897.

Remarks on Mr. Tremenheere.

34. The Parayan, of the 30th October, writes as follows:—The people in a district will be happy only when higher officers exercise their control over the work of their subordinates. Mr. Tremenheere is one of those officers who have learnt this secret. He generally scrutinizes the work of his subordinates in order to do justice to the people. He is therefore disliked by subordinate officials given up to corruption, who out of mere malice try to prejudice Government by writing in newspapers that he is impatient and so forth. It is hoped that Government will not give credence to such false statements.

PARAYAN, Madras, Oct. 30th, 1897.

A hint to Government regarding Mr. Tremenheere.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 30th, 1897.

A complaint against the Postal authorities.

35. The Janonukulan, of the 30th October, quotes some striking instances in which some of the issues of that newspaper sent by post did not reach the addressees, and requests the Postal authorities to adopt measures and set matters right.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Oct. 30th, 1897.

The Hindustani Translator to Government.

36. The Andhraprakasika, of the 30th October, complains that the expenditure on the Hindustani Translator's office is nearly double that on any of the other Translators' offices and observes that when all the other Translators are natives, it is but natural, that the Muhammadans should request the Hindustani Translator's place to be given to one of their community. By giving the post to a duly qualified Muhammadan, when it falls vacant next time, the Government would not only be doing justice to the Muhammadan community, but would also greatly economise public expenditure.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1897.

Approving of the appointment of Mr. Dance as the permanent Collector of Malabar.

37. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 25th October, in approving of the appointment of Mr. Dance as the permanent Collector of Malabar, says that the appointment has given general satisfaction in Malabar and expresses the wish that Mr. Dance who knows the district well, and who has the capacity to administer it will be kept long in that district as the administration of Malabar requires great skill owing to the peculiar nature of its people and their customs.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th October, referring to the same subject expresses a similar opinion.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1897.

Muhammadans and the public service.

38. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 23rd October, contains the following extract from the Aligarh Institute Gazette to the following effect:—

Mr. Morrison has shown a great sympathy with the Muhammadans, in giving them a wholesome advice. He points out that only very few Muhammadans are, as compared with the Hindus, educated and qualified for public service. Under these circumstances it is quite advisable that Muhammadans should be fully educated in order to be at par with the Hindus in the public service. The editor of the Aligarh Institute Gazette fully concurs with Mr. Morrison in the above views, and advises them, Muhammadans, to improve their educational status; otherwise their cry that the Hindus get a lion's share in the public service, will be useless.

ALHAMI, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1897.

Bengali press.

39. The Alhami, of the 31st October, with reference to the statements of the Englishman that the tone of some of the Bengali papers still remains unchanged, and they are as usual making virulent attacks on the policy of Government not knowing that such attacks will be productive of serious results, observes that if what is said by the Englishman is true, the tone of the Bengali papers should be moderated.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Nov. 1st, 1897.

Benefit of the British rule.

40. A correspondent from the district of Kurnool, writing again to the Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 1st November, says that what was intended by the remarks about Tilak's case in his previous letter was, to show that the case has not produced any effect whatever on the peace, tranquility and freedom enjoyed by the people of India. However, it would be a source of pleasure to see that the writings of Mr. Tilak are, in the opinion of the Judicial authorities at home, proved to be free from sedition and Mr. Tilak liberated. Adverting to the British administration in India the correspondent observes that the developments made in all directions thereby are obviously marvellous and that it has conferred many benefits on India. The people enjoy all kinds of privileges and liberties. Besides this the Government has developed the educational status of its subjects, but the educated natives of India as soon as they finish their collegiate course take to carping at the British policy. The only aspiration they have is to get employment in the public service, instead of taking themselves to other occupations. In conclusion the correspondent remarks that on account of the writings of some shortsighted people—which are always based on self interested motives—the fair name of some of the native papers has been smirched. It is, therefore, impolitic on the part of the Government to restrict the privileges of the native press generally, but it should prevent the publication of such seditious writings.

Christian morality.

41. The Alhami, of the 7th November, quotes an article from the Aum, of Lahore, of which the following is an excerpt:— ALHAMI, Madras, Nov. 7th, 1897.

None are more cruel and ruthless than the Christians. They have neither fellow-feeling nor fear of God. The Hindu, Muhammadan and Buddhist religions prohibit, but Christianity allows, dissection of human bodies. In Edinburgh and in other places white men have privately sold bodies to surgeons. The civilised European does devilish acts under cover of scientific researches.

Attacks on the Native press.

42. The same paper in writing that Home papers contain articles regarding the abolition of the liberty of the Native press accusing it of treachery, observes that though such an undeserved imputation will move the feelings of the Native press, still it is incumbent upon it not to take umbrage, but to give proof of its sincerity and loyalty to the British Government.

Native sepoys and British soldiers.

43. The same paper says in reply to the question of the Englishman why should the native sepoys be at the front on the frontier in preference to European soldiers, writes that it is the good fortune of the native sepoys that they are offered the very first opportunity of displaying their valour and of conquering their enemy, and Government is not unaware of the gallantry and loyalty shown by the Indian sepoys in this expedition.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

A few suggestions regarding the construction of houses in Bangalore.

44. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd October, referring to the recent accident which occurred in Bangalore in consequence of the fall of a building in which two lives were lost, observes that many of the houses in Bangalore are unscientifically constructed with such weak materials as mud, unburnt bricks, and so forth, and that the Mysore Government is to blame, as it has been very indifferent to construction of houses by its subjects. The paper wishes that a committee should be appointed to inspect the houses under construction in Bangalore, and hopes that a rule will be passed protesting against any construction of houses without the previous sanction of Government and directing that a newly constructed house should not be occupied unless and until it is duly certified to be worthy of occupation by an officer to be appointed for the purpose. SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1897.

Diwanship of Mysore.

45. The Vijayathvajam, of the 24th October, hearing that the Diwan of Mysore intends going on leave, observes that the Diwanship of Mysore should not, as some suppose, be kept vacant till his return, as the want of a competent Diwan is likely to affect the administration of the State, and wishes that either Mr. Thambu Chettiyar, who once acted as Diwan and possesses a good knowledge of the administration of the State and of the customs and manners of the people, or any such able officer should be appointed to act as Diwan. VIJAYATHVAJAM, Dévikóttai, Oct. 24th, 1897.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 8th, 1897.

The Acting Diwan of Mysore.

46. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th November, advocates the appointment of Mr. Krishna Murti as acting Diwan during the absence of Sir Seshadri Iyer, if it were only to give him a trial, and says that his appointment would be the most popular.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 30th, 1897.

Remarks on the reception accorded to His Excellency by the Maharaja of Travancore.

47. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 30th October, referring to the reception accorded by His Highness the Maharaja of Travancore to His Excellency the Governor on the occasion of his recent visit to that State, says that the Maharaja went out of his way having gone to the ferry to meet His Excellency. The popular opinion is that it was not dignified enough on the part of the Maharaja to have gone to the Kalppala ferry to receive His Excellency and afterwards driven with him to the Residency. If we reflect upon what had taken place at Cochin, we would be convinced that this was due to the fault of the Diwan. It was the Eliya Raja and the Diwan who received His Excellency when he arrived at Cochin, and His Highness the Raja received the Governor only in the Durbar Hall. As it was quite in keeping with the European customs, His Excellency could not have taken exception to it. On the contrary, it would have tended to increase His Excellency's respect for the Raja. If the Diwan of Travancore were particular in maintaining self-respect, the Maharaja would not have been brought to the ferry like this. If he had considered that His Excellency was only a paid servant of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress and that His Highness was the ruler of a State, there would not have been such an undignified procedure. The article therefore hopes that the Travancore authorities would be more particular in future regarding matters of this sort.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 6th, 1897.

Survey and settlement in the Cochin state.

48. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 6th November, referring to the survey and settlement proposed to be conducted in the Cochin state, says that it is not beneficial to the State to conduct a settlement on the lines followed in the British territory. The British Government is justified in enhancing the taxes so as to meet the expenses involved in administering and protecting the Empire, but as the present revenue in the Cochin state is more than what is actually required for administrative purposes, the Sirkar ought to see in conducting the new settlement that it does not increase the existing assessment.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Nov. 2nd, 1897.

Famine and cholera in Cuddapah.

49. The Sasilekha, of the 2nd November, regrets to observe that famine is still raging in the Proddutur taluk of the Cuddapah district, while the relief works have been closed. In many of the villages, there are no rains, crops have withered, labourers have no work, and food-stuffs are at famine-prices. It remarks that the work of granting loans to ryots was conducted very unsatisfactorily, that 3 Pariahs who cultivated 5 acres of land jointly had received each Rs. 30, while some had not even got a pie. The village officers received portions of the loans granted as bribery and the ryots preferred complaints against them, though it must be very hard for them to prove them. It also regrets to note that the prevalence of cholera in Cuddapah and Pulivendla is causing great suffering to the people, who have already endured so much from famine, and prays that Government will protect the helpless orphans, widows and the poor until at least the next harvest.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Sept. 29th, 1897.

Collection of toll at the entrances of Hindu Devastanams.

50. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 29th September, condemns the system, which is now in vogue in certain Hindu Devastanams, of collecting tolls at gateways and other entrances of temples, on the ground that it is quite unwarranted and unjust, and that the devotees have every right to enter the shrine at all reasonable times. The correspondent thinks that this grievance, among other things of a similar nature on the part of the Hindu devotees, deserves redress.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th September, hearing that the Govment of Australia has offered to help the British, who are now engaged in the frontier war in the north-west, with a military contingent of hundred soldiers, observes that there is sufficient army in India and that the acceptance of the offer of the Australian Government would be a sheer disgrace to the people as well as to the Government of India inasmuch as the Australian Government strongly protested against the coolies of this country entering Australia to earn their livelihood.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 30th, 1897.

Offer of a military contingent by the Government of Australia.

52. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 2nd October, publishes a Tamil translation of a letter written by Mr. Tilak to one of his friends at the time when his case was under inquiry, and observes that the tone and spirit of the letter disclose many of the sterling qualities of Mr. Tilak and that India should really feel proud of having a son who preferred going to the Andamans to admitting a crime which he has not done. The paper concludes with the remark that the people of this country believe that the punishment of Mr. Tilak was due to the fact that the jury was ignorant of the Mahratta language and that the Judge did not properly explain to the jury the law bearing on the subject, and hopes that the authorities will soon find out the blunder they have committed in the case in question.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1897.

Reflections on Mr. Tilak's letter.

53. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd October, writes as follows:—The congress should hold its meeting this year with exceptional success. The people of Amraoti spare no pains to achieve this object. They have raised subscription nearly amounting to Rs. 30,000. The congress committee at Amraoti is, no doubt, a little disheartened in consequence of the agitation caused by the Government of Bombay. This is just the time for the people of India to set aside all petty misunderstandings and band themselves together for this common cause. If the congress is weakened a little, the Anglo-Indians will simply ridicule it. It is therefore incumbent on the people to send this time a larger number of delegates than on former occasions, and have India represented as widely as possible. Among the many news subject to be discussed this year, there is one very important on which special attention ought to be bestowed, namely, the authority vested in Government in virtue of the order pased in 1827 to commit persons to prison without trial. The congress should request Parliament to get this dangerous order repealed, inasmuch as people can hardly feel themselves happy so long as it is in force. Such an order is unbecoming the dignity of any civilised Government in these days. Muhammadan Government in former times never exercised such an arbitrary power as this. The Nattu brothers of Bombay were sent to jail in virtue of the order under reference. The congress should leave no stone unturned in getting this order amended. It should also point out that the recent judgment delivered by the Bombay High Court in respect of newspapers is calculated to gag rather permanently the popular voice. In these circumstances, it behoves all patriots of this country to attend the ensuing congress without failure.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1897.

A desire that the meeting of the congress this year should be an exceptional success.

54. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th October, writes an article under the heading "Who is the ruler of India—the Governor-General or the Commander-in-Chief?" and therein observes that the Viceroy has all along been a mere puppet in the hands of the Commander-in-Chief unlike his predecessors, which may be fairly inferred from a lecture delivered by the Commander-in-Chief at Simla, and which was in fact the real cause of the unnecessary war that has consumed the revenues of India. The paper hopes that the Home authorities will in future at least appoint competent persons as Viceroys.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 9th, 1897.

Who is the ruler of India—the Governor-General or the Commander-in-Chief?

55. The same paper says that famine, plague and frontier war have greatly drained Indian revenues and the financial condition of the Government of India is deplorable, so much so that if no help from without in the shape of grant is forthcoming it must inevitably be in great pecuniary embarrassment next year. The paper hopes that the British Parliament will be pleased to sanction a grant this year as suggested by the Maharaja of Dhurbanga, and feels sanguine that the grant in question will be sanctioned as there seems to be considerable agitation at present on this subject in England.

Parliament's pecuniary aid to the Government of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 12th, 1897.

56. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th October, translating the several remarks of Mr. Maclean, M. P., on Indian affairs and endorsing all of them as being true, observes that it is surprised to see him talk disparagingly of the congress, while it has been holding the same opinion as his in respect of the several subjects he has dwelt on, and that this country will enjoy happiness if the British Government be pleased to act up to his wishes.

Mr. Maclean, M. P., on Indian affairs.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 13th, 1897.

57. The Lokopakari, of the 13th October, observes that, when the peculiar circumstances of Poona are taken into consideration, the Government of Bombay is fully justified in its procedure in connection with the recent murder at Poona, and that His Excellency Lord Sandhurst is not to blame. The paper adds that had any chief officer under any other Government been so murdered, the result would have been by far worse—the whole population would have been thrown into a lime-kiln and burnt to death. The paper concludes by remarking that the Government of Bombay must be pronounced to have been extremely generous and indulgent considering the heinousness of the crimes the culprit has been found to be guilty of, that this country can never hope to enjoy the blessings of a good Government so long as such fellows are in it, and that the people of this country should endeavour to foster a spirit of loyalty towards the British Government.

Bombay Government is not to blame.

58. The same paper advises the people of India to be loyal and grateful to the British Government for the manifold blessings they enjoy under its benign rule. It observes that under the Muhammadan rule religious persecutions were most unscrupulously carried on and that thousands of Hindus in those days preferred death to conversion, whereas under the British rule the subjects are at perfect liberty to profess their own religion —the greatest of all the advantages the subjects may hope to enjoy under a good Government. It adds that Government spares no pains to spread education far and wide and encourage educated men by conferring on them good appointments. The paper concludes with the remark that the institution of courts of justice, the opening of railway, postal and telegraphic communications and hundred other benefits place the people under obligation to Government.

An advice to the people of this country.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 14th, 1897.

59. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th October, thinks it desirable that Mr. Tilak and Nattu brothers who were imprisoned on suspicion of having had concern in the murder of Messrs. Rand and Ayerst should be set at liberty in consideration of the fact that Damodar Chepakar, who confesses to be the author of the horrible deed, is arrested and is in custody. The paper says that the people of Bombay were disappointed in their expectations under the Government of Lord Sandhurst, and that His Excellency Lord Sandhurst should therefore resign his Governorship, and eagerly wishes that both Lord Sandhurst and Lord Elgin should leave India.

Necessity for the release of Mr. Tilak and Nattu brothers.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Oct. 16th, 1897.

60. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th October, thinks that the several measures adopted by the Government of Bombay in connection with the recent murders are the outcome of a state of excitement and Reflections on the action of the Government of Bombay.

impatience, and that some of the English papers which were hitherto condemning Mr. Tilak now write in quite a different strain saying that the punishment of Mr. Tilak is unjust, that the Judge who passed the sentence is sadly wanting in experience and accumen. The paper concludes by exhorting the people to do their duty unmindful of all that has transpired.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 19th, 1897.

A few hints to the congress.

61. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th October, wishes that the congress should thank the British public for the timely pecuniary aid rendered by them to the famine-stricken people of this country and request the British Parliament to pay the Government of India a moiety of the cost of the frontier war. It adds that, in mofussil Courts of Sessions, if the accused so desires, more than half the number of jurors is allowed to consist of natives, whereas such is not the case in the High Courts of the Presidency towns, and hopes that the congress will take steps to see that in all cases the jury is impannelled in accordance with the wishes of the accused both in the mofussil and Presidency Courts of Sessions alike.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 8th, 1897.

Discontinuance of certain Urdu newspapers.

62. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th November, remarks:—The Lucknow Advocate says that owing to the measures lately taken by Government to put an end to the vernacular papers, some twelve papers were discontinued. On enquiring we learn that as the editors of some of these papers were called upon now and then by the Assistant Commissioner of the place to answer questions, they were tired of dancing attendance at his residence and so have thought it prudent to discontinue their papers altogether, while others have been obliged to do so for want of subscribers.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 1st, 1897.

The cause of the unrest in India.

63. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st Novmeber, has the following paragraph:—The Englishman is angry because a London paper gave prominent insertion to a letter from an Indian correspondent, "a gentleman," as the journal described him, "in a public office in Calcutta," attributing the prime cause of the unrest in India to "the brutal treatment of natives of all classes by Englishmen." We do not know if this gentleman who wrote the letter, is the same person who had his ears pulled by his European superior. Whoever he may be, we think that there is a good deal of truth in his statement. The treatment accorded to all but the menial classes, may not generally extend to brute force, but that it is arrogant and insulting goes without saying. Even the Pioneer the other day admitted as much and expressed the opinion that a change in this respect will be attended with an appreciable change in the political situation in India. We cannot of course say anything of the instances quoted by this Indian gentleman in his letter.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 15th, 1897.

The subjects to be discussed at the next meeting of the congress.

64. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 15th November, is glad that the congress is after all not to be postponed this year, and says that the following weighty subjects ought to occupy the attention of the meeting:—

The question whether the ruling laid down by the Judge in the Tilak case is correct.

Then there is the war at the frontiers which most people consider quite unnecessary. It has already cost a large sum of money and it is not yet finished so that a very large amount may still have to be spent, or rather thrown away, and a stop should be put to the war as soon as possible. A line should be drawn and the tribesmen should be told that if they came beyond this they would be punished. So long as they remained in their own land they might do what they like. There would then be no frontier wars.

The meeting will also have to discuss the plague regulation, in fact, everything connected with the plague and famine should receive attention.

Distinction made between Europeans and natives by the plague authorities.

65. The same paper hears that the plague authorities in several places make a distinction between Europeans and natives, and says that this must be protested against.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 27th, 1897.

Iniquities of the boatmen plying boats in Elattur-Badagara canal, etc.

66. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th October, says that as the charges levied by boat men plying boats in Ellatur-Badagara canal and also by the transit-drivers from Badagara to Tellicherry are sometimes very exorbitant and the manner in which these men behave towards the travellers, especially women, is very insulting and annoying, the authorities should turn their attention to the matter. The article gives a recent instance in which two European ladies Mrs. Bloomfield (sic) and Mrs. Rees, who went to Elattur to go by boat to Badagara, were ridiculed and teased by boatmen and some others who had assembled at the ferry. It appears that these ladies who were quite strangers to Malabar were compelled by the boatmen at Elattur to pay double the amount of the usual rate, and when they reached Badagara there also a gang of people flocked round them and began to speak indecently. One of the ladies knew Malayalam very well, which fact was not known to the people. This lady says that the people went so far as to observe that the Englishmen would be killed ere long. Again the transit charge from Badagara to Tellicherry is Rs. 2–8–0, but these ladies were required to pay Rs. 4. Is this not unjust? Is it not owing to their being women and to their ignorance of the country that the boatmen and the transit-drivers acted as they did? When the boatmen at Elattur behaved discourteously towards these ladies, the constable No. 157 was on the spot witnessing the whole thing. The article therefore hopes that the authorities will summon this constable and ask him about the matter and do the needful.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 10th, 1897.

Leper hospital, Cochin.

67. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th November, alluding to a correspondence which was received by the editor of the paper complaining of the indifference shown by the authorities of the Leper hospital at Cochin in the matter of giving food and other necessaries to the inmates of the hospital, says that as the matter is one which requires to be seriously attended to, the Collector of Malabar will take the necessary action.

[Issued 26th November 1897.]

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 30th November 1897.

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

The war at the frontier .. .. .. .. .. .. 327
Russia demanding old arrears from Turkey .. .. .. ib.
The frontier war .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Evacuation of Thessaly .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Expulsion of the Egyptians from Syria .. .. .. ib.
The British occupation of Egypt .. .. .. .. 328
Mir Abdulla Quillam's views on the evacuation of Thessaly and the British treatment of the natives .. .. .. ib.
The Egyptian problem .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Turkish occupation of Thessaly .. .. .. .. ib.
Award of punishment to the Afridis .. .. .. .. 329
The Amir and the frontier disturbances .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—
Careless jutka-drivers .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Destruction of stray and rabid dogs .. .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—
Uselessness of the village munsifs .. .. .. ib.
Remarks against the sub-magistrate of Kudavásal .. 330
Commenting on the High Court's circular regarding the attendance of District Judges in courts .. .. ib.
The Tilak case .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Warrants for attachments issued by the Civil Courts .. 331

(c) Jails—Nil.

(d) Education—Nil.

(e) Local and Municipal—
A complaint against Government regarding the payment of abkári duty to the municipality .. .. .. ib.
A few suggestions to the chairman of the Karúr municipality .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Unsatisfactory condition of the municipal administration of Tanjore .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A request to the Negapatam municipality regarding the "Jubilee well" .. .. .. .. .. 332
Municipal taxation in Madras .. .. .. .. ib.
Kalpathi car festival and the Palghat municipality .. ib.
Bad condition of Veliyangod-Chowghat canal .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
Selfishness on the part of some Government officials .. ib.
A complaint against the examination in surveying for the karnams .. .. .. .. .. .. 333

(g) Forests—Nil.

(h) Railways—
Thefts in the goods-shed, Calicut .. .. .. .. ib.

(i) Public Works—Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—
Iniquities of the Salt officers .. .. .. .. ib.

(k) General—
Desirability of increasing the pay of the karnams .. ib.
Remarks on an order to Government treasuries regarding the receipt of rupees .. .. .. .. 334
Comments on the remarks of His Excellency Lord Havelock regarding the Native State of Cochin .. ib.
Reflections on the replies given by His Excellency Lord Havelock to the various memorials and addresses presented to him during his recent tour .. .. ib.
Adulteration of articles of food .. .. .. .. ib.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—*cont.

(k) General—cont.
Advisability of appointing some more stamp-vendors at Dévakóttai .. .. .. .. .. .. 334
Permanent assessment .. .. .. .. .. 335
Government Translators .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Famine relief fund and Cuddapah ryots .. .. .. ib.
Nadapuram hospital to be re-opened .. .. .. ib.
Irregularities of the postmen attached to the Lakkadi post office .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Tiruvellur sub-registry office to be removed to a more convenient locality .. .. .. .. .. 336
Christian prejudice .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Remarks on certain Acts of Government of India .. .. ib.
Amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code .. .. .. 337
Indian Postal Act .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The University member on the Legislative Council .. .. ib.
Remarks from the Templar (Canada) on the revival of the Contagious Diseases Acts in India .. .. .. .. ib.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Criticism on the article in the Madras Review on the administration of Mysore .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Considering that a certain abkári order passed by the Diwan of Cochin is unjust .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Governor's visit to Travancore .. .. .. .. 338

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Nil.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Opinion of the Irish press—specially that of the Daily Independent of Dublin—on the judgment passed in Mr. Tilak's case .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 339
Remarks of Mr. Morley on the frontier war .. .. .. ib.
Injustice of keeping the Natu brothers still in jail .. .. ib.
Desirability of improving the works of irrigation to mitigate the severity of famine .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Necessity to guard the safety of the Hindus domiciled in Madagascar .. .. .. .. .. .. 340
Remarks on the treatment of Mr. Tilak in the jail .. .. ib.
A few suggestions for the deliberation of the ensuing congress .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Opinion of the British press and of certain members of Parliament on the frontier war .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Reflections on the government of His Excellency the Viceroy 341
Remarks on the question of exchange .. .. .. .. ib.
The cause of disturbances in India at present .. .. ib.
Remarks on His Excellency Lord Elgin .. .. .. 342
Remarks on Mr. Tilak's appeal .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Government and the press .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Poona murders .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Editors of newspapers .. .. .. .. .. .. 343
A mistake committed by a plague inspection doctor at Hubli. ib.
Indian loyalty and the unfounded accusation of the Indian people .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The coming National Congress .. .. .. .. 344

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | Nov. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 1st and 15th Nov. 1897. |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 6th, 13th and 20th Nov. 1897. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | |
| 6 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 6th and 20th Nov. 1897. |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 24th Oct., and 1st and 8th Nov. 1897. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 24th and 31st Oct., and 7th, 14th and 21st Nov. 1897. |
| 9 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 4th, 11th and 18th Oct., and 1st, 8th, 15th and 22nd Nov. 1897. |
| 10 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 1st, 8th and 22nd Nov. 1897. |
| 11 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 6th and 13th Nov. 1897. |
| 12 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dávakóttai .. .. | 800 | 1st, 8th, 16th and 24th Nov. 1897. |
| 13 | "Dharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 1st, 8th and 15th Oct., and 1st, 8th and 15th Nov. 1897. |
| 14 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 14th and 21st Nov. 1897. |
| 15 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 6th, 13th and 20th Nov. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 21st, 23rd, 28th and 30th Oct., and 2nd, 4th, 11th, 13th, 16th and 23rd Nov. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 576 | Oct. and Nov. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 20th Nov. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 16th, 19th, 23rd and 26th Nov. 1897. |
| 20 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 17th, 20th, 24th and 27th ,, ,, |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 21 | "Mysore Star" .. .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | .. | 15th Nov. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 22 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 78 | 20th and 27th Nov. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 22nd and 29th Nov. 1897. |
| 24 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 19th Nov. 1897. |
| 25 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 2,600 | 18th and 25th Nov. 1897. |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 625 | 17th and 24th ,, ,, |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Mysore Deshabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 10th, 13th and 28th Nov. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 28 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 14th and 24th Nov. 1897. |
| 29 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 15th Nov. 1897. |
| 30 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. . | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 20th ,, ,, |
| 31 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 11th and 21st Nov. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 32 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 6th and 13th Nov. 1897. |
| 33 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 15th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| 34 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 780 | 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 13th, 20th and 27th Nov. 1897. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 36 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 15th and 22nd Nov. 1897. |
| 37 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 6th, 13th and 20th Nov. 1897. |
| 38 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th and 15th Nov. 1897. |
| 39 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras.. | 150 | 21st Nov. 1897. |
| 40 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 8th, 15th and 18th Nov. 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd November, after stating that the war on the frontiers has already cost a large amount of money and a large number of valuable lives, proceeds to say that, should there be a winter campaign, as is expected, the sufferings of the army will be great and the money required will be something tremendous. In concluding, the article says:—We have held all along that this war was uncalled for, and that it should never have been undertaken. Now that it has been begun, the sooner it is stopped the better. But as some of the tribes are still holding out, it is impossible to say how many more lives will be lost and how much more money will have to be spent. The whole affair has been a mistake and the mischief that has been done cannot be undone.

The war at the frontier.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

2. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 25th November, referring to the recent treaty between Turkey and Greece, says that Turkey wants to strengthen her navy with the amount of the war indemnity payable by Greece, but that Russia wants to prevent her from doing this, by demanding from Turkey the balance due to the former by the latter, according to a former treaty which concluded the war between Russia and Turkey.

Russia demanding old arrears from Turkey.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Nov. 25th, 1897.

3. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th November, after observing that the frontier wars have been a source of great loss of life and money, says:—The longer the struggle continues, the more is its worthlessness apparent. The forward policy, as it is called, is doing a vast amount of evil. We believe the policy of throwing the frontiers further back is entirely wrong. The tribesmen would form a good barrier against an invading enemy if left to themselves. If Russia should invade India she would require at least two hundred thousand men, and these would have to be fed among the barren mountains. The idea of a Russian invasion is chimerical. Why, then, should the Government be always carrying on some war or other on the frontier to provide against a danger that will never happen? We really do not see where the money to meet the cost of the war is to come from. Fresh taxes cannot be put upon the people; they are taxed to the utmost as it is, and can bear no more. Should any more burdens be laid on the country, disaffection would be sure to ensue and not a little of it. The only way out of the difficulty would be for the British Government to pay the cost of the campaign or the greater part of it, and should this not be done, there may be a collapse as regards the Indian finances from the strain put upon it.

The frontier war.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Nov. 29th, 1897.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 15th November, has a translation of an extract from the Al-Muvayyid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) to the following effect:—A correspondent writing from Alexandria about the evacuation of Thessaly says that the Porte has appointed a commission to determine the losses sustained by Cretan Mussalmans, in consequence of the recent rebellion in that island, with a view to demand the amount of losses caused by the action of Greece, together with the war indemnity. It will be quite impossible for Greece to meet the enhanced demands of the Porte in this respect as she is not able to pay even the war indemnity, and hence the correspondent presumes Thessaly will not be evacuated.

Evacuation of Thessaly.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Nov. 15th, 1897.

5. The same paper. The Al-Muvayyid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) in contradiction of the statement relating to the expulsion of the Egyptians from Syria by the Sultan, writes thus:—From the information gathered from reliable sources it is understood that those who migrated to Syria were not real but assumed Egyptians, who are the enemies of the State as well as of the Egyptians themselves. The Syrian authorities have arrested them for having in their possession books containing complaints against Turkey, and the immediate result which followed was their expulsion. Further, it is not the Egyptians but it is their enemy (England) which is actuated by hostile motives and employs diverse means to set aside the claims of the Khedive to Egypt and those of the Sultan as a Caliph. It now remains for the Sultan and the Khedive, with a view to maintain their prestige, to act in concert.

Expulsion of the Egyptians from Syria.

6. The same paper. The Al-Muvayyid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) inserts a translation of an article on the British occupation of Egypt from a French paper The Batria, of which the following is an excerpt:

The British occupation of Egypt.

—"England has occupied Egypt in spite of the suzerainty of the Sultan. She oppresses the Egyptians and makes encroachments on their rights and liberties. At times she sets the Egyptian laws at defiance. In face of all these circumstances it is incumbent upon Russia, France, Germany and Austria to urge upon England to disclose her intentions. The French journal says that all classes are tired of the British occupation."

7. The same paper quotes an extract from the Crescent of Liverpool regarding Mr. Abdulla Quillam's controversy with Messrs. James Steel and Auld, of which the following in an excerpt:—Mr. Abdulla Quillam in reply to the question "Why did not Turkey return to Greece the province of Thessaly, said that Greece never conquered the province of Thessaly. At the time of the Berlin treaty it was wrested from Turkey and given to Greece, but she did not govern it well and hence could not keep it. By the law of nation it belongs to Turkey, and should never be restored to Greece. If she is obliged to restore it, then (1) the British should give back Gibraltar to Spain, (2) England should evacuate Egypt and India, (3) France should give up Algiers and Tunis, (4) Germany should restore Alsace Loraine to France and Schleswig Holstein to Denmark, and (5) Russia should give up the Baltic and St. Petersburg to Sweden."

Mr. Abdulla Quillam's views on the evacuation of Thessaly and the British treatment of the natives.

In refutation of the statement that "Islam owes its success to the sword," he said that the number of harmless and inoffensive natives slain by England in one year is greater than that of the Armenians who have been killed in Armenia by Turkey for the last twenty-five years. During the Indian mutiny many natives of India were blown by the English from the mouth of the cannon, still the English regard themselves as humanists. The Afridis in the North-western frontier, who fight for their fatherland in the Khyber Pass, are denounced as traitors and rebels and their land is raided and their wives and children slain. Such is the British Christian logic at the end of the Nineteenth century in the Diamond Jubilee year of the reign of the Queen-Empress.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

8. The Shams-ul-Akhbar of the 22nd November. The Al-Muvayyid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) writes that England's attitude is shown by the fact that whenever France moots the question of Egypt, England reminds her of Alsace Loraine, just to draw her attention away from that question. Had England been possessed of good intentions, she would not have compared the question of Alsace Loraine with that of Egypt for the reason that Germany captured Alsace Loraine, whereas England did not conquer Egypt. England entered Egypt merely to support the Khedive's cause against Egyptian rebels who rose against him; she promised to evacuate the country after the suppression of the then existing disturbances, but after all did not. The Al-Muvayyid hopes that the Egyptain problem will be shortly solved, and that the Sultan will as formerly retain his Suzerain power. This is all the Egyptians desire.

The Egyptian problem.

9. The same paper. The Al-Muvayyid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) quotes an article from the Farthe Alexandre about Anvar Pasha the Governor of Volo's views on the Turkish occupation of Thessaly, of which the following is an excerpt: The Porte, as a counterpoise to Servian and Bulgarian encroachments on the Ottoman possessions, wishes to establish her supremacy in Thessaly. Moreover, the Sultan and the inhabitants of Thessaly, in the matter of its annexation to Turkey, are absolutely at one, for the people know fairly well that both Christians and Muhammadans are treated alike by Turkey; in other words, that the same privileges and concessions are granted to both classes. The only exception is that Christians are excluded from Turkish military service. The Turkish army did not set fire to the houses of the Thessalians, nor molest nor harass them on any occasion, which is a consideration not to be overlooked.

The Turkish occupation of Thessaly.

Award of punishment to the Afridis.

10. The same paper, in connection with the attacks of Afridis on British picquets, suggests to Government the advisability of holding the inhabitants in and around the Khyber Valley responsible for the maintenance of peace, and of inflicting fines upon them for any attacks that may be made on the picquets.

The Amir and the frontier disturbances.

11. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 18th November, quotes an extract from the Civil and Military News (place of publication not mentioned), of which the following is an excerpt:— QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Nov. 18th, 1897.

An Anglo-Indian contemporary's correspondent, in commenting upon Mr. Martin's letter from Kabul, writes it may be that the Amir wants to delude Mr. Martin or that Mr. Martin wants to delude the British Government.

The Amir was the chief factor in the frontier outbreak, for it is he who directed the Mullahs to preach Jehad, gave them assurances of help, and sold firearms to the tribesmen. But at last when he saw the British Government had mustered an enormous force on the frontier sufficient even to take Kabul, he left the tribesmen alone. Now the only punishment that the Government should inflict on the Tirah, Kohat and Khyber clans is to stop the payment of their subsidies. The correspondent says that the Government has often been apprised of the fact that to supply the Amir with firearms is a suicidal policy, for he may, some day or other, use them against it, and what was often prophesied has at last come to pass. It now behoves Government to recall those Europeans from Kabul who are manufacturing munitions of war for the Amir.

The Civil and Military News, however, says the above letter is deserving of little notice.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

Careless jutka-drivers.

12. The Andhraprakasika, of the 17th November, writing about the case of an old man who was run over by two carelessly-driven jutkas at a very short interval, says that the energetic exertions of the police have been powerless to suppress the reckless and furious driving of jutkas. It recommends whipping as a proper punishment for such jutkawallahs in this city at least. ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1897.

Destruction of stray and rabid dogs.

13. The Alhami, of the 21st November, in referring with approval to the Madras Police Commissioner's order relating to the destruction of rabid and stray dogs, remarks that not a single month passes during which one or two cases of hydrophobia do not occur. It is unjustifiable that the public should run the risk of losing their lives by these animals, but the present mode of clubbing them to death is most inhuman and brutal. ALHAMI, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1897.

(b) Courts.

Uselessness of the village munsifs.

14. The Dharmasamvrathani, of the 1st October, writes as follows:— The village munsifs, who are according to the code vested with the powers of a third-class magistrate and with such civil powers as are absolutely necessary for the administration of a village, seldom make use of DHARMASAMVARTHANI, Tiruvádi, Oct. 1st, 1897.

their powers, nor do they possess sufficient knowledge to exercise them; but they engage themselves in the collection of Circar dues alone; they are therefore altogether useless to the villagers who are obliged to go to District Munsif's Court even for the recovery of a rupee or two and are subject to great hardship. This unsatisfactory state of things is due to the facts that many of the village munsifs at present are uneducated and that the higher authorities do not bestow sufficient attention on the subject. It is earnestly hoped that the code relating to the village munsifs will be brought into force and that the grievances of the poor villagers redressed by Government.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Nov. 6th, 1897.

Remarks against the sub-magistrate of Kudavásal.

15. The Jananukulan, of the 6th November, infers that M.R.Ry. K. Runga Chariyar, sub-magistrate of Kudavásal, does not possess sufficient knowledge of law, from the following remark of the Tanjore District Magistrate:—

"The accused having been on remand for more than fifteen days, and the sub-magistrate not having taken up the case under chapter XVIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, his present detention is irregular, etc."

"This is a simple case which the 3rd-class committing magistrate might well have disposed of as one of hurt and sent up for enhanced punishment to the divisional magistrate. Instead of doing so, he has committed it for trial under section 304, Indian Penal Code, as a case of culpable homicide not amounting to murder."

The paper concludes with the remark that as such magistrates are a source of trouble to the people as well as to the higher officers, it behoves the authorities to adopt remedial measures.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

Commenting on the High Court's circular regarding the attendance of District Judges in courts.

16. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 22nd November, says that although it is a matter of great pleasure that the High Court pays particular attention to the hours at which the District Judges attend and leave court, yet it is a pity that the High Court circular sometimes turns out to be one which also gives annoyance to such Judges. Some of the Judges may consider that even the order requiring them to hold office from 11 A.M. to 5 P.M. is itself not becoming to their position, but there can be no two opinions that it is, in the interests of the public, very necessary. But anyhow it cannot be considered so in the case of the High Court's order that the time taken by the District Judges to write judgments from their private rooms, to go through the records and to sign papers, etc., should not be reckoned as time spent in office. It is not, so far as the parties are concerned, of any material benefit, but it will only be disgusting to them. It may not be out of place here to remark that it will be better if some decisive ruling be made also in the matter of holding office by Judges subordinate to the District Judges. It is a general complaint that some three or four district munsifs in Malabar come to court only by 12 or 1 o'clock, that they do not hold office for more than two or three hours after their arrival and, having given themselves only that time to get through the work, they dismiss some of the cases hurriedly, give ex parte decisions in some and find out some means or other to dispose of the rest without examining witnesses fully. The District Judges ought to send a circular to all district munsifs regarding their hours of attendance, and also regarding the number of hours during which they should hold office every day. If they do not do thus, the High Court will, it is hoped, turn their attention to the matter and make a definite ruling.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 27th, 1897.

The Tilak case.

17. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 27th November, referring to the refusal of the Privy Council to grant leave to Tilak to appeal against the decision of the Bombay High Court, remarks that although the decision of the Privy Council is thought by Europeans to be right, yet in the opinion of the natives of India it is a great injustice. This hasty and inconsiderate step has rendered the justice of the British administration a mere shadow. If the dismissal of the appeal had been on sufficient grounds, such a bad impression would not have been created in the minds of the Indian people. As this has been a shock to the whole of India, and as millions of people who belong to the Tilak party are even now of opinion that Tilak is not guilty, the pain and dissatisfaction caused to them by this decision cannot be described. The decision of the Privy Council is quite in accordance with the report that the conviction of Tilak was in obedience to an order from the Secretary of State. If this is so, it would appear that there is practically no limit to the powers of Government. What is there which a Government of unlimited power cannot do? What will the natives do but submit quietly to it. As the voice of people is the voice of God, it can be boldly asserted that this action of Government is displeasing to God. Although Tilak has been condemned under the law, yet in the eyes of God he is not at all guilty. So also he will for ever be innocent in the eyes of the people. No one can transgress the decrees of fate, and so he has no other alternative than to be in jail for eighteen months.

Warrants for attachments issued by the Civil Courts.

18. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th November, alluding to the procedure now adopted by the Civil Courts in issuing warrants for the attachment and sale of the moveable properties of judgment-debtors, says that as no secrecy is observed by the courts in the matter of the issue of such warrants, etc., the judgment-debtors come to know of them beforehand and they are consequently given ample opportunity to conceal such properties and cheat the decree-holders. The attention of the authorities is therefore invited to the desirability of taking remedial measures.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 24th, 1897.

(e) Local and Municipal.

A complaint against Government regarding the payment of abkári duty to the municipality.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd November, referring to the resolution of the Municipal Commissioners of Madras against the enhancement of house-tax as proposed by Government, regrets to observe that Government has been paying the municipality a uniform rate of abkári duty ever since 1885, in spite of the fact that the amount of its abkári revenue has been annually increasing. The paper adds that the law on the subject makes it obligatory on the part of Government to pay annually abkári duty in proportion to its average abkári revenue during the three years preceding the year for which the duty is due to the municipality, and that it is therefore just and proper on the part of the municipality to demand an extra rate of abkári duty proportionate to the increase in the abkári revenue enjoyed by Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 2nd, 1897.

A fews uggestions to the chairman of the Karúr municipality.

20. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th November, requests the chairman of the Karúr municipality to adopt early measures for the disposal of the drain water which at present stagnates in the streets of that place rendering the atmosphere poisonous. He also hopes that the chairman will construct a few public latrines and have the ditch adjoining Manidiyan koil and Perumal koil on the road leading to the river Amarávati in Karúr filled up with earth, as it subjects the inhabitants of the place to unspeakable hardship.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 4th, 1897.

Unsatisfactory condition of the municipal administration of Tanjore.

21. The Jananukulan, of the 6th November, writes as follows:—The municipal administration of Tanjore is unsatisfactory. Roads are wretched and their repair is seldom attended to. The road materials deposited on either side of the roads are never used then and there, and metalling is rarely done to perfection. The town is overcrowded and the houses are not provided with latrine accommodation. Night-soil pits prove a source of great nuisance as they are not properly cleaned, and the effluvia emanating therefrom contaminate the surrounding atmosphere and facilitate the outbreak of epidemics. Water is not supplied in all parts of the municipality even though the water-tax is collected without any distinction. In the places where water is supplied, it is allowed only in day-time. As the town is peopled mostly by Maharashtras, whose females are goshas not coming out-doors during the day, much difficulty is experienced by them in not having water-supply at night. Moreover, the train arrives at the station of Tanjore at about 8 or 9 P.M., and the passengers too are subject to the same difficulty. It is hoped that the municipality will bestow careful attention on the drawbacks herein pointed out and try to improve the condition of the municipality following the noble example set by the late Diwan—Seshayya Sastriyar—who spared no pains in ameliorating the condition of Pudukkóttai.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Nov. 6th, 1897.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Nov. 8th, 1897.

A request to the Negapatam municipality regarding the "Jubilee well."

22. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 8th November, regrets to report that the tank erected on the eastern side of the market in the town of Negapatam, which was hitherto serving as a good water-supply for the town, is not filled with water now as the municipality, on financial consideration, has ordered the stoppage of pumping water from the "Jubilee well" sunk with the help of the public subscription raised in memory of Her Majesty's Jubilee in 1887. The paper remarks that this procedure of the municipality subjects the people of that town to inexpressible inconveniences, inasmuch as other wells in the town have little or no water, and requests the municipality to order either the filling up of the said tank with water as usual or the removal of the fence around the "Jubilee well" in view to allow the public to draw water therefrom.

HINDUJANASAMSKARINI, Madras, Oct. and Nov. 1897.

Municipal taxation in Madras.

23. The Hindujanasamskarini, for October and November, referring to municipal taxation in the city of Madras, says that it is improper to increase the taxes any more. Owners of houses are already complaining as to their inability to pay the existing ones. European "sanitation" should be introduced gradually on moderate expenditure, moderately taxing the people. It is unwise to incur debts to carry it out and then to increase taxes.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 20th, 1897.

Kalpathi car festival and the Palghat municipality.

24. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th November, says that the sanitary arrangements made by the Palghat municipality during the Kalpathi car festival were not quite satisfactory. It appears that some 20,000 people attended the festival, but there were only four latrines for their use. Moreover, there was not even one water-shed. The article hopes that the authorities would bestow more attention on such matters in future, and asks them to put a stop to the practice of the exhibition of fireworks on such occasion.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 24th, 1897.

Bad condition of Veliyangod-Chowghat canal.

25. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th November, referring to the deplorable condition of the Veliyangod-Chowghat canal which is much used for traffic and by passengers, invites the attention of the President of the Malabar district to the necessity of repairing it. In the article the editor inserts a correspondence which condemns the way in which the canal is repaired on contract system and which seems to attribute the bad condition of the canal to that system. The correspondent adds that as the condition of the canal has become so bad, he could even go to the extent of suggesting that the toll of half anna now levied on every boat that goes to and fro in the canal near the Andathod dam may be slightly increased so that funds may be raised for the repair of the canal.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Oct. 4th, 1897.

Selfishness on the part of some Government officials.

26. The Nilalochani, of the 4th October, writes as follows:—Although our British Government is always bent on doing good to its subjects, some Government officials are devising means to annoy the people in various ways. In view to avoid all kinds of difficulties on the part of the ryots in representing their grievances to the Revenue authorities, Government has directed that Collectors and tahsildars should go on circuit and hear the grievances of the villagers in person. It is to be regretted that, in spite of such an order, the jamabandi officers to suit their own convenience hold the jamabandi in places where the ryots could hardly get water to drink and a shady spot to rest at, instead of dividing a taluk into several circles and selecting such centres as will suit the convenience of the neighbouring villagers and holding their cutcherry there. As batta could not be claimed if the jamabandi officers remain in one and the same place for more than ten days, they constantly shift from place to place, which is a source of considerable annoyance and vexation to the poorly-paid karnams, pattamaniamdars as well as to the aggrieved parties and their witnesses. This state of things is one of the reasons why revenue and criminal cases remain undisposed for an undue length of time in the cutcherries of the Revenue officers. It is a pity that the real object of the order of Government under reference is frustrated in consequence of selfishness on the part of the executive officers of the Revenue department.

27. A correspondent to the Dharmasamvarthani, of the 8th November, observes that the examination in surveying conducted for the benefit of the karnams at Nannilam, Shiyali and Máyavaram, was extremely difficult as the field given for surveying contained many triangles and the area was so large that it could not be included in one paper. He says that many of the karnams have appealed to the authorities praying for a re-examination on the ground that the recent examination was not in conformity with the directions given in the circular published in the Zilla Gazette on the subject. The correspondent reporting that more than hundred karnams have been declared ineligible for further service, as their results of the examination in question were not satisfactory, requests the Collector of the district to bestow a little attention on this subject and grant the karnams who have had considerable length of service some concession.

DHARMASAMVARTHANI, Tiruvádi, Nov. 8th, 1897.

A complaint against the examination in surveying for the karnams.

(h) Railways.

28. A paragraph in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 22nd November, says that the people incessantly complain that numerous thefts of a petty nature are committed in the goods-shed of the Calicut railway station. It appears that the thieves are not outsiders. It is a pity that the Railway authorities do not see to this.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

Thefts in the goods-shed, Calicut.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

29. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th November, invites the attention of the authorities to the illegal collection of duties by the Salt officers from poor persons of Panniannur, Panur, Puttur, Poyilur and other desams of the Kóttayam taluk, who take jacks, mangoes, cocoanuts, firewood, etc., for sale in the Tellicherry bazaar on the ground that such persons on their way pass a distance of about a furlong through Nalutara belonging to the French. These Salt officers do not, it appears, grant receipts for the duties levied by them, and if any person were to ask for them, he is taken to the chowkka (custom-house), which is one or two miles away from the place, and there the Salt officers cunningly make a case against him stating that he was arrested while carrying contraband liquor. Considering these troubles those poor persons are said to give anything to the Salt officers, even without being asked, and satisfy them.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 24th, 1897.

Iniquities of the Salt officers.

(k) General.

30. The Lokopakari, of the 24th October, observes as follows:—The karnams form the most useful class of Revenue officials and have onerous duties to perform. They have to keep a regular account of the kist due from each mirasidar, to impose penalty on those who encroach on

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 24th, 1897.

Desirability of increasing the pay of the karnams.

poramboke lands, to register the births and deaths in their villages, and to render the higher officers of various departments such as the Salt, the Abkári, the Settlement, the Survey, the Public Works, and the Police, all possible help. Their work is increasing year after year. They are frequently obliged to go at their own cost to taluk cutcherries which are far off from their villages, and are subject to considerable hardship. Their pay is miserably low considering their multifarious and onerous duties. Why should not the authorities utilise the surplus balance of the Village Service Fund in increasing the pay of the karnams? It is earnestly hoped that His Excellency Lord Havelock will bestow a little attention on these overworked and low-paid servants, in consideration of the fact that they are the only class of men whose grievances have not been redressed, although the people as a whole have been enjoying many advantages since the appointment of His Excellency as the Governor of this Presidency.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 30th, 1897.

Remarks on an order to Government treasuries regarding the receipt of rupees.

31. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th October, reports that the authorities have issued an order to all the Treasury officers to be more careful with regard to the receipt of rupees as some of them may, owing to some contrivance or other that is being adopted by some mischievous characters, weigh less than their normal weight. The paper wishes that the authorities should detect the authors of such malpractices and get them punished rather than pass an order of this kind, as it subjects the people at large to material loss.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1897.

Comments on the remarks of His Excellency Lord Havelock regarding the Native State of Cochin.

32. The Lokopakari, of the 31st October, referring to the complimentary remarks of His Excellency Lord Havelock made during his recent tour in the Native State of Cochin in respect of the fertility of its territory and the happiness enjoyed by its people, observes as follows:—The satisfactory state of things referred to by His Excellency is due to the facts that the Diwan of the State has carefully studied the views and needs of the people, evinces a very great interest in the welfare of the subjects, and allows the aggrieved parties to represent to him in person their grievances which he redresses then and there, and that the resources of the State are spent exclusively for the benefit of the people of that place. If our rulers adopt a similar course and realise our views and needs, we too can hope to feel equally happy. The revenues of this country should not be spent on foreign wars. Higher appointments should be conferred on the natives. If Government neglects to improve irrigational works it will be driven to the necessity of spending several lakhs of rupees in opening relief works and in granting remissions during the days of famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 2nd, 1897.

Reflections on the replies given by His Excellency Lord Havelock to the various memorials and addresses presented to him during his recent tour.

33. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd November, says that the replies given by His Excellency Lord Havelock to the various memorials and addresses presented to him during his recent tour in Cochin, Malayalam, etc., clearly indicate that His Excellency is very sincere and outspoken, that he never gives the aggrieved vain hopes and that he shows due deference to the customs and manners and the religious observances of the people.

PARAYAN, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1897.

Adulteration of articles of food.

34. The Parayan, of the 20th November, bitterly complains that articles of food are unscrupulously adulterated and sold in markets, and hopes that the Sanitary Commissioner will attend to the matter and adopt remedial measures to prevent such a state of things.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Dévakóttai, Nov. 27th, 1897.

Advisability of appointing some more stamp-vendors at Dévakóttai.

35. The Vijayathvajam, of the 24th November, complains that much difficulty is experienced in obtaining stamps of all kinds at Dévakóttai, which is inhabited by merchants who have to communicate often with the merchants at Penang, Singapore and other places, as there are only two stamp-vendors in that place. The paper requests the authorities to appoint some more stamp-vendors and thus lessen the hardship of the people in consideration of the facts that the population of Dévakóttai is 101,995 and that the Standing Order No. 30, dated 16th, of the Board of Revenue, empowers the appointment of five stamp-vendors for every hundred thousand people.

Permanent assessment.

36. The Hindujanasamskarini, for October and November, suggests that if the ryots of the Madras Presidency are to be protected and freed from the disasters of famine, the best expedients are to fix a reasonable permanent assessment on their lands and to encourage them to improve the soil in their own way.

HINDUJANASAMSKARINI, Madras, Oct. and Nov. 1897.

Government Translators.

37. The Andhraprakasika, of the 24th November, referring to the paragraph in the Madras Standard which has given out that the Senior Member of Council has proposed that Government Translatorships should hereafter be given to Europeans and not to Natives, says that, if time should come when Europeans are appointed for all the translators' posts, they would be translators only in name, while the native assistants and clerks would have to do the whole work; and remarks that this abnormal state of things, which actually existed before, has been removed by Sir Henry Stokes.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1897.

Famine relief fund and Cuddapah ryots.

38. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 23rd November, writing from Jammalamadugu, complains that there were many irregularities in the distribution of the relief fund among the poor ryots in the Cuddapah district. What ought to have been distributed among many was divided among a few only. The Madras executive committee had sanctioned Rs. 40,000 for distribution in this taluk. The Revenue officials did not use proper discretion, but acted quite in contravention of the orders of the committee. In Choutipalle village 10 ryots got Rs. 20 each, 7 others owning not more than 3 or 4 acres of land got the same amount each, while the names of the really deserving were struck off the register. In Peddasettipalle village 100 men, whose names were registered, got nothing to their disappointment. In Sankarapuram village only one received help. Nothing was done towards helping the poor in Kothapetta. In Chinnadandluru village 5 ryots owning very little land were given Rs. 30 each, while one Onnur Sahib with $\frac{3}{4}$ of an acre of land got Rs. 20; and 30 or 40 people were sent away without any help, although their names had been at first registered. Such irregularities, the correspondent says, were common to each and every village. It is a very sad thing then that the really deserving poor were not given any help. If Government money had been similarly misused the authorities concerned would have held an inquiry. Money collected from the people for charitable purposes, he remarks, must not be thus misused; and therefore desires that the Government will investigate the matter properly.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1897.

Nadapuram hospital to be re-opened.

39. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 17th November, invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of re-opening the hospital at Nadapuram which was closed a year and a half ago. As the hospitals at Kuthuparamba, Quilandi, Angadipuram, Vaniyankulam and Alattur, which were also closed along with the above hospital, have now been re-opened, it is a matter for regret that the authorities have not considered the hardships of the people of Nadapuram, who are now put to great trouble and expense in getting medical aid.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 17th, 1897.

Irregularities of the postmen attached to the Lakkadi post office.

40. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 15th November, referring to the irregularities of the village postmen attached to the Lakkadi post office, says that the newspapers and letters addressed to some of the subscribers in Chulanur amsam have not been delivered to them for the last two months, and that one or two letters which they wrote to the Manorama office and posted in the said post office complaining about these irregularities have not been delivered in that office. A year ago a similar complaint was made by the editor and superintendent inquired into the matter and did the needful. Since then matters went on well for some time, but now the irregularities prevailing in the office have become quite intolerable. The article hopes that the authorities will inquire into the matter and adopt remedial measures.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 15th, 1897.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

Tiruvellur sub-registry office to be removed to a more convenient locality.

41. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 22nd November, writes that although it was for the convenience of some of the officers that the sub-registry office was transferred from Ponmeri in the Kurumbranát taluk to Tiruvellur in the same taluk, yet as the latter place is situated in an out-of-the-way place and is not so important as Ponmeri, the office should be removed either to Ponmeri or to some similar locality more convenient to parties. The attention of the authorities is invited to the matter.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

Christian prejudice.

42. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 22nd November, inserts translation of a letter published in the London Christian, of which the following is an excerpt:—The writer of the above letter says: Though ages have passed, still the Sultan holds the reins and pursues his unjust policy in Turkey. The European concert failed to compel him to manage properly the affairs of his empire. There is no hope of any reforms being introduced. It is a part and parcel of Muhammadan belief that a Muhammadan sovereign who grants equal privileges to Christians and treats them kindly is an infidel and a renegade. (The Shams, with reference to this, remarks that it is not known in what religious book of Islam the writer found this; he must have come across such an absurd statement in tracts published by mendacious missionaries.) It is hoped that God will exterminate Turkey and other Islamic kingdoms. (The Shams remarks what blind prejudice is this?)

The writer continues: Christians who may chance to read my letter will like one man pray to God for the destruction of the Islamic power in Turkey, Egypt, Morocco, etc. (The Shams—the writer is presumably an old and ignorant woman). The signal triumph of the Sultan's arms has made Mussalmans more bigoted against Christians than before. They should therefore be annihilated.

The Shams remarks that the above letter is worthy only of ridicule. The writer seems to have lost his senses from religious prejudice.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 21st, 1897.

Remarks on certain Acts of Government of India.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st October, observes as follows:—It is absolutely necessary that Government should make very many amendments in the Criminal Procedure Code which is in force in India, inasmuch as the procedure adopted in respect of criminal cases is not uniform in all the Presidencies of this country. The Judges of the several High Courts construe the code according to their whim and fancy although one and the same code is in force throughout the country. The code in certain cases provides for the British prisoners a procedure quite different from that provided for the native prisoners. At the time when the Indian Penal Code came into force the people of this country were annoyed in various ways. The code prescribes unnecessarily heavy punishments for several offences. Imprisonment is the punishment in India for certain offences for which milder punishments are inflicted in other countries. In fine, the code has reduced the Hindus to the condition of dumb creatures like the cattle. As the Legislative Council at Calcutta which is to meet shortly intends amending the code under reference, it is hoped that the native members of the Council will spare no pains to propose the necessary amendments and do the needful.

Amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code.

44. The Hindujanasamskarini, for October and November, desires that, since the Criminal Procedure Code is being modified, the Government should avail itself of this opportunity to amend the sections relating to jurors so as to allow Indian jurors to try Indians.

HINDUJANASAMSKARINI, Madras, Oct. and Nov. 1897.

Indian Postal Act.

45. The same paper, referring to the new Indian Postal Act that is under consideration of the Government, recommends actual punishment for persons who decline to accept value-payable articles, after having ordered the same.

The University member on the Legislative Council.

46. The same paper, writing about the election of Mr. Stuart, by the University, to the Legislative Council, states that, when Dr. Duncan, the Educational Director and an official member, is already there, it is unnecessary that another Educational European official should also be a member. It adds that it will be of advantage to transfer this privilege of the University to any other public body.

Remarks from the Templar (Canada) on the revival of the Contagious Diseases Acts in India.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd November, quotes the following in the English portion of its issue from the Templar (Canada):—The more closely and fully the reports from India respecting the immoral relations of British soldiers with native women are studied, the more does it appear that officialdom has left no stone unturned to secure the legalization of a practice upon which God has denounced a curse both in His Word and in the terrible experiences of those who defy the law. Should Britain have trouble in retaining her possessions in the East, she need not look further for a cause than in the recent restoration of the obnoxious and immoral Contagious Diseases Acts.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Criticism on the article in the Madras Review on the administration of Mysore.

48. The Suryodaya, of the 19th November, referring to the article in the Madras Review on the administration of Mysore, says that it would be against the wishes of the people to allow the Diwan the sole power in the administration. During the reign of the late Maharaja the Diwan was virtually the ruler and the people did not like his ascendency. With the Maharani as regent and the Resident as adviser in all important matters and the councillors to balance the power of the Diwan, the present form of administration is the best for the State during the minority of the Maharaja.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Nov. 19th, 1897.

Considering that a certain abkári order passed by the Diwan of Cochin is unjust.

49. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th November, while commenting upon the correspondence appearing elsewhere in the same issue of the paper, stating that the Diwan of Cochin has passed a recent order to the effect that toddy-drawers in that State are not allowed to tap trees for sweet-toddy without taking permission from the abkári contractors and that in cases in which such permission has been refused by the contractors, the Tahsildars have no power to interfere and grant permission unless they are convinced that the contractor refused permission without reasonable cause, remarks that if what the correspondent says is true, the order of the Diwan is very unjust. The opinion is expressed that as this order is likely to give ample facilities for the contractors to harass and oppress any toddy-drawers against whom they might bear a grudge, it should be revoked; and a suggestion is made that if it is provided that the toddy-drawers who wish to tap trees for sweet-toddy should get license directly from the Sirkar, both the toddy-drawers and contractors will be free from any trouble.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 13th, 1897.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Nov. 6th, 1897.

The Governor's visit to Travancore.

50. The Malayala Manorama, of the 6th November, writes (in English) thus:—

"Now that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock, Governor of Madras, has paid his long-expected visit to the Native States of Travancore and Cochin, and has returned to the Presidency Town, it may not be altogether amiss to ask ourselves what solid advantages have been left behind after all the excitements of the moment have subsided. For it is only by results more lasting than pyrotechnic displays and other bubbles got up or purchased to be a moment's ornament, that the huge sums expended upon gubernatorial visits by the two "loyal" feudatory States of India, can be fully justified. For His Excellency personally we hope that the journey, in spite of the hardships inseparable from travels through places not possessing railways, and in spite, also, of the great fatigue entailed upon him by the numerous functions he had to pass through, has not altogether been without some compensating advantages in the opportunities that it offered for making himself acquainted with the political, religious and social institutions of the people of these parts which differ very considerably from those of people even in other parts of India, and for observing and enjoying the far-famed and weird scenery on either side of our backwaters. To the officials who were responsible for providing suitable accommodation and other conveniences for these distinguished visitors, the time of their stay here must have been full of anxiety; and at their departure they must have sighed forth "much thanks for this relief." The real test of the usefulness of the visit, however, is to see whether it has, in any way, benefited the common people out of whose hard-earned purses the money for indulging in all these festivities is ultimately to proceed. So long as our Governors are content to accept with due gratitude the hospitalities shown to them, without caring to descend below the surface of administration reports with their facts and figures carefully marshalled in imposing array for the express purpose of producing a favourable impression upon the minds of outsiders—especially of those in the Madras Secretariat upon whom devolves the duty of reviewing these reports in the name of the Governor in Council, but who are not in a position to correct these one-sided impressions by comparing them with the actual ones derived by living contact with men and measures on the spot—so long as this is the stereotyped course of Governors on tour, all such tours cannot but be barren of substantial results.

"Lord Napier was, we believe, the first Governor that visited Travancore; and from his time almost all his successors have made it a matter of necessity to see for themselves the two traditionally loyal and exceedingly interesting States on the West Coast. During that time and l· ng afterwards, Travancore had the good fortune to be governed by a series of most capable, enlightened and noble Diwans who vied with the British Government in introducing the most advanced reforms that were advocated at the time and that when introduced mutatis mutandis, would promote the happiness of the governed. But alas! those days of healthy rivalry are gone, and utter stagnation has set in everywhere. The one thing that has survived all the vicissitudes of this long interval is the anxiety on the part of the Diwan for the time being to gain the approbation of the paramount power. But the means of attaining this end is quite different now from what it was in the good old days of Sir T. Madhava Row, Mr. Ramiengar and others of their stamp who sought to obtain this approbation by the initiation of measures which kept the government of the country abreast of the times. But his successors like Mr. Shungra Soobbyer try to reach the same goal by a process which may be compared to the whitewashing of sepulchres. This will explain, and partly excuse the preparations to welcome Governors which in their grandeur and pomp exceed all proper limits. It would, however, have been far better if our officials had acted according to the celebrated dictum of Socrates that the best way to gain a good reputation is to endeavour to be what you desire to appear. In this connection we will once more refer to the absence of railways in the State. The amount of money again and again expended on such occasions for supplying cabin boats and other conveniences for travel alone will come up to a good round sum. Instead of incurring the same expense repeatedly, how much wiser would it have been had the amount of money consumed by ten or twenty such visits been utilised in the construction of railways in the State? In this respect even Hyderabad has beaten us hollow. Most people had hoped that His Excellency the Governor, by personally conferring with the Diwan, would have removed all obstacles in the way of the extension of railway into this State. Therefore it was with a bitter pang of disappointment that they read His Excellency's remark that, owing to certain hitches, even the Tinnevelly-Quilon Railway has not yet arrived in the region of probability. Even though this one might become a fait accompli before his tenure of office expires, we would once more urge upon His Excellency's attention that the line from Shoranore and Cochin through Kóttayam and Quilon to Trivandrum is of the very greatest importance from every point of view, while the Tinnevelly-Quilon Railway is only of secondary importance. If this suggestion is carried out, it will for generations and generations hence serve as a most pleasant souvenir of His Excellency's visit to this ancient land."

VI.—Miscellaneous.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st October, says that the Irish press—specially the Daily Independent of Dublin—condemns the judgment given in Mr. Tilak's case as unjust and wishes that it should be reversed forthwith in the Privy Council as it would otherwise gag the press altogether, and remarks that it is unjust on the part of the British Government to subject Indian editors to hardship while it would have readily criticised and condemned similar procedure on the part of any other Government.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 21st, 1897.

Opinion of the Irish press—specially that of the Daily Independent of Dublin—on the judgment passed in Mr. Tilak's case.

52. The same paper says that the following is the observation on the present frontier war made by Mr. Morley, one of the influential members of the British Parliament, in one of his speeches:—

Remarks of Mr. Morley on the frontier war.

Prior to the Chitral expedition, the English requested the Muhammadan chiefs of the hill tribes to permit the English army to pass through their tracts and, after the grant of the permission asked for, the English army permanently garrisoned Chitral and finally annexed some provinces connected with it, subduing the Muhammadan chiefs who had been hospitable to them. Is not this act a breach of trust? The Muhammadan chiefs who have lost their confidence in the English as the latter failed to act in pursuance of their promise, attack the English in view to prevent them from entering their territories. The military authorities in spite of their promise, that they would not proceed beyond Chitral, are advancing every day into the forests and consume the Indian revenues. Famine and plague in India have already drained the treasury of the Government of India. It is to be regretted that His Excellency Lord Elgin has unnecessarily interfered in the unjust war in question, which makes matters worse.

The paper concludes with the remark that Mr. Morley spoke so much on Indian affairs as he could not bear the unjustness of the action of the Government of India, and that if such influential members as Mr. Morley continue to expose the irregularities of the Government of India, this country would feel grateful to them.

53. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd October, writes as follows:—Mr. Tilak has been punished to the satisfaction of the English. Damodar Chapekar has confessed that he and his brother murdered Messrs. Rand and Ayerst. Why should Government still keep the Natu brothers in jail? They committed no offence. Their mother, aged 66 years, died of a broken heart. Who is to perform her obsequies? If her funeral rites are not performed by her sons they will be excommunicated. Alas! It is to be regretted that Government in spite of its long acquaintance with the Hindus has not as yet understood their customs, manners and religious duties. It is scandals like this that prove derogatory to the dignity of the British Government.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1897.

Injustice of keeping the Natu brothers still in jail.

54. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th October, agrees with His Excellency Lord Havelock in thinking that the improvement of the works of irrigation is the effectual means to avert the dire effects of famine. The paper does not support the statement made by the Secretary of State that extension of railways in India will serve to mitigate the severity of famine, as such a measure will only necessitate the raising of large loans in England and the appointment of highly paid European officers to carry on the work, and drive this country to the painful necessity of paying the capitalists in England enormous interest for the sums advanced by them.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 30th, 1897.

Desirability of improving the works of irrigation to mitigate the severity of famine.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1897.

55. The Lokopakari, of the 31st October, writes as follows:—Some of the Hindus who settled themselves in Madagascar, an island which belongs to the French, are suspected by the French Government of being the ringleaders of a riot which broke out there some days ago. It is hoped that the Government of India will protect them from being cruelly punished by the French Government. We know of another instance in which some of the Hindus domiciled in German Africa were suspected of rioting and sentenced to be hanged although the Governor-General of Africa was subsequently pleased to commute the punishment to one of imprisonment and fine—all this having transpired without the knowledge of the British Government. It is apprehended that the French Government in the case of the Hindus at Madagascar will punish them without informing the British Government of the same. If foreign Governments punish as they please the British subjects domiciled in their dominions, where then is the honour of one's being called a British subject?

Necessity to guard the safety of the Hindus domiciled in Madagascar.

DHARMASAMVARTHANI, Tiruvádi, Nov. 1st, 1897.

56. The Dharmasamvarthani, of the 1st November, writes as follows:—It does not become a civilized Government to treat Mr. Tilak as an ordinary thief or a murderer seeing that he is only a State prisoner. Enlightened Governments generally treat State prisoners with a certain amount of respect. In Europe and America, State prisoners are treated more or less as prisoners in the civil jail, are allowed to eat their own food and wear their own garment, and are neither fettered nor taxed with work. The treatment now accorded to Mr. Tilak is inconsistent with his position and dignity and with the prestige of Government. It is hoped that Government will be good enough to pay attention to this subject. The press as well as the people should take steps to induce Government to do the needful in this matter. We feel sanguine that the Home Government is sure to redress the grievance here complained of should it reach its ears.

Remarks on the treatment of Mr. Tilak in the jail.

57. The same paper, after pointing out the usefulness of the congress ever since its organization and the measures adopted for holding its thirteenth meeting at Amraoti, suggests the following subjects for its deliberation:—

A few suggestions for the deliberation of the ensuing congress.

(1) Desirability of requesting Government to give an accurate definition of the word "disaffection" which occurs in section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(2) Appointment of natives for the Indian Civil Service and certain defects of the Local Government.

(3) Partiality of the Local Government to the Muhammadan and Christian communities prejudicial to the interest of the Hindus, and cow slaughter by the Muhammadans on the banks of the Ganges in the North-West Provinces.

(4) Non-observance in the Presidency towns of the rule entitling the accused in the Court of Sessions to have natives to the extent of more than half the number of jurors.

(5) Injustice of keeping in jail the Natu brothers, and repeal of the old Regulation under which they have been sent to jail.

(6) Advisability of observing in this country such distinction between State prisoners and ordinary prisoners as is observed by other Governments.

(7) Improvement of irrigational works in view to mitigate the severity of famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 2nd, 1897.

58. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd November, thinks that the frontier war will soon come to a close, partly because the resources of the Afridis have been fully exhausted and the Amir on whom they relied for help has disappointed them, and partly because the British press condemns the procedure of the Government of India

Opinion of the British press and of certain members of Parliament on the frontier war.

in respect of this war, as a means to consume the revenues of India, attended with no substantial good to the people. It says that some of the members of Parliament are trying to put a stop to this war as it would otherwise drain the Indian exchequer.

Reflections on the government of His Excellency the Viceroy.

59. The same paper, announcing that His Excellency Lord Elgin has postponed his visit to Burma, writes as follows:—His Excellency Lord Elgin is involved in difficulties of various kinds. Want of peace and discontent prevail everywhere in this country under his government. The subjects are harassed by famine and pestilence. Expenditure has been enormously increasing, while the revenue has been considerably decreasing. Has the Viceroy given up the idea of going to Burma because there are riots here and there in that country? The very party in England that nominated him as Viceroy now begins to find fault with him. Messrs. Morley and Asquith have begun to hold public meetings and condemn the present war as a useless one. The Governor of Bombay is in a position of embarrassment and is at a loss to know how to get out of it, having teased his subjects in many ways. It is rumoured that both His Excellency the Viceroy and His Excellency the Governor of Bombay intend resigning their offices very soon. It behoves the British Parliament to send a sympathetic Viceroy to govern India at this critical moment in view to save this country from serious dangers.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Oct. 24th, 1897.

Remarks on the question of exchange.

60. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th October, writes as follows:—The question of exchange has become one of the common topics of the day owing to the large expenses incurred by the English Government on account of India. A few years ago a sovereign was valued at Rs. 20 in consequence of the cheapness of silver as compared with gold; the Government of India, which has to send to England crores of rupees, presuming that the exchange would subject it to great loss in the long run, ceased to mint silver coins in India about four years ago. The object of this measure was to decrease the number of silver coins and thereby increase their value. Although this system was advantageous to the Government of India to some extent, it proved detrimental to the interests of the commerce of this country. The English dealers in tea, who were particularly affected thereby, bitterly complained against such a system. Thereupon, by some stratagem or other, the value of silver was raised, so much so that it was worth more than its natural value. Even this measure was of no avail. Famine, plague, earthquake and war have come in rapid succession, and the expenditure of Government has in consequence greatly increased. The object of Government was not gained and commerce suffered to no small extent. Our Government is too blind to adopt a straight course. If the rate of exchange in respect of money remitted to England be high, either the expenses in England should be curtailed or gold coins should be minted here. If the former course be pursued, it would tell upon the purse of many an Englishman; our Government has no capital to start with as it is involved in debt, if it is to adopt the other alternative. While Government of India is thus in a dilemma, the English Government is contemplating to have coins minted in large numbers in India and the Governments of France and the United States have been consulted on the subject. The re-opening of the mint at this critical moment will only complete the destruction of India. This policy must prove dangerous to the Government of India which has represented the same to the English Government. The Chambers of Commerce in Bombay, Madras and Calcutta have also written to the same effect. We will not feel sorry even if the English Government should adopt any measure against the wishes of the Government of India, as we know that such a step would only consummate the evils that now attend on us and some better state of things could afterwards be expected.

The cause of disturbances in India at present.

61. The same paper, alluding to the disturbances which prevail in Poona in consequence of the murder of Messrs. Rand and Ayerst, in Calcutta owing to a riot on the part of the Muhammadans, and in Mandalay by reason of frenzy displayed by a Budhist fanatic, says that Europeans attribute this unpleasant state of things to the congress, the study of Indian history, the spread of education, the liberty of the press, and so forth. The paper does not agree with the Europeans whose opinion, it thinks, is the outcome of impatience, and views these disturbances as the result of a want of tact on the part of the authorities to deal with the people whom they rule over. The paper concludes with the remark that the people will have no cause whatsoever for discontent should they be ruled as in former days, without any distinction between the rulers and the ruled.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1897.

62. The Vikatu Dutan, of the 20th November, observes:—Even the people of England attribute the present frontier war to the fact that His Excellency Lord Elgin failed to fulfil his promise to the Afridis. We are indeed very sorry that the Viceroy is the object of public slander. It is a pity that the Viceroy has been subject to one difficulty after another ever since he landed in India. The several charges brought against the Viceroy may not prove serious, inasmuch as the Secretary of State for India and the Prime Minister of England advocate his cause. From a lecture delivered by a gentleman in London some days ago it is apprehended that some change leading to a national riot will take place in the Government of India in regard to financial matters.

Remarks on His Excellency Lord Elgin.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1897.

63. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd November, observes as follows:—It is a matter for regret that Mr. Tilak's appeal was not admitted in the Privy Council. If the Council had inquired into the merits of the case and then dismissed the appeal, it would be of some consolation. The procedure of the Privy Council in this case therefore is really injust. The construction put by the High Court Judge of Bombay who tried Mr. Tilak on section 124-A, Indian Penal Code, will in future gain ground, and patriots and editors will be sent to jail, if they only condemn the action of Government. Nevertheless, the opinion which is now spread far and wide, that Mr. Tilak has been unjustly imprisoned by the British Government on account of the murder of two Europeans in Poona, will always continue, and the imprisonment of Mr. Tilak will be an everlasting stain on Her Majesty's Government.

Remarks on Mr. Tilak's appeal.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Oct. and Nov. 1897.

64. The Hindujanasamskarini, for October and November, says that, since the English people profess to rule India in the interests of the Indians, since they said that the newspapers might be conducted freely and since it is they that created all useless tastes for various things in the Indians, who, before the advent of the English, were ignorant of newspapers, it is improper that the Government of India should suppose that everything is ruined by mere babbling words (in the papers). It is emphatically asserted that even if all the Indians were to join together intent on a riot, they can do very little towards weakening the Government of India. As the Government of India belongs to the British, as these British people are not aware of the desires of the Indians and are ignorant of their principles and customs, as they have introduced into India taxes peculiar to the English administration and foreign to the Indians, and as the British officials have thereby reduced the people of India to a condition in which they cannot afford to bear such taxes, the editors of newspapers write with a view that the Government may know and rectify such matters. They write all the more vehemently as they suppose the Government pays no heed (to the complaints). It adds that the Government, as rulers of the country, are the parents of the people and so ought not obstinately turn a deaf ear to the words (suggestions) in the newspapers. It observes that matters will be set right if, after inquiry, the Government announce whether those suggestions are acceptable or otherwise.

The Government and the press.

65. The same paper, writing about the murder of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst, says that Damodar Chapekar has made a confession giving out all the incidents concerning their murder. The whereabouts of Balakrishna are yet unknown. It appears from what Damodar has given out, that neither the

The Poona murders.

Natu brothers nor the vernacular newspapers have had any connection with the affair. It desires that the Bombay Government should now give up prosecuting them. Damodar Chapekar has attributed these murders to the severity of the plague operations.

Editors of newspapers.

66. The same paper puts the question how the editors of papers, while the Government of India does not keep them well informed of their proceedings, can express their approval of the same, without putting down on paper what they think of them. It adds that editors cannot sit quiet and therefore ventilate their opinions when European officials, paying no heed to newspapers, do things in their own way.

A mistake committed by a plague inspection doctor at Hubli.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Nov. 17th, 1897.

67. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 17th November, gives an account of an incident in connection with the inspection of railway passengers for detection of plague cases at Hubli. A police inspector was travelling with his wife who was enciente and approaching the time of her confinement. He got down at the Hubli station to answer the calls of nature. In his absence his wife was called up for medical examination by the doctor at the station, and having been found to be in a weak state of health, was taken by him to the plague hospital, in spite of her entreaties to be allowed to wait for her husband. The woman was delivered prematurely on the way as an effect of the fright she was put to, and the child was dead; and she was herself in a very precarious state. In the meantime the husband returned to the carriage and not finding his wife in it, and learning on inquiry where she was taken, followed her there, only to find her dying. This so exasperated him that he went to the doctor and shot him down dead, and after performing the last rites over his wife's body surrendered himself to the police.

Indian loyalty and the unfounded accusation of the Indian people.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 22nd, 1897.

68. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd November, has a leading article, of which the following is a pretty close translation:—

It is now three centuries since the British power began to establish itself in India. The Britishers, who first appeared as traders in India and afterwards became rulers, found it difficult at first to establish themselves here. They therefore found it necessary to cultivate the friendship of the natives in order to overcome the then existing powerful rulers of the land and to wrest the country from them. The people of India divided into various hostile communities by religious and caste distinctions and attracted by novelty soon began to respect the new comers, and to rely upon their assurances of protection and joined them in large numbers, while a few remained faithful to their former rulers and a few others were indifferent. The foreigners were singularly successful in their wars with the native rulers and soon became masters of the whole country. As the native rajas, one by one, submitted to the British, their subjects became the helpless and humble servants of the foreign rulers. Until their power was firmly established through the length and breadth of the country, the British found it necessary to show love, respect, courtesy and good-will towards the natives. But when they found themselves secure masters of the empire, and saw that their valour and prowess found no match in India, they saw that no object was to be gained by showing kindness and consideration to the people. The people themselves reduced to dependency became submissive like cattle when they lost their freedom. As their patience and submissive spirit increased, the rulers began to exercise their authority with less and less consideration. The hostility which the British power now meets with in other places in the world makes them suspect the people whom they ought to treat with confidence. Our rulers are now labouring under a foolish notion that their Indian subjects are disloyal, and that this spirit of disloyalty is being encouraged by the editors of newspapers. They have thus lost confidence in (their own conduct) the justice of their own rule. As it is impossible for any outside influence to change the character of a people, the supposed disloyalty of the Indians must be the effect of some internal causes. If it is true that they are disloyal, it is our duty to inquire what is the cause which has produced this disloyalty. Is it the conduct of the Government or of the people themselves? The people being entirely dependant are not in a position to do anything. The Government itself must be the cause of the disloyalty which they now suspect in the people. The administration of the civilians, ignorant of the manners and customs of the people whom they are sent to govern as representatives of Her Majesty, and their unrestrained conduct, are quite enough to drive away from the people their instinctive spirit of obedience and loyalty. Whenever the people are dissatisfied with any measure of Government and begin to question its propriety they are stigmatised as disloyal, and no sense of justice on the part of the rulers, no laws, no mercy, no regard for virtue or abhorrence of sin can save them. The moment the civilian breathes the air of the regions east of Aden he loses his inborn virtues, and assumes a peculiar disposition. The training which he receives in India is subversive of all sense of human justice. An inexperienced English youth, still in his minority, is all of a sudden appointed an irresponsible ruler of the destinies of thousands of subjects. It turns his head and he thinks himself heaven-born and sent as a Divine being in human shape to guard the interests of the world. He exercises his authority without any consideration for the feelings of those entrusted to his charge. Intoxicated with the exercise of extraordinary authority, he loses all courtesy and kindness. His eyes lose their sensibility of vision, his ears cannot hear. His hands and legs get accustomed to free play. Pride reigns supreme in his mind. Sitting on the throne of conceit, and having first violated the chastity of kindness and courtesy and cast them off, he lends himself to self-seeking flatterers. When a man is flattered by people he has no respect for the honour of others. Although he may have eyes to see and ears to hear for himself he becomes unable to go against the opinions of his own associates. Those among whom he moves always praise him and he begins to think himself infallible and is blind to his own faults. How can such a man bear contradiction or opposition? He becomes exceedingly irascible, merciless, and acts as his sweet will dictates. All love between him and those over whom he rules is lost. He believes that they are the lowest of God's creatures, created only to be his dependants and slaves, entrusted to his charge to humbly carry out his orders as inviolable, and that he alone has a right to enjoy the fruit of their labour. Such a ruler can have no sympathy for the people. He cannot remember that they are sensitive beings like himself. Their cries do not move his heart. His heart is hard enough to think nothing of sending six men to the gallows along with a criminal just to make an experiment how it would look. He takes delight in inflicting cruel punishments on those placed under his authority, and, should any one escape, he feels vexed and determines to destroy him root and branch. His daily delight is to see somebody punished and shed tears. We leave it to wise men to judge how much the government of such persons would be loved by the subjects, how far their patience can go, and how much lower it is possible for them to humiliate themselves, and what unhappiness is in store for them in future. The people of India having been under the British Government for the last two centuries, they not only are loyal by instinct and by training, but look only to the British Government for their future prosperity. We therefore unhesitatingly say that it is quite foolish in the rulers to think that the Indians have become disloyal by the instigation of anybody. It would be far better for them to try to win their love and confidence by a mild and considerate behaviour than to make themselves miserable by their own suspicions.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 20th, 1897.

The coming National Congress.

69. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th November, while congratulating the Honourable Mr. C. Sankaran Nayar on his nomination as the President of the coming National Congress, and also dilating upon his qualifications and attainments to occupy such a high position, remarks to the following effect:—"The congress will hold its sittings from the 27th December next and there is not therefore more than one month before us. There is no time to lose in electing delegates to the congress. As Mr. Sankaran Nayar is to be the President, the Malayalis ought to take a special interest in this year's congress. From a political point of view also this year's congress is all the more important. The case of that popular and patriotic Tilak cannot but add to the importance of this year's meeting. If the number of delegates be too small, some of the Anglo-Indians, who are the enemies of India, will decry and ridicule the movement, saying that the people kept aloof from taking part in it on account of their cowardice and that the congress is not in any way a representative of the people. Those who do not thoroughly know the aims and aspirations of the congress are apt to believe what the opponents say. As the conviction of Mr. Tilak was with some particular motives, it is of sufficient political importance to be dealt with by the congress. Under any circumstance this year's congress is very important and the people of India ought to exert themselves to make the ensuing meeting a success.

[Issued 7th December 1897.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 23 of 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th December 1897.

---

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| War preparations | 349 |
| The Tirah campaign | ib. |
| The Russian press and the frontier disturbances | 350 |
| The people of India and the frontier disturbances | ib. |
| The forward policy of the Government of India | ib. |
| The frontier tribes and the British Government | ib. |
| The British occupation of Egypt | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Wicked characters disguising themselves as women and plundering the people | 351 |
| A complaint that the claim of certain Police Inspectors were overlooked by the Inspector-General of Police | ib. |
| "Our police" | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Suggestions to remedy certain defects in the present judicial administration | ib. |
| Selection of jurors and assessors in Malabar | ib. |
| Suggesting the nomination of Muhammadan assessors | 352 |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Objection to a Government examination having been held on the 25th October, which was a public holiday. | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| A complaint against the Tanjore municipality | ib. |
| A request to give effect to a certain resolution of the Tirukkóyilúr taluk board | ib. |
| Tellicherry municipal franchise | ib. |
| Insufficiency of lights in the Calicut municipality | 353 |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Registration of janmam titles in Malabar | ib. |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Construction of the Calicut-Cannanore railway not to be delayed | ib. |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Bad condition of the Parappanangadi-Trikkolam road | ib. |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Necessity for improving the facilities of Negapatam and other British ports | 354 |
| Observations on the question of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Ratnasabapathy Pillai regarding the supply of copies of papers placed at the disposal of the press to the members of the Legislative Council | ib. |
| A complaint that the Eurasians and Europeans alone are encouraged in the Postal department and that the natives are neglected | ib. |
| Remarks on the treatment accorded to the Parayahs by the mirasidars of the district of Chingleput | 355 |
| Damage caused to crops by wild elephants from the Anamalai hills | ib. |
| The Kollair lake | ib. |
| Translators to Government | ib. |
| The sepoy's pay | 356 |
| Removal of taluk and sub-registrar's cutcherries from Tállapúdi to Kovvur | ib. |
| Registration of vakkalats | ib. |
| Complaint against the sub-registrar of Kúttaparamba | ib. |
| Notification regarding the Ajmere Urs-fair | 357 |
| Advice to the Native press | ib. |
| Financial condition of India | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Remarks on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill | ib. |
| Suggestions in respect of the proposed Malabar Tenancy Bill. | ib. |
| Commenting upon the questions and their replies in the last meeting of the Legislative Council | 358 |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| The Mysore Council of Regency | ib. |
| The desirability of a change in the Council of Regency at Mysore | ib. |
| Agricultural institutions to be established in the Cochin State. | 359 |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Sale-prices for rice, etc., during famine | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Advisability of communicating Indian news to the London committee by telegram | ib. |
| Apology tendered | 360 |
| The sedition trials and the desirability of setting Mr. Tilak free | ib. |
| The visit of the Governor of Madras to Mysore | ib. |
| Is Mr. Tilak loyal or not? | 361 |
| Tilak's memorial for mercy | ib. |
| A mysterious murder in the Calicut town | ib. |
| The coming congress | ib. |
| The Native press and the Anglo-Indian press | 362 |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | Dec. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 1st Dec. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 3 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 27th Nov. and 4th and 11th Dec. 1897. |
| 4 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,500 | 27th ,, ,, 11th Dec. 1897. |
| 5 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 27th ,, 1897. |
| 6 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 16th ,, and 8th Dec. 1897. |
| 7 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 28th ,, ,, 5th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 3rd, 17th & 24th Nov. and 1st & 15th Dec. 1897. |
| 9 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 29th Nov. and 6th and 13th Dec. 1897. |
| 10 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 15th and 29th Nov. and 6th and 13th Dec. 1897. |
| 11 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 20th and 27th Nov. and 4th Dec. 1897. |
| 12 | "Dharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 22nd Nov. and 1st and 8th Dec. 1897. |
| 13 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 27th ,, 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 14 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 18th, 20th, 25th, 27th and 30th Nov. and 2nd Dec. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 15 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 576 | Dec. 1897. |
| 16 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | ,, ,, |
| 17 | "Balika" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 300 | June, July, and Aug. 1897. |
| 18 | "Samrajyapradaini" .. .. | Vellatore .. .. .. | .. | 25th Aug., 25th Oct. and 25th Nov. 1897. |
| 19 | "Purusharthapradaini" .. .. | Masulipatam .. .. | .. | May and June 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 1st Oct. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 27th Nov. and 4th Dec. 1897. |
| 22 | "Rajayogi" .. .. .. .. | Cocanada .. .. .. | 300 | 8th Dec. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 30th Nov. and 3rd, 7th and 10th Dec. 1897. |
| 24 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st, 4th, 8th and 11th Dec. 1897. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 25 | "Sudarshana" .. .. .. | Udipi .. .. .. | 400 | Oct. and Nov. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 26 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 6th and 13th Dec. 1897. |
| 27 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 26th Nov. and 3rd and 10th Dec. 1897. |
| 28 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 4th and 11th Dec. 1897. |
| 29 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 2nd Dec. 1897. |
| 30 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 1st and 8th Dec. 1897. |
| 31 | "Mysore Deshabhimani" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 250 | 12th Dec. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 32 | "Deshabhimani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 250 | 5th Dec. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 33 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 4th Dec. 1897. |
| 34 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 25th Nov. and 5th Dec. 1897. |
| 35 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 30th ,, ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st and 11th Dec. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 37 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 27th Nov. and 4th Dec. 1897. |
| 38 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 6th Dec. 1897. |
| 39 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 1st and 8th Dec. 1897. |
| 40 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 4th ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 41 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 29th Nov. and 6th Dec. 1897. |
| 42 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 27th ,, ,, 4th ,, ,, |
| 43 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th ,, 1897. |
| 44 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras .. | 150 | 28th ,, and 5th Dec. 1897. |
| 45 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 22nd, 25th and 29th Nov. and 2nd Dec. 1897. |
| 46 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 15th and 25th Aug. 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 8th December, says that the Government of India is amassing troops and arms on the frontier at the instance of the military advisers to make war upon the petty chieftains around Afghanistan (sic) who are said to be up in arms. The grand preparations are out of all proportion to petty nature of the undertaking. What can the British Government gain by this war? They can acquire no glory by crushing such insignificant chieftains, no material gain either in money or in territory by it. All that the military men can hope to gain is a few titles for bravery shown in war. The paper wonders why the Government has undertaken such an unprofitable war merely on the persuation of its military advisers.

War preparations.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Dec. 8th, 1897.

2. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 11th December, referring to Colonel Hanna's advice that the Tirah expeditionary force should be withdrawn before winter, remarks thus:—If it is considered necessary to withdraw our forces immediately it would be a most unfortunate thing for our prestige. There can no longer be any doubt that this large expedition to Tirah which has cost so much treasure and blood, and which was entrusted to the chief command of a veteran who is esteemed one of our most experienced and brilliant Generals, has ended in a fiasco. It would appear that the Government of India are inclined to view the matter in this light, if we may judge by the report that, under the subterfuge of setting Sir William Lockhart free to relieve Sir George White of the Commander-in-Chiefship in India, Lieutenant-General Sir Power Palmer is to be detailed to virtually supersede Sir William Lockhart in the chief command of the forces in the field. It is affirmed that the Home Government have called for an explanation of the blundering by which the Afridis were permitted to reoccupy Dargari in consequence of which our troops were obliged to recapture the position at such terrible loss and sacrifice. If the bogie of seniority could be laid, General Westmacott would appear to be the most capable commander to entrust with the chief command of the operations. In view of the fact that the two most powerful and belligerent tribes of the Afridis, the Zakkha and Akkha Khels, have not made their submission, and do not betray the least desire to do so, it is evident that our withdrawal from the Tirah, under present circumstances, can only be regarded in the light of a retreat, and that it would confirm the Afridis in the impression which they are even now said to entertain—and justifiably we consider—that they have bested us. The spirit of the Afridis remains unsubdued; they continue defiant. If we have carried fire into their territory, their guerilla tactics have, to a great degree, prevented us from harrying them with its concomitant—the sword. If, therefore, we withdraw our troops as matters stand at present, the Afridis will undoubtedly cry "victory" and the damage done to our prestige would be incalculable. True, if we return in the spring and again drive the tribes to the mountain tops when they are engaged in sowing the seed for the next year's crops, we may dispel this illusion and ultimately starve them into submission. But it is very doubtful if the finances of the country is equal to the strain of a second campaign in the Tirah during the spring. And even if we could afford the money it is questionable whether we can afford the troops in view of the fact that unless we are disposed to permit the French to forestall us in the race for the head-waters of the Nile, a large British force will be required to co-operate with the Anglo-Egyptian army in the advance on Omdurman, where an army of fifty thousand men is entrenched under the Khalifa. It will thus be seen that the situation is full of complications, apart from the very serious financial aspect. The official estimate was that the war on the frontier would cost three crores and-a-half; it has been increased to six crores, and actual expenditure will probably largely exceed this sum. The war has established a blood feud of a permanent

The Tirah campaign.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Dec. 11th, 1897.

nature between ourselves and the tribesmen and there is no alternative but to thoroughly subdue them; until this is done they are not likely to cease from the commission of overt acts of hostility.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1897.

The Russian press and the frontier disturbances.

3. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 27th November, mentions—without comment—that the Russian press suggest to the Russian Government the taking of Herat, the key of India, as the present frontier disturbances have been caused by the British Government with the object of usurping the possessions of independent Jirgas and so gradually occupying Afghanistan.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1897.

The people of India and the frontier disturbances.

4. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 25th November, says the people of India are very much disturbed on account of the frontier disturbances, now that Government has diffused education amongst them, has given them high appointments and has left no stone unturned to safeguard their interests and to secure to them justice. Though the Government treated the frontier tribes well yet they have turned against it without thinking of the serious results that will ensue. The editor after praising the valour and bravery of the British army, remarks that Her Majesty spoke very highly of her soldiers and her words were reported at the Guildhall banquet. The Tilism advises the subjects of the British Government to remain always loyal and faithful to the British Crown.

ALHAMI, Madras, Nov. 28th, 1897.

The forward policy of the Government of India.

5. The Alhami, of the 28th November, mentions with approval that at last the forward policy of the Government of India has been abandoned and Tirah, it is alleged, will be left when the tribes have once been persuaded of the superiority of the British power. India does not wish to annex the country belonging to Afridis, for such an act would necessitate the construction of railways and roads on the frontier which would only facilitate the Russian advance. The country between Russia and India has neither roads nor railways. This being the case, if Russia now wishes to advance on India her progress will be greatly retarded for want of suitable means of communications and she will therefore not be able to realise her object for a long time to come. But if, on the contrary, Tirah is occupied and roads and railways are constructed, the enemy will be afforded good opportunities for advancing on India. Hence the occupation of Tirah is most inadvisable.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1897.

The frontier tribes and the British Government.

6. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 6th December, refers to the resolution of the London Muslim Patriotic League to the effect that in consideration of the distressed condition of the Indian finances, and the turbulent nature of the frontier tribes and their passionate love for independence and freedom, the British Government ought to hand over their tribal territory including Chitral to the Amir of Kabul, and observes that it is expedient that the British Government should leave the frontier tribes alone for it has to sacrifice once in every three or four years a lot of money to keep them at bay. Though they may after causing a heavy loss of men and money yield, still they will go on creating disturbances. Hence they should be given over to the Amir. In conclusion, the Shams says that the adoption of such a policy by the British Government will be of great advantage.

The British occupation of Egypt.

7. The same paper. The Al-Muvayyid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) contradicts the statement that the Porte desires the continuance of the present state of affairs in Egypt, and writes that the Porte fears a breach of faith by England, for it is only some two or three months ago that she broke her promise as regards Cypress. Every time the Porte has written officially to England regarding the evacuation of Egypt, France has been at the Porte's back. Soon the Porte will settle the Egyptian problem. The Al-Muvayyid adds that the sinister motive of persons who air such rumours is to sow seeds of dissension between the Porte and Egypt, but the Egyptians are not foolish enough to take such things to heart.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

8. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th November, draws the serious attention of the authorities to the fact that certain wicked characters in Madras disguise themselves as women, entice young men and drunken soldiers apparently for lewd purposes to a retired place where their comrades lie in wait, and carry away whatever that could be found on them, after assaulting them. The paper refers, as an instance in point, to an incident of the kind here complained of, which took place near the Madras Christian College some days ago.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1897.

Wicked characters disguising themselves as women and plundering the people.

9. The Jananukulan, of the 27th November, complains that while Mr. Agar was Superintendent of Police in the district of Tanjore he recommended Mr. Murugesam Pillai, 2nd-class Inspector of Tiruvádi, Mr. Jaffer Hussain Sahib, 3rd-class Inspector of Máyavaram, and Mr. Subramaniam Aiyar, 4th-class Inspector of Mannárgudi, for promotion to higher classes in consideration of their meritorious services in the department, and that his recommendation was not approved by the Inspector-General, and hopes that the Inspector-General will show due deference to the opinions of the Superintendents of Police, inasmuch as it is they that actually know which of the Inspectors in their districts deserves encouragement for the conscientious discharge of his duties.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Nov. 27th, 1897.

A complaint that the claim of certain Police Inspectors were overlooked by the Inspector-General of Police.

10. The Purusharthapradaini for May and June, received on 6th December 1897, writes thus in English :—"For a long time, he (Mr. T. Balaramaswami Suri, an exemplary Head-quarter Inspector) was travelling to and fro constantly as the Taluk Inspector. When the inspectorship of the head-quarter fell vacant it was given him, and he filled it up for a few years giving every satisfaction to superiors ; but for no reason that could be guessed at, he has been once transferred to a very unhealthy hilly station (perhaps Jeypore), and afterwards again subjected to the troubles of itineration throughout the district as a Prosecuting Inspector. Many worthies in Judicial and Revenue departments are similarly treated. This is a specimen of policy peculiar to our iron age in acknowledging the efficiency of subordinates and rewarding merit. Our present Head-quarter Inspector, Mr. Somayajulu Pantulu, has been also performing his duties with honesty and efficiency ; but we are sorry to hear that he wants to leave us and go to Nellore for the benefit of his health. Should that be the case, our Police authorities would do justice to their good judgment by reinstating Mr. Balaramaswami Suri in his former place at the head-quarters. Did all the above ever go to the notice of the Inspector-General of Police or the Government ?"

Purushartha Pradaini, Masulipatam, May and June 1897.

"Our police."

(b) Courts.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd December, by way of remedying certain defects in the present judicial administration, suggests that the pay and powers of Stationary Sub-Magistrates should be increased, that Munsifs should be vested with the powers of a 1st-class Magistrate, and that the nomination of these Judicial officers should be in the gift of the High Court.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1897.

Suggestions to remedy certain defects in the present judicial administration.

12. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 11th December, referring to the present unsatisfactory selection of jurors and assessors in Malabar, says that as the authorities who make such selections do not see that the persons so selected are men of education and capacity, it is impossible to believe that in criminal proceedings justice is properly meted out. The opinion is expressed that unless the jurors are paid travelling allowance it will be difficult to find persons ready to serve in that capacity.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 11th, 1897.

Selection of jurors and assessors in Malabar.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Nov. 29th, 1897.

Suggesting the nomination of Muhammadan assessors.

13. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 29th November, in referring to the sentence of death passed upon a Muhammadan by the Sessions Court of the Bangalore Civil and Military Station, notes with regret the absence of Muhammadan assessors, and says it is necessary in such cases that only those should be nominated as assessors who can understand the case thoroughly and can form a correct estimate of the motives and feelings of the culprit, and that this object can be realised only by the nomination of persons of the same caste or creed as the accused. In conclusion, the Qasim hopes that the Sessions Judge will consider this remark and remedy the evil.

(d) Education.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Nov. 15th, 1897.

Objection to a Government examination having been held on the 25th October, which was a public holiday.

14. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 15th November, is at a loss to know the reason why the Commissioner for Government Examinations held a Special Test examination on the 25th October, which was a public holiday, on account of the Dipavali feast. It says that one P. V. Jagatheesa Aiyar, in the Hindu of the 13th October, requested the Commissioner to postpone the examination due on the date in question, and that the Commissioner paid no heed whatever to the request although he had sufficient time to arrange for the postponement of the examination. The paper hopes that the Hon'ble Mr. Ratnasabapathy Pillai will be pleased to move the subject before the Legislative Council and get a suitable reply.

(e) Local and Municipal.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Nov. 15th, 1897.

A complaint against the Tanjore municipality.

15. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 15th November, complains that street drains in the town of Tanjore are not at all properly cleaned and that such an insanitary condition will facilitate the spread of cholera which is now making its appearance here and there in the town. He attributes this state of things to indifference on the part of the nuisance inspectors who do not exercise sufficient control over the scavengers, and regrets to state that these inspectors prosecute poor men for throwing rubbish outside their houses, and that, in the case of the gentry, they get the rubbish in the neighbourhood of their houses removed without preferring any complaint against them. The correspondent thinks that it is the duty of the municipality to remove the rubbish then and there if it be thrown in the drains and dust-bins, and hopes that the municipal councillors, who spare no pains to secure the largest number of votes for them at the time of election, will attend to the matter here complained of and do the needful.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Nov. 17th, 1897.

A request to give effect to a certain resolution of the Tirukkóyilúr taluk board.

16. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 17th November, requests the authorities to bring into force the resolution made by the taluk board of Tirukkóyilúr, on the 11th August 1888, to the effect that no corpses should be buried in the place which is being used as Muhammadan burial ground in the village of Parikkal, which is 20 miles from Tirukkóyilúr, for the reason that the said burial ground is situated in proximity to the dwelling-houses of the people and within 16 yards from a tank which is a source of good water supply. The correspondent regrets to observe that no effect has been given to the resolution under reference in spite of innumerable petitions on the subject.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Dec. 1st, 1897.

Tellicherry municipal franchise.

17. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st December, says that it understands from the Madras Mail that the Collector of Malabar has written to Government to withdraw the privilege of election from the Tellicherry municipality, and remarks that if it was on account of the hitch that existed in the municipal council which induced the Sub-Collector to make a report to the Collector, and if again it was on the strength of this report that the latter wrote as he did to Government, then both these officers have undoubtedly been very hasty in their action. There was no necessity for resorting to such extreme measures in order to remove the hitch which is alleged to have occurred in the council. Both the Collector and the Sub-Collector should have adopted remedial measures only after patiently inquiring into the causes which led to this hitch.

Insufficiency of lights in the Calicut municipality.

18. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 4th December, invites the attention of the chairman of the Calicut municipality to the inconvenience caused to the people by the insufficiency of lights on the road leading from the court to the sweetmeat bazaar as well as on the Robinson road.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 4th, 1897.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

Registration of janmam titles in Malabar.

19. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st December, referring to the registration of janmam titles in Malabar, doubts whether this work will result in any material good to the country, and whether the good which might, if at all, arise therefrom will be worth the money expended. The district of Malabar is very litigious and the registration of titles as at present conducted will, it is remarked, tend to increase the number of law suits and ruin the prosperity of the country. The article, after referring at some length to the proposed appointment of two more Deputy Collectors to expedite the work of registration, to the slow progress made by the two Deputy Collectors who are now doing the duty, and also to the heavy expenditure which the Government will have to bear before the work in the whole district is completed, says that it is a great pity that when the High Court decided that the settlement should be conducted with the landlords (janmis) Government did not, in giving effect to that decision, adopt a better method than this.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 1st, 1897.

(h) Railways.

Construction of the Calicut-Cannanore railway not to be delayed.

20. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 4th December, disapproves of the proposal to postpone the construction of the Calicut-Cannanore railway till the next October, on the ground that some alterations have to be made in the route from Badagara to Tellicherry, and that the survey from Cannanore to Baliapattam is not completed. The opinion is expressed that if the construction of those parts which have been finally surveyed and of which the plans and estimates have been approved and sanctioned by Government is at once taken on hand without waiting for the completion of the final survey of those parts where alterations are required, it will not only enable the poor to earn their livelihood when scarcity is prevailing all over the country, but the whole line could also be finished without much delay.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 4th, 1897.

(i) Public Works.

Bad condition of the Parappanangadi-Trikkolam road.

21. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 11th December, referring to the bad condition of the Parappanangadi-Trikkolam road, says that as both sides of the road are broken down in some parts, there is great difficulty for wheel-traffic. The article doubts whether this road has come within the knowledge of the contractors under the A system of road repairs in Malabar, and invites the attention of the district board to the necessity of making provision at least in this year's budget for the repair of this road which is very useful for the public.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 11th, 1897.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 18th, 1897.

Necessity for improving the facilities of Negapatam and other British ports.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th November, dwelling at some length on the importance of ameliorating the condition of the British ports of Negapatam and Muttupet, and regretting to note that the Madras Government is unable to spend money in that direction as it is in pecuniary embarrassment owing to the imprudent actions of the Government of India, remarks that a rumour is afloat that owing to import and export facilities in the French ports of Pondicherry and Karikal commerce is progressing in those places, and that a corresponding decrease in commerce is observed in the British ports of Negapatam and Muttupet. The paper urges on the authorities the necessity to adopt prompt measures for scrutinising the import and export accounts in the ports of Karikal, Pondicherry, Negapatam and Cuddalore during the last fifteen years in view to ascertain whether the rumour in question is true, and if it happens to be true, to take immediate steps for improving the facilities of Negapatam and other British ports at any cost. The paper concludes with the remark that such matters of paramount importance ought not to be neglected on the usual plea of want of funds.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1897.

Observations on the question of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Ratnasabapathy Pillai regarding the supply of copies of papers placed at the disposal of the press to the members of the Legislative Council.

23. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th November, alluding to the question of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Ratnasabapathy Pillai—"Will Government issue orders for the members of the Legislative Council being supplied with copies of all papers placed at the disposal of the Press?—observes that the grant of the request will be of no practical use to the members of the Council seeing that their tenure of office as such is only two years, and that a retiring member is not likely to hand over to his successor the official records in his custody. The paper thinks that it is the press which communicates to the people the proceedings of Government that should be supplied with copies of such official papers, advises the hon'ble members as well as others who are interested in politics to buy the papers they want at their cost, and suggests to Government the desirability of reducing the price of such papers as administration reports and so forth, of furnishing the Council library with at least a dozen copies of the same to enable the members of the Legislative Council to have access to them, and of sending at its cost any file of papers or proceedings, with the exception of those which are confidential, which any hon'ble member may require either for perusal or reference. The paper concludes with the remark that Government will do well to supply gratis such permanent institutions as the Madras Mahajana Sabha, which represents the people at large, with copies of all the papers connected with administration, as such a course will enable the people to have an insight into the politics of the day, so that Government may deal with men having sufficient knowledge of its doings.

A complaint that the Eurasians and Europeans alone are encouraged in the Postal department and that the natives are neglected.

24. The same paper makes a grievous complaint that posts carrying high salaries in the Postal department are generally conferred on the Eurasians and Europeans, even though they may not have high educational qualifications, whereas native officials, in spite of their superior attainments and long service, are as a rule neglected, regardless of the circumstance that they are the overworked officials of the department. The paper requests the authorities to bring into force the resolution of the Public Service Commission, namely, that a competitive examination should be held whenever any post carrying high salary falls vacant and that the appointment should be conferred on the candidate who happens to be the best, without observing any distinction whatever.

25. The Pariyan, of the 27th November, observes as follows:—The rule that no public lands in any village shall be sold to any stranger without the consent of the mirasidars of the village proves a hardship to the Parayahs and is a stumbling block in the way of their progress. At the request of an European missionary the Collector was pleased to grant the Parayahs a piece of poramboke land in Conjeeveram in spite of the objections raised by the mirasidars of the place. Thereupon the mirasidars preferred an appeal to the Board of Revenue which decided the case in their favour. It is to be deeply regretted that the poor Parayahs of the district of Chingleput are being molested in the same manner in which the natives of this country domiciled in South Africa are annoyed by the Europeans of that place.

PARIYAN, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1897.

Remarks on the treatment accorded to the Parayahs by the mirasidars of the district of Chingleput.

26. The Kalanidhi, of the 1st December, complains that wild elephants from the Anamalai hills come in groups and devastate the crops in the adjoining patta lands and thus cause serious loss to the ryots. The paper requests the authorities to adopt measures to prevent such damages.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Dec. 1st, 1897.

Damage caused to crops by wild elephants from the Anamalai hills.

27. A correspondent (the Secretary to the Kondangi People's Association) to the Sasilekha, of the 30th November, referring to the recent improvements made by Government in consequence of the questions asked in the Legislative Council by the Hon'ble Mr. N. Subba Rao Garu to the Kollair lake to facilitate the passage of its waters into Upputeru by digging Perantala and Juvvikanama channels, says that much benefit has resulted to the ryots and the Government as one lakh of revenue is being collected. The health of the people and cattle also has been good. But the water in the Kollair lake cannot freely run through the said channels. Upputeru is very narrow for eight miles and runs in a zigzag manner. In the rainy season the water from the Red channel, in the Gódávari district, flows through the Perantala channel into the Upputeru causing obstruction to the passage of water from the Kollair. He thinks that, by widening the Upputeru above Kothada and Kondangi for eight miles and by straightening its course near Kalithindi, the following benefits will result:—

SASILEKHA, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1897.

The Kollair lake.

(1) When all the water in the Kollair flows out, the one lakh and eighty acres of land, which lie submerged under water, will be rendered fit for cultivation.

(2) The Government will by this means obtain a revenue of two lakhs.

(3) The necessity to grant remission on the plea that crops have failed and perished will cease.

(4) The people of the place will get enough for livelihood by cultivating the whole land.

(5) In the rainy season four feet of water will remain on the uncultivated lands in the lake, while it will evaporate in the hot season. Diseases affecting men and catle will therefore not appear.

28. The Andhraprakasika, of the 1st December, writing about Government Translators, says that, since many deserving men are applicants to the Tamil Translator's appointment which is now vacant, Government is in a fix as to whose merits are to be recognised and whose are to be overlooked and is, therefore, seriously contemplating to make the office of the Translators tenable, in future, for a period of one year only. It expresses its opinion that this method of appointing a Translator for every year will seriously affect the prompt execution of Government work and that service for only one year will not attract competent men. It further says that, however learned the persons appointed may be, it will not be less than a year before they can comprehensively understand the real nature of the office work. If it so happens that they should vacate their appointment at the end of the short period in which they have barely time to learn about the work, they would not take pains to acquaint themselves with the work but would throw it entirely on the subordinate staff, they themselves being content with the mere signing of office papers. In this state of affairs, it says, the clerks may become more powerful than the Translators themselves and may, being bent upon evil acts, shift their own faults to the ex-Translators. It therefore recommends that the period of office may be extended to five years at least, and hopes that Government will decide the matter, only after mature and deliberate consideration.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1897.

Translators to Government.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1897.

The sepoy's pay.

29. The Sasilekha, of the 30th November, writing about the sepoy's pay, says that a few good changes may be made in this direction without much cost to Government. One change it recommends is that, in lieu of the allowance of Rs. 2 which the sepoy has been getting on account of the rise of price for foodstuffs, an increase of Rs. 2 may be made to his pay. This change, it says, will be profitable to Government as it will put an end to the necessity of keeping complicated accounts in the Pay department and as it will consequently do away with the services of many clerks. This change, it is said, will also tend to remove many other existing inconveniences. Another change it recommends is that, for increase of pay for good conduct, increase of pay after a few years' service may be substituted. It says that the substitution of increase of pay for the award of badges will give satisfaction to the sepoy and will alleviate his misery as he has to support his wife and children. It further says that, as a soldier is given good meals, his good-conduct money serves to defray his miscellaneous expenses; but a sepoy who loses a part of his pay as punishment for his bad conduct, subjects himself to starvation after sending what little remains to his family. Adding that any deduction in the sepoy's pay is improper, it suggests that, if the starting pay is fixed at Rs. 10 subject to its being raised to Rs. 14, competent men will join the service. It concludes that the above changes, while being profitable to the sepoy, will not tell upon the Government purse very much.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1897.

Removal of taluk and sub-registrar's cutcherries from Tállapúdi to Kovvur.

30. A correspondent (from Tállapúdi) to the Andhraprakasika, of the 1st December, writing about the removal of the taluk and sub-registrar's cutcherries from Tállapúdi to Kovvur, a village situated at the farthest end of the taluk, says that this taluk, though yielding a small revenue, has an extensive area, and that therefore the people who are within sixty miles of Kovvur are obliged to travel all the distance for making complaints of offences that may be committed within the said distance. He further says that, soon after the removal of the cutcherries, cases of theft began to increase and gamblers became numerous. It is said that property worth about Rs. 200, belonging to the headmaster of the girls' school, was stolen from his house and then property worth about Rs. 400 from a Komati's house. He remarks that, though there are many police stations in the taluk, cases of theft are not a few. It seems that a police constable, on a salary of 6 rupees, has purchased lands worth about Rs. 1,500 and jewels valued at Rs. 500, and the correspondent wonders how he has managed to obtain so much property.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 4th, 1897.

Registration of vakkalats.

31. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 4th December, referring to the fees levied by the adhikaris in Malabar for registering vakkalats in spite of the District Magistrate's circular forbidding them to charge fees, suggests that as the practice of levying fees by the adhikaris cannot be effectually checked, and as the salary now paid them is not in proportion to their responsibilities, they should be allowed to levy a fixed fee for every vakkalat, such fees being entered in a register kept for the purpose and receipts granted for the same; and out of the amount so collected a commission similar to that paid to sub-registrars should be paid them, the balance being remitted to the treasury.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 8th, 1897.

Complaint against the sub-registrar of Kúttaparamba.

32. A correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 8th December, writes that when one Pudiyakavil Kelappan and two others presented a marupattam document before Selvanayagam, sub-registrar of Kúttaparamba, for registration, the sub-registrar told them that they should insert certain sentences in the document and unless they did so their document would not be registered. They then gave the sub-registrar a petition stating that they should be given a written order to that effect, but the sub-registrar, it appears, told his peon to shove them out of the office by their neck, and the peon accordingly carried out his master's order. The correspondent referring to the matter at some length invites the attention of the authorities to the matter.

33. The Alhami, of the 5th December, in referring to a notice regarding the Ajmere Urs-fair, 2nd November to 7th December, remarks satirically upon the vigilance and promptitude with which some of the Government officials discharge their duties, and writes that the Ajmere authorities have sent this notice for publication to the Madras Government on the 3rd November and the Madras Government published it on the 30th November. This shows how vigilant the Madras officials are! The public were unaware prior to its publication of the fact that intending visitors to Ajmere would be quarantined ten days or allowed to return. What does ten days' quarantine mean when only seven days are remaining for the termination of the fair?

Notification regarding the Ajmere Urs-fair.

ALHAMI, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1897.

34. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 2nd December, in referring to the punishment of nine months' simple imprisonment awarded to the editor and proprietor of the Moda Vritta, of Satara, for publishing articles intended to excite feelings of disaffection to Government, remarks with regret that the editors of the Native press, instead of publishing articles calculated to promote the social, educational and commercial interests of the public, chiefly discuss political matters and thus attempt to excite feelings of disaffection towards the just and merciful Government. The Qasim, in conclusion, observes with pleasure that the misguided editors have now changed their tone, and hopes that they will not publish seditious articles in future.

Advice to the Native press.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 2nd, 1897.

35. The Alhami, of the 5th December, writes that Government does not put off things, when its heart is set on their accomplishment, no matter whatever risk it may run. It is so strong in its determination that it will push on with the frontier operations though India may become bankrupt. Rs. 16,000 have been sanctioned by Government for the astronomical view of the solar eclipse in January. But what will these scientific men do beyond eating and drinking.

Financial condition of India.

ALHAMI, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1897.

III.—LEGISLATION.

36. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th November, remarks that it would be a piece of injustice if the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill be passed into an Act on the ground of its being favourable to vakils and others whose earnings depend on their educational qualifications, and that it would be improper to introduce a measure which is likely to create partiality of treatment in Hindu families, although the difficulty felt by the Judges in disposing of suits for partition under the existing law may be lessened by the introduction of the Act under contemplation. The paper observes that the passing of the Bill could be justified if the authorities be prepared to pass another Act prohibiting the father from educating his children from out of the ancestral property. The paper is surprised to notice the remarks of Mr. Justice Subramani Aiyar and thinks that they were made more in consideration of the official position of the author of the Bill than of the subject-matter of the Bill itself.

Remarks on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1897.

37. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 4th December, refers to the arbitrary exactions which are in various ways made by the landlords in Malabar from their tenants. When there is any marriage, drama

Suggestions in respect of the proposed Malabar Tenancy Bill.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 4th, 1897.

or other ceremony in a landlord's house, a subscription is collected from his tenants at a rate fixed in certain proportion to the rent paid by them, and the sums so levied are not credited to their account. In social matters also, such as caste disputes, etc., the landlord interferes and makes a good income. Persons living in towns are not in a position to observe all the iniquities of the landlords in the interior. They even do things which cannot with any propriety be published in a newspaper. It is an open secret that a well-known landlord in Malabar recently levied from his tenants a gratuity of one rupee per para of pattam (rent) towards the cost of a civil suit between himself and another landlord. Again every landlord has two paras, one bigger than the other. The bigger one is used to measure the pattam paid by the tenants, who in consequence suffer a loss of 10 per cent. The words "measured and given by our patta para" may be seen in almost all documents. When the tenant takes his pattam to the landlord he has to suffer great hardships. If he has done anything which appears to be wrong in the eyes of the landlord, he must either pay penalty for it or wait there like a slave for a long time. Then one of his agents will come to measure the paddy. The paddy is put in the para and pressed well and measured, the loss consequently suffered by the tenant sometimes being one idangali (a measure) per para. Besides this, two and-a-half paras of paddy is deducted for every hundred paras towards the measuring charge. The tenant could at least save this charge if he is allowed to measure the paddy, but he is not. Owing to untimely rain and other adversities the crops generally fail and the little that the tenants get is not even sufficient to pay the rent which has been abnormally enhanced by the landlords. Under the circumstances, the grievances of the tenants will not be redressed unless along with the provisions made in the proposed Malabar Tenancy Bill in respect of melchart, renewal, eviction, rent, etc., a provision regarding patta paras is made therein. The best thing would be to take the exact measurement of the paras now used in several parts of the district and stamp them.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 6th, 1897.

Commenting upon the questions and their replies in the last meeting of the Legislative Council.

38. A leader in the Manorama, of the 6th December, while commenting upon the questions put by the hon'ble members and the replies of Government thereto in the last meeting of the Legislative Council, says that some of the questions of the hon'ble members were as insignificant as some of them were very important. The article remarks that the replies given by Government to the questions regarding the increase of salaries of village officers, the circular issued by the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, for rearresting the prisoners acquitted at the Sessions, the Persian and Hindustani Translatorship and the taking of minors under the Court of Wards to Ootacamund during the summer vacation, etc., were very evasive and unsatisfactory; and suggests that it will be better if a little more discretion is used by the hon'ble members in asking questions and by the Government in replying to them.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Dec. 10th, 1897.

The Mysore Council of Regency.

39. The Suryodaya, of the 10th December, thinks that on the whole the present members of the Council of Regency in Mysore had best be allowed to continue in office for another term of three years, in view of the fact that if a change is made it would be the Madrasees that would get into power, because the natives of the State are not in such high positions as would entitle them to succeed the present incumbents in council.

MYSORE DESHABHIMANI, Bangalore, Dec. 12th, 1897.

The desirability of a change in the Council of Regency at Mysore.

40. The Deshabhimani, of the 12th December, in a leading article calls upon the subjects of the Mysore Government to agitate for a change in the personnel of the Council of Regency, and gives an account of the proceedings of a meeting of the citizens held at Bangalore in which Mr. B. C. Srinivasa Iyengar remarked that the present members of the council have done no good of any kind to the people. That they have caused great inconvenience to the people by prohibiting lawyers to appear before them for parties, and insisting upon the parties themselves to make their representations in person. That the work of the council is divided into four departments, each under one member, who is supreme in his own department. That the members of the council have paid no attention to the welfare of the people, but have thought that their chief aim is to provide appointments for their own kith and kin. Mr. Krishna Murti, who holds the portfolio of the Revenue department, has disappointed the expectations entertained of him as a native of Mysore. Being himself a large jaghirdar he has been reluctant to make concessions to the ryots for fear that his own tenants would demand that those concessions be extended to them also. The following resolution is reported to have been passed at the meeting:—

"That this meeting prays that the present members of the Council of Regency be replaced by others when their term of office expires in February next."

41. The Nazrani Dipika, of the 30th November, dwelling at length on the hardship of the ryots of the Cochin State owing to the failure of crops during the last two years, regrets that the Diwan in his attempts to introduce reforms for the good of the State, has sadly lost sight of the matter of cultivation of rice, the main source of the land revenue; and requests that the example set by the neighbouring State of Travancore in opening agricultural institutions for the training of youth will be followed ere long with a view to avert the sufferings of the poor.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Calicut, Nov. 30th, 1897.

Agricultural institutions to be established in the Cochin State.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

42. The Purusharthaprathaini for May and June (received on the 6th December) says that, unless the Government undertake to prescribe a fixed rate of sale for rice at 10 seers per rupee and also corresponding rates for cholam and ragi and enforce strict observance of the same, there is no hope of sustenance for the poor during these famine times. Since this kind of interference in bad seasons is not opposed to but is in accordance with the principles of political economy, Government should perseveringly do this. It further says that Government should enact that so much of the local produce as is required to meet the wants of the people should be retained in the country and that only the excess should be allowed to be exported.

PURUSHARTHA-PRATHAINI, Masulipatam, May and June 1897.

Sale-prices for rice, etc., during famine.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th November, writes as follows:—

The Reuter's company, which is a great news agency, is constituted by Europeans and has agents in all the principal towns all over the world, who collect the important news of the day and communicate them to England. Its agents in India never turn their attention to native newspapers, and anything said in them has therefore no chance of reaching the ears of the people of England through that agency. They pick up Indian news published in English newspapers and communicate them to England and at times misrepresent the actual state of Indian affairs and thus prejudice the minds of the people in England. For instance, Damodera Chapeker, the murderer of Messrs. Rand and Ayerst, was represented in England as a vakil having received the benefit of English education, and the Times of England taking advantage of the news began to condemn the spread of higher education among the natives and the doings of the congress. As the people of England scarcely attend to the Indian affairs, gross misrepresentations like this will naturally induce them to lose the sympathy they have for the people of India. It is therefore absolutely necessary that we should communicate the Indian news then and there directly to the London committee. Of late there was a proposal to form a Press Association in India which fell through owing to want of moral courage on the part of the projectors to carry it out. It is only when our views, grievances and rejoicings are communicated to England then and there that the people of England can form a correct opinion regarding the Indian affairs; for it takes nearly twenty days for Indian newspapers to reach England and few people read them there. It is the British congress committee alone that should speak on the Indian topics appearing in the newspapers; but few will hear them. If the Indian news be transmitted to England by telegram, as advised by persons who visited England, the newspapers in England will publish them more on account of their brevity and the people of England will be informed of them in time.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1897.

Advisability of communicating Indian news to the London committee by telegram.

Sri Rajayogi, Cocanada, Dec. 8th, 1897.

Apology tendered.

44. The Sri Rajayogi of Cocanada published a single sheet (extra) on the 8th December 1897 (received 13th instant) offering an apology to the members of the search-parties in Poona and the Bombay Government in the following manner:—

"On reading the writings of a few newspaper editors and sub-editors or correspondents in the Bombay Presidency, we wrote, in the July issue of our journal, certain matters concerning Mr. Rand's murder and the search-parties. Subsequently from the apology submitted to Government by Professor Gokhale it is understood that all the matters published in the Bombay papers are lies. We, therefore, very much regret that without due investigation into the matter we wrote groundlessly libellous charges against them, based on others' writings. For this act of ours we sincerely tender our apology to those who strenuously worked as members of the search-parties and to the Government of Bombay which, for the welfare of the people, has been exerting to suppress the plague which is affecting the Presidency.

"If our subscribers would read our July article they could understand our meaning clearly. It is with no other object than the hope that the feeling of estrangement, which unfortunately intervened between the pure and good-hearted rulers and the ruled, would wear away and that a feeling of friendliness would result that we wrote our article. Whatever might have been the opinions held by the people at first, judging from the facts that subsequently came to light, it is clear that the protection of the people has been the chief object (?) of the Government. If the matters we had written on, in July, should have produced in the minds of our readers a feeling of dissatisfaction with the Government, we beg to say it is not proper that they should think so (be so dissatisfied)."

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Dec. 5th, 1897.

The sedition trials and the desirability of setting Mr. Tilak free.

45. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th December, after stating that the vernacular papers enjoyed perfect liberty until the murder of Messrs. Rand and Ayerst, and that Government found sedition in it only after those murders, proceeds to remark that the Judges who heard the appeal in the Pratoda case laid down the law in regard to sedition, differing materially from the interpretation of the same given by the Judge who tried Tilak. Since three Judges must be considered a better authority than one, Tilak must be considered to have been sent to jail under a misapprehension and he ought to be set at liberty. The jury was wrongly charged by Justice Strachey, and consequently Tilak ought to be set free. The punishment he has already suffered is quite enough to atone for the error he committed and to exact more would look like vengeance.

The visit of the Governor of Madras to Mysore.

46. The same paper remarks that His Excellency the Governor of Madras made a good impression upon the people of Mysore during his visit. He showed that he was very sympathetic, took an interest in different institutions, and the address he made at the Maharani's Girls' school was very good and to the point. The reply he gave to the address of the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian Association was very good. He was candour itself in his speech and he pointed out the weak points and showed there were many fallacies in the address. Upon the whole the visit was a great success.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th December, in criticising the article written by Mr. Hoare, of the Doveton College, to the papers, remarks thus:—Mr. Hoare's contention that Tilak is regarded as a hero by the people simply because he has been opposing Government from the very beginning of his career is altogether unsupported. Tilak is loved not only by the ignorant but by all the people. This fact is borne witness to by all the newspapers throughout India. To regard public spirit in the people as disloyalty to the British Raj is to give rise to a real feeling of disaffection towards Government in the minds of the people. If mere opposition to Government were fascinating to the people, the mutineers of 1857 must have been the most beloved and honoured by the Indian people. But the memory of the mutineers is so far from being honoured that they are deservedly forgotten. Mr. Hoare would therefore look in vain for popularity if he himself were to seek it by the means which he says Tilak employed to gain it.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 13th, 1897.

Is Mr. Tilak loyal or not?

48. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 4th December, referring to the memorial which is now in course of preparation by Mr. Tilak to be submitted to Government praying for mercy, says if the Bombay Government pardons him, it will not only greatly add to the reputation, prestige and justice of that Government, but also secure the good-will of Mr. Tilak and his numerous relatives and friends and also of the people in general.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 4th, 1897.

Tilak's memorial for mercy.

49. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 8th December, invites the attention of the Collector of Malabar and the District Superintendent of Police to the necessity of holding a personal inquiry into the murder of a Mahratti in the Calicut town which occurred some two months ago. It appears that the inquiry, which was conducted by the town police in the first instance, has not been satisfactory, nor has anything been heard of the medical officer's certificate which was sent to Madras for reconsideration. The Calicut public gravely doubt whether it is a case of suicide. Their opinion is that it was a deliberate murder. The editor strongly objects to the town police being again entrusted with the inquiry.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 8th, 1897.

A mysterious murder in the Calicut town.

50. The same paper in exhorting the Malayalis to elect as many delegates as they can to attend the next session of the National Congress at Amraoti, says that this year's congress is very important for various reasons and those who can afford ought to try and attend it. There is scarcely any portion of India which has not been affected either by famine, war, earthquake or plague. It is during the time of such calamities that the people should assemble in large numbers and represent to Government their grievances as they really are. In consequence of the Poona outrage, Government seems to have a great distrust in the educated natives of India and it is therefore the duty of the people to try and dispel it from their mind. Therefore the educated people who can afford ought to attend the congress and maintain the prestige and status of that movement. The plague in Bombay has quite disheartened the people in that Presidency; and the people of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces have also suffered a good deal on account of the famine, earthquake and cyclone. As the people of these countries have their own cares and concerns to attend to, they may rather choose to remain at home than attend the congress this year. The Presidency of Madras is the one that has been affected the least by the calamities above referred to, and it is therefore from this Presidency that the people should go in large numbers. Referring to Malabar, it is remarked that more delegates should be sent from that district than from any other, in consideration of the fact that it is the district which has been the least affected of all the districts in the Presidency and that the president-elect of the congress is a Malayali. The Malayalis are said to be not so very enthusiastic about the congress, but they are, it appears, very assiduous in finding fault with the measures of Government without moving from their homes. The article concludes with the remark that if any one intends sending any delegates from Malabar to the congress, it is high time to do so.

The coming congress.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1897.

The Native press and the Anglo-Indian press.

51. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 25th November, says the Victoria paper of Sialkote in drawing a contrast between the Native and the Anglo-Indian press, observes that the Anglo-Indian press comments on the actions of a person so far as they affect public or private interests only, but it neither gives any credence to bazaar news nor forms any opinion without reasons. It is different with some of the native papers. If any improvement is desired in its prestige, the Native press should not only have regard to section 124 or section 500 of the Indian Penal Code, but should also give the name of the paper from which any extract, which it inserts, was taken.

[Issued 22nd December 1897.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 24 of 1897.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st December 1897.

---

CONTENTS.

---

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| The dealings of the European powers in China .. .. | 265 |
| Mr. Gladstone and Turkey .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Amir of Kabul .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Frontier disturbances .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| A suggestion to the Commissioner of Police .. .. | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| A remark on M.R.Ry. R. Annasami Aiyar, District Munsif of Tiruvádi .. .. .. .. .. | 266 |
| Names of certain Munsifs' Courts in Malabar to be changed .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Village schoolmasters .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Madras Law College .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Necessity for a choultry at Tiruchengódu .. .. | ib. |
| Comments on the administration report of the Malabar District Board .. .. .. .. .. | 267 |
| Disapproving of the proposal of the Malabar District Board to pay exchange compensation allowance to the engineer .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Condemning the A system of road repairs in Malabar .. | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Iniquities practised in assessing income-tax .. .. | ib. |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| A few complaints against the Madras Railway Company. | 268 |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Nil. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Salt-duty .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—cont. | |
| (k) General— | |
| The despatch of a few sick and wounded soldiers from Kohat military hospital to Nowshera .. .. .. | 268 |
| The Indian subjects and the British Government .. | ib. |
| Suggesting the construction of a platform on the tram line .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 269 |
| Suggesting the election of local Legislative Council members by the communities to be represented .. | ib. |
| Attacks on the British rule in India .. .. .. | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Comments on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. .. | ib. |
| Comments on the Hindu Devastanam Bill of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Anantha Charlu .. .. .. .. .. | 270 |
| Comments on the interpretation of section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Opinion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. | ib. |
| Recommending the re-nomination of the Honourable Mr. Sankaran Nayar to the Legislative Council .. .. | 271 |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| A demand for a change in the Council of Regency in Mysore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The proposed survey and settlement in the Cochin State .. | ib. |
| Remarks on the Nawab Surwar Jung's pamphlet regarding the alleged irregularities in Hyderabad .. .. .. | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| High prices and cholera in South Madura .. .. .. | ib. |
| The poverty of India .. .. .. .. .. .. | 272 |
| The after-effects of the famine .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| An appeal to Muhammadans .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Difference of opinion between Government and the people regarding the punishment of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. | ib. |
| Reflections on the administration of His Excellency Lord Elgin .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Complaints against the European missionaries .. .. | 273 |
| The Madras delegates and the bubonic plague .. .. | ib. |
| The new Famine Commission .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Army expenditure in India .. .. .. .. .. | 274 |
| Inmates of the Lunatic Asylums not given proper meals .. | ib. |
| How to meet the cost of famine and plague .. .. .. | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th Dec. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 2 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 1,500 | 4th and 18th Dec. 1897. |
| 3 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 450 | 24th Nov. and 1st Dec. 1897. |
| 4 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 19th Dec. 1897. |
| 5 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 4th and 11th Dec. 1897. |
| 6 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 500 | 20th Dec. 1897. |
| 7 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 11th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 4th ,, ,, |
| 9 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 28th Nov. and 5th Dec. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 10 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 4th, 7th and 14th Dec. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 11 | "Satwa Sadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 250 | 31st Oct. and 30th Nov. 1597. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 12 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 15th Oct. 1897. |
| 13 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 350 | 16th Aug., 1st and 16th Sept., 1st and 16th Oct., 1st and 15th Nov., and 1st Dec. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 14 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 11th, 18th and 25th Dec. 1897. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 15 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 15th, 18th, 22nd, 25th and 29th Dec. 1897. |
| 16 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 14th, 17th, 21st, 24th, 28th and 31st Dec. 1897. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 17 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 20th Dec. 1597. |
| 18 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 19th and 26th Dec. 1897. |
| 19 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 20 | "Mysore Deshabbimani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 250 | 19th ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| 21 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th Dec. 1897. |
| 22 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 15th, 22nd and 29th Dec. 1897. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 23 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 14th and 23rd Dec. 1897. |
| 24 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 15th Dec. 1897. |
| 25 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 20th ,, ,, |
| 26 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 21st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 11th, 18th and 25th Dec. 1897. |
| 28 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 13th, 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 15th and 22nd Dec. 1897. |
| 30 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 31 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 13th, 20th and 27th Dec. 1897. |
| 32 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 11th, 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th and 15th Dec. 1897. |
| 34 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras.. | 150 | 12th ,, 19th ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 9th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | Not known. | 9th, 11th and 23rd Dec. 1897. |
| 37 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad, Deccan .. | Do. | 11th and 15th Dec. 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 30th December, says that the railway works in China are superintended by the English. The Chinese army is being trained by German and English officers. The Russian Government wants the Chinese Government to dismiss English and German officers and to entrust the training of the army to Russian officers. The Russians are building war-ships and erecting forts at Port Arthur for the Chinese Government at their own expense. All this shows that the Russians are going to settle permanently in China.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Dec. 30th, 1897.

The dealings of the European powers in China.

2. The Alhami of the 12th December. The Habl-ul-Mateen, of Calcutta, mentions that Mr. Gladstone, in a speech delivered in a meeting of his followers on the 23rd September, blamed the Christian powers for being at variance regarding the dismemberment of Turkey at a favourable juncture, and said that the omission to act at the late crisis was a sign of the decline of the Christian powers. The Habl-ul-Mateen, with reference to the above speech, observes that old age and mental derangement have affected the speaker's mind. All European politicians regard Mr. Gladstone as the author of the massacre of the Christians and Armenians in Crete. If Mr. Gladstone is a well-wisher of Christians in general, it behoves him to govern himself more discreetly.

Alhami, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1897.

Mr. Gladstone and Turkey.

3. The Alhami of the 19th December. A correspondent "A.R." writes that it is a mistake to think that the Amir of Kabul plays a double game in connection with the frontier disturbances. He is a very sensible and far-sighted ruler. He himself is quite unable to reconcile these tribes to his authority, but he has given satisfactory proof of his having no connection with these risings and of his attachment to the British Crown. He is not so ungrateful as to commit such follies. He fully admits that his prestige and the spread of civilization in his own land has been due mainly to British influence.

Alhami, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1897.

The Amir of Kabul.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 20th December, refers to the rumour that British officers are unable to put up with the cold climate of the frontier and wish for an immediate peace. If this be true, the British prestige will suffer. Why did Government challenge these tribes to fight, if it had not the intention to carry through things? Had the money laid out in this expedition been paid from the British coffers, and not from the pockets of the poor Indians, the war would not have taken place.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Dec. 20th, 1897.

The Frontier disturbances.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th December, cites a case, which appears to have recently occurred, in which an official of the Board of Revenue was assaulted by some Eurasians on the Beach road between the iron bridge and the fort. It complains that another official of the same office was similarly dealt with by wicked characters almost at the same place on a former occasion. The paper suggests the desirability of posting constables on beat at this part of the Beach road and of ordering them to continue the beat till at least 9 P.M. and not till 8 P.M. as is the case at present.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1897.

A suggestion to the Commissioner of Police.

(b) Courts.

JANANUKULAN, Tiruvádi, Dec. 11th, 1897.

A remark on M.R.Ry. R. Annasami Aiyar, District Munsif of Tiruvádi.

6. The Jananukulan, of the 11th December, thinks it desirable that M.R.Ry. R. Annasami Aiyar, District Munsif of Tiruvádi, should be transferred elsewhere for the reason that he is wanting in experience. It says that the District Munsif's Court of Tiruvádi is noted for its heavy file of intricate cases which nothing but experience will enable the district munsif to decide without miscarriage of justice. It adds that litigation frequently arises at Tiruvádi in consequence of disputes between the Brahmins and the Pandara Sannathi of the Dharmapuram mutt, who is the dharmakartha of the shrine at Tiruvádi, and between the Hindus and the Christians of that place. The paper hopes that the authorities will appoint for Tiruvádi a district munsif who is well experienced and who is not a Sivaite.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 14th, 1897.

Names of certain Munsifs' Courts in Malabar to be changed.

7. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 14th December, invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of changing the names of the Kuttanad, Shernad and Nedunganad Munsifs' Courts, because these courts are now respectively situated at Ponnáni, Parappanangadi and Ottapalam, and to call these courts by their former names notwithstanding their removal from their former to their present localities looks rather ridiculous.

(d) Education.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1897.

Village schoolmasters.

8. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 18th December, represents the miserable condition of the village schoolmasters in most piteous terms. He says that people in the villages are very reluctant to spend anything on the education of their children, and that the poor schoolmaster has therefore to coax them in various ways to send their children to his school. His income does not ordinarily exceed two or three rupees a month, but he devotes his whole time and energy to prepare his pupils for Government examinations with the ulterior hope of obtaining a fair Government grant. The correspondent regrets to find that the salaries of schoolmasters are reduced from Rs. 8 to Rs. 7 a month, and that grants are given not according to the results of the examinations, but subject to the available funds allotted. He regrets that the policy adopted is unjust, shortsighted, and highly prejudicial to the interests of education. He therefore earnestly prays that the old system would be restored.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 20th, 1897.

The Madras Law College.

9. A leader in the Manorama, of the 20th December, while reviewing the report of the Madras Law College for the past official year, says that the Principal of the College, the Director of Public Instruction and the Government have all remarked that the results of the college were unsatisfactory. It is a matter for regret that out of 484 candidates who appeared for the F.L. examination only 92 passed. The Principal says that this was due to the severity of the examination, but the Director's opinion is that the vagaries of the examiners and the fault of the lecturers have contributed a good deal to the unsatisfactory results. The article considers that the Director's opinion is right and remarks that it is at a loss to understand the meaning of the silence on the part of Government in the matter.

(e) Local and Municipal.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengódu, Dec. 5th, 1897.

Necessity for a choultry at Tiruchengódu.

10. The Viveka Thivakaran, of the 5th December, says that it is absolutely necessary that the Local Fund Board should construct a choultry for the convenience of the pilgrims who halt at Tiruchengódu on their way to the sacred shrines. It also wishes that the choultry should be erected at a place which is not far from the town and which can afford the travellers all kinds of comforts.

11. The Manorama, of the 13th December, has a leader reviewing the administration report of the Malabar District Board for 1896–97. It remarks:—It appears from the report that all the taluk boards except that of Tellicherry have adopted the A system of road repairs. Although a large sum has been expended on the repairs of roads, yet as they are conducted under the A system almost all the roads have been spoilt. It is therefore incumbent on the President to find out some means to remedy this defect though the Government has not said anything about the matter. The Board had maintained 247 Primary schools in 1895–96, but that number was reduced to 180 in 1896–97, and the Board is, it appears, going to reduce it still further. It will be a great pity if the President does not pay his serious attention to the matter. In the eight hospitals and seven dispensaries in the district 122,040 patients in all were treated. The fact that there were 393 patients treated in excess of that of the previous year, notwithstanding that the number of hospitals and dispensaries was each reduced by one in the year under review, is a clear proof that the natives have begun to appreciate the advantage of English treatment and medicines. Under the circumstances, it is a great pity that hospitals have not been opened in all the centres where they are needed. At least those that were closed ought to be reopened.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1897.

Comments on the administration report of the Malabar District Board.

12. A leader in the Manorama, of the 20th December, says that it was resolved at the last meeting of the Malabar District Board to make provision in the budget estimate for paying exchange compensation allowance to the District Board engineer and also to reduce the educational grant by Rupees 5,000. The article, after criticising the resolution of the Board at some length, expresses a hope that when the budget comes before Government due consideration will be given to these matters by them, as the proposal of the Board to pay compensation allowance to the engineer by curtailing the educational allotment is very unreasonable.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 20th, 1897.

Disapproving of the proposal of the Malabar District Board to pay exchange compensation allowance to the engineer.

13. The Manorama, of the 27th December, says that it was resolved at the last meeting of the Malabar District Board to renew the A system of contract for road repairs, which has so often been condemned by the people and the press. The article while referring at some length to the waste of funds brought about by the A system and also to the unsatisfactory condition of roads in the district, advocates the necessity of completely modifying that system, and hopes that when the budget reaches Government they at least will give the matter their careful consideration.

Alluding to the same subject the Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th December, expresses a similar opinion.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 27th, 1897.

Condemning the A system of road repairs in Malabar.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

14. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd December, while writing about the grievances resulting from the indiscriminate and unjust imposition of income-tax by the tahsildars relying upon the report of the low paid and consequently corrupt village officials and revenue inspectors, says that it is a matter for regret that the Government has not yet raised the taxable minimum from Rs. 500 to 1,000 though several eminent men as well as the National Congress have expressed the opinion, based on strong reasons, that it should be so raised. The correspondent adds that if the income-tax be imposed without any partiality or favouritism, the assessment will have to be cancelled in the case of some who have now been assessed, while the same will have to be imposed in the case of some who have not been assessed. This could be easily ascertained if the tahsildars examine the list of persons assessed. If proper attention is not paid by tahsildars to the matter not only will the Government be a loser but the people will also be greatly dissatisfied.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 23rd, 1897.

Iniquities practised in assessing income-tax.

(h) Railways.

PARIYAN, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1897.

A few complaints against the Madras Railway Company.

15. The Pariyan, of the 4th December, complains that, in petty stations like those between Jalarpet and Bowringpet on the Madras Railway line, where the train stops only for two or three minutes, the passengers wishing to alight experience great inconvenience on account of the fact that the doors of the railway carriages are not opened immediately after the stoppage of the train, apparently owing to the circumstance that the few railway servants employed at such stations are otherwise engaged with the guard and the driver. The paper further complains that the Eurasians instead of selecting the third-class carriages specially reserved for them, enter the compartments of the other third-class carriages, spread their beds on the benches and sleep to the great inconvenience of the native passengers who are therefore driven to the painful necessity of forcing their way into the other carriages already filled with the prescribed number of passengers, and that the Eurasian servants of the company connive at this irregularity. The paper draws the attention of the Madras Railway authorities to the injuries and accidents which passengers sometimes experience owing to certain defects in the present mechanism connected with the windows of the railway carriages intended to raise and lower them, and suggests the desirability of providing the windows of all the carriages with the peculiar handles newly introduced in certain carriages of the company.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 25th, 1897.

Salt-duty.

16. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th December, referring to the yearly increase in the salt-tax by quoting the figures for the past few years, remarks that it may, perhaps, be just on the part of Government to oppress the people by levying such a high duty on one of the important articles of food.

(k) General.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 6th, 1897.

The despatch of a few sick and wounded soldiers from Kohat military hospital to Nowshera.

17. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 6th December, complains that some sick and wounded soldiers were removed to Nowshera for want of sufficient accommodation in the Kohat military hospital. They arrived at Kushalgarh station on the 20th November where they were put into third-class carriages in which no arrangement was made for their food, treatment, etc. They reached Nowshera in 24 instead of in 12 hours and suffered much in consequence. Fortunately, Sir George Wolseley, who happened to be in Nowshera, on perceiving the wretched state of the soldiers, instituted inquiry into the shameful negligence of the medical officers in charge. The Qasim hopes that the responsible officials will meet with their deserts and that preventive measures will be adopted.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Dec. 18th, 1897.

The Indian subjects and the British Government.

18. The Mulk-o-Millat of the 18th December. A correspondent "Abul Ula," of Lucknow, writes that many prejudiced Anglo-Indian papers have poisoned the ears of Government against its Indian subjects and have imputed to them disloyalty, but Indians are very loyal and many feudatory rajas and native princes including the Nizam have volunteered the services of their troops at the front, where they acquitted themselves most creditably. Does this prove loyalty or disloyalty? If the Anglo-Indian papers keep on imputing to the Indians disloyalty and seditions, these feelings will be engendered with results detrimental both to the interests of Government and its subjects.

19. The Alhami, of the 19th December, in referring to a recent tramway accident, resulting in the death of an old woman, hopes that due inquiries will be made into the causes that led to the occurrence. The tram-car traffic is frequently attended with accidents. The Tramway authorities should construct a platform from Parry & Co.'s office as far as Periyamettu, on which the public may walk and thus render the occurrence of such accidents impossible.

ALHAMI, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1897.

Suggesting the construction of a platform on the tram line.

20. The same paper writes that very soon Mr. V. Muhammad Sharif Khan Bahadur's term of office as a member of the local Legislative Council will expire and that his re-election is recommended by the Muhammadan community in general. It is admitted beyond doubt that he did well according to his lights and at times overshot the mark. In conclusion, the Alhami observes that it would be better if members were elected by the community which they should represent.

Suggesting the election of local Legislative Council members by the communities to be represented.

21. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 27th December, says that an Arabic paper called Ilm-i-Usmani, of Cairo, has been sent to it for exchange. It contains many false accusations against the British Government as regards the enforcement of the plague rules and the Calcutta mosque dispute. The Shams translates portions of these writings and says "we do so by way of pleasantry that our readers may understand the length they go in accusation."

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Dec. 27th, 1897.

Attacks on the British rule in India.

The British Empire upon which the sun never sets is a hot bed of intrigues and of atrocities. The members of the Government who consider themselves superior to all the world are hard-hearted and tyrannical. They take great interest in the perpetration of atrocious deeds such as torturing and defaming the creatures of God, usurping their rights and privileges, wounding their religious feelings, bearing ill-will against Islam and its followers, and oppressing those under them. The justice, equity and generosity of which this tyrannical and atrocious Government boasts so much is nothing but a sham.

The people of India, whether Hindus or Muhammadans, being unable to bear the oppressions practised by the Government and its officers, are clamorous for justice and heartily desire to be relieved from their clutches. They have now turned their attention towards the Turkish Empire and pray to God thus:—Oh God! grant long life to our master the Sultan and the Commander of the Faithful. Bless him, cast a favourable glance on our wretched condition, extricate us from the present calamities and distress and save us from being oppressed.

The British Government is offering indignity to religious ceremonies, destroying mosques, arresting inhabitants, attacking their houses, entering their harems, driving their women on to the roads and stripping them of their clothes on the pretence of their being infected with the plague. A respectable lady committed suicide as her chastity was violated by a European under cover of these proceedings.

As regards the Calcutta mosque dispute, the paper says many innocent persons lost their lives because they persisted in not allowing their mosque, in which they had been saying their prayers for many years, to be unjustly demolished.

III.—LEGISLATION.

22. A correspondent to the Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th November, referring to the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill, remarks as follows:—Public opinion is very much against this Bill and it is therefore absolutely necessary that Government should pay particular attention to it.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1897.

Comments on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

The people are already displeased with Government. It is not desirable that Government should, at a time like this, proceed to pass this Bill into an Act at the instance of a few selfish men who form a small minority among the Hindus, inasmuch as the passing of the Bill will tend to disintegrate many a Hindu family by creating distrust among the undivided members thereof.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengódu, Nov. 28th, 1897.

Comments on the Hindu Devastanam Bill of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Anantha Charlu.

23. The Viveka Thivakaran, of the 28th November, referring to the Hindu Devastanam Bill of the Hon'ble Mr. Anantha Charlu, says that as the Bill invests the Supreme committee with large powers and makes it almost the highest tribunal in religious matters, it is desirable that the scheme proposed by the Bill should not be made permanent until after a trial for a period of five years. It observes that there should also be a clause in the Bill providing for the appointment of a panchayet, when, in the opinion of the public, the committee errs, to judge of its actions, and empowering either the panchayet or the High Court or the Government to remove such members of the committee as may be found to be guilty of misconduct and also to fine them if necessary. The paper also wishes that the three members constituting the Supreme committee should be of the Siva, Vishnava and Smartha religions to represent the three sections of the Hindu community which embrace these three religions, and that they should be pious graduates of good moral character having sympathy for, if not belief in, idolatry, which is the corner-stone of almost every temple in this country.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1897.

Comments on the interpretation of section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code.

24. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st December, referring to section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code, observes:—It is quite unfair to have in the Act a section in the construction of which even able Judges differ, as it proves dangerous to the people. It is the duty of the legislators to make the language of the Act so clear as to enable even a child to understand it without any difficulty. Section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code is very ambiguous. Judges differ in its construction. The object of the writer of that section seems to us to be this: To publish in a newspaper an article which simply makes people grow displeased with Government will not in itself constitute an offence; but to induce the people to manifest their displeasure by attacking Government will constitute an offence under the section. But the Judge who tried Mr. Tilak does not approve of this construction and is of opinion that to create dissatisfaction and disgust towards Government is enough to constitute an offence under the section and that want of affection is enmity. Although the opinion held by the other Judges of the Bombay High Court is not in conformity with this opinion, all of them agree in thinking that to attack Government is one thing and to attack the measures of Government is another thing. It is a mistake to suppose that the people entertain feelings of disaffection to Government in view to drive it off the shores of their country; for they are likely to do so only when they come to know what sort of Government they are to have after they shall have dispensed with the present Government.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1897.

Opinion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

25. The Vikata Dutan, of the 4th December, referring to the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill, observes that the passing of the Bill would remove the obligation which an eldest brother in a family now has of educating his younger brothers, and does not agree with Mr. Justice Subramania Aiyar in thinking that an eldest brother in a Hindu family educates his younger brothers as a matter of moral duty without expecting any return from them in the future. The paper endorses the opinion of the Hon'ble Mr. Crole that the Bill in question would benefit the vakil classes only and not the Hindu families in general, as it would lead to their disintegration in the long run.

26. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd December, invites the attention of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to the necessity of re-nominating the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nayar, whose term of office as member of Council has expired, to one of the two seats now rendered vacant in the Legislative Council. The correspondent adds that as there should always be a special member in the Council to represent the interests of the Malabar and South Canara districts, the nomination of Mr. Sankaran Nayar will give general satisfaction.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 23rd, 1897.

Recommending the re-nomination of the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nayar to the Legislative Council.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

27. The Mysore Deshabhimani, of the 19th December, calls upon the people of Mysore to agitate for a change in the Council of Regency. Mr. Thambu Chettiar, it says, is partial to non-Brahmins in giving appointments. Mr. Krishnamurthi, who was all sweetness and kindness before he became councillor, looks now to his own aggrandizement and has prevented lawyers from appearing and pleading before the council, while the Muhammadan member is quite innocent and cannot act independently for himself. It is therefore necessary, in the opinion of this paper, that these councillors should be replaced when their term of office expires. It suggests the names of Messrs. Ramachandra Aiyar, V. N. Narasimha Aiyangar, T. Ananda Rau, V. P. Madhava Rau, A. Rangaswami Aiyangar, Tirumala Chari, Minakshi Aiyar, and Narahari Rau from among whom a choice may be made for the reformed council.

MYSORE DESHABHIMANI, Mysore, Dec. 19th, 1897.

A demand for a change in the Council of Regency in Mysore.

28. A leader in the Manorama, of the 13th December, in commenting upon the administration report of the Cochin State for M.E. 1071, as reviewed by the Madras Government, says, among other matters, that it cannot endorse the opinion expressed by the Resident and the Government that the assessment being very low in the State a new survey and settlement should be made. It is but just to say that a new survey should be conducted and all the unassessed lands settled on the same scale as the former settlement, but to insist upon the Cochin Sirkar to conduct a fresh survey and enhance the assessment is not only very unjust but also oppressive to the people who are already poverty-stricken on account of the unfavourable seasons and constant famine. The article advises the Raja and his Diwan to think well before they adopt this ruinous measure which will be a permanent evil to the State.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1897.

The proposed survey and settlement in the Cochin State.

29. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 9th December, in commenting upon the Nawab Surwar Jung's pamphlet regarding the strained relations between the Nizam and the Prime Minister, observes that the Nawab has, at the end of his pamphlet, used very offensive expressions in regard to the Prime Minister and the Resident, calling them respectively treacherous and arbitrary. Surwar Jung, who was once the friend, has now become the bitterest enemy of these personages. The Mukhbir, however, requests the Government of India to institute an inquiry into the irregularities complained of and thus to encourage the Nizam to enforce his authority without being checked by any political pressure. The Resident should be warned against exceeding his powers and the Government should keep itself well acquainted with his actions.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1897.

Remarks on the Nawab Surwar Jung's pamphlet regarding the alleged irregularities in Hyderabad.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

30. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th December, learns from a correspondent that the prices of grains have risen enormously in the south of Madura, and that cholera has already carried off about a hundred people.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 20th, 1897.

High prices and cholera in South Madura.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Dec. 15th, 1897.

31. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 15th December, gives a passage from the Weekly Times to the following effect:—The people of India generally live from day to day on insufficient food. The Government takes away one-third of the earnings of such poverty-stricken people. Therefore however hard-hearted a revenue officer may be he cannot add a single anna to their present burden of taxation, for such an addition will completely crush them.

The poverty of India.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 20th, 1897.

32. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th December, says that although the struggle with famine is practically over, the visitation has left a heavy legacy of orphans. These are altogether, it says, some 5,000. Such chiefly in the Central and North-West Provinces.

The after-effects of the famine.

ALHAMI, Madras, Dec. 19th, 1897.

33. The Alhami of the 9th December. A correspondent invites the immediate attention of the Muhammadans to the support of their poor and helpless co-religionists who, on account of the prevailing famine, are in sore need of help. Scarcity of rain and the highhandedness of grain-sellers have much reduced the people. The grain-sellers sell at an exorbitant price without check. It is our duty to request our Government to adopt such measures as will mitigate the sufferings and hardships of the people.

An appeal to Muhammadans.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1897.

34. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th December, hearing that Mr. Tilak's name has been removed from the list of Fellows of the Bombay University, observes as follows:—Mr. Tilak thinks that innocent as he was he has been subject to the wrath of Government. People throughout India are of opinion that there was miscarriage of justice in his case. We admit that so long as Government regards him as a culprit it will not do well for it to continue the honours which it conferred on him. But, as there is a striking difference of opinion between Government and the people in this case, the Government of Bombay would have done well if it had exercised a little patience and kept in abeyance the withdrawal of the honours it had conferred on Mr. Tilak. The difference of opinion that exists between Government and the people in respect to this case will not promote the well-being of this country. It is our fervent prayer to the Almighty that such a difference of opinion will not recur any more.

Difference of opinion between Government and the people regarding the punishment of Mr. Tilak.

35. The same paper remarks as follows on the administration of His Excellency Lord Elgin: Ever since the English began to administer this country, schools have been opened throughout the length and breadth of the land for the diffusion of knowledge among the people, so that our countrymen have well studied the principles of the British administration. Newspapers and journals tend to cultivate the intellectual powers of the masses who express their grievances through postal and telegraphic communications. As the changes that are taking place in India at present are many, it behoves Her Gracious Majesty to send at this crisis a competent man as Viceroy to rule over India. He must be a person of great experience and tender heart and one who will not allow himself to be misled by civil and military officers who make Governors and Viceroys do what they dictate, on the pretext that they possess superior knowledge and experience of the local administration. As the present Governor-General is a person of ordinary capability he listened to the words of the military officers and entangled himself in an unjust war. Had the money spent on this war been expended in improving the comforts of the people, how happy they would have been! His Excellency Lord Elgin has squandered India's money and behaved in such a way as to induce even his own party in England to condemn him. He has allowed the Governor of Bombay to do what he pleased. As Lord Elgin's past actions have brought discredit upon the Liberal party in England, it is hoped that he will, during the remaining period of his tenure of office as Viceroy, spare no pains to make amends for his misdeeds. His words are no doubt like the nectar and he seems to act like an earnest ruler, but no good consequences result from his actions. Rumour has it that Sir George Hamilton, the present Secretary of State for India, is to succeed His Excellency Lord Elgin as the Viceroy of India. It is certain that he will do us no good.

Reflections on the administration of His Excellency Lord Elgin.

Complaints against the European missionaries.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th December, complains that the European missionaries instead of acting as evangelical preachers and propagating Christianity, live here like nabobs on the charity of the people of England, pretend to have considerable influence with the European officers of this country, unnecessarily interfere with the mirasidars of villages, create misunderstanding between them and the cultivators, induce the latter to file vexatious suits against the former, helping them with money to meet the cost of litigation, threaten native sub-magistrates with some kind of punishment or other if they fail to pass judgment in their favour, carry tales to the District Collectors against the sub-magistrates when judgment is unfavourable to them, and thus prove themselves to be a source of hardship and trouble to the people. The paper remarks that the missionaries are not justified in thus disturbing the peace of the country.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1897.

The Madras delegates and the bubonic plague.

37. The Pariyan, of the 11th December, writes as follows:—The bubonic plague of Bombay has found its way even in Lahore and Punjab, and Amraoti, the town where the congress is to be held this year, is not far from these places. About 40 delegates from the city of Madras and about 100 or 150 from the mofussil may proceed to Amraoti. The congress met for the last twelve years and subjected Bombay to the indignation of Government, and will meet this year and subject Madras to the effects of the plague. It is apprehended that the delegates of this Presidency will come in contact with those proceeding from the plague-affected parts of Bombay and catch the contagion. The authorities should therefore closely watch the delegates proceeding from this Presidency and keep them on their return under strict observation either at Gooty or Arkonam for a period of ten days before allowing them to enter the city, and inquire of their state of health now and then even after their return to Madras, preventing them from repairing to their villages.

PARIYAN, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1897.

The new Famine Commission.

38. The Sasilekha, of the 14th December, regrets that the Government should think of appointing a commission to suggest amendments in the Famine Code, instead of taking steps to inquire into the very causes of the recurring famines in India and of the poverty of the Indian people. The causes are not wholly superhuman as Sir Andrew Scoble declared in the Parliament. It enumerates some of the causes as follows:—

(1) The appointment of high-salaried European officers in the administration of the country and giving them compensation allowances to boot.

(2) The maintenance of an unnecessarily large army and picking up quarrels with the neighbouring tribes.

(3) The maintenance of a large number of useless offices in England and expending large sums of money on them.

(4) Laying out immensely large funds in the construction of railways with the mistaken notion that they are the best means of preventing famines.

(5) The frequent settlements of lands having the effect of leaving to the ryots nothing more than bare subsistence.

The first step therefore which the Government should take, it says, is to curtail expenditure, and this might be effected by—

(1) abolishing the office of the Secretary of State for India in Council and other Indian offices in England;

SASILEKHA, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1897.

(2) making England contribute—because of the advantages it enjoys from the possession of India—half of the money to be expended by India on the army and navy;

(3) refraining from waging wars with the neighbouring wild tribes;

(4) conferring higher appointments on natives;

(5) constructing canals, tanks, wells, anicuts, etc., instead of railways;

(6) making a permanent settlement of lands.

The paper believes that these measures will surely improve the condition of the Indian population and relieve them of all suffering under the enlightened British Government.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 20th, 1897.

Army expenditure in India.

39. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th December, speaking of the memorial addressed by the Bombay Presidency Association to the British House of Commons, gives a summary of the representations made in the memorial, and hopes and sincerely trusts that the House of Commons will consider the memorial and grant the just and reasonable prayer it contains.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Dec. 26th, 1897.

The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 25th December, commenting on the same memorial, says:—In our judgment we think the Bombay memorialists have made out a strong case against those who maintain the present "forward policy," namely, the Home Government and the Secretary of State for India and his Council. We think also that the House of Commons is very likely to listen to the prayer of the memorialists, and that the House will investigate the several matters brought to its notice regarding the military expenditure in India and also the cost of the expedition should be paid by the Home Treasury.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 22nd, 1897.

Inmates of the Lunatic Asylums not given proper meals.

40. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd December, says that the inmates of the Lunatic Asylums are treated, in the matter of the supply of food, just like criminals. It will be better not to keep them in the asylums than to put them to such miseries. All the inmates of the Calicut Lunatic Asylum are Malayalis and they are accustomed to take only rice. But they are given cholam instead of rice. This is certainly very hard. The authorities ought to make arrangements to give them rice without considering the extra expense which they may incur thereby.

How to meet the cost of famine and plague.

41. Another paragraph in the same issue of the paper says that the Government of Madras has issued orders to the effect that as a large sum of money has been spent by Government on account of famine and plague, the heads of departments should, as far as practicable, reduce the expenditure under their respective control. The Government of India has, it appears, already expended nearly four crores of rupees on the frontier wars and it is not known how much more will be required. If the Government of India intends confining itself to what it now possesses without going beyond its limits, the other expenditures would not have to be curtailed to meet the cost required for famine and plague.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 1 OF 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th January 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | PAGE |
|---|---|
| I.—FOREIGN POLITICS. | |
| The frontier disturbance .. .. .. .. .. | 3 |
| II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Desirability of increasing the salary of police constables. | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| A remark on the nomination of the Madras High Court Judges .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Suggestions regarding the conduct of the prosecution against Sub-Magistrate Subrama Aiyar .. .. | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Old Government Provincial College building at Calicut to be handed over to the Basel Mission authorities .. | 4 |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| A complaint against the Tanjore municipality .. .. | ib. |
| Certain drawbacks in the Mannárgudi municipality .. | ib. |
| Insanitary condition of certain tanks in Trichinopoly .. | ib. |
| A remark that Mr. Ellis, Engineer of the Madras Municipality, should not be given an increase of pay .. | 5 |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Nil. | |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Necessity to improve the irrigational facilities of this country .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Remarks on the appointment of Mr. Firth as Sheriff of Madras .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Expediency of having a Native Private Secretary in the Personal staff of Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Governors .. .. .. .. | 6 |
| Dr. King and the two cases of oppression in Kurnool .. | ib. |
| Precautionary measures adopted by His Excellency Lord Havelock to avert the dire effects of probable outbreak of famine next year .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Inadvisability of frequently granting Collectors leave to proceed to England and of transferring them often from one district to another .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| A hint to Government regarding Mr. LeFanu .. .. | 7 |

| | PAGE |
|---|---|
| II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont. | |
| (k) General— cont. | |
| Water-canals .. .. .. .. .. .. | 7 |
| Iniquities of the Mappila sepoys stationed at Cannanore. | 8 |
| Vagaries of the postmaster, Trichur .. .. .. | ib. |
| New Year's honours .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The reign of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress .. .. | ib. |
| III.—LEGISLATION. | |
| An advice to Government regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Comment on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. .. | 9 |
| Opinion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. | ib. |
| Observations on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. .. | ib. |
| An advice to the people regarding the Bill amending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code .. .. .. | ib. |
| A suggestion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. | ib. |
| Comments on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill .. .. | 10 |
| Proposed amendment of the Law of Sedition .. .. | ib. |
| Mr. Sankaran Nayar to be re-nominated to the Legislative Council in preference to Mr. Sankara Subbiar .. .. | ib. |
| Comments on the Sedition Bill .. .. .. .. .. | 11 |
| IV.—NATIVE STATES. | |
| A remark on the procedure adopted by Government regarding the Nawab of Banganapalle .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The working of the Infant Marriage Prevention Act in Mysore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Piracy on the Cochin sea-coast .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The alleged retirement of the Diwan of Travancore .. | 12 |
| V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE. | |
| Reflections on famine in India .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| VI.—MISCELLANEOUS. | |
| Maintenance of an Ecclesiastical department condemned .. | ib. |
| Expression of a desire that Mr. Tilak should be shown mercy .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| A hint to our Government that it should suggest to the Governor of Singapore measures ensuring good treatment of the native coolies .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The inadvisability of postponing the organisation of the Railway Police system .. .. .. .. .. | 13 |
| Wretched plight of the family of Nattu brothers .. .. | ib. |
| The resolutions of the National Congress at Amraoti .. | ib. |
| The principal events of the past year .. .. .. | 14 |
| Newspapers in India and in other countries .. .. .. | ib. |
| The National Congress .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Bubonic plague at Alleppey .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The last National Congress .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The late National Congress .. .. .. .. .. | 15 |
| New Year honours .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. .. | 200 | 15th Dec. 1897 and 1st Jan. 1898. |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st Jan. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 3 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 18th & 25th Dec. 1897, and 1st and 8th Jan. 1898. |
| 4 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 650 | 18th and 25th Dec. 1897, and 8th Jan. 1898. |
| 5 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 300 | 29th Dec. 1897. |
| 6 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 20th & 27th Dec. 1897, and 3rd & 10th Jan. 1898. |
| 7 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 18th and 25th Dec. 1897. |
| 8 | "Dharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 22nd Dec. 1897. |
| 9 | "Vijayathvajani" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 8th, 16th and 24th Dec. 1897. |
| 10 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 439 | 19th Dec. 1897, and 2nd and 9th Jan. 1898. |
| 11 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 11th & 18th Dec. 1897, and 1st & 8th Jan. 1898. |
| 12 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 450 | 1st and 8th Jan. 1898. |
| 13 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 12th Dec. 1897. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 14 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 9th, 11th, 16th, 18th, 21st, 23rd and 28th Dec. 1897. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 15 | "Purusharthaprathaini" .. .. | Masulipatam .. .. | 250 | July-Aug. 1897. |
| 16 | "Samrajyapradayini" .. .. | Vellatur (Kistna district). | .. | 25th Dec. ,, |
| 17 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | Oct., Nov. and Dec. 1897. |
| 18 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 422 | Jan. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 1st Nov. 1897. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 1st and 8th Jan. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 4th, 7th, 11th and 14th Jan. 1898. |
| 22 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 8th and 12th Jan. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 3rd and 10th Jan. 1898. |
| 24 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 7th ,, 14th ,, ,, |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 8th ,, 15th ,, ,, |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 800 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 3,000 | 13th Jan. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 28 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,020 | 12th Jan. 1898. |
| 29 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 5th ,, ,, |
| 30 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 31 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. .. | 1,000 | 1st Jan. 1898. |
| 32 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 10th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 5th ,, ,, |
| 34 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 8th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 35 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 3rd and 10th Jan. 1898. |
| 36 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 1st Jan. 1898. |
| 37 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th Dec. 1897 and 5th Jan. 1898. |
| 38 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras .. | 150 | 2nd Jan. 1898. |
| 39 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. . .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | Not known. | 6th ,, ,, |
| 40 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 23rd, 27th & 30th Dec. 1897 and 6th Jan. 1898. |
| 41 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 3rd Dec. 1897. |
| 42 | "Ayin-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. .. | Not known. | Dec. 1897. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Alhami, of the 2nd January, quotes an article from the India Gazette (place of publication not mentioned) of which the following is an excerpt:—Government at last issued a proclamation to the effect that it did not wish to occupy the hill country of the frontier tribes. It knows pretty well that the tribesmen, who are nothing more than free booters, could not withstand its army, and when the Generals have imposed fines on them, it is quite willing to withdraw its troops from the frontier when payment is made; but if they continue to maintain an aggressive attitude after the withdrawal of British troops, General Lockhart will certainly again be sent against them.

Alhami, Madras, Jan. 2nd, 1898.

The frontier disturbance.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

2. The Nilalochani, of the 20th December, suggests to the authorities the desirability of increasing the salary of police constables on the ground that the small pay given to them induces them to have recourse to corruption in view to make extra income.

Nilalochani, Negapatam, Dec. 20th, 1897.

Desirability of increasing the salary of police constables.

(b) Courts.

3. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th December, asserts that modern Judges and Barristers of the Madras High Court are, in the administration of justice, inferior to the Judges and Barristers of former days, and that the mutual regard which then existed between the Bench and the Bar is not to be found now. It regrets to observe that the Secretary of State does not scruple to send as Judges of the Madras High Court Barristers who dance attendance on him for employment, and that the judicial administration of this Presidency suffers in consequence, when the Judges so chosen are found unequal to the task. The paper adds that it is nearly fifteen years since Sir Arthur Collins came out to India as the Chief Justice of the Madras High Court, and that during these years he was always found in company with another Judge, putting his signature to the judgment written by his colleague. The paper concludes with the remark that the Judges of the Madras High Court are more bent on reducing the number of cases on the file than on administering justice with propriety, and that the Secretary of State, in appointing Judges, will do well to see that the people do not lose the opinion they have now of the European Judges of the Madras High Court that they are impartial and capable of administering justice through thick and thin.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1897.

A remark on the nomination of the Madras High Court Judges.

4. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th January, says that there is a strong protest from several quarters against the orders entrusting the conduct of the prosecution of Subrama Aiyar, Sub-Magistrate in the district of Malabar, to the Government Pleader, Calicut, on the ground that, as the Government Pleader is a Brahmin, his sympathies will naturally be with Subrama Aiyar, who is a member of his own caste. Although the paper does not believe that the Government Pleader will not conscientiously conduct the prosecution, yet it is of opinion that if the Collector appoints the Government Pleader, Tellicherry, as joint counsel, no room will be given for such allegations.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Jan. 5th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding the conduct of the prosecution against Sub-Magistrate Subrama Aiyar.

(d) Education.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 5th, 1898.

Old Government Provincial College building at Calicut to be handed over to the Basel Mission authorities.

5. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th January, says that to the memorial submitted to the Basel Mission authorities by the Tiyars and others of Calicut regarding the conversion of the local Mission high school into a second-grade college, Rev. Dilger, Inspector of the Mission Schools, gave a reply that the objection of the Home Committee of the German Mission to the raising of the high school to a college is the want of accommodation in the present school building. It remarks that the present building is not only insufficient for a high school, but its position also is such that no extension or addition could be made; and a suggestion is therefore made that if the Director of Public Instruction hands over the old Government Provincial College building, which is now used only for holding training and commercial classes, to the Mission authorities for their use, the difficulty of want of space will be overcome and a second-grade college will be soon started by the Mission. The training school could be well removed to the Mission high school building and as the commercial classes are only held in the mornings and evenings, it will not in any way interfere with the college work. Moreover, the commercial school is to be transferred to some other district from next year. Under the circumstances, there could be no particular objection on the part of Government to vacating the college building. The article, while exhorting the missionaries to write to the Director about the matter, confidently hopes that Government will not raise any objection to handing over the building to the missionaries for such an excellent purpose.

(e) Local and Municipal.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Dec. 18th, 1897.

A complaint against the Tanjore municipality.

6. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 18th December, complains that the municipality of Tanjore neglects the lighting of certain lanes in the third and the fifth divisions very much to the inconvenience of the people, while public roads are lighted properly. He hopes that the municipality will bestow equal attention on lanes as well as on public roads without making any distinction whatsoever.

DHARMASAMVARTHANI, Tiruvádi, Dec. 22nd, 1897.

Certain drawbacks in the Mannárgudi municipality.

7. The Dharmasamvarthani, of the 22nd December, after expressing a desire that M.R.Ry. Kottur Shadagopa Mudaliar should be nominated as chairman of the Mannárgudi municipality, draws its attention to the following points:—

(1) More attention should be paid to the lighting of streets.

(2) The delivery of municipal bills should be expedited.

(3) Measures should be adopted for the removal of drain water so that it may not overflow the streets.

(4) Latrines should be constructed in some of the important parts of the town.

(5) The Hackney Carriage Act should be brought into force in this town as was done in Trichinopoly.

(6) The rates of toll-tickets should be reduced as in Conjeeveram.

(7) The water of the Thiruparkadal tank should be pumped out as it is very impure.

(8) Watchmen should be posted near all fresh-water tanks to prevent defilement.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1897.

Insanitary condition of certain tanks in Trichinopoly.

8. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 12th December, draws the attention of the chairman of the Trichinopoly municipality to the nuisance committed by the people all round the Kuppan tank, Telunga Chetty tank and Gulam Ali Khan tank, which form sources of water-supply to the people, and also on either side of the feeder channels which conduct water to the tanks in question, and requests the chairman to adopt the necessary measures to prevent the nuisance complained of, as it is the cause of outbreak of cholera and other epidemics. He requests the chairman to construct a latrine in the third ward, as its absence there induces the people to commit nuisance on public roads.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st December, reporting that Mr. Ellis, Engineer of the Madras municipality, has applied to Government for an increment of pay, remarks that he should not be given any increase as his present pay—Rs. 900—is sufficient for his service of seven years, and that it is really surprising that Mr. Ellis should apply for an increase of pay at a time when the municipality is in financial difficulty and Government is seriously contemplating to increase the municipal revenue by enhancing the house-tax.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1897.

A remark that Mr. Ellis, Engineer of the Madras municipality, should not be given an increase of pay.

(i) Public Works.

10. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th December, observes as follows:—The severity of the recent famine has induced the people of England to spare no pains to adopt the necessary measures to ameliorate the condition of this country. It is highly gratifying to peruse the letter of General Fisher, who was for a considerable length of time an engineer in this Presidency, published in the Saturday Review of London. What Mr. Fisher says in his letter under reference is an echo of our opinion that the system of digging new canals, tanks and other sources of water-supply, and improving those already in existence will facilitate agriculture and enable the ryots to convert large tracts of waste lands into fertile fields, which will benefit both the rulers and the ruled. The fact that several tracts of waste lands have been converted into arable lands after the completion of the Periyár Project, in the district of Madura, may be cited as a glaring instance in point. The opening of railways is not attended with such advantages, nor is it profitable to Government. It is delightful to hear that the members of the British Parliament are about to discuss this momentous question next year at the instance of several engineers in England, and that His Excellency the Governor of Madras is of strong opinion that large sum should be spent in improving the irrigational facilities in this Presidency. But if the rumour that Government intends enhancing boat-hire be true, it would be a great injustice.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 28th, 1897.

Necessity to improve the irrigational facilities of this country.

(k) General.

11. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th December, writes as follows:—The various appointments made hitherto by His Excellency Lord Havelock were generally regarded with satisfaction. But the nomination of Mr. Firth as the Sheriff of Madras is approved neither by Europeans nor by natives. Mr. Firth, who is the Secretary to the Lawrence Asylum Press, is a person of no importance and is rarely seen at any public meeting; he is neither a big merchant nor a philanthropist; he is neither a member of the Chamber of Commerce nor a Commissioner of the Madras Municipality. It is really strange that he has been appointed Sheriff of Madras during the government of His Excellency Lord Havelock. The commission that was nominated some time ago to curtail public expenditure in India recommended the abolition of the Sheriff's post altogether, which, if it had been carried out, would have effected a saving of Rs. 40,000 per annum. It is really inexplicable why the Government of India has not as yet abolished the post in question in the three Presidency towns of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1897.

Remarks on the appointment of Mr. Firth as Sheriff of Madras.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1897.

Expediency of having a Native Private Secretary in the Personal staff of Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Governors.

12. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th December, writes as follows:—It is desirable that the Personal staff of Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Governors should include a thoroughly trustworthy Native Private Secretary also, as such an officer will prove a useful medium of communication between Government and the people at large, and as Their Excellencies will be in a position to obtain more accurate information, than they are able to secure now, regarding the customs and manners of the people as well as their grievances. It is hoped that this suggestion will receive the necessary attention from the Secretary of State as well as Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Governors.

PARIYAN, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1897.

Dr. King and the two cases of oppression in Kurnool.

13. The Pariyan, of the 18th December, reports that Dr. King, the Sanitary Commissioner, has brought to light two heart-rending cases which occurred in the taluk of Ramalcode in Kurnool district where the tahsildar, without paying the least consideration to certain famine-stricken ryots, not only declined to grant them timely relief, but also adopted stringent measures to recover kist from them without any the least sympathy. The paper regretting to observe that the tahsildar in question is reported to have failed to bring to light thirty-eight applications for loan under the Land Improvement Loans Act, remarks that Native officials generally prove a source of great hardship to their fellow-subjects, and that it is therefore absolutely necessary that they should be kept under the strict supervision of their European officers.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1897.

Precautionary measures adopted by His Excellency Lord Havelock to avert the dire effects of probable outbreak of famine next year.

14. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th December, says that His Excellency Lord Havelock anticipating that failure of rain this year will inevitably bring famine next year in this Presidency, has telegraphed to District Engineers to be ready with such works as are to be executed by way of relief works. The paper admires the policy of His Excellency the Governor with thankfulness for the precautionary measures he is adopting to avert the dire effects of famine, and is delighted to hear that His Excellency, like some of his predecessors, has undertaken the personal supervision of the Public Works Department including the Railway Branch, which drains a great portion of public revenue. The paper concludes with the remark that although failure of rain may be regarded as the chief cause for the outbreak of famine, yet the imposition of high rates of land assessment also contributes its own share to it, and that it therefore behoves Government not only to reduce the land-tax, but also to open some means of livelihood for the masses who at present depend solely upon agriculture and commerce for their sustenance.

Inadvisability of frequently granting Collectors leave to proceed to England and of transferring them often from one district to another.

15. The same paper observes as follows:—Collectors and Sub-Collectors, in these days, take little or no interest in the welfare of the people of the districts in their charge, and seldom avail themselves of the benefit of meeting the mirasidars in person; but they lead a comfortable life caring more for their pay than for the prosperity of the people, and taking leave very often to proceed to England. In former days such was not the case. Collectors used to work in their districts for a period of ten or twenty years, and were actually aware of the grievances of the people in consequence. Even to this day the memory of certain popular Collectors is still cherished in certain districts. The name of Mr. Puckle is still remembered by the people of Tinnevelly district; the people of Tanjore will never forget the names of Sir Montgomery and Mr. Pennington; the names of Mr. Blace and Mr. Barlow are embalmed in the memory of the people of the Chingleput district. As Collectors in former days moved close with the people without any distinction in the administration of their districts, people were greatly benefited thereby. As Collectors in these days are transferred every now and then from one district to another, and as they leave India for England oftener than they used to do in former times apparently owing to the modern facilities of speedy voyage to England, the people of this country suffer no small inconvenience thereby; for, unless a Collector remains in a particular district for a sufficient length of time, he is not likely to realize to himself the real grievances of the people. It is therefore suggested that Collectors should neither be transferred nor allowed to avail themselves of leave frequently to proceed to England. During the government of His Excellency Lord Buckingham, Collectors could not get leave so easily as they can get it now. It is hoped that His Excellency Lord Havelock will follow the noble example of His Excellency Lord Buckingham. Do not Governors work here for five years without availing themselves of any leave in the interval?

16. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd December, writes as follows:— Mr. LeFanu has earned a good name in all the famine-affected districts for his strenuous efforts to alleviate the sufferings of the people. He is extremely good-natured, and was popular in all those districts where he was doing duty as Collector. People of the districts of Salem and North Arcot still remember his services and eulogise him for the good he has done. The district of Cuddapah still rings with his fame. He spared no pains during the recent famine. He is so sympathetic that he can hardly bear the sight of people groaning in distress, and would liberally help the poor and protect them. It is a matter for regret that some European officers do not relish his plans, and that ever since the government of Lord Wenlock, he has not been in the good grace of certain high officials. The Members of Council and the Secretaries stand in the way of his official elevation. Although he acted many a time as a Member of the Board of Revenue, Government has not confirmed him as a Member of the Board. This is a great injustice. He repeatedly wrote to Government that the famine rate prescribed by Government was too insufficient and that many parents had abandoned their homes and children. It is to be regretted that as such reports are unpalatable to the higher authorities, they have been adopting measures to curb him down. He wrote to Government that in Bellary and in certain other places there were emaciated children pinched with hunger deserving the protection of Government. But the Collector of Bellary reported to Government that there were no such children in his district. Government as well as the Members of the Board of Revenue appear to have believed the statement of the Collector and disbelieved that of Mr. LeFanu. We have seen the portraits of these children. Our Governor should patiently inquire into the matter. Is it right on the part of the Collector to deny the statement of the Famine Commissioner? There can be no doubt that many such children would have died during the famine, as it can be gathered from the monthly reports of the Sanitary Commissioner. Even the Sanitary Commissioner admitted that he had seen such children in the relief kitchen. Such inconsistency should not result in any difficulty to Mr. LeFanu who has done signal service to the famine-stricken people and who should have been by this time made Chief Secretary. It is really uncharitable to wound the feelings of such a good-natured and able officer as Mr. LeFanu.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 23rd, 1897.

A hint to Government regarding Mr. LeFanu.

17. The Sasilekha, of the 14th January, is hopeful that improvement in the condition of India is not far off; for, some of the leading English journals and English statesmen acquainted with the circumstances of India have begun to discuss Indian affairs in the public press. Recapitulating the several points which Mr. J. H. Fisher, an experienced Indian official, has touched in his article, recently published in a newspaper, anent the overwhelming advantages of water-canals over railways, the paper prays that the Government of India and Her Majesty's Ministers in England will give full consideration to his opinions.

Sasilekha, Madras, Jan. 14th, 1898.

Water-canals.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 5th, 1898.

Iniquities of the Mappila sepoys stationed at Cannanore.

18. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th January, says that there is a loud complaint against the Mappila sepoys of the 25th Regiment stationed at Cannanore, and that as their iniquities are growing serious day by day, the authorities should take early steps to repress them. These sepoys are said to be men who have been convicted several times for various offences, and so the article is at a loss to understand the object of the authorities in having enlisted in the army such disreputable men for the protection of the country. It appears that owing to their character for mischief, women and children cannot safely go by the public road. Women passing by the road are insulted and ill-treated by these sepoys. They snatch away books and other things from the school boys and trouble them. It has become a daily practice with the sepoys to beat and break the legs of cows and sheep that go to the plain for grazing or to slaughter some of them for consumption. The sepoys are said to rob wayfarers of their things and very seldom a day passes without such robberies being heard of. House-breaking and thefts are now on the increase in Cannanore, and it is reported that these sepoys have a hand in them also. It appears that complaints of various sorts from several sources used to reach the Colonel of the regiment; and if the Colonel had made proper inquiries into those complaints, their iniquities would not have assumed such a serious magnitude. The Mappilas who have been enlisted in this company belong to Manjéri, Kunduvatti and similar places, and it is not at all safe to disband them after they have been given a military training. The article therefore says that as the retention of this Mappila company in Cannanore is dangerous and oppressive to the public, it will be better to transfer the company to Burma or to send it to the frontier expedition.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 12th, 1898.

Vagaries of the postmaster, Trichur.

19. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th January, invites the attention of the Postal authorities to the inconveniences to which the Tiyars and other low castes going to the Trichur post office to buy stamps and for other purposes are put by the postmaster, Kumaraswami Pillai, of that office. It appears that these poor persons are not only made to stand far away from the post office fearing pollution, but are also kept waiting without being attended to in time.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 23rd, 1897.

New Year's honours.

20. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 23rd December, in connection with the New Year's honours, writes that Khan Bahadur Abdur Rahman Sahib, a Member of the Mysore Council of Regency, is a very experienced and honest officer. He has proved this in his capacity as Member of the Council of Regency. In consideration of which it is requested that Government will confer upon him the title of C.I.E., which he richly deserves.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Jan. 3rd, 1898.

The reign of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress.

21. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 3rd January, observes that the administration of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress has surpassed that of other English kings, and that she is well experienced in enduring calamities and mishaps. She is free from religious prejudice and vain ideas. If she had, in order to help the famine-stricken people of India, forbidden the expenditure incurred on account of bon-fires, etc., on the occasion of the recent Jubilee celebrations, her name would have been handed down to posterity for such generosity.

III.—LEGISLATION.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Dévakóttai, Dec. 8th, 1897.

An advice to Government regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

22. The Vijayathvajam, of the 8th December, advises Government not to be hasty in passing the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill into an Act as public opinion regarding it is divided. The paper suggests to the people the desirability of ventilating their opinion after mature consideration, and concludes with the remark that the Bill in question will deprive the members of Hindu families of the benefits of education and of the means of livelihood, which they at present enjoy, and will also hasten the disintegration of many a Hindu family in the long run.

Comment on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

23. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 18th December, referring to the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill, remarks that it does not stand to reason to say that a brother should have his acquisitions divided if they are gained by means of any trade in which a portion of his family property was used and that he should keep for himself his acquisitions if they are the gains of his learning even though it was imparted to him at the expense of the same family property. The paper says that the Bill is more favourable to widows than to brothers on the ground that, according to the scope of the Bill, the widow of an educated man will naturally inherit all his gains of learning after his death and that his brothers can lay no claim to the earnings of the deceased.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1897.

Opinion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

24. The Lokopakari, of the 12th December, in regard to the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill, says that it is absolutely necessary that Government should take pains to collect and understand the opinion of the masses, and that it should not construe the opinion of the few educated men as the opinion of the whole community and then proceed with the passing of the Bill. It says that there is a vast difference between an English family and a Hindu family, and that the passing of the Bill, though it may appear good from an English point of view, will ultimately cause the estrangement of brothers and fathers—a thing not conducive to the well-being of Hindu families.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1897.

Observations on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th December, referring to the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill, remarks as follows:—This Act will greatly discourage English education and must prove detrimental to the interests of the people of India, inasmuch as high-caste Hindus have no other alternative than to acquire English education to earn their livelihood in these days; unlike the Europeans who will not hesitate to betake themselves to any kind of profession, the Hindus will not follow occupations which their caste scruples will prevent them from pursuing. What induced the author of the Bill to bring such a question before the Legislative Council is really inexplicable, while the Europeans themselves condemn it as being detrimental to the welfare of the Hindus.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1897.

An advice to the people regarding the Bill amending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code.

26. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd December, referring to the Bill amending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code, now before the Imperial Legislative Council, observes as follows:—Our Government, entertaining feelings of ungrounded apprehensions, endeavour to gag the mouths of the people, and intend to govern this country in a manner different from the one in which they were governing it hitherto, seeing that the people have emerged from a state of ignorance and enjoy the benefits of knowledge. With such a purpose in view a Bill has been introduced to amend section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code. Even such things as speaking ill of Government, and one set of people abusing another by words, either spoken or written, are treated in the Bill as offences against the State. All magistrates—from the Presidency Magistrates down to the village magistrates—are empowered to try persons guilty of the offence under this section, thus depriving the accused of the benefit of the jury. The magistrates may, under the section, take surety for good behaviour from all editors of newspapers even as they do from prisoners. It is therefore absolutely necessary that the people should ventilate their opinion on the subject.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 23rd, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

27. A correspondent to the same paper observes as follows:—If learning is imparted to a person either from out of the family property or with the help of the parents, a moiety of the gains of such a learning should belong to him and the remainder to his parents and others. If the person so educated has an undivided brother or a cousin, then two-thirds of the gains of his learning should belong to the educated man and the remainder to the other. In all other cases the gains of his learning must belong to him alone. If the Bill be passed with such a provision as this, it will not prove prejudicial to the interests of Hindu families.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1897.

Comments on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

28. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 25th December, observes on the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill as follows:—The Hindu law as it is will answer all the purposes of Hindu families. If the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill be passed into an Act, another Bill under the designation of the Hindu Gains of Trade Bill will be brought, and Government to maintain its attitude of impartiality cannot help passing that Bill also, and the object intended to be gained by the Hindu Gains of Learning Act will then be practically frustrated. As the passing of the Bill in question will seriously affect the harmonious feeling which now exists among the undivided brothers of Hindu families, and will induce the eldest brother to disregard the education of his younger brothers altogether and also to desert his father and brothers, it behoves the authorities to see that it is not passed into an Act.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Jan. 12th, 1898.

Proposed amendment of the Law of Sedition.

29. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 12th January, disapproves of the proposed amendment of the law regarding sedition and says that it is inadvisable to gag the press in India, because it is by means of the press alone that Government can gauge public feeling and understand the opinions of the people regarding any Government measures.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 8th, 1898.

Mr. Sankaran Nayar to be re-nominated to the Legislative Council in preference to Mr. Sankara Subbiar.

30. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 8th January, while referring to the nomination to the Madras Legislative Council of Mr. Sankara Subbiar, who is shortly to retire from the Diwanship of Travancore, says that if by this it is to be presumed that the Government does not intend to re-nominate Mr. Sankaran Nayar, it could not but assert as a proper representative of the Malayalis that such an act is very unjust. The Tenancy Bill, which is shortly to be introduced into the Council, and the appointment of Mr. Ross as Special Commissioner for the same, are the outcome of the long and continued agitation of the people, and to realise the full benefits proposed by such a Bill, and also to completely ascertain their requirements and act accordingly, there should, as a matter of necessity, be some one from among themselves in the Council. It is doubtful whether there is any one either among the Europeans or the natives who has so carefully and minutely studied the tenancy question as Mr. Sankaran Nayar, and so he will, if nominated, be of great service to Government in carrying out the measure through the Council. It is said that the nomination of Mr. Sankara Subbiar as a member of the Council, when he is incapacitated by old age to serve in Travancore, is to assist the Government in the matter of the Tenancy Bill. Mr. Sankara Subbiar is no doubt an official of great experience and has served long in Travancore, but he is not conversant with the procedure obtaining in the British territory. Moreover, Mr. Sankara Subbiar has no interest in Malabar nor does he possess any landed property in that district. But the case is quite different with Mr. Sankaran Nayar, and he is therefore better suited for the Council than Mr. Sankara Subbiar. As the grievances of the people will not be redressed if the Tenancy Bill, which is framed for the mitigation of their sufferings, is passed into law without Mr. Sankaran Nayar, he should be re-nominated. If the Government does not on its own motion re-nominate Mr. Sankaran Nayar, the people ought to convene meetings in different centres in Malabar and send memorials to Government stating the hardships they will have to suffer in case Mr. Sankaran Nayar is not again appointed as member of the Legislative Council.

31. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th January, referring to the Sedition Bill that has been introduced in the Supreme Legislative Council, disapproves of the measure in toto and remarks that as section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code has been interpreted by the High Courts of Calcutta, Bombay and Allahabad in the light of the English Law of Sedition, there is no necessity for amending it now. The present interpretation has curtailed the independence of the press and if the Bill is passed into law in its present form it will bring about the extinction of all political liberty in this country—liberty of speech and liberty of writing. The opinion is expressed that it will be injurious to the country if a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is empowered to call upon any person to execute a bond for his good behaviour if, in the opinion of that Magistrate, the man in question disseminates, or attempts to disseminate, obscene, seditious or defamatory matter. When a Sessions Judge himself has recently abused the powers vested in him in a certain sedition case, if this power is given to young and inexperienced first-class Magistrates, it will turn out a very dangerous weapon in their hands.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 13th, 1898.

Comments on the Sedition Bill.

The Malayala Manorama, of the 1st January, referring to the same Bill expresses a similar opinion.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Jan. 1st, 1898.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th December, referring to the order of Government directing the Collector of Kurnool to request once more the Nawab of Banganapalle to keep the police force of his State under the supervision of the Superintendent of Police of the Kurnool district, writes as follows:—

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1897.

A remark on the procedure adopted by Government regarding the Nawab of Banganapalle.

The objections raised by the Nawab in carrying out the suggestion of Government are not apparently clear. We are of opinion that the Nawab is under the misconception that the adoption of the suggestion under reference will tend to mar his authority over the police force of his State—a thing derogatory to his dignity; hence his disinclination to carry out the suggestion proposed by Government. The suggestion of Mr. Mullaly and the obstinacy of Government to have it carried out appear to us rather unreasonable. So long as the Nawab is labouring under a misconception it does not behove Government to be obstinate. We agree with the Nawab in thinking that the adoption of the suggestion will surely tell upon his authority to no small extent. If the police in the Nawab's State needs reform and the necessary suggestion be made to him for rendering the condition of his local police better, the Nawab will undoubtedly carry out the suggestion. The Nawab himself has felt the necessity for a reform and has already adopted certain measures in that direction. It is not just and proper that the rulers of Native States should be oppressed in this manner.

33. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th January, says that the Infant Marriage Prevention Act has not worked efficiently in Mysore owing to its provisions not being sufficiently known to the people, and also owing to the various ways there are of evading punishment under it. For instance, a marriage may be performed out of the territories and then those who are responsible for it cannot be punished. The punishment by fine is not sufficiently deterrent. Therefore the only effective way, in the opinion of the editor, of putting an end to infant marriages is by declaring them null and void.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 10th, 1898.

The working of the Infant Marriage Prevention Act in Mysore.

34. A leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 1st January, invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar as well as of the British Government to the piracy that is being carried on with impunity on the sea-coast of Kodungallur in the Cochin State. The pirates are aided in their nefarious practices by an influential Muhammadan of Kodungallur. It appears that owing to this piracy the coasting vessels bound for Cochin empty their cargo either at Calicut or Tellicherry, and consequently the trade in Cochin is seriously interfered with. The article says that petitions have been sent to the British and Cochin authorities, and hopes they will soon adopt stringent measures to put a stop to it.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Jan. 1st, 1898.

Piracy on the Cochin sea-coast.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1898.

The alleged retirement of the Diwan of Travancore.

35. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 10th January, says it is rumoured that the Hon'ble Sankara Subba Iyer, C.I.E., Diwan of Travancore, will retire soon after the Maharaja's visit to Madras, and that a monthly pension of Rs. 750 will be allowed to him together with a bonus of Rupees 10,000. The Shams asks if the English Government is equally appreciater of native merit.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1897.

Reflections on famine in India.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th December, alluding to the committee formed by the Secretary of State and the Government of India in connection with the famine of this country, observes that the chief causes of the outbreak of famine in India, as Government is aware, are the poverty of the people caused by the imposition of heavy taxes on them by Government to meet its exorbitant and unnecessary expenses, such as those connected with the frontier war and so forth, and the upkeep of a highly-paid European establishment. It concludes with the remark that so long as this state of things is suffered to continue there is every certainty that famine will find a permanent abode in India, and that it is only when higher offices in the State are conferred on competent natives on a low pay, and when the money unprofitably spent on useless wars is utilised in improving irrigational facilities, famine will disappear from this land and the people will enjoy prosperity and happiness.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1897.

Maintenance of an Ecclesiastical department condemned.

37. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th December, does not like the idea that Government should maintain an Ecclesiastical department from out of the Indian revenues for the sake of a few Christians, and regards such a course as unjust, inasmuch as the other subjects of Her Majesty who are not Christians are not at all benefited thereby.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Dévakóttai, Dec. 16th, 1897.

Expression of a desire that Mr. Tilak should be shown mercy.

38. The Vijayathvajam, of the 16th December, writes as follows:—Mr. Tilak is being reduced in strength and bulk every day. The jail diet does not suit him. It is doubtful whether he will survive his term of imprisonment if the present state of his health be allowed to continue any longer. Will not Government now at least show Mr. Tilak some compassion? Government will do well either to set him free or to allow him a re-trial if strict justice is to be done to him, inasmuch as the law was not properly construed at his trial. The judgments delivered in the other cases make it appear that the act of Mr. Tilak does not constitute an offence. The Hindus were hitherto praising the British Government as an extremely merciful one and that it has no equal in the annals of their country. It is to be regretted that the treatment of Mr. Tilak and Nattu brothers induces them to complain bitterly of the British Government. It is hoped that the Government of Bombay will maintain the prestige and reputation of the British Government by exercising its prerogative of mercy in the case of Mr. Tilak.

PARIYAN, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1897.

A hint to our Government that it should suggest to the Governor of Singapore measures ensuring good treatment of the native coolies.

39. The Pariyan, of the 25th December, announces that the Governor of Singapore will shortly pay a visit to India to see Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Governor of Madras in view to consult them regarding the question pending before the Council of the Governor of Singapore, as to the advisability or otherwise of continuing the heavy punishment imposed on cooly emigrants who violate their contract. The paper hopes that Government will suggest such measures as will ensure good treatment similar to that now accorded to the coolies in Ceylon, and thus save the poor people of India going to Singapore to earn their livelihood.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1897.

40. The Lokopakari, of the 12th December, remarks that it is not proper for the Government of India to say that it will begin to organise the railway police as directed by the Secretary of State, only after the close of the frontier war. It regrets to state that at present theft is being frequently committed in railway carriages, and that the life and property of railway passengers are exposed to much danger, and deems the immediate organisation of the railway police a matter of absolute necessity.

The inadvisability of postponing the organisation of the Railway Police system.

SWADESAMITHAN, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1897.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st December, observes as follows:—The wife of the senior of the Nattu brothers, aged about seventeen years, has recently given birth to a daughter. The extremely miserable plight to which the family of Nattu brothers has been reduced is heart-rending. Granting, for the sake of argument, that Nattu brothers are guilty of some offence or other, why should their family be made to suffer? The Western nation professes to treat the fair sex with kindness and deference. Is this the way to treat a respectable family? The people of India will indeed be relieved of their anxiety about this noble family if even its females and children are sent to jail. Will any one helping this family be regarded as the enemy of Government? No one except the Government of Bombay is aware of the reason why Nattu brothers have been sent to jail. The law which has empowered Government to imprison them is fit to be only the law of a lion which is the king of beasts. It is a pity that such a law has been applied to men of civilization.

Wretched plight of the family of Nattu brothers.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 3rd, 1898.

42. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 3rd January, says that the propositions considered by the congress this year are all important. The war on the frontier will prove extremely costly. India in her present circumstances can hardly bear the expenses without burdensome and intolerable taxation. Since the war has been undertaken for "Imperial purposes," that is, for strengthening Empire as a whole, it is but just that England must bear, in part at least, the cost of the frontier expedition. Conservative statesmen in England have expressed a willingness to ask Parliament for a vote of money to meet the expenses of the war. If the congress petitions Parliament that this should be done, it will strengthen the hands of the Parliamentary party in favour of the proposal. Section M of the "omnibus" resolution regarding the deposition of the Indian princes or chiefs and section N regarding the extension of the jury system are worth urging in the petition which it is in contemplation to address to Parliament. The paper, however, does not approve of the resolutions concerning the holding of the Civil Service Examination in India, the compensation allowance to European Government servants and the establishment of military colleges in India, because these concessions are, in the opinion of the paper, not likely to be granted in the immediate future, and to ask for them is to risk the fate of the more feasible reforms by linking them with those that are impracticable. The establishment of a permanent settlement is a valuable reform. If it is intended by this to create a body of zemindars, as in Bengal, the paper would protest against it; but if the object is to form a body of contented and well-to-do peasants with fixity of tenures, it will be a happy change. A flourishing peasantry, not living from hand to mouth, sure of their tenures and thereby able to accumulate some capital to improve their land, is one of the greatest sources of strength for any country.

The resolutions of the National Congress at Amraoti.

The principal events of the past year.

43. The same paper, in reviewing the principal events of the year just ended, remarks that amidst an unprecedented series of calamities that have visited, the only redeeming feature that has given matter for rejoicing to the people is the completion by Her Majesty Queen Victoria of the sixtieth year of her reign. The paper then alludes to the prosecution of the editors of certain papers and other events in the Bombay Presidency and remarks thus:—Another most important and long-to-be-remembered event of the year was the unfounded suspicion created in the minds of the rulers concerning the loyalty of the people which has led to the imprisonment, without cause and without trial till now, of men belonging to a family which had once assisted the English Government in establishing itself in the Mahratta country. The suspicion has also resulted in the prosecution of Tilak and other well-known men, and the refusal to them of substantial justice and even of common humanity, and lastly in the attempt to amend the section of the Penal Code relating to sedition with a view to gagging the press as far as possible in an indirect way.

Newspapers in India and in other countries.

44. The same paper says that while in the civilized countries of Europe and America attempts are made to popularize newspaper-reading among the lowest classes of people and even beggars, in India what with the indifference of the people, the foolish writings of some editors, the unrestrained action of jealous and irritable officials and the wilful misinterpretations by envious men, the time seems to be not far distant when vernacular newspapers and those published in English by Indians will cease to exist. Just as the plague is playing havoc on the lives of the people in some parts of India, so and even with greater animosity the Government is showing in various ways its determination to destroy the press in India and to burn away its very roots so that it may not shoot forth again.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Jan. 13th, 1898.

The National Congress.

45. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 13th January, says that the so-called National Congress cannot be called 'National' at all since it does not represent the masses. It may be said at the most to represent the views of the educated and advanced section of the people. The editor does not think it desirable that the ignorant ryot and the cooly should know what the congress is about. Nevertheless he is glad that educated men from all parts of the country do assemble and discuss what is best for the Government and for the country. While thinking it would be well for the Government to make public the grounds for the imprisonment of the Nattus, the editor condemns the congress for the treatment it accorded to Mr. Gokhale who honourably apologised for the aspersions cast on men who had worked faithfully when he found that he could not substantiate the charges he brought against them. The congress has given expression to sentiments of loyalty to the British Government, but it is not easy for him to say what are its real sentiments.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 8th, 1898.

Bubonic plague at Alleppey.

46. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 8th January, says that the bubonic plague has broken out in Alleppey and some 38 persons have succumbed to the disease. It therefore invites the attention of the Collector and the Municipal authorities to the necessity of deputing special officers for conducting plague examinations at the Shoranur, Pattámbi and Tirúr railway stations.

The last National Congress.

47. A leader in the same paper gives the substance of the speech delivered by Mr. Sankaran Nayar as President of the National Congress held at Amraoti, and remarks that the speech was very moderate, sensible and bold. It fully endorses the opinion expressed by Mr. Sankaran Nayar in his speech and remarks, among other matters, that Mr. Sankaran Nayar has amply fulfilled the expectations which were formed of him.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 5th, 1898.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th January, referring to the same subject, expresses a similar opinion.

48. A leader in the Manorama, of the 10th January, alluding to the National Congress recently held at Amraoti, says that owing to the famine, plague, press prosecutions and the Government reviving the obsolete Regulations of 1818 and 1827, which empower them to deport persons without any trial and to confiscate their property, many reasonably doubted whether any one would attend the last congress and whether any of those that attended would speak. But in spite of all these difficulties and threats there were 701 delegates from all parts of India, and nearly 3,000 spectators including Europeans, Hindus, Muhammadans and Parsis. These delegates who have the greatest faith in the British justice and the utmost affection for the British Government have not, in spite of the terrors created in their minds by the Government of India, refrained from giving out their opinion on matters affecting the welfare of both the Government and the people and also pointing out fearlessly the errors in their actions. Even the Anglo-Indian opponents of the congress have admitted that the presidential speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran was bold and befitting the occasion. It is a matter to be greatly deplored that the British Cabinet and the Parliament, listening to the ill advice of some of the selfish Anglo-Indian journalists, and some of their relatives, suspect the unquestioned loyalty of the Indians and turn a deaf ear to their just and reasonable grievances and requirements. The demands of the congress are just and moderate and well merit the kind and impartial attention of the British Government.

The late National Congress.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 10th, 1898.

49. The same paper, referring to the list of New Year honours, remarks that although the principle is that the conferring of titles should depend upon the distinguishing merits of persons receiving them, yet now-a-days it is favouritism that guides the authorities mostly in the matter of conferring honours. The titles conferred upon persons of the Madras Presidency are generally found to be fewer in number than those conferred upon persons in other Presidencies, and this is attributed to the Madras Presidency being far away from Calcutta and Simla, the seats of the Viceroy, and the visits of the Viceroy to that Presidency being also very scarce. The opinion is expressed that the Local Government also does not take care that the persons recommended to the India Government for honours are really those who are entitled to them or that deserving persons are recommended. The paper concludes with the remark that it is a matter for regret that some of those who have the greatest claim and eligibility for receiving distinctions at the hands of the Queen-Empress have been passed over.

New Year honours.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 2 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st January 1898.

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

Observations on the political relation of the English and the French and a suggestion to both the powers .. .. 19
The frontier war .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Terms of the treaty concluded between Turkey and Greece.. ib.
Affairs in the Soudan .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Proposal to increase the German fleet .. .. .. .. 20

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—
Head constable of the Mankara police station to be transferred .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—
A suggestion to His Excellency Lord Havelock regarding division of work among Deputy Collectors .. ib.
The Chief Justice on criminal cases .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—
A suggestion regarding convicts in the jail .. .. ib.

(d) Education—
A suggestion to make the vernaculars compulsory in Government and University examinations alike .. 21
Education of zemindari minors .. .. .. .. ib.
The ensuing convocation of the Madras University .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—
A hint to His Excellency Lord Havelock regarding the rules for the interpellation of the chairman by the municipal councillors .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Desirability of leaving the management of district and local boards entirely in the hands of the natives .. 22
Local boards .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Insanitary condition of the localities inhabited by Muhammadans in the Gódávari district .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
Advisability of issuing orders to the Collectors of Chingleput and South Arcot not to adopt coercive measures in the matter of collecting kist .. .. ib.
Disapproving of the proposal to give up the registration of janmam titles in Malabar .. .. .. .. ib.

(g) Forests—
Nil.

(h) Railways—
Nil.

(i) Public Works—
Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—
A complaint against tahsildars regarding the sites of arrack-shops in the district of Tanjore .. .. 23

(k) General—
Necessity for a Sub-Registrar's office, a Local Fund dispensary and a Village Munsif's court at Ammápet in Tanjore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Desirability of forming a new taluk in the district of Tanjore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
An advice to Government to check prostitution .. .. ib.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—*cont.

(k) General—cont.
A complaint that the orders of the Board of Revenue are set at defiance by certain Collectors .. .. .. 24
Advisability of introducing a common standard of weight and measurement throughout the Presidency .. ib.
The Advocate-Generalship .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Free grants of money to distressed ryots in Nellore .. ib.
Sub-registrars in the first grade to be exempted from passing certain special tests .. .. .. .. ib.
The attack made on the plague-searching party at Bombay .. .. .. .. .. .. 25
The alleged misuse of their powers by the native plague servants of Government at Sholapur .. .. .. ib.
Criticising the opening speech of the President of the National Congress, recently held at Amraoti .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

A suggestion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.. ib.
Opinion regarding the nomination of Mr. Ghulam Muhammad Sahib as a member of the local Legislative Council .. 26
The Hon'ble Mr. Ghulam Muhammad Sahib .. .. .. ib.
Encumbered Zemindaris Bill .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Marriageable Age Bill .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Legislative Council meetings .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The law of sedition .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Gagging the press .. .. .. .. .. .. 27
Amendment of the law of sedition .. .. .. .. 28
The Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill .. .. ib.
Sedition Law Amendment Bill .. .. .. .. .. 30
The Indian Stamp Bill .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the Sedition Bill, etc. .. .. .. .. ib.
Reflections on the new Indian Post Offices Bill .. .. 31
The new Muhammadan member of the Legislative Council .. ib.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Separation of executive and judicial functions .. .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Complaining that Government adopts no measures to relieve the famine-stricken people of India .. .. .. .. 32

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Desirability of getting an important question decided by the Parliament once for all .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Reflections on the remarks of the Madras Mail on the speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nair at the recent meeting of the congress .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A hint to Government regarding Nattu brothers .. .. ib.
A hint to the authorities regarding the frequent occurrence of famine .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Comments on the detention of Nattu brothers in the jail .. 33
An advice to the people to convene public meetings in connection with the Bill amending section 124-A, Indian Penal Code .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Vernacular press .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Nattu brothers .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Disabilities of native soldiers .. .. .. .. .. 34
The National Congress and Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. ib.
Iniquities of the Mappila sepoys stationed at Cannanore .. 35
Condemning the practice of sending demi-official correspondences .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Complaint against the Mappila sepoys at Cannanore .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 850 | Jan. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th Jan. 1898. |
| 3 | "Kalanidhi," .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 15th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 8th, 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| 6 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 15th Jan. 1898. |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th and 24th Dec. 1897 and 16th Jan. 1898. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 26th Dec. 1897 and 16th Jan. 1898. |
| 9 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 17th Jan. 1898. |
| 10 | "Sajjana Patrika;" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 27th Dec. 1897 and 3rd, 10th & 17th Jan. 1898. |
| 11 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 8th, 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| 12 | "Dharma Samvarthani" .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 15th Dec. 1897. |
| 13 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 100 | 1st and 8th Jan. 1898. |
| 14 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 26th Dec. 1897 and 23rd Jan. 1898. |
| 15 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 25th and 30th Dec. 1897, and 1st, 6th, 8th, 11th and 15th Jan. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 to 250 | 1st Dec. 1897. |
| 18 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 350 | 1st and 16th Jan. 1898. |
| 19 | "Vignanavardhani" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 100 to 150 | 15th Jan. 1898. |
| 20 | "Andhra Desopakari" .. .. | Nellore .. .. .. | Not known. | 15th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 15th, 19th, 26th and 29th Jan. 1898. |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 18th, 21st, 25th and 28th Jan 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 17th, 24th and 31st Jan. 1898. |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 22nd and 29th Jan. 1898. |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 19th ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 500 | 28th Jan. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 29 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| 30 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 15th and 25th Jan. 1898. |
| 31 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 20th Jan. 1898. |
| 32 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 11th and 21st Jan. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 33 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| 34 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 12th, 19th and 26th Jan. 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 37 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 17th and 24th Jan. 1898. |
| 38 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 8th, 15th and 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| 39 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 15th and 25th Jan. 1898. |
| 40 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras.. | 150 | 16th Jan. 1898. |
| 41 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 13th, 20th and 27th Jan. 1898. |
| 42 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 10th, 13th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 43 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 2nd and 12th Oct. 1897. |
| 44 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | Not known. | 15th Jan. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The India Mitran, of the 8th January, reports that, owing to want of harmony between France and England, it has been resolved to effect a treaty between them by which it is proposed to cede to the British the French possessions in India such as Karikal, Yanam, Mahé, Chandranagore, Pondicherry, etc. The paper wishes that, in the event of such a proposal coming to pass, both the English and the French Governments should adopt measures to guard the interests of such of the inhabitants of the French possessions as have received the benefit of French education and earn their livelihood thereby.

Observations on the political relation of the English and the French and a suggestion to both the powers.

India Mitran, Tanjore, Jan. 8th, 1898.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 31st January, says:—The frontier war is still going on. Now it is the Bonerwals that have come forward. General Lockhart postponed his departure to England in the expectation that the Afridis would submit, but they do not come. The Pioneer thinks that they have not been subdued at all. The people in England say that the Afridis have gulled General Lockhart. Before this war could be said to have come to an end, our troops have been called away to Soudan, where war is about to commence. And as if this were not enough to occupy the attention of the Government, the disturbances at Mekran have called away a force from Karachi and it is rumoured that this disturbance is fostered by Mir Rustum, the Khan of Khelat.

The frontier war.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Jan. 31st, 1898.

3. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 17th January, has a translation of an extract from the Crescent (dated 15th December 1897) of Liverpool to the following effect:—At last the treaty of peace was signed on the 4th instant. The first line contains a stipulation which even cautious and experienced persons would have declared impossible very few months ago. Who could have believed that the Turk would even regain a foot of Christian territory from which he has been expelled? The agreement, approved by all the great powers, provides for a rectification of the Turko-Greek frontier, and declares that slight modifications may be inserted to the advantage of the Ottoman Empire, even beyond those occupied by agreement between the delegates of the powers and of the sublime Porte. Possibly no villages are included in the transfer; the British Government fought hard to prevent that. But article VII recognises that certain inhabitants, and natives of the territories retroceded to Turkey, shall keep possession of lands or property they may own within the new Greek frontier and vice versâ; so it would appear that some human beings are transferred. No time is fixed for the evacuation. It depends mostly upon the announcement of the loan for the war indemnity to be arranged by an International Commission, which has not yet assembled. Article VIII commands Greece to pay one hundred thousand pounds for loss and damage caused by its armies. This seems cheap, from all we heard of the shameful proceedings in Epirus. The capitulations are not to be abolished, but special arrangements will be concluded in order to avoid consular friction. Those who are responsible for the war, whoever they may be, can now contemplate the full results of their wicked recklessness.

Terms of the treaty concluded between Turkey and Greece.

Shams-ul-Akhbar Madras, Jan. 17th, 1898.

4. The same paper has a translation of an extract from the Crescent of Liverpool to the following effect:—It would be ridiculous to pretend to regret the failure of Major Marchand's expedition to Soudan, though any disaster would be deplored from a non-political point of view. But there are several parties of French in those parts, and the admirable energy of the French officers makes it probable that the enterprise will be renewed. It is to be hoped that Her Majesty's Affairs in the Soudan.

Government, if its excessive patience is not exhausted, will at least make arrangements for the recovery, at the earliest possible moment, of so much of the Egyptian Soudan as is not to be occupied by the French.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Jan. 8th, 1898.

Proposal to increase the German fleet.

5. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 8th January, has an extract from the Rozana (place of publication not known) to the effect that Germany has for many years been making great progress in her navy and now the Emperor is compelling the German Parliament to sanction money for constructing additional men-of-war. This state of affairs is a source of fear to England, to which Germany has openly shown signs of hostility. Such being the case, it behoves England to increase her fleet as well and keep it at par with those of others, so that any unexpected danger may be instantly averted.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 24th, 1898.

Head constable of the Mankara police station to be transferred.

6. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 24th January, invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of transferring the head constable of the Mankara police station in Malabar. The head constable in question has been doing duty in the said station for the past seven years, and he consequently commands great influence in the place. It appears that either on account of his influence or by virtue of his office several melcharts, assignment of lands and civil suits have taken place in his jurisdiction to the detriment of many poor tenants. It is true that the head constable is not an official exercising independent powers, but it is doubtful whether there is in the rank and file of public servants any one who has so much opportunity and facility to oppress people as the head constables and inspectors. As the oppression of the above head constable has become intolerable, the matter is brought to the notice of the authorities.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 30th, 1897.

A suggestion to His Excellency Lord Havelock regarding division of work among Deputy Collectors.

7. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th December, writes as follows:—Appeals against the decision of Stationary Sub-Magistrates have to be preferred to First-class Magistrates, who are for the most part Deputy Collectors, who in consequence of their revenue and magisterial functions are obliged to move constantly from place to place, and the parties who appeal to them are put to no small inconvenience thereby. If, on the other hand, Government be pleased to direct that certain Deputy Collectors in a district should attend to magisterial work only and that the others should engage themselves in revenue work alone, there would be no room for the grievance here complained of. It is earnestly hoped that His Excellency Lord Havelock will be good enough to adopt tentative measures to test the desirability of the suggestion herein made.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 21st, 1898.

The Chief Justice on criminal cases.

8. The Sasilekha, of the 21st January, referring to the remarks of the Chief Justice of the Madras High Court that he will not be bound by the decisions of other Courts in deciding criminal cases, observes that the adoption of such a procedure will save the necessity for publishing Law Reports in future.

(c) Jails.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 1st, 1898.

A suggestion regarding convicts in the jail.

9. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 1st January, writes as follows:—It is desirable that measures should be adopted to have the convicts in the jail served with food, due deference being paid to their caste scruples, and to allow them to worship God once a week in the jail in conformity with their religious customs, as many are of opinion that the absence of such a system makes the minds of the convicts callous and induces them to commit atrocious crimes without any scruple after they come out of the jail.

(d) Education.

10. The Lokopakari, of the 26th December, regrets to note that students neglect the study of their vernaculars, for the reason that securing the required minimum in their Vernacular Text-books in particular is not made compulsory both in Government and University examinations, and that Tamil is classed as an optional branch in the Lower Secondary examination. The paper concludes with the hope that Government as well as the University will attach vital importance to the vernaculars and make them compulsory in every examination, inasmuch as a knowledge of one's vernacular literature alone will enable a man to understand correctly the customs and manners of his countrymen and acquire a spirit of patriotism coupled with an appreciation of the religion of his ancestors.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 26th, 1897.

A suggestion to make the vernaculars compulsory in Government and University examinations alike.

11. The Andhraprakasika, of the 15th January, observes that Mr. Babu Chatterji, being acquainted with Uriya and English, was appointed guardian and tutor to the minor zemindars at Chatrapur, among whom were the zemindars of Bisankatakam, Sérugadá and Bodagadá. Mr. Moss, who had been tutor to the minor zemindar of Kurupam, was thrown out of employment in December last by the minor attaining his majority, and it was probably thought, says the paper, that some provision should be made for him. When it was almost decided that he should supersede Mr. Chatterji, the Ranis of Bisankatakam and Bodagadá petitioned the Court of Wards against the contemplated change. The Court of Wards, however, ordered that the minors of Sérugadá and Bodagadá should be placed under Mr. Moss and that the minor of Bisankatakam should join the Hindu high school at Vizagapatam. The paper condemns this order as most unjust and unreasonable. The zemindars of Bisankatakam, Sérugadá and Bodagadá are on a par in respect of their social position and other matters, and have been receiving the same kind of instruction in Chatrapur. If the education imparted at the Hindu high school is thought sufficient for the zemindar of Bisankatakam, the paper is at a loss to know why the zemindars of Sérugadá and Bodagadá should not be sent to a similar place of instruction, the Calicut college at Berhampur. It is needless to add, it observes, that living at Madras under a tutor is very costly and especially so in the case of zemindars.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 15th, 1898.

Education of zemindari minors.

12. Referring to the proposed appointment by the Chancellor of the Madras University of Surgeon-Lieutenant-Colonel W. G. King, Sanitary Commissioner, Madras, to deliver the address at the ensuing convocation, the Alhami, of the 16th January, says that the proposal is laudable. At the time when fears of the plague spreading to Madras are entertained and the sanitary condition here is unsatisfactory, Dr. King's address to the young graduates should be productive of good results.

ALHAMI, Madras, Jan. 16th, 1898.

The ensuing convocation of the Madras University.

(e) Local and Municipal.

13. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th December, referring with delight to the rules passed by Government for the interpellation of the chairman by the municipal councillors of the district municipalities, wishes that the Commissioners of the Madras municipality also should be blessed with the same privilege, and requests His Excellency Lord Havelock to see to it.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1897.

A hint to His Excellency Lord Havelock regarding the rules for the interpellation of the chairman by the municipal councillors.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Jan. 16th, 1898.

14. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th January, observes that although the administration of district and local boards may be said to be in the hands of the natives, as the number of native members of such bodies is overwhelming, yet it is virtually under official control, the majority of the native members of such bodies being officials. The paper is of opinion that the natives in these days are so far advanced in learning and civilization that they are capable of managing the affairs of such boards, and that it is high time for Government to leave the local administration entirely in the hands of the natives.

Desirability of leaving the management of district and local boards entirely in the hands of the natives.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 18th, 1898.

15. The Sasilekha, of the 18th January, writing about the administration of the local boards, says that even at the present day the constitution and working of these boards is just the same as it was when brought into being in the régime of Lord Ripon, and expresses the opinion that the time has come for Government to curtail the authority of the official members and confer greater powers on the representatives of the people. It is not meet, it says, that Government should always consider the natives to be infants unable to stand on their legs without external support. It contends that all the districts of the Presidency have not equally progressed, and that though some are backward, others have considerably advanced, the people thereof being quite able to manage their affairs with skill and prudence. Natives are appointed Collectors and District Judges, why then, it asks, is it objected to appoint them as Presidents of District Boards? Would it not result in good, it says, if Government servants and successful lawyers, retiring from active life, were appointed to these places? It hopes that Government will consider the question and make a trial by appointing natives as presidents of local boards in some of the advanced districts and taluks.

Local boards.

ALHAMI, Madras, Jan. 16th, 1898.

16. The Alhami of the 16th January. A correspondent, writing of the general news of the district of Gódávari, complains that the district municipality does not attend to the wants and grievances of the Muhammadans of the district in general, inasmuch as the localities inhabited by the Muhammadans have neither proper roads nor lanterns and are extremely filthy. The correspondent hopes that the Municipal authorities will mend matters soon.

Insanitary condition of the localities inhabited by Muhammadans in the Gódávari district.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1897.

17. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th December, reports that, owing to the failure of rain this year, the harvest proved a failure specially in the districts of South Arcot and Chingleput, and that the condition of the ryots in those places has therefore become extremely miserable. The paper requests His Excellency Lord Havelock to save the poor ryots at this critical moment by issuing orders to the Collectors concerned not to adopt coercive measures in collecting the kist.

Advisability of issuing orders to the Collectors of Chingleput and South Arcot not to adopt coercive measures in the matter of collecting kist.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 24th, 1898.

18. A leader in the Manorama, of the 24th January, disapproves of the proposal to give up the registration of janmam titles in Malabar which is now going on in that district, and remarks that as it is not in possession of the full particulars contained in the report which the Collector Mr. Dance is said to have submitted to Government supporting that proposal, it defers its comment thereon. But the article says that it will be wanting in its duty if it did not on this occasion bring to the notice of Government the fact that the janmam registration was not commenced without any deep and mature consideration, and that it was undertaken for safeguarding the interests of both the Government and the Disapproving of the proposal to give up the registration of janmam titles in Malabar.

janmis. The report is that as the registration of janmam titles is likely to take more time and money than was anticipated, and a greater delay is likely to be caused in finishing the settlement and enhancing the revenue, such a proposal was made; but we are not disposed to accept the report as true. If the object of Government is only to enhance the revenue, it could very easily do so by passing an Act to that effect. Such a procedure might be expected of the Government of Bombay; but when the people have a personage like the present Governor in this Presidency, nothing would be done so hastily.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

19. The Jananukulan, of the 22nd January, referring to paragraph 12-B of the Standing Order of the Board of Revenue, No. 154, which directs that no arrack-shops should be opened in the neighbourhood of schools, hospitals, public baths, temples, factories and other places of public resort, and that the tahsildars should carefully examine the boundaries of such shops and so forth, reports that, in the district of Tanjore, arrack-shops are being opened near temples, hospitals and other objectionable localities, and that in the case of some of them the boundaries are not definitely marked. The paper attibutes this unsatisfactory state of things to carelessness on the part of the tahsildars concerned, and hopes that the Collector and the Board of Revenue will bestow due attention on the subject.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Jan. 22nd, 1898.

A complaint against tahsildars regarding the sites of arrack-shops in the district of Tanjore.

(k) General.

20. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 27th December, requests the authorities to remove the Sub-Registrar's office now located in Magaranonbuchavadi to Ammápet in Tanjore, on the ground that the latter station would prove more convenient to the people. He also hopes that the authorities will open a Village Munsif's court and a Local Fund dispensary in Ammápet, as their absence at that place subjects the people to great hardship and inconvenience, and regrets to note that the grievance here complained of has not yet been redressed by the authorities in spite of the frequent representation of the same in the papers.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Dec. 27th, 1897.

Necessity for a Sub-Registrar's office, a Local Fund dispensary and a Village Munsif's court at Ammápet in Tanjore.

21. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 1st January, referring to the rumour that the authorities owing to pressure of work in the first-class taluks of Tanjore and Kumbakónam propose to form another taluk under the designation of "Papavinasam taluk," observes that the proposal in question is a very important one, and will prove highly beneficial to the mirasidars of the district of Tanjore, and hopes that the authorities will adopt speedy measures to have it carried out. The correspondent draws the attention of the Board of Revenue to the fact that of the nineteen sub-magistrates in the district of Tanjore, six of them, forming nearly a third of the total number, are Aiyangars—a state of things not at all desirable in a district peopled by Aiyangar Brahmins to an enormous extent.

INDIA MITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 1st, 1898.

Desirability of forming a new taluk in the district of Tanjore.

22. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 10th January, remarks that it is high time for the authorities to check prostitution in India either by legislation or by some other means, and thinks it expedient that they should enforce in this country the rule regarding public prostitutes—now observed in Mauritius, Penang, Singapore, Malacca, Sumatra and other places—which compels prostitutes to get themselves licensed, to live separately in an isolated place and to have signboards suspended in front of their houses. He is of opinion that the enforcement of a rule of this kind in

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Jan. 10th, 1898.

An advice to Government to check prostitution.

India will prevent many a woman from leading the wretched life of a prostitute more on account of the tendency of such a rule to give publicity to her immoral conduct that heinous crimes like murder, of which women are invariably found to be the cause, will be of rare occurrence, and that the moral character of young men will not be at stake.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 8th, 1898.

A complaint that the orders of the Board of Revenue are set at defiance by certain Collectors.

23. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th January, remarks that certain Collectors sometimes disregard the orders of the Board of Revenue, and that it is highly desirable that His Excellency Lord Havelock should pay attention to such irregularities and take the Collectors concerned to task. The paper regrets to refer to the cases in which Mr. Forbes, the Collector of Chingleput, failed to execute the order of the Board directing him to reconvey to the mirasidars certain darkhast lands in the village of Mannur, in Conjeeveram taluk, a few months ago, and Mr. Tremenheere, the Collector of Nilgiris, set at naught the order of the Board which had overruled all his orders against the officials of the Collectorate.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengódu, Jan. 23rd, 1898.

Advisability of introducing a common standard of weight and measurement throughout the Presidency.

24. The Viveka Thivakaran, of the 23rd January, requests the authorities to introduce a common standard of weight and measurement throughout the Presidency, on the ground that the absence of uniformity in respect of measures and weights encourages merchants to practise fraud and have recourse to other malpractices.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 25th, 1898.

The Advocate-Generalship.

25. The Sasilekha, of the 25th January, remarks that nothing can be more unreasonable than the appointment of Mr. Arnold White to supersede the Hon'ble Mr. Bhashyam Iyengar as Advocate-General. It adds that the Secretary of State was perhaps determined that a "black man" should not hold a position of eminence, whatever his ability might be.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 26th, 1898.

The Andhraprakasika, of the 26th January, referring to the appointment of Mr. Arnold White as the Advocate-General of Madras, remarks that, though the Secretary of State might have overlooked the claims of the Hon'ble Mr. Bhashyam Iyengar through the ignorant and mistaken belief that the natives of India are disloyal and untrustworthy, it is strange that the selection has not fallen on any one of the several able European Barristers practising in Madras.

VIGNANAVARDHANI, Bellary, Jan. 15th, 1898.

Free grants of money to distressed ryots in Nellore.

26. The editor of the Vignanavardhani, of the 15th January, writing about the free grants of money to distressed ryots in the Nellore district for the purchase of seed-grain, etc., deeply regrets to hear that only small portions of such grants really reached the hands of the ryots, and that the village headmen and karnams misappropriated two-thirds of each of such grants, and that in villages, not disturbed by factions, their illegal gains exceeded that limit or even absorbed the entire grant. He confidently affirms that in his own taluk (Rayadrug) the ryots never received the whole of the grants assigned to them, and regrets to note that the ryots are afraid of giving evidence against their village officials. He adds, however, that he has represented to the authorities the case of one Khande Rao, karnam of Gónabhávi.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 12th, 1898.

Sub-registrars in the first grade to be exempted from passing certain special tests.

27. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 12th January, referring to a recent ruling that sub-registrars who have not passed the Civil Lower and the Account Test will not be appointed even as acting district registrars, remarks that out of ten sub-registrars of the first grade in Malabar only one has passed the above tests, and as these sub-registrars who have put in a service of twenty and twenty-five years are too old to study and pass any examination, the rule is very hard on them. It says that to rule that these sub-registrars after having been in the department for so many years are not eligible to be district registrars for the simple reason that they have not passed the above two tests is not only very pitiable but also hasty and ill-considered. The suggestion is therefore made that all the sub-registrars who were in the first grade before the passing of the rule in question should be exempted from its operation.

28. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 13th January, referring to the attack recently made on the plague-searching party at Bombay, says that it appears that the Plague authorities still do not have full regard for the susceptibilities of ignorant classes. If they had done so, no such attack would have been made. The editor asks the leading members of the community at Bombay to pacify those who are excited by making them understand quietly that whatever is done by the Plague authorities is for their own good.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Jan. 13th, 1898.

The attack made on the plague-searching party at Bombay.

29. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 15th January, has an article in which the editor thanks the Government of India for its excellent arrangement made on the G.I.P. Railway for the enforcement of quarantine rules, and says the native plague servants of the Government at Sholapur, etc., misuse their powers. With a view to extort money they heat the clothes of passengers far beyond what is actually required for disinfection and thus render them useless. Some of the above servants say in the presence of doctors that they will burn the clothes if no illegal gratification is given to them. How can the servants act thus in the presence of the doctors, if they (doctors) themselves are not corrupt? After disinfection being over, passengers, whether they may be Hindus or Muhammadans, and whether attacked by the plague or not, are indiscriminately bathed in a vessel containing water already used. From such a procedure it is feared the plague, for the prevention of which strenuous efforts are being made, will spread. It is a pity the excellent arrangements made by the Government of India should thus be spoilt on account of the incapable native subordinates.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Jan. 15th, 1898.

The alleged misuse of their powers by the native plague servants of Government at Sholapur.

30. Regarding the opening speech of Mr. C. Sankara Nair, President of the National Congress, held at Amraoti on the 27th December 1897, the Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 20th January, says that it is not a National Congress but a Hindu or more properly a Brahmin Congress. Though it may not be seditious as declared by the President, yet it cannot be said that it has not produced any evil effect. It is its virulent attacks that has changed the attitude of the Native press towards Government. It is foolish to think that if the prayer of the congress as regards the grant of freedom and local self-government be granted, the Hindus and Muhammadans will go hand-in-hand and solve political problems amicably among themselves. Among others, the cow question is a sufficient proof that Hindus and Muhammadans cannot agree. Its objects are apparently beneficient, but really detrimental to the national interests. Such being the case, it is quite impossible that the Government will grant its requests from terror on account of its agitation.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Jan. 20th, 1898.

Criticising the opening speech of the President of the National Congress, recently held at Amraoti.

III.—Legislation.

31. The Dharmasamvarthani, of the 15th December, suggests to the authorities the desirability of nominating a commission composed of pandits well versed in the vedas and sastras to report on the advisability or otherwise of passing the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill into an Act. The paper remarks that the contemplated Act instead of promoting feelings of cordiality among brothers as surmised by the author of the Bill, will be productive of the most unpleasant consequences—such as disagreement among brothers and breach of filial duty.

Dharmasamvarthani, Tiruvádi, Dec. 15th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Jan. 15th, 1898.

Opinion regarding the nomination of Mr. Ghulam Muhammad Sahib as a member of the local Legislative Council.

32. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th January, reports that the Muhammadan community as a whole feel sorry for the nomination by His Excellency Lord Havelock of Mr. Ghulam Muhammad Sahib as a member of the local Legislative Council, inasmuch as he is a person almost unknown to the public.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 19th, 1898.

The Hon'ble Mr. Ghulam Muhammad Sahib.

33. The Andhraprakasika, of the 19th January, regrets very much that it has now to criticise the action of the very same Governor, His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock, whom it has so frequently praised for his wise and popular administration. Referring to its remarks on the impropriety of appointing Mr. Firth as Sheriff, again for the third time, it expresses itself that the nomination of Mr. Ghulam Muhammad Sahib as an additional member of the Madras Legislative Council is even worse. In enumerating the qualifications or rather disqualifications of the Muhammadan gentleman for the honour conferred on him, the paper states that his age is about 25 years, that his education is nil, that he is only one among the many members of the Arcot family, that he once served as an amanuensis to Raja Sir Ramaswami Mudaliar, and that he has no occupation at present. The paper is at a loss to know how His Excellency has been disposed to assign to such a gentleman a place of honour on a par with Maharajas, Rajas, experienced officials in the Civil Service and highly educated and patriotic gentlemen. The protest of the Central Muhammadan Association makes it clear that Muhammadan gentlemen are not wanting to fill the place with ability. The paper is confident that His Excellency must have been misled as to the gentleman's merits, for it cannot believe for one moment that the President of the Legislative Council has so low an estimation of his own position and that of his colleagues and of the Muhammadan community, as to appoint such a gentleman. But the paper asserts that it is conscious of the fact that His Excellency cannot with decency annul the appointment once made, and therefore respectfully suggests that the Hon'ble Mr. Ghulam Muhammad Sahib should, being content with the actual publication of his appointment in the Gazette, wisely tender his resignation for the seat in the Legislative Council.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 25th, 1898.

Encumbered Zemindaris Bill.

34. The Sasilekha, of the 25th January, referring to the Bill for the relief of encumbered zemindaris shortly to be introduced by the Government, expresses its approval of the same. The absence of such an enactment hitherto, it says, has left ancient zemindaris heavily encumbered.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 21st, 1898.

The Marriageable Age Bill.

35. The Sasilekha, of the 21st January, referring to the Bill fixing the marriageable age of boys and girls about to be introduced by the Hon'ble Mr. Rathnasabapathi Pillai, says that a similar Act has been in force in Mysore for the past few years, and remarks that much good will result from this Bill becoming law.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 15th, 1898.

Legislative Council meetings.

36. The Andhraprakasika, of the 15th January, observes that there is no prospect of there being more than two or three meetings of the Legislative Council for the year 1897–98, and is at a loss to account for it. Is it because, it asks, there is no work for the Council to transact, or is it because the Government considers the meeting of the Council a nuisance? Stating that, though there is no legislative work in Bombay, meetings of the Council are being regularly held, it remarks that it is probable that the object of the Government here in arranging for only a few meetings is to avert the necessity of answering questions put by the members of the Council. It further adds that the Hon'ble Members find themselves frequently disappointed at the "insipid" answers returned to their questions.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 29th, 1898.

The law of sedition.

37. The Andhraprakasika, of the 29th January, observing that sedition, obscene publications, and defamation are offences against the State, the society and individuals, respectively, fails to see how obscene publications can be identified with sedition and dealt with accordingly, while law courts regard defamation as a distinct offence.

Gagging the press.

38. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th January, has a leading article which runs as follows:—It seems as if a species of madness had come over some of the rulers of this land. They have for some time past been going terribly astray. They have been doing what they ought not to have done, and they have left undone what they should have performed. This is not pleasant to contemplate, but it is true. While the famine and plague were in the land, and were costing the treasury crores of rupees, those in power must needs go to war with the tribes on the frontier. There was not the slightest occasion for this war. It was perfectly uncalled for, and why it was undertaken nobody seems able to give a definite answer. It has already cost a large sum, and before it is concluded it may cost much more. Many lives have been lost, much suffering has been caused by the wretched business, and the whole affair is condemned by all sensible men. But the authorities have gone further than this. They have introduced a Bill into the Legislative Council, the object of which is to curtail the liberty of the press. Not a more foolish act could be imagined. The reason given is that there is a good deal of sedition in the land, and this must be put down at any cost. The unfortunate Poona affair has brought all this fermentation about. Those murders were the act of private individuals, and not the carrying out of the decision of any plot. Still the powers-that-be will have it that the crimes were the result of a widespread conspiracy, and that this was apparent from the writings in the Native press, consequently this press must be curbed. We said that a Bill was introduced into the Legislative Council to gag the press. Rather we ought to have said that the terrible section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code is to be extended. Hitherto a case that came under this section could only be tried by a Judge either of the High or Sessions Court. Now the power will be extended to 2nd-class magistrates, and the consternation caused by this extension in the country at large is tremendous. It may easily be imagined how these magistrates will work the section. They may have a grudge against the conductors of a paper who may be brought before them, and they may determine to deal out not justice, but vengeance. Perhaps a journal may have criticised the doings of a magistrate in connection with some case brought before him, and he may determine to retaliate when he has a chance. It is well known that officials of this class display terrible vagaries at times, and we may be certain that when they see an opportunity of putting an end to any criticism on their doings they will not let it slip. They will take every advantage of it. The result will be that all rational criticism will be put a stop to. The papers may praise, but they must not dare to point out what is wrong. Thus all the good will be taken out of the press, and it will become useless except to give news, and even in this respect the officials frown on anything that they may imagine in any way reflects upon them. Thus the press of this land will be thoroughly gagged; it will not be able to say what is good for the country, the people, and even the Government. The authorities at Calcutta cannot, as we have said, get it out of their heads that many of the people are seditious. This idea they cherish; this they carry about with them and will not part with it on any account. Such a view is the highest of silliness, and it is very remarkable that men of education, who are supposed to be possessed of common sense, should cling to it. But they do so most tenaciously. Now what will be the result of this repression? The rulers will not be able to ascertain what the people want, what they think, and tremendous blunders will be the result. If they cannot give vent to their feelings in the papers they will discover some other method, and the Government will not know what they are thinking about or doing. They may plot, they may work up conspiracies, but the rulers will be completely in the dark about the matter, and should any trouble happen it will come upon them without the least warning. The disease, whatever it may be, will be driven inwards instead of being expelled outwards. Surely this is a mistake, and the rulers will find it out in time, though now they think they are doing the best to keep away trouble. We see that a meeting was held in Patchaiyappah's Hall, Madras, last Friday to protest against the measure, and similar meetings should be held in every part of the country. This would show the Government the people are in earnest, and it might prevent the obnoxious measure from being passed.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 24th, 1898.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 31st, 1898.

Amendment of the law of sedition.

39. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 31st January, in a leading article writes as follows:—It is altogether too late in the day to think of repression, and if the Government gets the present measure through, it will have to be rescinded before long. The good sense of the people in England will demand this. It will be remembered that Lord Lytton when he held the post of Viceroy passed a Gagging Act; but it only lasted till the next Viceroy Lord Ripon took charge. So it will be should the present Government extend section 124-A in the manner it is now proposed. Not only will the magistracy be able to try cases under this extension of the section, but any one in the post office may examine the newspapers that pass through it, and if he thinks they contain anything like sedition he can detain them or tear them up. This is simply abominable. If carried it will lead to great dissatisfaction and there will be many protests against it. In fact the idea of examining what passes through the post is as bad as anything that prevails in Russia, and this land has hitherto been looked upon as the most backward of all civilized States as regards the liberty of the press. It is generally thought that the Government aims at India—a paper published in England advocating the interests of the people of this land. It is very fearless in its denunciations of anything that is wrong, and some of the best friends of India either write for it, or are, in some way, connected with it. Should the measure now contemplated become law, the copies of India sent out to this country might be detained in the post office of Bombay; it might be declared that the paper contained seditious matter, and the whole of the papers could be confiscated. It is believed that it is to catch India that the post office clause has been inserted in section 124-A. But other papers may also be stopped should the measure in contemplation become law; in fact any paper may be opened, and if those in charge of the post office profess that they smell sedition they may stop the paper from going to the person to whom it is addressed. We can fancy nothing more annoying to the public than to have its journals stopped in the post office, and either kept for days before they are delivered or destroyed according to the whim of the person who examines them. Should the change be made as contemplated, the evils that will follow in consequence will be many and very important.

Mr. Chalmers earnestly protested that he was only introducing English sedition law into India. But under the English law the maximum punishment awarded in a case of sedition is rigorous imprisonment for two years. In India it is transportation for life. Why did not Mr. Chalmers reduce the punishment to the English limit, and why did he, instead, raise the term of imprisonment from three to ten years? Evidently what is sufficient in England is not sufficient in India, including the interpretation of sedition.

MYSORE, VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Jan. 29th, 1898.

The Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill.

40. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 29th January, says on the same subject:—The first objection is to an amendment which courts and transfers them to the hands of the ordinary police, in matters which concern the liberty of a person whose character and antecedents are suspected, but no positive proof may be forthcoming about them. Under the present Code, only a Presidency Magistrate in the capital cities and magistrates of the first class in the mofussil can institute an inquiry into a case of the kind, and call upon the accused person to give security for good behaviour for a stated period, during which he is under the surveillance of the police. It is proposed in the Bill to transfer this power, or rather to make its exercise by the ordinary police simultaneous with Presidency and First-class Magistrates, which measure, on the face of it, is simply retrogressive, and dangerous considering the character and qualifications of the Indian police all over the country. Again, under section 439 of the present Criminal Procedure Code, the High Courts have power in criminal decisions by the lower courts, whether there is or there is not an appeal against a conviction, or whether or not an aggrieved party has applied for a revision of the case, whether he is the complainant or the accused, to peruse the record of the case, and to pass such orders as the court may think fit. The amended section proposes to curtail this fair and wholesome provision by making the interference of the High Court contingent only on an appeal against a conviction or an application for revision by aggrieved persons. There is no reason at all, at any rate, no reason has been assigned, for so radical a change in the powers of revision of the High Courts. If this amendment is passed into law, the result will be that the Judges of the High Courts will be powerless to take action in cases in which, on a perusal of the records they find that there has been the most glaring miscarriage of justice in the decision arrived at, either way, by the lower court simply because there has been no appeal or no application for a revision of the finding of the lower court by either party! Thus the records of the decision of the lower criminal courts, filed amongst the records of the High Courts, may contain quite a series of unjust decisions, year by year, and yet have no remedy or redress whatever! The Bombay Presidency Association objects to the amendment which seeks to deprive accused persons of the use of statements made by witnesses before the police, at the preliminary inquiry, and thus takes away a proper test of the veracity of the witnesses. It is singular that all the High Courts in India, with one exception, namely, the Allahabad High Court, admit such statements in evidence. It is very clear, then, that the practice of the majority of High Courts should be allowed to continue in the matter. No reason whatever has been assigned why the practice of a majority of one has been followed. Under the present Code an accused person is entitled to reserve his defence and the cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution, whom he has a right to recall, when charged with the offence of which he is accused. It is now proposed to deprive accused persons of this right to reserve cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution unless the accused say that they are prepared to produce and examine their own witnesses, and it is also proposed to allow the magistrate to examine the witnesses for the defence after the accused has been committed to a higher court by the magistrate himself! Such an amendment of the law is not only retrogressive, but we would venture to characterise it as unjust and cruel. Its admission as part of the criminal law would practically ensure the conviction of an accused person on his final trial. Another amendment proposes to invest the common village police of the country with power to arrest and detain accused persons for more than twenty-four hours, without an order from a magistrate, which they cannot do at present without such order. Those who know the character of the village police will understand what a dangerous weapon of oppression it is proposed to place in the hands of policemen of this stamp. Then it is proposed to invest police superintendents with powers up to now vested only in magistrates' power; in short, to make them quasi-magistrates, that is to say, to combine in them both executive and administrative powers, and this measure is proposed at a time when it has become quite evident, from long and practical experience, that the best mode for the administration of justice is to separate executive from administrative powers; then again it is proposed to make the Presidency Magistrates subordinate to the Chief Presidency Magistrate—a measure which will render the former less independent in their position and action, and for which there is no necessity at all. One more example of the proposed amendments of the Code will suffice. It is proposed to allow confessions of accused persons to be recorded by and before subordinate and low-paid magistrates other than those entitled to try the case. This provision is directly opposed to the constantly-expressed opinion of all the Indian High Courts from time to time.

It will be noted from the instances of the proposed amendments to the Criminal Procedure Code above given, that they are all of the most retrogressive character, and if they become part of the substantive criminal law, they will entail much hardship and even cruelty to those who are unfortunate enough to become involved in the meshes of the criminal law. The leading principle of that law appears to have been forgotten in the framing of these amendments, the principle, namely, that it is better for a hundred guilty persons to escape than that one innocent person should be condemned.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 12th, 1898.

Sedition Law Amendment Bill.

41. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 12th January, referring to the Sedition Law Amendment Bill, says that when the High Courts in India and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council have accepted the interpretation put upon section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code, and thought that that section suffices for punishing persons who are convicted of disseminating sedition, there is no necessity for amending it now. If the Bill in its present form be passed into law the liberty of the press will be greatly curtailed and consequently the hardships suffered by the people at the hands of some of the oppressive officials will not be exposed, which is not a thing much to be desired. When one particular caste or class of persons predominates in one department of the Government service the papers to raise a protest and advocate the employment of other classes also in equal numbers. But under the Bill in question it is penal to set up one class of Her Majesty's subjects against another; and so will it not be punishable under the law if similar references are made by the papers after the passing of the Bill? It is true that no prosecution will be launched against the conductors of any newspaper unless the sanction of Government is previously obtained, but the Government ought also to consider whether, under these circumstances, some of the newspapers will not be receiving partial treatment at the hands of some of its servants.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 15th, 1898.

The Kerala Patrika, of the 15th January, alluding to the Bill, expresses the opinion that the object of Government in introducing such a measure is to entirely check the independence of some of the representative organs of the people. The paper while dwelling upon the subject at some length exhorts the people to convene meetings and adopt memorials to Government strongly protesting against the passing of the Bill.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 17th, 1898.

The Indian Stamp Bill.

42. A leader in the Manorama, of the 17th January, referring to the new Indian Stamp Bill, says that if the Bill is passed without several desirable modifications being made in some of the sections therein, it will cause great hardship to the people. Clause (c) of sub-section 5 of section 2 of the Bill is said to cause great grievance to the people as it provides that a duty should be paid even for a lease for a term of one year. Again under the present law when any landed property which is subject to any mortgage or encumbrance is sold, stamp duty is required to be paid only on the additional sum, if any, paid and not on the mortgage or encumbrance money for which stamp duty has once been paid. The Bill provides that duty should be paid on both the mortgage or encumbrance money and the additional charges. As this provision is very unfair and oppressive, it should be wholly modified. Further, it is provided in the Bill that if the acknowledgment of a debt exceeding 20 rupees is attested by any witness, the same duty as a bond for such amount or value should be paid. It is true that the stamp duty for the receipt unattested by any witness is only one anna, but as the validity of the same is likely to be questioned in case, it is not attested by any witness, this section also is very objectionable. It is likely that these and other highly objectionable provisions would not have been inserted in the Bill without due consideration, but as they will operate harshly upon the people, the Select Committee, and more especially the Government, will kindly consider over the matter and make the necessary modifications.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 24th, 1898.

Remarks on the Sedition Bill, etc.

43. A leader in the Manorama, of the 24th January, while referring to the Bills for amending the Indian Penal Code, Criminal Procedure Code and the Post Offices Act, which are now before the Imperial Legislative Council, expresses the opinion that if these Bills are passed into law in their present form, the freedom which the people enjoy under the British Government will be greatly curtailed. It remarks that it is quite improper and inexpedient on the part of Government to make the whole people suffer for the fault committed by a few disloyal men, and considers that the disaffection emanating from genuine love is preferable to loyalty enforced.

Reflections on the new Indian Post Offices Bill.

44. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 22nd January, says:—It is an open secret that the Government of India intends to further amend section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code which is already a weapon in its hands to deal a fatal blow at the liberty of the people and to make it more rigorous, and also to take surety for good behaviour from the editors of newspapers whom the Government suspects. It is also said that for securing the above purpose the Government intends modifying the Indian Post Offices Act. The proposed modifications in the Post Offices Act authorize the Post Office officials to detain in the course of transmission or refuse to send by post any newspaper which the Government does not approve of. If there were any official in India who could fathom the feelings of the people, he would not have permitted to bring forward such absurd measures. One who seriously reflects upon these matters can very easily understand that it is ridiculous to say that, so far as India is concerned, there is freedom for the people under the British Government. Our opinion is that with the introduction of such laws to maintain that there is liberty for the press is just like placing before one food mixed with poison. Although the man who sits before the food thoroughly knows that he will die if he takes it, yet it needs no saying that he would think it better for him to take it and die rather than die of starvation. So our belief is that if the giver of the food thinks that the food would not be taken for fear of death, there is no greater folly than that. When so many become the victims to his hardheartedness, the giver of the food may realise the severity of his action and refrain from doing so. The subjects ought, without complaint, to suffer the consequences resulting from the various actions of their sovereigns, but they should not for fear keep back from saying what they have to say. We do not for a moment think that the Government itself is of opinion that its actions are conducive to the welfare of the people; but we only say, as has been said by Mr. Sankaran Nayar, that they are all due to timidity. If the Government of India is to order that no newspapers shall from this day forward be published in India, no one would dare to act contrary to it. Such a step would look better than all these. What is the meaning of saying to the people who are tied up without any scope for moving on any side, "You have been given freedom; you can do anything you will." As these measures are dangerous to both the Government and the people, the Government ought to proceed in the matter only after mature consideration.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 22nd, 1898.

The new Muhammadan member of the Legislative Council.

45. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 26th January, expresses disapproval of the nomination of the new Muhammadan member to the Legislative Council. The article, after dwelling at some length on the incapacity and inefficiency of the new member, remarks that either Mr. Mahomed Sheriff ought to have been re-nominated or some other educated Muhammadan gentleman, of whom there are many, ought to have been appointed instead of the present incumbent.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 26th, 1898.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Separation of executive and judicial functions.

46. A leader in the Nazrani Dipika, of the 10th January, invites the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the necessity of separating the executive and judicial functions of tahsildar-magistrates in that State. It appears that when these functionaries go on circuit in connection with revenue matters, criminal cases are posted for hearing, and as the parties thereto are required to present themselves before these officers who may be sometimes many miles away from the head-quarters, they are put to great inconvenience and expense by such journeys.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanom, Jan. 10th, 1898.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, Jan. 15th, 1898.

Complaining that Government adopts no measures to relieve the famine-stricken people of India.

47. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th January, says the Aum, of Lahore, complains that the condition of the people of India is becoming poorer and poorer daily as its wealth is carried away to England, and no measures are adopted by Government to relieve the starving people.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1897.

Desirability of getting an important question decided by the Parliament once for all.

48. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th December, regrets to learn that in connection with the recent trial of Mr. Tilak the Advocate-General of Bombay has declined to grant permission to prefer an appeal to the Full Bench of the Bombay High Court on the question whether it is right on the part of the Judge to award "rigorous imprisonment" when the law simply empowers him to award "imprisonment." The paper remarks that in sentencing Mr. Tilak, Mr. Justice Strachey awarded him "rigorous imprisonment," while the section in the Indian Penal Code under which he was convicted empowers the Judge to award "imprisonment," that there was a gross miscarriage of justice in his case, that it would be idle to expect from the Government of India as well as from the Bombay Government a proper solution of the question under reference, and that it therefore behoves the people to urge Messrs. Asquith and Wedderburn to move this momentous question before the Parliament and get a definite ruling on the subject once for all.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 30th, 1897.

Reflections on the remarks of the Madras Mail on the speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nayar at the recent meeting of the congress.

49. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th December, deeply regrets to observe that the Madras Mail has condemned the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nayar as a time-server, remarking at the same time that his speech at the recent meeting of the congress has displayed hypocracy and disloyalty on his part, in spite of the fact that it eulogised him on many a former occasion. The paper concludes with the remark that such harsh aspersions are the outcome of impatience and thoughtlessness, calculated to prejudice the minds of the English people, and must be considered derogatory to the dignity of the Madras Mail.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Jan. 15th, 1898.

A hint to Government regarding Nattu brothers.

50. The Vikata Dutan, of the 15th January, referring to the condition of Nattu brothers, writes as follows:—The imprisonment of Nattu brothers has caused dissatisfaction to the people and filled their minds with misgivings. It is hoped that Government will remove the false impression the people have regarding it, by giving the Nattu brothers a fair trial according to law, and thus maintain its impartial administration of justice.

Sawdesamitran, Madras, Jan. 1st, 1898.

A hint to the authorities regarding the frequent occurrence of famine.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st January, observes as follows:—It is absolutely necessary on the part of the members of the commission who are to meet at Calcutta in the beginning of January to spare no pains to find out the real cause of famine which visits this country too often in spite of the endless advantages the people enjoy under the British rule. We do not hear of famine oppressing the people of England and several other countries of Europe. It is really derogatory to the dignity of the English to appeal to the generosity of others for pecuniary aid in order to help the famine-stricken people of India, in spite of the fact that this country is not wanting in productiveness. It is expedient that our Government should either utilize the enormous amount collected in the shape of tax in improving the condition of tanks, rivers and other sources of water-supply, or adopt such other measures as may seem best to it in view to prevent the periodical occurrence of famine.

52. The Indian Mitran, of the 8th January, writes as follows:—Prior to the mutiny of 1857, political disturbances were of frequent occurrence in India owing to want of harmony between the rulers and the ruled. In view to ensure perfect order and peace in the country the Governors alone were armed with an Act passed in 1827 empowering them to arrest and imprison any suspicious character without giving him the benefit of a trial until their doubts are at rest; but the Act in question does not authorize Government to confiscate the moveable and immoveable properties of the person suspected. There might have been many an occasion for the enforcement of such an Act prior to the mutiny of 1857. But ever since Her Majesty the Queen assumed the direct government of India in 1858, the Act under reference may be said to have fallen into disuse, inasmuch as not a single Governor seems to have had recourse to it. It is to be regretted that in modern times the Government of Bombay took the lead in bringing the said Act into operation in connection with Nattu brothers on the supposition that they might have been the cause of the murder of Messrs. Rand and Ayerst. Although four months have elapsed since their arrest, it is a pity that they have not been given the benefit of a formal trial. Such high-handed dealings are recorded in the pages of the history of this country during the tyrannical rule of the Muhammadans. This action of the Bombay Government is unprecedented in the history of the British rule which has deservedly won a good name for impartiality and justice. It is an undoubted fact that the Hindus feel it a pride to be the subjects of the British Government. Last year a Deputy Collector was murdered at his post by the Shanars of Tinnevelly. Was not Lord Mayo, who had done much good to India, stabbed to death by a convict while he was inspecting the prison in the Andamans? And yet the Act of 1827 was not enforced in respect of these culprits. In consideration of these circumstances, it behoves the Government of Bombay to give Nattu brothers the benefit of a formal trial under the Criminal Procedure Code and to dispose of their case on its merits and thus prove worthy of the high regard the people have for the English Government.

Comments on the detention of Nattu brothers in the jail.

INDIAN MITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 8th, 1898.

53. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th January, reporting that the members of the Calcutta Indian Association have convened a meeting and passed a resolution expressing their disapproval of the Bill amending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code, exhorts the people of the other Presidencies to lose no time to convene similar public meetings as the object of the Bill is to make every act of defamation a sedition and to gag the press—a thing highly detrimental to the interests of Government in the long run.

An advice to the people to convene public meetings in connection with the Bill amending section 124-A, Indian Penal Code.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 11th, 1898.

54. The Andhraprakasika, of the 29th January, observes that when Lord Lytton, an ex-Viceroy, passed the Vernacular Press Act and sought to enforce it throughout the whole of India, the Duke of Buckingham, the then Governor of Madras, protested against its extension to Madras. It further notes that His Honour the noble-hearted Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal is reported to have the intention of representing to His Excellency the Viceroy and the Legal Member that there is no sedition in Bengal. The paper prays, therefore, that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock will follow the example of the Duke of Buckingham, he being like him a merciful and large-hearted ruler and known also as the people's Governor (as the Duke was known).

The Vernacular press.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 29th, 1898.

55. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th January, speaking of the reply of the Bombay Government to the memorial of the Bombay Presidency Association praying for the release of the Nattu brothers, remarks as follows:—We do not wish to impugn the justice of the British Government, but the alarm created by the outrages on the Jubilee day led Government to take two measures, the imprisonment of the Nattus and the imposition of the extra police on Poona city, which fair-minded men, now that the excitement has cooled down, are ready to acknowledge were too hasty, to say the least of it. Government was under the impression that the crimes committed on the 22nd June last were instigated by the Nattus. But it is clear now that they had no connection with that unfortunate affair. In spite of all the efforts of the police, Damoder Chapekar, the criminal, has not implicated any one. According to his confession he committed the deed on his own initiative, without being set to it by others. If he is telling a falsehood, at least no cross-questioning has been able to make him contradict himself, and we have no right to presume in the absence of evidence that he really had accomplices and that he is unwilling to compromise them. His conviction of falsehood, moreover, in this matter would vitiate the whole of his confession, and would compel the police to adopt another line of tactics in the prosecution. It may be said that Government expect that further mysteries will be revealed in the course of Damoder's trial at the sessions. This is not at all likely. We have heard and known all that we are ever likely to hear and know concerning these murders. There is in all probability nothing further at the back of them. If there be, no proof of it will ever be forthcoming. Damoder has shown us clearly in the preliminary trial what his character is. He has determination enough, even if he be in possession of a secret, to die without revealing it—that is, supposing the evidence against him sufficient to secure his conviction. Another belief with regard to the Nattus was that their personal influence in Poona was so great that they were able to prevent any person cognisant of the murders from coming forward to denounce the culprits. They were accordingly removed from the city. As nothing has transpired to show that these suspicions against them were well founded, they ought to be released. As for bringing them to trial, it would be absurd as no shadow of evidence against them can be produced. Government may possess private information which we are not now aware of. At the forthcoming trial of Damoder they will have to put it forward, if it be so. After that trial is over, whatever may be the issue of it, there will be no further excuse for their incarceration. If a conviction is secured, the Nattus' innocence will, ipso facto, be proved. If Damoder comes off scotfree, we pity the police who will look very small indeed after the great bubble that they have blown up which will then burst ignominiously.

The Nattu brothers.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 17th, 1898.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 24th, 1898.

Disabilities of native soldiers.

56. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th January, says that the Allahabad paper concludes a paragraph enumerating a long list of heroic conduct on the part of Hindu and Muhammadan soldiers in the frontier war with the words "Soldiers such as these are fit to face any enemy." Upon this the editor remarks "Yes; but not fit to wear the Victoria Cross and not to be anything more than a Subadar-Major."

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 15th, 1898.

The National Congress and Mr. Tilak.

57. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 15th January, says that the executive committee of the late National Congress made a proposal that the congress should memorialise Government to exercise its mercy and release Mr. Tilak from jail on the ground that the verdict of the jury in the case against him was not unanimous, and that his confinement has told seriously upon his health, but for some reason or other it was not brought before the meeting. The paper applauds the action of the congress in having dropped such a proposal which would have been quite distasteful even to Mr. Tilak himself, who, it is remarked, has not in spite of so much suffering abandoned the manly courage which enables him to encounter it with coolness. When the name of Mr. Tilak was mentioned in the congress meeting, the whole audience rose up en masse and enthusiastically cheered, waving their handkerchiefs, etc. This itself is a clear proof that the sentiment of those present in the congress was that Mr. Tilak was not at all guilty. How many persons in England have suffered like this. The order of the king cannot be disobeyed, and so Mr. Tilak has no other go but to suffer his present miseries. It is only, as the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nayar said the other day, the timidity of Government that actuated them to convict a man of such a high position. The Government themselves will in the long run be convinced that their action was very unjust.

58. The Manorama, of the 17th January, publishes a correspondence in which serious allegations are made against the Mappila sepoys stationed at Cannanore. These sepoys are said to outrage women passing by the road, ill-treat and trouble school-boys, commit highway robberies, etc. The paper hopes that the Military authorities will take early steps for transferring the Mappila regiment from Malabar.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 17th, 1898.

Iniquities of the Mappila sepoys stationed at Cannanore.

59. A leader in the same paper condemns the practice of carrying on demi-official correspondences between Government officials regarding public matters on the ground that such correspondences almost always contain statements which are incorrect and misleading. The Government believing those statements to be true, take steps for which they afterwards have to repent. The deportation of the Nattu brothers of Poona is cited as an instance in point. The remark is made that the Bombay Government, to whom certain incorrect information regarding the Nattu brothers had been supplied by means of demi-official correspondences by the local officials, transferred the same to the Secretary of the State, and the deportation of Nattu brothers and the confiscation of their properties, both moveable and immoveable, was therefore the result. The moveable properties of the Nattu brothers have now been ordered to be returned to their relatives and there is every chance of themselves being set at liberty as they are not found guilty of any political offence. In the meanwhile the feeling of repentance is sure to come in the minds of the Governor of Bombay and his Councillors, the Government of India and the Secretary of State for their folly in having believed in the demi-official correspondence of their subordinates and acted thereon.

Condemning the practice of sending demi-official correspondences.

60. There is a correspondence in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 19th January, and also one in the same paper of the 26th idem, complaining of the iniquities of the Mappila sepoys at Cannanore. Last week some of the sepoys beat a Nayar and broke his head, and there was no police inquiry or complaint. The matter was compromised. It is the misfortune of the local inhabitants that the authorities do not take remedial measures however much the press may write about the oppression of these sepoys. If the present state of affairs continue, the people will have to leave the country for good, seeking shelter elsewhere.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 19th, 1898.

Complaints against the Mappila sepoys at Cannanore.

A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 17th January, makes a similar complaint against these sepoys.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 3 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th February 1898.

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

Suggestions regarding the war on the frontier and the diplomatic relations with the Amir and the Russians .. 39
The frontier war and the points to be secured thereby .. ib.
Crisis in China .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—

Necessity on the part of the Negapatam police to enforce the resolution of that municipality regarding jutka traffic on the bazaar road .. .. .. .. .. 40
Remarks on the Karunthattankudi murder case .. .. ib.
Advisability of removing the forest known as the Sankarapothikadu lying on the Dévakóttai road .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—

Certain queries regarding the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi. ib.
Gunner Piper's case .. .. .. .. .. .. 41
Sub-magistrates in Malabar .. .. .. ib.
Commenting upon the acquittal of William Edward Piper who murdered an Indian villager .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

Expediency of adopting measures to ameliorate the condition of the Parayahs .. .. .. .. 42

(e) Local and Municipal—

Wretched condition of the road leading from Lalgudi to Trichinopoly .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Necessity for a hospital in Tirupakkam in Vriddhachalam taluk .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Disapproving of the coercive measures employed by the Tellicherry municipality in the matter of collecting taxes .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Calicut municipal franchise .. .. ib.
Plague operations in the Calicut municipality .. .. 43

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Desirability of transferring tahsildars from place to place once in three years .. .. .. .. ib.
Irregularities of certain village officials in granting receipts for the payment of revenue .. .. ib.
Tahsildar of Kóttayam taluk collecting amsam service fund at excess rate .. .. .. .. .. 44

(g) Forests—

Nil.

(h) Railways—

Nil.

(i) Public Works—

Necessity for bridges over certain rivers near Alwarkurichi .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—*cont.

(i) Public Works—cont.

Desirability of carrying out ere long the Muthikolam water-project .. .. .. .. .. .. 44
Water-canals .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Nil.

(k) General—

Desirability of giving the extra departmental agents of the Postal department a pay of not less than Rs. 7 per mensem and of granting them other privileges .. ib.
Remarks on the Advocate-Generalship of Madras .. 45
A suggestion to Government in regard to famine .. ib.
A suggestion about tahsildars .. .. .. .. ib.
British administration in India .. .. .. .. ib.
The administration of His Excellency Lord Elgin .. 46
The financial position of India .. .. .. .. ib.
Disapproving of the appointment of Mr. Arnold White as the Advocate-General of Madras .. .. .. ib.
Commenting on the fatal accident that recently occurred in Messrs. Wrenn, Bennett's firm, Madras .. .. 47
The use of false weights and measures in Madras .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Remarks on the Act under contemplation for the registration of births and deaths in villages .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the Madras Marriage Bill .. .. .. ib.
Comments on the Madras Marriage Bill .. .. .. ib.
Observations on the Madras Marriage Bill .. .. .. 48
Reflections on the Madras Marriage Bill .. .. .. ib.
The Legislative Council .. .. .. .. .. 49
Marriageable Age Limit Bills .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Infant Marriage Prevention Bills .. .. .. .. ib.
Comments on the Bill to amend section 124 A of the Indian Penal Code .. .. .. .. .. .. 50
Remarks on the questions and replies in the last meeting of the Legislative Council .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Suggestions regarding the Marriageable Age Bill .. .. ib.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Commenting on the departure of Mr. Plowden for Calcutta.. 51
Departure of Mr. Plowden to Calcutta .. .. .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Impending famine in the Madras Presidency .. .. .. ib.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Comment on the resolution passed by the London Congress meeting .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A remark on a certain memorial of the mirasidars of Tanjore. 52
Unequal treatment of Europeans and Indians by the Plague officers in Bombay .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Plague officers .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The order for preventing seditious prints from reaching India. 53

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. | 600 | 1st Feb. 1898. |
| 2 | "Gnanodayam" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 1st ,, ,, |
| 3 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 29th Jan. and 5th Feb. 1898. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 29th ,, and 5th ,, ,, |
| 6 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st Feb. 1898. |
| 7 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 22nd and 29th Jan. and 5th and 12th Feb. 1898. |
| 8 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 24th and 31st ,, 1898. |
| 9 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 24th and 31st ,, and 7th Feb. 1898. |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 2nd Feb. 1898. |
| 11 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 100 | 22nd Jan. 1898. |
| 12 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 200 | 29th ,, and 5th Feb. 1898. |
| 13 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 500 | 8th, 16th and 24th Jan. and 1st Feb. 1898. |
| 14 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 30th Jan. 1898. |
| 15 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 29th ,, and 5th Feb. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 18th, 20th, 25th, 27th and 29th Jan. and 1st and 3rd Feb. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Sumanomanollasini" .. .. | Pethakellipalle (Kistna district.) | 500 | 15th Jan. 1898. |
| 18 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 4,000 | Jan. and Feb. 1898. |
| 19 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 422 | Feb. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 250 | 1st Feb. 1898. |
| 21 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 15th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 29th Jan. and 5th Feb. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 1st, 4th, 8th and 11th Feb. 1898. |
| 24 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 2nd, 5th, 9th and 12th ,, ,, |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 370 | 7th and 14th Feb. 1898. |
| 26 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 5th and 12th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 3rd and 10th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 2nd Feb. 1898. |
| 29 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 400 | 4th and 11th Feb. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 30 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 1st and 10th Feb. 1898 |
| 31 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 5th Feb. 1898. |
| 32 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 31st Jan. and 10th Feb. 1898. |
| 33 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 11th Feb. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 29th Jan. and 5th Feb. 1898. |
| 35 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 31st ,, 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 2nd Feb. ,, |
| 37 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 29th Jan. and 5th and 12th Feb. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 38 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 31st Jan. and 1st Feb. 1898. |
| 39 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 29th ,, and 5th ,, ,, |
| 40 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th Feb. 1898. |
| 41 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 3rd and 10th Feb. 1898. |
| 42 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 24th, 27th and 31st Jan. and 3rd Feb. 1898. |
| 43 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 22nd Oct. 1897. |
| 44 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | Not known. | 5th Feb. 1898. |
| 45 | "Ayin-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | Do. | Jan. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th February, says:—The war on the frontier is still dragging "its weary length along," and when it will be finished nobody can tell. It is a wretched piece of business from beginning to end. There was not the slightest reason why it should have been taken in hand, and the sooner it is closed the better will it be for all concerned, especially the tax-payers of this land. The best plan would be for the Government to draw a line and tell the tribes that they could not come to the south of this except as peaceful traders. If they crossed it with arms in their hands they would be looked upon as enemies and treated accordingly. This would be a simple plan and it would be very effectual. It is to guard against an enemy from the north—presumably Russia—that the fight on the frontier has been taken in hand. This is altogether a mistaken view of the case. Whoever enters the country of these men is looked upon as an enemy and is resisted as such. Now, were the Russians to enter the country where these men reside, they would be resisted just as they are now resisting the British, and consequently we do not see why the latter should invade the land beyond the border in order to hold it against an enemy when the tribes would do this for them. It is the same with Afghanistan. If the Russians were to enter the country, they would be looked upon as enemies and would be treated accordingly, so that all the fighting we have had with that country has been useless. The British Government gives the Amir a large subsidy in order to prevent him joining the Russians. This is money thrown away. He will be the friend of the rulers of this country so long as they let him alone, and he will be their enemy should they interfere with him. Should the Russians enter his country he would fight against them as long as he could. He would delay their passage to India, perhaps, for a considerable time, and thus would help the British whether he was in alliance with them or not. But something more might be done. The British might come to terms with the Russians. A Member of Parliament lately recommended this and he was quite right in saying that the time had come when the two nations should be drawn more closely together. There can be no doubt on this point. The two have many things in common; they have had to conquer large tracts of land and each nation has its own sphere of action. One has no occasion to interfere with the other, then why should they not be friends? There is what is called the Eastern question, that is, what is to become of the Turkish Empire. The best plan would be to allow Russia to do what she liked in that part of the world. Turkey will have to change her rulers before long, and it is thought by most people that Russia ought to take possession of it. It is the rightful heir to the country, and it would be well if the British Government were to allow this and tell Russia she might do what she liked. It is high time the suspicion one country has of the other should be put a stop to. It has done mischief enough in the past; it should not do any more in the future.

Suggestions regarding the war on the frontier and the diplomatic relations with the Amir and the Russians.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Feb. 7th, 1898.

2. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 3rd February, says that as the war on the frontier is about to be concluded, the Government ought to secure some advantages from it. The various tribes on the frontier should be effectually prevented from making raids in future on the peaceful inhabitants of the British territories. The Khyber Pass should be kept open for traffic between India and Afghanistan and the tribes prevented from attacking and plundering caravans carrying goods to and fro.

The frontier war and the points to be secured thereby.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Feb. 3rd, 1898.

3. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 3rd February, in connection with the present crisis in China, remarks that if England wishes to maintain her prestige and influence in China, she should occupy immediately a good position somewhere in the Crisis in China.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Feb. 3rd, 1898.

north beyond Hongkong, where she could establish herself. If England does not occupy another in Hongkong and if Germany establishes herself firmly in and around the southern branch of the Yangtsekiang and the Siberian railway, she will surely in the end occupy the whole of the Chinese Empire and thus destroy British interests in that land. In consideration of the above facts, it is expedient that England should form an alliance with Japan, and obtain possession of a port in the north of China.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Nilalochani, Negapatam, Jan. 24th, 1898.

Necessity on the part of the Negapatam police to enforce the resolution of that municipality regarding jutka traffic on the bazaar road.

4. The Nilalochani, of the 24th January, draws the attention of the Negapatam police to the resolution of the municipality forbidding jutka traffic on the Negapatam bazaar road which is very narrow and overcrowded, in view to avoid dangers to the people, and wishes the police to enforce as strictly as possible the said resolution which is set at defiance with impunity by some jutka-drivers who do not scruple to have recourse to rash driving in the bazaar road, which proves dangerous to the passers-by.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 27th, 1898.

Remarks on the Karunthattankudi murder case.

5. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th January, regrets to report that during the trial of the Karunthattankudi murder case certain Police officers of the district of Tanjore tried to show that the parties involved in it were not guilty, while certain others spared no pains to prove that the parties accused were guilty, and that in consequence of such a struggle on the part of the police the case of murder known to the villagers to be true fell through. The paper concludes with the remark that, if the authorities by way of reforming the police of Tanjore keep an eye on the suspected executive officers of the police, many an unscrupulous officer like the notorious Muthukrishna Naidu, of the Madras police, will be brought to the light of day.

Vijayathvajam, Dévakóttai, Feb. 1st, 1898.

Advisability of removing the forest known as the Sankarapothikadu lying on the Dévakóttai road.

6. The Vijayathvajam, of the 1st February, reports that robbers find a convenient abode in the Sankarapothikadu, a small forest lying between the fourth and fifth miles on the road leading from Dévakóttai to such places as Tiruputhur, Karaikudi, etc., and waylay and assault the travellers with impunity even in daylight, and alludes to a number of instances in which travellers were harassed by robbers at that place. The paper suggests to the authorities the desirability of removing the forest in question with the ruined building standing on the roadside and of opening a police station there, in view to avoid danger to the life and property of the poor travellers.

(b) Courts.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Jan. 29th, 1898.

Certain queries regarding the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi.

7. The Jananukulan, of the 29th January, by way of justifying the assertion that the authorities in the mofussil maltreat the editors of newspapers, describes at length what transpired between the editor of the Jananukulan and M.R.Ry. Kasivisvalingam Pillai, the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi, and the disgraceful manner in which he was summoned by him, and puts the following questions requesting Government to make the necessary inquiry in view to protect the ryots and dignity of the editors of newspapers:—

(1) Is it lawful on the part of the sub-magistrate to threaten us by sending summons, while there is no charge framed against us?

(2) Is there any regulation empowering the sub-magistrate to get his summons served by means of a jail warder and a menial servant of his office?

(3) Is the sub-magistrate justified in subjecting us to indignity, hardship and anxiety by having us dragged into the court when no case is made out against us?

(4) Is the sub-magistrate empowered to make us depose on oath in the absence of any charge against us?

(5) Is the sub-magistrate authorised to question us as to how we came to know a particular information published in our paper, to ask us if we could give out the names of the parties concerned, and to ascertain from us the amount of property we own?

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 12th, 1898.

Gunner Piper's case.

8. The Andhraprakasika, of the 12th February, adversely criticises the acquittal of Gunner Piper by the Bombay High Court on a charge of murder of a native at a place near Poona. The evidence makes it plain, says the paper, that Piper killed the deceased, and in the soldier's camp Piper himself admitted the fact of his having fired at the man. Mr. Lang, the Advocate-General, gave it out that the account given by Clark, one of the witnesses for the defence, was altogether untrustworthy. But eight of the jurors being Europeans the jury could not, remarks the paper, find him guilty of even culpable homicide or grievous hurt. It is surprised to see that the Anglo-Indian journalists did not even mention that there had been a miscarriage of justice in the case, whereas, if a native should happen to kill a European, they would be ready to describe the act as an extraordinary and horrible crime and discover sedition and conspiracy at the bottom. It adds that this is the way in which justice is being administered in India by the British.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Feb. 2nd, 1898.

Sub-magistrates in Malabar.

9. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd February, has a leader referring to the deterioration of the subordinate magistracy in Malabar. It says that the powers vested in a sub-magistrate are very great, but the pay given to them is quite disproportionate to their responsibilities From the correspondence received by us every week about the conduct of these sub-magistrates and from our own experience of them, it could be said that they are not only unworthy to hold such posts but also to draw even this low pay. All the sub-magistrates in that district, with the exception of a few, are represented as given to taking bribes. They are not punctual in attending office. Sometimes some of the magistrates come to office at 12 o'clock, sometimes at 11 and sometimes at 2; and owing to this unpunctuality parties to cases who belong to different professions and who are summoned to appear before the court at 10 o'clock have to wait in the cutcherry until such time as the magistrate is pleased to come to office and call them, and they are consequently put to great trouble and loss. Some of the sub-magistrates in North Malabar are more to be blamed in this respect than those in South Malabar.

KERALA PATRIKA Calicut, Feb. 12th, 1898.

Commenting upon the acquittal of William Edward Piper who murdered an Indian villager.

10. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th February, in commenting upon the acquittal by the Bombay High Court of William Edward Piper who had been charged with the murder of one Arjuna Tulasi Ram, of Maund village, in the district of Poona, says:—The jury in the case were composed of eight Europeans and one Indian. The defence of the prisoner was that in the affray between the villagers and the Europeans the death was caused by an accidental shot. It is very astonishing when we consider that in the matter of murder of natives by Englishmen the murder is always due to accidents, and the jury who are generally the countrymen of the prisoner believe his statements and return a favourable verdict; and it is much more astonishing that the justice of the British Government is not equally extended to all human beings. The High Court that sits to administer justice cannot do anything contrary to the verdict of the jury; and therefore the only means of remedying this evil is not to allow the Englishmen the use of guns which cause accidents too often. If the Government is not prepared at least to do this, the best thing to be done is to throw into fire all the existing codes and regulations. Oh! the life of a native has become a thing of no value. What a pity!

(d) Education.

PARIYAN, Madras, Jan. 22nd, 1898.

11. The Pariyan, of the 22nd January, writes as follows:—

Expediency of adopting measures to ameliorate the condition of the Parayahs.

It is to be regretted that several proposals were made to Government in vain by the missionaries and by Dr. Duncan, the Director of Public Instruction, for imparting primary education to the Parayahs. Government, on the other hand, has been good enough to open many schools and a special inspecting agent for the benefit of the Moplas who are a rude and riotous class of Muhammadans living in Malabar and who do not scruple to assault the people as well as the officials. This procedure of Government seems to teach that the Parayahs also should misbehave like the rude Moplas if they wish to have their grievances redressed. It is not at all impossible for the Parayahs to behave like the Moplas as their population is sufficiently large and as they are not wanting in heroism and prowess; but they have always been a peace-loving, obedient and loyal class of people and will not stoop to have recourse to misdemeanors like the Moplas. All that the Parayahs require is primary education. It is therefore earnestly hoped that our benign Government will be good enough to attend to the wants of this backward class of people and take steps for their amelioration without losing sight of the fact that they form as it were the backbone of Southern India.

(e) Local and Municipal.

INDIA MITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 22nd, 1898.

12. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 22nd January, complaining of the wretched condition of the narrow road leading from Lalgudi to Trichinopoly which is merely spread with pieces of granite or other black stones, and of the inexpressible difficulties experienced by passengers in consequence, hopes that the Local Fund authorities will soon adopt measures to improve its condition.

Wretched condition of the road leading from Lalgudi to Trichinopoly.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Feb. 2nd, 1898.

13. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 2nd February, reports that a sort of disease popularly known as "Ooppumari," which in many cases proves fatal, has been raging in the village of Tirupakkam since last August, and that during the last two months nearly sixty men fell victims to it, and regrets to note that the authorities have taken no steps whatever to give the poor sufferers the necessary medical aid. He thinks it absolutely necessary that a hospital should be opened in the village ere long and that the local sanitation should be considerably improved.

Necessity for a hospital in Tirupakkam in Vriddhachalam taluk.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 29th, 1898.

14. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 29th January, complains of the coercive measures so freely employed by the Tellicherry municipality in the matter of collecting taxes. It appears that if the rate-payers do not pay the revenue within fifteen days after the receipt of the bill, warrants are issued and brass utensils, etc., are taken away from the houses of the defaulters and sold; and, consequently, they are put to heavy loss. The article therefore invites the attention of the chairman to the necessity of showing a certain amount of discretion and leniency in collecting taxes which have in various ways become too heavy for the rate-payers to pay easily.

Disapproving of the coercive measures employed by the Tellicherry municipality in the matter of collecting taxes.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 5th, 1898.

15. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th February, regrets to observe that the Calicut municipal council has not up to this time taken steps to give effect to the order granting elective franchise to the municipality, though the order was issued as soon as His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock assumed the reins of Government of this Presidency. It was due to the indolence and indifference of the councillors in the matter of the municipal administration that the privilege of election which the municipality once enjoyed was withdrawn, and their present action clearly shows that no improvement has taken place in their attitude. The article therefore exhorts the rate-payers to convene a meeting and question the council about the delay in the matter.

Calicut municipal franchise.

16. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th February, while noticing with pleasure the precautionary measures adopted by the Calicut municipality to prevent the plague spreading to those parts, says that as some of the inspectors appointed by the council to conduct plague examinations are illiterate men who cannot realise the responsibilities of the work, they should be dispensed with and a few educated hands on high salaries appointed rather than maintaining a large number on low pay. It further suggests that as the hospital assistant and the inspectors who have been employed on plague duty do not know Hindustani, a knowledge of which is absolutely necessary to examine the crews who generally know no other language than Hindustani and who are employed on board the vessels arriving from foreign ports, one more hospital assistant who knows Hindustani should be appointed, and that at least half the number of inspectors should be Hindustani-knowing men.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 12th, 1898.

Plague operations in the Calicut municipality.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

17. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th January, observes:—

The long stay of a tahsildar in one and the same taluk is productive of a good deal of mischief. The reason why Government often transfers a district munsif from place to place is that his close acquaintance with the inhabitants of a particular place is likely to interfere with the conscientious discharge of his duty. This principle will apply to a tahsildar with greater force for the following reasons:—

Tahsildars as a rule have to deal with less number of people than district munsifs in the discharge of their official duties, the former being generally in charge of one taluk only and the latter two or three taluks. District munsifs are generally persons of high educational qualifications, whereas even persons who were once taluk gumastahs, whose tone of morality is known to be any thing but satisfactory, are appointed tahsildars. (All honour to those officials who are straightforward in the discharge of their duty.) A district munsif to whom judicial work alone is allotted has not so many occasions to come in close contact with the people as a tahsildar whose duties are varied—such as recovery of kist, grant of loan, remission and dharkast to cultivators, imposition of income-tax and abkári duties and so forth. It is therefore impossible for a tahsildar to withstand the temptation of being partial, unless he has a high tone of moral character. It is a matter of fact that some tahsildars apparently owing to their close acquaintance with some of the local inhabitants do not scruple to favour one party against the interests of another, although they profess to maintain an attitude of neutrality when municipal, devastanam and other elections take place in their taluks. Such are the evils arising from allowing a tahsildar to continue in one and the same place for a considerable length of time. The evils are à fortiori greater when a native of a taluk is appointed tahsildar of that taluk. It is nothing but the misfortune of the people that has not opened the eyes of Government to this most disagreeable state of things. It is therefore earnestly hoped that Government will take these circumstances into its serious consideration and adopt measures for transferring tahsildars once in three years as it does in the case of district munsifs.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 25th, 1898.

Desirability of transferring tahsildars from place to place once in three years.

18. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st February, invites the attention of the authorities to the iniquitous practice of the village officials of a certain amsam near Cannanore granting receipts for assessment paid by ryots for punam cultivation in a piece of paper written in pencil, though the rule is that such receipts should be written in ink and given in printed forms prescribed for the purpose.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 1st, 1898.

Irregularities of certain village officials in granting receipts for the payment of revenue.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Feb. 2nd, 1898.

19. A correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd February, brings to the notice of the Collector of Malabar the fact that the tahsildar of Kóttayam taluk in Malabar has collected the cess for the amsam service fund at 8 pies per rupee for the two kists of fasli 1307 in spite of the instructions contained in the G.O. of June 1897 to the effect that only 7 pies per rupee should be collected towards the above fund in future. The correspondent adds that as this collection might have been made by the tahsildar from his ignorance of the above Government order, it ought to be returned to the payers either from the Government treasury or from the pocket of the tahsildar.

Tahsildar of Kóttayam taluk collecting amsam service fund at excess rate.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 18th, 1898.

20. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th January, requests the authorities to construct bridges over the Vatha and Karunai rivers which run to the north and south of Alwarkurichi, as their absence proves to be a serious impediment to traffic, and subjects the people to great inconvenience specially when those rivers overflow with freshes.

Necessity for bridges over certain rivers near Alwarkurichi.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Feb. 1st, 1898.

21. The Kalanidhi, of the 1st February, writes in English as follows:—"Our poor cultivators who suffer for want of water will be glad to hear that our good Collector Mr. A. Butterworth with Mr. Stokes and the Engineer went and visited the locality of our Muthikolam water-project. * * * * * This Muthikolam water-project was recommended not only by the best Engineers such as Messrs. Fraser, Montgomerie, Drake-Brockman, Larminie, Lewis, Hannan, deWinton, etc., but also by some of our good Collectors Messrs. E. B. Thomas, Grant, J. Thomas, J. Sturrock, J. Tremenheere and H. Bradley. We hope our good Collector Mr. Butterworth will also strongly recommend to Government the benevolent task of undertaking the work at an early date to the relief of the suffering subjects."

Desirability of carrying out ere long the Muthikolam water-project.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 2nd, 1898.

22. The Andhraprakasika, of the 2nd February, referring to the letter of Mr. C. Benson, the Deputy Director of Agriculture, Madras, to the London Times, in which he stated that the construction of anicuts and canals in respect of all streams, large and small, would prevent the occurrence of famines in India, remarks that it is certainly true.

Water-canals.

(k) General.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Jan. 24th, 1898.

23. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 24th January, writes as follows:—The extra departmental agents who attend to postal work in addition to their other callings labour under many disadvantages. They are given a poor allowance ranging from Rs. 2–8–0 to Rs. 5, out of which they must pay house-rent and other expenses incidental to their postal work; their services are not recognised nor can they hope to rise in the Postal department; they are obliged to work from 6 A.M. to 6 P.M. for the inadequate allowance granted to them; what is worse is that they have not the privilege of appealing to higher authorities when their services are dispensed with for any the slightest neglect of duty, whereas the condition of the departmental officers who attend exclusively to the postal work is by far agreeable, although in point of work there is little or no difference between these two classes of officers. It is therefore hoped that the authorities will be good enough to do away with the allowance system altogether and give the extra departmental agents a pay.

Desirability of giving the extra departmental agents of the Postal department a pay of not less than Rs. 7 per mensem and of granting them other privileges.

of not less than Rs. 7 per mensem with house allowance and other privileges in consideration of their responsible postal duties which are in no way less onerous than those of the departmental officers.

Remarks on the Advocate-Generalship of Madras.

24. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th January, reporting that the Secretary of State for India and His Excellency the Governor-General have appointed Mr. Arnold White as the Advocate-General of Madras, writes as follows :— SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 25th, 1898.

There can be no two opinions in regard to the Hon'ble Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar's superior knowledge of law. The fact that the Secretary of State and His Excellency the Governor-General were not disposed to appoint Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar as the Advocate-General for the sin of his having a black skin in spite of the circumstance that His Excellency Lord Havelock was pleased to confer the appointment on him in conformity with the promise made by Her Majesty in the Proclamation—that appointments would be conferred on competent men irrespective of all differences of creed or colour—has been the cause of no small dissatisfaction to the native community. It is rarely, if ever, that we get kind and sympathetic officers willing to do us the good they can; it is to be regretted that their higher authorities thwart their designs and are stumbling-blocks in their way. It is earnestly hoped that His Excellency Lord Havelock will not be disheartened at the procedure of the Secretary of State for India and of the Viceroy in the appointment of the Advocate-General of Madras; for the people of this Presidency will always eulogise His Excellency Lord Havelock whether what he wished to do in the past or what he proposes to do in the future proves to be an accomplished fact or not. Well-meaning Governors do not stand in need of any other reward than the encomiums of their subjects.

A suggestion to Government in regard to famine.

25. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 31st January, attributes the occurrence of famine in India to two causes, namely, the "exhausting agriculture" and the "increasing population." The paper regrets to remark that the poor ryots are not able to supply their fields with sufficient manure as they have no money left to enable them to purchase articles of manure after meeting the Circar's dues and their necessaries of life, and that famine does not therefore disappear from this country in spite of the several measures which Government has adopted, such as opening railways and affording irrigational facilities, and suggests to Government the desirability of converting fertile forest lands into arable fields apparently to enable the cultivators to carry on their agricultural operations with greater facility. SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Jan. 31st, 1898.

A suggestion about tahsildars.

26. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th January, thinks it desirable that tahsildars should be transferred from district to district and that their nomination should be in the hands of the Board of Revenue and not in those of the Collector, even as the appointment of police inspectors and district munsifs are in the hands of the Inspector-General of Police and the High Court, respectively. The paper concludes with the remark that the carrying out of this proposal will prevent useless and inefficient men from being appointed as tahsildars, and will enable deserving men to rise higher in the Revenue department, and that Collectors need not be afraid that they are likely to lose their control over the tahsildars, in consideration of the fact that Deputy Collectors are subject to the authority of the Collectors in spite of their being appointed by Government. SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 27th, 1898.

British administration in India.

27. The Sasilekha, of the 1st February, remarks that the cost of governing India is so great, because the British are of opinion that they have conquered the country by force of arms and that the natives are not trustworthy. It deeply regrets that Government should entertain such an idea, and says that the Indians should clamour for equal rights with the British and that the spirit of Her Majesty's Proclamation of 1858 should be SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 1st, 1898.

given effect to. It adds a prayer that the Arms Act should be repealed, that natives should be admitted into the volunteer corps, and that military schools should be established in India to train the natives for holding responsible posts in the army.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 8th, 1898.

The administration of His Excellency Lord Elgin.

28. The Sasilekha, of the 8th February, observes that His Excellency Lord Elgin belongs to the Liberal party in England, which has been fighting for various privileges for Ireland, and that his appointment as Governor-General of India was hailed with joy by the people. But contrary to expectations His Excellency has failed to do good to the people though the rate of exchange has risen and Government effected a large saving. He allowed himself to be guided by the advice of the Military officers and plunged the country into a disastrous and expensive war with the frontier tribes. He was therefore unable to carry out even a single measure calculated to benefit the country. Instead of feeling pity for the condition of the people suffering from the effects of war, famine and pestilence, His Excellency suspected their loyalty and attempted to pass unjust and retrograde laws. His Excellency failed to sympathise with the people in their manifold sufferings, but patiently lent his ears to those who aimed at reducing the natives to the condition of slaves. If the Viceroy at present had been a Ripon, a Mayo, or a Lawrence, there would have been no wars, and the famine and the plague would have been nipped in the bud and he would have exercised his own independent judgment. But His Excellency Lord Elgin was guided by the Secretary of State on "four (?) occasions" and he committed great blunders. Instead of ascertaining the causes of the famine and trying to remedy the evil, he has appointed a Famine Commission to amend the Famine Code. He failed to prescribe what proportion of income each province had to pay to the Imperial Government. In fact, there is not a single item of good that he has done to the people. It, therefore, prays that during the short time that he holds the destinies of the country in his hands, he will throw up the Sedition Law Amendment Bills, set the Nattu brothers at liberty, release the poor Tilak from jail, bring peace and satisfaction to the people's hearts and establish his name for ever in India.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 14th, 1898.

The financial position of India.

29. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 14th February, wonders how the English Ministry has come to the conclusion that India will have a surplus this year and that, therefore, there is no necessity for England to come to the rescue of the Indian treasury. It further remarks that Queen's speech at the opening of the Parliament announces that the famine in India is at an end, but this is so far from being the case that we are at the commencement of another and a more terrible one in some parts. The plague also is threatening to spread over the whole of India, and the frontier war and the attempt to modify the law of sedition contribute to make India a most unhappy country.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 29th, 1898.

Disapproving of the appointment of Mr. Arnold White as the Advocate-General of Madras.

30. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 29th January, referring to the appointment of Mr. Arnold White as the Advocate-General of Madras, says that when the legal attainments of Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar, the Officiating Advocate-General, have been admitted on all hands and the Secretary of State himself has said that there is nothing in the statutes which prohibits a vakil holding the office of Advocate-General, will the natives of India consider that the cause of this new appointment is anything other than the difference in colour. Although the new appointment will be regarded with satisfaction among the Barristers, yet there are no two opinions as to the injustice of such a step. The inference from this is that the administration of India is virtually conducted by the Secretary of State who knows nothing about the country and the Governor-General and the Governors have no power to act independently.

Alluding to the same subject, a leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st February, disapproves of the appointment, and says that either Mr. Bashyam

Aiyangar ought to have been confirmed in his appointment or some experienced and able Barristers practising in India, such as Mr. Norton, ought to have been selected for the office rather than its being conferred on a comparatively young Barrister who has no Indian experience.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Jan. 31st, 1898.

Commenting on the fatal accident that recently occurred in Messrs. Wrenn, Bennett's firm, Madras.

31. Referring to the fatal accident that recently occurred to a native peon in the firm of Messrs. Wrenn, Bennett & Co. in consequence of the explosion of a loaded revolver while Mr. Dean of the firm was inspecting it, the Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 31st January, says Europeans and East Indians care very little for the lives of the natives. Most who have from time to time killed natives have either been let off scot-free or with slight punishment by the Judicial authorities. The editor does not understand why revolvers for sale should be kept loaded, and why Mr. Dean knowing the fact should close the breach forcibly without ordering the peon to get out of the way. The editor observes that the Shams has often said that such acts on the part of Europeans, Eurasians and East Indians tend to create disaffection in the minds of the natives against the authorities, and to keep them back from aiding the authorities while they are involved in difficulties.

The use of false weights and measures in Madras.

32. The same paper complains that merchants, grocers and butchers in the city of Madras deceive people by using false weights and measures, attributes the fault to the negligence and indifference of responsible authorities, and requests Government to remove this evil by the appointment of honest and trustworthy officials in this behalf.

III.—Legislation.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 18th, 1898.

Remarks on the Act under contemplation for the registration of births and deaths in villages.

33. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th January, referring to the proposal now under contemplation to pass an Act regarding the registration of births and deaths in villages, observes as follows:—

It is highly desirable that Government before passing such an Act should consult such of its subjects and subordinate officials as possess considerable experience in local matters. Diwan Bahadur Venkasami Rao, a retired official of vast experience, is of opinion that the contemplated Act is unnecessary, inasmuch as the ceremonies which are usually observed in connection with births and deaths in villages give sufficient publicity to their occurrence and cannot fail to draw the attention of the village officers who may make the necessary entries in their registers kept for the purpose, that it is therefore vexatious to pass an Act making it obligatory on the part of the villagers to go to the village officers and get births and deaths registered in view to avoid criminal prosecution, and that if at all any regulation is deemed necessary on the subject at present, it should be to compel the village officers to attend to the vital statistics of their villages with due care.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 29th, 1898.

Remarks on the Madras Marriage Bill.

34. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th January, referring to the Marriageable Age Limit Bill, observes that the proposed measure is discordant to the feelings of the orthodox Brahmins who are in the habit of celebrating marriages only among the members of their own families in spite of such a small difference as six months in the age of the couple, as the contemplated Act requires at least a difference of six years between the bride and the bridegroom, and who will be driven to the necessity of negotiating marriages between persons of different sections of the Brahmin community—a state of things agreeable to social reformers at any rate.

Vijayathvajam, Devakóttai, Feb. 1st, 1898.

Comments on the Madras Marriage Bill.

35. The Vijayathvajam, of the 1st February, referring to the Marriageable Age Limit Bill now before the Legislative Council, observes as follows:—The Bill prohibits the marriage of girls below the age of ten and that of boys below sixteen. In India girls attain puberty even when they are of eleven years of age. According to the sastras, a Brahmin girl cannot be married at all if she attains puberty; hence the sastras permit the celebration of marriage from her seventh year. If the author of the Bill wishes to have a law on the subject, he will do well to propose that the seventh and not the tenth year shall be the marriageable age of a girl, so that he will be acting in conformity with the Hindu sastras. As marriages among the Hindus are inseparably associated with solemn religious ceremonies, it is not desirable that we should induce Government to interfere in such social and religious matters. To a Hindu his religion is more important than his life. The proposer of the Bill in question may as well devote his attention to many other things of greater importance, such as our temples and mutts, the reformation of which would undoubtedly render his name memorable.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 3rd, 1898.

Observations on the Madras Marriage Bill.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd February, referring to the two Bills now before the Legislative Council regarding Hindu marriages, observes as follows:—

It is high time for us to put a stop to the odious practice of celebrating infant marriages as it is productive of considerable mischief and mars the well-being of Hindu societies. Two objections are raised in connection with the Bills in question. The first objection is that Government ought not to interfere in such social and religious matters as Hindu marriages. The second objection is that non-Brahmins like Mudaliars and Pillais should not deal with the subject of infant marriages which are exclusively observed by Brahmins. The first objection is altogether untenable. Do not our people elect members to the Legislative Council and are they not our representatives entitled to legislate for us? Is it not for the purpose of passing such regulations as we stand in need of that we ask for the reformation of the Legislative Council and for the addition of twelve more non-official members? Did not in ancient times our rulers frame laws and regulations with the help of the leading men of the country. Does it stand to reason to say that a foreign Government should not frame laws and regulations in connection with our social and religious matters? Has not the English Government abolished the custom of Sati by legislation? Have not the Widow Marriage Act and the Age of Consent Act been passed by the English Government? Why should people grumble when Government tries to pass an Act which is highly beneficial to us, after obtaining the consent and co-operation of our countrymen? With respect to the second objection, it may be said that Manu, Vyasa, Vithura Maharishi and Parasurama, who were the legislators of our country in times of yore, were not Brahmins, and yet their enactments are being observed by the Hindu community as a whole. Is it just and proper to get a female child still nursed at her mother's breast married and to leave her in deplorable widowhood throughout her life? Manu would not have approved of such a state of things. There can be no doubt that our forefathers would not have framed such unreasonable laws. Even granting that such laws were introduced in ancient times perhaps to meet the exigencies of those days, nothing can prevent us from getting such laws amended so as to suit our present circumstances. It is therefore highly desirable that our people should work in harmony to get the present Bill passed into an Act in view to eradicate the most disagreeable custom of getting babies married.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Feb. 5th, 1898.

Reflections on the Madras Marriage Bill.

37. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 5th February, after briefly stating the salient points of difference between the Bill of the Hon'ble Mr. Ratnasabhabati Pillai and that of the Hon'ble Mr. Jambulingam Mudaliyar, observes as follows:—

The Bill in question has the advantage of putting a stop to the ridiculous marriage of sucklings with old men, of preventing the increase of widows in the Hindu community, of avoiding the evils of childbirth at too tender an age, and of checking the overgrowth of population and the frequent occurrence of famine in the long run. The disadvantages of the Bill should not be ignored. The Bill is likely to be disagreeable to the Muhammadans who are in the habit of getting their girls married as soon as they attain puberty irrespective of their age. The Bill is most unpalatable to the Brahmins who are bound by the Smrithis to get their daughters married before they are of six or seven years of age, and to the Comutties, the Cummalars (goldsmiths) and other people who must get their girls married before they attain puberty. Another great disadvantage consequent on the passing of the Bill into an Act would be to drive the parents to the painful necessity of taking their daughters to doctors for medical examination whenever disputes arise regarding their age.

38. The Andhraprakasika, of the 2nd February, comments on the proceedings of the meeting of the Madras Legislative Council held on the 1st February thus:— Judging from the nature of the questions put and answers given at this meeting, we believe that there is great room for improvement on both sides. The honourable members intending to interpellate the Government will do well to glean all the possible information concerning their questions from the gazette and other Government records, so as to avoid the necessity of the Government referring the members to those papers in their answers. On the other hand, the Government and its officers would also do well to take the people into their confidence and give more detailed and satisfactory answers, instead of saying "Yes," "No," or "The Government has no information." The two nominees of the Government have naturally kept silent in all the meetings of the council. As the Government promised to call for information from the Collector of Anantapur regarding the Deputy Collector of the place, we hope to hear more about the matter at the next council meeting. The reply to the question regarding the appointment of qualified natives as probationary Local Fund Engineers is not satisfactory. The questions asked by the Hon'ble Mr. C. Jambulingam Mudaliyar regarding remissions and Annangi project are very useful. So are the similar questions of a similar nature relating to lands by the Hon'ble Mr. N. Subba Rao Pantulu. It is surprising that the Tenancy Bill—a very important one—is not yet ready for discussion in the council. We fear that unless His Excellency the Governor sends an urgent reminder to the Government of India, which by-the-bye is always indifferent about the country south of the Vindhya range, the order may not be received before the next council meeting.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 2nd, 1898.

The Legislative Council.

39. The Sasilekha, of the 8th February, referring to a communication addressed to the Government of India, in accordance with a resolution passed at a meeting held in Kistnankoil, Muthyalpet, protesting against the Marriageable Age Limit Bills of the Hon'ble Messrs. C. Jambulingam Mudaliyar and Ratnasabhabati Pillai, expresses its surprise at the objections being based on Shastras by the very people that habitually violate those Shastras every minute of their lives and is glad that there were others who approved of the measures. It remarks that the Bills are the outcome of a real desire on the part of the enlightened gentlemen to put down evil practices, and prays that Government will attach much weight to the advice of the Honourable Members in the Legislative Council.

SASILEKHA, Madras. Feb. 8th, 1898.

Marriageable Age Limit Bills.

40. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th February, speaking of the Bills brought forward by Hon'ble Messrs. Jambulingam Mudaliyar and Ratnasabhabati Pillai, says that the object of the Act which is now in force in Mysore is defeated by people performing infant marriages out of the province. The paper thinks that unless such marriages are declared null and void people will find means to evade the penalty sought to be imposed by the Bills; and sees no reason why marriages, which are performed against the sastras, such as infant marriages are, should not be considered void by the legislature.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 7th, 1898.

The Infant Marriage Prevention Bills.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Feb. 5th, 1898.

The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 5th February, remarks that neither of the Bills goes far enough to prevent the evils of infant marriages, while the provisions of section 5 of the Hon'ble Mr. Jambulingam Mudaliyar's Bill allowing a girl to be married after six years under special circumstances will defeat the whole object of the law, because it would be always easy to find some plausible excuse or other for the celebration of marriages of infants.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 29th, 1898.

Comments on the Bill to amend section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code.

41. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 29th January, referring to the meeting recently held at Madras under the auspices of the Madras Mahajana Sabha to adopt a memorial protesting against the Bill to amend section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code, says that the Bill should be dropped as it would be ruinous to the liberty of speech and liberty of the press in this country. It is only the freedom which the people enjoy under this Government, the confidence that the Government will not go counter to the wishes of the people, and the hope that they will in course of time receive still greater freedom that make people entertain a great fear and affection for Government; and the operation of such laws and the effect produced thereby will shake the confidence which has become deep-rooted in their minds. As the confidence becomes more and more shaken, the affection between the rulers and the ruled will gradually become strained. Then there will be no happiness in the country. Although the offence of sedition may be tried by a jury, yet there is no provision in the Bill that it should be done so. The opinion of the Hon'ble Mr. Chalmers who introduced the Bill is that the Indian law of sedition is only made to correspond with the English law. In England an offence under this law is tried by a jury, half of which should be composed of the countrymen of the prisoner. But the Tilak case clearly shows that in this country there is no such provision as to the constitution of the jury. In the absence of such a provision in the Bill, how can it be said that it corresponds to the English law? If the Government wishes to introduce into this country a law which is strictly impartial, it is absolutely necessary that it should be framed on the lines suggested in the memorial of the Mahajana Sabha.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 5th, 1898.

Remarks on the questions and replies in the last meeting of the Legislative Council.

42. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th February, commenting upon the questions asked by the non-official members in the last meeting of the local Legislative Council and the replies of Government thereto, says, among other matters, that the reply of Government to the question put by the Hon'ble Mr. Ratnasabhabati Pillai regarding the exportation of bone manure from India is not a reasonable one. If, as the honourable member suggested, an export duty is levied on this excellent manure, it may in all probability be utilised in this country, and, in case it is exported, the Government will have another source of income also.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 10th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding the Marriageable Age Bill.

43. The Kerala Chandrika, of the 10th February, publishes the substance of the Marriageable Age Bill framed by the Hon'ble Mr. Jambulingam Mudaliyar to be introduced in the Madras Legislative Council, and hopes that as such a measure is highly desirable and beneficial, the Government of India will accord its sanction for the introduction of the Bill in the council. The opinion is expressed that the marriageable age of girls should be fixed as nine or ten instead of eight in the Bill. Then the number of infant widows will be still further reduced. It is also necessary to make a provision in the Bill prohibiting the marriage of men of fifty or sixty years of age with infant girls, as the evils resulting from such unions are very great. As it is provided in the Bill that if the marriages solemnised contrary to the provisions of the Bill do not come within the knowledge of the authorities till after the expiry of two years, no penalty will be imposed though the offence is punishable under the law. To guard against such a contingency the paper suggests the insertion of a clause in the Bill to the effect that the parties contracting marriages should give notice of the particulars of such marriages to the village or other authorities. It should also be provided that any dispute regarding the age of girls should be settled by a jury.

IV.—Native States.

44. Referring to the departure of Mr. Plowden for Calcutta, the Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 3rd February, thinks that the Resident has probably been called by the Government of India to submit an explanation regarding the allegations made in Sirwar Jang's letter, and says if what is believed is correct, the steps taken for ascertaining the veracity or otherwise of the allegations made are quite inadequate. The editor proceeds to observe that the alleged friction between the Nizam and the Minister is due to the fact that the Minister, who has been appointed against the will and pleasure of the Nizam, disobeys His Highness and still keeps his position under the protection of the British Resident since the power of appointment and dismissal of such officers, vested in the Nizam, is restricted. If the Government of India considers the Nizam to be responsible for the affairs of his State, His Highness' powers in this respect should not be placed under any restriction. The editor also mentions that it is said that the Nizam has asked for a change of Ministers and for the appointment of Sir Asman Jah, and that the Government of India has recommended two Hindus and one Muhammadan. In disapproving of the appointment of any Hindu to the posts the editor remarks that such an appointment would tend to create general disaffection, as foreign Hindus unacquainted with the language of the State and the customs and habits of the people cannot satisfactorily discharge their onerous functions. Hence the editor says the re-appointment of Sir Asman Jah as Minister would be approved by the Hyderabad public.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Feb. 3rd, 1898.

Commenting on the departure of Mr. Plowden for Calcutta.

45. Referring to the statement of the Hyderabad Chronicle to the effect that the Resident will succeed in getting certain political questions decided in his favour at Calcutta by his eloquence, the Mulk-o-Millat, of the 5th February, says it is foolish to think that Lord Elgin, in whose charge the disposal of the fate of 25 crores of the people of India has been given on account of his vast experience and superior qualifications, will yield to the eloquence of Mr. Plowden. The Nizam is not at all displeased with the Resident, as is alleged, or his term of office would never have been extended. Referring to the attacks made on the present Minister, the editor thinks the attacks are baseless, and observes that during the present ministry much useful work has been performed and many intricate questions have been solved as, for instance, the Gódávari question and the Yusufuddien case.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Feb. 5th, 1898.

Departure of Mr. Plowden to Calcutta.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

46. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 14th February, says that the present year threatens to be worse than the past one in the matter of scarcity in some of the districts in Southern India, and hopes that His Excellency the Governor will, in his present tour, make arrangements for opening relief works in those districts.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Feb. 14th, 1898.

Impending famine in the Madras Presidency.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th January, reporting that the London Congress has passed a resolution to the effect that the English Government is the cause of the frequent outbreak of famine and pestilence in India, of the unjust frontier war in the Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 18th, 1898.

Comment on the resolution passed by the London Congress meeting.

North-West, of the iniquitous punishment of the editors of newspapers in Bombay, of the strenuous efforts on the part of the Government of India to gag the patriots of this country who have received the benefit of higher education, of the detention of Nattu brothers in jail without trial, and of every other hardship the people of this country are now smarting under, observes that it is not at all just and proper to condemn the English Government even for the misfortunes which are due more or less to natural causes and to utter ignorance on the part of the masses of the physical laws that govern the world, although Government may be said to be, to no small extent, the cause of the poverty of the people who cannot prosper owing to the heavy taxation they groan under. The paper concludes with the remark that it is not the characteristics of the English Government to rule over a country by threats and severe regulations which is the prominent feature of the barbarous Muhammadan Government, and that it does not become the English Government to begin to govern us in a manner different from the one which it was hitherto adopting, and exhorts the people to represent to Government their grievances in a respectful language.

PARIYAN, Madras, Feb. 5th, 1898.

A remark on a certain memorial of the mirasidars of Tanjore.

48. The Pariyan, of the 5th February, referring to the memorial of the mirasidars of Tanjore requesting Government to adopt measures for preventing the emigration of the Pariyahs from the district of Tanjore, on the ground that it tends to enhance the price of labour in the district and entails on the mirasidars less of the money they advance to the Pariyah labourers, advises Government not to pay heed to the grievances of the memorialists as the emigration complained of is resorted to by the Pariyahs in consequence of the severe and improper treatment accorded to them by the mirasidars who do not feel it a duty incumbent on them to maintain their Pariyah labourers when the latter have no other sources of livelihood. The paper concludes with the remark that the mirasidars out of mere selfishness obstruct the amelioration of the Pariyahs as a class, and that, if Government should pass a regulation on the subject as solicited by the memorialists, it would simply revive in Southern India the slave trade suppressed in the year 1814.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 7th, 1898.

Unequal treatment of Europeans and Indians by the Plague officers in Bombay.

49. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th February, has the following paragraph:—Lately a remarkable case is reported to have occurred in Bombay. Mr. Justice Budrudin Tyabji and one of his European subordinates were the other day travelling by rail. Both of them had come from Matheran armed with some certificates and passports. But while Mr. Justice Tyabji was detained for inspection, his European subordinate with native servants was allowed to pass without detention.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 29th, 1898.

Plague officers.

50. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 29th January, is of opinion that although the authorities have adopted proper measures for preventing the spread of plague in this country, yet they do not see whether the persons appointed to conduct plague examinations properly perform their functions. It is an open secret that some persons have made it their duty to levy blackmail from people coming by railway, while some others waiting in some places take advantage of this opportunity and dupe poor and innocent travellers. The article cites a recent instance in which a certain Mappilla pretending to be a plague officer stopped the carriage of a patient near Satram in Calicut who was being taken from North Malabar by two Mappillas for the treatment of Dr. Kurup, and feeling the pulse said that the patient would be allowed to go only after being detained in the hospital for ten days; but he afterwards let him off on receiving six annas. The carriage-driver says that he could identify the Mappilla. Under the circumstances, the authorities ought to trace the Mappilla out and teach him a lesson so that similar things may not recur.

51. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan of the 10th February. The Hindustani (place of publication not known) mentions that the Postal authorities in India have been authorised to print such prints as they may consider seditious from being sent by post, and observes that there are some interested persons in the Postal department who will never shrink from unjustly sacrificing the interests of the people of India for the sake of Government favours. Hence it is inadmissible that they should be entrusted with such powers.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Feb. 10th, 1898.

The order for preventing seditious prints from reaching India.

The Hindustani further mentions that the Home Government has also authorised the Canadian Postal department to prevent seditious papers from being sent to India on the suspicion that the society formed in Canada for the purpose of holding political communication with America has also opened communication with the natives of India. The Hindustani anent the above rumour says it is absurd to think that any man in India can desire to have any connection with the Canadians.

Issued 23rd February 1898.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 4 OF 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 28th February 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | PAGE |
|---|---|
| I.—FOREIGN POLITICS. | |
| A remark on the renewal of the war with the Afridis .. | 57 |
| Observations on the war with the Afridis .. .. .. | ib. |
| China and the European powers .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| A suggestion regarding the [mail-bag [robbery near Porawurani .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Inefficiency of the Cannanore police and the local magistrate .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Vagaries of sub-magistrates in the mofussil .. .. | 58 |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| An appeal to the Director of Public Instruction .. | ib. |
| A primary school wanted at Tanur in Malabar .. .. | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Advisability of making the village of Villiyankuppam a union .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Necessity for a road from Karapidakai to Talanayar near Tiruttuvaippándi .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The bad state of the roads in the civil and military station of Bangalore .. .. .. .. | 59 |
| Drawing the attention of the authorities to the insanitary condition of the city of Bangalore .. .. .. | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| A request to the Revenue authorities of the village of Parithippattu in Poonamallee division .. .. .. | ib. |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Remarks on the acquisition of land [for the Calicut-Cannanore railway .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Remarks on the proceedings of Government on the Negapatam riot of 1896 .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Desirability of carrying out the Amarávati reservoir project ere long .. .. .. .. .. .. | 60 |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Illegal collection of stamp-duty by the abkári officers .. | ib. |
| (k) General— | |
| Complaints against the village postmasters .. .. | ib. |
| A request to the members of the Legislative Council in regard to the lands irrigated by the Periyár .. .. | 61 |
| Inadvisability of assessing a certain college in Madura . | ib. |
| Administration of justice in England and India .. | ib. |
| Gas lights for the Connemara Library .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Advocate-Generalship .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Perjury in the Anantapur district .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Sasilekha .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |

| | PAGE |
|---|---|
| II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—*cont. | |
| (k) General—cont. | |
| A suggestion to expedite the publication of annual reports of administration .. .. .. .. .. | 62 |
| Village post offices .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Nepotism of the district registrar of Calicut .. .. | ib. |
| Commenting on Her Majesty's speech recently read in Parliament .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| III.—LEGISLATION. | |
| Remarks on the Bill amending section 124-A, Indian Penal Code .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 63 |
| Comments on the Madras Marriage Bill .. .. .. | ib. |
| Observations on the passing of the Sedition Bill into an Act . | ib. |
| The Sedition Law .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Gains of Learning Bill .. .. .. .. .. | 64 |
| The Press Act .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Sedition Law Amendment Act .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Remarks on the Select Committee's report on the Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code .. .. .. .. | 65 |
| Appointment of a Muhammadan as member to the local Legislative Council .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| IV.—NATIVE STATES. | |
| The plague in the Nizam's dominions .. .. .. | ib. |
| A Hyderabad magistrate .. .. .. .. .. .. | 66 |
| [illegible]erstanding between the Nizam and the British at Hyderabad .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible] the Diwan's administration in Mysore .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]tration of Mysore during the 15 years under Sir [illegible] Iyer .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]ouncil of Regency in Mysore .. .. .. | 67 |
| [illegible]litical Agents in Native States .. .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]ties in the matter of transferring pattas in the [illegible] State .. .. .. .. .. | 68 |
| [illegible]sed appointment of Mr. Crolly as Financial Secretary to the Government of Nizam .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE. | |
| [illegible]n the Cuddapah district .. .. .. .. | 69 |
| [illegible]n Kaluvoy, Nellore district .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| VI.—MISCELLANEOUS. | |
| [illegible]o His Excellency Lord Elgin .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]ts on the letter of Her Majesty read before Parliament .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]ncy of repealing the stringent regulations regarding [illegible]ague .. .. .. .. .. .. | 70 |
| [illegible]st to Government regarding Damodar Chapekar .. | ib. |
| [illegible]s on His Excellency Lord Elgin .. .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]s on a suggestion of the Secretary of State for India. | 71 |
| [illegible]uggestions regarding the congress .. .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]ntier wars and the Conservative Government .. | ib. |
| [illegible] reminding the mutiny, etc., on the walls of Calcutta . | 72 |
| [illegible]mine Commission a waste of public money .. .. | ib. |
| [illegible]tion in segregation camps .. .. .. .. | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 200 | 15th Feb. 1898. |
| 2 | "Gnanodayam" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 15th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 3 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 12th Feb. 1898. |
| 4 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 12th and 19th Feb. 1898. |
| 5 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 7th ,, 14th ,, ,, |
| 6 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 14th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| 7 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 19th Feb. 1898. |
| 8 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 1st, 8th and 15th Feb. 1898. |
| 9 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 8th Feb. 1898. |
| 10 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 13th ,, ,, |
| 11 | "Desabhimani" .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 9th ,, ,, |
| 12 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 12th ,, ,, |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 13 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 5th, 8th, 10th, 12th, 15th, 17th and 19th Feb. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 14 | "Samrajyapradayini" .. .. | Vellatore (Kistna district). | .. | 25th Nov. and 25th Dec. 1897 and 25th Jan. 1898. |
| 15 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | Jan. 1898. |
| 16 | "Satwa Sadhani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 250 | 31st Dec. 1897 and 28th Feb. 1898. |
| 17 | "Sumanomanollasini" .. .. | Pethakallipalle (Kistna district). | 500 | 15th Feb. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 18 | "Andhradesopakari" .. .. | Nellore .. .. .. | .. | 15th Feb. 1898. |
| 19 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 1st Jan. ,, |
| 20 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 250 | 19th Feb. ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 12th and 19th Feb. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 15th, 18th, 22nd and 25th Feb. 1898. |
| 23 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 16th, 19th, 23rd ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 21st and 28th Feb. 1898. |
| 25 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 26 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. | 80 | 19th ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. | 3,000 | 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. | 800 | 9th, 16th and 23rd Feb. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 29 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. | 1,030 | 20th Feb. 1898. |
| 30 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 670 | 15th ,, ,, |
| 31 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 19th ,, ,, |
| 32 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. | 270 | 21st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 33 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 12th and 19th Feb. 1898. |
| 34 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. | 575 | 14th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 730 | 9th, 16th and 23rd Feb. 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 700 | 19th and 26th Feb. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 37 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, [illegible] .. | 800 | 14th and 21st Feb. 1898. |
| 38 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, [illegible] .. | 600 | 12th Feb. 1898. |
| 39 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. | Triplicane, [illegible] .. | 50 | 15th ,, ,, |
| 40 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. | Rayapet, [illegible] .. | 550 | 17th ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. | 550 | 7th and 10th Feb. 1898. |
| 42 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | Not known. | 10th Feb. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th February, reports that the frontier war, which was thought to have come to a close, is now taking a serious turn, and that there is every certainty that the war will not end until the Afridis are thoroughly defeated. The paper regrets to say that the frontier war has subjected to disgrace the British who have won a name for their prowess and heroism elsewhere in the world, inasmuch as the Afridis have not as yet been brought to complete subjection and the loss of money and lives on the part of the English has been very great indeed, and that the continuance of this war for a couple of months more will entail upon the English Government and therefore upon the Indian subjects, further loss of money and life.

A remark on the renewal of the war with the Afridis.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 10th, 1898.

2. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th February, observes as follows:—It is quite possible to defeat the Afridis as many times as possible. What guarantee is there that they will not rise again and again. Such frequent wars with them will tempt the Russians, who are now the rivals of the English, to befriend the Afridis who will not let slip a good opportunity to join the Russians. Ever since His Excellency Lord Elgin became the Governor-General, India has been subject to series of misfortunes. We do not know what more calamities await us during the year to come—the unexpired period of the Viceroy's régime.

Observations on the war with the Afridis.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1898.

3. Referring to a London telegram of the 10th February announcing that Japan is pressing her demand upon China for the remainder of the war indemnity, the Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 14th February, says with regret that China has been coerced by Russia, England, Germany and France.

China and the European powers.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Feb. 14th, 1898.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

4. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 14th February, remarks that it is highly discreditable to the Porawurani police officers that they have been unable to detect the culprits concerned in the recent robbery of a post mail-bag near Porawurani, and presumes that, as the police had cited a post peon as a witness in a similar mail-bag robbery case which occurred in the same place some time ago, the robbers should have, out of spite and vengeance, repeated the mischief. The paper advises the Postal authorities to send in future mail-bags from Muttupet viâ Pattukkóttai, as the proposed route will enable postmen to travel during the day with speed and avoid disturbance by robbers.

A suggestion regarding the mail-bag robbery near Porawurani.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Feb. 14th, 1898.

5. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 23rd February, says that it is in receipt of a memorial which some of the inhabitants of Cannanore have proposed to send to the Collector of Malabar, stating that the local police after inquiry referred the case against a constable who was arrested at night in Bernasseri in Cannanore by some persons who were lying in wait to capture certain thieves, and that the sub-magistrate appears inclined to favour the police in the matter. It is an open secret that since of late the Mappila sepoys of the 25th Regiment stationed at Cannanore and thieves have become intolerable to the people, and that neither the police nor the magistrate could remedy the evil. In fact, the public opinion is that both the police inspector and the town magistrate are incompetent for this. Considering the present state of Cannanore, there should be a very able Inefficiency of the Cannanore police and the local magistrate.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Feb. 23rd, 1898.

sub-magistrate and a police inspector in the place. The article therefore hopes that the Collector will take early steps to transfer these two officials from the place and appoint able men instead.

(b) Courts.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Feb. 9th, 1898.

Vagaries of sub-magistrates in the mofussil.

6. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th February, has a leader headed "Our Sub-Magistrates." The article is a continuation of the one published in one of its previous issues and deals with the vagaries of the sub-magistrates in the mofussil. Some of the sub-magistrates are said to insult and abuse vakils and parties appearing before them. They are alleged to decide cases according to the friendship or enmity existing between them and the vakils. The paper says that the Collector of Malabar will be astonished to hear that out of the large number of cases conducted by a particular vakil in a certain sub-magistrate's court in that district only one or two have till now been decided against him; and as this is a matter which is more serious than the taking of bribes, and which ought therefore to be speedily remedied, the Collector will call for an explanation from the magistrate in question.

(d) Education.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 17th, 1898.

An appeal to the Director of Public Instruction.

7. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th February, bitterly complains that the teachers of the schools working under the result-grant system in Kumbakónam range have not as yet been furnished with "the memo. marked C," although nearly nine months have elapsed since the schools were examined in June last, and that such a delay subjects them to inexpressible inconveniences and pecuniary difficulties in these days of famine. He further complains that the rates appearing in "the Combined List" are very low and that petty sums such as Rs. 30 and Rs. 40 are entered against the schools which should secure Rs. 100 and Rs. 120 when the results are taken into consideration. The correspondent appeals to the clemency of the Director of Public Instruction, and earnestly requests him to redress the grievances of the poor teachers who work hard both day and night.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 26th, 1898.

A primary school wanted at Tanur in Malabar.

8. A correspondent in the Kerala Patrika, of the 26th February, invites the attention of the Educational authorities to the desirability of opening at least a primary school at Tanur in Malabar. The correspondent adds that the want of a school is much felt by the inhabitants of Tanur which is rising in importance and where there is ample scope for a successful institution of the primary grade.

(e) Local and Municipal.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Feb. 9th, 1898.

Advisability of making the village of Velliyankuppam a union.

9. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 9th February, regrets to remark that the village of Velliyankuppam (South Arcot district), which contains about 1,000 houses and 6,000 inhabitants, has not as yet been made a major union by the authorities. He earnestly hopes that the authorities concerned will do the needful ere long, in view to improve the sanitation of such a thickly-populated village as the one under reference.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Feb. 14th, 1898.

Necessity for a road from Karapidakai to Talanayar near Tirutturaippúndi.

10. The Nilalochani, of the 14th February, requests the authorities to construct a road from the village of Karapidakai near Tirutturaippúndi to Talanayar and thus remove the great inconvenience felt by the public owing to its absence.

11. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st February, complains that the roads in the civil and military station of Bangalore, especially those leading from the station to the Lal Bagh, are in a very bad condition, being full of fine dust. This is attributed to the nature of the laterite used, and the editor hopes that the municipality would use better kind of laterite and remove the dust before putting on fresh laterite.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 21st, 1898.

The bad state of the roads in the civil and military station of Bangalore.

12. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th February, writes that, owing to the fall of heavy fog in these days, the health of the city of Bangalore has been considerably affected. Fever prevails everywhere. European and native children are generally attacked. The editor hopes that the Sanitary authorities in the city will attend to sanitation in general and to the filthy streets adjoining the slaughter-house in particular.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Feb. 7th, 1898.

Drawing the attention of the authorities to the insanitary condition of the city of Bangalore.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 15th February, requests the Revenue authorities of the village of Parithippattu, in Poonamallee division, to be more speedy in the inspection of the blighted crops of the village, as the villagers feel it very difficult to preserve them against the inroads of cattle, and in the grant of remission in respect of such crops. He further complains that the memorial of the villagers submitted to the Collector of Chingleput requesting him to order the Madras Railway Company to stop digging sands near the canal attached to the Cooum river, which is the chief source of water-supply to the village, on the ground of its seriously interfering with the irrigation of the fields, has not as yet been attended to.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1898.

A request to the Revenue authorities of the village of Parithippattu in Poonamallee division.

(h) Railways.

14. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 19th February, says that it is rumoured in certain quarters that as the Deputy Collector who has newly been appointed to take possession of lands needed for the construction of the Calicut-Cannanore railway is to proceed with his work at once in order to expedite the construction of the line, the occupiers of lands and buildings through which the line passes will be required to surrender them without their being previously served with the usual two or three months' notice. The article in commenting upon the matter remarks that the rumour is absolutely unfounded, inasmuch as the Government would not ask the tenants to surrender their lands without giving reasonable time to enable them to remove their moveable properties from the buildings, etc., and to provide for their accommodation, etc. The opinion is expressed that as the construction of the line has been deferred so long, a further delay of two or three months caused by giving notice to the tenants will not result in any serious inconvenience. As it is the duty of Government to give sufficient time to the occupiers who have no choice but to obey whatever is ordered by Government and settle matters in a manner which will not cause any grievance or put them to untold miseries, it should pay proper attention to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 19th, 1898.

Remarks on the acquisition of land for the Calicut-Cannanore railway.

15. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 21st February, has translation of the proceedings of Government passed on the Negapatam riot of 1896, and expresses concurrence with the remark of its contemporary, the Madras Mail, that it is the duty of the Government, police and magistrates, and not of the Railway authorities, to adopt measures for the prevention of riots and the preservation of peace. Such being the case, to hold the Railway authorities responsible for the purpose appears to be quite unreasonable.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Feb. 21st, 1898.

Remarks on the proceedings of Government on the Negapatam riot of 1896.

(i) Public Works.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Feb. 15th, 1898.

Desirability of carrying out the Amarávati reservoir project ere long.

16. A correspondent to the Kalanidhi, of the 15th February, thinks it highly desirable that the authorities should carry out the "Amarávati reservoir project" ere long and relieve the people of Dhárápuram, Karúr and Udamalpet of their sufferings from drought which is severe in those places. The correspondent is of opinion that the accomplishment of this project would turn large tracts of land into fertile fields and enhance the revenue of Government to an enormous extent.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Feb. 21st, 1898.

Illegal collection of stamp-duty by the abkári officers.

17. A leader in the Manorama, of the 21st February, says that although toddy-drawers who apply to the abkári officers to get trees marked for tapping sweet toddy are under the rules required only to make the applications on plain paper without any stamp being affixed, yet it is the custom of the sub-inspectors who receive them to tell the applicants that they should affix one anna court-fee stamp to each application and to thus either collect from them one anna or get one anna court-fee stamp affixed. The abkári officers are then said to remove the stamps from the petition and give them to some persons on commission who afterwards publicly sell them at 6 or 9 pies each, such stamps evidently bearing the mark of having been used once. The editor says that on inquiries made by him as to the source from which such stamps are obtained for sale, he came to understand that they are illegally received by the abkári officers in the manner above described and sold by them to some commission agents. The attention of the authorities is invited to the necessity of taking steps to put a stop to this fraudulent practice.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 5th, 1898.

Complaints against the village postmasters.

18. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th February, complains against the village postmasters as follows:—

(1) They wilfully retain with them some of the letters posted on a particular day and deliver them either on the following day or on some other day on which no letters are posted: this they do in view to make it appear that letters are posted every day and that the necessity for the existence of post offices in certain villages is indispensable. It is to be regretted that the postmasters who play such tricks in their own interest are not sensible of the difficulties and inconveniences the addressees are likely to be put to, in consequence of the delay in the delivery of letters.

(2) They read the contents of post-cards and letters and create endless misunderstanding among the villagers.

(3) They send letters through passers-by to be delivered to the addressees when they happen to be in distant places: such letters do not generally reach the addressees.

(4) They remove the wrappers of newspapers addressed to the villagers, read them as if they are the subscribers and leisurely deliver them to the addressees. This is the reason why many of the villagers cease to be subscribers to newspapers very often.

(5) They levy blackmail from the poor villagers in the case of unstamped letters and money orders received from Singapore, Mauritius and such other places.

(6) They receive some gratification or other for selling stamps on Sundays or at nights.

(7) They demand extra postage even in respect of duly stamped letters and misappropriate the money thus collected.

19. The same paper requests the members of the Legislative Council to question Government as to what steps it has taken in regard to the suggestion of the Executive Engineer of the Periyár division that Government should adopt such measures as will supply the ryots with the manure required for the lands irrigated by the Periyár, if they are to yield two crops annually, which alone will enable the cultivators to pay the heavy assessment levied by Government. The paper regrets to note that Government has silently recorded the report submitted by the Executive Engineer without bestowing due attention on the subject of manure referred to by the said officer.

A request to the members of the Legislative Council in regard to the lands irrigated by the Periyár.

20. The Nilalochani, of the 7th February, reports that the income-tax authorities have assessed a certain college in Madura, and that as the principal of the college protested against it on the ground that it was unprecedented, the case is pending inquiry in the district court. The paper remarks that it is not right to assess the income of college endowments left by charitable people for the purpose of improving the status of schools and colleges and spreading education among the masses as far as possible.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Feb. 7th, 1898.

Inadvisability of assessing a certain college in Madura.

21. The Andhraprakasika, of the 19th February, referring to the conviction of Lord William Neville, commends the strict and impartial administration of justice in England, and suggests that, if the British Government in India had similarly dealt impartial justice to all without making any distinction between natives and Europeans, it would have greatly added to its glory.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 19th, 1898.

Administration of justice in England and India.

22. The same paper is surprised to hear that while the Nellore citizens were disappointed in their request to His Excellency the Governor for a grant of Rs. 25,000 for the improvement of the drains in Nellore, the Government did not hesitate to sanction a sum of Rs. 10,490 for illuminating the Connemara Library with gas lights. Observing that the latter amount was to be paid out of the allotments for educational purposes, the paper asks why, if the Educational Department has a surplus allotment, the same should not be transferred to the Municipal Department.

Gas lights for the Connemara Library.

23. The Andhradesopakari, of the 15th February, referring to the appointment of Mr. Arnold White as the Advocate-General of Madras, remarks that the claims of Mr. Bhashyam Aiyangar have been overlooked on the ground of his being a native and a vakil and not a European and a barrister. It regrets to find that the Secretary of State has failed to realise the promises made by Her Majesty in 1857 to govern the country without distinction of race, colour or creed.

ANDHRADESOPAKARI, Nellore, Feb. 15th, 1898.

The Advocate-Generalship.

24. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 18th February, stating that a large number of persons in Madakasíra, Anantapur district, are living by perjury, prays that the District Collector would, after obtaining the necessary information from the tahsildar, inflict exemplary punishment on these offenders.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 18th, 1898.

Perjury in the Anantapur district.

25. The editor of the Sasilekha, of the 15th February, refers to the frequent complaints from its subscribers as regards the non-delivery of his journals, and remarks that, if the paper is delayed in delivery or not delivered at all to the addressees though he punctually posts the same at 5–30 P.M. on Tuesdays and Fridays, the fault is the Postal authorities' and not his. He complains that the Postal authorities, while taking the postage of Rs. 48 from him on the 1st of each month, involve him in difficulties and bring him into disgrace.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1898.

The Sasilekha.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Feb. 26th, 1898.

A suggestion to expedite the publication of annual reports of administration.

26. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 26th February, in remarking the delay in the publication of annual reports on various branches of administration, says that as the appendices to these reports containing mere statistics occupy the larger portion of the reports, it would be advisable to publish the body of the report itself separately within two or three months from the end of the period to which they refer, leaving out the appendices to follow after some time when they are ready.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 20th, 1898.

Village post offices.

27. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 20th February, invites the attention of the Postal authorities to the irregularities prevailing in the village post offices. He says that the friends of village postmasters generally come to the post office when the mail comes and read the contents of post-cards and the addresses of letters arriving by post, and sometimes even open and read with or without the consent of the postmaster such letters received to the address of any one whom they dislike. The correspondent further says that the village postmasters themselves sometimes open and read almost all the letters received in their office. As a remedial measure it is suggested that as some of the post offices are held in a room in some of the buildings to which people of all sorts have access, some arrangements should be made in the matter of these post office buildings, and orders should also be issued strictly prohibiting the admission of outsiders into such offices.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Feb. 23rd, 1898.

Nepotism of the district registrar of Calicut.

28. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 23rd February, says that it is an admitted fact that the number of Brahmins employed in the Registration department in the whole Presidency is objectionably greater than that of any other class. It takes exception to the appointments made by the present district registrar of Calicut, who, it appears, appoints a greater number of Brahmins under him than others and treats them with greater consideration than the employés of other castes. The opinion is expressed that as it is quite unbecoming on the part of the said district registrar to appoint only Brahmins, his own castemen, whenever any vacancy occurs, overlooking the claims of the members of other classes, who are by their education and ability equally entitled to get a share in the appointments, his conduct deserves to be taken notice of by the authorities. It is the duty of the registrar to receive documents from the parties and see whether they are properly stamped or not, but this business is done by a clerk Sivarama Aiyar for the registrar, and it has even come to the notice of the Inspector-General of Registration. The registrar's undue attachment to Sivarama Aiyar has given rise to scandals. It appears that when the registrar goes to his native place during the holidays, this clerk is also taken with him. It is surprising that in spite of all these scandals this clerk has not yet been transferred from the place.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Feb. 14th, 1898.

Commenting on Her Majesty's speech recently read in Parliament.

29. In commenting upon the speech of the Queen-Empress read in Parliament on the 8th February, the Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 14th February, says that what Her Majesty thinks about the disappearance of the plague and of famine in India is incorrect, and attributes the cause thereof to misrepresentation. The editor in drawing a contrast between the number of fatal plague cases that occurred last year and from the beginning of the present year up to date, observes that in Bombay alone from 150 to 200 people die daily. Moreover, the disease has spread to several parts in India, causing great panic amongst the inhabitants. About the famine and scarcity the editor remarks that even the affluent feel its dire effects. Notwithstanding all this, Government does not give practical sympathy as regards collecting the revenue. The editor hopes that the Lord Chancellor will amend the speech by pointing out to Her Majesty that what she thinks about the famine and plague is incorrect.

III.—Legislation.

30. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th February, remarks that the Government of India never thought that the Bill amending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code would meet with stout opposition from every quarter and that it is now in dilemma and unable to do one thing or the other in respect of the Bill. The paper surmises that Government, in consideration of the mighty opposition, will make certain amendments here and there in the Bill and pass it into an Act, and observes that, as the Bill aims at putting a stop to the free expression of native public opinion, it would be quite improper on the part of Government to introduce a measure of this kind against the unanimous opposition of its subjects, and that Government will, later on, have occasion to repent for the existence of such an enactment.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 8th, 1898.

Remarks on the Bill amending section 124-A, Indian Penal Code.

31. The Vikata Dutan, of the 12th February, observes that the Madras Marriage Bill will affect the Brahmin community only, that the Bill will induce the executive officers and other officials to have recourse to all sorts of malpractices in detecting those who may be guilty under the contemplated Act, and that the authorities may as well draft a Bill prohibiting the marriage of old persons of above 60 years of age with young girls who are more or less children, and subjecting to penalty the parents who keep their daughters unmarried till they become too old, in anticipation of getting rich or learned husbands for them. The paper concludes with the remark that as the masses have already begun to view infant marriages with contempt, a legislation on the subject is uncalled for.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Feb. 12th, 1898.

Comments on the Madras Marriage Bill.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th February, reporting with deep regret that the Bill amending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code has been passed into an Act in spite of the united protest of the native members of the Legislative Council, observes that the Act will do no substantial good either to Government or to the people, but will certainly cause immense mischief and trouble which Government will not fail to perceive in course of time. The paper concludes with the remark that both the Europeans and the Natives are unanimous in thinking that there was never a time when the Government of India was so thoughtless as it was while passing the Sedition Bill into an Act.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 19th, 1898.

Observations on the passing of the Sedition Bill into an Act.

33. The Sasilekha, of the 22nd February, remarks that, after all, the Government has carried out its own intentions in amending section 124-A and some other sections of the Indian Penal Code, in spite of all the representations made by the natives as well as non-official Europeans in India. It notes that His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has remarked that those that have received education in the Government schools have been seditionists and that there should therefore be a law to punish them. The Finance Member, it further notes, has characterised the memorial-submitting people in India as mere non-entities. Government itself may well consider, it remarks, how far it is justifiable to pass retrograde laws affecting a whole nation, on the ground of some foolish men having committed two murders in Poona. Although the Government has stated that the law would affect the editors of the English and Vernacular papers equally, Sir Alexander Mackenzie has already definitely expressed himself that the law was intended to keep the editors of vernacular newspapers in check. It, however, finds consolation in the practice that when a Conservative Government passed such laws, the succeeding Liberal Government quashed them; and says that wise people have given out that these amendments would soon be removed and that the "locks put on the mouths of the people" would fall off, the people regaining their former privileges. It, therefore, prays that the good time may befall the country in the near future.

Sasilekha, Madras, Feb. 22nd, 1898.

The Sedition Law.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 26th, 1898.

34. The Andhraprakasika, of the 26th February, expresses its opinion in favour of the Gains of Learning Bill, now before the Madras Legislative Council, as it tends to put down the bad practice of the male and female members in a Hindu family entirely depending upon the earnings of one individual member, instead of exerting themselves to work and to earn.

The Gains of Learning Bill.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 28th, 1898.

35. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 28th February, has the following:—The Bill which became law last Friday in spite of the remonstrances of all classes of the people is the most retrogressive measure that has been passed for the last seventy years. It was believed that at the end of the nineteenth century we should hear no more about Gagging Acts, but we were mistaken. The Indian authorities have shown the world how slow they are to read the "Signs of the times," how much they are behind the age. The ostensible cause for this severe Act, this extension of section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code, is the amount of sedition in the land. We believe there is no sedition. The thought is a hallucination and nothing else. The trial of Damodar Chapekar was to bring to light a great amount of evil. It was to show to the world at large a vast chain of conspiracy ending in the murder of Mr. Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst. It showed nothing of the kind. The trial revealed nothing at all of a nature to make the Government afraid, and it is downright folly to pass an Act to curb the press. But the real reason for passing the measure is altogether different from the ostensible reason. The press in question criticises those in authority. This they do not like; and hence the measure that is so abhorrent to the minds of all the people of India. The officials think this will stop criticism; put an end to anything they may do coming under review, but in this we feel sure they will be mistaken. We feel certain that the press will continue to do its duty in spite of the repressive measure we are discussing, and thus it will, to a great extent, be rendered nugatory. Still the measure is calculated to do much harm. It will set the people against those in power, and make them look upon everything that is done with suspicion. It is very probable that the Act which has been passed will produce the very sedition it was intended to prevent. The people will not be able to express their grievances freely, and so they may begin to plot against those in power. It is plain to be seen that the measure is bad for the Government and bad for the people. Bad for the former because it will not know what the people desire. It will cause estrangement between the rulers and the ruled, confidence will be destroyed, and it will be many years before the evil caused will be eradicated.

The Press Act.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 26th, 1898.

36. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 26th February, referring to the discussion that took place in the Supreme Legislative Council when the Sedition Law Amendment Bill was passed, notices with regret that the Bill was passed into law in the teeth of such a strong opposition both from the non-official members and the Indian public. The paper, while commenting upon the matter at some length, remarks that the people should continue ventilating their grievances truly without keeping themselves back on account of the stringency of the new law, and though the punishment that might result therefrom may be lamentable from a worldly point of view, it can never be so in the eyes of God.

Sedition Law Amendment Act.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Feb. 17th, 1898.

37. In commenting upon the Bill by which it is proposed to make certain amendments in the Indian Penal Code for restricting the liberty of the press, the Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 17th February, says it is understood that His Excellency the Viceroy has been urged to frame an enactment on the model of the Lytton Act, but the sympathetic Viceroy refused to entertain the suggestion considering it to be repugnant to constitutional principles. The editor thanks His Excellency, and hopes that His Excellency will, before passing Mr. Chalmers' Bill into law, take such steps as will neither affect the freedom of the press nor give room to seditious writings. Mr. Chalmers'

Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code.

Bill cannot be expected to meet the above purposes and hence it is disapproved by European and Indian politicians. The provisions of the Bill will, to a certain degree, restrict the press which is contrary to the spirit of the British Government and will retard the progress of the country. The first amendment proposed by the Bill to be made in the Code will surely prevent even fair and just criticisms, thereby keeping Government ignorant of the misdeeds of its subordinate officials for the time being. Former kings had spies and reporters to keep them informed as to what was going on in the country. But in respect of the British Government this was hitherto unnecessary since it had granted freedom to the press and thus learnt everything that was going on. This concession had moreover added to its revenues. It is a pity if this freedom is restricted, the prestige of the press will disappear and by degrees papers will cease to exist, when the Government will find the appointment of spies at an enormous cost indispensable. Even then it will not be able to learn the real aspect of affairs as fully as it now does, and perhaps for this reason alone Lord William Bentinck, the suppressor of Sati in India, had remarked: "I gather the true state of affairs through the press better than any other source." The words "libel and ill-will" contained in the second amendment are too wide. On account of this it will be very difficult, if not impossible, for the press to escape. "Libel" can be established from even fair and just criticisms, and "ill-will" has connection with mind which it is impossible to prove. Such being the case, the insertion of the word in the amendment will create difficulties both for the ruler and for the ruled. As for the third amendment, the editor says, when accused had wide scope for their defence, the punishment prescribed was slight, namely, three years; but now Mr. Chalmers has not only limited the right of private defence but also enhanced the punishment. This appears to be primâ facie unjustifiable. The editor, after commenting on the subject, at length hopes that the Government of India will not be hasty in passing the measure, and that it will afford sufficient time for getting public opinion on the matter and afterwards re-enact it on such principles as will tend to be advantageous both to the ruler and to the ruled.

Remarks on the Select Committee's report on the Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code.

38. The same paper mentions with great pleasure that the Select Committee, to which the Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code was referred for consideration, has since submitted its report, excluding from the Bill many unjust proposals and leaving the punishment already prescribed for sedition untouched, but regrets to say that the Select Committee did not attend to a very important question, viz., that of "Jury." Cases cognizable by jury cannot be tried by magistrates. The editor hopes that Government will consider this point favourably before it passes the Bill.

Appointment of a Muhammadan as member to the Local Legislative Council.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Feb. 21st, 1898.

39. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 21st February, inserts an extract from the Punjab Observer against the appointment of the Muhammadan member made by His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to Local Legislative Council, and says what is done is done and there can be no remedy for it. If His Excellency had re-appointed the old member, it would have afforded great satisfaction to the community.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1898.

The plague in the Nizam's dominions.

40. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 15th February, speaking of the gradual spread of the plague in the Nizam's dominions, remarks that the British Government would have to lend to the Nizam's Government the services of a few medical men and of the British forces at Secunderabad if the epidemic were to become serious. He observes that the subjects of the Nizam are dirty, ignorant and self-willed, that they are too daring and are armed with weapons, and that they are staunchly adherent to the gosha system. The correspondent is therefore afraid that when the authorities enter private houses in search of plague-stricken persons, disturbances would arise. Hyderabad being a most dirty town, the havoc might, he regrets to observe, be very great, if once the plague makes its appearance there, but Dr. Lawrie is endeavouring his best to prevent such a contingency. He suggests that the Nizam's Government would do well to apply to the British Government for medical aid and nip the disease in the bud.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 26th, 1898.

A Hyderabad magistrate.

41. The Andhraprakasika, of the 26th February, referring to Mr. Justice Shephard's severe remarks against the character of Mr. Sayed Hussain Sahib, the City Magistrate of Hyderabad, when he appeared as a witness in a suit before him, declaring that all his statements were downright lies and totally unbelievable, and also to Mr. Justice Afzul Hussain of the Hyderabad Chief Court's declining to interfere in the matter, when it was referred to the Judges of the said Court, expresses its surprise how a gentleman whose veracity and trustworthiness were publicly questioned, came to be entrusted with the administration of justice in Hyderabad. It believes that the Nizam's Government risks greatly its reputation by having such officials in its service. If the authorities in Hyderabad are intent on favouring such liars, they might, the paper observes, be employed in some other capacity carrying no responsibility with it.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Feb. 26th, 1898.

The misunderstanding between the Nizam and the British Resident at Hyderabad.

42. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 26th February, says that it learns that there is a misunderstanding between the Nizam and the British Resident, that the Prime Minister and the Resident have combined together against the Nizam and his party, and these two parties are accusing each other of having squandered the public money in the Hyderabad treasury. It further learns that the Resident has gone to Calcutta to represent his version of the case to the Viceroy, and thinks that this unsatisfactory state of things cannot be put an end to unless the present Resident is replaced by another.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Feb. 23rd, 1898.

The evils of the Diwan's administration in Mysore.

43. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 23rd February, discusses in the form of a dialogue between two representatives of the people, the good and bad points of the Diwan's administration of Mysore. One of the representatives is made to say that the Diwan has reduced the province to a very humble position by transferring the postal department and the railway into foreign hands and by increasing the subsidy from 24 lakhs to 35 lakhs and that he has aggrandized himself and has provided for all his relations with fat appointments. Not content with himself drawing Rs. 5,000 as salary and Rs. 500 for personal expenses, he has given a place of Rs. 500 to his brother-in-law, one of Rs. 450 to one of his sons and another of Rs. 200 to another. He has also erected a magnificent palatial building for himself on an extensive piece of ground and has had roads constructed near it. The other representative is made to say that the Diwan has improved the country by encouraging large plantation industries, constructing water-works for Mysore and Bangalore and by establishing agricultural banks.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Feb. 18th, 1898.

The administration of Mysore during the 15 years under Sir Seshadri Iyer.

44. The Suryodaya, of the 18th February, in a review of the administration for the last 15 years, says that under the present Diwan the taxes have been increased tenfold, the ryots have been reduced to poverty, and although the revenue has increased, it is spent in paying newly-created Assistant Commissioners. The railway has been given away to foreigners, the railway police has become a branch of the British police, and the postal department is no more a part of the Mysore administration. The officials have grown fat and insolent. The paper, therefore, calls upon the people not to tolerate this state of things hereafter and to resist to their utmost the importation of Madrasees and other foreigners into the Mysore service.

45. The same paper says that, for various reasons, it is advisable to retain the present Muhammadan member in the council, as there is no other Muhammadan gentleman who has the necessary qualifications.

The new Council of Regency in Mysore.

46. The Malayala Manorama, of the 19th February, writes in English thus:—

Malayala Manorama, Kottayam, Feb. 19th, 1898.

British Political Agents in Native States.

"In our previous article we have tried to show that the present prosperous condition of Native States is, in a large measure, attributable to the influence of British Residents, and to indicate the two directions in which that influence operated; it tended to put a restraint upon the evil propensities of native rulers and it led them on in the path of progress. We now propose to restrict our field of observation and to dwell at some length upon the relations that have long existed between the sovereigns of Travancore and successive British Residents. At the very outset it must be clearly understood that Travancore was in many respects unique among Native States, inasmuch as it was ruled from time immemorial by a line of Maharajas who never stood in need of any restraining influence. Even her worst enemies cannot deny that her rulers were all of them actuated by a sincere desire to promote, to the best of their ability, the happiness of their subjects. Their efforts in this direction were circumscribed only by the circumscribed character of their attainments. Therefore the duties of our Resident were confined to the task of initiating and encouraging progressive modes of administration. As years passed on and as our rulers added to natural good intentions the refinements of western culture, their influence for good became incalculable. Our late Maharaja, for instance, has now been recognised throughout India and England as one who was second to none in any of the attributes of a successful ruler. The recent graceful and unstinted eulogy of the London Times proves this fact conclusively. The same may be said with regard to some of his predecessors and His Highness the present Maharaja. Therefore the Residents here had only to move with the course of the current of progress that had already set in. This they did by influencing the actions of the Diwans who were solely responsible for the actual government of the country. The mere consciousness that their actions were being unceasingly watched over by one who was passionately fond of reform and good government, and upon whose approval of their measures depended the continuance of their office and the honourable recognition of their services acted as a most powerful incentive upon the Diwans. This continued till the advent of Mr. J. C. Hannyngton as Resident. This gentleman might have been a capable civilian elsewhere, but after his arrival here his only care was to enjoy undisturbed calm and to save enough money to pass his old age in plenty and comfort. So long as we had such an able and upright Diwan as the late Mr. Ramiengar, this did not matter much. But when he was succeeded by Mr. Rama Rau, a man of very good intentions and teeming with ideas of reform, but wofully weak and short-sighted in every way, the downward course of the administration was rapid. On Mr. Grigg succeeding Mr. Hannyngton, he infused a new spirit into the Government of the country which had, however, a melancholy termination in his untimely death. Meantime Mr. Sankarasubbier had succeeded Mr. Rama Rau as Diwan. This gentleman's long and varied experience in every grade of the service, combined with his previous reputation as a strong, upright and cultured official, had raised high hopes concerning his tenure of office. Now that his official life has practically been closed, it cannot be maintained even by the most ardent of his admirers that he has in any way realised those hopes. Almost all departments are now thronged with corrupt, incompetent, inhuman and unscrupulous officials. Upright and conscientious persons have been driven by lack of encouragement, to betake themselves to the ways of their more disreputable brethren in the service, and scheming and sycophancy have come to be regarded as the surest high roads to promotion. While on the one hand the people are preyed upon by corrupt officials, there are not a few departments where Government money is needlessly squandered, either in satisfying some such costly whim of certain utopian heads of department as the substitution of Burma teak for indigenous timber, or in filling the private coffers of others who have become adepts in the art of hoodwinking the treasury officials. The forte of the Diwan is, of course, finance, and so, to the admiration of the whole world, he must show his unrivalled skill as a financier by producing a large surplus. This is chiefly done, as is well known to all who know the ins and outs of things, by withholding sanction for urgently needed public works, by vetoing any scheme of reform which involves increased expenditure, by repudiating the self-imposed obligations of Government and by various other skilful makeshifts. Long-continued habit has made this passion for ever increasing hoard of surpluses as much a part of the very being of Mr. Sankarasubbier as of Silas Marner, the hero of George Elliot's well-known novel. It is by the production of this annual surplus that the Diwan has covered a thousand other shortcomings and drawn forth the encomiums of the clerks in the Madras Secretariat. In the matter of enjoying domestic peace he has been equally successful. He could well see that the one element which harrowed his predecessor day and night and which held up his administration to the ridicule of the whole world, was the enmity of the Malayali Sudras. From the antecedents and prepossessions of Mr. Sankarasubbier it was expected that he would make a bold stand against their onslaughts. But, contrary to all expectations, he would seem to have thrown overboard his own party and entered into a secret compact with his former enemies, promising to hand over to them the sole monopoly of all offices in the State if they would not lacerate him by newspaper articles, indignation meetings, deputations and counter-deputations, anonymous letters and numerously signed petitions. Such an understanding places the Diwan's claim to be considered as a very shrewd man of business beyond any doubt. The result of this has been to put the handle that turns the wheel of the State into the hands of one or two disreputable cliques. In the fierce struggle for existence, all those who desire to succeed in life have been compelled, in spite of their education and refinement, to bid adieu to every sentiment of self-respect, and to prostrate themselves before either of the two cliques above referred to. People have a vague foreboding that Mr. Krishnaswami Rau will not be the man to acquiesce in such a state of affairs. From his well-known aversion of all unrighteousness they have correctly surmised that he will not pursue a peace-at-any-rate policy, but either will try his best to mend matters or will clear out of the way altogether. In anticipation of this impending calamity, every step is now being taken to strew the coming Diwan's way with difficulty, to render his plan of reform impossible, and to fill every strategic position with persons who will retard his progress if not stop it entirely.

"The prospect certainly does not augur well for the new administration. The new Diwan will have to stand alone and to face the coming storm. That he will have the hearty support of His Highness the Maharaja in this arduous undertaking, there is no reason to doubt. His Highness must be more anxious than all others to see the country cleared of the dirt and dust of years. But it is even more important that the British Resident should know this and give his unqualified support to the work. If Mr. Krishnaswami Rau can count upon the co-operation of the representative of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, he can very safely ignore every other species of opposition. We are not quite sure that Mr. Rees will be the proper man at such a critical juncture. Up to this time he has manifested no extraordinary aptitude for discharging the duties of his post. It was in every way unfortunate that Mr. Thomson could not have found his way to continue here for some time longer. During the short time that he acted as Resident, he made the Travancore Huzur feel that they had to deal with a man who meant business. He hated public notoriety, but loved to do his duty for its own sake. Mr. Rees is a man born to enjoy life. His finely-turned periods, apt quotations and clever arguments are such as will secure him ready entrance, if need be, even into the editorial columns of the Pioneer. His affable manners and equanimity of temper were put to the severest test when he acted as Private Secretary to two Governors. Though he is now placed so high in the official ladder, he always takes particular care that any unconscious officiousness or discourtesy on his part will not cause others to speak or write ill of him. Indeed this trait in our Resident is so marked that persons, great and small, from the Diwan down to office peons and poor compositors who supply news to the correspondents of Madras papers, are fascinated by the charm of his manners. He admires the scenery of the West Coast, its forests with their well-stocked game, and its marriage customs which 'result in manly males and comely and often beautiful females.' It does not, however, follow that these characteristics cannot be reconciled to the work of an ideal Resident. On the other hand, we trust Mr. Rees will rise to the occasion and exert himself on behalf of the poor, dumb, helpless masses of the country which is now virtually entrusted to his charge."

MANORAMA, Calicut, Feb. 21st, 1898.

Irregularities in the matter of transferring pattas in the Cochin State.

47. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 21st February, invites the attention of the Diwan of Cochin to the irregularities prevailing in the Revenue department in the matter of transferring pattas. It appears that when applications are made by parties for the transfer of pattas the village officials do not take notice of them, unless and until they are paid a certain fixed sum as gratification. The correspondent adds that there are several cases in which the pattas of lands which have been sold many years ago have not even on repeated applications been transferred in the name of the purchasers on the ground of their refusal to pay the "tip-money" to the village officials; and says that owing to the non-transfer of pattas in several cases, occasion is given for various sorts of underhand dealings and unnecessary litigation.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Feb. 12th, 1898.

The proposed appointment of Mr. Crolly as Financial Secretary to the Government of Nizam.

48. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 12th February, mentions, on the authority of the Hyderabad Chronicle, that Mr. Plowden in recognition of the good services rendered to the State by Mr. Crolly, Comptroller-General, wants to appoint him Financial Secretary. The editor says that if what is stated is correct, it is necessary that the Government of India should prevent it. Mr. Crolly is generally complained against, and even the European officers of the State have never spoken a word in his praise. It is understood that Mr. Crolly acts according to the suggestions of others and that he is ignorant of his work. Such being the case, his retention in the service appears to be undesirable.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Famine in the Cuddapah district.

49. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 18th February, states that rains have failed in the Madanapalle, Vayalpad, Ráyachóti and Kadiri taluks of the Cuddapah district, that the poor are suffering from the effects of starvation, and that the cattle are dying for want of fodder. He complains that Government officials fail to ascertain the amount of rainfall in the villages and that it is usual with them to report that the villages are thriving inasmuch as (when?) there is a little rain in the five villages that are the head-quarters of the Tahsildars and Divisional officers.

Sasilekha, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1898.

Famine in Kaluvoy, Nellore district.

50. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 26th February, regrets to observe that kists are being collected from the current month in Kaluvoy, Nellore district, while the people are greatly perplexed being quite unable to pay the same, and says that Government would be doing a great favour by postponing the collection until April next. He recommends the construction of roads in the village and the repair of the Podalakoru-Somasila road, with a view to find work for the poor sufferers in the village.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Feb. 26th, 1898.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

A hint to His Excellency Lord Elgin.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th February, regrets to observe that during the regime of His Excellency Lord Elgin, which covers a period of nearly four years, the equilibrium of happiness enjoyed by the subjects has been greatly disturbed, and that there is yet a year more during which His Excellency may have several occasions to do immense good to the people and thus establish his name in India like Lord Ripon. It says that if His Excellency Lord Elgin declines to pass the proposed unpopular Bill now before the Imperial Legislative Council into an Act, and sets at liberty both Nattu brothers and Mr. Tilak, there is every certainty that his name will be embalmed in the memory of the people of this country.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 10th, 1898.

Comments on the letter of Her Majesty read before Parliament.

52. The same paper writes as follows:—In the letter of Her Majesty read before Parliament on its re-opening this year there was but a brief reference to the frontier war and the plague, and to the famine which is said to be drawing to a close; it is a pity that the letter made no mention whatever of the measures to be adopted in connection with the frontier war, of the division between India and England of the cost of the war, and of the steps to be taken for preventing the recurrence of famine in the years to come. About 50 lakhs of rupees have been expended on the war, and Government is fully convinced of the inadvisability of engaging itself in such unprofitable wars. Our expectation that England would be required to pay a portion of the cost, in consideration of the fact that India is groaning under heavy taxation, has not been realized. Her Majesty has said that the coming year would be a period of prosperity to India and that it would not therefore be reasonable to ask England to help India. It is not, as a matter of favour, that we ask England to meet a portion of the cost of the frontier war; for it was undertaken in view to prevent the Russians from invading India and to perpetuate the British rule in this country; it is therefore just and proper that the expenses of the war should be defrayed by both India and England. The assertion of Her Majesty that the coming year will be prosperous is not correct, in that it is based on a misconception that famine has been thoroughly rooted out of India. Even this year monsoon has failed in many parts and the authorities are seriously contemplating the opening of relief works. To argue that it is not advisable that England should pay a portion of the cost of the war inasmuch as such a course would encourage the authorities in India to indulge more freely in wars, is after all a stratagem. The real object of such a misleading statement is too well known. No money will be paid out of the British exchequer unless and until the Parliament approves of the measures of the ministers who have been the cause of the war, which should be ultimately explained to the British electors to their entire satisfaction; and the British ministers are aware of the fact that their version of the cause of the war will not commend itself to the British electors and that they will be taken to task for their blunder. It is really painful to note that Her Majesty has spoken of India in vague and insipid language. Nevertheless, without being disheartened, we expect such of the members of the British Parliament as have been taking no small interest in the welfare of India to advocate our cause in times of necessity. The Governor of Bombay and the Viceroy have done all that they could to deprive us of our feelings of loyalty to the British Government. No human effort can succeed in making us disloyal as we are a nation noted for loyalty and forbearance.

INDIA MITRAN, Tanjore, Feb. 15th, 1898.

Expediency of repealing the stringent regulations regarding the plague.

53. The India Mitran, of the 15th February, regards the bubonic plague as a punishment sent by God on sinners, and advises Government to suspend the operation of the plague regulations for the reason that they are very severe and subject the people to various kinds of hardship,—such as forfeiture of their property, separation of children from their parents, and, above all, of women from their husbands by the plague officers who are enamoured of their beauty, defilement of places of worship, indiscriminate treatment of all classes without observing the necessary distinction of caste and creed, and so forth. The paper is of opinion that the "Poona tragedy" and "Sinnor riots" are the outcome of great heart-burning on the part of the people, and recommends the repeal of all the stringent regulations regarding the plague, which the paper thinks, will enable Government to save much money and remove the sufferings the people are now smarting under. The paper concludes with the remark that when the same plague visited Agra three hundred years ago, Jehangir, the then emperor, did not waste public money in the manner in which the English Government does now to prevent the spread of the plague, but he left nature to take her own course, on the score that the plague was a scourge sent by the Almighty which no human effort could fend off.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Feb. 21st, 1898.

A request to Government regarding Damodar Chapekar.

54. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 21st February, remarks that Damodar Chapekar's demeanour throughout the trial makes one suspect that he is rather insane and that the authorities should subject him to medical observation.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 12th, 1898.

Remarks on His Excellency Lord Elgin.

55. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th February, writes as follows:—It does not look fair on the part of His Excellency the Governor-General, who belongs to the Liberal party, to act according to the suggestions of the members of the Conservative party. His Excellency does not scruple to carry out whatever order that is passed by the Secretary of State for India, and thus does things which reflect great discredit on the Liberal party. Ever since the present Viceroy took charge of the Government of India he has been doing many objectionable acts such as engagement in the useless and expensive frontier war, failure to adopt precautionary measures to mitigate the severity of famine and neglect to restrain the Governor of Bombay when he went headlong in dealing with the recent political disturbances in Bombay, all of which have tended to sully the reputation of the British Government. Never did India see in the past such a feeble-minded Governor-General as His Excellency Lord Elgin. He is only a Liberal in name, but his actions are not worthy of the party he belongs to.

56. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th February, writes as follows:—It has been decided that India alone should bear the expenses of the frontier war. In response to the cry for pecuniary help raised by the Hindus, it has been suggested by the Secretary of State for India that a pound should be made to have a permanent rate of exchange and that European merchants should be encouraged to utilize their capital in carrying on merchandise in India, so that the profit gained by them may be expended in this country in view to enable the poorer classes among the Hindus to secure sufficient occupation and means of livelihood. We are sorry to observe that such a proposal will, instead of producing the desired effect of doing good to the natives, operate as a severe infliction on the people who are already groaning under heavy taxation. As the frontier war was begun in the interest of England in view to prevent the Russians from stepping into India should they rise in arms against the English, it is but reasonable that England should exclusively bear the whole cost of the war. But, as India depends on England for her safety, the former may be required to meet a portion of the cost. Impartial thinkers having at heart the welfare of both England and India have expressed the same opinion. Does it stand to reason that poor India should be saddled with the whole cost of the war? In regard to the suggestion of the Secretary of State, it may be said that its adoption must necessarily affect local commerce and industry which are already in a retrograde condition. The settlement of many Europeans in India as planters and the remittance of large sums of money from this country have already proved detrimental to the interest of India. Should the rate of exchange be permanently fixed once for all, it would only induce larger numbers of Europeans to repair to India like so many locusts; and the export of money to foreign countries must necessarily be still greater. In these circumstances, the suggestion of the Secretary of State, instead of proving beneficial to the Indians as alleged by him, will seriously tell on their material prosperity in the long run. What a great calamity it will be to India!

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 17th, 1898.

Remarks on a suggestion of the Secretary of State for India.

57. A correspondent to the same paper, reporting that the congress will hold its meeting this year in Madras, suggests that a congress committee should be nominated in each taluk of a district, and that every village comprised in the taluk should be represented in the central committee which should hold public meetings in any two or three conspicuous localities of the taluk at least four times a year and should nominate delegates to represent the voters at the ensuing meeting of the congress. The correspondent thinks that the method here recommended will not only convince the masses of the usefulness and importance of the congress, but will also create in them a spirit of unanimity and co-operation and enable them to represent their grievances then and there.

A few suggestions regarding the congress.

58. The Sasilekha, of the 15th February, referring to the question as to who should pay the expenses of the frontier wars in India, remarks that, if the Lord Chancellor of Exchequer represents to the Parliament the necessity for voting a subsidy towards the expenses of these wars, the honourable members will certainly inquire into the matter and reprimand the Government for undertaking such unnecessary wars. The whole conduct of the Government of India would be then exposed to its shame. The present ministry is therefore interested in representing the condition of India in a favourable light, showing the non-necessity for a subsidy. Some of the English papers, it remarks, write to say that these wars, unnecessarily waged by the Conservative Government, have tended to expose the people of India to much suffering, weakening thereby the British Government in India.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1898.

The frontier wars and the Conservative Government.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 26th, 1898.

Notices reminding the mutiny, etc., on the walls of Calcutta.

59. The Andhraprakasika, of the 26th February, stating that notices inciting people to rebellion against the English seemed to have been struck upon the walls of Calcutta on the night of the 19th February, remarks that if it were true that such notices were so affixed, it would not be sinful to shoot the offenders from off the mouth of a gun or even to tie them to trees on the road side and torture them with swords. Though the people are very loyal, the rulers are impressed with the idea that they are disloyal. Under such circumstances these notices tend to confirm their belief. God alone knows whether the act was done by any of the badmashes in Calcutta or by the enemies themselves with the object of creating stronger hatred towards the people and of bringing the Calcuttaites into disgrace.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 21st, 1898.

The Famine Commission a waste of public money.

60. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st February, says:—From the published report of the evidence given before the so-called Famine Commission which is now sitting in Madras, it is evident that this commission is more or less a waste of public money. It has examined a number of official witnesses who have had direct personal experience of the administration of relief during the recent famine, but after carefully reading their evidence one fails to find much that would be of use when the commission comes to suggest improvements in the present Famine Code.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Feb. 18th, 1898

Corruption in segregation camps.

61. The Suryodaya, of the 18th February, gives the following piece of news:—"One Vanavole Andimoorthappa, of Dharmavaram, was travelling in the train with his wife from Raichur. At Guntakal a European doctor examined them and took them to the segregation camp. The man, however, being afraid that his wife, who was a beautiful lady, would not fare well at the camp, spent the sum of Rs. 150 which he had with him and got out of the segregation camp." The paper then remarks that in these days it is difficult to travel without being subjected to all kinds of insults unless we take a large sum of money with us to bribe the doctors.

ERRATA.

In the Newspaper Report No. 3 for first fortnight of February 1898—

Seventh line from bottom of page 40, for the word "ryots" read "rights."

Sixth line of paragraph 48, page 52, for the word "less" read "loss."

Issued 9th March 1898.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 5 of 1898.

REPORT
ON
NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS
FOR THE
Fortnight ending 15th March 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| European powers and China | 75 |
| The Nawabs of Carnatic and the British Government | ib. |
| Frontier operations | 76 |
| The British Government and the Nawabs of Carnatic | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Trichambaram festival | 77 |
| Remarks on the enlistment of men in the Police department | ib. |
| Complaint against the Mappilla sepoys and the police of Cannanore | 78 |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Complaints against the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi | ib. |
| Abuse of village munsifs' courts | 79 |
| The injustice of the conviction of Mr. Tilak | ib. |
| Suggestions regarding the selection of jurors and assessors | ib. |
| Sub-magistrates themselves to make local inquiries | 80 |
| Inadequate punishment in a theft case | ib. |
| Fraud committed by a munsif's court peon in executing a warrant | ib. |
| (c) Jails—Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Government to hand over the Government college building at Calicut to the Basel Mission | ib. |
| Education of Mappilas | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Kerosine-oil stores in Masulipatam | 81 |
| Adulteration of food-stuffs | ib. |
| The municipal administration of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore | ib. |
| Unsatisfactory administration of some of the municipalities in Malabar | ib. |
| Sanitation of the Calicut municipality | 82 |
| Remarks on the leasing of lands by the Calicut municipality | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Advisability of fixing a permanent rate of assessment, etc. | ib. |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Forest administration in Kistna | ib. |
| (h) Railways— | |
| The South Indian Railway at Nellore | ib. |
| Railway thefts | 83 |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Stoppage of public works | ib. |
| Wanting irrigation | ib. |
| Bad condition of public footpaths in the interior of Malabar | ib. |
| Bad state of Chávakkát-Kunnamkkal road | ib. |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Salt revenue administration | 84 |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—cont. | |
| (k) General— | |
| The Governor's tours | 84 |
| The Governor-Generalship | ib. |
| The Advocate-Generalship | ib. |
| The Sastlokha | ib. |
| A wrong prescription of medicine | 85 |
| Lord Sandhurst's convocation address | ib. |
| Serious allegations against a sub-registrar in Malabar | ib. |
| Irregularities in the Registration department | 86 |
| Criticising a certain order of the Bombay Government | ib. |
| Notification issued by the Government of Bombay regarding the pilgrims of the Madras Presidency to Hedjas | ib. |
| The interest which Her Majesty the Queen-Empress takes in Indian matters | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| The Indian Penal Code Amendment Act | ib. |
| The law of sedition | 87 |
| The Sedition Bill | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Desirability of nominating M.R.Ry. Vijia Raghunatha Durai Raja, B.A., as Acting Maharaja of Pudukkóttai | ib. |
| The undesirability of any change in the Mysore Government. | 88 |
| The desirability of an inquiry as to the attendance and work done by munsifs in Mysore | ib. |
| The conduct of the amildars in Mysore | ib. |
| The Cochin police | ib. |
| A certain magistrate in Travancore coming to office at a late hour | ib. |
| A set of bad characters in Cochin State to be brought to book | 89 |
| Complaint against a record-keeper in Cochin State | ib. |
| Lepers in Travancore | ib. |
| Travancore Sirkar arbitrarily taking possession of a piece of land | ib. |
| Mr. Plowden and the Nizam | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.—Nil. | |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| A remark on the conviction of Damodar Chapekar | 90 |
| A riot at Nasik | ib. |
| Observations on the memorial of the mirasidars of Tanjore regarding the Pariyahs | ib. |
| Maltreatment of the natives in Natal | ib. |
| A remark on the advice to students by His Excellency Lord Sandhurst | 91 |
| Drinking | ib. |
| Hardships entailed on the people by the plague prevention measures | ib. |
| The dread in which the people hold the measures adopted for the suppression of the plague | ib. |
| England should help India to meet the frontier war expenses. | ib. |
| Unreliability of the vital statistics in India | ib. |
| Schoolmasters and politics | ib. |
| The place of execution for the Poona murderer | ib. |
| Irregularities in the transport of pilgrims to Hedjas | 92 |
| Molestation of travellers on the frontier of Mahé | ib. |
| Salt peons on the frontier of Mahé | ib. |
| Use of false weights and measures in Calicut bazaars | ib. |

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Vivekha Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 850 | Feb. 1898. |
| 2 | "Journal of Education" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | Jan. and Feb. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 1st Mar. 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 4 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 25th Jan. and 25th Feb. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 5 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 19th and 26th Feb. and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| 6 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 26th Feb. 1898. |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 19th and 26th Feb. and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| 9 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 6th ,, 20th ,, 1898. |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 23rd Feb. and 2nd Mar. 1898. |
| 11 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 21st ,, 1898. |
| 12 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 28th ,, and 7th Mar. 1898. |
| 13 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 12th ,, 1898. |
| 14 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 22nd ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 24th Feb. and 1st Mar. 1898. |
| 16 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 20th and 27th Feb. and 6th Mar. 1898. |
| 17 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 19th ,, 26th ,, 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 22nd, 24th and 26th Feb. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 384 | Mar. 1898. |
| 20 | "Purushardhapradayini" .. .. | Masulipatam .. .. | 250 | Sept. to Dec. 1897. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 21 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 15th Jan. 1898. |
| 22 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 230 | 1st Mar. ,, |
| 23 | "Andhradesopakari" .. .. | Nellore .. .. .. | .. | 28th Feb. ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 26th Feb. and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 1st, 4th, 8th and 11th Mar. 1898. |
| 26 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 2nd, 5th, 9th and 12th ,, ,, |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 7th and 14th Mar. 1898. |
| 28 | "Suryodaya" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 4th Mar. 1898. |
| 29 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 5th and 12th Mar. 1898. |
| 30 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 31 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 2nd ,, 9th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 32 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 2nd and 12th Mar. 1898. |
| 33 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 25th Feb. and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| 34 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 28th ,, ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st and 11th Mar. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 36 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 26th Feb. and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| 37 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 28th ,, ,, 7th ,, ,, |
| 38 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 2nd and 9th Mar. 1898. |
| 39 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 40 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 28th Feb. and 7th Mar. 1898. |
| 41 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 19th and 26th Feb and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| 42 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th Feb. 1898. |
| 43 | "Alhami" .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 6th Mar. ,, |
| 44 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 24th Feb. and 3rd Mar. 1898. |
| 45 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 17th and 21st Feb. and 3rd Mar. 1898. |
| 46 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 11th Aug. and 1st Nov 1897. |
| 47 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 19th and 25th Feb. 1898. |
| 48 | "Ayeen-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | Feb. 1898. |
| 49 | "Mukhnin-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Do. .. .. | .. | Dec. 1897 and Jan. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Mahbub-i-Dukhan, of the 24th February, writes that Europe is supreme in commerce, agriculture, art, science and wealth. Notwithstanding all this, Europe is not contented. It would have mattered little if Europe looked for its benefit without injuring others. But this is not the case. The ever-restless Europe, under cover of extending civilization and commerce, wishes to upset the whole world. Though it has already provided for itself everything required for ease and comfort, still it does not keep quiet. It cherishes a vain idea of spreading civilization and establishing peace and tranquillity in foreign countries, when it is unable to put down home disturbances. In Europe self-interestedness and egotism reign supreme. The European powers —whether England, France, Germany and Russia—consider themselves most powerful and yet fear each other. They used to try conjointly to take possession of foreign countries under weak rulers. They have now turned their attention towards China and Central Africa, and it remains to be seen what the result will be. They had likewise conjointly coerced Turkey, but were unsuccessful owing to their separate interests. Russia and Germany got ports opened for them in China, but it is matter for satisfaction that the sympathetic England did not, and it is hoped that she will help China as stated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Mahbub-i-Dukhan, Madras, Feb. 24th, 1898.

European powers and China.

2. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th February, publishes translation of an extract from the Arabic paper called the Al-Muvaid, of Cairo, under the head "Treatment of the Nawabs of Carnatic by the English," with the following superscription, viz., "We are not responsible for the opinion expressed by the Al-Muvaid." The extract is to the following effect :—

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Feb. 28th, 1898.

The Nawabs of Carnatic and the British Government.

"The following historical communication, which was received by us (the Al-Muvaid) on the 24th January from an inhabitant of the City of Madras (name not given), is inserted in our columns as a warning to those who act according to our advice (sic):

"In the 12th century of the Muhammadan era (1789), when Nawab Muhammad Ali Khan was the ruler of the Carnatic, the English were very loyal and faithful to him and had assured him that they would sacrifice their lives on his behalf on any emergency. This loyalty on their part resulted in creating in the mind of the Nawab love for and confidence in them.

"After having thus made the Nawab to be attached to themselves they presented to him a friendly letter from His Britannic Majesty together with many choice and valuable presents. In this letter the Nawab was addressed as 'the Great King of Hindustan.' Subsequently the English persuaded the Nawab to sign a treaty which he did on account of the flattering terms used in the beginning of the treaty, being blind to the evil intention of the English contained in its latter part.

"By the treaty the Nawab was bound to defray the expenses of 1,200 British soldiers and to refrain from giving military appointments to any but the English. In return the English promised to protect his kingdom from external enemies.

"After this event the English issued a proclamation throughout India declaring the Nawab their great ally and supporter, which persuaded the Nawab to grant them fertile lands yielding three millions of rupees annually and an extensive plot of land near the beach, Madras, for constructing a fort and other buildings. A considerable sum of money and many precious gems were also granted to them. In short, the Nawab treated the English as a man treats his own brother or an intimate friend.

"The Nawab was foolish or impolitic in considering the English to be his friends and supporters, as he was not allowed to re-establish his army which he had foolishly disbanded.

"The Nawab died in 1210 Hijri (1796 A.D.) and was succeeded by his son Umdat-ul-umra, and after the death of the latter prince, Ali Hussain his son took his seat upon the musnad without the permission of the English, but he was subsequently removed and his cousin Azeem-ud Dowlah placed on the musnad. Another treaty was made with this young prince by which the Carnatic was taken over by the English, and one hundred thousand rupees were settled on the Nawab for the time being as an allowance.

"A letter from the King of England was also received in which His Majesty in recognising the treaty assured the Nawab that so long as the English remained in India the treaty would be respected.

"At the time when this foolish Nawab was placed on the musnad there were many competent sons of the Nawab Muhammad Ali Khan, but the English overlooked their claims for the above-mentioned purpose (viz., taking the Carnatic into their possession). He died in 1235 Hijri (1820 A.D.) and was succeeded by his son Auzam Jah, and after Auzam Jah his infant son Nawab Ghulam Muhammad Ghaus Khan was placed on the musnad and his uncle Azeem Jah was appointed Regent. When the Nawab Ghulam Muhammad Ghaus Khan assumed full powers he began to gain the hearts of the people by being kind and munificent. He died in 1272 Hijri (1856 A.D.) without issue. On the Nawab Azeem Jah representing his claims to the musnad, the English advised him to petition the British Parliament. He did so, and after a trial which lasted eleven years he was declared not to be entitled to the musnad for the reason that he was not the son of the last Nawab of the Carnatic.

"There is another Native State near the Carnatic called Mysore which was also taken under the protection of the English in the same way as the Carnatic was taken. But after the death of its last Raja, his adoptde son was placed on the musnad. It is a pity the claims of Nawab Azeem Jah, uncle of the Nawab Ghulam Muhammad Ghaus Khan, brother of Auzam Jah, son of Azeem-ud Dowlah and grandson of Nawab Muhammad Ali Khan, were overlooked and that he was not considered to have claims equal to those of an adopted son.

"After the order was passed by the British Parliament disallowing his claims to the musnad, Azeem Jah repeatedly petitioned Her Majesty, who settled a sum of Rs. 25,000 per mensem on him with the title of Prince of Arcot. He enjoyed this for seven years and died. After his death the pension was reduced by half and is distributed among his relatives inclusive of the present Prince of Arcot whose family is in straitened circumstances."

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Mar. 3rd, 1898.

Frontier operations.

3. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 3rd March, in discussing at length the expenditure incurred on account of the frontier operations, writes that the Government of India and the Secretary of State may, without assigning any reason, order its payment from the Indian Exchequer and that no one will question their act. If it be admitted that the condition of crops next year will be favourable, still it may be fairly said that India is very poor and in want of funds. Should half of these expenses be met by the English Exchequer, there would be no need for raising fresh loans and burdening the Indians with taxations, and, moreover, the abandoned railway projects can be continued. With all this, funds are required to battle with the plague now raging in parts of India. In conclusion, the Qasim says that if Indians are offered pecuniary aid and are not burdened with over-taxations, then they are sure to become more loyal and devoted than ever to the British Government.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Mar. 7th, 1898.

The British Government and the Nawabs of Carnatic.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th March, comments on the extract—a translation of which it inserted in its issue of the 28th February—from the Al-Muvaid of Cairo, which purports to be a letter written by a correspondent at Madras regarding the treatment of the Nawabs of Carnatic by the English, and says whatever is written in the letter is false and malicious, and exhibits the utter ignorance of the writer. He is, in fact, an enemy of the family of the Nawabs of Carnatic. It is true that the Al-Mursid cannot be blamed for the letter, as editors are not responsible for the opinion expressed by correspondents, but it behoves the inhabitants of Madras not to act in this unbecoming manner. The contents of the letter purport to be a short history of the Nawabs, and when a historian wishes to represent facts, he will never wish to keep his name secret, or to send his history to a distant land (like Egypt) for publication. It is always the case that when an enemy is unable to carry out his evil intentions, he pretends to be a friend as the writer has done. In the beginning of the letter this clandestine writer tries to cast a slur on the just and equitable British Government, and thus to exhibit his pretended good wishes towards the late Nawabs. But his remarks in the letter appear to be sarcastic, for he calls the Nawabs foolish and thus he betrays himself. It is supposed that this anonymous writer is not only the enemy of the late Nawabs, but also of the present Prince of Arcot, who is much obliged to and grateful for the favours which the benevolent Government has from time to time showed, and is showing, towards him. Everybody knows that very recently honours have been conferred on the Prince, and these favours are being increased day by day, but the writer misrepresents facts and thus tries to lower the Prince in the estimation of the British Government. The Shams further contradicts some of the remarks of the writer thus:—

The writer says: Muhammad Ali Khan was addressed as "the Great King of Hindustan."

The Shams says: This is incorrect as the Government letter does not contain any such words. This shows the writer's utter ignorance.

The writer.—The Nawab signed the treaty on account of the flattering terms used in it, being blind to the evil intentions of the English.

The Shams.—From the above remark it appears that the Nawab Muhammad Ali Khan was such a fool as to fall a prey to flattery. He was not, but, on the contrary, was very just and level-headed man.

The writer.—The Nawab was foolish or impolitic in considering, etc.

The Shams.—If the writer himself admits that Muhammad Ali Khan was foolish or impolitic, how can the British Government be blamed for so thinking.

In conclusion, the Shams says from the letter it appears that the intention of the writer is to make Government suspect the fidelity of the Carnatic family. This is absurd since the family in general, and the present Prince of Arcot—who enjoys every ease and comfort under the auspicious shadow of the benevolent British Government—in particular, are grateful for the favours shown to the family.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Trichambaram festival.

5. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd March, regretfully observes that the festival at the famous temple of Trichambaram begins on the 4th March, and that for the last ten or twelve years no respectable women had been present at it, owing to some wild young men who congregate there bent on insulting their modesty and otherwise annoying them. The police detailed for duty on such occasions hang about the place where gambling goes on and what they get as a hush-money they expend in the liquor stalls. It is hoped that the new Inspector of Police will make the needful arrangements with a view to remedy this evil.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1892.

Remarks on the enlistment of men in the Police department.

6. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th March, states:—A man who was taken on as a constable on the strength of a certificate testifying to his character which the departmental rule requires, was the other day dismissed on the discovery that previous to his joining the force he had been concerned in a case of dacoity. We fear that this is not a solitary instance of an undesirable character being taken into the police owing to the culpable negligence or unscrupulous greed for money of those who grant certificates to persons wishing to enlist in the police. We are aware of a police inspector who invariably grants certificates of this kind to any one who is ready to pay him a sum of Rs. 3, while there are other inspectors in Malabar to whom a bottle of brandy is an irresistible inducement to the granting of such a certificate. So long as this state of things is suffered to go on in Malabar, the wishes of Government to enlist men of good conduct in the Police department will be defeated.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Mar. 9th, 1892.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 12th, 1898.

Complaint against the Mappila sepoys and the police of Cannanore.

7. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th March, writes about the misdeeds of the Mappila sepoys stationed at Cannanore. It appears that during the festival of the Hindu temple situated near the local munsif's court, these sepoys went prepared to the temple at night to cause disturbance and fell out first with the gamblers in the temple compound and then entered the temple and beat the people inside. The sepoys are said to have even outraged the modesty of women who were in the temple and done other heinous offences. It is for the strength of Government and for the safety of the people that the military and the police have been organised, but since the stationing of the sepoys at Cannanore there has been no safety to the people there. The correspondent therefore advises the Military authorities to transfer the Mappila sepoys from Cannanore as he fears that serious consequences will result otherwise. The correspondent further says that as the local police are hand-and-glove with the sepoys, many thefts which have occurred in the town remain undetected. He adds that owing to the indifference of the police in these matters the owners of stolen properties think it better to suffer the loss rather than make a complaint to the police. The police officers also ought to be transferred.

Referring to the same subject, a leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th March, states that some constables who were lately escorting a few prisoners to the Central Jail at Cannanore, were resisted on their way by two Mappila sepoys. They were accordingly apprehended and sent to the Sub-Collector. He made them over to their Colonel who, giving them some good advice, let them off. This conduct of the officer is very much to be blamed. The resistance offered to the police while escorting the prisoners was a serious offence. If during the confusion caused by the resistance any prisoner had escaped from custody, what would have been the punishment inflicted on the police constables? The mildness shown to the Mappilas simply acts as an incentive to further aggression and lawlessness.

The same article says that during the festival at the Kamvelli temple at Cannanore some Mappila sepoys caused an affray and destroyed some of the temple properties, etc. It is a matter of surprise that the authorities concerned have not taken any effective measures, though to their knowledge the conduct of the Mappila sepoys has often led to breach of peace, to destruction of property and extreme annoyance to the public.

(b) Courts.

JNANODAYAM, Tanjore, Feb. 12th, 1898.

Complaints against the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi.

8. The Jnanodayam, of the 12th February, referring to a case of infanticide brought to the notice of the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi by the village magistrate concerned, regrets to observe that the sub-magistrate failed to examine the woman charged with the offence himself and to send the lady said to have been brought to bed of the murdered child to the medical officer for the necessary examination and report, and that he had the case inquired into by the police who have no power to take cognizance of such cases. The paper is at a loss to know why the said sub-magistrate unnecessarily allowed certain dead bodies to be exhumed for post-mortem examination, although there was abundant evidence to show that death was due to drowning by accident. The paper further complains that the sub-magistrate in question keeps the court open late in the nights and makes it a point to try important cases only while he is on circuit, which subjects the poor parties, their witnesses and counsels to endless difficulties and inconveniences. The paper concludes with the remark that the conduct of the sub-magistrate is viewed with great dissatisfaction by the people.

9. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 23rd February, writes as follows:—If a suit for the recovery of Rs. 5 is filed in a village munsif's court, the plaintiff is obliged to spend more than Rs. 5 in the shape of court-fees, travelling allowance, witnesses' batta, process-service fees and so forth, all of which form too heavy a burden for the poor judgment-debtor to bear. In view to help the poor people of this country, the merciful Government has passed (Act I of 1889) the Madras Village Courts Act. Under section 19 of (Act VII of 1870) the Court Fees Act, the parties are exempted from court-fees in the suits brought under the Village Courts Act, and if the defendant happens to be a local inhabitant, the plaintiff is not required to meet defendant's summons, batta, etc., and may conduct the suit without any expense whatever. In spite of such concessions granted to the poor villagers by Government, it is to be regretted that village munsifs take four annas for every rupee claimed by the party. In a district munsif's court a court-fee of six annas is claimed in respect of a suit for the recovery of Rs. 5, and if the same suit is filed in a village munsif's court, the expenses amount to nearly Re. 1–4–0. Thus the cost in respect of a suit in a village munsif's court is three times as much as that incurred in a district munsif's court, and yet large number of suits is filed in village munsif's court, for no other reason than that the parties are sure of obtaining decrees even in suits relating to claims barred by limitation and that a good deal of vexation is avoided, the village munsif's court being near the place of the litigants. It is hoped that measures will be adopted to see that the law relating to village munsif's court really serves the purpose for which it was intended by Government, and that the poor villagers are not saddled with unnecessary expenses in petty suits.

Abuse of village munsifs' courts.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Feb. 23rd, 1898.

10. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th March, gives a translation of a correspondence from a retired High Court Judge, published in the India. The correspondent says that it is highly discreditable to the Judicial tribunals of India and also to Her Majesty's Privy Council to have overlooked the chief point to be determined in the trial of Mr. Tilak. The motive which seems to have prompted the Judges was to have Tilak put in prison by some means or other and to strike terror into the minds of his friends and supporters. That if Tilak deserved to be sent to prison for what he said, the correspondent himself and many others who have written strongly about the subject would deserve to suffer the same punishment as Tilak.

The injustice of the conviction of Mr. Tilak.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 7th, 1898.

11. A correspondent in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 2nd March, invites the attention of the District Magistrate of Malabar to the necessity of issuing strict orders to the tahsildars in the matter of recommending persons to be selected as jurors and assessors as he, and not the District Judge, who is to judge as to the competency or otherwise of the men so selected. As the jurors and assessors selected on the recommendation of tahsildars are generally men of no education and capacity, the tahsildars should be instructed to recommend only such men as are worthy for that office. The correspondent further adds that as the jurors have more responsible functions to perform than the assessors, they should be more or less English-educated men and their list should be separately published from that of the assessors.

Suggestions regarding the selection of jurors and assessors.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

12. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes that as the practice of some of the sub-magistrates in Malabar referring criminal cases to the adhikaris for inquiry and report affords ample facilities for them to manipulate the records in accordance with their views and the people are also quite dissatisfied with this practice, the magistrates should themselves make the local inquiries. It is very unjust to convict or acquit a prisoner on the strength of the report of these adhikaris, and the matter should therefore be taken notice of by the Collector.

Sub-magistrates themselves to make local inquiries.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 9th, 1898.

13. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th March, referring to a sentence passed by the stationary magistrate of Calicut in the case of a theft of Rs. 1,500 from Henke & Co.'s at Ferok, remarks that 25 stripes are out of all proportions to the gravity of the offence. It must be known to the magistrate that there are men in Malabar quite prepared to receive fifty, one hundred or even two hundred stripes for Rs. 1,500.

Inadequate punishment in a theft case.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 7th, 1898.

14. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 7th March, writes that it is rumoured that the peon who took the warrant issued from the munsif's court, Palghat, for arresting one Navu, of Elappalli, for the non-payment of the amount decreed against him in a civil suit, arrested some other individual and kept him in jail instead of the said Navu. It is true that the decree amount was afterwards paid in court; but, as this is a serious matter, it is hoped that the munsif will try to ascertain the truth and do the needful.

Fraud committed by a munsif's court peon in executing a warrant.

(d) Education.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

15. In a sub-leader, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd March, observes that the only difficulty alleged to stand in the way of the missionaries in raising their high school at Calicut to the status of a second-grade college is the want of suitable accommodation for the same. We had therefore on a former occasion remarked that the Director of Public Instruction should hand over to the mission the building once used for a second-grade college. We have recently learned the fact that the land on which the building stands was made over gratis to the Government by a former Muppan of the Kallingal matham for the purpose of building a school, and a sum of Rs. 7,000 was raised by public subscription towards the construction of the building. These facts will be borne out, we dare say, by the old records in the office of the Director of Public Instruction. Under these circumstances there can be no possibility of any objection on the part of the Government or of the Director of Public Instruction to give up the building for the public good. The building is too spacious for the training institution, for the requirements of which the Mission high school building would amply suffice. When the missionaries are inclined to place the mission building at the disposal of Government for the accommodation of the training institution, we could not see what objection Government could have to hand over the college building to the mission.

Government to hand over the Government college building at Calicut to the Basel Mission.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 9th, 1898.

16. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th March, observes that the education of the Mappilas is to be deemed a condition essential to the safety of the country. But so long as the efforts of Government are not bent in the right direction, the end contemplated cannot be realised. It criticises severely the system of the sessional school. This system costs the Government a sum of Rs. 900, but it is unproductive of any good to the Mappilas. It is therefore hoped the Director of Public Instruction will give his attention to this subject. After six months' schooling is over, a Mappila boy betakes himself to some trade, and the books that he has learned may be among the articles that he parts with first for money. The examination takes place in the case of some, six months after the study is discontinued and the result, as can be expected, will be unsatisfactory. The schools formerly established at Tirur, Mallappuram and Tellicherry, as preparatory to the Training Institution at Calicut, were productive of satisfactory results.

Education of Mappilas.

(e) Local and Municipal.

17. The Purushardhapradayini, for September–December, received on the 5th March 1898, observing that the establishment of magazines of explosives in the midst of shops and dwelling-houses has hitherto caused considerable loss of life and property in London, Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and other places, remarks that it is desirable to order the removal of the kerosine-oil stores in Masulipatam to vacant grounds far away from the bazaars and dwelling-houses in the town.

PURUSHARDHA-PRADAYINI, Masulipatam, Sept.-Dec. 1897.

Kerosine-oil stores in Masulipatam.

18. The same paper observes that the rice and other food-stuffs sold in the bazaars of Masulipatam are mixed with cheap and unwholesome substances, which have a tendency to cause indigestion and dysentery, paving the way for the spread of cholera. It therefore prays that the market inspector and the sanitary inspectors will endeavour their best to put a stop to the said practice of adulterating food-stuffs.

Adulteration of food-stuffs.

19. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 14th March, points out various defects and irregularities in the municipality of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore. The roads are said to be badly kept, the material used for repairs being soft stone which is reduced to dust in a few days and in that form is a source of great annoyance to the people. The sanitation of the place, too, is very bad, and the tax-payers are put to great worry by being constantly asked to make all sorts of changes in the latrines. The assessment of the house-tax is based on no principle whatever. The haphazard way in which the profession-tax is put upon the people is something fearful to contemplate. A vakil who gets an income of only Rs. 12 a-month has to pay the same tax as one who gets Rs. 60 a-month. No attempt is made to ascertain the income of a man before the tax is imposed.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 14th, 1898.

The municipal administration of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore.

20. The Kerala Patrika, of the 5th March, has a leader on the unsatisfactory administration of the municipalities of Calicut and Tellicherry. The paper says that one of the several boons which have been conferred upon the people by the British Government is the establishment of municipalities and local boards to train them for local self-government, but owing to the deplorable incompetency of the people of Calicut and Tellicherry in making a right use of this power, dissensions and disturbances have been caused in their respective municipalities. Owing to the indifference displayed by the councillors in the matter of the administration of the Calicut municipality it was deprived of the elective franchise, though it has, on the representation of the rate-payers to the present Governor when he visited Calicut, regained that privilege partially. The state of affairs in the Tellicherry municipality is in no way better than that of the Calicut municipality, and owing to the ill-feeling between the councillors and to the corrupt practices during some of the recent elections, the Collector has recommended to Government the withdrawal of the privilege of election from the municipality. Formerly elections in the Tellicherry municipality were conducted in a just manner and without any room for complaint or dispute, and it is a matter for regret that it has taken such a bad turn so soon. The article, after dwelling upon the matter at some length, advises the people to give up their petty prejudices and work with co-operation in discharging their responsible functions.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 5th, 1898.

Unsatisfactory administration of some of the municipalities in Malabar.

21. Another leader in the same issue of the paper invites the attention of the Chairman of the Calicut municipality to the desirability of putting a stop to the practice of throwing municipal sweepings in a pit in the paramba close to the District Registrar's office, which part of the town is thickly populated. Cholera is still prevailing in some parts of the municipality and to collect sweepings in populous places is very dangerous. Another matter to which the article draws the attention of the Chairman is the unsatisfactory watering of roads in the municipality.

Sanitation of the Calicut municipality.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 7th, 1898.

22. A leader in the Manorama, of the 7th March, invites the attention of the Chairman of the Calicut municipality to the desirability of making inquiries into a case in which some fraud is alleged to have been committed by a certain municipal servant in the matter of leasing out certain land near the Kallai bridge which the tahsildar of Calicut taluk rented in auction for an annual sum of Rs. 141 under the impression that that land had not been included in the portion which the Government had handed over to the municipality, but which the said municipal servant had on inquiry into the application made by a Mappila for the lease of it recommended to be given to him on an annual rent of Rs. 12. The opinion is expressed that if the lands which the municipality has leased out be rented to the highest bidder in an auction in future, following the example set by the above tahsildar, the amount which is now realised under that head is likely to be enhanced.

Remarks on the leasing of lands by the Calicut municipality.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Feb. 20th, 1898.

23. The Lokopakari, of the 20th February, is of opinion that if the authorities be pleased to fix a permanent rate of assessment in respect of lands, etc., to render the ryots greater irrigational facilities and to adopt precautionary measures in view to ward off famine, bearing in mind that prevention is better than cure, the people of this Presidency will be better off, even in times of failure of rain.

Advisability of fixing a permanent rate of assessment, etc.

(g) Forests.

PURUSHARDHAPRADAYINI, Masulipatam, Sept.–Dec. 1897.

24. The Purushardhapradayini, for September–December, writes thus (in English):—"Many villages in the Bandur taluk are let off permanently to ryots as patta lands. They are used only for the grazing of cattle and sheep, and the ryots pay sists to Government annually as laid down in their pattas. Almost every patta land or village has a barren, grassless swamp bordering it, and it is not included in the pattas as a grace land for the use of cattle, etc. Since a few years, the Forest department have been charging four annas for each head of cattle on the understanding perhaps that it is a part of the forest, and that cattle or sheep grazing in the patta lands cannot but stray into the adjoining swamp. The patta-holders have been therefore put to permanent loss as people do not pay the usual pullari or grazing rate on account of the extra charge with which the foresters have saddled them so unusually without regard or charitable consideration to Mandakhandams. Nay, they have even cut off boundary lines amidst a patta land in the village of Kona (Nellithippa)."

Forest administration in Kistna.

(h) Railways.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Mar. 5th, 1898.

25. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 5th March, states that on the 24th February tickets were issued as usual at about 3 P.M. by the South Indian Railway authorities in Nellore for passengers intending to go to Rénigunta and other places, though they were aware of the fact that the train could not leave the station at 3-45 P.M. as usual on account of the repairs on the road at a distance of a mile. The passengers took their seats in the carriages and waited too long, but the train did not start until 6 P.M. The correspondent, therefore, invites the attention of the Railway authorities for this piece of wilful mischief, and asks whether the Railway authorities are not bound to fulfil their engagements, whether they are not responsible for the suffering caused to the passengers and for the loss that might probably have been caused to any of them. He further asks why the authorities did not postpone the issue of tickets, knowing, as they did, that the train could not start at the usual time.

The South Indian Railway at Nellore.

Railway thefts.

26. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 3rd March, writes that one Muhammad Abdulla was travelling from Tanur by the Calicut mail on the 22nd ultimo, and at Vániyambádi station, a little while before the train left the station, two dacoits entered his compartment and forcibly took his carpet bag, throwing him out of the train, and that neither police, guard, nor porter came to his help. Passengers are, owing to such daring thefts, afraid of travelling by railway, and it is incumbent upon the Railway authorities to find out the culprits and award exemplary punishment. The editor, in conclusion, hopes that the Madras Railway authorities will call for explanation from the police, stationmaster and other railway servants of Vániyambádi station for their negligence of duty.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Mar. 3rd, 1898.

(i) Public Works.

Stoppage of public works.

27. The Purushardhapradayini, for September-December, writes thus (in English):— "We hear that our D.P.W. or Revenue authorities have proposed to Government to stop all engineering or industrial works on account of the impending famine, and that Government have accordingly ordered the cessation thereof. Though economy is a virtue in itself, a peculiar shape of it is no good frugality in times of scarcity when it behoves charity to open relief works in all directions with a view to support the labouring classes of people who struggle hard to get a handful of work for daily wages to live upon. The stopping of the works, if true, would bring home to contractors no small amount of pecuniary loss. We hope, for the above reasons, the Government will be pleased to take this into consideration in no time as the matter affects the body of contractors as well as the people at large."

PURUSHARDHA-PRADAYINI, Masulipatam, Sept-Dec. 1897.

Wanting irrigation.

28. The same paper writes thus (in English):—"In the Bandur taluk, thousands of acres in Peda Gollapalem remain as waste lands since a very long time. Ryots applied for canals. Three thousand acres can be brought under the plough if canals be dug out for irrigation purposes only. Is there any good in further delaying the project?"

Bad condition of public footpaths in the interior of Malabar.

29. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th March, invites the attention of the authorities to the bad condition of public footpaths in the interior and to the consequent inconveniences suffered by persons carrying loads. The opinion is expressed that as the bad state of these paths is chiefly to be attributted to the encroachments made upon them by the owners of the adjacent lands, the tahsildars should issue orders to the effect that if the paths are not kept in good condition by such owners, a prohibitory assessment would be imposed on them.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 12th, 1898.

Bad state of Chávakkát-Enamakkal road.

30. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th March, referring to the road leading from Chávakkát to Enamakkal, says that it is in a deplorable condition. It is now simply a track of loose sand. In the summer, men have to walk ankle-deep in burning sand, while in the rainy season the inconvenience is indescribable on account of the absence of bridges across many canals lying in the way. The road sadly requires metalling. The early attention of the taluk board is invited to this point.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 12th, 1898.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Mar. 5th, 1898.

Salt revenue administration.

31. The Andhraprakasika, of the 5th March, observes that there is a peculiar competition as regards the salt manufactured by the Madras Government and that manufactured by the Bombay Government, the former being heavier than the latter, bulk for bulk. Since dealers in salt buy it by weight and sell by measure, they find the Bombay salt more profitable for them. But the consumers sustain a double loss, having to pay a heavier duty while receiving a smaller quantity by weight for the same price. The paper, therefore, suggests that, if Government issues strict orders directing all kinds of salt to be sold by weight, there would be no loss to the consumers, nor would there be any reason for large quantities of salt remaining unsold in the Government depôts.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 8th, 1898.

The Sasilekha, of the 8th March, writing about the administration of salt revenue, notes that Government is easily collecting Rs. 200,00,000 a-year from salt. Those who propose the abolition of the salt-tax have therefore to suggest to Government the means of making good this amount. They could show that by refraining from making wars, reducing the army and appointing natives to higher grades in the Government service, Government would save a great deal of expenditure and sustain no loss, though the whole of the said sum of Rs. 200,00,000 might not be realised thereby. The Government should therefore, the paper says, give its best attention to this matter.

(k) General.

ANDHRADESOPAKARI, Nellore, Feb. 28th, 1898.

The Governor's tours.

32. The Andhradesopakari, of the 28th February, remarks that the practice of His Excellency the Governor visiting the various parts of the presidency is good in itself. But how can he understand the condition of the people, if he has to inspect five districts in fifteen days, and where is the time for him to consider the representations of the people? The paper therefore considers it advisable that His Excellency should remain in each place for a sufficiently long time to consider and redress the grievances of the people. Is it difficult, it asks, for the Governor to spare time or energy for this work, when he can idle away a number of months in the year enjoying heavenly bliss on the Nilgiris.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Mar. 5th, 1898.

The Governor-Generalship.

33. The Andhraprakasika, of the 5th March, referring to Mr. Malabari's suggestions in the Spectator anent the desirability of appointing a member of the royal family as the Governor-General of India, remarks that such a step is most desirable not only in the case of the Governor-General, but also in the case of the Governors. Both the Government and the people would be immensely benefited by entrusting these responsible posts to members of the royal family, rather than to irresponsible persons with large salaries. Her Majesty would then have a clearer and a more detailed account of the condition of India.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 1st, 1898.

The Advocate-Generalship.

34. The Sasilekha, of the 1st March, is greatly surprised that the Secretary of State has not appointed Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar as the Advocate-General of Madras, and is of opinion that the appointment of Mr. Arnold White is an act of injustice. It believes that Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar was passed over not because he was not properly qualified, but because he is a native and a "black man." It deeply regrets that Her Majesty's declarations in the Great Proclamation have been disobeyed in this instance.

The Sasilekha.

35. The editor of the same paper, referring to the complaint made in his journal of the 15th February regarding the non-delivery of the paper to the addressees, states that, since then, five of the subscribers have intimated the non-delivery of their papers, and that one of them has declared his intention to cease to continue a subscriber for the same reason. He therefore invites the attention of the public to the actual loss caused to him by the Post office.

A wrong prescription of medicine.

36. The Sasilekha, of the 8th March, stating that Dr. Dinis (?) of Delhi was accused of having caused the death of Mr. Maclean by adding a poison in the mixture by mistake and that he was consequently transferred from Delhi, while the hospital assistant was depromoted to third grade and the compounder dismissed the service, remarks that the punishment meted out to the doctor for this grave offence is altogether inadequate, and questions how a transfer from one place to another can at all be a punishment.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 8th, 1898.

Lord Sandhurst's convocation address.

37. The same paper, referring to the remarks of His Excellency Lord Sandhurst in his convocation address against the practice of students attending political gatherings, expresses its regret that most of the European officials in India should be opposed to Indian students receiving political instruction. When it is allowable for the college students in England to form themselves into associations to discuss political questions, why should it be pernicious, it asks, for the Indian students in the higher classes to obtain some knowledge of the political condition of the country and how their mere presence at political gatherings could make them disloyal. It remarks that the people of India ought to be ever loyal to the British Government and that they should bring all defects in the administration of the country to its notice. It is not sinful, it says, that students should be instructed in such matters.

Serious allegations against a sub-registrar in Malabar.

38. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd March, under the head of the Registration Department, states:—It is a well-known fact that the Sub-Registrar Vaithiyalingaiyar was lately transferred to Chévayúr from Bettatpudiyangudi on account of some accusations launched against him. The matter was inquired into by the district registrar and the explanation called for was furnished by the sub-registrar. It is necessary for the general satisfaction of the people that a searching inquiry into the matter should be instituted by the Inspector-General of Registration. Some of the grave offences are detailed below:—

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

(1) The sub-registrar while at Bettatpudiyangudi borrowed on a promissory note a sum of Rs. 900 from a Pattar (Brahmin) of Trikkandiyur amsom, a place within the local jurisdiction of the sub-registrar, who has, it appears, done some good service to him in return.

(2) The amount remitted by him on one occasion into the treasury was not the exact sum which he should have sent on that date, and when the inaccuracy was discovered the entries in the receipt book were altered to tally with the treasury accounts. In connection with this certain accounts were fabricated and others destroyed.

(3) He is never punctual in attending the court or in discharging his duties.

(4) He abstracts a part of the stationery and falsifies the accounts so as to conceal it.

(5) When it was proposed to newly open an office at Kalpakancheri, he was deputed to secure a building on rent. In negotiating for it he received a gratification for himself.

The leader closes with the following: We do not make any comment on the gravity of the complaint, but we simply say that it is necessary to decide once for all whether it was true or not that some service was done by the sub-registrar in consideration of the loan received by him. In case he denies this, the burden of proving that the alleged loan was false lies on him. In inquiries made by his superiors evidence was given by some one that the loan received by him on a promissory note was true. So long as the sub-registrar does not prosecute this man to vindicate his character, he simply allows the suspicion against him to gain ground. We cannot overestimate the value of records in a sub-registrar's office as a means whereby titles to landed property are secured. When such records can be tampered with with impunity, where is the safety? An inquiry into this matter also by the higher authorities is solicited.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 12th, 1898.

Irregularities in the Registration department.

39. The Kerala Patrika, of the 12th March, referring to the irregularities and iniquities in the Registration department, says that some of the registrars and the sub-registrars make it a point to attend the office at 12 noon or even at 1 P.M. They fly at the parties who are waiting at the office to get the documents registered, and at times fling in their face documents produced for registration. Some of them seem to have an overweening opinion of their official position and do not even condescend to take notice of those present in their office. It requests them to be punctual in their attendance and be grateful to Government and useful to the public.

Criticising a certain order of the Bombay Government.

40. The same paper, while commenting upon the order recently issued by the Bombay Government prohibiting students from taking part in political matters, remarks as follows:—Our opinion is that the above order of the Bombay Government is quite improper, for it is usual with the students in England and other civilised countries to take part in politics. Such being the case, to say that the students in India, which is under the rule of England, should not take part in political discussion, to say the least of it, is selfish. If India had been a country which is governed by the representatives of her people, the Bombay Government would not have issued such an order. The London Times once remarked that it is the study of history in schools that has created these disturbances in India; and so the Bombay Government might try to gradually abolish the teaching of history in India. One can easily understand that the Bombay Government is only exemplifying the evils that might occur if the administrators are wanting in courage and firmness.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Mar. 7th, 1898.

Notification issued by the Government of Bombay regarding the pilgrims of the Madras Presidency to Hedjaz.

41. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th March, mentions that the Government of Bombay has issued a notification directing that pilgrims from the Madras Presidency to the Hedjaz may not be landed in any place except at Karachi, which is not infected by the plague, and observes that the above notification has been issued for the well-being and safety of the pilgrims.

The interest which Her Majesty the Queen-Empress takes in Indian matters.

42. The Shams-ul-Akhbar of the 7th March. Maulavi Rafi-ud-din Ahmad writes of the interest which Her Majesty takes in Indian matters, and as a proof thereof says she commenced to study Hindustani language in her 72nd year, and though she has to perform heavy work daily, yet she writes her diary in that language without fail. Her Majesty is very sympathetic towards the Indians. One cold day when an Indian ayah was passing shoeless, she saw this and out of compassion ordered the ayah should be provided with shoes at once. Last year some pilgrims went to see Buckingham Palace. But the guards did not allow them to enter. Her Majesty saw them, after ascertaining who they were, directed that they might be allowed to see all that is ever shown to the public. The Shams observes that Her Majesty is, in fact, most kind and generous to all and to the people of India in particular.

III.—LEGISLATION.

ANDHRADESOPAKARI, Nellore, Feb. 28th, 1898.

The Indian Penal Code Amendment Act.

43. The Andhradesopakari, of the 28th February, referring to section 4 of the Indian Penal Code as inserted by the Amendment Act, remarks that it does not see the necessity for this provision. The illustrations given under the section are inapt as they speak only of murder, an offence regarded as a horrible crime in every country. It would have been better if some other offence had been referred to. Again the paper questions the propriety of providing for the punishment of offences committed by Indian subjects in foreign countries, and remarks that it is reasonable that any person committing any offence in any country should be punished under the laws of that country. It asks whether the foreign countries will acquiesce in the provision referred to.

The law of sedition.

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 14th March, speaking of the amendment of the Penal Code, says:—The law was passed on the 18th February, in spite of the opposition of all the important European public bodies and the important newspapers. All the amendments proposed by the non-official members of the Council were thrown out and the law was passed by the sheer majority of official votes. The law gives to District Magistrates the power to prosecute newspapers for sedition, and these will certainly treat the editors as a mother-in-law treats the daughter-in law. The question was raised in the Parliament by Mr. Roberts, but the Secretary of State said that the law was not intended to gag the Native Press but to teach the editors the right method of discussing politics.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 14th, 1898.

The Sedition Bill.

45. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 2nd March, regrets to observe that the Sedition Bill was passed into law in spite of the strong protest from various public bodies and associations throughout the country and without any of the desirable modifications made by the Select Committee appointed to consider the Bill. It remarks that if the actions of officials cannot be criticised in the manner in which they ought to be, the iniquities of the officials will be on the increase. It is true that a prosecution under the Act against any person cannot be launched without obtaining the sanction of Government, but it is doubtful whether the majority of the Judges will be so bold as to acquit the prisoner even if the prosecution evidence is very weak when the Government itself has given the sanction. It is to the British Parliament that the people have to look to for any favourable change in the law under reference, but as the majority of the members of that assembly do not seem to sympathise with the Indians, they cannot hope for any modification of the law until they can secure a majority of sympathisers therein.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

The Alhami, of the 6th March, in commenting upon the Sedition Bill, writes that the new law will be a safety valve. Government was quite justified in passing such a measure. India was struck with horror and indignation at the murder of Messrs. Rand and Ayerst. Though Mr. Tilak's incriminating articles may or may not have had any direct influence on the minds of the public, still they were seditious, and Government was justified in taking the steps it took. The new law will have no effect on the Muhammadan population, inasmuch as they are quite free from any hostile or seditious motives, and their exclusion from the congress party itself is a sufficient proof of this fact. Now it is left for Muhammadans to assert their rights and represent their grievances in a most humble manner to Government. The paucity of the Muhammadan element in the public service is a thing well known to Government. Such being the case, they claim an equal share in appointments under Government and represent their grievances.

ALHAMI, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1898.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Desirability of nominating M.R.Ry. Vijia Raghunatha Durai Raja, B.A., as Acting Maharaja of Pudukkóttai.

46. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 28th February, referring to the rumour that His Highness the Maharaja of Pudukkóttai has requested the authorities to nominate his brother M.R.Ry. Vijia Raghunatha Durai Raja, B.A., to act as Maharaja during his absence, says that the gentleman recommended is a very popular Deputy Collector in North Arcot district, and that he has all the necessary qualifications for the office of Maharaja. The paper hopes that His Excellency Lord Havelock will approve of the recommendation made by His Highness the Maharaja of Pudukkóttai.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Feb. 28th, 1898.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 7th, 1898.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th March, says that the present arrangement for the Government of Mysore has worked satisfactorily. The present councillors are trusted and respected by the people of the province. To make them a mere consultative body would place too much power in the hands of one individual. The paper therefore wishes that the Government of India would allow the rule of the province to go on in the same manner as it is now, and that the same men may continue on the council till the Maharaja comes of age.

The undesirability of any change in the Mysore Government.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 3rd, 1898.

48. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 3rd March, is informed that the High Court of Madras has issued a circular to the munsifs in the Presidency requiring them to submit periodical returns to the District Judges to whom they are subordinate, showing their hours of attendance and the work done by them, and thinks it highly desirable that a similar check should be exercised over the work of the munsifs in Mysore also.

The desirability of an inquiry as to the attendance and work done by munsifs in Mysore.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Mar. 4th, 1898.

49. The Suryodaya, of the 4th March, complains that the conduct of the amildars in Mysore is a cause of great grievance to the ryots. These amildars require supplies of a superior kind from the ryots whenever they go out on circuit, which they constantly do to save the expenses of their own meals. Not satisfied with what they themselves consume while on circuit, they send a portion of the supplies received to their homes for the use of their family. As for work, they do not do any, but leave everything to be done by their low-paid clerks who, of course, have their own way of oppressing the ryots. When any complaint is preferred against them to the Deputy Commissioners, the munshis of the latter officers never bring them to the notice of their superiors, and even if they do, the amildars know how to win over the Deputy Commissioners.

The conduct of the amildars in Mysore.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

50. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 2nd March, while noticing the proposal of the Superintendent of Police, Cochin State, to effect certain desirable improvements in the Police department of that State, suggests that as there is at present no Assistant Superintendent in the Cochin police to look after the duties of the Superintendent when the latter goes out on circuit, opportunity will be taken for remedying this defect.

The Cochin police.

Referring to the Cochin police, a leader in the Malayali, of the 25th February, says that the iniquities and oppression of that police, which is for the most part composed of illiterate men, are matters of loud complaint. The opinion is expressed that so long as the qualifications required for admission in the department are restricted to mere height and stoutness of candidates and not education, respectability and character, there will be complaint against the department. The article, after dwelling upon the misconduct of some of the head constables and constables at some length, doubts whether the Diwan has hitherto paid any attention to the subject.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kótteyam, Feb. 26th, 1898.

51. A correspondent in the Malayala Manorama, of the 26th February, writes that as a certain magistrate employed in a taluk not far from the town of Trivandrum comes to court as a rule at 5 P.M. and holds office till midnight, parties to cases who come from distant places are put to great inconvenience and trouble. The correspondent invites the attention of the authorities to the matter.

A certain magistrate in Travancore coming to office at a late hour.

52. A leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 1st March, while commenting upon the various kinds of mischief done by a set of bad characters living in Mattancheri and other places of the Cochin taluk, says that the disturbances caused by them of late have become so intolerable that it is high time for the authorities to bring them to book. It appears that these vagabonds stop the carriages of respectable persons and insult and abuse them, commit highway robberies, assault innocent travellers and extort money from them, etc. While Mr. A. Kittunni Menon was the tahsildar-magistrate of Cochin, he was a terror to these men, but since his transfer they have become very turbulent, chiefly on account of the indifference of his successors in respect of them.

A set of bad characters in Cochin State to be brought to book.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Mar. 1st, 1898.

53. A correspondent of the Manorama, of the 28th February, from Chittur (Cochin State) has the following complaint against one Mahadevayyar, the taluk record-keeper. The public records are shown to parties on receipt of some trifling presents. Whenever a copy of a record is required, a sum of money, much more than is needed, is demanded in advance, but the balance is never returned. The fees of the copyists are never duly paid. Complaints have been made on several occasions, but the tahsildar does not seem to have paid any attention to them. He therefore concludes with a hope that the controlling authorities will inquire into the matter and adopt remedial measures.

Complaint against a record-keeper in Cochin State.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Feb. 28th, 1898.

54. A correspondence in the columns of the Nazrani Dipika, of the 28th February, dwells at length on the indifference of the Travancore Government in the matter of lepers. While every conceivable precaution is observed against the progress of epidemic disease and the plague, no measure is adopted for the segregation of persons suffering from the loathsome disease of leprosy or to prevent them at least from moving freely through crowded streets and thickly-populated towns.

Lepers in Travancore.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanam, Feb. 28th, 1898.

55. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 5th March, complains that the Travancore Sirkar arbitrarily took possession of a piece of land which the Mission authorities had purchased at a great cost and levelled it up for the construction of St. Berchman's High School building at Changanasseri and are constructing a building for certain public office. The class for which the school is intended is the most backward in the state in point of education and progress, and so the motive which actuated the Sirkar that ought to offer all possible concessions and encouragements to those endeavouring to improve the moral and material condition of that class, to take possession of the above land in a high-handed way, without paying even the value thereof, is beyond the comprehension of the editor. When there are lands which are equally, if not more, convenient and suitable for office buildings, lying adjacent to the one bought by the mission, it is to be supposed that it is due to the bitter ill-feeling which the Sirkar entertains against the school in question that this particular land was taken by it; and the fact that the Sirkar has not hitherto given any aid to this institution, which has in every way become eligible for grant-in-aid, strongly confirms that supposition. As this is a matter to which the Resident Mr. Rees should direct his attention as he did in the case of the mistress of the Jubilee Girls' School, Trichur, it is to be hoped that he will soon interfere and do justice in the matter.

Travancore Sirkar arbitrarily taking possession of a piece of land.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Mar. 5th, 1898.

56. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan of the 24th February. In contradiction of a statement of The Englishman to the effect that the present deplorable state of Hyderabad is due to His Highness the Nizam's maladministration, the Dar-us-Saltanath (place of publication not known) says that the above statement is incorrect, and that Mr. Plowden and not the Nizam is responsible for the present state of affairs. Nawab Sarwar Jung, the late Private Secretary to His Highness, in his memorandum to the Government of India wrote: "From the very beginning His Highness was averse to the appointment of Sir Viqar-ul-umra,

Mr. Plowden and the Nizam.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Feb. 24th, 1898.

but the Resident persisted. If I had not tried to effect a compromise between the Nizam and the Resident, the whole of India would have been alarmed." The reason why His Highness is powerless in state affairs is that Mr. Plowden and his favourite (the Minister) are masters of the situation. So long as Mr. Plowden remains in Hyderabad no reforms can be introduced. Hence it behoves Mr. Plowden to leave Hyderabad.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Lokopakari, Madras, Feb. 6th, 1898.

A remark on the conviction of Damodar Chapekar.

57. The Lokopakari, of the 6th February, says that the conviction of Damodar Chapekar ought to have made the Bombay Government conclude that its supposition that the Poona murders were due to a conspiracy on the part of some Poona Brahmins and to the utterances in the Native Press is unfounded, and that the imprisonment of Nattu brothers and Mr. Tilak and the infliction of a punitive police force are unwarranted. The paper hopes that the Bombay Government will soon proceed to set Nattu brothers and Mr. Tilak at liberty, to disband the punitive police force and to repeal the Act amending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code.

A riot at Nasik.

58. The same paper reports that on the night of the 27th ultimo the the plague-affected patients located in the segregated camps at Sinnar near Nasik became so disorderly that they caused considerable damage to the segregated sheds and seriously injured the medical officers until the police force was ordered to fire on the rebels. The paper is at a loss to know to what causes the Bombay Government, which generally thinks that such riots are the outcome of the Native Press, would attribute this disturbance. It concludes with the remark that the people were driven to the necessity of causing such an unpleasant state of things as they could no longer bear the severity of the plague regulations under which they had been smarting so long, and that the Native Press is by no means the cause of this serious riot.

Pariyan, Madras, Feb. 19th, 1898.

Observations on the memorial of the mirasidars of Tanjore regarding the Pariyahs.

59. The Pariyan, of the 19th February, publishes the memorial submitted to the Legislative Council by the mirasidars of the district of Tanjore regarding the Pariyahs, and observes that some of the representations made therein are not in harmony with the real state of things. The paper concludes with the remark that the passing of an Act as desired by the memorialists, making it obligatory on the Pariyahs to obtain, before they leave India, a certificate to the effect that they have no debts to answer for, would he highly unreasonable and arbitrary and would certainly prove a stumbling block to their amelioration, and all the strenuous attempts on the part of Government, to elevate the Pariyahs from their condition of abject slavery, would be of no avail.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 22nd, 1898.

Maltreatment of the natives in Natal.

60. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd February, writes as follows:—The Europeans in Natal compel the cooly population, whose five years' term of service has expired, either to renew the service for another five years or to leave the country at once; in default, the coolies are required to pay a poll-tax of £3, which amounts to nearly Rs. 50 per annum. The object of the Europeans in Natal is that no Indian should enter their settlement except those specially sent for by them under a license issued for the purpose. It is a thousand pities that liberty and freedom which form the prominent features of the British Government are denied to the poor Indians resorting to Natal, whose heart-rending grievances deserve the serious attention of the Government of India, who seem to countenance the procedure of the Europeans in Natal for no other reason than that they have a white skin. It is desirable that either the Government of India should altogether forbid the emigration of coolies from India to Natal or that the coolies themselves must decline to go to Natal, unless certain conditions calculated to safeguard their liberty in that foreign country are acceded to by the Natal Government. It is only then that a satisfactory state of things can be secured.

61. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th February, alluding to the advice given by His Excellency Lord Sandhurst at the recent convocation of the University of Bombay, that students ought not to take part in politics, observes that even if the advice has reference to the students serving as volunteers during the congress meeting, it is certain that they seldom take any active part in public matters and that His Excellency's conception of the interference of students in political matters is erroneous.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 24th, 1898.

A remark on the advice to students by His Excellency Lord Sandhurst.

62. The Sasilekha, of the 8th March, stating that the Russian Government has arranged for enacting moral plays on the stage with a view to divert the attention of drunkards from their evil practice, remarks that it is the evil fate of India that the British Government should not think of doing such things.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 8th, 1898.

Drinking.

63. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 2nd March, gives an account of the case of a woman travelling alone by railway having been sent to the segregation camp. The woman was pregnant and, in spite of her lamentations and entreaties, the Plague officers at Yeshwantpur had her taken away to the shed. The paper remarks that such sudden stoppage of females on the way must cause great anxiety to their relations who might be expecting them at the places to which they are bound as well as to those at the place which they had left.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

Hardships entailed on the people by the plague prevention measures.

64. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 3rd March, gives an incident to show how the people dread the measures adopted by Government for the suppression of the plague. The incident is this:—A certain man at Oomrit wrote to the papers to say that fever, cold and cough prevailed at the place. The people of the place assembled together in a meeting and excommunicated the man on the ground that he had given out a piece of news which might make Government suspect that plague had broken out and set on foot measures for the suppression of it.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 3rd, 1898.

The dread in which the people hold the measures adopted for the suppression of the plague.

65. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th March, thinks that the war on the frontier is not a purely Indian concern but is Imperial. It was the Government at Home that sanctioned it. The paper is therefore sorry that the Secretary of State has refused to bear even a portion of the cost. There is not, in the opinion of the paper, any reason to hope that there will be a surplus of revenue in India. It therefore calls upon the people to set up an agitation to induce the Home Government to pay a portion of the cost of the war.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 7th, 1898.

England should help India to meet the frontier war expenses.

66. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 12th March, speaking of the vital statistics of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore, ascribes the unreliable character of these in India to the incompetency of the persons appointed as registrars of births and deaths. It says that the work is entrusted to ill-paid and indifferent men and we cannot expect any reliable record for a salary of Rs. 10 or 15, and the result is that there is no country in the world where the record of vital statistics is so unsatisfactory as in India.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Mar. 12th, 1898.

Unreliability of the vital statistics in India.

67. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 10th March, thinks the Government of Bombay quite justified in calling upon the managers of the Ahmednagar high school to dismiss the teachers who took part in political affairs, and is glad that those teachers have been dismissed. It hopes that this will serve as a warning to those schoolmasters who abuse the trust reposed in them by parents by instilling into the mind of children revolutionary ideas against Government

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 10th, 1898.

Schoolmasters and politics.

68. The same paper doubts very much if the Bombay Government has really passed an order for the execution of Damodar, the murderer of Mr. Rand, near the Reay Market in Poona. It says that the practice of execution of offenders in open public places is hardly in keeping with the present enlightened times, and thinks that the execution of Damodar should take place within the walls of the jail.

The place of execution for the Poona murderer.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

Irregularities in the transport of pilgrims to Hedjaz.

69. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 2nd March, says that last week some 75 pilgrims to the Hedjaz were brought to Ferok in a special train in charge of a European police inspector, and when the pilgrims were asked to alight at Ferok to be taken to Beypore, which has been declared by Government as the port of embarkation for pilgrims, for the Madras Presidency, Mysore and Hyderabad, they stoutly refused, and the stationmaster of Ferok accordingly allowed them to go to Calicut. When there is a distinct order that the pilgrims who are brought by train should alight at Ferok, it was quite inadvisable on the part of the stationmaster to have allowed the pilgrims, of whom the majority were coming from Hyderabad where plague is largely prevailing, to go to Calicut. The Malayalis are already alarmed at the fact of Beypore being made a port of embarkation for pilgrims, and when they find that irregularities of this sort are also committed, their alarm is greatly intensified. As the European police inspector and the Ferok stationmaster are chiefly to be held responsible for this, the authorities should call upon them for a full and satisfactory explanation.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1898.

Molestation of travellers on the frontier of Mahé.

70. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd March, writes:—The peons on the frontier of Mahé are very hard on the poor cultivators who carry the produce of their land for sale to Tellicherry. They levy one anna per head and detain those who do not comply with this unlawful demand. It is not possible to detail here their oppressions. The victims of their cruel oppressions being very poor, cannot possibly bring their grievances to the notice of Government. When a charge brought against a peon is proved, the punishment is a simple transfer from one end of Mahé to another. Complaints have been often made in the columns of the newspapers, but the authorities have not been stirred to exert themselves in the matter. This apathy on the part of the authorities disconcerts the public mind, enhances the distress of the tradesmen and encourages the peons in their oppressions.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 5th, 1898.

Salt peons on the frontier of Mahé.

71. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th March, regrets much the annoyance and hardship to which the passers-by are subjected by the salt peons stationed at the frontier of Mahé. The travellers are kept on waiting for a tedious length of time for the pass required for their journey. Unless the hands of the peons are readily greased, they will not bestir themselves to grant the necessary pass. At times there is only one peon at the chowki. The worry and trouble to which travellers are exposed cannot be fully described. The authorities concerned are urged to do the needful in the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 12th, 1898.

Use of false weights and measures in Calicut bazaars.

72. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th March, says that it is a general complaint that stamped measures and weights are not used by all the bazaarmen in Calicut except a few, and that this is going on with the connivance of the local police. The indifference of the police in the matter of detecting the fraud and charging the culprits before the magistrate is said to be, perhaps, due to their getting some gratification or to their ignorance of law. It is the poor labourers and people of low income and not the rich that are very materially affected by the fraudulent practice of these bazaarmen. When the prices of food-grains and other articles have risen high owing to the scarcity prevailing throughout the country, the sufferings of these poor persons on account of the use of false measures and weights should necessarily be very great. The article therefore trusts that as the practice above referred to is very hard and oppressive to the people, the authorities will take early steps to put a stop to it.

[Issued 24th March 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 6 of 1898.

REPORT
ON
NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS
FOR THE
Fortnight ending 31st March 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| A remark on the frontier war | 95 |
| Prospects of war in 1900 | ib. |
| Turkey and England | ib. |
| The Amir of Kabul and the British Government | ib. |
| The Afridis and an Indian Muhammadan in the service of the British Agent at Kabul | ib. |
| The Amir of Kabul and the siege of Khyber | 96 |
| The Amir of Kabul | ib. |
| England's power compared with the power of other European powers | ib. |
| The Chinese problem | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Misconduct of the Chávakkát police, Malabar | 97 |
| Police conniving at highway robberies | ib. |
| Want of just magistrates in India | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| A few suggestions regarding the civil judicial administration | ib. |
| A suggestion regarding the administration of oath | ib. |
| A request to magistrates regarding the detectives employed by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals | 98 |
| Destruction and fabrication of records in some of the public offices in Malabar | ib. |
| Complaint against some of the munsifs in Malabar | ib. |
| Complaining of certain munsif's court in Malabar being held in the morning | ib. |
| The recommendation of a Nambiyar by the munsif of Calicut for the post of a process writer in preference to the qualified Mappila candidates, disapproved | ib. |
| Remarks on the conviction and punishment of magistrate Subbarama Aiyar | ib. |
| Ill-treatment of sub-magistrate Subbarama Aiyar who was recently convicted | ib. |
| Fabrication of public records | ib. |
| (c) Jails—Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Grammatical errors | 100 |
| Female education | ib. |
| Why English taught in schools is defective | ib. |
| The Zamorin of Calicut to be nominated a Fellow of the Madras University | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| A complaint regarding a certain road in Tanjore | ib. |
| Necessity for more lights on the Beach road, Madras | ib. |
| Inadvisability of imposing a tax for the construction of cess-pools in Negapatam | 101 |
| Suggestions regarding the repairs of by-paths in Malabar. | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Observations on the memorial submitted to the Board of Revenue by the mirasidars of Madurantakam taluk | ib. |
| A suggestion to Government regarding the grant of lands on the Anamalai hills to planters | ib. |
| (g) Forests—Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Insufficiency of the time allowed for removal of goods from the Bangalore station on the Southern Mahratta Railway | ib. |
| (i) Public Works—Nil. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári—Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| A complaint that a certain road in Coimbatore is obstructed by carts to the great inconvenience of the public | 102 |
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (k) General—cont. | |
| A remark on the recent tour by His Excellency the Governor of Madras | 102 |
| A remark on the contemplated visit of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to the Southern districts during the approaching rainy season | ib. |
| Government Translators | ib. |
| The Indian budget | 103 |
| The rupee coins of 1840 | ib. |
| The Nata brothers | ib. |
| Corruption of a certain sub-registrar in Malabar | ib. |
| Deserting British sepoys | 104 |
| The bubonic plague | ib. |
| Memorial to His Excellency the Governor, of the jutka drivers | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Advisability of passing the much-needed Hindu Devastanam Act | 105 |
| Remarks on the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act of 1898. | ib. |
| An advice to Government not to be hasty in passing the Madras Tenancy Bill into an Act | ib. |
| "The Criminal Procedure Bill passed" | ib. |
| Why should not infant marriages be declared null and void. | ib. |
| The Act for the prevention of sedition | 106 |
| Unlicensed vakils practising in Criminal Courts | ib. |
| The Malabar Tenancy Bill not to be hurried through the Council | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Desirability of appointing more Christians as sub-magistrates in Travancore | ib. |
| The Mysore Council | 107 |
| A foolish belief in Hyderabad, a murder ingeniously averted. | ib. |
| Municipal taxes in Bangalore | ib. |
| Exodus of the Maharaja of Mysore to Ootacamund | ib. |
| Unnecessary multiplication of Assistant Commissioners in Mysore | ib. |
| Official iniquities in Travancore | ib. |
| Criticising some of the actions of the Diwan of Travancore | ib. |
| Complaint against the Custom officers on the frontier of Travancore | 108 |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Advisability of adopting the valuable suggestion of the Director of Public Instruction regarding the publication of the results of the experiments carried on by the Agricultural College at Saidapet | ib. |
| Famine in Cuddapah | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Advisability of appointing either the present Governor of Ireland or Lord Cromer as the next Viceroy of India | ib. |
| Reflections on the memorial submitted to Her Majesty for the release of Mr. Tilak | 109 |
| Remarks on the Poona murders | ib. |
| Outbreak of a riot in Bombay | ib. |
| The Secretary of State for India | ib. |
| The Bombay riots | 110 |
| Suggestions for dealing with the rioters in Bombay | ib. |
| The undesirability of the members of the royal family being Viceroys and Governors in India | 111 |
| New plague measures in Bombay | ib. |
| Mappila dacoits in Tellicherry | ib. |
| Remarks on the Bombay riot | ib. |
| Remarks on the Indian budget | 112 |
| A warning to the Military authorities and the District Magistrate of Malabar | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Gnana Chandrika" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 1,200 | Jan. and Feb. 1898. |
| 2 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 850 | Mar. 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 15th Feb. and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 12th, 19th and 26th Mar. 1898. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 5th, 12th, 19th and 26th Mar. 1898. |
| 6 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 8th and 24th Feb. and 1st and 8th Mar. 1898. |
| 7 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 13th and 27th Feb. and 13th Mar. 1898. |
| 8 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 12th, 19th, and 26th Mar. 1898. |
| 9 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 25th Mar. 1898. |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 16th ,, ,, |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 500 | 14th ,, ,, |
| 12 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 250 | 7th ,, ,, |
| 13 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 26th Feb. and 5th, 12th, and 19th Mar. 1898. |
| 14 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 1st, 8th and 15th Mar. 1898. |
| 15 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 8th and 16th Mar. 1898. |
| 16 | "Varavathamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 450 | 26th Feb. and 5th Mar. 1898. |
| 17 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 5th, 12th and 19th Mar. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 1st, 3rd, 5th, 8th, 10th, 12th, 15th and 19th Mar. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Samrajyapradayini" .. .. | Vellatur .. .. .. | .. | 25th Feb. 1898. |
| 20 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 4,000 | Mar. 1898. |
| 21 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 200 | Feb. ,, |
| 22 | "Satwasadhani" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 250 | 31st Mar. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 23 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 230 | 16th Mar. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 12th, 19th and 26th Mar. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 15th, 18th, 22nd, 25th and 29th Mar. 1898. |
| 26 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 16th, 19th, 23rd and 26th Mar. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 21st and 28th Mar. 1898. |
| 28 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 11th, 18th and 28th Mar. 1898. |
| 29 | "Veerashaivamathadarsha" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 28th Mar. 1898. |
| 30 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 19th ,, ,, |
| 31 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 17th, 24th and 31st Mar. 1898. |
| 32 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 16th and 23rd Mar. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 33 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 15th Mar. 1898. |
| 34 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 22nd ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 10th Feb. and 19th Mar. 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 21st Mar. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 37 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 12th and 19th Mar. 1898. |
| 38 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 14th, 21st and 29th Mar. 1898. |
| 39 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 16th and 23rd Mar. 1898. |
| 40 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 19th ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 41 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 14th, 21st and 28th Mar. 1898. |
| 42 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 15th, 19th ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| 43 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 11th, 17th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 44 | "Alhami" .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 14th, 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 45 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 11th, 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 46 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 12th, 16th, 17th, 21st, 24th and 28th Mar. 1898. |
| 47 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 11th Mar. 1898. |
| 48 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 160 | 11th, 16th, and 19th Mar. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th March, regrets to remark that, apart from the irreparable loss of life and waste of money consequent on the frontier war, the effect produced by the war is that it has seriously wounded the feelings of the Muhammadans in the north-west and made them open enemies to the British. The paper concludes with the remark that this state of things is not at all desirable, as the Muhammadans in the north-west were hitherto guarding India with vigilance against the Russians.

A remark on the frontier war.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 8th, 1898.

2. The Suryodaya, of the 25th March, does not believe in all the fearful predictions of Hindu astronomers for the year 1900, but cannot refrain from noting the affairs in the East. It hears that Russia has been demanding a lease of Port Arthur and some other ports in China for 99 years, and thinks that if Russia should find such a strong footing in China, the Russians will invade India from both sides and create a revolution in the government of India. It therefore advises the Government to be prepared for the contingency by keeping ready mountain guns, warships and torpedos.

Prospects of war in 1900.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, Mar. 25th, 1898.

3. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 5th March, mentions that two officers of the German staff corps have contributed five hundred francs towards the Turkish military fund, and the Emperor of Germany himself has awarded medals to the Turkish military officers, and says it is regrettable that the British officers have not taken similar action. How excellent will it be if Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen-Empress persuades her Indian Secretary Maulavi Abdul Karim Sahib to become the President of the Cretan Muhammadan Relief Fund in the same way as she has become the President of the society formed in London for the relief of Christian refugees from Thessaly. This would dispel the ill-feeling now existing between England and Turkey.

Turkey and England.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Mar. 5th, 1898.

4. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 10th March, writes that the Amir of Kabul has two difficulties against which to struggle. He has, on the one hand, to prove himself faithful to the British and, on the other, he should strive to please his subjects. He has been prudent enough to carry out these aims successfully. His proclamation to the Afridis is a tangible proof of attachment to the British Crown, but it would have been an egregious political blunder had he, in face of his treatise on Jehad, refused any protection to the Afridi chiefs. Hence he was obliged to receive Khawas Khan and Wali Muhammad hospitably. Presumably he offered protection in view of speedy peace being made with the British Government. It is absurd to suppose that the Amir sets these tribes against British authority, for he is fully convinced of the loss he sustained on account of the Khyber valley being closed for traffic. It is understood that the Amir is persuading the Afridis to accept the terms of peace without any delay.

The Amir of Kabul and the British Government.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Mar. 10th, 1898.

5. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 14th March, publishes a translation of an extract from the Civil and Military Gazette, alleged to be written by a Sirdar of the Afridis to Mulla Saiyid Akhbar to the following effect:—"A British Agent is stationed at Kabul. Many Indian Muhammadans are employed in his office. We had the chance of contracting friendship with one of them. This gentleman is very virtuous and a good Mussalman and is a well-wisher of his co-religionists. He (my friend the Indian Mussalman) has communicated to me the following, saying:

The Afridis and an Indian Muhammadan in the service of the British Agent at Kabul.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Mar. 14th, 1898.

"'You Mussalmans should be very careful lest you be hoodwinked by the British. Now-a-days the British are engulfed in harassing difficulties. The relations between England and Germany have become strained on account of some dispute regarding trade. This will possibly result in the declaration of hostilities between the two powers. The Sultan, Russia, Germany and France are ready to cross swords with England everywhere. Besides this, fighting is going on in Egypt. In short, the British are much discouraged just now. The Governor-General and the generals have received definite orders from Home, directing them to bring the military operations of Terah and the Khyber valley to a close within a fortnight, as troops should be sent to Egypt and other parts. The British concluded peace with Mehmund and Girdah clans after receiving only 24 guns from them. The British should have demanded thousands of guns and several lakhs of rupees for the purpose as they suffered heavy loss of life and property, thousands of British soldiers having been killed by the tribesmen. The peace concluded with the Mehmundis will not last long, as the British when relieved from these difficulties will again demand from the Mehmundis more money as indemnity. The British intimate that they will advance on Terah and Khyber valley on such and such a date, but do not advance. This is due to their tactics.'"

With reference to the above, the Shams observes that it behoves the British Government to find out the Indian Mussalman who has thus provided fuel for fanning the flames of the frontier disturbances. The Afridis are indeed a very simple-minded people. It is no wonder if they give credence to anything that reaches their ears and act on such rumours.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Mar. 21st, 1898.

The Amir of Kabul and the siege of Khyber.

6. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 21st March, inserts translation of a paragraph from some English paper to the effect that the Amir's troubles are increasing day by day and that he is accordingly making every arrangement to forcibly expel the Afridis who have taken refuge in his country. The Amir, it continues, is a sagacious and wise ruler. He will not act in such a way as to excite the hostile feelings of the British Government. If the Afridis make an immediate peace with the British, the siege of the Khyber will be raised, otherwise they will severely suffer.

ALHAMI, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1898.

The Amir of Kabul.

7. The Alhami, of the 27th March, in refutation of the statement made in certain papers to the effect that the Amir of Kabul had offered secret help to the tribes, had supplied them with arms, and that the men of his regular force had openly aided the rebels, writes that the correspondence now going on between the Amir and the Government of India disproves all such statements. The Amir has acted very wisely and considerately from the very beginning and had he not taken steps to check the spread of rebellion, the British Government would have had more trouble to encounter.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Mar. 28th, 1898.

England's power compared with the power of other European powers.

8. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th March, inserting a translation of an article from the Lahore, Civil and Military Gazette of the 20th March, relating to a letter of one pensioned Jamadar Ziya-ud-din, a Zakka Khel chief, to his friend Subadar Gul Shah, of the Punjab Infantry, remarks that, in consideration of England's power and magnanimity, no European power is able to cope with her, much less can these hill tribesmen who are but atoms before her. It is a mere foolhardiness on their part to make such boastings and attempts.

The Chinese problem.

9. The same paper referring to a London telegram of the 26th April, to the effect that the British warships have been told off to proceed to the Chinese waters, observes that the occupation of Port Arthur and Talienwan by Russia is detrimental to England's interests in China, and it is very likely that war will be declared in the near future. Should matters assume such a serious aspect, Russia will espouse the cause of China, but it is not known what side the other European powers will take. If England were to remain inactive at this critical juncture it is not improbable that the whole of China will fall into Russia's hands.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

10. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th March, states that some property belonging to the Nôyithott temple was stolen and the thieves escaped to Chavákkát in the British territory. The information reached Travancore and an attempt was made to seize them, and a warrant for their apprehension was issued by the sub-magistrate of Chávakkát to the local police. There was not only dereliction of duty on the part of the police, but they gave by their conduct sufficient cause for the outsiders to believe that the due execution of the warrant and the apprehension of the thieves did not form a part of their duty. Mr. Sweeny, a police officer, had at last to go from Trivandrum to Chávakkát. Even this failed to bestir them to render the needful help. The Chávakkát police are seriously to blame for the line of conduct adopted by them and for the disgrace brought by them on the British police force. In this matter as well as in others the report concerning the Chávakkát police does not speak satisfactorily of them.

Misconduct of the Chávakkát police, Malabar.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Mar. 16th, 1898.

11. A correspondent in the Kerala Patrika, of the 26th March, writes that highway robberies are largely committed near the town of Palghat, and that the police instead of paying attention to the matter, simply connive at them.

Police conniving at highway robberies.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Mar. 26th, 1898.

12. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 19th March, refers to the punishment awarded by the Poona magistrate to a soldier of the 2nd Royal Irish Rifles for wounding a man, and observes that India needs just magistrates to dispense justice without distinction of colour and caste.

Want of just magistrates in India.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Mar. 19th, 1898.

(b) Courts.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th March, observes as follows:—In certain Courts of Small Causes nearly 2,500 or 3,000 cases are disposed of in a year, and the results of such a hasty procedure are serious miscarriage of justice and immense trouble and expense to the aggrieved parties wishing to prefer appeals to the higher courts. It is to be regretted that an appeal in regard to a small cause, the amount of which is Rs. 30, costs the appellant nearly Rs. 40. It is therefore desirable that Village Munsifs' Courts should be reformed and kept under the superintendence of district munsifs, who should be specially directed to scrutinize the work of the village munsifs under their control. District Munsifs' Courts should be empowered to dispose of small causes to the extent of Rs. 100 only and Sub-Courts and City Civil Courts to the extent of Rs. 10,000. Ordinary sessions cases may be disposed of by the Chief Judge of the City Court, and sub-judges and certain district munsifs should be vested with the privilege of granting heir-certificates. Such a distribution of work will no doubt relieve some of the courts of their heavy work. To relieve District Munsifs' Courts of their pressure of work, it is expedient that Village Munsifs' Courts should be reformed at the outset.

A few suggestions regarding the civil judicial administration.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 12th, 1898.

14. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 16th March, speaking of perjury and the miscarriage of justice consequent on it, remarks that the present method of administering oath tends to encourage perjury owing to the vague language in which the oath is taken, and suggests the desirability of administering oath as enjoined by the particular religion followed by the witness concerned.

A suggestion regarding the administration of oath.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Mar. 16th, 1898.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Mar. 26th, 1898.

A request to magistrates regarding the detectives employed by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

15. The Vikata Dutan, of the 26th March, complains that the detective agents employed by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals abuse their powers by creating sores with their fingers on the pretext of examining the animals and practice other tricks to bring to trouble the owners of the animals under their observation. The paper requests the magistrates to have a personal inspection of the animals brought before them and administer justice, instead of being led away by the misrepresentations of the detectives, most of whom are said to be wicked characters unfit to be the agents of the society.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 14th, 1898.

Destruction and fabrication of records in some of the public offices in Malabar.

16. A leader in the Manorama, of the 14th March, says that the falsification, destruction and forgery of records in some of the public offices in Malabar have become rather too common of late. The article quotes several instances of which have from time to time occurred in some of the courts and cutcherries in that district, and in some of which the culprits have been brought to book, while in some others inquiries are now being conducted. It is said that there is a popular talk in Malabar that if the recordkeepers of the Huzur office, Calicut, are given adequate remuneration, false records suited to the emergency are either fabricated or genuine ones missed in the record rooms. It is true that the heads of offices are engaged in various other duties of so serious and responsible a nature that they cannot possibly devote much of their attention to matters connected with the records, but as the continuance of the malpractices above referred to is likely to result in serious consequences to the people, the authorities should adopt speedy measures to remove them.

Complaint against some of the munsifs in Malabar.

17. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper complains of some of the munsifs in Malabar as causing much irritation and inconvenience to the parties attending their courts by their haughty bearing and superciliousness. The late attendance and early leaving the office is the order of the day with them. They have recourse to all sorts of shifts and evasions in order to avoid trying the issues; they obtain the compulsory production of written statement; they do not record everything that the parties state; they fly at such vakils as do their duty and are less anxious to win the pleasure of the munsif than to safeguard the interest of their clients. Some men of position and respectability avoid attending their courts for fear of being subjected to indignity.

Complaining of certain munsif's court in Malabar being held in the morning.

18. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper bitterly complains of the munsif's court at Bettatpudiyangadi being held in the morning instead of from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M. This arrangement, made with a view to secure the convenience of a single individual, is fraught with inconvenience to all the rest. The new District Judge and the High Court are hopefully looked to to bestow their attention on this matter.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 16th, 1898.

The recommendation of a Nambiyar by the munsif of Calicut for the post of a process writer in preference to the qualified Mappila candidates, disapproved.

19. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th March, states that the vacancy of a process writer was recently caused by the death of the permanent incumbent, a Muhammadan. Among the applicants there were four Mappilas qualified for the post. One of the ways the spread of education among the Muhammadans can be successfully encouraged is to employ under Government such of their class as have educational qualifications. It is therefore a matter of surprise to us that the munsif ignored this principle and recommended for the place one who is a nephew of a pensioned munsif, who is a relative of an acting munsif and who held for some time an acting appointment under the present Calicut munsif's brother. The recommendation of the Nambiyar in preference to the Mappilas may have been made on the score of the superior qualification of the former, which, in case of appointment carrying a pay of Rs. 10 or 12 a month, is not to be deemed a sine quâ non. This fact, we believe, will not serve as an excuse to the munsif. The action of the munsif on a former occasion when a Nayar gumastah of Wynaad was an applicant for a place under him was also unjustifiable. It is hoped that the District Judge will shape his action in these matters with due deliberation.

Remarks on the conviction and punishment of magistrate Subbarama Aiyar.

20. In commenting upon the conviction and punishment of Subbarama Aiyar, late a sub-magistrate in South Malabar, a leader in the Manorama, of the 21st March, states that the punishment falls in with the public view and that it does not sympathise with his fate as a magistrate. If the public records tampered with by him had failed to support the conviction, the District Magistrate would have been discouraged in his endeavours for the public good, especially in checking the amassing of money by some magistrates by means of corruption and oppression. It sympathises with the District Magistrate in his attempt to stamp out the corruption and bribery which are in vogue among the magistracy in Malabar, and congratulates the District Magistrate and the Government Pleader, the former on the satisfactory termination of the case and the latter on the unflinching discharge of duty.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 21st, 1898.

Ill-treatment of sub-magistrate Subbarama Aiyar who was recently convicted.

21. Referring to the extortion case just concluded, a leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd March, says that the punished sub-magistrate can hardly find any one to sympathise with him on the score of the punishment being severe; but the abruptness of his removal to the Central Jail at Cannanore and the means adopted for removing him thither have enlisted the public sympathy and commiseration largely on his side. In the eye of law, it is true there is no difference between man and man, but his antecedents and the position held by him should have received some consideration in determining the treatment accorded to him.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 22nd, 1898.

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 23rd March, resents the treatment accorded to Subbarama Aiyar, who was walked a long distance on his way to the Central Jail at Cannanore, in the blazing hot sun, perhaps on the strength of the doctor's certificate. It states that the treatment to which he was subjected was quite unjustifiable and tended to move the heart of many persons.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 23rd, 1898.

Referring to the same subject, a correspondent of the Manorama, of the 29th March, writes that Subbarama Aiyar was removed from the jail at 11 A.M. in the hot sun and taken through the bazaar to the Town Police station where he was kept for some time. He was afterwards taken to the Mananchira plain and made to stand for a long time in the sun in front of the Head-quarter Inspector's office as if for exhibition. The correspondent seems to think that this was done maliciously for the satisfaction of some one whose name he does not mention, but adds that if anybody thinks that this was done with the knowledge of the Collector, he is grievously mistaken; the Collector had no knowledge of the matter nor had he any hand in it.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 29th, 1898.

Fabrication of public records.

22. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd March, states that the evidence in the case of Subbarama Aiyar, the convicted sub-magistrate of Malabar, is suggestive of three points to be considered by authorities:

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 22nd, 1898.

(1) The fabrication, etc., committed with all facility in respect of the public records. The conviction of those involved in the offence in connection with certain records of the District and Sub-Courts of Tellicherry, the transfer of an official and the suspension for a year of another on suspicion in matters connected with the tampering of records at the Munsif's Court, Bettutnad, and the complaints that cropped up from time to time at various cutcherries regarding the same subject go clearly to show that the public records are not safeguarded with the care and attention they demand. No restriction is placed on the use of the key to the record room and everybody seems to have free access to the records. A remedy to this evil should be concerted without any loss of time.

(2) The second point which needs looking into is the institution of sub-jails in outstations in a district. The sub-jail is intended for the custody of offenders under trial and of prisoners whose term of imprisonment is of a short duration. The sub-magistrate in such places is himself the sub-jailor and his peon has the additional function of a warder. This affords every facility to sub-magistrate in such places to accord lenient treatment to a prisoner or to subject another to great severity according as his greed for money is satisfied on the one hand or his displeasure incurred on the other.

(3) The third point is with reference to the practice of the sub-magistrate, while out on circuit for paimash or ajmash, carrying with him a clerk who claims an allowance of 8 annas per diem as a mamul irrespective of the expense actually incurred, if he goes more than five miles where there is no railway, or ten miles in the latter case.

(d) Education.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 18th, 1898.

Grammatical errors.

23. The Sasilekha, of the 18th March, observes that the Government, noting certain grammatical errors in the report from the chairman of the Conjeeveram municipal council, has remarked that reports should be drafted with greater care. It says that Government, while scrupulously taking care of its native tongue, has paid no attention to the interests of the Telugu language. The notifications drafted in Telugu by Government servants are, it remarks, full of blunders, and that there is none to attend to them. The vernaculars are therefore on the wane.

Female education.

24. The same paper states that arrangements are being made by the Mysore Government for the appointment of lady teachers in girls' schools, and that female students studying in the F.A. classes are given scholarships of Rs. 50 a-month and are appointed as teachers on Rs. 150 on passing the F.A. examination. It confidently believes that female education would soon make much progress if similar inducements were offered by the British Government.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 28th, 1898.

Why English taught in schools is defective.

25. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 28th March, thinks that English-educated young men of the present day do not speak or write English so well as those of the previous generation, and ascribes this to the poor attainments of the teachers in the lower classes and want of practice in speaking among the students themselves. It therefore suggests that a time should be set apart for a talking lesson in all schools in the lower classes.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 29th, 1898.

The Zamorin of Calicut to be nominated a Fellow of the Madras University.

26. A paragraph in the Manorama, of the 29th March, regrets much that the Zamorin of Calicut, who is in every way qualified to be created a Fellow of the University of Madras, was sadly passed over this year also, and it apprehends that some adverse influence was at work to bring about this result, and commends the matter to the attention of His Excellency the Governor.

(e) Local and Municipal.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Mar. 5th, 1898.

A complaint regarding a certain road in Tanjore.

27. The Jananukulan, of the 5th March, complains that on a certain road leading from Tanjore to Vallam, in which the Collector's cutcherry is located, vehicles having springs only are allowed to pass, and that this restriction proves a great hardship to those who use carts which are devoid of springs as they are obliged to take a round-about way, being subject to great inconvenience and trouble. The paper thinks that the restriction in question deserves the notice of the authorities.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 12th, 1898.

Necessity for more lights on the Beach road, Madras.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th March, reports that the municipal lights are not sufficient in number specially on the Beach road in Madras, and that this proves a source of inconvenience and hardship to the passers-by. He hopes that the authorities concerned will fix some more lanterns and avoid the hardship complained of.

29. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 14th March, observes that the city of Negapatam is in need of a good water-supply and a drainage system, and that the procedure of the municipality and Government in trying to supply these wants is not satisfactory. In regard to the contemplated imposition of a tax for the construction of cess-pools in Negapatam, the paper is of opinion that the substitution of wooden boxes in the place of masonry work will reduce the expenditure considerably and that the infliction of an additional tax on this account will subject the people to great hardship, as they are already groaning under heavy taxation.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Mar. 14th, 1898.

Inadvisability of imposing a tax for the construction of cess-pools in Negapatam.

30. A leader in the Manorama, of the 29th March, is glad to observe that the attention of the Calicut taluk board was drawn to the necessity of repairing the by-paths, etc., towards which a sum of money was sanctioned by them. The lanes have been mostly repaired, and bridges put up, to the infinite relief of the inhabitants living in the interior parts. It requests the kind-hearted Collector to send for an account from each taluk board showing the sum expended every year in the repair of by-paths, bridges, etc., during the last five years, and to persuade each taluk board to set apart for this purpose 5 per cent. of the sum laid out on the repairs of the public roads.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 29th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding the repairs of by-paths in Malabar.

(f) Land Revenue Settlement.

31. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd March, reports that the mirasidars of the taluk of Madurantakam have submitted a memorial to the Board of Revenue praying for grant of remission during the jamabandi for the current fasli on account of failure of crops due to absence of timely rain, and not to any neglect of duty on their part. The paper sympathises with the mirasidars and remarks that their prayer is reasonable and deserves the favourable consideration of the Board. The paper referring to an order directing the village officers to levy the full rate of assessment on lands if the outturn of the harvest thereof is 20 measures per acre, observes that unless a land yields a harvest of 176 measures per acre the ryot will be quite incapable of paying the assessment after defraying all other costs incidental to its cultivation, and that the said order therefore operates as a heavy infliction.

SWADESAMITRAN Madras, Mar. 3rd, 1898.

Observations on the memorial submitted to the Board of Revenue by the mirasidars of Madurantakam taluk.

32. The Varavarthamani, of the 5th March, writes as follows :—A person who desires to purchase a piece of land on the Anamalai hills is required to have the land surveyed and its limits fixed at his own cost and to submit its plan with the application to the authorities concerned. If any other person applies for the same piece of land and offers a higher price the land is sold to him, and the first application is rejected. Thus the second applicant secures the land at the expense of the first applicant in regard to its survey. This is unquestionably a piece of injustice. It is therefore hoped that Government will be pleased to have the land applied for surveyed at its own expense before conveying it to the applicant.

VARAVARTHAMANI, Pollachi, Mar. 5th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding the grant of lands on the Anamalai hills to planters.

(h) Railways.

33. A merchant correspondent to the Suryodaya, of the 18th March, complains that the time allowed by the Traffic Manager for the removal of goods arriving at the Bangalore station on the Southern Mahratta Railway, namely, 24 hours, is insufficient. He points out that notice of arrival of goods which is sent by post is in some cases not even delivered within 24 hours, and even if notice were received early enough, the time during which the actual work of removal could be done is very short when the 12 hours of night are deducted. He therefore calls the attention of the higher authorities to the matter.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Mar. 18th, 1898.

Insufficiency of the time allowed for removal of goods from the Bangalore station on the Southern Mahratta Railway.

(k) General.

VARAVARTHAMANI, Pollachi, Feb. 26th, 1898.

A complaint that a certain road in Coimbatore is obstructed by carts to the great inconvenience of the public.

34. The Varavarthamani, of the 26th February, draws the much-needed attention of the District Magistrate to the inconvenience caused to the public by the obstruction of the road leading from Coimbatore to Pollachi on the night of every Wednesday, when cart-drivers, in view to avoid payment of toll, leave their carts on the road and sometimes on the punjai lands adjoining it apparently on the other side of the toll-gate. It complains that the obstruction of the road in question by about 300 carts at a time every week interferes with public traffic to no small extent, and hopes that the authorities concerned will adopt prompt measures to redress the grievance here complained of.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Mar. 12th, 1898.

A remark on the recent tour by His Excellency the Governor of Madras.

35. The Vikata Dutan, of the 12th March, is very much pleased with His Excellency the Governor of Madras for the indefatigable labour he took, in spite of his advanced age, in making a tour through the several districts in the north; but it is not satisfied with the replies of His Excellency to the various addresses presented to him during his tour. It regrets to note that His Excellency did not take the trouble to find out the truth by personal inquiry when the statement of the district officers and that of the subjects were not in harmony with each other in respect of the general condition of the districts visited by him, and that His Excellency implicitly believed the statement of the Government officials. The paper further remarks that His Excellency generally shrunk back whenever appeal was made to Government for pecuniary help for the improvement of irrigation, water-supply and so forth, blamed some of the municipalities for the very grievances they represented, advised them to shift for themselves and adopt their own remedial measures, and gave them to understand that Government would render the necessary help only to certain backward municipalities and not to all municipalities indiscriminately. The paper concludes with the remark that the recent tour of His Excellency has at any rate been highly beneficial to the municipalities on the whole in that salutary advice has been given them.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 10th, 1898.

A remark on the contemplated visit of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to the Southern districts during the approaching rainy season.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th March, hearing that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock has postponed his contemplated tour through the Southern districts to the approaching rainy season, observes that the summer season is the best time for His Excellency to visit the Southern districts, if he really wishes to have a clear idea of the miserable condition of the people and the severity of the Settlement officers, inasmuch as it is in that season that many a ryot is without employment and consequently in a state of starvation. The paper warns His Excellency against forming a favourable opinion of the circumstances of the ryots from the mere facts that the fields on both sides of the railway line look green and that tanks are filled with water while travelling during the rainy season.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 18th, 1898.

Government Translators.

37. The Sasilekha, of the 18th March, writes as follows:—It is said that after much discussion between His Excellency the Governor and the Members of his Executive Council as to giving the post of Government Tamil Translator, now vacant owing to the death of Rao Bahadur Sadhu Seshayya, B.A., to a European gentleman and not to a native, it was at last resolved that it should be given to a "white" gentleman. It is said also that if the post were given to natives, they would not report to Government seditious writings contained in the vernacular papers. This is quite surprising. It is like saying that if a native be appointed a judge, he would not punish natives brought up before him for trial. It is but a silly opinion. It would be well to give up such foolish whims and entrust work to such persons as are best fitted to do it. If the translations made when Europeans were the Telugu Translators are compared with those which Mr. S. Rangiah Chetty has now been doing, it cannot fail to convey the idea that natives only are best fitted for this kind of work. Strange and peculiar ideas suggest themselves to Government. The rulers should not unnecessarily suspect their subjects, as it is not proper for parents to suspect their children's conduct.

38. The Sasilekha, of the 25th March, speaking of the Indian budget for 1898–99, remarks that Sir James Westland, the Financial Member, has so manipulated the accounts as to enable him to assert with confidence that the Indian treasury was full in spite of the large expenditure incurred on account of the wars, famine and plague, and that he has even declined the grant from Parliament. But, on a closer examination of accounts, it is evident, says the paper, that Government has been conducting its work by means of borrowed money, and that the administration must consequently come to a standstill if the borrowing should cease. The Government of India, it proceeds to say, is borrowing largely for payment of salaries and pensions in England and for the articles purchased there, and that taxes in India are raised to their maximum and the people are groaning under them, while at the same time military expenditure is increasing every year, and attempts are being made to increase the salaries to the soldiers and officers serving in India.

The Indian budget.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 25th, 1898.

39. The Sasilekha, of the 22nd March, states that the village munsif of Anantapur has refused to accept eight of the 12-rupee coins tendered in payment of Government dues by a poor ryot on the plea that they were of 1840, and that the ryot got those rupees from the sale of one-half of his grain. On refusal, therefore, he was obliged to sell away the remaining half to procure acceptable coins. Noting that the said coins are in circulation in Madras, it asks if the Government has published any notification prohibiting the currency of the rupee coins of 1840.

The rupee coins of 1840.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 22nd, 1898.

40. The same paper observes that Lord George Hamilton assigned three different reasons on three different occasions for the arrest and imprisonment of the Natu brothers in Bombay, and asks whether it is becoming of Her Majesty's Minister to express himself in different ways at different times, and further asks whether the confining of the Natus in jail, instead of bringing them to trial before a court of justice, will not affect the prestige of the British administration. It notes that the British public and the English press are surprised at the varying replies given by Lord George Hamilton, and believes that the Bombay public may not secure peace of mind until Natus are set at liberty.

The Natu brothers.

41. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th March, states, in continuation of what appeared in the last issue as regards the inquiry conducted by the district registrar in the case of Vythilinga Aiyar, sub-registrar, Chévâyûr, that it is very suspicious that a man of Mr. Sambasiva Aiyar's experience, responsibility and standing did not take the necessary precaution in the matter of the promissory note alleged to have been received by the creditor on his having given the loan to the sub-registrar. Inquiry itself was conducted by fits and starts on various occasions. It appears that the Inspector-General of Registration has sanctioned the prosecution by Vythilinga Aiyar of the man who deposed that he had given a loan to him. We are glad that the popular opinion of the Inspector-General that in matters like this he will act with promptitude and courage and in strict accordance with the importance of the case is in a fair way to be realised.

Corruption of a certain sub-registrar in Malabar.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Mar. 16th, 1898.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Mar. 5th, 1898.

42. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 5th March, says that news from the frontier is received to the effect that 70 sepoys of a British regiment, who had recently deserted and joined Zakka Khel, intended to return, provided they were granted a free pardon, and observes that General Lockhart should grant them a free pardon as requested, for by such an act the General would not only be exercising his prerogative of mercy, but would also have the advantage of learning the difficulties they have undergone in the Zakka Khel country.

Deserting British sepoys.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Mar. 19th, 1898.

43. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 19th March, has a very long article under the following heading, viz., "Why the preventive measures are considered more dreadful than the plague itself." A summary follows. The reasons for this belief appear to be two in number: (1) The common people consider the stringent measures which are absolutely necessary for the prevention of and for checking the spread of the dire disease to be injurious to themselves in the same way as a foolish child holds this view of the measures adopted by its relatives for its education and well-being; and (2) inexperience of the higher authorities and the mismanagement of the plague officers. The inexperience of the higher authorities is proved from the fact that they had no regard to the fitness or otherwise of the officers, while entrusting them with the charge of the enforcement of the measures, and that they did not consider whether the senseless people would put up with the measures. Among these the chief are the enforcement of quarantine rules, the segregation of plague patients and the disinfection of articles belonging to the sick. The first is absolutely irksome especially to the people of India, and the reason why Europeans and Eurasians are exempted from their operation is not known. This unjust partiality will, it is apprehended, be an additional cause of creating ill-feeling amongst passengers. About the second, viz., the segregation of patients, it behoved the authorities to have considered that there would be females including gosha ladies also amongst the patients, but they failed to do so and did not impress this matter upon the minds of the plague officers. This negligence on their part produced very serious results. The editor turning to the plague officers says these consist of medical officers and of their subordinates as well as of police officers. Of these medical officers some are inexperienced. When they see a passenger suffering from the heat of a journey they conclude he is attacked by the plague and send him to a segregation camp, where 99 per cent. die. If the plague patients are let alone it is presumed 10 per cent. will be saved. Added to this many of the medical officers are corrupt. Passengers from Bombay to Calcutta are detained by them in every station unless they give some illegal gratification. These as well as other incidents give colour to the allegation that as plague has appeared amongst the people of India as a punishment from God, in the same way the preventive measures are a manifestation of the Government's wrath towards the people. Law allows the adoption of a measure which is of itself injurious, for the prevention of any injury, provided the measure which is of itself injurious is still less so than the injury to be prevented. But if the measure tends to increase the injury for the prevention of which it is provided, how can its retention be justifiable? The editor observes if no such measures had been adopted more lives would not have been lost, and no riots would have occurred. It behoves Government to leave its loyal but forlorn, destitute and helpless subjects to the care of God and His (Holy Son) Prophet Jesus, who raised the dead and cured the sick. It is possible He will suppress the plague and save the Christian doctors from being killed in riots.

The bubonic plague.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Mar. 28th, 1898.

44. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th March, refers to the memorial of the jutka drivers of Triplicane and Royapettah to His Excellency the Governor, saying that the reduction recently made in the tram car fares bears hardly upon their traffic, and soliciting the issue of orders to the Tramway Company to raise its fares to the usual rates. His Excellency replied expressing regret at the present state of the jutka drivers, but declaring that Government has no power to interfere in the matter. The Shams approves of this reply and requests the company to add to the number of cars running through Mylapore and the Beach.

Memorial to His Excellency the Governor, of the jutka drivers.

III.—Legislation.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd March, remarks that the management of the Hindu Devastanam at Tirupati has been very unsatisfactory ever since the church wardenship was conferred on the Mahants in 1843, and gives an elaborate account of the gross mismanagement on the part of the present Mahant. The paper regrets to note that Government has taken little or no pains to pass the much-needed Hindu Devastanam Act, although there has been a cry for it ever since the time of the Hon'ble Ramaiyangar, while it is too ready to pass such Acts as it requires such as the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act of 1898 in regard to sedition.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 3rd, 1898.

Advisability of passing the much-needed Hindu Devastanam Act.

46. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st March, writes as follows:—The Indian Penal Code Amendment Act of 1898 no doubt allows the measures of Government to be criticised provided that neither contempt nor disaffection is excited. Such an amendment as this reminds us of the decision of Portia in Shakespear's Merchant of Venice that Shylock should take a pound of flesh without shedding a drop of human blood, which is physically impossible. How is it possible to criticise the measures of Government without producing a feeling of disgust in the minds of the people? While it is admitted even by men in England that the present British administration of India deserves criticism, how can the people of this country maintain silence when the actions of Government are open to objection? It is earnestly hoped that better days will dawn on India. All that we eagerly wish for is that the reins of Government in England should be in the hands of the Liberals.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Mar. 1st, 1898.

Remarks on the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act of 1898.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th March, reports that Government is seriously contemplating to pass the Madras Tenancy Act which prescribes the rights and privileges of the zamindars and their ryots, and defines the relation that should exist between them, and that it is likely that a meeting of the Legislative Council will be held on the hills, apparently to have the Act passed before the departure of the Honourable Mr. Bliss from India. The paper advises Government to have the Bill translated into the various vernacular languages and published for general information in view to enable the proprietors of lands and their tenants to understand the views of Government properly, and concludes with a hope that His Excellency the Governor will not have such an important Act passed hastily.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 19th, 1898.

An advice to Government not to be hasty in passing the Madras Tenancy Bill into an Act.

48. The Andhraprakasika, of the 16th March, regrets to hear that the Criminal Procedure Bill was passed by the Imperial Legislative Council on Saturday the 12th instant. Noting that the labours of the Honourable Messrs. Anandacharlu and Chitnavis and the Honourable Sir H. T. Princep on behalf of the people have proved fruitless, it offers its thanks to those gentlemen who have so boldly put forth their best energies, and submits that there is no reason why the Government should be led away by groundless fears to pass such laws.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Mar. 16th, 1898.

"The Criminal Procedure Bill passed."

49. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st March, asks if, as the Privy Council has decided, the adoption of an only son is null and void because such an adoption is not sanctioned by the sastras, why should not the law lay down that infant marriages which are nowhere sanctioned by the sastras are also null and void? The Bill which the Honourable Mr.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 21st, 1898.

Why should not infant marriages be declared null and void?

Jambulinga Mudaliar is about to introduce into the Council of Fort St. George contains a clause by which marriages of girls before the age of eight years is permitted under certain circumstances. The Privy Council has held that the adoption of an only son although performed with all the formal rites is null and void. Similarly there can be nothing to prevent the courts from declaring an infant marriage null and void even if it is performed according to sastric rites. The paper therefore thinks that the time is come for altering the section which holds all Hindu marriages once performed are binding for ever, both in the Mysore Act and in the Bill prepared by Honourable Member of the Madras Legislative Council.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Mar. 11th, 1898.

The Act for the prevention of sedition.

50. The Suryodaya, of 11th March, says:—India had been enjoying the blessing of liberty ever since the country passed into the hands of Her Imperial Majesty, and the liberty allowed to the press was particularly useful to the rulers to understand the feelings and opinions of the people. But unfortunately last year the plague broke out in Poona and other parts of the Bombay Presidency, and the soldiers employed by the Government to carry out the measures for its stamping out did some dishonourable acts which the Vernacular newspapers of the country began to make public and condemn. At about the same time Mr. Rand was assassinated by somebody. The murder was supposed to have been instigated by the newspapers and by the Natus. Not satisfied with the imprisonment of Mr. Tilak and the Natus, Lord Sandhurst recommended the gagging of the press. The Government of India being pressed by its subordinate officers and by the Secretary of State, who in his ignorance of the real condition of India approved of the action, has passed the Sedition Act. The amendment of section 124-A of the Penal Code has made it impossible for the people to express their grievances through the press. The press is obliged to keep its mouth shut however the officials may oppress the people. The Government hopes to make the people loyal by this measure, but it will have quite the contrary effects; it will increase their dissatisfaction. We therefore call upon the Government of Her Majesty to repeal this law and give the people liberty of speech.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 19th, 1898.

Unlicensed vakils practising in Criminal Courts.

51. A correspondent in the Kerala Patrika, of the 19th March, writes that as the present system of allowing unlicensed vakils to practise in Criminal Courts is highly beneficial to poor persons who cannot afford to pay large fees and engage licensed vakils to defend them in such courts, the provision regarding this matter should not be expunged from the Criminal Procedure Code Bill now under the consideration of the Supreme Legislative Council.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 22nd, 1898.

The Malabar Tenancy Bill not to be hurried through the Council.

52. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd March, hears that the Malabar Tenancy Bill entrusted to the Hon'ble Mr. Ross, a long time ago, will be passed into law at a special meeting of the Legislative Council which will meet at Ootacamund at an early date for that purpose. Seeing what a length of time the preparation has taken, it cannot be conducive to the good of the jenmies and tenants of Malabar to hurry it on through the Council. Mr. Ross had been to Malabar on two occasions and gathered some information mainly from jenmies on individual inquiries and by convening some meetings. It is suggested that the Bill be placed before the general public for a period of one year at least, to enable them to give their opinion on the matters dealt with in the Bill. The advantages contemplated by the Bill can be realised only when those whose interest it is intended to safeguard are given time to express their views on it.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Mar. 5th, 1898.

Desirability of appointing more Christians as sub-magistrates in Travancore.

53. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 5th March, expresses a wish that more Christians should be appointed as sub-magistrates in the Native State of Travancore.

54. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st March, thinks it unjust to retire the Muhammadan member of the Mysore Council, while a member who is much older than he is still to be retained. He has done good work and is an experienced man and has more common sense than some other members. Besides the Muhammadan community would feel his retirement much as it would be entirely unrepresented in the council.

The Mysore Council.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 21st, 1898.

55. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 23rd March, says:—Some people in Hyderabad set afloat the notion that water got out of service pipes was the cause of the plague, and the people therefore discontinued the use of pipe-water and began to resort to the wells. The authorities seeing that well-water was bad began to purify the wells in the town with permanganate of potash. This aroused the suspicion of the ignorant Muhammadans who thought that the water of the wells was being poisoned with some coloured powder and resolved to kill the first person they found tampering with the wells. As they were on the lookout they saw a European dyer passing whose palms they found were blackened with dye. They took him to be one of those who were engaged in poisoning their wells, and began to handle him roughly and would have murdered him had not the police by some stratagem rescued him from the hands of the infuriated mob.

A foolish belief in Hyderabad, a murder ingeniously averted.

VRITTANTA, CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Mar. 23rd, 1898.

56. The Suryodaya, of the 18th March, has a cartoon, probably referring to the municipality of the Bangalore city, in which a man emaciated with insufficient nourishment is represented as in a supplicating attitude borne down by a number of burdens on his head, viz., the lighting-tax, profession-tax, land-tax, mill-tax, vehicles-tax, house-tax, shop-tax, with an extra tax in a commode.

Municipal taxes in Bangalore.

SURYODAYA. Bangalore, Mar. 18th, 1898.

57. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 28th March, objects to the annual exodus of the Maharaja and party to Ootacamund, and says that it is quite unnecessary because Nandidrug in Mysore is sufficiently cool in the hot season and the people would feel honoured by his selecting this place for his summer retreat. The editor thinks that it is the advisers of the Maharaja who are anxious to run away to Ooty.

Exodus of the Maharaja of Mysore to Ootacamund.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 28th, 1898.

58. The Suryodaya, of the 25th March, contains a cartoon in which Sir Seshadri Aiyar, the Diwan of Mysore, is represented with statesman*ship* on his back surrounded by Assistant Commissioners, Special Assistant Commissioners, Extras, etc. There is also a notice at the top "Art and Industry strictly prohibited."

Unnecessary multiplication of Assistant Commissioners in Mysore.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Mar. 25th, 1898.

59. A correspondent in the Malayala Manorama, of the 19th March, states with some surprise that in Travancore the official iniquities are tolerated with impunity, while in the British State bribery and other corruptions have been visited with condign punishment. It is prepared to welcome a European official of ability and integrity deputed with authority to inquire into the corruption of the employés under the Sirkar. If a notification is published that no inquiry will be made into the conduct of those who send in their resignation before a fixed date, a very large number may thus escape unscathed.

Official iniquities in Travancore.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Mar. 19th, 1898.

60. A correspondent in the Kerala Mitram, of the 21st March, writes that the people in Travancore are not satisfied with the conduct of the Diwan in having appointed Messrs. Kesava Pillai, Piravi Perumal Pillai, Madhavan Pillai and Aiyappan Pillai, all of one caste, to higher offices in the State in preference to some other officials who have better claim. The correspondent further says that when the Diwan visited the Tiruvalla taluk during his famine tour, some of the inhabitants presented him a petition stating that as the crops were damaged by inundation, they should be granted remission of the taxes paid in Kanni and Makaram, and the Diwan said, in reply, that it would be enough if they paid the assessment in Médan in money, calculated according to the rate at which paddy was then sold. It is said that the poor tenants have now been served with notices calling upon them to explain the cause of their failure to pay the revenue and the assessments are now collected with penalty. The correspondent asks how people can trust such a Sirkar as this.

Criticising some of the actions of the Diwan of Travancore.

KERALA MITRAM Cochin, Mar. 21st, 1898.

Complaint against the Custom officers on the frontier of Travancore.

61. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper describes the inconveniences to which he was put by the Custom officers on the frontier of Travancore, while he was travelling in a boat from Tannirmukku to Kodungallur. These officers are said to unduly detain boats and worry boatmen as well as the travellers under the pretence that they should inspect the boats to see if contraband articles are carried in them, unless and until they are paid some sort of gratification. The correspondent invites the attention of the authorities to the matter.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Pariyan, Madras, Mar. 26th, 1898.

Advisability of adopting the valuable suggestion of the Director of Public Instruction regarding the publication of the results of the experiments carried on by the Agricultural College at Saidapet.

62. The Pariyan, of the 26th March, thinks that the inability of the ryots in Southern India to adopt scientific means in view to improve the productive power of their arable lands is one of the causes of their extreme poverty. It says that the ryots in cultivating their lands blindly follow the time-honoured methods of their forefathers which, no doubt, produced the desired effect in times of yore, without taking into consideration the fact that the lands lose their vitality year after year, unless the annual deterioration is made good by the supply of sufficient manure and so forth; hence the annual decrease in the outturn of harvest which the poor ryots frequently complain of. The paper thanks the Director of Public Instruction for his timely and useful suggestion that the results of the experiments made by the Agricultural College at Saidapet and the new principles of agriculture discovered from time to time, which at present benefit the students of that college alone, should be translated into the various vernaculars and published in the District Gazettes for the information of the ryot population, and hopes that his valuable suggestion will commend itself to Government as well as the Board of Revenue. The paper also wishes that the translation should be published in pamphlets and sold at a low price so that it may be within the easy reach of every poor cultivator.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 18th, 1898.

Famine in Cuddapah.

63. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 18th March, regrets to note that in Cuddapah crops have failed and prices of food-stuffs have considerably risen. Observing that Mr. Vaughan, the Collector, has proposed to postpone the collection of kists for some time, he remarks that there is no use of merely giving time to the ryots, but actual remissions, he says, must be granted. He further notes that the Collector is fortunately very kind to the people and that he has expressed to a tahsildar his compassionate feelings for the poor suffering ryots of the district.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 1st, 1898.

Advisability of appointing either the present Governor of Ireland or Lord Cromer as the next Viceroy of India.

64. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st March, wishes that either the present Governor of Ireland, or Lord Cromer, now Governor of Egypt, should be appointed as the next Viceroy, inasmuch as the régime of His Excellency Lord Elgin is coming to an end. The paper prefers Lord Cromer for the reasons that he was an Assistant Councillor when Lord Northbrook was the Governor-

General of India and tried to curtail the expenditure of this country, and that he has considerably reformed the condition of Egypt and possesses vast experience and great administrative skill.

Reflections on the memorial submitted to Her Majesty for the release of Mr. Tilak.

65. The same paper says that the conviction of Damodara Chapekar should have convinced Government of the fact that Mr. Tilak and Natu brothers were not at the bottom of the murders committed at Poona, and that it is therefore desirable that Government should be pleased to set them free at once. The paper is exceedingly glad to hear that in England a memorial, signed by such eminent men as Professor Max Müller, Sir William Hunter, and others, and by several Members of Parliament, has been submitted to Her Majesty praying for the release of Mr. Tilak, and earnestly hopes that the memorial will meet with the approval of Her Majesty's Ministers. The paper dilates on the superior linguistic attainments of Mr. Tilak which excited the admiration of many learned men in England, and concludes with the remark that it is nothing but a piece of cruelty to suspect Mr. Tilak, who received the benefits of higher education in English and secured a seat in the local Legislative Council, to be guilty of sedition.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 5th, 1898.

Remarks on the Poona murders.

66. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th March, writes as follows:—Poona murders have been unjustly attributed to disloyalty on the part of the Brahmins of Poona, and a punitive police force has been unnecessarily inflicted on the population of that town. The world has been the scene of many a murder of this kind. Is it logical to infer that all Muhammadans are disloyal from the fact that a single Muhammadan assassinated Lord Mayo? Can the Parliament accuse the whole population of England of disaffection from the fact that many a ruffian has hitherto attempted to assassinate Her Majesty? Thieves and murderers are found everywhere and their nefarious acts should be disregarded. It is a thousand pities that the Government of Bombay has made a great ado about the Poona murders perpetrated by a villain, and accused the whole nation of disloyalty and disaffection. The Government of Bombay may be said to have made a mountain of a mole-hill. Just at the time when England has begun to take lively interest in the welfare of India, to direct its careful attention to the state of affairs in this country, to animadvert on the measures of Government and to lend her ear to the grievances of the Indians, Government has accused the Hindus of gross disloyalty, actuated by some motive or other. How unjust it is to charge such of the Hindus as have had the benefit of English education with the offence of sedition! Can any Hindu, who enjoys the blessings of English education, hope for the disappearance of the British rulers from India? What use is he to make of his English education if India is to be governed by any other nation than the English? It is earnestly hoped that the Government of Bombay will annul all that it has done without sufficient forethought.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 10th, 1898.

Outbreak of a riot in Bombay.

67. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th March, regrets to report that a serious riot broke out in Bombay in connection with a certain order passed by the Bombay Government requiring a medical certificate as to the cause of every death that takes place in that presidency. The paper giving an elaborate description of the riot, advises the Bombay Government, which is subjecting itself to one blame after another, to be more prudent in dealing with the people, and remarks that Lord Sandhurst, the present Governor of Bombay, resembles Mr. Grant Duff, who was once the Governor of Madras.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 15th, 1898.

The Secretary of State for India.

68. The Sasilekha, of the 15th March, writes as follows:—Whenever Lord George Hamilton, the present Secretary of State for India, begins to address the Parliament regarding India, he always speaks directly against our interests. Ever since he has been appointed to this great office, he has never spoken in favour of our country. We are paying him annually a sum of £5,000, or, according to the present rate of exchange, Rs. 76,000, that he may speak on our behalf in the Parliament in the interests of our country and safeguard our rights. The reason why he does not speak in our favour, though receiving such a high salary, is not apparent.

First, no sooner had he accepted his present office than he took up the cause of the Lancashire merchants, imposed taxes on yarn and caused impediment to the (successful) working of the cotton mills in Bombay and Madras. The Lancashire merchants are very rich and very influential in Parliament. If they determine, they can dismiss one Parliament and substitute another for it; whereas India is a voiceless country. There being none to put in a good word on its behalf, this Lord favoured the Lancashire merchants at the expense of the voiceless Indians. The words of the great men advocating India's cause in Parliament are "lost in the air."

Secondly, the British waged war against Soudon in Africa. It was resolved then that troops should be sent from India to the war at India's cost. Our Secretary of State himself might well consider how justifiable it is that India should be required to send its troops, wherever a slight disturbance arises in the wide extent of the British dominions, and that the expenses even should be made payable by India.

Thirdly, our countrymen do not like the wars that are being waged in the north-west frontier of India. Three important civilian members in the Council of His Excellency the Governor-General had declared that the war was unnecessary for the good of the country. But the war was undertaken on the advice of the military "servants." Though the Parliament had consented to pay part of these expenses, our Secretary of State said in the Parliament that there was enough of wealth in India and as the war was required for the welfare of India, the expenditure should be fully borne by it.

Fourthly, in the wars now going on in the north-west frontier, our sepoys fought with as much bravery as the British soldiers and officers. When it was therefore contended in Parliament that the natives that fought well in these wars should be rewarded with "Victoria Cross" medals, intended for gallant warriors, Lord George Hamilton, our Secretary of State, successfully opposed the motion, declaring that it was not proper to confer "Victoria Cross" on the sepoys. The great British generals spoke empty words commending the action of our sepoys, but failed to honour them with the Victoria Cross Order.

Fifthly, he (Lord George) moved the Parliament to raise the salaries of the British soldiers and officers in India, and said that Indians should contribute the requisite funds. We are afraid that a fresh tax may be imposed to raise the amount required.

When a sovereign employs a minister, it is incumbent on the minister to always favour the cause of his master. While so, it is a wonder of wonders that the Minister of India should plead against the interests of India.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 21st, 1898.

The Bombay riots.

69. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st March, thinks that the recent plague riots in Bombay were chiefly due to the employment of European soldiers in search duty, but blames the rioters for taking the law into their own hands instead of using constitutional means for obtaining redress of their grievances, especially after a deputation which had been sent had received a favourable reply from His Excellency the Governor.

'MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Mar. 19th, 1898.

Suggestions for dealing with the rioters in Bombay.

70. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 19th March, says in its English article:—It is to be devoutly hoped that the most severe retributive measures will be adopted to punish this émeute, which has been attended with such envenomed ferocity and hatred of the ruling race. Otherwise the prestige of the administration is likely to suffer severely. Leniency would be a mistake and would be misunderstood as a sign of weakness. It is utter nonsense to advocate a regard for the susceptibilities of sanguinary ruffians who put Europeans to death in the public streets with every circumstance of revolting and barbarous cruelty. Above all, it is to be trusted that the authorities will not relax their plague preventive measures in the slightest degree; it would certainly be regarded as yielding to intimidation; one reform, however, in the matter of plague routine is emergently called for: the military should be completely withdrawn from all participation in plague duties. The soldier is not a persona grata with the people and to this extent their prejudices might be consulted, particularly as there is no real necessity for the employment of the military. The greatest feature of these riots is the ferocious hatred displayed towards the members of the ruling race, and there can be little doubt that disaffection is more general and intense than we imagined a few weeks ago.

71. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st March, speaking of the suggestion of Mr. B. M. Malabari, thinks it undesirable that members of the royal family should be appointed Viceroys or Governors in India, on the ground that any one exercising executive authority cannot but be an object of strong hatred or love to the people according as he is regarded as friendly or unfriendly to their cause. It is highly impolitic to transfer this passion towards the royal family itself from the person who is only appointed by Her Majesty and who alone is held responsible for his acts.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 21st, 1898.

The undesirability of the members of the royal family being Viceroys or Governors in India.

72. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 28th March, after giving the notification recently issued by the Bombay Government altering the mode of the plague operations in Bombay, remarks that had this wisdom come to the Bombay Government seven or eight months ago, the people of the presidency would have been spared a great deal of heart-burning, violence and loss of life. The Government has learnt just now that the opposition of a whole people is not a thing to be ignored.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 28th, 1898.

New plague measures in Bombay.

73. A correspondent in the Kerala Patrika, of the 19th March, complains bitterly of some Mappilas, numbering about forty, harassing the people of Punnól desam in Tellicherry after 8-30 P.M. every day, lurking about the houses and gardens, throwing stones at their houses, kicking at the doors, etc., and keeping in their residents in constant fear of dacoity. There is a general belief that they would not muster so strong within an easy distance from the town unless they had strong external support.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 19th, 1898.

Mappila dacoits in Tellicherry.

74. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 19th March, referring to the recent Bombay riot, says that it is a matter for profound regret that such riots occur at this time when the Government is labouring under a misapprehension as regards the Indians. The article while commenting upon the riot as well as the strike, gives a short account of both and remarks that the employment of Europeans for plague inspection in the city and the stringency of the plague regulations are the direct causes of the riot and the strike. It is for the welfare and safety of the people that plague examinations are conducted and regulations are framed for that purpose, but when such measures are found to be repugnant to the feelings of the people, the Government should use their discretion and stop them immediately. Although the intention of Government is good, yet it is plain from such riots that the action of those who conduct the plague operations has become oppressive to the people. The riot in which the Hindus and Muhammadans joined together while Mr. Tilak and Natu brothers are still in jail is a clear proof that the public are quite dissatisfied with the conduct of the search party. Even without the writings of Mr. Tilak, the abetment of Natu brothers or the publication of articles in the newspapers which are regarded by Government as seditious, the plague regulations and the conduct of the persons who carry them out are said to be sufficient to cause riots. European soldiers were not employed on plague duty in the city of Bombay last year and there were therefore no riots. Under the circumstances, what could possibly be the cause of these riots? Even this remark of ours may be taken as seditious, but our conscience does not permit us to hide the truth at the present moment when the feelings of the people are strong. We feel therefore bound to say thus much. If the Bombay Government had deeply considered the matter beforehand, they could have averted these unpleasant consequences.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 19th, 1898.

Remarks on the Bombay riot.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 26th, 1898.

Remarks on the Indian budget.

75. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 26th March, while reviewing the Indian budget for 1898–99, remarks that in the budget for 1898–99 it is shown that more than five crores of rupees have been spent in excess of the budget provision for 1897–98, and it is due to the expenses incurred in connection with the frontier expedition and the famine. Sir James Westland, the Finance Minister of the Government of India, says that if there were no famine the expenses of the frontier war could have been met from the general revenues and a small surplus shown. What one ought to presume from this is that the frontier war is still, in the opinion of the Government of India, a matter of absolute necessity, but the public think otherwise. India has not benefited or will hereafter benefit by these frontier wars, and so there is no doubt that the expenses which were now incurred were mainly brought about by the carelessness of the India Government. Famine is in most cases caused by the failure of the monsoons, and if the administrators had been alive to this fact and made provision for the contingency there would not have been such a large deficit in the budget. When one considers that useless and expensive expeditions are undertaken without concerting measures for relief at the time when there is every indication of famine all over the country, one is apt to doubt whether it is not for causing famine that the governing authorities are working. The article is glad to notice that the Government of India are trying their best to improve their finance, but it strongly deprecates the raising of Indian loans in the English money market and the paying of interest in gold at a high rate of exchange. It is of opinion that if such loans are raised in India the loss by exchange could be avoided.

A warning to the Military authorities and the District Magistrate of Malabar.

76. A leader in the same paper complains of the atrocities of the Mappila sepoys stationed at Cannanore. The article is only a reiteration of what has already appeared in the Calicut journals several times. The article warns the Military authorities and the District Magistrate that if prompt and effective measures are not adopted to check the unbearable oppression of these Mappila sepoys, serious disturbances might occur.

[Issued 9th April 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 7 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th April 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| Russia and other European powers in China | 115 |
| A meeting of the London Anjuman-i-Islam | ib. |
| The Sultan and the British Government | ib. |
| The Spaniards and the Bolinio rebels | 116 |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Neglect of duty by the Ponnáni police | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Suggestions regarding the mode of punishment to be awarded to the corrupt magistrates | ib. |
| Bringing to the notice of Government that a sum of Rs. 400 collected as fine in the Sub-Magistrate's cutcherry at Calicut was not remitted to the treasury. | 117 |
| How to check the corruption of public servants | ib. |
| Commutation of sentences of death | ib. |
| (c) Jails—Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| A suggestion for the German mission to open an industrial institution at Pandikkad—the scene of Mappila riots—the Government rendering the necessary help | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| A request to Government not to disallow the carriage allowance of municipal chairmen | 118 |
| Complaint against certain suggestions of the municipal chairman of Negapatam | ib. |
| Insufficiency of water-supply in Dindigul | ib. |
| The Cocanada municipality | ib. |
| Precautions against plague in Bangalore | ib. |
| The present mode of killing dogs | ib. |
| The municipality of the civil and military station, Bangalore | 119 |
| Tellicherry municipality | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Agricultural banks for India | ib. |
| (g) Forests—Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| A remark on an order of Government regarding the disposal of unclaimed dead bodies found in the railway. | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (i) Public Works—Nil. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári—Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Complaint against the treatment of emigrants in Singapore | 119 |
| Advisability of adopting measures to regulate the transit system in the mofussil | 120 |
| The conduct of tahsildars and a suggestion to Government regarding them | ib. |
| Advisability of increasing the number and pay of postal officials | ib. |
| A complaint against a vaccinator | ib. |
| "The Government Translatorship" | ib. |
| The British Indian Budget | 121 |
| Refusal of aid from the British Exchequer | ib. |
| The real reason why the press in India has been deprived of its liberty | ib. |
| The plague | ib. |
| Conferment of a post in the Liverpool Northern Hospital on a Muhammadan | 122 |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Nil. | |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| The administrative changes in Mysore | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Famine in North Arcot | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Remarks on the explanation of the Secretary of State regarding the detention in jail of Nattu brothers | ib. |
| A comment on the speech of Lord Sandhurst | 123 |
| Why should India bear the military expenses of a foreign war? | ib. |
| A remark on Sir James Westland's Indian Budget estimate for 1898–99 | ib. |
| Reflections on the policy of the British administration | ib. |
| Working of the plague regulations in Bombay | 124 |
| The adhikaris registering vakalatnama in the absence of the executants merely for the sake of the fee | ib. |
| Contradicting the rumour that Sub-Magistrate Subrama Aiyar was ill-treated while he was being escorted from Calicut to Cannanore | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Satyavartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st April 1898. |
| 2 | "Gnanodayam" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 15th Mar. and 1st April 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th April 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 2nd April 1898. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 9th ,, ,, |
| 6 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 2nd ,, ,, |
| 7 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 18th and 31st Mar. and 9th April 1898. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 20th Mar. 1898. |
| 9 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 23rd and 30th Mar 1898. |
| 10 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 14th, 21st and 28th Mar. and 4th April 1898. |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 21st and 28th Mar. and 4th April 1898. |
| 12 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 26th Mar. 1898. |
| 13 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 8th April 1898. |
| 14 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 24th Mar. and 8th April 1898. |
| 15 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 27th ,, ,, 3rd and 10th April 1898. |
| 16 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 26th ,, ,, 2nd April 1898. |
| 17 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 450 | 19th ,, 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 17th, 22nd, 26th, & 31st Mar. & 7th April 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Samrajyapradayini" .. .. | Vellatur .. .. .. | .. | 25th Mar. 1898. |
| 20 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | Mar. 1898. |
| 21 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 384 | April ,, |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 22 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 230 | 1st April 1898. |
| 23 | "Andhradesopakari" .. .. | Nellore .. .. .. | .. | 31st Mar. 1898. |
| 24 | "Calinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 1st Feb. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 2nd and 9th April 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 26 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 30th Mar. and 2nd, 6th, 9th and 13th April 1898. |
| 27 | "Susilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 1st, 5th, 8th and 12th April 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 28 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 4th and 11th April 1898. |
| 29 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st ,, 8th April 1898. |
| 30 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 2nd, 9th and 16th April 1898. |
| 31 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 31st Mar. and 7th and 14th April 1898. |
| 32 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 6th and 13th April 1898. |
| 33 | "Veerashaivamathadarsha" .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 150 | 4th ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 34 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 670 | 25th Mar. and 5th April 1898. |
| 35 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 1,030 | 1st April 1898. |
| 36 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 31st Mar. ,, |
| 37 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 270 | 1st April ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 38 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 26th Mar. and 9th April 1898. |
| 39 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 575 | 4th April 1898. |
| 40 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 730 | 30th Mar. and 6th April 1898. |
| 41 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 2nd April 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 42 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 300 | 4th and 11th April 1898. |
| 43 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 2nd April 1898. |
| 44 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th ,, ,, |
| 45 | "Alhami" .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | .. ,, ,, .... |
| 46 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 31st Mar. and 7th April 1898. |
| 47 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 4th April 1898. |
| 48 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | .... |
| 49 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | .... |
| 50 | "Ain-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | .... |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th April, says that England has been forced to join in the spoliation of China by the conduct of the Russians and other European powers in the East. The Russian Government, thinks the paper, has not acted up to the terms it professed to be anxious to observe and did everything in an underhand manner. It cannot be trusted. The transactions in China will bring back all the animosity against the subjects of the Czar in the minds of the British people. Those who are in favour of the "Forward Policy" will demand that the fortifications on the north-western frontier must be as strong as they possibly can be. Thus in whatever light we look upon the complication in the Far East, we can only see difficulty in connection with it.

Russia and other European powers in China.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, April 4th, 1898.

2. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 31st March, writes that Mr. Rafiuddin Ahmad in his speech delivered in a meeting of the Anjuman-i-Islam, London, held on the 22nd February, said: "Our attention is due to the matters of the Islamic kingdom of Socoto in Western Africa, for it is only very recently that England (the greatest Islamic power on earth) has taken it under her protection. France, who has always been England's foe, is intriguing with the Socoto Muhammadans against England. The intrigues of France have, however, been prejudicial to the interests of the Muhammadan kingdoms, and we wish that Socoto should have no connection whatever with France; for the Muhammadans know fairly well how France has ridden roughshod over the rights of the Mussalmans of Algiers. It is our duty to point out to the Mussalmans of the whole world which European power is best disposed towards them. It is hoped that 100 millions of Mussalmans will be very shortly reconciled to the British, and that England will do her best to win their confidence."

A meeting of the London Anjuman-i-Islam.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Mar. 31st, 1898.

3. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 11th April, has translation of a letter alleged to have been recently written by a correspondent (name not given) to the Newcastle Daily Chronicle to the following effect:—

The Sultan and the British Government.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, April 11th, 1898.

"You (the Daily Chronicle) were quite right in saying that the agencies are at work in Macedonia which worked up the insurrections in Herzegovina, Bosnia and Bulgaria in 1895-96, and you do well to give timely warning. But let us hope that the success which the conspirators of that period achieved is not now possible. The circumstances are different. At Constantinople there is at the present moment no sick man, no weak Sultan and no treasonable minister whom the Russian Ambassador can mislead by crafty machinations. It will be remembered by those who studied the events of the time, how unprepared the outbreak of the Bulgarian insurrection found the Porte. The Turks had no regular troops worth speaking of in the province and were obliged to have recourse to volunteers. This state of things was brought about by the Russian Ambassador—General Ignatief—who was director-in-chief of the conspiracy. But on the present occasion the Porte is forewarned and the province is well supplied with regular troops, equal to any emergency. As regards diplomacy also, the Porte is now in a different and in a far more favourable position than in 1876. Turkey had then England as her pretended friend, now England is her avowed enemy. She cannot now pretend to advise Turkey 'for her good' as she then did while betraying her at every turn. Advice tendered by Lord Salisbury must have for its aim Turkey's ruin. To this no doubt the Turkish ministers are now fully alive. Let us hope they will act accordingly. It is a fortunate circumstance for the Sultan and his ministers that England has openly avowed herself their enemy and not her pretended friend. But let Englishmen have a care. England is in more danger than Turkey."

The Shams, as regards the above letter, says that prior to the Turko-Greek war, the English press generally was addressing the Sultan as the "Sick Man," but since the war the same rightly applies to Greece which has been declared to be in a hopeless condition.

The Spaniards and the Bolinio rebels.

4. The same paper has translation of a paragraph from some English paper to the effect that a correspondent who had recently been to Bolinio reported that the Spanish troops there treated the arrested rebels in a most barbarous manner. They confined them in a building containing corpses and then set the building on fire. The Shams observes that the history of Spain shows that the Spaniards are very cruel and tyrannical, so that one may conclude that they are not true Christians.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Mar. 30th, 1898.

Neglect of duty by the Ponnáni police.

5. Referring to the robbery committed at Ponnáni by Nalagath Muhammad and some others on the 10th February in respect of currency notes to the value of Rs. 7,000, a leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 30th March, observes that the conduct of the Ponnáni police is anything but creditable, inasmuch as they did not act with promptitude and activity which the importance of the occasion demanded. If the police had arrested the suspected person and searched his house at once, important evidence leading to the conviction of the offender could have been obtained, but the arrest was made five or six days after the occurrence, and that at the instance of the Assistant Superintendent of Police, and the party arrested was soon admitted to bail. It did not occur to the police that delay on their part on such occasions simply helps the offenders to make away with the property or to conceal it in a place of security. This leads one to conclude that the safety of life and property is absolutely at the mercy of the police which is not a policy of any refined Government and of the British in particular. It goes on to say that it is objectionable to entrust the case to the Ponnáni police and some Police Inspector of ability and uprightness should at once be despatched. It is hoped that the Inspector-General of Police will do the needful.

(b) Courts.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Mar. 30th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding the mode of punishment to be awarded to the corrupt magistrates.

6. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 30th March, observes that the conviction and punishment of some of the magistrates cannot be expected to purge the magistracy of the abuses and corrupt practices prevailing among them. A conviction before a court is had only in rare instances and in the case of persons who have not acquired proficiency in the art of corruption. The magistrates are alive to this fact and their fear of punishment is far surpassed by their desire to perpetrate dishonesty and corruption. The punishment simply affects the person punished and fails to act as a deterrent to the corruption of others. That the number of corrupt officials has not in the least been reduced goes to prove this sad position. It is suggested, as a remedy, that better discretion should be used in the selection of men for the post of magistrates. Services and pay are the guiding principles in the majority of cases, and the character and qualification are deemed of minor importance. A record-keeper in the Huzur, a Treasury teller, a Local Fund head clerk and persons of such description are appointed to the post of magistrate with the natural result that they are withdrawn after a time on the score of inefficiency. Persons of experience in the Magisterial department and of sterling character should be selected for such places. The increase of pay of the magistrates so as to make the post sufficiently attractive in the eyes of High Court vakils is another method suggested. The Magisterial department in particular requires a thorough sifting and overhauling, and the authorities concerned are invited to pay their attention to the matter.

7. A paragraph in the Manorama, of the 4th April, states that a sum of nearly Rs. 400 under the item of fine, which had been collected in the Sub-Magistrate's cutcherry at Calicut, was not remitted to the treasury. The parties punished with fine do not appear, on the other hand, to have undergone any period of punishment in jail. Warrants appear to have been issued, but there is no record in the cutcherry to show what the result was. Rumours as to the suspicious state of affairs have been afloat for more than a year and it is said that the deputy magistrate submitted his report long ago. If an auditor is deputed by Government to audit the accounts, discrepancies on a very large scale in the Sub-Magistrate's cutcherry here and elsewhere will be brought to light.

MANORAMA, Calicut, April 4th, 1898.

Bringing to the notice of Government that a sum of Rs. 400 collected as fine in the Sub-Magistrate's cutcherry at Calicut was not remitted to the treasury.

8. Regarding the prosecution, in general, of corrupt public servants, a correspondent of the Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st April, writes that the effect of bringing about the conviction of any such corrupt official is only to create a transient feeling of dread or fear in the minds of some of his brother officials, while those that are experts in the art of corruption are little, if at all, affected thereby. Besides, it is very difficult, as a rule, to successfully prosecute corrupt officials and the prosecution entails much expenditure of labour and money. Further, to put convicted officials, who have held responsible positions and have attained to a greater or less degree of intellectual refinement, in the same jail with hardened criminals, is a punishment on which the public sympathy dwells a good deal. It is, therefore, suggested that the best mode of dealing with such officials will be to punish them departmentally, dismissing or degrading them according to the nature of their crimes. If the Government would act upon the recommendation of the Collector of Malabar, who appears to be opposed to the policy of launching a criminal prosecution against a public servant, and allow the Board of Revenue and the High Court to mete out departmental punishment to corrupt officials, the ends of justice will be served, the tone of the service improved and corrupt officials easily and readily dealt with.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, April 1st, 1898.

How to check the corruption of public servants.

9. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 4th April, refers to the commutation into transportation for life, by the Madras High Court, of the sentence of death passed by the Bellary Sessions Court in a case in which one Hindu killed another, and remarks that if murder cases are so lightly treated, it is apprehended that they will be multiplied day by day and people will be emboldened to commit murders. Thus European murderers may escape being punished.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, April 4th, 1898.

Commutation of sentences of death.

(d) Education.

10. A correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 6th April, suggests that the German mission should open an industrial institution and a school at Pandikkad or in the neighbourhood (the centre of the Mappila outbreak), and hopes that the Government will render the missionaries the necessary help. This will enlighten not only the ignorant Mappilas but also the janmis, who are sorely in need of enlightenment, as they oppress the ryots by granting melcharts (overlease).

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, April 6th, 1898.

A suggestion for the German mission to open an industrial institution at Pandikkad—the scene of Mappila riots — the Government rendering the necessary help.

(e) Local and Municipal.

VARAVARTHAMANI, Pollachi, Mar. 19th, 1898.

A request to Government not to disallow the carriage allowance of municipal chairmen.

11. The Varavarthamani, of the 19th March, requests Government not to disallow carriage allowance to municipal chairmen, inasmuch as they have to discharge the onerous duty of inspecting the condition of their municipalities in person and proposing the necessary measures in view to promote the interests of the rate-payers, and hopes that Government will pay due regard to the opinion of Mr. Butterworth, who has remarked that it is unjust to withdraw the carriage allowance hitherto granted to municipal chairmen.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Mar. 28th, 1898.

Complaint against certain suggestions of the municipal chairman of Negapatam.

12. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 28th March, complains bitterly against the proposal of the chairman of the municipality of Negapatam to stop the working of the "Jubilee Engine" and to reduce the staff of cholera officers. The paper says that the engine pumps out fresh water which is indispensable to the people of Negapatam, and that during the time the said engine was not working last year, the citizens were driven to the necessity of drinking foul water found elsewhere, and that many of them died of cholera in consequence. The paper hopes that, even though the proposal of the chairman be passed by the councillors, Government will protest against such a proposal in consideration of the circumstances herein represented. In regard to the proposal of the chairman to reduce the staff of cholera officers, the paper says that if cholera breaks out in Negapatam, ships going to Colombo will not halt at Negapatam, and that in consequence the town will have to incur considerable loss. The paper suggests the enhancement of taxes, if necessary, in order to meet the expenses.

SOUTH INDIAN MITRAN, Dindigul, April 5th, 1898.

Insufficiency of water-supply in Dindigul.

13. A correspondent to the South Indian Mitran, of the 5th April, complains that the municipal water-supply to Dindigul is inadequate, that the wells have become dry and that the people are suffering very much from want of sufficient water. He hopes that the authorities concerned will dig some wells near a place called "Odookkam" and supply the town with water therefrom by means of pipes.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Mar. 30th, 1898.

The Cocanada municipality.

14. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 30th March, writing about the administration of the Cocanada municipality, notes that the inhabitants were served with notices prohibiting the committing of nuisances in public places and the escape of dirty water into open streets, and that fines were imposed for violating the orders issued. He remarks that if the Police and Municipal authorities have the welfare of the people at heart they ought to have provided the means for the passage of dirty water, and constructed latrines in the streets, as in Madras and so many other towns. It would then have been justifiable to punish the transgressors of the rule. In short, says the correspondent, these municipal councils, introduced by the Government for the good of the people, have become a source of nuisance to them.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 4th, 1898.

Precautions against plague in Bangalore.

15. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th April, thinks that the arrangements made in the civil and military station, Bangalore, for the prevention of the spread of plague are not so satisfactory as those made in the city, and suggests that the authorities in both the places should act in conjunction, as for such purposes the two parts must be considered as one.

The present mode of killing dogs.

16. The same paper says that the present mode of killing dogs is an outrage on all sense of decency and most shocking to the nerves of all men who might happen to see the operation. Children who happen to see the clubbing on the streets very often get fever from mere fright. It therefore calls upon the municipality to adopt some more humane method of destroying stray dogs.

17. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 11th April, says:—There are many complaints at the present time against the municipality of the civil and military station, and not without reason. The policy of this institution seems to be to give the people as much trouble as possible. The Municipal authorities are putting them to much trouble and expense by frequent alterations of their order regarding the patterns on which latrines are to be constructed. The octroi duty is a great burden on the people, especially the duty on piece-goods.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 11th, 1898.

The municipality of the civil and military station, Bangalore.

18. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 6th April, referring to the order that was recently issued by Government in respect of the elective franchise of the Tellicherry municipality, regrets that the Government arrived at such a decision relying upon the misleading memorandum submitted by Mr. Fernandez, the chairman-delegate, without any weight being attached to the one that was submitted by some of the councillors that had the welfare of the municipality at heart. The misfortune that has befallen the municipality is chiefly attributed to the mischievousness of the chairman-delegate and his conceitedness. The article remarks that, as it is very disgraceful that the chairman-delegate, who is only a clerk in the Sub-Collector's office, should be capable of working so much mischief and bringing ruin to the municipality, His Excellency will call for all the papers connected with the matter, look into them and do the needful.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, April 6th, 1898.

Tellicherry municipality.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

19. The Gyanodhayam, of the 15th March, regrets to observe that the very high rate of interest and discount the poor agriculturists of India have to pay for the sums they are obliged to borrow for agricultural purposes deprive them sooner or later of their lands, reducing them to utter pauperism, and hopes that Government will see its way to the establishment of agricultural banks on the principles laid down by Mr. Nicholson, in consideration of the fact that there are thousands of such banks in Germany and other countries of Europe, in view to render the poor ryots timely aid.

GYANODHAYAM, Madras, Mar. 15th, 1898.

Agricultural banks for India.

(h) Railways.

20. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd March, referring to the order of Government directing the burial of unclaimed dead bodies found in the railway, observes that the dead bodies of the natives should be disposed of with the funeral rites relating to the caste and creed of the deceased.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 22nd, 1898.

A remark on an order of Government regarding the disposal of unclaimed dead bodies found in the railway.

(k) General.

21. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 21st March, publishes a letter written by two emigrants, which describes at length the manner in which they were tempted to emigrate to Penang and Singapore by a person named Pakkiri and by one Pichai Pillai, the depôt agent at Negapatam, and the cruel treatment afforded to the emigrants in Singapore, how they are whipped by the tindales (maistries) when they fail to bribe the latter with half the money they earn as wages, and how, after bribing the tindales, they are reduced to the painful necessity of living without anything except mere rice in compensation for their hard task. The letter concludes with the remark that both men and women, being subject to such cruel treatment, are brought to a condition of deplorable destitution and become so emaciated that life proves to be nothing but misery in Penang and Singapore. The two emigrants who have written this letter say that they were redeemed from bondage by one Vithiyalinga Mudaliar of Taimangalam, Negapatam taluk, who had to pay Rs. 120 to the manager of the Pattukhan garden estate where they had served. The editor in a note on this letter requests the Parliament to make the necessary inquiry and consider whether it is just and proper that slavery, which was abolished by the civilised British, should still exist in the British territories.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Mar. 21st, 1898.

Complaint against the treatment of emigrants in Singapore.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Devakóttai, Mar. 24th, 1898.

Advisability of adopting measures to regulate the transit system in the mofussil.

22. The Vijayathvajam, of the 24th March, referring to the transit system in the mofussil, describes at length the hardship of the passengers caused by untimely haltings, undue delay in the supply of new animals at the halting places, absence of light in the carriages, use of old carriages and worn-out bullocks, etc., and requests the authorities to adopt the necessary measures to regulate the transit system in the mofussil, which is at present altogether unsatisfactory and subjects the poor passengers to great annoyance.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Mar. 26th, 1898.

The conduct of tahsildars and a suggestion to Government regarding them.

23. The Jananukulan, of the 26th March, says that the word tahsildar has become a household name for a person of high-handedness in this presidency. In support of this statement the paper refers to the case of Mr. Abbas Ali (the then acting tahsildar of Tanjore, reported in the Swadesamitran some years back) in which the tahsildar did not scruple to break open the outer door and enter the house of a Brahmin and to put to public auction the cooking utensils found therein for the recovery of a sum of Rs. 5 due by the Brahmin in spite of the fact that his property worth about Rs. 300 was available outside his dwelling house. The paper not only charges tahsildars of high-handedness and cruelty, but also of deceit and tricks. In support of this statement the paper refers to the circumstances that Mr. Mir Abbas Ali, the tahsildar of Tanjore, was scolded by the Collector for having gone out of the town without permission on private business, and that another tahsildar was degraded for having made false entries in his diary in view to get more travelling allowance, reported in the Hindu some time ago. The paper concludes with the remark that tahsildars use abusive language towards their subordinate village officials without taking into consideration their social status, and hopes that Government will have an eye on these officers and inquire whether the candidates for the post of tahsildars possess the necessary social position and good character, irrespective of their educational qualifications and ability to ride, before it proceeds to appoint them as tahsildars.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Mar. 28th, 1898.

Advisability of increasing the number and pay of postal officials.

24. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 28th March, says that in every post office the officials are overworked and that in consequence mistakes are every now and then committed by them, which was referred to by Sir James Westland at the last meeting of the Legislative Council, and that it is therefore advisable to increase their number and to promote deserving officials to higher grades.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Mar. 30th, 1898.

A complaint against a vaccinator.

25. The Desabhimani, of the 30th March, reports that a vaccinator on the main road leading to Tiruvanandapuram forcibly vaccinated a woman with the assistance of one or two men who caught hold of her hands, although the woman cried out that she had been vaccinated and that she had had small-pox also. The paper hopes that the authorities will inquire into the matter.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, April 6th, 1898.

"The Government Translatorship."

26. The Andhraprakasika, of the 6th April, notes with pleasure the answer given by the Government to the question put at the last Legislative Council meeting regarding the appointment of Government Translators. It praises the "People's Governor" for the kind and considerate treatment of his subjects and for his administration of impartial justice. It is satisfactory, remarks the paper, that no evidence could be adduced to show that the Madrasees were unworthy of the confidence of the Government. It next suggests that, if the Government could confer the post of Hindustani Translator upon a qualified Muhammadan, it would not only deserve the warm congratulations of the Madras public but also benefit the tax-payers to some extent. It then proceeds to say that European officers can never make good translators, as they learn the vernaculars for certain purposes only and pass insignificant examinations. It feels also certain that their appointment will lead to corruption, as they have to entrust the work to their native assistants, reposing absolute confidence in their statements. Native translators alone, remarks the paper, possess the requisite knowledge of both the English and vernacular languages to enable them to correct the errors of their subordinates and prevent the occurrence of irregularities. It adds that as Europeans concern themselves with the discharge of their official duties and the maintenance of their prestige only, not caring for other things, their appointment as translators will introduce corruption.

27. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 7th April, commenting on the last Indian Budget, remarks that the statement presented by Sir J. Westland shows that the finances of India are not in such a hopeless condition as they were represented to be in some quarters, and that had it not been for the famine there would have been no deficit. The paper thinks that the Government of India was wise in not appealing to the British Government for financial aid, because if India should depend on her own resources to meet all ordinary and extraordinary expenditure she will gain considerably in strength and courage and sense of security. Famines cannot be avoided but wars can be, and therefore the Government ought to be very careful not to enter into wars. India's credit may still be said to be good, but she wants an administrator who will keep the expenditure within due bounds, and not raise loans every year which will ultimately end in financial ruin to the country.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, April 7th, 1898.

The British Indian Budget.

28. The Suryodaya, of the 8th April, thinks it extremely unwise on the part of the Secretary of State to have prevented England from coming to the rescue of the Indian Government and paying a portion of the cost of the frontier wars, in the ungrounded belief that India is prosperous and will be able to pay her own way.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, April 8th, 1898.

Refusal of aid from the British Exchequer.

29. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 11th April, says that the excuse put forward for the amendment of the law of sedition in India was that there is sedition in the country; but the real reason was that the officials do not like that their conduct should be criticised by the press. Officialdom believes itself perfect and resents being told it is not. But what will be the effect of the Gagging Act? It will prevent in many cases honest criticism and the newspapers will become useless as far as the people and their good are concerned. If the press, for instance, had not strongly criticised the frontier policy and denounced the wars, that policy would never have been changed. It was to the press that Bombay owes the change in the plague regulations. The Government instead of being thankful that these criticisms were made, has gagged the press for making them, so that in future it cannot point out acts of injustice, however gross they may be.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 11th, 1898.

The real reason why the press in India has been deprived of its liberty.

30. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 31st March, under the heading "Government has at last become compassionate" writes thus:—India has of late been engulfed in serious troubles and mishaps. It is known from the official report that nearly 70,000 lives have been lost by the plague in the Bombay Presidency alone. It is not known how many women have become widows, and how many children have become orphans. The recrudescence of plague in India has brought with it a great change. The Government had begun to look upon its subjects with contempt, and the subjects had in turn become evilly disposed. Government, with a view to stamp out the malady, has adopted measures which, instead of doing good, produced injurious results. The people composed of different nationalities and creeds began to put various interpretations upon these measures. Some supposed that they have been introduced into the country to wound the religious susceptibilities of the people. Government has not been wise in appointing soldiers (having no knowledge of Oriental etiquette) to search the houses of the natives amongst whom the gosha system is strictly observed. Government has at last, according to the saying "Better late than never," amended the epidemic regulations to the satisfaction of the millions of its subjects. Had it done this at the very beginning, matters would not have assumed such serious aspects.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Mar. 31st, 1898.

The plague.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, April 11th, 1898.

Conferment of a post in the Liverpool Northern Hospital on a Muhammadan.

31. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 11th April, has translation of a paragraph from the Crescent of Liverpool to the effect that there was a vacancy in the Northern Hospital, Liverpool, for which there were thirty applicants—one Muhammadan and twenty-nine Christians. The post was given to the Muhammadan. The Shams in approving this appointment says the British Government is extremely just and equitable. It has no regard to caste or colour even in a place almost entirely inhabited by Christians.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 31st, 1898.

The administrative changes in Mysore.

32. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 31st March, approves of the changes that have been made in the Council of Regency in Mysore and advises the councillors to be constantly on the move through the province to keep the subordinate officers in check, and also to be in touch with the ryots, and not to be actuated by any consideration of caste, creed or ties of relationship in the bestowal of appointments.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, April 8th, 1898.

The Suryodaya, of the 8th April, also gives the same advice to the new councillors.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 11th, 1898.

Famine in North Arcot.

33. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 11th April, learns from a correspondent that the tanks and other sources of water-supply in North Arcot are dried up and there is very severe drought in the district. It is also said that cholera has appeared in many parts and is making havoc. It is therefore urgently necessary that relief works should be taken in hand at once. Wherever we turn the crops are dried up and famine is at hand. The paper therefore calls the attention of the Government to the matter.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 17th, 1898.

Remarks on the explanation of the Secretary of State regarding the detention in jail of Nattu brothers.

34. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th March, referring to the several reasons adduced by the Secretary of State in regard to the imprisonment of Nattu brothers, remarks that the Secretary of State has been prejudiced and misled by the Bombay Government, that it does not become Her Majesty's Ministers to resort to time-serving explanations, that it is unjust on the part of the Bombay Government to have kept the Nattu brothers in custody on groundless charges in spite of the fact that even the British public view the explanations of the Secretary of State with disfavour, and that the heart-burning of the people of Poona will continue unabated so long as the Nattu brothers are detained in jail, without being given the benefit of a fair trial.

35. The Lokopakari, of the 20th March, commenting on the speech of Lord Sandhurst at a meeting of the authorities in Bombay, remarks as follows:—His Excellency has observed: "If we are to overcome the plague which has come upon Bombay as a ruthless antagonist, it is necessary that we should have patience and confidence in others."

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1898.

A comment on the speech of Lord Sandhurst.

Had Lord Sandhurst shown such a benevolent spirit last year, India would have been benefited in many ways. It was because Lord Sandhurst lacked patience and did not trust the representatives of the people that a number of unpleasant things took place. The people, displeased with the plague regulations, made bitter complaints that they were unbearable. At such a stage two British officers were murdered. Government, suspecting that there was a conspiracy, allowed themselves to be excited by the cry raised by the Anglo-Indians, and accused the editors of many vernacular papers of sedition. The passing of the Sedition Act and the Postal Act was the outcome of such a cry. In the meanwhile mutual sympathy between the rulers and the ruled was gradually waning: the educated Hindus were thought of as seditious men, while the enlightened community, on the other hand, thought that the rulers were ignorant of the real nature of the Hindus. Lord Sandhurst is generally spoken of as the cause of all these disasters.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd March, regrets to observe that the Secretary of State has directed the march of some troops from India to Mombassa in Africa, and ordered that India alone should defray the expenses of maintaining that army. The paper asks: Does it stand to reason that India should be saddled with the military expenses of war conducted in America, China, Japan and in any other place in the world? What doubt is there that the Government of India will become insolvent if such a state of things is allowed to continue?

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 22nd, 1898.

Why should India bear the military expenses of a foreign war?

37. The same paper is at a loss to know how Sir James Westland has managed to show in the Indian Budget for 1898–99 a surplus balance of Rs. 8,91,40,000, while his predecessors in office were bitterly complaining that the Indian expenditure by far exceeded the Indian revenues in their days. The paper remarks that Sir James Westland being a very skilful person seems to have estimated at a high figure the probable sources of income from the various departments and shown the expenditure at a low figure in the budget estimate for the year 1898–99, making it appear that India is in a prosperous condition. The paper regrets to learn that such a statement on the part of Sir James Westland has obviated the necessity for pecuniary help offered by Parliament to India which is still smarting under the effects of the plague, the famine and the useless frontier war, and that he has not made the necessary provision in the budget for the opening of railways, for the improvement of irrigational works and so forth in spite of the universal cry for such help.

A remark on Sir James Westland's Indian Budget estimate for 1898–99.

38. The Agnikuladittan, of the 9th April, writes as follows:—Our British rulers are a sympathetic nation. To govern a country in conformity with the wishes of its subjects is their sovereign virtue. The British Government has given us an education which enables us to understand aright such a policy on the part of our rulers. When the congress was organised in view to represent to Government the grievances of the subjects, measures were adopted to create feelings of enmity between the Hindus and the Muhammadans in order to thwart its designs, which resulted in riots between the Hindus and the Muhammadans. It is a pity that the efforts of the Europeans in this direction were not crowned with success; for Government had to lose all the confidence it had in the Muhammadans since the riots in Bombay and Calcutta. Thereupon, Government thought of cowing down the Hindus by stationing military force on all sides.

AGNIKULADITTAN, Madras, April 9th, 1898.

Reflections on the policy of the British administration.

As it is impossible to govern the teeming millions of this country merely with the strength of military force, it is highly desirable that Government should rule over this country by securing the co-operation and good-will of its people. The Englishmen in England and even the Members of Parliament have understood this secret which is ignored by some officers in this country.

MANORAMA, Calicut, April 4th, 1898.

Working of the plague regulations in Bombay.

39. A correspondent of the Manorama, of the 4th April, writes, in reference to the remark made by the editor of that journal in one of its previous issues that it was only after the occurrence of the recent riot in Bombay that the Governor of that Presidency came to understand the severity of the plague regulations and realised the necessity for making desirable alterations in those regulations, that the editor of the paper was grievously mistaken in having made such an unfounded remark while the real state of things was quite different. The editor in a footnote asserts that he was quite correct in making such a statement, inasmuch as His Excellency, who had understood that the working of the plague regulations had given rise to various complaints, did not deem it necessary to adopt remedial measures until after the discontent of the people had resulted in a riot. The intention may perhaps be good, but when the result is found not only to be otherwise but also dangerous to the people, there is no use in saying that "the matter was under consideration or there was the intention of doing so and so."

The adhikaris registering vakalatnama in the absence of the executants merely for the sake of the fee.

40. A correspondent from Taliparamba to the same issue of the paper states that some of the adhikaris of the place care only for the fee of 4 annas for the registration of vakalatnama and do not deem it of sufficient importance that the executing parties should be actually before them though they testify to the fact that the executants were before them even in their absence. This is said to open the door for corruption.

Contradicting the rumour that Sub-Magistrate Subrama Aiyar was ill-treated while he was being escorted from Calicut to Cannanore.

41. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper gives a detailed account of Subrama Aiyar's treatment while he was being escorted from Calicut to Cannanore, and takes the opportunity to correct the absurd stories circulated by some of the papers and eagerly believed by many readers.

[Issued 22nd April 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 8 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 30th April 1898.

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

War between Spain and America .. .. .. .. 127
Russian embassy to Afghanistan .. .. .. .. ib.
The possibilities of the conquest of India by the Russians .. ib.
Our frontier complications—Russia the disturbing factor .. ib.
The Amir and the Government of India .. .. .. 128
The military strength of the British Government .. .. ib.
The Viceroy and the frontier war .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—
Gambling in the district of Madura .. .. .. ib.
Cattle-lifting in the district of Madura .. .. .. 129
Certain suggestions regarding the Police department .. ib.
Police inspectorships .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Atrocities committed by Mappila robbers in Palghat with the connivance of the local police .. .. ib.
High-handedness of the Calicut police .. .. .. 130
Appointment of Inspectors of Police .. .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—
A complaint against the Tanjore District Munsif's Court .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the appointment of Mr. Ross as one of the Puisne Judges of the Madras High Court .. .. ib.
Appointment of Commissioners in Civil Suits to be better regulated .. .. .. .. .. .. 131

(c) Jails—Nil.

(d) Education—
Suggestions regarding the reorganisation of the Mappila training school, Calicut .. .. .. ib.
Recommending the abolition of the Mappila sessional schools in Malabar .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—
Remarks on the amalgamation of the municipalities of Tinnevelly and Palamcottah .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the appointment of men as members of Local Fund Boards .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on municipal secretaries and chairmen .. ib.
Certain defects in district boards and municipalities .. 132
Necessity to remove the nuisance caused by washermen in Madras .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Sanskrit Pandit, Lálgudi high school .. .. ib.
Bad roads in Bangalore .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Arrangement made by the Madras Municipality to prevent adulteration of food, etc. .. .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
A complaint against the new settlement .. .. 133
Advice to Government to stop collecting the arrears of kist in the famine-affected districts .. .. .. ib.
Certain suggestions to Government in respect of land-tax in the district of Tanjore .. .. .. .. ib.
Collection of land-tax in Cuddapah .. .. .. ib.

(g) Forests—Nil.

(h) Railways—
Inconveniences in the South Indian Railway .. .. ib.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont.

(i) Public Works—
Remarks on a notification by the Collector of Coimbatore in regard to the irrigation of the district .. 134
An advice to Government to repair tanks and other sources of irrigation to ward off famine .. .. ib.
Wells better than water-canals and railways .. .. ib.

(j) Salt and Abkári—Nil.

(k) General—
Certain suggestions to reform the administration of districts .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 135
Irregularity on the part of the drivers of tapal carriages in the district of Madura .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Necessity for a post office in Puduppatti, Rajapuram division, Salem taluk .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Observations on the proprietorship of lands in this country .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Entertainments in Government House, Ootacamund .. 136
Agricultural banks in the Madras Presidency .. .. ib.
The late changes in the law of sedition .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the appointment of Translators to Government .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Notification issued by the Punjab Government preventing pilgrimage to Mecca during the current season .. 137
A rumoured plague case at Calcutta .. .. .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Remarks on the Madras Tenancy Bill .. .. .. .. ib.
Some suggestions regarding the Marriageable Age Bill .. ib.
Reflections on the Bills to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Indian Criminal Procedure Code .. .. .. ib.
Criticism on the Madras Tenancy Bill .. .. .. 138
The Madras Tenancy Bill .. .. .. .. .. ib.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Agricultural banks in Mysore .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Judicial department of the Mysore State .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Rangaswami Iyengar's appointment as Inspector-General of Police in Mysore not approved by the people .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Failure of crops, etc., in the Madura district .. .. .. 139
Famine and theft in the taluk of Madurántakam .. .. ib.
Famine in Nellore .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

The next Governor-General of India .. .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to introduce thinner stamp-papers to be used for petitions .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Mismanagement in the Tirupati temple .. .. .. 140
Remarks on the Madras budget .. .. .. .. ib.
Piracy on the Cochin sea-coast .. .. .. .. ib.
Oppression of passengers by Mappilas .. .. .. ib.
Using false weights and measures in Calicut bazaars .. ib.
Lepers not to be allowed to hang about the municipal market in Calicut .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Hardships caused by the use of water-mark paper for presenting petitions .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Disquietude and disturbance in Palghat taluk .. .. 141

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Vidya Vartamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 150 | March 1898. |
| 2 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 850 | April ,, |
| 3 | "Gnanachandrika" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | Mar. ,, |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 4 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 15th April 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 25th Mar. and 15th and 25th April 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th April 1898. |
| 7 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 2nd, 16th, 23rd ,, 30th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 9th, 16th and 23rd April 1898. |
| 9 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th and 24th Mar. and 1st, 8th, 16th and 24th April 1898. |
| 10 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 27th Mar. and 8th, 15th and 26th April 1898. |
| 11 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 16th and 23rd April 1898. |
| 12 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 9th Mar. 1898. |
| 13 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 11th, 18th and 25th April 1898. |
| 14 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 11th and 18th April 1898. |
| 15 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 9th and 16th ,, ,, |
| 16 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 1st and 22nd ,, ,, |
| 17 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 1st and 16th ,, ,, |
| 18 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 17th and 24th ,, ,, |
| 19 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 9th, 16th and 25th April 1898. |
| 20 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 450 | 9th April 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 24th and 29th Mar. and 2nd, 5th, 9th, 14th, 16th, 19th, 21st and 23rd April 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sumanomanollasini" .. .. | Pethakallepalle, Kistna District. | 500 | 15th Mar. 1898. |
| 23 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 4,000 | April 1898. |
| 24 | "Satwasadhani" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 250 | 30th April 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 25 | "Calinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 1st Feb. 1898. |
| 26 | "Andhradesopakari" .. .. | Nellore .. .. .. | .. | 15th April 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 16th and 23rd April 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 28 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 15th, 19th, 22nd, 26th and 29th April 1898. |
| 29 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 16th, 20th, 23rd and 27th April 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 30 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 18th and 25th April 1898. |
| 31 | "Veerashaivamathadarsha" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 32 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 23rd ,, 30th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 22nd ,, 29th ,, ,, |
| 34 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 21st ,, 28th ,, ,, |
| 35 | "Mysore Star" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 15th April 1898. |
| 36 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 20th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 37 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 600 | 23rd April 1898. |
| 38 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 21st ,, ,, |
| 39 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. .. | 400 | 20th ,, ,, |
| 40 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 21st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 41 | "Manorama" .. .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 18th and 25th April 1898. |
| 42 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 43 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 16th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 44 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 18th and 25th April 1898. |
| 45 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 9th ,, 18th ,, ,, |
| 46 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 23rd April 1898. |
| 47 | "Alhami" .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 18th and 25th April 1898. |
| 48 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 16th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| 49 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 14th, 18th and 22nd April 1898. |
| 50 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 16th April 1898. |
| 51 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 13th and 21st April 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th April, thinks that in the matter of the island of Cuba, the United States have displayed great aggressiveness. They want to turn the Spaniards out of the West Indies, and will, therefore, disgust the people of Europe, and there is sure to be a great outcry against the way the Spaniards have been treated. But if the European powers all remain neutral during the war, there can be no doubt that the United States will conquer the Spaniards in a short time.

War between Spain and America.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, April 25th, 1898.

2. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 27th April, learns that the Russian Government has sent an ambassador to Afghanistan to negotiate with the Amir for laying a railway to Afghanistan, and says that although the ostensible object of the railway is the promotion of trade, yet the fact that the ambassador to be sent is a military man is significant.

Russian embassy to Afghanistan.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, April 27th, 1898.

3. The Suryodaya, of the 29th April, gives a summary of an article contributed by a German Lieutenant-Colonel to the North American Review concerning the possibilities of a Russian conquest of India, in which he points out that as the Russians are now within measurable distance of the Indian frontier they may, sooner or later, make an attempt to invade India by the north-western route, being assisted by the French fleet which will make a diversion on the sea-coast of India. The writer of the article advises the British Government to fortify and keep the passes leading into India and to conciliate and train the warlike tribes on the frontier to keep the Russians in check, should they, at any time, make an attempt. The editor of the paper, agreeing with the writer of the article, offers the same advice to the Government of India.

The possibilities of the conquest of India by the Russians.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, April 29th, 1898.

4. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 30th April, has the following :—

"During the last twenty-five years, five out of six Viceroys, beginning with Lord Northbrook, whatever their political opinions, were unanimous as to the wisdom of our having control over the Gilgit frontier, and four of them considered it necessary to extend that control to Chitral. Yet in the face of such a consensus of opinion on the part of those who have the best means of judging, people comparatively ignorant of the subject raise an outcry against our remaining in Chitral. In Lord Roberts' opinion, it is imperative on us to hold that northernmost corner of the great natural frontier of India, for notwithstanding that he considers the chance of a successful attack on India from that direction infinitesimal, the danger of allowing even two or three thousand Cossacks to cross either the Kilik, Dorah or Baroghil Pass would be great, for the report of their presence in Chitral would cause a vast amount of excitement and alarm in Cashmere and the Punjab and would have a most disturbing effect on the restless and warlike races along the border. It is sometimes urged as a reason against our acquiring control over the inhabitants in the central part of the frontier that they are more difficult to deal with than the people of Beluchistan. Beluchis, no doubt, are less fanatical than Pathans, but they are just as warlike, and were just as much given to pillaging and murdering as their more northern neighbours; moreover, a great number of the inhabitants of Beluchistan are Pathans, while in Gilgit and Chitral the characteristics of the people are infinitely more Pathan than Beluch. The truth is that Pathans, robbers and murderers though they may be, are gallant fellows, and like Orientals everywhere are responsive to vigorous and sympathetic treatment, as we have learned by experience of those who serve in our ranks. If our military operations are followed up by an administrator of the Sandeman stamp being placed in political charge of the frontier tribes; by the occupation of some commanding position in

Our frontier complications—Russia the disturbing factor.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, April 30th, 1898.

Afridi land which will ensure our having the control of the Khyber Pass, and will form a much-needed sanitarium for the fever-stricken garrisons in the Peshawar valley; by giving the tribesmen employment on such roads and railways as may be needed for our requirements; and if we make our influence felt in establishing law and order, without interfering with their habits, customs or religion, the Afridis, and in time, the rest of the border tribes, will settle down and become, not only peaceful neighbours, but as brave and loyal soldiers in our service as the Sikhs, Gurkhs and other warlike races who have fought against us have proved themselves to be."

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, April 9th, 1898.

The Amir and the Government of India.

5. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 9th April, inserts a translation of the correspondence which passed between the Government of India and the Amir regarding the frontier affair, and says that from the correspondence it is clearly proved that the thought of declaring hostilities against the British Government has never entered the mind of the Amir. His Highness acted in a very prudent manner by remaining neutral. For, if he had aided the Mullas against the British Government, he would have been deprived of his kingdom, or if he had acted against the Mullas he would have been declared an infidel and would have lost his life.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, April 18th, 1898.

The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 18th April, with regard to the same subject, says that each letter the Amir sent to the Government of India satisfactorily proves his friendship and loyalty.

The military strength of the British Government.

6. The same paper draws a contrast between the military strength of England and that of other European powers, and says England is comparatively far inferior in this respect. It is true that the British Parliament has very recently sanctioned an increase in the army, but this increase will not be sufficient to place it on a par with that of any other power. England is not only deficient in her army, but also in her arms and ammunition. It is a pity that England is inactive while her antagonists are making rapid progress in military matters.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, April 15th, 1898.

The Viceroy and the frontier war.

7. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th April, has an extract from the Aum of Lahore to the effect that the Viceroy has, as regards the recent frontier war, said that the British troops did not sustain any defeat, and that the war has proved to the frontier tribes that the British power is supreme, that British forces can at any time enter their territories. The Aum asks if the tribes were not convinced of this after Kabul was captured by Lord Roberts, and observes that the only benefit gained by the war is this, viz., that Government has become fully convinced that the Afridis are brave and hardy mountaineers with whom it is very difficult to cope. The Aum further observes that convincing the frontier tribes of the fact that the British forces can easily enter hilly tracts is expensive work at a cost of four crores of rupees collected from the poor people of India.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Dévakóttai, April 1st, 1898.

Gambling in the district of Madura.

8. The Vijayathvajam, of the 1st April, says that the people of Nattarasankottai, Karaikkudi, Dévakóttai, Kunraikkudi and some other villages in the district of Madura are addicted to gambling to an alarming extent and that many rich Chetties have been brought to ruin on account of the nefarious practice. The paper remarks that the police may be suspected of bribery, inasmuch as gambling is practised so openly that it cannot escape the notice of the police constables during the festival days in Kunraikkudi, and requests the Police Superintendent of the district to put an end to the evil practice herein complained of.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th April, publishes a letter from the ryots of Parumbakkudi, in the district of Madura, in which they bitterly complain that at midnight cattle-lifters from adjacent places entering their village carry away their cattle and hide them in the jungles, that the poor ryots have to pay half the value of the stolen cattle before they could redeem the animals, that they are very often deceived in spite of the ransom they pay to the cattle-lifters, in that their cattle are sold away at the fairs of distant villages, that the police receive regular pay from those wicked characters, and that they not only disregard the complaints of the ryots, but they also connive at the nefarious act. The paper concludes with the hope that their grievances will not fail to attract the notice of the authorities of the district and that they will adopt measures to put a stop to such unpleasant state of things to the glory of Her Majesty's reign.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 14th, 1898.

Cattle-lifting in the district of Madura.

10. The Lokopakari, of the 15th April, says that, according to the new system, the head constables of the Police department have very little chance of being promoted as inspectors, graduates and undergraduates trained in the Vellore school being preferred to inferior police officers. The paper remarks that it is a grievous disappointment to the deserving police officers not to be promoted to higher grades, and that promotions of inferior officers of merit and experience will induce other men in the department to discharge their duty with zeal and earnestness with the hope of rising high sooner or later. The paper is of opinion that it is highly desirable that Government should encourage deserving police officers of experience as well as educated men trained in Vellore by giving them both equal chances of being appointed inspectors.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, April 15th, 1898.

Certain suggestions regarding the Police department.

11. The Sasilekha, of the 15th April, writing about the selection of persons for the post of police inspectors, states that 10 private candidates and 30 subordinate officers of the department have passed the necessary examination this year, after being trained in the Police training school in Vellore. But it regrets to hear that the first vacancies were arranged to be filled up from among the private graduate candidates. It remarks that, though Government would be justified in giving these higher appointments to persons possessing higher educational qualifications, it is unjust to pass over the claims of constables or head constables, who having served as such for a long time, have qualified themselves for inspectors' places by undergoing training and passing the necessary tests. As in the Revenue department, the petty police officer must have facilities afforded to him to rise higher and higher in the service; for, if a constable should know that he could rise to a place of Rs. 200 a-month, he would try to qualify himself for that post; but if, on the other hand, he could never get more than Rs. 32 a-month, at the utmost, as a head constable, he would become discontented and dishonest, and would try to make the best of his official position by extortion and bribes. The result of this arrangement, therefore, is that the public at large suffer much at the hands of the police officers.

SASILEKHA, Madras, April 15th, 1898.

Police inspectorships.

12. A leader in the Manorama, of the 18th April, says that, owing to highway robberies which are being committed, in broad daylight, by certain Mappilas and others in several localities within a radius of eight miles from the Palghat town, it has become difficult for people to pass those places with articles of value in their possession. The article gives some instances in which robbery of a daring nature was committed. The women, who live by pounding and selling rice in the Palghat market, are the chief sufferers. It appears that such women on their way to the market for the disposal of their rice are not only robbed of their goods and sale-proceeds, but are also outraged. Recently a woman offered resistance to an attempt to ravish her and had her breast cut off. These atrocities are said to be committed within two or three miles of the Town

MANORAMA, Calicut, April 18th, 1898.

Atrocities committed by Mappila robbers in Palghat with the connivance of the local police.

Police station, and the popular report is that the local police are hand-and-glove with the robbers and receive a share of the booty. The article therefore invites the attention of the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police to the matter, and suggests that some of the police of the Palghat taluk should be transferred with a view to the matter being inquired into and the culprits properly punished.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, April 23rd, 1898.

High-handedness of the Calicut police.

13. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd April, deplores the demoralised condition of the Malabar police in general and the Calicut police in particular. The festivals at temples in the town of Calicut and in its neighbourhood were characterised by various kinds of gambling once prohibited, and by the evil consequences such gambling invariably leads to, all under the encouragement and sanction of the police whose duty it is to put a stop to them. A dramatic company had a series of performances at various private residences in the town of Calicut conducted in perfect peace and without any hitch; but for having done so lately in the neighbourhood of the Revenue Inspector's house, the company was charged by the police with the offence of nuisance. If the police can act so boldly in such a big town as Calicut, what will be their conduct in out-of-the-way places? The high-handedness of the police is on the increase and the attention of the authorities concerned is invited to this point.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, April 27th, 1898.

Appointment of Inspectors of Police.

14. With reference to the practice of entertaining as Inspectors of Police persons that have passed the University examinations such as F.A. and B.A. and then have undergone a course of three months' training in the Vellore Police school, to the prejudice of the claims of competent and experienced head constables, a leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th April, says that that practice has not been productive of much good. The article suggests that gradual promotions should, in the majority of cases, be given to the experienced head constables of the Police department, and that to make the situation of a head constable sufficiently attractive to educated men, the pay of such an officer should be raised.

(b) Courts.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, April 9th, 1898.

A complaint against the Tanjore District Munsif's Court.

15. The Jananukulan, of the 9th April, complains as follows:—In pursuance of the decree of the District Munsif's Court of Tanjore in Original Suit No. 471 of 1896, the defendant Mr. Rajaram Rao paid into the court Rs. 1,401-6-6 on the 6th March last; but when the plaintiff Mr. Davaji Rao brought a warrant on the 12th March to attach the goods of the defendant for the recovery of Rs. 1,428, the defendant, bewildered at the procedure, paid a second time the amount in question, in view to obey the court's order and to maintain his self-respect. We are anxious to know what became of the money paid by the defendant into the court on the first occasion, why it was not duly paid to the plaintiff, and who is to be blamed for this piece of injustice and irregularity. Alas! has the Court of Justice at Tanjore come to this plight? We hope that the District Court and the High Court as well as Government will bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 21st, 1898.

Remarks on the appointment of Mr. Ross as one of the Puisne Judges of the Madras High Court.

16. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st April, agrees with Sir Arthur Collins, the Chief Justice, in protesting against the appointment of Mr. Ross as one of the Puisne Judges of the Madras High Court during the absence of the Chief Justice on leave for six months, on the ground that it is derogatory to the dignity of the Chief Justice to give Mr. Ross a seat in the Madras High Court Bench on a footing of equality with him, seeing that Mr. Ross once stood before him as an accused, and suggests to Government the desirability of appointing Mr. Ross either as a Member of the Board of Revenue, or as the Chief Secretary, or as the Secretary to the Revenue Department, if Government wishes to encourage him for his singular ability and conscientious discharge of his duty.

17. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 21st April, says that the munsifs in Malabar, particularly those of North Malabar, do not properly observe the instructions conveyed in the proceedings of the High Court in connection with the appointment of Commissioners in Civil Suits, and that they should be required to strictly follow the instructions referred to. It appears that the appointment of Commissioners and the granting of commission orders depend on favouritism which has, therefore, given rise to much dissatisfaction.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, April 21st, 1898.

Appointment of Commissioners in Civil Suits to be better regulated.

(d) Education.

18. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 21st April, invites the attention of the Director of Public Instruction to the advisability of abolishing the Lower Secondary branch of the Mappila training school, Calicut, in consideration of the paucity of Mappila candidates who have passed the Lower Secondary examination and of converting it into a Primary training school, the term of one year now allowed for that training being increased to two. The article further says that the reduced strength of the school is chiefly due to its not having been located in one of the Mappila centres, and accordingly suggests the removal of the school to either Tirur or Malappuram.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, April 21st, 1898.

Suggestions regarding the reorganisation of the Mappila training school, Calicut.

19. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th April, referring to the futility of the attempts which have hitherto been made by Government in advancing the education of the Mappilas, regrets to observe that the Government did not, in reviewing the Malabar District Board budget, accept the suggestion made therein by the President of the Board for the abolition of the Mappila sessional schools which are on all hands admitted to be a scandalous waste of public money.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, April 27th, 1898.

Recommending the abolition of the Mappila sessional schools in Malabar.

(e) Local and Municipal.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 27th March, requests Government not to sanction the amalgamation of the municipalities of Tinnevelly and Palamcottah as recommended by the district authorities. The paper says that in case of amalgamation, as contemplated, eleven villages lying between the two towns will be put to the necessity of paying municipal taxes in spite of the fact that they are better off without a municipality.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1898.

Remarks on the amalgamation of the municipalities of Tinnevelly and Palamcottah.

21. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th April, says that the members of Local Fund Boards are generally appointed by the serishtadar and the head clerk of the Collector of the district, and that with such members on the board the Government officials transact the business of the board as they please, inasmuch as the members express their opinion according to the wishes of the Government officials. The paper asks the people to petition Government pointing out better methods of appointing men as members of Local Fund Boards.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 9th, 1898.

Remarks on the appointment of men as members of Local Fund Boards.

22. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 11th April, condemns the policy of Government in getting Government officials elected as municipal secretaries, and curtailing the powers of the municipal chairmen and conferring them on the secretaries contrary to the provisions of the new

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, April 11th, 1898.

Remarks on municipal secretaries and chairmen.

Municipal Act. The paper observes with regret that such a measure against the existing law and public opinion is detrimental to the progress of local self-government, and advises all public assemblies to protest with persistent iteration against such an unwarranted procedure on the part of Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 19th, 1898.

Certain defects in district boards and municipalities.

23. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th April, regrets to observe that the privilege of local self-government vouchsafed by Lord Ripon does not produce the desired effect, inasmuch as most of the members of district boards and municipalities of this presidency are either Government officials or men who owe their position more or less to Government officials, and who cannot therefore be said to be the representatives of the people at large, that several of the members have neither the means to know what takes place in the meeting of such boards or municipalities, nor do they care to know the same, having no leisure at their command, and that the proceedings of the meetings appear in the District Gazettes after a considerable delay of three or four months. The paper is at a loss to know why money should be wasted in publishing the proceedings so late, and suggests the desirability of giving publicity to them either separately or through the medium of the local newspapers, and concludes with the hope that the representatives of the people in the Legislative Council will take the subject into their consideration when the Local Board Act is to be amended.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 21st, 1898.

Necessity to remove the nuisance caused by washermen in Madras.

24. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st April, supports Mr. Smith's statements regarding the most unsatisfactory manner in which the washermen in Madras deal with the clothes of the people, and requests the President and the Commissioners of the Municipality of Madras to take immediate steps for redressing the grievances of the people. The paper regrets to remark that the Madras Municipality has taken no notice whatever of the representations made by the Sanitary Commissioner in 1882 and 1891 of the insanitary condition of the dwelling-houses of the washermen, of the wretched condition of the water used by them for washing the clothes and of the loathsome manner in which they treat the clothes entrusted to them. The paper concludes with the remark that unless the Municipal President and the Health officer adopt remedial measures and set apart suitable places for washing the clothes, which they are bound to do under the Municipal Act, the city of Madras cannot hope to be free from plague and other sweeping diseases.

SASILEKHA, Madras, April 19th, 1898.

The Sanskrit Pandit, Lálgudi high school.

25. The Sasilekha, of the 19th April, regrets to hear that Government has rejected the proposal of the district board of Trichinopoly to raise the salary of the Sanskrit Pandit in the Lálgudi high school from Rs. 9 to Rs. 10 a-month. Observing that the muchi of the school gets the same pay, it remarks that this indifferent treatment of the Pandits by the Government has reduced their number. What is the good then, it asks, of Dr. Duncan trying to establish the necessity for the improvement of vernacular languages.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 18th, 1898.

Bad roads in Bangalore.

26. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 18th April, calls attention to the bad state of the roads in the civil and military station as well as in the city of Bangalore, and thinks that it is due to the nature of the material used in their construction, and calls upon the municipalities to attend to the work of repairing them at once.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, April 16th, 1898.

Arrangement made by the Madras Municipality to prevent adulteration of food, etc.

27. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 16th April, mentions that the Madras Municipality has made arrangement for preventing shopkeepers from adulterating food, drink and drugs, and has also under its consideration a proposal for constructing a Power battery, and appointing inspectors for testing them. The editor says the effort is laudable.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 5th April, complains against the joint-patta system introduced by the Settlement officers in Tanjore, by which different land-owners holding lands bearing the same survey number were given a single joint-patta which does not enable Revenue officers to find out the extent of land actually owned by each mirasidar and the amount of kist due from him, so that such petty Revenue officers as the karnam and maniamdar do not scruple to hoodwink the quiet-going mirasidars by collecting from them more kist than what is lawfully recoverable from them. The correspondent regrets to note that the tahsildars do not pay the necessary attention when complaints are preferred to them on this subject by the aggrieved parties. The correspondent concludes with the remark that it will not take more than four days to subdivide and specify the extent of land owned by each party, inasmuch as the karnams have a fair local knowledge of such lands, and hopes that Government will bestow the necessary attention on this subject and adopt remedial measures.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 5th, 1898.

A complaint against the new settlement.

29. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd April, regrets to note that it is very cruel on the part of Government to have the arrears of land-tax collected with unusual rigour specially in the districts of Cuddapah, Nellore and Chingleput, which may be said to be famine-affected, and requests Government to issue orders at once to put an end to the coercive measures adopted in the collection of the arrears of assessment in the district of Cuddapah. The paper concludes with the observation that the prosperity of Government invariably depends on that of its people, and that the suffering of the people due to the rigorous collection of kist will have its effect on Government later on.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 23rd, 1898.

Advice to Government to stop collecting the arrears of kist in the famine-affected districts.

30. The same paper observes that the mirasidars of the district of Tanjore are unable to pay the kist in four instalments as the arrears have become heavy, and that as the mirasidars do not reap their harvest in full in the month of January when the first instalment is due, they are obliged to borrow money to pay the kist, which subjects them to difficulties. In view to redress these grievances the paper suggests the desirability of collecting the kist in five instead of four instalments, and of beginning to collect the kist in February instead of January.

Certain suggestions to Government in respect of land-tax in the district of Tanjore.

31. The Sasilekha, of the 22nd April, writes to the following effect :— Last year the people of the Cuddapah district suffered from famine, whereas this year they have to suffer from the acts of the Revenue officers. In 1897 most of the crops failed completely, and cholum, the food of the masses, yielded half the usual quantity. When the condition was such, the Revenue officials began to collect the kists for fasli 1307, and the ryots were obliged to sell the grain they possessed. It was hoped that partial remissions of cess would be granted in consideration of the recent famine, but it was all in vain. For, instead of a certain percentage of the cess being remitted in each case as in the other districts, remissions were graduated according to the amount of the patta, the holders of pattas for Rs. 10 being wholly exempted from payment of the kist, those of pattas for Rs. 20 from half the amount, and so on. The effect of this arrangement was that very few people could obtain any concession. Moreover, the fact that the land covered by a single patta is generally distributed among a number of cultivators (some of them being for Rs. 10 and less) was not taken into account, nor were the nature of the soil and the higher rate levied on certain crops considered. The people feel it a hardship to have now to pay the kists for fasli 1306, which were held in abeyance for some time. For, owing to the failure of the cotton crop, the cotton merchants do not get money to take to Cuddapah, while the sale of cholum cannot realise much money. Under these circumstances, why should not the Government postpone the collection of the kists for fasli 1306 and recover the same by instalments in favourable seasons? The sufferings of the people at the hands of the Revenue officers are more intolerable than those resulting from failure of rains. During the last famine, both Government and private persons came to the relief of the poor sufferers. Is it good then that those that were thus protected should now be put to great suffering? His Excellency the Governor must consider the question well and postpone the collection of the kists due for fasli 1306.

SASILEKHA, Madras, April 22nd, 1898.

Collection of land-tax in Cuddapah.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 29th, 1898.

Inconveniences in the South Indian Railway.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th March, complains that the carriages of the South Indian Railway are overcrowded to such an extent that passengers hardly find room even to stand, and that during festival days passengers are unscrupulously thrust into horse-carriages. The paper requests Government to adopt the necessary measures to redress this grievance, and suggests the desirability of running an additional through train from Madras to Tuticorin.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 19th, 1898.

Remarks on a notification by the Collector of Coimbatore in regard to the irrigation of the district.

33. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 19th April, referring to the Collector's notification in the District Gazette of Coimbatore that those whose fields are found to contain an "unfair supply" of water shall be subject to a heavy penal tax, observes as follows:—If through the mischief of an enemy, or through disorder in the sluices and other works of irrigation, or through the neglect of the officers of the Public Works Department, or through flood caused by rain, any man's land is found to contain an "unfair supply" of water, does it stand to reason that the poor man should be punished without any inquiry whatever being made as to the real cause of the "unfair supply"? Will the ryots be so foolish as to supply their fields with more water than is necessary to the detriment of their crops, while they are at perfect liberty to irrigate their fields to the required extent with Government water? This order, moreover, will make Government officials indifferent and will not induce them to find out the real culprits. It is hoped that Government will be pleased to give the order mature consideration before it is brought into force, and that the members of the Legislative Council will adopt the necessary measures to have reasonable and just orders passed by Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 23rd, 1898.

An advice to Government to repair tanks and other sources of irrigation to ward off famine.

34. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd April, says that the repairing of tanks and other sources of irrigation is absolutely necessary for the prosperity of this country, the people of which mainly depend upon agriculture for their sustenance. The paper observes that if, instead of laying out enormous money on railways and thus allowing it to flow into foreign countries, the Government be pleased to spend half the sum in the construction of dams, etc., for irrigation and in their repairs, there is no reason why famine should visit this country as often as it does now.

SASILEKHA, Madras, April 26th, 1898.

Wells better than water-canals and railways.

35. The Sasilekha, of the 26th April, referring to the statements made by the zamindars of Muzafarnagar, Bombay Presidency, in their evidence before the Famine Commission, remarks that canal-water affects the fertility of the soil and the health of the people. It adds that the construction of wells requires a much smaller investment of capital and that the quality of well-water improves by constant use. As for railways, it remarks that they do not benefit the Indian ryot even so much as they do the English capitalist and manufacturer. It complains that Government is always favourably inclined towards undertaking large schemes such as wars, railways and "projects," and does not concern itself with minor irrigation works. It therefore prays that Government would render help to the poor ryots by making the necessary arrangements for the construction of wells in all parts of the presidency.

(k) General.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th March, suggests the following reforms with regard to the administration of the districts of the Madras Presidency :— SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 29th, 1898.

Certain suggestions to reform the administration of districts.

(1) The number of districts in the presidency should be increased, and the area of each district should be lessened to enable Collectors to attend to their onerous and absorbing duties with greater leisure and to realize the grievances of the people better than they do now.

(2) A Collector should be appointed for each district and a native Deputy Collector for each of the taluks comprising the district, who should be the sole responsible officer of his taluk in respect of all matters concerning the taluk, such as Public Works, Forest, Revenue, Settlement, Survey, etc.

In support of these suggestions the paper observes that if the sphere of control be lessened the authorities will be able to do their work more conscientiously than they are able to do at present, and that it is useless to spend a great deal of money for the maintenance of several departments, which results in unnecessary rivalry and misunderstanding among the heads of those departments, impeding all business and making the poor people suffer in consequence.

37. A correspondent to the Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th March, regrets to observe that there is a good deal of corruption on the part of the persons engaged in driving the tapal carriages from Periyakulam, Madura district, to different villages, that they do not as a rule carry the passengers to the places of destination at the hours specified in the regulations unless they are paid in excess of the prescribed rates, and that the misconduct of the avaricious drivers of these carriages subjects the poor passengers to inexpressible inconveniences and hardship, which, the correspondent hopes, will not fail to draw the attention of the authorities. ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Mar. 24th, 1898.

Irregularity on the part of the drivers of tapal carriages in the district of Madura.

38. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 2nd April, complains that although the village of Puduppatti, in the Salem taluk, contains about 700 houses and 4,200 people and carries on an extensive trade, it has not the benefits of a post office, the absence of which subjects to no small inconvenience the inhabitants, some of whom are subscribers to the District Gazette and a number of vernacular newspapers. He therefore requests the authorities to open a post office ere long in the said village. VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, April 2nd, 1898.

Necessity for a post office in Puduppatti, Rajapuram division, Salem taluk.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd April, observes that Government is under the false impression that they are the proprietors of all the lands in this country, and that the mirasidars are but tenants under them, bound to pay as tax any sum Government may choose to fix in respect of the lands in their occupation, and that it is such a wrong notion that induces Government to have the land-tax enhanced every now and then by means of Settlement officers. The paper remarks that the mirasidars are in reality the proprietors of their lands and that Government have no other hold on SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 23rd, 1898.

Observations on the proprietorship of lands in this country.

them than to levy a certain tax, and wants the people to understand this relation of Government with regard to land, and points out that this is the case in England and other countries.

SASILEKHA, Madras, April 15th, 1898.

40. The Sasilekha, of the 15th April, noting that arrangements have been made for two balls and a garden party at the Government House, Ootacamund, remarks that there is no use of the people praying to the Government to stay in the plains during summer, when it can "immerse itself in such an ocean of luxury" on the hills.

Entertainments in Government House, Ootacamund.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, April 23rd, 1898.

41. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 23rd April, finds fault with the Madras Government for delaying the establishment of agricultural banks. It says: It is over 14 years now since the Viceroy in Council passed a resolution directing the opening of experimental agricultural banks in some of the districts of the Madras Presidency, and yet not a single bank has been opened anywhere. Again Mr. Nicholson's report on the feasibility of establishing such banks was completed in 1892, and yet no action has been taken. This shows the laissez faire fashion in which the administration of the Southern Presidency was conducted during Lord Wenlock's Governorship, and is now continued under his successor; and the incident also shows the culpable negligence and indifference of the Government of India that, having called for a report on the subject of agricultural banks six years ago, it does not appear to have called for any explanation as to the unprecedented delay in sending in the report.

Agricultural banks in the Madras Presidency.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 18th, 1898.

42. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 18th April, in a leading article remarks as follows:—The doings of the Government have caused dissatisfaction all round, and such a condition of things is sad to contemplate. We may mention a few of the acts of the rulers that have tended to estrange the people, more especially the educated people. The plague regulations set the masses against the Government of Bombay and the murders of last June were the result. But the Government of Bombay was not satisfied with capturing the supposed murderer. They deported the two Nattu brothers from Poona without bringing them to trial or divulging why they were deported. They were taken away from their homes just in the same way that the Russian political prisoners are sent to Siberia, and though a petition has been sent for their release the Government will not grant the prayer of the petitioners. But the rulers did not stop here. They determined to bring the press under the gag, by extending section 124-A, not because it was seditious but because it criticised the doings of those in authority. Even this was not considered sufficient. They made changes in Criminal Procedure Code also which are calculated to give further dissatisfaction. The way the laws have been changed is calculated to make criminals rather than cure crime, and this the Government will be sure to discover before very long. It appears as if the authorities were desirous of driving the people away from them rather than to draw them nearer. This is entirely a great mistake, which they may at any time discover to their cost. They are going in a mad course at present. It is not laws that are required but good government and a lightening of taxation. We would advise them to try their hand in this direction and the result would be far more satisfactory than at present.

The late changes in the law of sedition.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, April 16th, 1898.

43. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 16th April, says that the reply given by the Government of Madras at the last meeting of the local Legislative Council to the question relating to the appointment of Government Translators, viz., that it has not made any change in the principle regulating the said appointment, is clear proof of its not having agreed to the proposal of the Government of India to confer such appointments upon Europeans; and remarks that this act of His Excellency the Governor is one of those highly commended by the people. It states that, in the opinion of the Government of India, a native translator will not make a true and faithful translation of articles appearing in the vernacular papers against the Government. This opinion is said to be groundless, for it was a native Muhammadan translator and not a European that translated and brought to the notice of the Government the articles which led to the conviction of Mr. Tilak. Such being the case, to say that a native translator cannot be trusted, is not only impolitic but is calculated to strain the relations between the rulers and the ruled. One of the chief reasons adduced by the editor against the appointment of Europeans to the posts under reference is the difficulty of getting Europeans sufficiently conversant with the vernacular languages to enable them to discharge the functions of translators. The appointment of Europeans who possess but a smattering knowledge of the Indian languages is detrimental to the interest of the people. The article, while disapproving of the opinion of the Government of India, concludes once more thanking the Government of Madras for its just and reasonable act.

Remarks on the appointment of Translators to Government.

Notification issued by the Punjab Government preventing pilgrimage to Mecca during the current season.

44. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 16th April, mentions that, owing to the outbreak of plague at Karachi, a notification has been issued by the Government of the Punjab intimating that no pilgrim vessel will sail from Karachi this season, and requesting intending pilgrims to postpone their pilgrimage for the present. The editor says the above notification has disappointed intending pilgrims.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, April 16th, 1898.

A rumoured plague case at Calcutta.

45. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 25th April, has translation of a paragraph from some English paper to the effect that owing to the rumoured death of a man in a druggist shop at Calcutta, the drugs, etc., were burnt by the authorities and that subsequently it was proved that it was not a plague case. Can the authorities prevent the will of God? The procedure adopted by the authorities in this case shows their folly as well as their irreligion.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, April 25th, 1898.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Remarks on the Madras Tenancy Bill.

46. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th March, recapitulating the Madras Tenancy Bill, observes that the Bill, if it be passed into an Act, will cut short the powers of the zemindars over their tenants and bestow on the zemindari ryots some additional privileges in respect of their lands, and invites from its readers criticisms and observations on the Bill as it is one of paramount importance.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 24th, 1898.

Some suggestions regarding the Marriageable Age Bill.

47. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd April, suggests the desirability of including the following provisions in the Marriageable Age Bill:—

(1) If a man desires to get himself re-married either during the lifetime of his first wife or after he has become a widower, he shall not marry a girl of less than eleven years of age, when his age is more than double that of the girl.

(2) If a man aged more than 40 years wishes to be married under these conditions, he may do so only after obtaining a certificate of physical fitness from a medical officer.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 2nd, 1898.

Reflections on the Bills to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Indian Criminal Procedure Code.

48. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th April, observes as follows:—It is to be regretted that the Bills amending the Indian Penal Code and the Indian Criminal Procedure Code recently passed into Acts had not been translated and published for general information in pursuance of the rule passed by Lord Ripon that all Bills should have been translated into the several vernaculars and published for the information of the people before they are brought before the Legislative Council for consideration. European Government officials were not therefore justified in replying to the native members of the Legislative Council who opposed the measure that the people had not protested against the passing of the Bills under reference. Was it not enough that the native press and the native members of the Legislative Council opposed the Bills? Are not these members the representatives of the people at large? The Government of India has passed the Bills in question into Acts taking unfair advantage of the powers vested in them. This law is always a national calamity to the Hindus and a stain on the British rule.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 9th, 1898.

Criticism on the Madras Tenancy Bill.

49. The same paper referring to the provision of the Madras Tenancy Bill which allows the zemindari tenants a right of appeal every year to Collectors for the reduction of their rent, regrets to remark that no such appeal is allowed by Government to its subjects when their assessment is enhanced year after year, and asks: Why should the zemindars be regulated by a rule different from the one which regulates Government? The paper concludes exhorting the zamindars to be on the alert before the Bill is passed into an Act on the hills in June.

SASILEKHA, Madras, April 19th, 1898.

The Madras Tenancy Bill.

50. The Sasilekha, of the 19th April, speaking of the Madras Tenancy Bill, points out the respective advantages to the landlords and tenants, but takes exception to the provision which empowers the tenants to appeal to the Collector when the rent assessed is alleged to be high. It also remarks that the Government frequently interferes with the "settlement," and raises the land-tax and water-cess, and that the prayers of the ryots are unheeded by it. It is surprising to note, it says, that the system of procedure in the matter of collection of assessment which the Government has prescribed for proprietors is different from what it adopts for itself. The paper, therefore, advises the zemindars of the presidency to meet together and represent their objections to the Bill to the Government, and suggests that the Honourable the Raja of Bobbili must get himself well acquainted with these matters and fight out the cause of the proprietors in the Council, representing as he does the landholders in the presidency.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, April 20th, 1898.

Agricultural banks in Mysore.

51. The Suryodaya, of the 20th April, points out various difficulties in the way of the successful working of the agricultural banks in Mysore. It says that many applications from members of the banks (sic) are lying undisposed of. It is difficult in the first place to get the zemindars and ryots to meet together, and even if they do and send up an application they must get the favour of the patel, the karnam and the amildar and shekdar. Then there are money-lenders who, for fear of losing their customers, try their best to prevent the opening of the banks. The paper therefore calls upon the Diwan to personally visit the various districts and consult the ryots on the spot.

Judicial department of the Mysore State.

52. The same paper complains that there are too many munsifs in the Mysore province who are past their state of efficiency and must be retired. It understands that the 3rd Judge of the Mysore Chief Court, Mr. Minakshi Iyer, is about to retire and that his place is to be taken by Mr. Parthasarathy Iyengar, of the Madras Small Causes Court. The paper strongly deprecates this and says that it is unjust to bring in an outsider and ignore the claims of Mr. H. V. Nanjundiah who is also an M.A. and M.L. and who is in no way inferior to Mr. Parthasarathy Iyengar.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 25th, 1898.

Mr. Rangaswami Iyengar's appointment as Inspector-General of Police in Mysore not approved by the people.

53. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th April, says that the appointment of Mr. Rangaswami Iyengar as Inspector-General of Mysore has not met with the approbation of the public for various reasons. Of these it mentions the following:—That he is not physically strong and capable of discharging the duties efficiently, as they require a great deal of energy and constant activity; and that his temper is not of a very amiable kind, and is not suited to conciliate the diverse sorts and conditions of men with whom he has to deal.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

54. The South Indian Mitran, of the 25th March, reports that both dry and wet crops as well as garden plantations of the district of Madura have totally failed this year and that the ryots are unable to pay the kist, and requests Government to appoint a special Revenue officer for repairing wells and for advancing money as loan to the ryots under the Land Improvement Loans Act and to sell by auction Government waste lands that can be cultivated with the water of the Periyár, so that the poor may find employment in the improvement of those lands.

Failure of crops, etc., in the Madura district.

South Indian Mitran, Dindigul, Mar. 25th, 1898.

55. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th April, says that famine has not as yet disappeared from the country, and that poor people are driven to the necessity of thieving through sheer want. The paper reports that those who were sent out of the salt depôt in the Madurántakam taluk have taken to thieving as their only source of livelihood. The paper therefore requests Government to open relief works for these poor people and thus put an end to their immoral actions.

Famine and theft in the taluk of Madurántakam.

Swadesamitran, Madras, April 16th, 1898.

56. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 22nd April, writes thus:—Many people of Nellore died and some deserted their homes owing to heat, famine and disease. In spite of sufferings and death, it would be recorded at the next census that the population had increased and that the country had been prosperous in every way. There is none to record the sufferings of the millions of poor people who are unable to have even a single full meal a day. The Government has opened relief works in Nellore on the intermediate system, under the belief that there is no famine there. The people of Podili and Darsi are living upon some roots not even fit for cattle to eat, and schools have been closed in thirteen villages, teachers and pupils resorting to relief works, while the inhabitants of Udayagiri and Kanigiri are subsisting upon the indigestible prickly-pear. I have actually seen three such persons in a village who were mere skeletons. The wages of breaking stones of 7½ cubic feet are 1½ annas; now what is to become of a man unable to do the hard work, in the absence of charitable choultries for the sick and the weak? The Government must spend some money and protect the poor in these days of famine. There being no Famine Commissioner like Mr. LeFanu, I fear many will perish from the adoption of the intermediate scheme of wages.

Famine in Nellore.

Sasilekha, Madras, April 22nd, 1898.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

57. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd April, says that the task of governing India at this stage is indeed very arduous and that a person of extraordinary talents and administrative skill should be appointed Viceroy, so that he may not easily allow himself to be induced by the military officers on the one hand, who are too ready to engage themselves in wars and by the civilians on the other hand, who would like to make him dance attendance to their tune. The paper recommends Lord Cromer, the present Governor of Egypt, as being the fittest person to govern India at a time like this.

The next Governor-General of India.

Swadesamitran, Madras, April 2nd, 1898.

58. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st April, says that the quarter-anna stamp-paper to be used by tenants when petitioning Revenue officers weighs a little more than half a tola, and that it therefore requires a postage of more than half anna. The paper

A suggestion to introduce thinner stamp-papers to be used for petitions.

Swadesamitran, Madras, April 21st, 1898.

requests Government to reduce the weight of the stamp-paper by making it thinner and provide a suitable envelope so that both may require only half anna as postage.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, April 18th, 1898.

59. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 18th April, finds fault with the present administration of the temple at Tirupati. It is considered a great mistake that the funds should be left to the entire management of an irresponsible man who treats the whole as his own private concern and allows the temple to be shut up without the usual daily worship being performed, by his quarrels with the Archak (priest) and others. The paper considers the Government responsible for this state of things, inasmuch as it allows a single man to be manager of such an important and rich temple.

Mismanagement in the Tirupati temple.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, April 16th, 1898.

60. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 16th April, while commenting upon the Madras budget, remarks, among other matters, as follows:—According to the budget for 1896-97, the land revenue amounted to 500 lakhs; this has increased to 553 lakhs according to the budget of 1897-98. It is wrong to suppose that this vast increase of revenue was due to the enhanced price of food-grains and not to the oppressive taxation of the people. We do not think that the grievances of the people resulting from enhanced taxation can be treated lightly. It is a matter for much regret that, in spite of this increase of revenue, no provision has been made in the budget for increasing the salaries of taluk gumastahs and village officials. It is true that an increased assessment is necessary to meet the increased expenditure of the Government; but to increase the tax on land for that purpose, without levying it on articles not absolutely necessary to the people, is unfair and unjust. The people will have no room for complaint if the duty levied on intoxicants is raised ever so high.

Remarks on the Madras budget.

61. A paragraph in the same issue of the paper reports that some pirates capture and plunder small coasting vessels on the sea-board of the Native Cochin State.

Piracy on the Cochin sea-coast.

62. Another paragraph in the same issue of the paper, alluding to a correspondent's complaint that the oppression, by some of the Mappilas of Chávakkát, of respectable innocent wayfarers has become intolerable, invites the attention of the magistrate and the police to the matter.

Oppression of passengers by Mappilas.

63. Another paragraph in the same issue of the paper complains that false weights and measures are largely used in the Calicut bazaars, and that poor people who go there immediately after dusk to buy things are made the victims of the fraud. The attention of the authorities is invited to the matter.

Using false weights and measures in Calicut bazaars.

64. Another paragraph, in the same issue, says that, as lepers hang about the Calicut municipal market rather freely, the authorities concerned should take early steps to arrest the danger. It considers that, as the disease is contagious the practice of allowing lepers to wander about fish and vegetable stalls, etc., is highly objectionable.

Lepers not to be allowed to hang about the municipal market in Calicut.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, April 20th, 1898.

65. As regards the recent order of the Government of Madras that the petitions, etc., to be presented in the Revenue cutcherries and other offices should be written on paper half a sheet of which costs three pies, a leader in the Kerala Sancharí, of the 20th April, states that the order having for its object to facilitate the upkeep of records in offices has lost sight of the hardship and inconvenience it is sure to work on the people already oppressed with taxation. The Goa paper, which costs one pie per sheet, would amply suffice for this purpose. The stamp-vendors who are authorised to sell the paper will cause a world of trouble by their wonted irregularity and unbusinesslike habit too well known to be detailed here. The India Act I of 1879 provides for plain paper being appended to stamp-paper when found necessary. The Madras Government has no power to repeal an Act of the Government of India. In pursuance of the Act of the Government of India, if a man presents a petition in a Revenue cutcherry on a stamped paper with the addition of the plain paper according to the need, will it be accepted in accordance with the provisions of the India Act or rejected under the recent Madras notification? The particulars called for by a Revenue officer with a view to impose the income-tax are required to be submitted on this kind of paper, otherwise they will be rejected. This involves expenditure of time and money. There are several other difficulties as well which, it is hoped, the Government of Madras will consider.

Hardships caused by the use of water-mark paper for presenting petitions.

Disquietude and disturbance in Palghat taluk.

66. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 25th April, states that places that held out no dread to solitary wayfarers even in the dead of night are hardly trodden alone in the broad daylight for fear of molestation. Since the advent of the British Government this state of affairs was quite unknown in this taluk till of late. It appears to have been the misfortune of some taluks to have had their peace now and then disturbed by the occurrence of riots, etc., but it is doubtful whether the consternation of the people of those places, even under such circumstances, has ever reached such a pitch as that of the inhabitants of this taluk. Still not a single man causing so much disquietude and panic has yet been arrested. This is a mystery to the dumb-foundered many. This state of suspended consternation, if suffered any longer to be endured without any remedial measures being adopted by Government, is sure to lead to the death of many of their subjects.

MANORAMA, Calicut, April 25th, 1898.

[Issued 7th May 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 9 OF 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th May 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| Egyptian affairs | 145 |
| England and China | ib. |
| Frontier affairs | ib. |
| Evacuation of Thessaly | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Remarks on Police Inspectors on circuit and their writers | ib. |
| Advisability of appointing educated men in the Police department | ib. |
| Complaint against the Mankara police | ib. |
| House-breaking and theft in Karippúr amsam, Ernad taluk, and the unsatisfactory nature of the police investigation | 146 |
| (b) Courts— | |
| A remark on the conduct of the Allahabad Court in regard to the native jurymen | ib. |
| Remarks on the decision of the Allahabad High Court in respect of a case of murder | ib. |
| Remarks on the qualifications of Sir Arthur Collins | ib. |
| Evils resulting from the appointment of Stationary Magistrates | ib. |
| How the constant transfers of District Munsifs does more harm than good | 147 |
| Unlicensed vakils to be allowed to practise in Criminal Courts in certain cases | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| A suggestion regarding the Debtors' jail | ib. |
| (d) Education— | |
| Suggestions regarding Taluk Board Mappila schools | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Needs of Kallakurchi | 148 |
| Want of satisfactory sanitary arrangements in Negapatam and the sufferings of the people in consequence. | ib. |
| Some complaints against the Chairman of the municipality of Kumbakónam | ib. |
| A few suggestions to the Municipal authorities | ib. |
| Insanitary condition of the native hotels in Negapatam | ib. |
| Sanitation in Tanjore | ib. |
| The proposed octroi duty of 2 per cent. on piece-goods in Bangalore | 149 |
| Remarks upon the disenfranchisement of the Tellicherry municipality | ib. |
| Deprecating proposal to take security from the Local Fund Assistant Engineers | ib. |
| Remarks on the embezzlement of the Local Fund amount that led to the conviction of Donaghue | ib. |
| Remarks on the use of water-marked paper for presenting petitions, enforced by the Chairman, Cannanore Municipal Council | 150 |
| Advisability of nominating Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination as members of Taluk Boards | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Suggestion regarding the improvement of the village establishment | ib. |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—cont. | |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement—cont. | |
| Rate of taxation in Malabar to be determined by extent of land and not by produce | 150 |
| Remarks on the Government order on the re-settlement of the Malabar district | ib. |
| (g) Forests—Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Grievances of the passengers at the railway station at Villupuram | 151 |
| Narrow gauge recommended for the Calicut-Cannanore line | ib. |
| (i) Public Works—Nil. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári—Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Certain suggestions for consideration when His Excellency visits the district of South Arcot | ib. |
| A complaint against the Sub-Registrar of Negapatam | ib. |
| Reflections on the Calcutta plague riots | ib. |
| The rumoured disbandment of the Madras regiments | 152 |
| Retirement of Lord Elgin | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Reflections on the meeting of the Legislative Council on the hills to discuss the Madras Tenancy Bill | ib. |
| The Madras Tenancy Bill | ib. |
| The Ootacamund Legislative Council meeting | 153 |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| A suggestion to erect leper hospitals in the Native State of Travancore | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Famine in Nellore and other districts | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| A request to Government to put an end to a kind of cruel penance on the part of certain devotees in the district of Tanjore | ib. |
| A suggestion regarding the means to get rid of stray dogs | ib. |
| Remarks on a certain suggestion of the Government of India regarding the Indian coins | 154 |
| Indians in Natal | ib. |
| The necessity for an early release of the imprisoned Natals | ib. |
| A petition from the wife of Bala Sahib to the Parliament | ib. |
| Fraudulent weights and measures in the civil and military station, Bangalore | ib. |
| A strange and suspicious sort of fever in Tamracheri amsam, Calicut | ib. |
| Remarks on the proposed abolition of the Government Press at Calicut | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Satyavartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. | 600 | 1st May 1898. |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 3 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 7th and 14th May 1898. |
| 4 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. . .. | 1,400 | 7th ,, 14th ,, ,, |
| 5 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 30th April and 7th May 1898. |
| 6 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 6th, 20th and 27th April 1898. |
| 7 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 500 | 25th April and 2nd and 9th May 1898. |
| 8 | "Janannkulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 2nd and 30th April 1898. |
| 9 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 1st and 8th May 1898. |
| 10 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 24th April and 1st and 8th May 1898. |
| 11 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 2nd and 9th May 1898. |
| 12 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 13 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 6th May 1898. |
| 14 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 7th ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 9th ,, ,, |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 26th, 28th and 30th April, and 3rd, 5th and 7th May 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | April 1898. |
| 18 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | May 1898. |
| 19 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakur (Nellore district). | 100 | 1st May 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 230 | 1st May 1898. |
| 21 | "Calinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 15th Feb. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 30th April and 7th May 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 30th April and 4th, 7th and 11th May 1898. |
| 24 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 3rd, 6th, 10th and 13th May 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 2nd and 9th May 1898. |
| 26 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 6th ,, 13th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 7th ,, 14th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Veerashaivamathadarsha" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 2nd May 1898. |
| 29 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 5th and 12th May 1898. |
| 30 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 4th May 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 1st May 1898. |
| 32 | "Malayali" .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. .. | 600 | 5th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 30th April ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 2nd May 1898. |
| 35 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 4th and 11th May 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 30th April and 7th May 1898. |
| 37 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 7th May 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 38 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 23rd April and 2nd May 1898. |
| 39 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 26th and 30th April 1898. |
| 40 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 29th ,, 30th ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 1st ,, 8th May ,, |
| 42 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 29th April and 5th May 1898. |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 25th and 28th April 1898. |
| 44 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 27th ,, 30th ,, ,, |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 30th April, writes that the marvellous progress, now being made in Egypt in all directions under the excellent management of the British, did not exist prior to their advent. The editor asks why the Khedive, who is an independent ruler, should have not acted for himself. He had borrowed crores of rupees, and had utilised them for his own ease and comfort without spending a single pie on bettering his wretched people. God grants prosperity to those rulers who attend to the ease and comfort of their subjects, but withholds this blessing from those who neglect these ends.

Egyptian affairs.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, April 30th, 1898.

2. The same paper. The Niyar-i-Aazam (place of publication not mentioned) approves of the neutral policy followed by the British Government in regard to Chinese affairs, but requests it not to let its commercial interests suffer owing to the piecemeal partition of China by several European powers and, in order to the safe-guarding of British interests in the Far East, suggests the formation of an alliance with Japan.

England and China.

3. As regards north-west frontier, the same paper says that though we have received very satisfactory news to the effect that the Jirgahs have offered their submission, yet it does not become the British Government to rely on their words, as it is possible that they may break their promise and again make mischief.

Frontier affairs.

4. The Alhami of the 8th May. The Habl-ul-Mateen, of Calcutta, says it learns from Turkish papers that the Ottoman Empire is engaged in developing its military power in Thessaly. This shows that Greece will not regain possession of Thessaly, though England is trying her best to recover it from the hands of the Porte.

Evacuation of Thessaly.

Alhami, Madras, May 8th, 1898.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 25th April, says that it is unjust that an ordinary constable should be made to follow a police inspector on circuit as a writer without being allowed any additional batta. The paper hopes that Government will take this grievance into its consideration and suggests the desirability of directing a fourth-grade constable, on a salary of Rs. 14, to follow a police inspector on circuit.

Remarks on police inspectors on circuit and their writers.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, April 25th, 1898.

6. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 30th April, regrets to remark that the sufferings of the people are indeed very great on account of the fact that illiterate men are often employed in the Police department, and that in consequence of such a state of things the department does not serve the purpose for which it is intended. The correspondent, referring to a case that recently occurred near the railway station at Tinnevelly in which the accused were police constables, feels sanguine that the employment of educated men will ameliorate the condition of the department to a considerable extent, and hopes that Government will adopt the necessary measures ere long.

Advisability of appointing educated men in the Police department.

Swadesamitran, Madras, April 30th, 1898.

7. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 2nd May, referring to the unrest that prevails among the people of the Palghat taluk caused by the robberies and dacoities largely and daringly committed in that taluk, writes that similar crimes are said to be committed in the vicinity of the Mankara police station by some notorious Mappilas. These bad characters are said to be living in the neighbourhood of the police station, and travellers are afraid to go alone by the police station for some distance lest they be molested by these men. The attention of the authorities is invited to the negligence of the police in the matter.

Complaint against the Mankara police.

Manorama, Calicut, May 2nd, 1898.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 7th, 1898.

House-breaking and theft in Karippúr amsam, Ernad taluk, and the unsatisfactory nature of the police investigation.

8. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 7th May, reports that house-breaking and theft have been committed in broad daylight in Karippúr amsam, Ernad taluk. These daring offences are perpetrated, it is said, with the connivance of certain influential persons of the place, and the investigations carried on by the Kundotti police regarding these occurrences are said to be little short of a farce. It is very necessary that such crimes should be carefully inquired into and the culprits properly punished. The article, therefore, invites the attention of the authorities concerned to the matter, and suggests that a thorough investigation of the case must be made and that it should be entrusted to an efficient Inspector of Police or to the Assistant Superintendent.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 26th, 1898.

A remark on the conduct of the Allahabad Court in regard to the native jurymen.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th April, says that in a case against a soldier accused of having murdered a native, pending in the Allahabad High Court, the counsel for the accused objected to every Hindu that was asked to serve as a juror on the ground that peacock hunt, which was the cause of the murder in question, is repulsive to the feelings of the Hindus as a nation and had Europeans appointed as all the nine jurymen. The paper, anxiously awaiting the result of the case, wants to know whether the Judge is empowered to allow the counsel to interrogate jurymen in the manner in which he was permitted by the Judge in the case under reference.

Remarks on the decision of the Allahabad High Court in respect of a case of murder.

10. The same paper, referring to the decision of the Allahabad High Court in respect of the case against a soldier accused of having murdered a native, observes that the dismissal of the case is quite unjust and that even the Anglo-Indian papers unanimously speak of the miscarriage of justice in the case. The paper hopes that the case will not fail to engage the attention of the Parliament.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 5th, 1898.

Remarks on the qualifications of Sir Arthur Collins.

11. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th May, observes that the vakils and the High Court authorities are sorry to hear that Sir Arthur Collins will return to Madras within six months. The paper remarks that Sir Arthur Collins is said to possess but a poor knowledge of law, and that in his tenure of office as Chief Justice the vakils have had no comfort and the parties no justice. The paper adds that rumour has it that Sir Arthur Collins has passed his twelve years' service without giving much work to his brain, and falling ill in consequence and without writing even a single judgment himself, that he returns home now for the first time although Chief Justices as a rule do not stay in this country for more than a decade, and that he never took any active part in matters relating to public good unlike his predecessors. The paper concludes with the remark that in spite of the few drawbacks herein pointed out, Sir Arthur Collins deserves to be extolled for his impartiality in his treatment of the Europeans and the natives alike.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 2nd, 1898.

Evils resulting from the appointment of stationary magistrates.

12. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 2nd May, writes that the appointment of stationary magistrates has done more harm than good to the public. As these magistrates are not in the habit of going on circuit to the amsams within their jurisdiction, they have no opportunities to understand the character and nature of the people in the amsams. Since the appointment of these stationary magistrates there has been no check on bad characters and consequently crimes have increased. These magistrates are generally not on good terms with the tahsildars, and as it is not within their power to do any harm to the tahsildars, they wreak their vengeance on the adhikaris, who are immediately under the tahsildars. It appears that when the adhikaris, who are usually respectable men in affluent circumstances, appear before the magistrates on official business or otherwise, they are insulted and abused in open court. This has lowered them in the estimation of the people, and bad characters take advantage thereof. Orders given by the adhikaris are not respected and obeyed though the stability of Government depends upon the strength of the village offices. Adhikaris are waylaid and robbed of the revenue collections while they are being carried to the taluk treasury. Moreover, in some cases they are afraid on account of the bad characters to venture out for the collection of tax, etc. Some of the present incumbents are trying to resign their office which was once much coveted by respectable men. The correspondent says that all these evils are brought about by the insolent conduct of the stationary magistrates towards the adhikaris, and invites the attention of Government in view to remedial measures being adopted.

13. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th May, referring to the recent transfers of district munsifs, says that the practice of transferring munsifs who have gained experience in particular districts and posting them to places to which they are quite new and with the languages of which they are not conversant, does more harm than good to the country. It is true that acquaintance with not less than two vernacular languages is prescribed by a rule of the High Court as one of the qualifications for a munsif's place, but this rule does not affect those who were appointed as munsifs prior to its introduction. Again, by transferring munsifs who are not empowered to try small cause suits to courts whose files are burdened with a great number of suits, many such small cause suits have to be tried as original ones. The article concludes with the remark that, in the circumstances mentioned above, the transfer of district munsifs by the High Court must be made with discretion and invites, therefore, its attention to the matter.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, May 4th, 1898.

How the constant transfers of district munsifs does more harm than good.

14. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 7th May, while approving of the District Magistrate's order not to allow unlicensed vakils to practise in the Deputy and Sub-Magistrates' courts, insists upon the magistrates using their discretion in allowing the most experienced among such vakils to plead before them on behalf of poor clients.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, May 7th, 1898.

Unlicensed vakils to be allowed to practise in criminal courts in certain cases.

(c) Jails.

15. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th April, regrets to remark that the rules now in force are in the main advantageous to the debtors and disadvantageous to the creditors. He suggests to Government the desirability of exacting from the debtors, when they are in the jail, such work as they are able to turn out, so that Government may be benefited by the useful labour of the debtors in the jail, while the debtors themselves may be made to feel the necessity of paying back their debts to their creditors anyhow.

Swadesamitran, Madras, April 28th, 1898.

A suggestion regarding the Debtors' jail.

(d) Education.

16. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 11th May, expresses its surprise at the fact that since the institution of the Taluk Board Mappila schools, not one Mappila boy has been able to pass the Primary examination. The article attributes this sad failure to the inefficiency of

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, May 11th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding Taluk Board Mappila schools.

the school management and points out the inadvisability of appointing only Mappila Inspectors to inspect these schools. The attention of the District Board is therefore invited to the matter.

(e) Local and Municipal.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, April 20th, 1898.

17. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 20th April, regrets to say that Government has no means of knowing what happens at Kallakurchi as there is neither railway nor telegraphic communication in the taluk, and that the poor people have to suffer in consequence during the times of famine. He remarks that the roads are infested with robbers who attack the passers-by, and concludes by saying that the union of Kallakurchi is poor and that it therefore requires the help of the taluk board.

Needs of Kallakurchi.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, April 25th, 1898.

18. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 25th April, complains that the filthy water overflows the tubs kept for the purpose in the town of Negapatam, owing to the delay on the part of the municipality of that place to appoint a new contractor to remove the filthy water, the period of the previous contract having expired on the 1st April, and that the poor inhabitants are prosecuted for allowing the filthy water to flow into the streets although it is not their fault. The paper hopes that the municipality will appoint ere long a new contractor who will do the business in a satisfactory manner and relieve the people already smarting under heavy taxation from additional hardship.

Want of satisfactory sanitary arrangements in Negapatam and the sufferings of the people in consequence.

19. A correspondent to the same paper regrets to remark that although the town of Kumbakónam contains about 30 tanks, none of them is fit for drinking and bathing purposes, and that all of them are so utterly neglected by the municipality that their water has become too foul to be of any use. He observes that the municipal administration of the town at present compared with what it was in the days of Messrs. P. Thumbusawmi Mudaliar and S. Seshayya is far from being satisfactory, in spite of the fact that the taxes have recently been enhanced.

Some complaints against the chairman of the municipality of Kumbakónam.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 30th, 1898.

20. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th April, regrets to remark that the municipal authorities are to blame much for the insanitary condition of the streets, inasmuch as the municipal scavengers come at about 7 A.M., take the filthy mire out of the gutters and heap it on the portion of the street already cleansed by the house-owners at the dawn of day, allowing the mire to emit a loathsome stink all the day long. The paper says that the municipal peons do not as a rule obey the house-owners, and advises the municipal authorities to see that their sanitary arrangements are carried on generally in harmony with the customary observances of the people, to direct the municipal peons and other menial servants to obey the house-owners to some extent and to cause the removal of the filthy mire as soon as it is taken out of the gutters.

A few suggestions to the municipal authorities.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, May 2nd, 1898.

21. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 2nd May, draws the much-needed attention of the Negapatam municipality and of the Head Assistant Magistrate to the extremely insanitary condition of the clubs or native hotels located in the south of the Bazaar street and in the Eastern street of Sattaiappar temple, and requests them to adopt prompt measures to improve their sanitation in the interest of those who resort to them.

Insanitary condition of the native hotels in Negapatam.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, May 12th, 1898.

22. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 12th May, says that in these days the fear of plague alone so absorbs the minds of the authorities that they never attend to the havoc caused by fever, cholera and other diseases. In the district of Tanjore the number of cholera attacks in the month of February alone was 12,398, and the number of deaths from that disease was 8,951. This, in the opinion of the editor, speaks very badly of the sanitation of the district.

Sanitation in Tanjore.

23. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 14th May, says that the imposition of an octroi duty of 2 per cent. on all imported goods within municipal limits involves a wrong principle of mercantile action, and will tend to work an injustice on the consumers of such goods, and will cause much irritation, expense and loss to the mercantile community generally. The editor, therefore, proposes that an all-round tax of one pie per rupee or half per cent. on imported piece-goods be levied. If this is done, there would be no necessity for the establishment of bonded warehouses. All that would be necessary will be that competent octroi officers be appointed along two lines of railway within the Mysore province and the tax levied on the spot as the goods arrived at their destination on the railway station platforms.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, May 14th, 1898.

The proposed octroi duty of 2 per cent. on piece-goods in Bangalore.

24. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st May, while referring to the Government order, dated 23rd February 1898, which took away the franchise of the Tellicherry municipality in regard to electing its chairman, and vested it in the Government along with the power of nominating half the number of councillors, says that this disenfranchisement was the direct result of the very unsatisfactory state of municipal affairs in Tellicherry as reported in his memorandum by the then chairman-delegate Mr. H. Fernandez. The article expresses the hope that, with the improved and satisfactory condition of the municipality, managed in conjunction with an able secretary, by a chairman nominated by the Government, the power taken away from the municipality may be given back to it.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 1st, 1898.

Remarks upon the disenfranchisement of the Tellicherry municipality.

25. A leader in the Manorama, of the 2nd May, says that the candidates who have applied for the post of the Local Fund Assistant Engineer, Tellicherry, which fell vacant in consequence of the conviction and punishment of the former incumbent Mr. Donaghue for misappropriation, have been required by the President of the Malabar District Board to furnish a security of Rs. 5,000 as a condition precedent to the appointment. The article deprecates this step which the President has adopted as a check against any fraud being committed by the Assistant Engineers, on the ground that the best men will not come forward to give such a high sum as security and accept an appointment which neither carries with it a high salary nor is pensionable. The opinion is expressed that it is from the District Engineer who issues cheques and who virtually controls all the money transactions and not from his assistants that security ought to be taken. The article while dwelling on the matter at some length remarks that as the District Engineer is primarily responsible for the misappropriation of money by Mr. Donaghue, the Government will, when the matter comes before it, call upon the Engineer, who now tries to shift the blame on to his clerks, for a full and satisfactory explanation.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 2nd, 1898.

Deprecating proposal to take security from the Local Fund Assistant Engineers.

26. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 7th May, referring to the conviction of Assistant Engineer Donaghue, says that it is not understood yet how such a large sum of money came to be thus abused. Explanations on this subject have been demanded from three clerks of the Local Fund District Engineer's office, but the article says that it does not see how the clerks, and not the District Engineer, can justly be held responsible for the irregularity. It therefore suggests that a full explanation should be demanded from the District Engineer who had, on many occasions, been to the Kuttupuzha bridge, on inspection work, when it was in course of construction.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 7th, 1898.

Remarks on the embezzlement of the local fund amount that led to the conviction of Donaghue.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 11th, 1898.

Remarks on the use of water-marked paper for presenting petition, enforced by the chairman, Cannanore municipal council.

27. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 11th May, protests against the order of the chairman of the Cannanore municipality requiring all petitions to the municipal council to be written on water-marked paper. Petitions to the municipal council, says the article, are not meant generally to be recorded in the office, they being disposed of, for the most part, as soon as they are submitted. These petitions are, as a rule, applications for permission to build houses, etc. Water-marked paper is intended to be used for petitions submitted to revenue courts and cutcherries alone. The chairman's order, therefore, is unnecessary and likely to be productive of more harm than good.

Advisability of nominating Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination as members of taluk boards.

28. A leader in the same paper urges the necessity of nominating Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination as members of taluk boards in preference to mere wealthy landholders who are mostly uneducated and do not, therefore, prove themselves equal to the task devolving upon them. The Deputy Inspectors, the article says, gather much information, in the course of their circuit, regarding the wants and affairs of the people at large and may, therefore, be expected to render good service to them in the meetings of the taluk board.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 28th, 1898.

Suggestion regarding the improvement of the village establishment.

29. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th April, observes that the staff of village officials forms an important and responsible establishment in the village administration, and advises Government not to think of effecting a saving in the money set apart for the village establishment, but to increase the pay of the village officials and appoint more village watchmen in consideration of the fact that villages are harassed by thieves in these days. The paper concludes with the remark that Government should appoint educated and influential men as village officials in consideration of the onerous functions they have to perform and of the important part they play in the revenue administration of the country.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 1st, 1898.

Rate of taxation in Malabar to be determined by extent of land and not by produce.

30. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st May, complains that, while taxation according to the produce of land in places where irrigation works are maintained by Government is as it ought to be, the same principle is unfair when applied to Malabar where the produce of the land is at the mercy of the weather. The article, therefore, suggests that the rate of taxation should be determined in Malabar by the extent of land, subject to modification according as it is situate in the neighbourhood of towns or far away from them.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 4th, 1898.

Remarks on the Government order on the re-settlement of the Malabar district.

31. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th May, makes the following remarks on the Government order on the representation that settlement in Malabar district is in contravention of Mr. Ward's proclamation of 1805. There is no word or passage in the said proclamation that we could see permitting a re-settlement of the Malabar district. In the face of this fact, Government has declared its opinion to the contrary; but it has unfortunately omitted to give the reasons that have led it to form that opinion. It is not enough to say that both the Government of India and the Secretary of State have concurred in the views of the Government of Madras. The article regrets that the Government order referred to did not give the reasons for the opinion of the Government, for then the people would have been convinced and satisfied.

(h) Railways.

32. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 20th April, bitterly complains that the Villupuram station is very insufficiently lighted at night and that the poor passengers, while resting in the station shed, are subject to insect-bites owing to want of pavement on the floor, and appeals to the railway authorities to redress the grievance. Another correspondent to the same paper says that the passengers' room in the Tirukkóyilúr station is too small and incommodious and is rendered worse when more than half of its area is filled with goods. He hopes that the authorities will adopt the necessary measures to improve the accommodation of the railway station at Tirukkóyilúr in consideration of the fact that it is an important centre as a Deputy Collector's cutcherry and a civil court are located there.

Grievances of the passengers at the railway station at Villupuram.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, April 20th, 1898.

33. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 30th April, referring to the construction of the Calicut-Cannanore Railway, condemns the proposal of the Madras Railway Engineer to convert the line from Arkonam to Calicut into a narrow gauge on the score of unnecessary heavy expenditure involved in the undertaking. The opinion is expressed that if this proposal is made only in reference to the proposed Calicut-Cannanore line it may be acceptable to all, and the company will have at the same time great pecuniary advantage, as the cost of construction of the narrow gauge is comparatively smaller than that of the broad one.

Narrow gauge recommended for the Calicut-Cannanore line.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, April 30th, 1898.

(k) General.

34. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 20th April, hopes that, when visiting the district of South Arcot, His Excellency will be pleased to inspect in person such places as Kallakurchi, the people of which are utterly destitute of the means of livelihood in times of famine, without being guided by the representations made in the addresses presented by selfish officials. He makes the following suggestions and hopes that His Excellency will be pleased to give them due consideration :—

Certain suggestions for consideration when His Excellency visits the district of South Arcot.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, April 20th, 1898.

(1) The Public Works Department should attend to the repair of the sources of water-supply with reference to each ayakat.

(2) A railway line should be constructed connecting either Tirukkóyilúr or Panruti with Salem and Erode.

(3) A dam should be constructed on this side of the Pennár near Tirukkóyilúr where every year during the rainy season many persons are drowned owing to the absence of an embankment.

35. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 25th April, hears that the sub-registrar of Negapatam does not register the documents of persons coming from distant places to his office on the day on which they present their documents for registration, in consideration of their special circumstances, and that he does not treat both the rich and the poor alike.

A complaint against the sub-registrar of Negapatam.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, April 25th, 1898.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th May, referring to the Calcutta plague riots which, the paper remarks, occurred in spite of the encouraging words on the part of Government that the measures enforced in Bombay would not be adopted in Calcutta, gives out the following as the causes which create difficulties in the way of satisfying the people:—

Reflections on the Calcutta plague riots.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 5th, 1898.

(1) Government neither knows nor has the opportunity to know who the men of influence are that can mediate between the State and the people.

(2) Government discourages the press which can co-operate with the State in times of crisis.

The paper concludes with the observation that Government can hope to secure the good-will of the people only by promoting the interest of the press, that it is highly desirable that the newspapers should be exempted from postage and that the press should be encouraged by all possible means.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, April 28th, 1898.

The rumoured disbandment of the Madras regiments.

37. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 28th April, mentions on the authority of a correspondent that the British Government has no regard for the Madras regiments. The editor fears that they will be disbanded and Goorkha or Sikh regiments formed instead. He observes that it does not become the British Government to act thus for these regiments have not ever behaved badly as some of the Bengal regiments have. It is a mistake to suppose that they are weak or poor-spirited. The victories they have gained with their matchlock guns have not even fallen to the lot of regiments armed with magazine rifles. They have not only displayed their bravery in India, but also in Asia, Europe and Africa. They proved themselves very useful to Government during the Indian mutiny of 1857. They have conquered Burma, and very recently one of the regiments known as the "Queen's Own" Sappers and Miners, composed of Madrasees, has shown praiseworthy valour on the frontier. Though the Bengal draw more pay than Madras regiments, recent events have proved that the former are not so ready to sacrifice their lives as the latter. The editor winds up the article with the remark that the Government instead of disbanding them, should better the condition of the Madras regiments and should enlist more Muhammadans and Tamilians than Telugus who, it is alleged, have failed to prove themselves as brave as the other classes.

ALHAMI, Madras, May 8th, 1898.

Retirement of Lord Elgin.

38. The Alhami of the 8th May. The Habl-ul-Mateen, of Calcutta, writes that Lord George Hamilton is also in the running for the office of the Viceroy, which is about to fall vacant, and observes that since India has of late been engaged in troubles, it requires the services of an able administrator having personal knowledge of Eastern affairs.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 5th, 1898.

Reflections on the meeting of the Legislative Council on the hills to discuss the Madras Tenancy Bill.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th May, remarks that Government apparently wishes to get the Madras Tenancy Bill passed before the retirement of the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss, that the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss after all has not in reality considerable experience of the subject-matter of the Bill, as he spent a good portion of his service in the Salt department alone, and that Mr. Crole, who is to succeed him, is competent enough to handle the Bill in question. The paper concludes with the observation that His Excellency has acquired the experience of two years and has been till now extolled by the subjects as "People's Governor," that, as this is the time when he is likely to commit blunders, he should be on the alert, and that as two of the Honourable Members of the Council are about to retire it is expedient that His Excellency should appoint as his councillors competent men who have been in touch with the people, inasmuch as his reputation depends more or less on their timely advice and help.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 3rd, 1898.

The Madras Tenancy Bill.

40. The Sasilekha, of the 3rd May, writes thus:—It is notified that the Legislative Council will meet at Ootacamund on the 13th May to consider the Tenancy Bill. The Bill will be discussed in Council and then referred to a Select Committee. Ever since the establishment of the British rule in India, no imperial or local measure of such momentous importance has been discussed on the hills. The heavy showers now falling in Ootacamund may affect the health of the honourable members going there. The members of the Board of Revenue will have to be away from their work in the plains and the representatives of the people also will find it necessary to leave off their business and run up to the hills. The Legislative Council consists of 23 members, only seven of whom are now on the hills. Sixteen members therefore will have to go up to the hills to the prejudice of their business simply for the convenience of the Government, and of these sixteen how many will ever be able to go there remains to be seen. The Tenancy Bill revolutionises the relations subsisting between the landlord and the tenant. Every facility should therefore be afforded for the free discussion of the measure by the honourable members. But no such facilities can be had on the hills. If the honourable members therefore find it inconvenient to run up to the hills, they must unanimously urge upon the Government the necessity of considering the Bill after the return of the Government to the plains. If the meeting should be held on the 13th and a Select Committee should be appointed, the members thereof must necessarily stay about five months on the hills to consider the Bill. The members representing the people cannot stay on the hills for such a long time. The Bill will therefore be modified by Government servants according to their own views. The object of the Government seems to be to see the Bill passed before the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss goes home in November next. Therefore it is that the Government is trying to take this improper and irregular course. If the Government persists, His Excellency the Governor would lose, we believe, the reputation he has earned.

41. The Sasilekha, of the 13th May, says that His Excellency the Governor will hold a meeting of the Legislative Council that day, in spite of all the objections raised against it in the public press. It has been decided, it notes, that an allowance of Rs. 600 should be given to each non-official member attending the meeting, besides travelling allowances to the official members. The paper regrets to find that the excellent rulers who plead want of funds to raise the salary of a local fund toti by eight annas a month have no scruples to waste so many thousands of rupees. Justice, it adds, is at the pleasure of the rulers.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 13th, 1898.

The Ootacamund Legislative Council meeting.

IV.—Native States.

42. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 9th May, after pointing out how lepers roam about the Native State of Travancore and how their indiscriminate mingling with the people is sure to spread the disease, suggests as a preventive measure the desirability of either extending the existing asylum or erecting more leper hospitals in several parts of the State.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, May 9th, 1898.

A suggestion to erect leper hospitals in the Native State of Travancore.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

43. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 12th May, says that distress in Nellore is increasing as is shown by the increase in the number on relief works from 1,187 to 1,564 in the last week. There is scarcity in all districts, and the distress is very great in the districts of Nellore, Chingleput and North Arcot.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, May 12th, 1898.

Famine in Nellore and other districts.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

44. The Jananukulan, of the 2nd April, reports that, during the celebration of the festival this year in the Mariamman temple in the village of Virasingampettah near Tanjore, about 200 devotees had their sides near the ribs bored with four or five thick iron rods, and that with such a shocking sight they passed round the temple, and requests Government to put an end to such a cruel and barbarous practice. The paper is at a loss to know why the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi was not present at the village during the festival this year, as it is a well-known fact that riots used to break out there on such occasions.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, April 2nd, 1898.

A request to Government to put an end to a kind of cruel penance on the part of certain devotees in the district of Tanjore.

45. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th April, says that the present system of killing stray dogs in the streets of Madras excites the feelings of the passers-by and presents to them a horrible sight, and suggests the desirability of adopting the method followed in

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, April 26th, 1898.

A suggestion regarding the means to get rid of stray dogs.

Bombay, which is to entrap stray dogs and dispose of them in some remote place away from the city.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 7th, 1898.

46. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th May, alluding to the commission nominated in London regarding the Indian coins, remarks that the suggestion of the Government of India that out of the revenue collected in the month of January nearly eight crores of rupees should be melted and that in lieu thereof gold coins should be introduced here, must necessarily enhance the value of rupees in the money market. The paper concludes with the observation that the adoption of such a suggestion during the early part of this year—from January to April when people are generally in pecuniary difficulties—will bear oppressively on them.

Remarks on a certain suggestion of the Government of India regarding the Indian coins.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 3rd, 1898.

47. The Sasilekha, of the 3rd May, remarks that the Indians in Natal are very much oppressed. As an instance, it states that an Indian in Natal was refused the necessary license for the calling of a petty trader, and regrets that, while a large number of British people are living in India by merchandise, Indians are not permitted to do the same in a country under the administration of the British Government.

Indians in Natal.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, May 2nd, 1898.

48. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 2nd May, says that it having been proved beyond doubt that there was no widespread conspiracy which led to the Poona murders, it is only right that those sent to prison last year should now be set at liberty. What was wrongly done should be undone at once. The Government of Bombay should not be ashamed to do what is right. Otherwise it would be obstinacy and deserve reprobation. There would be no loss of dignity to the authorities of the Western Presidency if they were to let the men free.

The necessity for an early release of the imprisoned Natus.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, May 4th, 1898.

49. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 4th May, gives a translation of a petition said to have been addressed by the wife of Bala Sahib Natu to Parliament praying for the release of her husband, and remarks that the efforts made by the people of India to obtain justice in the case of the Natus having failed, the poor lady has been driven by despair to present an appeal to the highest tribunal in the Empire.

A petition from the wife of Bala Sahib to the Parliament.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, May 7th, 1898.

50. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 7th May, complains that practically no check is exercised in the civil and military station, Bangalore, against the use of fraudulent weights and measures by shopkeepers. The people are apathetic and do not care to prosecute, and the machinery of the law is too cumbrous to be set in motion against such petty offences. The editor, therefore, thinks it desirable that municipal inspectors should be armed with the power to prosecute such cases without the intervention of the police.

Fraudulent weights and measures in the civil and military station, Bangalore.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 7th, 1898.

51. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 7th May, reports that a strange sort of fever is prevailing in Tamracheri amsam, Calicut, attended with swellings over the body. The fever proves fatal in three days. The attention of the District Medical and Sanitary officer is invited to the matter.

A strange and suspicious sort of fever in Tamracheri amsam, Calicut.

52. A leader in the same paper disapproves of the Collector's recommendation to abolish the Calicut Government Press. It says that the subsequent annual cost of the printing of papers in connection with the administration of the district will be greater than that incurred by Government at present. All that is necessary, at present, is to appoint an efficient and trustworthy person as the superintendent.

Remarks on the proposed abolition of the Government Press at Calicut.

[Issued 21st May 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 10 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st May 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| The desirability of an alliance with Japan | 157 |
| England on the war path | ib. |
| The intended visit of the Amir of Bokhara to the Russian capital | ib. |
| England and Russia | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Waylaying in several parts of the city of Madras | ib. |
| Inefficiency of the Cannanore police | ib. |
| Police taking no notice of vagrant lunatics | 158 |
| Irregularities of the Calicut police | ib. |
| Tellicherry police station-house officer to be transferred. | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| A remark on the treatment of native jurors by Sessions Judges | ib. |
| Omission to remit to the treasury the fines imposed by bench magistrates | ib. |
| (c) Jails—Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| "Madras University accounts" | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Insanitary condition of a certain street in Tiruvetteesvaranpet | 159 |
| Remarks on the segregation of persons suffering from small-pox | ib. |
| A prayer to introduce pipe-water into the town of Palni. | ib. |
| A suggestion regarding a certain order of the Madras municipality | ib. |
| The limits of the Calicut municipality to be extended rather than taxation to be enhanced | ib. |
| By-paths and lanes in Calicut municipality in bad condition | ib. |
| Remarks on the Malabar district board budget for the current official year | 160 |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Certain causes for the poverty of the mirasidars in Southern India | ib. |
| A few suggestions regarding the improvement of the village administration | ib. |
| Desirability of abolishing the jamabandi system altogether | ib. |
| Cause of famine in India | 161 |
| Remarks on the work of the Special Deputy Collectors and the proposed rate of taxation | ib. |
| (g) Forests—Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Certain suggestions to the Railway authorities | ib. |
| Complaints against the Madras Railway Company regarding the accommodation of passengers | 162 |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Necessity for repairing a sluice in Madurántakam taluk. | ib. |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Remarks on the administration report of the Abkári department | ib. |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Necessity for a branch post office at Kumbakónam | 162 |
| Desirability of retaining the old rule regarding the detention of value payable parcels | ib. |
| Expediency of introducing in villages the rules of sanitation | 163 |
| Advisability of introducing service-books in the Postal department | ib. |
| Oppression of the ryots by the subordinate revenue officers | ib. |
| Request that Mr. Dance may be permanently posted as Collector of Malabar | ib. |
| The local manufacture and sale of explosives to be restricted | ib. |
| Suggestion that the Government would look after irrigation in Malabar | ib. |
| Remarks on the petition about Subbarama Iyer intended to be submitted to the Government | ib. |
| The restriction that the Natu brothers should not leave Belgaum without the permission of the Bombay Government, to be removed | 164 |
| Particulars of the fever prevailing in Tamracheri amsam, Calicut | ib. |
| Travelling allowance sanctioned to the non-official members of the Madras Legislative Council excessive | ib. |
| The levying of income-tax to be better regulated | ib. |
| Old silver coins | ib. |
| Grant of certificates to Government officers | ib. |
| Theft of rifles | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Expediency of amending the Hindu Devastanam Act | 165 |
| Comment on the remark of the Hon'ble Mr. Grose on the Madras Tenancy Bill at the Legislative Council | ib. |
| Desirability of amending the Act in respect of the landlords and their tenants | ib. |
| Remarks on the preparation of the jury list in the district of Tanjore, and certain suggestions in connection with the jurors and assessors | ib. |
| The Madras Tenancy Bill | 166 |
| Remarks on the Tenancy Bill | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Nil. | |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Nil. | |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| A remark on the committee nominated in Poona in respect of newspapers | ib. |
| A special feature of the congress of this year | ib. |
| Comment on the release of the Natus | ib. |
| A hint to make the policy of Government a perfect success | 167 |
| The Madras Tenancy Bill and the exodus of Government to the hills | ib. |
| Improvement in the financial condition of India how to be effected | ib. |
| The punitive police in Poona | 168 |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 850 | May 1898. |
| 2 | "Vidya Vartamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | April 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "South India Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th and 15th May 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 4 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 21st and 28th May 1898. |
| 5 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 21st May 1898. |
| 6 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th and 24th May 1898. |
| 7 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 13th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 2nd ,, 14th ,, ,, |
| 9 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 18th May 1898. |
| 10 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 16th ,, ,, |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 16th and 23rd May 1898. |
| 12 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 23rd April and 14th and 21st May 1898. |
| 13 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 22nd May 1898. |
| 14 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 16th and 24th May 1898. |
| 15 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 13th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| 16 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 16th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| 17 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 14th May 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 15th May 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 10th, 12th, 14th, 17th, 19th, and 21st May 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Prabhavati" .. .. .. | Cuddapah .. .. .. | 230 | 16th May 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 14th and 21st May 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 14th, 18th, 21st and 25th May 1898. |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 17th, 20th, 24th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 16th, 23rd and 30th May 1898. |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 21st and 28th May 1898. |
| 26 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Veerashaivamathadarsha" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 16th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 19th ,, 26th ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 30 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 11th and 22nd May 1898. |
| 31 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 10th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 32 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 11th May 1898. |
| 33 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 600 | 15th ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 14th and 21st May 1898. |
| 35 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 9th, 16th and 23rd May 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 18th May 1898. |
| 37 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 14th and 21st May 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 38 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 9th, 16th and 23rd May 1898. |
| 39 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 7th, 14th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| 40 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 22nd May 1898. |
| 41 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th and 15th May 1898. |
| 42 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 12th ,, 19th ,, ,, |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 9th, 16th and 19th May 1898. |
| 44 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 19th January 1898. |
| 45 | "Ayin-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 500 | April 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd May, observes:—Statesmen do not speak as Mr. Chamberlain did the other day, at Birmingham, unless they have decided that there is no alternative but war. The most significant statement is that "Britain was unable to declare war with Russia without an ally." This seems to show that Mr. Chamberlain has been deputed by the Cabinet to appeal to the patriotism of England to fling aside the false prejudice which prevents an alliance of mutual benefit with Japan. Such an alliance with the greatest Asiatic power of modern times will be very popular with the educated classes in India, as it will tend to remove the impression that Europe is jealous of Asiatic progress.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, May 23rd, 1898.

The desirability of an alliance with Japan.

2. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 28th May, in a leading article discusses the situation in Europe and comes to the conclusion that there cannot be a more favourable opportunity than the present for England to go to war with Russia and to punish her for her treachery in the East. Germany, in the event of a war, will maintain a benevolent neutrality, which will paralyse France and prevent her from moving to the assistance of her Muscovite ally. With Germany ready to strike on her frontier, France dare not set her troops in motion except to defend her own borders. The most significant factor in the combination of circumstances is that Japan is prepared to join England in order to save China, and that in America the desire for an English alliance is becoming irresistible.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, May 28th, 1898.

England on the war path.

3. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 23rd May, in refutation of a statement in an English paper to the effect that the Amir of Bokhara will shortly proceed to the Russian capital in connection with some political matters, and that the Amir of Afghanistan has instructed him to use his influence in establishing friendly relations between himself and Russia, writes that the statement is unfounded. There is no reason why the Amir of Afghanistan should act against the British Government.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, May 23rd, 1898.

The intended visit of the Amir of Bokhara to the Russian capital.

4. The same paper observes that though several European powers are on terms of friendship and amicable intercourse with each other, still each of the powers looks upon the other with suspicion and distrust. The relations between Russia, France and England are becoming strained on account of Western African, and Far Eastern, affairs. Each of the above powers is busily engaged in making preparations. If England were to cross swords with Russia in China, it is probable that Japan would join hands with England. Russia's policy as regards China belies its promises and England will be compelled to declare hostilities against Russia.

England and Russia.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 19th May, complains that wicked characters in several parts of the city of Madras waylay and assault the passers-by even in broad daylight and carry away whatever that may be found in them. The correspondent hopes that the authorities will bestow proper attention on the subject and do the needful in the interests of the people.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 19th, 1898.

Waylaying in several parts of the city of Madras.

6. A correspondent to the Manorama, of the 16th May, complains of the utter inefficiency of the Cannanore police to detect the culprits in different cases of theft that occurred of late in Cannanore. Between Manorama, Calicut, May 16th, 1898.

Inefficiency of the Cannanore police.

the Mappila sepoys and the inefficient Police officers who are believed to connive at the acts of the Mappila sepoys, the Cannanore public are placed in a very unsafe position. The article believes that unless and until most of the local Police officers are transferred thence no peace will be restored to the place, and invites the attention of the authorities to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 21st, 1898.

Police taking no notice of vagrant lunatics.

7. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 21st May, while noting with satisfaction the good management of the Calicut Lunatic Asylum and the improvement in the condition of the patients, reports that there are many wandering lunatics in the town whom the police take no notice of.

Irregularities of the Calicut police.

8. A Calicut correspondent to the same issue of the paper complains of the irregularities of the local police, and gives one instance of a petty theft in Chalappuram desam, in which the offender was let off after being compelled to deliver the stolen property to the owner.

Tellicherry station-house officer to be transferred.

9. A leader in the same paper states that the Tellicherry police station-house officer, Kombra Raman, has been fined Rs. 50 by the stationary sub-magistrate of the place, and suggests his transfer from the station as repeatedly advocated by the paper.

(b) Courts.

SOUTH INDIA MITRAN, Dindigul, May 5th, 1898.

A remark on the treatment of native jurors by Sessions Judges.

10. The South India Mitran, of the 5th May, observes that in a certain case which was tried by the Sessions Judge of Coimbatore, the Judge, differing from the jury, reported to the High Court that the jury seemed to have taken bribes and had not therefore returned a proper verdict, that the case should be treated as one tried before the assessors and that the opinion of the Judge should be allowed to prevail. The paper regrets to remark that Judges generally look down upon native jurors, and that respectable natives therefore evade serving as jurors by offering some excuse or other. The paper hopes that the High Court will instruct Sessions Judges to treat native jurors with the regard and respect with which they treat European jurors.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 16th, 1898.

Omission to remit to the treasury the fines imposed by bench magistrates.

11. A paragraph in the Manorama, of the 16th May, reports that it has been found that fines imposed by bench magistrates in certain petty cases, though they had been paid up, have not been remitted to the treasury, and suggests that a special officer should be deputed to investigate the matter.

(d) Education.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 14th, 1898.

"Madras University accounts."

12. The Andhraprakasika, of the 14th May, writing about the accounts of the University of Madras for the year 1896–97, suggests that the examiners for M.A. and other higher examinations may, to avoid heavy expenditure to the University on their account, be selected from among the University and Government officers (without remuneration), and gives two reasons in justification of the proposal. The candidates for these higher examinations are few in number and the professors in Government colleges have generally not more than one or two hours' work a day.

It further condemns the system of examining candidates for the Matriculation examination in general English without prescribing any text-books. It considers it highly inconsistent to prescribe text-books in English for the B.A. degree and other examinations, and to require the young boys of 16 and 17 years appearing for the Matriculation examination to be good in general English.

(e) Local and Municipal.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th May, draws the much-needed attention of the Madras municipality to the extremely wretched and insanitary condition of Chinnathumby Mudali street in Tiruvetteesvaranpet, which subjects the inhabitants of that place as well as the devotees who resort to the Ammen temple situated in it, to a variety of difficulties, due more or less to neglect of duty on the part of the municipal scavengers, and requests the municipality to adopt remedial measures ere long, in consideration of the fact that the street in question is one of the most important streets of Tiruvetteesvaranpet.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 10th, 1898.

Insanitary condition of a certain street in Tiruvetteesvaranpet.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th May, regrets to refer to the case in which some persons suffering from small-pox at Sanjeeveroyanpet were summarily removed to the segregation camps attached to a hospital, remarks that such a procedure on the part of the Madras municipality has filled the people in the neighbourhood with consternation and has been viewed by them as a source of annoyance and discontent. He observes that opinions differ as to whether small-pox is a contagious disease, that it is not so novel and horrible a disease as the plague of Bombay to warrant segregation, and that it is a disease which almost every one must suffer from in some form or other during his lifetime. The correspondent concludes with the hope that Government will bestow the necessary attention on the subject and do away with the unpleasant manner in which the persons suffering from small-pox are said to be treated by the municipal authorities.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 12th, 1898.

Remarks on the segregation of persons suffering from small-pox.

15. The South India Mitran, of the 5th May, after showing how the town of Palni, which is the seat of an ancient Hindu temple, is frequented by devotees in large numbers in times of festival, and also how the absence of a good water supply for the town drives the people to the necessity of using the stagnant water of a tank locally known as Vaiyapurikanmoi, which give rise to diseases and epidemics of all kinds, suggests to the municipality the desirability of securing a good water supply for the town by introducing service pipes into it and sinking wells in the neighbourhood of the Shanmuga river, which is at a distance of a mile and a half from the town and which never dries up.

SOUTH INDIA MITRAN, Dindigul, May 5th, 1898.

A prayer to introduce pipe-water into the town of Palni.

16. The Pariyan, of the 14th May, referring to the notification lately published by the Madras municipality that in cases of death, persons closely connected with the deceased should communicate them to the municipal registrar within twenty-four hours, observes that the order in question subjects the people to great inconvenience, and thinks it desirable that the municipality should either rule that cases of death should be communicated to the nearest police station within twenty-four hours, or arrange to have a registrar's office opened either in every police station or post office to enable the people to report cases of death with facility.

PARIYAN, Madras, May 14th, 1898.

A suggestion regarding a certain order of the Madras municipality.

17. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 21st May, approves of the suggestion made by a correspondent to the Manorama that it is better to enlarge the limits of the Calicut municipality than to enhance the rate of the municipal taxation.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 21st, 1898.

The limits of the Calicut municipality to be extended rather than taxation to be enhanced.

18. A Calicut correspondent to the same issue of the paper reports that there are many by-paths and lanes in the Calicut municipality in very bad condition unnoticed by the overseer.

By-paths and lanes in Calicut municipality in bad condition.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 23rd, 1898.

19. A leader in the Manorama, of the 23rd May, in reviewing the budget estimate of the Malabar district board for the current official year, complains about the district board spending the contributions from taluk boards other than Wynaad upon the roads in Wynaad, and suggests that the Government might carry out the repairs of the Wynaad roads from provincial funds. The increased expenditure sanctioned on education is considered praiseworthy, and satisfaction is expressed in disallowing the proposal of the President of the district board to abolish all primary schools receiving a grant of less than Rs. 50 each. The delay in reviving the dispensary at Alathur is regretted. It is of opinion that it looks unbecoming to have increased the cost of controlling agency at the Government office, while certain items of indispensable expenditure and some minor increase to salary proposed by the board have been disallowed.

Remarks on the Malabar district board budget for the current official year.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, May 2nd, 1898.

20. The Agnikulathithan, of the 2nd May, regrets to hear that at a meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council Sir James Westland replied that Government had no capital to begin the work with, when Mr. Nicholson spoke emphatically on the absolute necessity to open agricultural banks in villages, on the ground that they would not only ameliorate the condition of the mirasidars but would also increase the financial resources of Government. It observes that the absence of agricultural banks and the conduct of the Settlement and Survey officers seriously tell on the material condition of the mirasidars for the following reasons:—

Certain causes for the poverty of the mirasidars in Southern India.

First, owing to the absence of agricultural banks the poor ryots are driven to the painful necessity of borrowing money at an exorbitant rate of interest which reduces them in the long run to pauperism and destitution.

Secondly, the mirasidars, in consequence of the fluctuating nature of settlement in this Presidency, do not venture to lay out their capital and improve the condition of their arable lands for fear that Government will enhance the assessment without paying the least consideration to the capital and labour brought to bear on the lands by the mirasidars.

Lastly, as the Survey department in the district of Tanjore grants joint pattas in respect of lands owned by two or three mirasidars, and as the Revenue authorities demand the whole kist from any one of the pattadars who happens to be in a solvent condition, the pattadar who is thus made to pay the whole kist is obliged to sue his colleagues for the recovery of their shares of the kist and is subject to all the difficulties and hardship which are the necessary consequences of an unnecessary litigation.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 10th, 1898.

21. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th May, in view to improve the village administration and ameliorate the condition of the villagers, makes the following suggestions:—

A few suggestions regarding the improvement of the village administration.

The pay of the village officers, such as the village accountants, etc., should be raised.

The work connected with the impounding of cattle should be separated from the general revenue work and a separate officer should be entrusted with it.

Respectable men holding high social position should be entrusted with the munsifs' civil and criminal functions and their appointments should be made honorary.

These officers should be treated on a par with the members of the taluk and district boards.

SOUTH INDIA MITRAN, Dindigul, May 5th, 1898.

22. The South India Mitran, of the 5th May, after describing at length the nature of the jamabandi conducted in former days, observes that in those days the system of conducting the jamabandi in different parts of a taluk proved highly beneficial to the people as the jamabandi officers spared no pains to learn the grievances of the mirasidars in person, and as the jamabandi work of a taluk used to be completed in a month and nearly 2,000 pattas granted in a day. The paper regrets to note that in these days the jamabandi officers while they are on circuit simply check the accounts of the karnams, to whom they deliver the bundle of pattas, and report to the higher authorities that the jamabandi work, including the grant of pattas, has been completed, without giving the mirasidars an opportunity to represent their grievances in person. It says that this method of conducting the jamabandi —the grant of pattas in particular—is very unsatisfactory and does not serve the purpose for which it was intended, and that the present system is highly expensive and attended with no corresponding good. The paper concludes with the remark that as every mirasidar in these days feels it his bounden duty to pay the kist, whether he is granted or not the necessary patta, it is desirable that the authorities should abolish the jamabandi system altogether on the score that it is expensive to Government and a source of hardship to the people.

Desirability of abolishing the jamabandi system altogether.

23. The Agnikulathithan, of the 14th May, asserts that the absence of a permanent settlement in India is the main cause of the periodical outbreak of famine which has been subjecting the people of this country to great hardship once in twenty years since the year 1857, and remarks that it is highly expedient on the part of Government to introduce the permanent settlement system in India in the interest of the agricultural classes.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, May 14th, 1898.

Cause of famine in India.

24. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 11th May, with reference to the recent Government order that taxation of land in Malabar at a new rate will be made at the close of the jenmam registration work, fears that the proposed new rate will prevail first in the taluks of Palghat and Walavanad where the jenmam registration work was first carried on. This, it says, is unfair. The article notes that two years have elapsed since the work began and is afraid that about 24 years would be necessary for the completion of the work. It suggests, therefore, either to appoint some more Special-duty Deputy Collectors or to allot some of the simple jenmam registration work to tahsildars who have light work to do at present.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 11th, 1898.

Remarks on the work of the Special Deputy Collectors and the proposed rate of taxation.

(h) Railways.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th May, observes as follows:—It is to be regretted that the third-class passengers who contribute greatly to the enormous income enjoyed by the Railway authorities labour under many disadvantages which the passengers of the other classes are free from. The difficulties experienced by the third-class passengers—specially females among them—owing to the absence of urinals in the third-class carriages can be better imagined than described. It is a pity that the Brahmins specially appointed by the Railway authorities to supply the passengers with water at the stations do not discharge their duty properly, which is a sore disappointment to the thirsty passengers. It is painful to note that the subordinate railway officials at times in view to oblige an Eurasian passenger, specially in cases where the carriages set apart for the Eurasians are full, order the native passengers to vacate their compartment at once and allow the Eurasian passenger the privilege of enjoying the whole compartment himself, and that the native passengers thus ousted very often miss the train owing to their inability to secure accommodation in the other carriages at such a critical moment. It is earnestly hoped that the Railway authorities will pay particular attention to the pieces of irregularity herein referred to and take steps to put an end to such unpleasant state of things in the interest of the passengers at large.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 10th, 1898.

Certain suggestions to the Railway authorities.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 14th, 1898.

Complaints against the Madras Railway Company regarding the accommodation of passengers.

26. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 14th May, makes the following complaints against the Madras Railway Company:—

(1) Latrine accommodation is not made in the train for the use of third-class passengers who furnish the greatest income to the company.

(2) The rule that only ten passengers should be accommodated in a compartment is very seldom observed, and women in particular are shoved in compartments containing more than ten male passengers.

(3) For want of a waiting room for female passengers at stations, they are compelled to stand, to their great inconvenience, in the hot sun.

(4) Tickets are issued to passengers only a few minutes previous to the starting of the train, and this often causes much inconvenience and theft among passengers.

The article appeals to the Railway authorities for the removal of these inconveniences.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 14th, 1898.

Necessity for repairing a sluice in Madurántakam taluk.

27. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th May, complains that the repair of a sluice attached to a tank near the village of Uttaramallur in Madurántakam taluk, which is the chief source of irrigation to five villages in the neighbourhood, was neglected by the authorities for the past twenty years, that the sluice has in consequence become totally silted, and that Government has been driven to the necessity of granting remission owing to failure of harvest in the lands thus deprived of irrigation. The paper hopes that the jamabandi officers will require the Public Works authorities to remove the silt and renew the masonry work which is out of use and make the sluice serve the purpose for which it was intended, in the interest of both the Government and the ryots.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 16th, 1898.

Remarks on the administration report of the Abkári department.

28. A leader in the Manorama, of the 16th May, in reviewing the administration report of the Abkári department during the last official year, complains that a large sum of money is annually thrown away by the people upon intoxicants, not to speak of the demoralisation, etc., consequent upon drunkenness. The article suggests that Government should concert measures to enforce temperance upon the people at large, and that some other tax may be substituted to make up for the loss of income from the abolition of abkári duties. The article, however, concurs with the Government in the opinion that abkári administration during the last official year was satisfactory.

(k) General.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, May 2nd, 1898.

Necessity for a branch post office at Kumbakónam.

29. A correspondent to the Agnikulathithan, of the 2nd May, reports that the post office at Kumbakónam is unable to cope with the ever-increasing work of that populous town, and suggests the desirability of opening a branch post office either at the Bazaar street or at the South Mada street of the temple of Sakrapaniswami, which, he believes, will greatly add to the convenience of the people of that town.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 12th, 1898.

Desirability of retaining the old rule regarding the detention of value payable parcels.

30. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th May, observes that the recent rule promulgated by the Postal authorities regarding the period of detention of undelivered value payable parcels bears oppressively on both the parties, and wishes that the old rule authorising the detention of such parcels for fifteen days should again be brought into force.

31. The Lokopakari, of the 13th May, regrets to observe that villagers are indifferent to the sanitation of their villages and do not scruple to commit nuisance of all kinds, which is the cause of the outbreak of epidemics. The paper hopes that the authorities will bring into force in the villages also the rules relating to sanitation and award severe punishment on those who infringe them.

Lokopakari, Madras, May 13th, 1898.

Expediency of introducing in villages the rules of sanitation

32. The South India Mitran, of the 15th May, regrets to observe that the absence of service-books in the Postal department gives room to considerable difficulty in the disposal of questions of seniority, etc., and suggests to Government the advisability of introducing the system of furnishing service-books in this department also. The paper hopes that Government will increase the salary of some of the hands and thus encourage educated persons to join this useful department.

South India Mitran, Dindigul, May 15th, 1898.

Advisability of introducing service-books in the Postal department.

33. The Suryodaya, of the 20th May, thus describes the annoyances to which the ryots are subjected by the underlings of the Revenue department. Many ryots are not furnished by potails and shanbhogues with receipts for the payment of their revenue. If they insist upon being supplied with receipts the money is refused and the ryots are served with notices and are obliged to pay interest and notice fee in addition to the actual dues. There is no limit to the little perquisites which the subordinate officers of the department exact from the ryots. In lands which have been surveyed and settled the boundary stones are interfered with and the ryots, who do not submit to the exactions, are called upon to set them right. The paper then remarks that though the British Government has done a great deal to civilize the country and to make life and property safe, the poor ryots cannot be said to be happy on account of the oppression by the subordinate officers of the Revenue department.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, May 20th, 1898.

Oppression of the ryots by the subordinate revenue officers.

34. A leader in the Manorama, of the 9th May, remarks, in connection with the conviction of Sub-Magistrate Subbarama Iyer, that the Collector of Malabar in bringing about the said conviction was determined to put as much check as possible to the practice of bribe-taking among magistrates in Malabar. He has succeeded partly in this. To another matter also, i.e., to the putting down of Mappila outbreaks, the Collector has devoted his energies with similar success. The article concludes with the request that Mr. Dance may be permanently retained as Collector of Malabar that he may continue his good work on his return from furlough.

Manorama, Calicut, May 9th, 1898.

Request that Mr. Dance may be permanently posted as Collector of Malabar.

35. A paragraph in the same issue of the paper gives a few instances of the danger attending the local manufacture and sale of explosives made of potash and red arsenic, and suggests that restrictions should be placed on their manufacture and sale.

The local manufacture and sale of explosives to be restricted.

36. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 11th May, makes the suggestion that Government will do well to look after the irrigation of farms and fields in Malabar as it does in other districts, since in many parts of Malabar there are fields deteriorating in spite of suitable fresh-water streams, for want of anicuts, etc., to facilitate water-supply.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, May 11th, 1898.

Suggestion that the Government would look after irrigation in Malabar.

37. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 18th May, hears that a petition praying for the liberation of the convict Subbarama Iyer is about to be submitted to the Government by his friends regardless of the overwhelming nature of the evidence against him, and believes that the Government will not accept the petition.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, May 18th, 1898.

Remarks on the petition about Subbarama Iyer intended to be submitted to the Government.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 14th, 1898.

38. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 14th May, while rejoicing at the release of the Natu brothers, complains about the restriction that they should not leave Belgaum without the permission of the Bombay Government. They have been found to have had no hand in the recent riots, and the article expresses the hope that the said restriction will soon be removed.

The restriction that the Natu brothers should not leave Belgaum without the permission of the Bombay Government, to be removed.

39. A paragraph in the same paper gives a few particulars of the new type of fever prevailing in Tamracheri amsam, Calicut. The first stage of the fever is attended with a swelling on a finger in the left hand. This swelling gradually increases and when it reaches the neck the case proves fatal.

Particulars of the fever prevailing in Tamracheri amsam, Calicut.

40. A leader in the same paper disapproves of the sanction accorded by Government to pay Rs 6,600 as travelling allowance to the eleven non-official members to enable them to be present at the meeting of the Legislative Council at Ootacamund. This large sum, the article maintains, is out of all proportion to the reasonable expenses of a journey to the hills and it is a heavy drain upon Government at a time when India is afflicted with famine and pestilence.

Travelling allowance sanctioned to the non-official members of the Madras Legislative Council excessive.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 23rd, 1898.

41. A leader in the Manorama, of the 23rd May, attributes the increase of revenue derived from income-tax to the unjust levying of tax upon mortgaged property as well as on lands situate in a Native State like Cochin, on which tax is paid to that State. The article prays that the levying of income-tax may be made with more consideration, and invites the attention of the authorities to the matter.

The levying of income-tax to be better regulated.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, May 9th, 1898.

42. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 9th May, mentions that the employés in Madras Railway Company's Locomotive Workshop, Perambúr, have recently submitted a memorial to their Superintendent stating that in the money they receive as their pay they generally find old silver coins of 1837–40 which the bazaarmen refuse to accept as legal tender unless an anna or two, for each rupee, is paid to them. On this memorial reaching the Accountant-General through the proper channel he issued a circular to the effect that all coins, whether old or new, shall be treated alike, provided their weight is not reduced by any fraudulent means. The Shams disapproves of the circular as tending to create unnecessary trouble to the bazaarmen who will scarcely find time to test the weight of each rupee. The Shams suggests the advisability of the destruction of all such old coins as may be received in Government treasuries.

Old silver coins.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, May 16th, 1898.

43. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 16th May, mentions that all the rules and orders preventing the presentation of testimonials and addresses to, and the acceptance of such testimonials, etc., by, Government servants have again been published in the Gazette of India, and observes that such rules though frequently published are not yet regarded.

Grant of certificates to Government officers.

ALHAMI, Madras, May 22nd, 1898.

44. The Alhami, of the 22nd May, mentions that as Pathans are in the habit of stealing rifles from the north-western frontier guards, it has been suggested to Government that such guards might be supplied with muskets instead of with rifles as hitherto. If this suggestion were adopted two advantages would result, viz., (1) muskets would prove more effective than rifles when used at nights against thieves, and (2) the rifle-thieves would give up the idea of stealing rifles when come to understand that the guards are armed with only muskets and not with rifles. The Alhami approves of the suggestion.

Theft of rifles.

III.—Legislation.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th May, bitterly complains of the gross mismanagement of the Hindu devastanams and eagerly wishes that the Devastanam Act should be amended so as to suit the present circumstances. It observes that it should be provided in the Act that the dharmakarthas and the members of the devastanam committee should be the residents of the place where the devastanam is situated, that one of the members of the committee should be a managing member with powers to dispose of the affairs of the temple absolutely, except in some special and important cases in which the deliberations of all the members should be sought, and that an appeal may lie to the committee if the decision of the managing member be deemed unsatisfactory. The paper concludes with the hope that Government will be pleased to have the Devastanam Act amended ere long.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 14th, 1898.

Expediency of amending the Hindu Devastanam Act.

46. The same paper referring to the remarks made by the Honourable Mr. Grose while introducing the Madras Tenancy Bill into the Legislative Council, that the Government of India is determined to pass an Act on the lines on which the Bill is drafted, should the local Legislative Council fail to pass the Bill into an Act, and that any opposition on the part of the Honourable Members will not produce the desired effect, asks—Why should there be a Legislative Council here? Why should members be granted a travelling allowance of Rs. 600 per head? The paper adds that all this is a mere farce while the Government of India has powers to pass Acts as it pleases irrespective of the opinion of the people, and presumes that the Local Government has convened a meeting of the Legislative Council on the hills for the consideration of the Madras Tenancy Bill simply because it is bent upon yielding to the wishes of the Government of India. The paper concludes with the remark that it is unfair on the part of the authorities to burke discussion on this momentous question and prevent the Honourable Members from ventilating their opinion on the Bill.

Comment on the remark of the Honourable Mr. Grose on the Madras Tenancy Bill at the Legislative Council.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th May, explains the theory propounded by Sir Antony MacDonald that the sinking of wells in times of drought tends to fend off the dire effects of famine, and thinks it expedient that Government should assist the ryots in times of famine with money to enable them to sink as many wells as possible, as such a timely help is beneficial to both the Government and the ryots. The paper regrets to remark that the Act relating to the mirasidars and their tenants as it stands at present requires modification, as it is said to prevent the tenants from improving the condition of their lands, and hopes that the authorities will amend the Act in such a way as to cause no hardship to the landlords as well as to their tenants. The paper also wishes that Government should avoid, as far as possible, the frequent enhancement of land-tax, which is one of the causes of the miserable condition of the ryots.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 17th, 1898.

Desirability of amending the Act in respect of the landlords and their tenants.

48. The Jananukulan, of the 21st May, complains that the preparation of the list of jurors and assessors in the district of Tanjore is, as usual, very unsatisfactory, that out of 1,135 persons nominated many are not acquainted with the English language and have no knowledge of law, that some of them are artisans and maniemdars whose occupation does not permit them to serve as jurors and assessors without considerable inconvenience to the public and loss of money to themselves, and that sufficient time is not allowed to them to enable them to plead their inability to serve as jurors and assessors. The paper wishes that, in view to encourage men of position to serve as jurors and assessors with pleasure and earnestness, and to raise their position in the estimation of the people, they should be provided with proper accommodation in the court-house to rest at, that they should be furnished gratis with a copy of the rules relating to their duty, that summons should not be served on them through police constables, and that they should not be made to swear inasmuch as they are more or less assistant judges.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, May 21st, 1898.

Remarks on the preparation of the jury list in the district of Tanjore, and certain suggestions in connection with the jurors and assessors.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 17th, 1898.

The Madras Tenancy Bill.

49. The Sasilekha, of the 17th May, states that the Government has requested the Honourable the Judges of the High Court, the District Judges, the District Collectors and the Members of the Board of Revenue to submit their opinions regarding the Madras Tenancy Bill. It asks whether all these reports can be expected to come in before June next, and whether Government is prepared to proceed with the Bill even if the reports may not be received in time. It further says that the Bill affects the rights of the zemindars, and asks who is there to guard their interests in the absence of the Honourable the Raja of Bobbili. It therefore remarks that Government should consider and arrange that the Select Committee sits in Madras in August and September next; otherwise the work cannot, it thinks, come to a satisfactory conclusion.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 21st, 1898.

Remarks on the Tenancy Bill.

50. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 21st May, referring to the Tenancy Bill that was to have been discussed at the last meeting of the Legislative Council, thinks that, owing to the unfortunate death of the Hon'ble Mr. H. T. Ross, it will take more than two months for the Bill to pass through the Council even if it should be entrusted to the Hon'ble Mr. Winterbotham, the only official member who possesses some knowledge of Malabar. The article further hopes that the next meeting may be held in Madras.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 10th, 1898.

A remark on the committee nominated in Poona in respect of newspapers.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th May, referring to a committee consisting of five members, three of whom are public servants, nominated in Poona in view to examine the tone, etc., of the newspapers published in that place, observes that as the majority of the members of the committee are Government officials, the newspapers in Poona cannot thrive in future.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 12th, 1898.

A special feature of the congress of this year.

52. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th May, rejoices to remark that even persons who have not had the benefit of English education volunteer their services as the members of the Mahajana Sabha, and wishes that the Muhammadans of Nagore, Negapatam and Adirampatam should also be made members and that their joint efforts should be directed in making the ensuing congress a perfect success. The paper regards the admission of persons who are not acquainted with the English language to take part in the deliberations of the congress as a special feature of the congress of this year. The paper hopes that the congress will spare no pains to have Regulation No. 25 of 1827 repealed as the people are not likely to enjoy peace of mind so long as such a Regulation is in force.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, May 14th, 1898.

Comment on the release of the Natus.

53. The Agnikulathithan, of the 14th May, writes as follows:—It is a matter for congratulation that the Government of Bombay has released both the Natus from the jail. The Natus are now living at Belgaum with their family, and are directed not to leave that place without the special order of Government. The Government of Bombay seems to have liberated the Natus all on a sudden as they thought they would be directed to do so by the Parliament should the appeal preferred by the wife of the senior Natu reach that august body. It is earnestly hoped that the authorities will repeal the Regulation of 1827 so that it may not subject innocent persons to incarceration and unnecessary hardship.

54. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th May, writes as follows:—Many of the people of India do not understand the real motive of their rulers if they adopt the necessary measures when plague and other national calamities visit the country, for no other reason than they are illiterate. It is a thousand pities that mischief-makers avail themselves of such opportunities and frighten the masses by misrepresenting the object of Government. Although the masses who create breach of peace out of ignorance deserve to be punished, yet Government has to sympathise with them in the long run. Great was the difficulty experienced by Government in suppressing the disturbances that prevailed in Bombay and Calcutta when the plague found its way there. If Government means to convince the masses of its noble object, it must seek the aid of the vernacular newspapers and that of the natamdars (headmen of the several districts) whose words are more revered by the orthodox section of the community which forms the major portion of the population than those of Messrs. Surendranath and Anantha Charlu who have received the benefits of western education. Erection of huge temples and the celebration of grand festivals therein bear testimony to the fact that the united exertions of the Hindus are capable of producing wonderful results and that they are not wanting in unanimity, provided they are led by men worthy of being their leaders. It remains for Government to select such men. Why should not Government admit into the Legislative Council Raja Sastri, of Mannárgudi, whose opinion about the religious practices of the people will be of immense help to Government, while it has appointed as members of the Legislative Council persons having little or no knowledge of the English language to represent the Muhammadan community? If the help of such men as Raja Sastri, of Mannárgudi, who may be said to be the real leader of the people, be sought by Government, its measures would produce the desired effect at critical moments.

A hint to make the policy of Government a perfect success.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 19th, 1898.

55. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 16th May, says:—The Government of Madras is anxious to have the Madras Tenancy Bill passed as soon as possible and for this purpose a meeting of the Legislative Council was called, and, to induce the non-official members to attend the meeting at Ooty, each of them is offered a sum of Rs. 600 as batta. This is unnecessary expense incurred owing to Government having gone to the hills. More meetings will be held in the same place in connection with the Bill, and non-official members will not be able to attend them, and the Bill will become law without any discussion of its provisions. This, however, is not the only evil resulting from the migration of Government. Official business is considerably delayed because the records to which references are necessary are all in the capital and it takes several days before they can be called up and the work disposed of. Moreover, a great part of the officials' time is given to play and society in such a delightful place where all the rich and gay congregate. The expenses of the journey to and fro and the hill allowance paid to clerks and peons amount to a very large sum, which the country can ill afford to pay at this time of financial pressure.

The Madras Tenancy Bill and the exodus of Government to the hills.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, May 16th, 1898.

56. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd May, thinks that a mere change in the currency of India will not improve the financial condition of India, but that there should be a considerable reduction of expenditure in all directions beginning from the very top. The offices with the highest salaries must be taken in hand first. It is no use cutting down the pay of a few poorly-paid men near the bottom of the official ladder, as very little saving can be effected thereby, while great misery may be caused. There must be more industries established in the land with capital raised in the country itself.

Improvement in the financial condition of India how to be effected.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, May 23rd, 1898.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, May 30th, 1898.

57. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 30th May, after remarking that the Government of Bombay was acting under a panic in quartering a punitive police in Poona and imprisoning the Natus and prosecuting Mr. Tilak, says thus:—Now that the idea of a combination against Government in Poona has been exploded, the punitive police force inflicted on the place under the idea that it did exist ought to be relegated to oblivion. It is a piece of injustice on the part of the rulers and comes pretty near to robbery, and the Government ought to take off the imposition at once. It was done without consulting the local officials, which was a grand mistake on the part of the Bombay Government. As amends for this mistake something more ought to be done. Mr. Tilak ought to be liberated. There is no reason why he should be kept shut up when the theory of a conspiracy existing excited by his writings has been exploded. The best plan for the Government now is to confess itself wrong and entirely change its policy. This is what any sensible man would do under the circumstances, and it is a pity that the Government of Bombay should be less conscientious than a private person.

The punitive police in Poona.

---

[Issued 8th June 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 11 OF 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th June 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

Turkey and England .. .. .. .. .. .. 171
The Afridis and the British .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—
Murder of a sub-magistrate in the Salem district .. ib.
Irregularities of the District Police office, Malabar .. ib.
Careless supervision of the District Police office store inspector, Calicut .. .. .. .. .. .. 172

(b) Courts—
A suggestion to Government regarding the defence of the accused in all cases tried by the Sessions Courts .. ib.
Remarks on punishing thieves with fine .. .. .. ib.
Village munsifs delegating their function of registering vakalatnamas to others .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—Nil.

(d) Education—
Education of minor zamindars .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—
A request to a certain circuit officer at Dindigul .. 173
Remarks on the municipal administration of Tanjore .. ib.
Local Fund choultries in the Gódávari district .. .. ib.
The unsatisfactory working of the municipality of Bangalore civil and military station .. .. .. ib.
The insufficiency of the Hesserghatta water for the civil and military station and the city of Bangalore .. ib.
Unfitness of Mr. P. P. Karunakara Menon to the Calicut municipality secretaryship .. .. .. .. 174
The inefficiency of the municipal management, Calicut. ib.
The removal of the burial ground from the Jamath mosque at Cannanore urgently necessary .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
Wholesale and objectionable attachment of lands for arrears of revenue .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Suggestions to prevent frauds in connection with paimash accounts .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Disposal of property for arrears of revenue tends to impoverish the country .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(g) Forests—
Inadvisability of levying a tax for allowing cattle to graze in forests .. .. .. .. .. .. 175

(h) Railways—
Advisability of extending the Karikal Railway line to Tranquebar .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A complaint against the Madras Railway Company .. ib.
The East Coast Railway .. .. .. .. .. ib.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—concl.

(i) Public Works—Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—
The sub-inspectors themselves to see that people derive no salt from salt-pans .. .. .. .. .. 175
Petty abkári cases to be tried in amsams .. .. .. 176

(k) General—
Complaints against the hospital at Dindigul .. .. ib.
Reflections on the proposal of the Collector of Chingleput to put a stop to the celebration of the festival at Conjeeveram .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A few suggestions for the information of the Collector of Tanjore and the Board of Revenue .. .. .. ib.
Unsatisfactory condition of some of the roads in the district of Salem .. .. .. .. .. .. 178
An advice to the sub-magistrate of Tirutturaippúndi .. ib.
The Madras Executive Council .. .. .. .. ib.
Indian military expenditure. How the revenues of India may be improved .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Repetition of offences by the Mappila sepoys at Cannanore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 179
The education of minors under the Court of Wards unsatisfactory .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The tahsildars and their clerks unable to draw their monthly pay as early as other officers .. .. .. ib.
The Calicut public put to great inconvenience by the registrar of births and deaths living at Chévayúr .. 180
The pay of the Survey office clerks not regularly disbursed .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Birthday Honours' list .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Mint question .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Suggestion to nominate M.R.Ry. C. Sankaran Nair Avargal to a seat in the Legislative Council .. .. .. ib.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

The Abkári department of Mysore .. .. .. .. ib.
The bonus to the Diwan of Mysore on his retirement .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.—Nil.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Indifference of the authorities to the mischiefs caused to the people by the British soldiers .. .. .. .. .. 181
Remarks on the strike at the Perambúr workshop .. .. ib.
Advisability of putting a stop to fire-treading during the Mohurrum feast .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Who are the natural leaders of the people? .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Gnanachandrika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 1,200 | April 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani," .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st June 1898. |
| 3 | "Sukha Jivani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 300 | 15th May and 1st June 1898. |
| 4 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 1st June 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South India Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 25th May 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 4th and 11th June 1898. |
| 7 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 28th May and 4th and 11th June 1898. |
| 8 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st and 8th June 1898. |
| 9 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 27th May 1898. |
| 10 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 30th ,, and 6th June 1898. |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 30th ,, 1898. |
| 12 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 1st and 8th June 1898. |
| 13 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 30th May 1898. |
| 14 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 700 | 21st ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 28th ,, and 4th June 1898. |
| 16 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 15th ,, 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 17 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 26th, 28th and 31st May, and 2nd, 4th, 7th and 9th June 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 18 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | May 1898. |
| 19 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 384 | ,, ,, |
| 20 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | June 1898. |
| 21 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakur, Nellore district. | 100 | 1st June 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 28th May and 11th June 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 28th May and 1st, 4th, 8th and 11th June 1898. |
| 24 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 31st ,, ,, 3rd, 7th, 10th ,, 14th ,, ,, |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 6th and 13th June 1898. |
| 26 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 4th ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Veerashaivamathadarsha" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 6th ,, 13th ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 2nd ,, 9th ,, ,, |
| 30 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 600 | 25th May 1898. |
| 32 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 1st June ,, |
| 33 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 30th May ,, |
| 34 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 1st June ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 35 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 28th May and 4th June 1898. |
| 36 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 30th ,, ,, 6th ,, ,, |
| 37 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 25th ,, ,, 1st and 8th June 1898. |
| 38 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 28th ,, ,, 4th June 1898 |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 39 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 30th May and 6th June 1898. |
| 40 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 28th ,, ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 8th June 1898. |
| 42 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 26th May and 2nd and 10th June 1898. |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 26th ,, 1898. |
| 44 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 7th February 1898. |
| 45 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 28th May and 8th June 1898. |
| 46 | "Muqannin-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Do. .. .. | 300 | February, March and April 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 30th May, reproduces an article from the Al-Muvayid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) of which the following is an excerpt:—England instigates Russia to press upon the Sultan the appointment of Prince George to the Governorship of Crete, with a view to create misunderstanding between the powers and thus realise her own ends, viz., to avenge the wrongs (done to Christians) or to strengthen her connection with Turkey. This attitude on the part of England has injured her interest in the East and has alienated the Muhammadan world. The Al-Muvayid has often said that the hostile policy pursued by Sir Philip Currie, the British Ambassador at Constantinople, as regards the Armenian and Cretan questions, has resulted in great loss to England by creating ill-feelings between her and Turkey. As all the measures adopted by England to the prejudice of the Sultan have proved futile, England will revert to her former friendly policy. It is rumoured that Sir Philip Currie will resign his post owing to ill health. But the fact is that when European politicians fail in their attempts, or when their Governments intend replacing them, they generally resign assigning ill health as the reason. The Shams remarks if what is said about Sir Philip's resignation is correct, it is presumed that England now feels that to instigate the Czar to get Prince George appointed as the Governor of Crete will be of little avail.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, May 30th, 1898.

Turkey and England.

2. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 6th June, inserts translation of certain letters written by an Afridi chief to Gul Shah, whoever he may be, published in the Civil and Military News. The Shams observes that the letters bear evidence of the bravery of the British and the cowardice of the Afridis.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, June 6th, 1898.

The Afridis and the British.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

3. The Sasilekha, of the 31st May, referring to the murder of the sub-magistrate of Denkanikota, Salem district, in the open court, remarks as follows:—The Government publicly offered a reward of Rs. 50,000 for the detection of the murderers of two European gentlemen on the Jubilee night in Poona. The Government should try its best to detect and punish the murderer of the sub-magistrate now. It ought not to be indifferent, because the murdered is a black man. How would anybody's life be secure when a magistrate could be murdered with a Government rifle. What has happened to-day to a black man may happen to-morrow to a white man. The sub-magistrate had to suffer an untimely death, as he had been in the habit of criticising and dismissing the false cases concocted by the police. As the said magistrate and the police were on unfriendly terms for a very long time, the people of the district are unable to believe that the truth would see the light if the police should investigate this murder case. A certain individual writes that Government should take particular care and depute an intelligent magistrate to investigate the case.

Sasilekha, Madras, May 31st, 1898.

Murder of a sub-magistrate in the Salem district.

4. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st June, reports that the irregularities of the Malabar district police office call for speedy investigation. The popular report for some time has been that the reserve police inspector rendered himself open to certain charges in connection with the sale by auction of some articles. The account inspector is also not above suspicion and it is not clear who else would be implicated. Timely investigation into the matter is necessary, and, as a preliminary step, certain suspected officers should be transferred. The records require careful examination, and the article expresses the hope that the Superintendent will take the necessary steps in this matter.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, June 1st, 1898.

Irregularities of the District Police office, Malabar.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 8th, 1898.

Careless supervision of the District Police office store inspector, Calicut.

5. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 8th June, gives another instance of irregularity in the District Police office. The contractor who was engaged to convey police uniform to Wynaad says that three carts were employed for the purpose, whilst the head-quarter inspector found that only two carts were used. The article inquires whether the store inspector was unaware of the issue of uniform from the office.

(b) Courts.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 27th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding the defence of the accused in all cases tried by the Sessions Courts.

6. The Lokopakari, of the 27th May, observes that only in cases of murder tried before the Sessions Judges, Government appoints counsels to defend the accused, but in other cases in which the accused cannot afford to engage the services of legal practitioners to plead for them, they are convicted for want of proper defence. The paper thinks it desirable that Government should appoint counsels in view to defend the accused who are paupers, in all other cases tried before the Sessions Courts, and help the lawyers who may volunteer their services gratis for defending such men, as such a measure will win for the civilised British Government a good name.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 9th, 1898.

Remarks on punishing thieves with fine.

7. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th June, referring to a case of theft disposed of by Mr. Chester, in which the accused was fined Rs. 15 for having stolen Rs. 20, remarks that the fine in question is inadequate, as it is less than the sum stolen, and wishes that in such cases imprisonment should be awarded in addition to fines. The paper is of opinion that such fines should always exceed the sum or the value of the property stolen, in view to make the punishment exemplary.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 25th, 1898.

Village munsifs delegating their function of registering vakalatnamas to others.

8. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 25th May, hears that adhikaries (village munsifs) in general delegate their function of registering vakalatnamas to others. The attention of the Collector is invited to the matter.

(d) Education.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 1st, 1898.

Education of minor zamindars.

9. The Andhraprakasika, of the 1st June, speaking of the Wards' administration of 1896–97, observes that the Government has passed favourable remarks with certain exceptions on the education of the minor zamindars. But on perusing the report submitted by the European tutor appointed by the Court of Wards, the paper understands that the instruction given to the minors comprehends only riding, tennis-playing, studying European etiquette, and learning how to receive European ladies should occasion arise. It is at a loss to explain how the minor zamindars, whose educational qualifications are in this way inferior to those of ordinary boys, will be able to administer their estates when they come of age. What is the "guarantee," it asks, that such a defect as this will not also be found in matters other than educational. Young princes who will in due course be called upon to govern people ought to develop in themselves far nobler qualities of the head and heart than ordinary boys. It is therefore of great moment, remarks the paper, that these minor zamindars should be taught all that would make them useful both to Government and the people, rather than riding well, playing at tennis and smoking cigarettes. It believes it will be kind of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock if he will soon reform the system of education of the zamindari wards and put it on a sound basis, and also make special provision for securing their proper training if they have to be educated at Government colleges.

(e) Local and Municipal.

10. The South India Mitran, of the 25th May, requests the circuit officer, who is in possession of the key of the Local Fund choultry at Dindigul, to hand it over either to the sub-registrar or to any other local resident, as travellers resorting to the choultry in question suffer no small inconvenience owing to the difficulty of securing the key, whenever the circuit officer happens to be away from the place on duty.

South India Mitran, Dindigul, May 25th, 1898.

A request to a certain circuit officer at Dindigul.

11. The Janamukulan, of the 4th June, regrets to learn that Government is not pleased with the municipal administration of Tanjore and has been passing an unfavourable remark year after year. The paper thinks that, if the municipal councillors work with zeal and earnestness, the municipal administration of that town would necessarily be far better than what it is at present. The paper concludes with the remark that Dr. Nailer should be appointed chairman, and feels sanguine that his appointment would create universal satisfaction, as he is reputed for his vast experience in municipal work and as the people had nothing to complain of during his chairmanship on a former occasion.

Janamukulan, Tanjore, June 4th, 1898.

Remarks on the municipal administration of Tanjore.

12. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 14th June, complains that the seven or eight Local Fund choultries in the Gódávari district are nominally managed by tahsildars, but they are in reality in the hands of petty gumastahs on salaries of Rs. 12, 15 or 20 a-month. Provisions and utensils of the value of several thousand rupees are very often left absolutely in their possession; and there is no responsible authority to examine the accounts kept by them. He therefore proposes the formation of small local bodies (responsible to the tahsildars) to control the work of the gumastahs. He also suggests that as circumstances have changed after the establishment of these choultries, by the construction of railways, and as there is no necessity for them, they may be removed and located in such centres where the poor and the hungry congregate in large numbers.

Sasilekha, Madras, June 14th, 1898.

Local Fund choultries in the Gódávari district.

13. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th June, complains that the working of the municipality of the civil and military station of Bangalore is not being carried on smoothly, because the President and the members do not pull on well together. The President, says the paper, wishes to have everything his own way, and to reduce the commissioners to mere nonentities, in defiance of the intentions of the Government in establishing local self-government in India. At the last meeting of the municipal council a member contended that the sanitation of the place was not what it ought to be, and that the rate of mortality in some parts was fearfully high, although there has been no epidemic of any kind. This the paper attributes to the bad management by the executive of the funds allotted. The roads, too, are not kept in a good state of repair.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, June 13th, 1898.

The unsatisfactory working of the municipality of Bangalore civil and military station.

14. The same paper regrets that although the Government of Mysore spent several lakhs of rupees and a great deal of labour in getting water for the city of Bangalore in the hope that the city would enjoy a free supply of wholesome water from want of which it had long been suffering, yet just when the people of the place were expecting to use this water freely by getting service pipes into their own houses they are to be rudely deprived of this luxury by the authorities of the civil and military station who, by compelling the Mysore Government to allow the same water to be carried to the cantonment, have cut short the supply which should legitimately go to the city. The Bangalore city municipality fearing that the water-supply may prove insufficient for both the places now refuse to supply water to houses whose rental value is less than Rs. 300 a-year, although the street pipes are placed several furlongs apart and some of the people have to go a long way to get water from them.

The insufficiency of the Hesserghatta water for the civil and military station and the city of Bangalore.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 1st, 1898.

15. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st June, criticises the Times of Malabar in the latter's praise of P. P. Karunakara Menon, one of the candidates for the Calicut municipal secretaryship. Karunakara Menon was for some time the manager of the Calicut municipality and was, by no means, a success. The article hears that, in 1887, the Government concurring in the report of the Assistant Inspector of Local Fund Accounts regarding the unsatisfactory condition of the municipal management, had expressed the hope that with the resignation of his office by the manager, the Calicut municipal affairs might improve. In these circumstances the article maintains that P. P. Karunakara Menon cannot be deemed a fit person for the secretaryship.

Unfitness of Mr. P. P. Karunakara Menon to the Calicut municipality secretaryship.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 4th, 1898.

16. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 4th June, while approving of the Calicut municipal chairman's recent order to destroy rats as a preventive measure against the introduction of plague, declares that it is more important to clean the unhealthy localities within the municipality and to keep them in good condition. The article instances the very insanitary condition of the locality in Calicut called Kundungal, which is usually the first place to suffer from attacks of epidemic diseases, to show that sanitation is little looked after by the municipal council. The unhealthy condition of the part bordering on the Conolly canal here and the inefficiency of the scavenging work are also adduced as other instances of municipal inactivity. The article hopes that these matters will be attended to.

The inefficiency of the municipal management, Calicut.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 6th, 1898.

17. A correspondent to the Manorama, of the 6th June, dwells at some length upon the inadvisability of using the compound of the Jamath mosque as a burial ground as it tends to contaminate the well-water of the town, and adds that the removal of the burial place is of more pressing importance than the carrying out of the proposed pipe-water supply scheme which will entail enhanced municipal taxation and put the people to great hardship.

The removal of the burial ground from the Jamath mosque at Cannanore urgently necessary.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 22nd, 1898.

18. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd May, complains that lands are attached for arrears of revenue irrespective of the kanom and other rights possessed by others on them, and maintains that previous notice of such attachment should be given to the kanom-holders or only such lands as have no encumbrances upon them should be attached.

Wholesale and objectionable attachment of lands for arrears of revenue.

19. Another leader in the same issue of the paper refers to an order recently issued to village officials to the effect that the names of proprietors of lands should be given in the paimash accounts and makes the following suggestions:—That the old practice of obtaining the signatures of tenants and of respectable witnesses to the original account should be followed; that receipts should invariably be granted at the place of survey; that receipts should also have counterfoils to which must be obtained the signatures of tenants and respectable witnesses; and that revenue receipts also should be granted on printed forms with counterfoils.

Suggestions to prevent frauds in connection with paimash accounts.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 28th, 1898.

20. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 28th May, makes the following observations on the Secretary of State's reply to a question put by the Honourable Mr. Smith, M.P., regarding revenue collections in India:—It would appear from the reply Disposal of property for arrears of revenue tends to impoverish the country.

referred to that in the years 1894–1896 landed property belonging to no less than 14,411 persons and moveable property of 6,717 persons were sold for arrears of revenue, and that the Government bought in 45 per cent. of the lands thus disposed of. Attachment of property, in this manner, is sure to impoverish India at no distant date. It is almost certain that the persons whose lands are thus disposed of very seldom realise adequate value for their property, the purchasers in many cases being relatives of the attaching Revenue officers. The article, in conclusion, fears that matters would become worse with the introduction of the new settlement rates.

(g) Forests.

21. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th June, referring to the tax imposed on the ryots for their allowing cattle to graze in forests, writes as follows:—The duty of the officers of the Forest department should be to maintain forests for the welfare of the people and not to levy money to the vexation and ruin of the ryots even for allowing their cattle to graze in them. If their cattle are deprived of the due quantity of fodder required for their nourishment, agriculture must necessarily suffer. The poor agriculturists will be highly grateful to Government if it be pleased to adopt the necessary measures in view to promote their interest, instead of being misled by the advice of some Government officials whose sole object is self-aggrandizement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 7th, 1898.

Inadvisability of levying a tax for allowing cattle to graze in forests.

(h) Railways.

22. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 27th May, suggests to the authorities the desirability of extending to Tranquebar the railway line which now touches Karikal, and feels sanguine that such a measure will not only prove beneficial to the people but will also facilitate local trade to no small extent.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 27th, 1898.

Advisability of extending the Karikal Railway line to Tranquebar.

23. The Vikata Dutan, of the 11th June, complains that during rainy days third-class passengers in the Madras Railway suffer much inconvenience as water finds its way into the carriages through the leaky tops, and requests the Railway authorities to attend to this piece of grievance at once.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, June 11th, 1898.

A complaint against the Madras Railway Company.

24. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 14th June, complains against the raising of the third-class passenger fare on the East Coast Railway. Observing that the increased rate of 2½ pies per mile is obtaining only on the G.I.P. Railway and also on the Madras Railway for mail trains, he remarks that the high rate stands in the way of the poor travellers by rail and especially so in times of distress such as the present. He hears that Government has resorted to this step because of the loss incurred by the passengers from Madras to Calcutta and vice versâ preferring to travel by the sea. He suggests that this may be remedied not by raising the third-class passenger rate, but by expeditiously completing the through line to Calcutta on the East Coast Railway. He also complains that the duty levied on goods carried by boats through the "Ellore lock" has been raised to favour traffic by the East Coast Railway. By these and other acts, the East Coast Railway has become, he adds, a source of discontent for the people.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 14th, 1898.

The East Coast Railway.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

25. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st June, protests against the notice which, it hears, has been issued by Sub-Inspectors of Salt and Abkári Revenue to the owners of salt-producing tracts calling upon them to have the lands ploughed at their own cost as a preventive against unauthorised production of salt. This notice, the article says, is unjust as it entails unnecessary expense on the jenmies, it being the duty of sub-inspectors to see that such illicit salt is not obtained possession of and used by the people. The sub-inspectors and their superior officers should themselves exercise the necessary supervision in the matter.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 1st, 1898.

The sub-inspectors themselves to see that people derive no salt from salt-pans.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 25th, 1898.

Petty abkári cases to be tried in amsams.

26. A Cannanore correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 25th May, complains that old men and women, who are summoned from a distance, are put to great inconvenience and difficulty by the order of the Inspector of Salt and Abkári of the Tellicherry circle that he would hear their cases at 11 A.M., while the trial, as a rule, begins only at 4 P.M. It is therefore suggested that the cases should be tried in the amsams concerned.

(k) General.

SOUTH INDIA MITRAN, Dindigul, May 25th, 1898.

Complaints against the hospital at Dindigul.

27. The South India Mitran, of the 25th May, writes as follows:—We are sorry to be in receipt of a letter representing the deplorable condition of the hospital at Dindigul intended exclusively for the use of women. The correspondent bitterly complains that the lady in charge of the hospital is not punctual in her attendance and does not administer medicine to the patients resorting to it, that the compounders do not discharge their duty properly, that the medicines intended for the use of the poor are administered to European gentlemen who are in opulent circumstances, and that in a word the hospital does not serve the purpose for which it was intended. We abstain from publishing the letter of the correspondent under reference in consideration of the fact that the hospital in question has been thriving ever since its establishment three years ago as the result of the indefatigable labour on the part of a few wealthy gentlemen. It is sincerely hoped that the doctress in charge of the hospital will be punctual in her attendance both in the morning and in the evening and attend to the wants of the patients who repair to it, without making an abuse of the medicines intended for the poor.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 26th, 1898.

Reflections on the proposal of the Collector of Chingleput to put a stop to the celebration of the festival at Conjeeveram.

28. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th May, regrets to hear that the District Magistrate of Chingleput has proposed to put a stop to the celebration of the grand festival at Conjeeveram this year on the ground that cholera is prevalent in the neighbourhood. The paper observes that the interference on the part of the authorities with the time-honoured religious observances of the people is inconsistent with the religious neutrality maintained by the British Government, and asks whether the Collector of Chingleput can guarantee for the disappearance of the epidemics if the Hindus and the Muhammadans give up celebrating their festivals. The paper concludes with the remark that the curious measures adopted by the Government of Bombay, such as segregation, fumigation, disinfection, and so forth to stamp out the plague were after all of no avail, but only tended to aggravate the sufferings of the people, and earnestly hopes that Government will leave nature to take her own course in India bearing in mind that the Hindus have a strong belief in fatalism and that such a belief on their part will make them withstand the sweeping diseases such as small-pox, cholera, etc.

INDIA MITRAN, Tanjore, May 15th, 1898.

A few suggestions for the information of the Collector of Tanjore and the Board of Revenue.

29. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 15th May, says that he makes the following suggestions from his experience of the district of Tanjore for several years:—

(1) The work of stationary sub-magistrates in the district of Tanjore is not open to any complaint as they discharge their duty diligently and properly and as the people are greatly benefited thereby; but in regard to the sub-magistrates, who are also deputy tahsildars, there is ample room for criticism. As these sub-magistrates in the discharge of their revenue work are obliged to go on circuit for over a period of fifteen days in a month, the result is that people experience great hardship and the execution of public duty is far from being satisfactory. It is therefore suggested that those sub-magistrates who go by the name of deputy tahsildars should be relieved of their revenue work altogether.

(2) The division of the district into taluks is unsatisfactory. The district is divided into nine taluks and as the southern boundary of the Pattukkóttai taluk is at a distance of 60 miles from that town, the ryots as well as the village officers are obliged to travel a great distance for transacting revenue work and the execution of public duty must, as a matter of course, be delayed. As the taluk yields too small a beriz to allow it to be divided into two taluks, it is suggested that the revenue work and the pay of the tahsildar of Pattukkóttai should be reduced a little and the pay and the duties of the tahsildar of Aranténgi, which is 30 miles to the south of Pattukkóttai, should be increased, which would lessen the work of both the officers to a considerable extent and enable them to carry on their work more expeditiously. In Aranténgi there should be a sub-treasury and the kist due from those parts which lie to the south of that town should be allowed to be paid into that treasury as a matter of convenience.

(3) As Tanjore and Kumbakónam which are first-class taluks in the district containing a population of 3½ millions yielding a beriz of 10 lakhs each, the tahsildars concerned find themselves unable to cope with the heavy pressure of work connected with these taluks. It is therefore suggested that Papavinasam should be made a taluk comprising Harithwaramangalam, Awur and Umbalappadi which now form part of the Kumbakónam taluk, together with Ranganathapuram and Govindakudi circles, and Séliyamangalam, Ammápét, Milattur, Onpathiveli, Mangudi and Sargojeepuram which are now included in the Tanjore taluk, so that pressure of work in respect of the said two taluks could be reduced to a normal extent.

(4) The limits of the jurisdiction of the several sub-magistrates in the district are also open to objection. The village of Alangudi, which is only at a distance of a furlong from the limits of the jurisdiction of the sub-magistrate of Nídámangalam, is included in the town of Kumbakónam which is 15 miles from the said village, and, similarly, Paruthichery, which is only one mile away from the limits of the jurisdiction of the sub-magistrate of Kudavásal, is included in Kumbakónam circle which is 12 miles from the place, and by this unsatisfactory arrangement not only the work of the sub-magistrate of the town of Kumbakónam is greatly increased, but the parties are also obliged to undergo great hardship and inconvenience by being put to the necessity of travelling over an unreasonable distance. The following division is therefore suggested in view to put the state of things in a better condition:—

(i) The jurisdiction of the Nídámangalam sub-magistrate should extend to Harithwaramangalam circle so as to include therein Alangudi and Harithwaramangalam.

(ii) The jurisdiction of the Kudavásal sub-magistrate should include the whole of Nachiyarkudi police circle.

(iii) The jurisdiction of the Kumbakónam stationary sub-magistrate should include Kumbakónam municipality, Kumbakónam taluk station, Valangiman police station — Alangudi and Awur being excepted — and Swamimalai police station.

(iv) As crimes are of frequent occurrence in Tiruvadamarudúr police circle, it is desirable that a new police station should be opened in Kanjanur and that Tiruvadamarudúr, Kanjanur, Tiruppanandál and Panthanallur should be brought within the jurisdiction of the sub-magistrate of Tiruvadamarudúr.

(v) Papavinasam including Awur, Milattur, Ayyampét and Kapistalam—the portion which falls within the jurisdiction of the sub-magistrates of Tanjore and Tiruvádi being excluded—should be brought under the jurisdiction of the sub-magistrate of Papavinasam. The ordinary sub-magistrate of Kumbakónam, who is drawing a pay of Rs. 100, should be appointed stationary sub-magistrate of Papavinasam on a pay of Rs. 120 and the pay of the sub-magistrate of Pattukkóttai should be reduced to Rs. 100 as he has not much work to do.

The correspondent wishes that the Collector of Tanjore and the Board of Revenue should pay particular attention to this article.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, May 21st, 1898.

Unsatisfactory condition of some of the roads in the district of Salem.

30. A correspondent to the Agnikulathithan, of the 21st May, complains that some of the main roads in the district of Salem are filled with heaps of sand and earth here and there and on the sides, which form the abode of snakes, and requests the authorities to have such heaps of sand and earth removed ere long, as many a traveller has been bitten by the serpents that roam about the roads.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, May 25th, 1898.

An advice to the sub-magistrate of Tirutturaippúndi.

31. The Jananukulan, of the 25th May, regrets to remark that Mr. C. P. Raghava Chariyar, the sub-magistrate of Tirutturaippúndi, is very hasty and hot-tempered and generally picks quarrels with the police, the parties and the vakils, and that he has been warned by his higher authorities but in vain. The paper advises the sub-magistrate in question to behave better and avoid unpleasant remarks from his official superiors.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 14th, 1898.

The Madras Executive Council.

32. The Sasilekha, of the 14th June, remarking on the appointment of the Honourable Mr. Arundel to the recent vacancy in the Council, writes thus:—We regret much that grave injustice has been done to the Honourable Mr. S. Crole. Our Governor has never done such injustice since he assumed the administration of the Presidency. It is not clear why he has not given him the appointment of a Member of Council. But it remains to be seen whether the Secretary of State will approve this appointment or not. When the Madras Government tried once before to obstruct his promotion, the Secretary of State interfered and saw justice done to him. Some people suggest certain reasons. It seems that as soon as our Governor entered on his duties, there were frequent altercations between him and the Honourable Mr. Bliss. Without acting as the Governor had required him to do, he commenced to induce the Governor to agree to whatever he thought was right. As each could not act as the other directed, Mr. Bliss thought it better to resign his appointment than to act as the Governor required him to do. Then the Secretary of State seems to have intervened and reconciled them. Mr. Crole is as able as Mr. Bliss and is in some respects more distinguished. It is not known whether, bearing this fact in mind, the prudent Governor has perhaps refused Mr. Crole this appointment, under the impression that, should Mr. Crole join the Council, the quarrel he had had with Mr. Bliss before might recommence. There is no reason to suppose that when the Governor appoints as Councillors those who obey him and act as he directs, the administration will be satisfactory, though he may find himself comfortable; for there is much to be done in the administration and the Governor has no experience of this country. Is it not necessary, therefore, that there should be some one in the Council competent to criticise satisfactorily the views of the Governor? We hope that the Secretary of State will annul the appointment made by the inexperienced Governor and give it to Mr. Crole.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, June 4th, 1898.

Indian military expenditure. How the revenues of India may be improved.

33. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 4th June, in a leading article headed "Indian Military Expenditure" regrets the decision of the Ministry not to make any grant towards the expenses of the frontier wars, in violation of the promise which the Chancellor of the Exchequer had made, and remarks as follows:—The disappointment caused by this withholding of the grant has created an impression abroad that the Government is becoming hard and unsympathetic. India has had such an exceptional and unhappy year that a voluntary contribution from England would have been a graceful mark of sympathy at this time of acute strain and distress, and would have produced the happiest results politically. There is more reason for a home grant because it was a Secretary of State for India that ruined one of the most hopeful efforts to ameliorate the condition of the ryots. When Lord Mayo drew up a scheme for the agricultural improvement of the country, the Secretary of State frustrated the project by ruling that revenue, and not agriculture, should be the main object of the new department, and he directed that the head of it must be chosen for his knowledge of revenue and not agricultural matters. Ever since then the Agriculture department has been starved. It is the more necessary, therefore, to obtain help from other quarters. Land Settlement, Land Records, and Agriculture should no longer be combined. The Director-General of Agriculture should be a Member of the Viceroy's Council. Each province should have a Provincial Director. The first duty should be a careful agricultural survey of the country to see what is good in native methods and what improvements might be introduced. Former attempts largely failed for want of this preliminary inquiry. There should be a similar organisation of a Department of Manufacture and Commerce. Technical colleges, industrial and commercial schools should receive attention. By the judicious rules drawn up by Mr. Nicholson, the ryots might be freed from the meshes of the money-lenders, while an effort was made to promote habits of thrift. The establishment of a special department for advance to ryots, on the lines which prevailed under Hindu and Muhammadan Governments, is desirable. An Emigration department should be organised. A sum of two millions sterling if granted by England would enable a good commencement to be made, and before it was expended the regular revenue would enable the work to be continued.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, May 25th, 1898.

Repetition of offences by the Mappila sepoys at Cannanore.

34. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 25th May, in repeating its complaint against the Mappila sepoys of Cannanore, cites certain instances of their high-handedness and rowdyism of which the following are some:—

(1) Robbing the helpless wayfarers of the articles and money in their possession in broad daylight by using force.

(2) Taking away by force mangoes, sweetmeat, etc., from poor dealers and beating them if they demand the price.

(3) Insulting girls and women if they chance to pass by.

The several cases of theft that occurred in Cannanore lately in which the police could not detect the culprits must, the article believes, have been committed, if not by the Mappila sepoys themselves who are enlisted from the ranks of notorious robbers, at least through their assistance and encouragement. It is unfortunate, the paper says, that Colonel Burton does not bestir himself in the matter. The article concludes with a request to the Collector of Malabar, who has been inquiring into the matter, to do what is necessary for ridding the people of these troublesome sepoys.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, June 4th, 1898.

The education of minors under the Court of Wards unsatisfactory.

35. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 4th June, referring to the Government order reviewing the report of the Court of Wards for fasli 1306, says that though improvements have been made in collections of revenue to the estates, the education of the minors has not received the attention it demands, and hopes that the Government will take the matter into its consideration.

Manorama, Calicut, June 6th, 1898.

The tahsildars and their clerks unable to draw their monthly pay as early as other officers.

36. A leader in the Manorama, of the 6th June, referring to a recent order of the Accountant-General, Madras, to the effect that the salary of taluk establishment, i.e., of the tahsildar and his clerks, can be paid only after their pay bill had been countersigned by the Divisional officer and checked in the Huzur treasury, complains that this system of payment is unjust on the ground that officers holding appointments of less responsibility and pay are empowered to draw their salary direct from the treasury because these latter are gazetted officers. The article, therefore, suggests that either the tahsildars should, if possible, be made gazetted officers or they should be allowed to draw their pay bill when countersigned by the Divisional officer.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, June 8th, 1898.

37. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 8th June, hears from a correspondent to the Malabar and Travancore Spectator that the registrar of births and deaths of Calicut municipality lives at Chéváyúr at a distance from the municipal limits, and that the Calicut public are put to great inconvenience.

The Calicut public put to great inconvenience by the registrar of births and deaths living at Chéváyúr.

38. Another paragraph in the same issue of the paper complains that the pay of the Calicut Survey office clerks is not regularly disbursed, the salary for April last being disbursed only on the 24th May. This is a source of great hardship to low-paid clerks.

The pay of the Survey office clerks not regularly disbursed.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, May 26th, 1898.

39. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 26th May, in connection with the Birthday Honours' list, remarks with great surprise that not a single individual in Mysore or in the civil and military station, Bangalore, has been honoured with a title, though there are many capable and deserving men in that province. The Qasim hopes that this omission will be supplied when the next opportunity occurs.

Birthday Honours' list.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, June 4th, 1898.

40. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 4th June, mentions that the people of England are strongly against the introduction of gold standard in India. They are also struggling to bring about the re-opening of mints here, but Government persists in its present policy. The editor observes that the closing of the mints has resulted in the production of illicit silver coins.

The Mint question.

III.—Legislation.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, May 28th, 1898.

41. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 28th May, while regretting that the Malabar Tenancy Bill was not entrusted to an officer conversant with Malabar and its customs, such, for example, as the Hon'ble Mr. Winterbotham, hopes that, in the hands of an able, kind and experienced officer like the Hon'ble Mr. Crole, the people of Malabar have not much to fear. The article suggests that, as the Bill should be fully discussed in the light of every information available on the subject, Mr. C. Sankaran Nayar, B.A., B.L., may be nominated to the seat in the Legislative Council left vacant by the death of the Hon'ble Mr. H. T. Ross.

Suggestion to nominate M.R.Ry. C. Sankaran Nayar Avargal to a seat in the Legislative Council.

IV.—Native States.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, June 2nd, 1898.

42. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 2nd June, regrets that the consumption of arrack has considerably increased within the past few years in the province of Mysore, and urges the Government to close some of the shops as an effective remedy for the increase of drinking habits among the people.

The Abkári department of Mysore.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, June 3rd and 10th, 1898.

43. The Suryodaya, of the 3rd and the 10th June, strongly condemns the grant of a bonus of four lakhs of rupees made by Her Highness the Maharani Regent to Diwan Sir Seshadri Iyer on the ground that he has done no good to the province, but has, on the other hand, done a great deal of harm to the people by rigorous exactions of revenue, and employment of foreigners to all important offices in the State. The fact also that he has held office for an unusually lengthened period and has drawn more pay than any other single Diwan up to this time renders it highly iniquitous, in the opinion of the editor, that he should claim anything more from the coffers of the State.

The bonus to the Diwan of Mysore on his retirement.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

44. The Vikata Dutan, of the 4th June, writes as follows:—Highhandedness and mischiefs on the part of the British soldiers in India are ever on the increase, and there is nothing to indicate that the authorities bestow due attention on the subject and adopt remedial measures. When a question was raised in the Parliament some days ago in respect of the case of a gunner who had shot a native in Northern India, the Secretary of State spoke in such a manner as to make it appear that the question should be dropped altogether. The more such subjects are hushed up the greater is the mischief on the part of the British soldiers. The fact that a couple of weeks ago two soldiers killed a hospital assistant at Calcutta while he was dressing their wounds is still fresh in the memory of the people. On Saturday last two soldiers in Kasal assaulted the cart-drivers who were taking some barrels of whisky in their cart when they refused to furnish the soldiers with whisky on demand, and took to their heels throwing the cart, the drivers and the bullocks together with the barrels in a large pit. It was reported that on the same day two soldiers of the 16th Lancers assaulted a native and walked away with Rs. 200 and some silver bullions which he was carrying from the treasury at Umballa. Rumour has it that soldiers pelt stones at the carriages and harass the passers-by along the Fort St. George. It is expedient that the authorities should award such soldiers exemplary punishment rather than enable them to escape under some pretext or other.

Indifference of the authorities to the mischiefs caused to the people by the British soldiers.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, June 4th, 1898.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd June, referring to the recent strike at the Perambúr workshop, thinks it highly desirable that the attention of Government as well as that of the public should be drawn to the difference found between the native workmen and their Eurasian and East Indian colleagues in respect of pay, and hopes that the members of the Legislative Council will bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

Remarks on the strike at the Perambúr workshop.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 2nd, 1898.

46. The Jananukulan, of the 4th June, reports that fire-treading—a custom which has been strictly prohibited by Government in several Hindu temples on grounds of public safety—was one of the several feats exhibited during the recent Mohurrum, and wishes Government to take steps to put a stop to it even during the Mohurrum, so that Government may not be accused of partiality towards the Muhammadan community.

Advisability of putting a stop to fire-treading during the Mohurrum feast.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, June 4th, 1898.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 6th June, commenting on the suggestion of the Hindu Patriot that in order to prevent popular riots in India more power should be given to the zamindars, says that the zamindars of the present day can by no means be regarded as the leaders of the people. By their neglect of their people, their dissipation and extravagance, and ignorance they have lost all respect which they might have commanded, and it would now be really disastrous to give them more power in the hope that they would exercise that power for the good of the peace of the country.

Who are the natural leaders of the people?

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, June 6th, 1898.

---

Erratum.

In line 5, para. 14, page 159 of Report No. 10 on Vernacular Newspapers for fortnight ending May 31—

Insert the word "and" before the word "remarks."

[Issued 23rd June 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 12 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 30th June 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| Russian designs with regard to India | 185 |
| Evacuation of Thessaly | ib. |
| Amir's good feeling towards Government | ib. |
| Russian invasion on India | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Necessity to reorganise the Police department | ib. |
| Police oppression in the villages | 186 |
| Suggestion to transfer from Cannanore the police constables of the town | ib. |
| Complaints against the Police head-quarter inspector, Calicut | ib. |
| Notorious bad characters in Calicut | ib. |
| A suggestion to transfer the men of the Ponnáni police. | ib. |
| Some among the Calicut police to be transferred | ib. |
| A 1st-class Inspector of Police to be posted to the Manjéri division | 187 |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Desirability of adopting the necessary measures for keeping certain criminal tribes of the district of Madura under due control | ib. |
| Inadequate punishment of a soldier in Bombay | ib. |
| Clients not to stand in the verandah of the Head Assistant Magistrate's Court, Palghat | ib. |
| (c) Jails—Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Periyapuram result school to be brought under the taluk board | ib. |
| The 5th-grade teachers also to pass the new Teachers' Grade examination | 188 |
| Non-payment of the result grants to teachers in board schools | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Necessity for metallic roads in the South Arcot district. | ib. |
| Advisability of opening a good road from Tuticorin to Tiruchengódu | ib. |
| Remarks on the members of municipal boards | ib. |
| Remarks on the election rules | 189 |
| Remarks on the conduct of some of the councillors of the Tanjore municipality | ib. |
| Certain suggestions regarding the qualifications of municipal voters | ib. |
| Private scavengering in Madras | ib |
| Tax levied in the Cannanore municipality heavy | 190 |
| Recommending that the nomination of Mr. Zachariah as the secretary for Calicut municipality may be confirmed | 191 |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement—Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Forest administration | ib. |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Advisability of opening a branch railway line from Tanjore to Sivaganga through Pudukkóttai | ib. |
| Certain defects of the South Indian Railway requiring the adoption of remedial measures | ib. |
| Disregarded accommodation of 3rd-class passengers | 192 |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Desirability of diverting the courses of certain rivers southwards to ward off famine | ib. |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Remarks on the encouragement of arrack vendors on the part of Government | ib. |
| Unjust disposal of property for arrears of abkári kist | 192 |
| Inconvenience caused by the Tanúr sub-inspector's non-acquaintance with the Malayalam language | 193 |
| (k) General— | |
| Reflections on the attitude of the Anglo-Indian papers towards the Native press | ib. |
| Remarks on the several appointments made by His Excellency the Governor of Fort St. George in consequence of the death of the Honourable Mr. Grose | ib. |
| Certain irregularities in respect of the Madras tram cars | 194 |
| Agricultural banks | ib. |
| Employment of peons and constables on works of a private and domestic nature | ib. |
| The desirability of opening a poor house in Calicut | 195 |
| Suggestions regarding the appointment of village munsifs | ib. |
| The Pudiakotta magistrate, Huzur sheristadar or head clerk to be Malayalis or persons well conversant with the Malayalam language | ib. |
| How to improve native medical treatment in India | ib. |
| Complaint against the postmaster of Tirúr | ib. |
| Inconvenience of ferry-crossing in Malabar | ib. |
| A certain Tirúr officer devoting his energies to cultivation | ib. |
| Suggesting the advisability of consulting native hakims as regards plague preventive measures | 196 |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Remarks on bribery | ib. |
| Remarks on the appointment of a committee to report on the Madras Tenancy Bill | ib. |
| Desirability of preventing by an enactment the adulteration of articles of food | ib. |
| Remarks on the Madras Tenancy Bill being referred to a Select Committee consisting of official members only | ib. |
| A suggestion to amend section 540 of the Code of Civil Procedure | 197 |
| "Condition of zemindari ryots" | ib. |
| The Legislative Council | ib. |
| The Madras Tenancy Bill | ib. |
| Reflections on the Madras Tenancy Bill | 198 |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Remarks on the Legislative Council of the Native State of Travancore | ib. |
| Advisability of encouraging the vernaculars in the several Native States | ib. |
| The Mysore Government found fault with for not encouraging native medicine | ib. |
| Favouritism and jobbery in Mysore Government offices | 199 |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.—*Nil. | |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Reflections on the contemplated loan for the benefit of India | ib. |
| Desirability of publishing an order of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and the kind of punishment awarded to the soldiers concerned in the cases which reached the ears of Parliament | ib. |
| "The Government of India borrowing" | 200 |
| Precautions against plague | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 850 | June 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th June 1898. |
| 3 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 15th ,, ,, |
| 4 | "Sukha Jivani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 300 | 15th ,, ,, |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th, 15th and 25th June 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 18th and 25th June 1898. |
| 7 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 13th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 6th, 13th, 20th and 27th June 1898. |
| 9 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 6th, 13th and 20th June 1898. |
| 10 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 9th June 1898. |
| 11 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 1,400 | 18th and 25th June 1898. |
| 12 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 13 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 10th June 1898. |
| 14 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 28th May and 13th, 20th and 27th June 1898. |
| 15 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 11th, 18th and 25th June 1898. |
| 16 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 15th and 22nd June 1898. |
| 17 | "Vijayathvajam" .. .. .. | Dévakóttai .. .. | 800 | 16th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 11th, 14th, 16th, 18th, 21st and 23rd June 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | June 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 400 | 18th and 25th June 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 15th, 18th, 22nd, 25th and 29th June 1898. |
| 22 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 17th, 21st, 24th and 28th June 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 20th and 27th June 1898. |
| 24 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 17th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 26 | "Veerashaivamathadarsha" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 19th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 16th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 15th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Mysore Star" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 15th June 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 30 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 600 | 5th and 15th June 1898. |
| 31 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 11th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| 32 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 10th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 11th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 11th and 18th June 1898. |
| 35 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 13th, 20th and 27th June 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 15th and 22nd June 1898. |
| 37 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 11th, 18th and 25th June 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 38 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 15th, 20th and 27th June 1898. |
| 39 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 15th and 25th June 1898. |
| 40 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th June 1898. |
| 41 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 19th and 26th June 1898. |
| 42 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 18th June 1898. |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 9th ,, ,, |
| 44 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 25th ,, ,, |
| 45 | "Ain-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | 17th ,, ,, |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Suryodaya, of the 24th June, says that the Russians have long been desirous of securing a port on the Indian seas, and have now resolved to station their men-of-war at a port in the Persian Gulf with a view to besiege Bombay and Karachee when occasion should arise.

Russian designs with regard to India.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, June 24th, 1898.

2. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 13th June, mentions that the Al-Muvaid of Cairo wishes to know what England means by prolonging her stay in Egypt, and when she will evacuate the country. The Al-Muvaid also observes that it was in fact promised by England that she would one day leave it, but as regards the date of evacuation, such terms were attached as made the matter ambiguous. Anyhow, the paper says, England should evacuate the country sooner or later in the same way as the Sultan has commenced to evacuate Thessaly in accordance with the promise made by His Majesty.

Evacuation of Thessaly.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, June 13th, 1898.

3. The Shams-ul-Akhbar of the 20th June. The Chouduim Saddi (place of publication not mentioned), in proof of the Amir's good feeling towards the British Government, writes that Afridi Jirga, which was on its way to Kabul, has been detained in Jalalabad under instructions from the Amir.

Amir's good feeling towards Government.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, June 20th, 1898.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 27th June, mentions that its contemporary the Hindu of Madras inserts a speech recently delivered by a German officer named Colonel von Pemberston, in which it is said that should Russia invade India, the Afghans, numbering about 40 lakhs, would possibly side with her if assured of plunder, that the friends of Russia, who live in India, would create another mutiny in this country and that the Muhammadans of India, who are disaffected and who have become daring in consequence of the recent Turkish victories over the Greeks, would probably declare a religious war against the British Government. The Shams observes that its contemporary inserted the above without criticism with a view to show its latent enmity against the Muhammadans. It is absurd to think that the Amir, who receives crores of rupees annually, will side with Russia, or that there will be another mutiny in India, while many regular troops are guarding it, or that the Muhammadans are disaffected when they enjoy such peace and happiness under the British Government as they have not seen under any other rulers. The Shams concludes with the remark that their keeping aloof from the congress is sufficient proof of the faithfulness of the Muhammadans.

Russian invasion on India.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, June 27th, 1898.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. The Jananukulan, of the 18th June, referring to a number of cases in which the accused were no other than Police officers themselves, regrets to observe as follows:—Constables constituting the Police force are as a rule men who belong to the dregs of the native community possessing little or no education, social position and sense of duty, and do not therefore serve the purpose of guarding the life and property of the people for which they are intended. It is hoped that Government will reorganise the Police department by employing men of good character and educational qualifications on liberal pay. Government may be incapable of introducing the necessary reforms owing to want of funds; but nothing will prevent the authorities from minimising as far as possible the drawbacks of this department. It is a matter for regret that the higher authorities at times encourage the Police officers in the exercise of their arbitrary powers without sympathising with the people at large.

Necessity to reorganise the Police department.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, June 18th, 1898.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, June 17th, 1898.

6. The Suryodaya, of the 17th June, in a leading article gives the various ways in which the police oppress the people in the villages. It says that when any householder reports a case of theft he has to supply provisions and other things for the Police officers who come to his house for inquiry, and has thus to spend what has been spared by the thieves. If a rich man has the misfortune to incur the displeasure of any Police officer he is subjected to various indignities and even to vexatious prosecution. If he dares to complain to the higher authorities he can get no evidence against the police who are dreaded by the villagers. When the Police officer goes on circuit the potail and others have to collect supplies for him from the ryots. The powers now conferred on the police by the plague prevention rules are a fresh source of annoyance to the ryots. The few cases of oppression by the police that become public are no index to the large amount of corruption and violence and oppression that is going on in the name of law in the villages. The paper therefore calls upon the superior officers of the department to exercise great vigilance on the doings of their subordinates.

Police oppression in the villages.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 11th, 1898.

7. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 11th June, complains of the utter inefficiency or rather apathy of the Cannanore police, and attributes it to the fact that more than twenty of the thirty constables in Cannanore are natives of the town and are mutually related by some family connection or other. These constables neither detect culprits nor preserve order and peace in the town. What little is done in the detection of crime is effected by constables newly transferred to the town. The article therefore suggests that those constables who are natives of the town should be transferred from Cannanore, and invites the attention of the District Superintendent and the Inspector-General of Police to the matter.

Suggestion to transfer from Cannanore the police constables of the town.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 15th, 1898.

8. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th June, in renewing its complaints about the irregularities in the District police office, hears that the Reserve police inspector of Calicut, who has recently been found fault with and fined on certain charges brought against him by the Head-quarter inspector, has, in his turn, some complaints to prefer against the latter's irregular proceedings including pecuniary transactions of a private nature with the clerks of the office. The attention of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter which, it is hoped, will receive a thorough investigation. To keep an Head-quarter inspector against whom such charges are made, as the head of a district office in spite of repeated suggestions for a transfer, is, says the article, naturally productive of such irregularities.

Complaints against the Police head-quarter inspector, Calicut.

9. Another leader in the same issue of the paper dwells at length upon the rowdyism and high-handedness of notorious bad characters in the Calicut town. It is remarkable that the police do not bestir themselves in the matter and the article fears that, as a consequence thereof, public safety will be greatly endangered.

Notorious bad characters in Calicut.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 22nd, 1898.

10. A correspondent from Ponnáni writes to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd June, that the local police are found quite inefficient to detect cases of theft which occur very often in the place, and suggests that a transfer should be given to the whole body of the local police.

A suggestion to transfer the men of the Ponnáni police.

11. A Calicut correspondent to the same issue of the paper expresses no surprise at the increase of notorious bad characters in Calicut since they have chosen to make friends with the Police officers and are, therefore, let alone. A transfer of those among the police who have been for a long time in Calicut is, therefore, suggested to be the best means for putting a check upon the said characters.

Some among the Calicut police to be transferred.

12. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd June, strongly disapproves of the posting of Mr. Rahiman Khan as the Police Inspector for Manjéri division, the largest division in the district. The eight police stations of the division are situated at great distances from each other in hilly tracts and the inspection of these stations is therefore attended with great inconvenience and expense to an inspector who is only on probation and draws only a small pay. Besides, Mr. Rahiman Khan is new to Malabar and its people. The article says that an experienced and able inspector of the first or second class should be posted to this important division and calls the attention of the District Superintendent to the matter.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 23rd, 1898.

A 1st-class Inspector of Police to be posted to the Manjéri division.

(b) Courts.

13. The South Indian Mitran, of the 5th June, regrets to remark that the people of the district of Madura are harassed by criminal tribes known as Kallars, to whose depredations are due mischief by fire, killing and lifting of cattle and other atrocious acts, and requests Government to adopt the necessary measures—

SOUTH INDIAN MITRAN, Dindigul, June 5th, 1898.

Desirability of adopting the necessary measures for keeping certain criminal tribes of the district of Madura under due control.

(1) for taking a census of the criminal tribes living in the various parts of the district and ascertaining the nature as well as the total extent of land owned by them;

(2) for finding out some means of livelihood for those who do not own lands and live on cultivation;

(3) for opening schools in the villages inhabited by them and giving them the benefit of education;

(4) for suppressing the nefarious act of cattle-lifting in particular and theft of property in general by giving them suitable appointments in the Police and other departments as in the case of the Mappilas of the district of Malabar; and

(5) for directing those who have no occupation among them to appear before the village magistrates every day at 9 P.M. and sign a register to be kept for the purpose.

14. The Suryodaya, of the 24th June, gives an account of an attempt to outrage the modesty of a respectable Hindu woman by Gunner Richardson and Private Batraby, who entered the house of the woman and proceeded to examine her person, representing themselves to be plague inspection officers. Gunner Richardson was convicted by the magistrate and was sentenced to 4 months' imprisonment, while the other was acquitted. The paper points out that in Calcutta a Hindu who represented himself to be a plague inoculator was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, and contrasts the two sentences and remarks that Europeans are generally let off with light punishments however heinous their offences might be.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, June 24th, 1898.

Inadequate punishment of a soldier in Bombay.

15. A Palghat correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th June, mentions that the Head Assistant Magistrate of the place takes objection to clients standing even in the verandah of the court at the time of the hearing of cases. This prohibition is unjust according to the correspondent.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 25th, 1898.

Clients not to stand in the verandah of the Head Assistant Magistrate's Court, Palghat.

(d) Education.

16. An article in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd June, expresses its regret that the result school at Periyapuram in Ponnáni taluk has not been brought under the management of the taluk board. The school stands in great need of a suitable building to hold its classes in, and the article therefore suggests that the local

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 22nd, 1898.

Periyapuram result school to be brought under the taluk board.

travellers' bungalow, which travellers at present rarely resort to, may be utilised for the purpose. Every encouragement should be given to a school of this sort attended by many Mappila boys, and the article therefore invites the attention of the Director of Public Instruction and the President of the District Board to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 25th, 1898.

The 5th-grade teachers also to pass the new Teachers' Grade examination.

17. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th June, disapproves of the recent order of the Director of Public Instruction to the effect that all 5th-grade teachers who had passed their examination prior to the introduction of the present "Written Examination and Practical Test" should likewise qualify themselves in accordance with the new rules. The 5th-grade teachers are village schoolmasters and they had only to pass the present Primary Grade examination to qualify themselves as teachers. Many of these 5th-grade teachers are old and experienced men drawing only a very meagre salary and to require them to pass the new examination is unnecessary. The article hopes that the Director of Public Instruction will re-consider the matter and cancel the order in question.

Non-payment of the result grants to teachers in board schools.

18. A Tellicherry correspondent writes to the same issue of the paper that the result grants due to teachers in board schools in connection with the last annual examination have not yet been disbursed, so that great hardship and pecuniary embarrassment has been caused to these low-paid teachers. The attention of the Municipal authorities is invited to the matter.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 14th, 1898.

Necessity for metallic roads in the South Arcot district.

19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th June, observes that good and extensive roads are indispensable to the progress of agriculture, and remarks that in spite of about fifty applications from him to the President of the Taluk Board of Tindivanam pointing out the absolute necessity of opening a branch metallic road from Kilputtupattu to the Kiliyanur road in the taluk of Tindivanam, a distance of about 8 miles, on the ground that about twenty-five thousand people living in twenty villages thereabouts, besides millions of other inhabitants on all sides, will be greatly benefited thereby, the authorities have not as yet attended to the want complained of. The correspondent alluding to the remark made by Government that the District Board of South Arcot has not utilised its funds in the satisfactory improvement and extension of roads, concludes by saying that the roads referred to in the memorial recently submitted by the people of the district are absolutely necessary in the interest of agriculture, local industry and trade, and hopes that Government will have the grievances of the memorialists redressed ere long.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 10th, 1898.

Advisability of opening a good road from Tuticorin to Tiruchengódu.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 10th June, suggests to the authorities the desirability of opening a good road from Tuticorin to Tiruchengódu, a distance of 23 miles, as the latter is a place of great pilgrimage and as there is but one road from Palamcottah, which is as a rule in a bad condition during the rainy season.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, June 18th, 1898.

Remarks on the members of municipal boards.

21. The Jananukulan, of the 18th June, observes as follows:—We regret to attribute the insanitary state and the wretched condition of the roads of the district of Tanjore to indifference and neglect of duty on the part of the councillors of the municipal boards, some of whom, who do not enjoy the benefit of higher education, are bent on creating party spirit among the councillors and advancing their own private interest, without bestowing the necessary attention on public matters. It is therefore desirable that Government should approve of the appointment by election of persons as members of the district and taluk boards, after ascertaining whether they possess the necessary educational qualifications and knowledge of law, and whether they will work hard in the interest of the public.

22. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 20th June, approves of the election rules published by Government, and is glad to note that they will prevent the occurrence of a number of irregularities and fraud during the time of election. The paper, however, remarks that the rule requiring voters to enter a separate room and record their vote is likely to be abused, as the polling officer may induce them to vote for a particular candidate whom he may wish to favour, and hopes that voters will be allowed to record their opinion at a place where they may not be seen by the polling officer. The paper concludes with the remark that rules 24 and 25 do no prescribe the procedure to be adopted in the case of those voters who can neither read nor wrote.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, June 20th, 1898.

Remarks on the election rules.

23. The Jananukulan, of the 25th June, referring to the remark of Government on the unsatisfactory working of the Tanjore municipality, mentions the following cases in which some of the municipal councillors themselves are guilty of misconduct:—

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, June 25th, 1898.

Remarks on the conduct of some of the councillors of the Tanjore municipality.

(1) When Mr. K. Kaliyanasundaram Iyer was the chairman of the Tanjore municipality, it was said that he engaged the services of two of the municipal peons to do his private work at home.

(2) Rumour has it that Mr. Pundi Appasawmi Vandayar, who has served the Tanjore municipality as a councillor for a considerable length of time, has not as yet paid his dues to the municipality for the years 1895–96, 1896–97 and 1897–98, in spite of the fact that a warrant was issued against him.

(3) Another councillor by the name of Palani Andi Pillai is reported to have made an unlawful encroachment on Government lands.

The paper says that it is a pity that those men who should by their conduct set a good example to others are found misbehaving in the manner herein referred to. So long as such men continue to be municipal councillors it is impossible for the municipality of Tanjore to earn a good name and be high in the estimation of Government.

24. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 28th June, strongly objects to the new rule that permits women also to vote at the time of the election of a municipal councillor, on the ground that Hindu women are on the whole still wanting in educational qualifications and judgment which are absolutely necessary for the exercise of the privilege of voting. The paper does not approve of the new rule which authorises every person that pays four rupees in the shape of professional tax to exercise the privilege of a voter, inasmuch as many a poor and ignorant person would come forward to vote, and thinks that considerable annoyance and fraud would be the consequence, and suggests the desirability of conferring the privilege of voting on those who pay not less than rupees eight as professional tax, and not less than rupees seven per month in the shape of house rent, in view to prevent the people of lower orders from exercising such an important privilege as that of voting.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, June 28th, 1898.

Certain suggestions regarding the qualifications of municipal voters.

25. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 15th June, remarks that the Government of Madras deserves the warmest thanks of the people for the efforts it has been making to prevent the outbreak of the plague in this Presidency. But he is afraid that, unless the sanitation of the town were improved, the plague might originate in Madras itself, without being imported from elsewhere. The poor being unable to make the necessary sanitary arrangements for themselves, it is desirable, he remarks, that sanitation should be completely left in the hands of the municipality. The scavengers in Madras have to be paid, he says, what they demand, on the first of every month, with all their perqnisites for feasts and festivals. In spite of this, they sometimes fail to attend to their work for four or five days, on the pretext of some death or marriage in their families. He therefore challenges whether there can be any doubt for the development of plague worms in the latrines attached to private houses, generally tenanted by 30 or 40 individuals. Is it not true, he asks, that private houses in Madras contain too many inmates? What can they do, if the scavenger fails to clean the latrine? There is a tacit understanding, he notes, among these scavengers, that a latrine usually attended to by one of them should not be taken charge of by another when transferred to him, though he might be offered a higher fee for his work. Under these circumstances, the occupants of the house, the latrine of which is kept uncleaned, have no alternative but to report the matter to the sanitary inspector or overseer of the division, who generally orders the daffadar to attend to it. The daffadar pleads his inability to the complainants, and, on being cautioned a second time by the sanitary authorities, falsely represents to them that the matter has been set right, while the latrine remains as bad as ever. That a great portion of the city is in this filthy state may be guessed from the fact of very many people approaching in a few minutes the sanitary inspector of their ward with their complaints. This insanitary condition may not be the same throughout the town, and may perhaps be met with in some corner only; but one dirty corner, says the correspondent, is enough to injure the health of the whole population. The Government alone has the power to leave the work of scavengering in the hands of the individual scavengers or to place it under the control of the municipality. Therefore the Government alone has to take measures to remove the inconvenience. The correspondent cannot but think that the way is quite clear for the outbreak of cholera, plague or some severer epidemic in Madras. He believes that the abolition of private scavengering, and the placing of it under the control of the municipality, are absolutely necessary. He also believes that Government will understand the true state of affairs by ascertaining the number of complaints of the kind noted above received by sanitary inspectors during the last one month or so.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 15th, 1898.

Private scavengering in Madras.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 11th, 1898.

Tax levied in the Cannanore municipality heavy.

26. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 11th June, hears that a petition is about to be submitted by the municipal inhabitants of Cannanore to the Government of Madras praying against the present municipal rate of taxation which is shown to be not by any means in keeping with the impoverished condition of the town. The reasons embodied in the petition are, some of them, just and real, and are as follow:—

(1) From the year 1867 A.D. in which the Municipal Act came into force in Cannanore to the years 1880–82 A.D., Cannanore was a military cantonment town; one European regiment, two regiments of Native Infantry, and some other regiments being stationed there. All these regiments gave employment of some sort or other to the inhabitants of Cannanore, and their unfortunate removal from the station accounts, in part at least, for the present impoverished state of the town.

(2) Seasonable and timely rain favoured the crops in those years, commerce and traffic were in a flourishing condition, and the outbursts of infectious and epidemic diseases were few and far between.

(3) Even in those years of prosperity municipal tax was levied only at 5 per cent., while at present, under circumstances quite the reverse of those that prevailed formerly, the tax is levied at 7½ per cent.

(4) In many instances municipal expenditure admits of curtailment, and there are also some instances of unnecessary expenditure.

The article, in conclusion, hopes that, in consideration of these grievances of the Cannanore people, the Government will take the necessary steps in the matter.

27. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th June, referring to the recent election and nomination of Mr. Zachariah, B.A., headmaster of the Calicut Mission high school, as the secretary for the local municipal council, hopes that the Government will have no objection to appoint him to the post. Perhaps it may be urged that Mr. Zachariah does not possess the knowledge and experience which a revenue officer has and which may, in the opinion of the Government, be deemed essential for a secretary. But if the divisional officer should continue to be as at present the chairman of the municipal council, it is hoped that the municipal affairs will not suffer in the hands of Mr. Zachariah, although he may lack experience in matters pertaining to revenue.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 15th, 1898.

Recommending that the nomination of Mr. Zachariah as the secretary for Calicut municipality may be confirmed.

(g) Forests.

28. The Sasilekha, of the 21st June, regrets that the conservation of forests, though intended for the benefit of the ryots, has become one of the many causes of their impoverishment. It remarks that the levying of fees for grazing cattle in forest reserves is felt to be a grievance. For, these reserves are so near as to surround the villages close on the borders with no intervening ground for cattle to graze on and, when the cattle stray into the reserves, they are thrown into the pounds and kept there until certain fees are paid by the owners. Ninety-five per cent. of the ryots in this country being too poor to pay grazing fees, they are obliged to keep and feed their cattle at home, which consequently grow lean and unhealthy for want of sufficient exercise and fodder. The ryots are further prohibited from cutting firewood and gathering wild fruits and leaves in reserved forests. The Government is frequently misled by the district officers with their plausible arguments, in spite of its determination not to interfere with the rights of the villagers. Noting that within the last five years the Government revenues from grazing fees have increased from Rs. 1,05,000 to Rs. 3,40,500, the paper remarks that the ryots have become proportionately poor. It adds that the administration of forests should only be to conserve them, and not to obtain money by making the ryots suffer. Government servants employed in the Forest department seek to obtain promotion and titles by showing an increase in the revenues. But the Government should be cautious not to be misguided by them, but to safeguard the interests of the ryots.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 21st, 1898.

Forest administration.

(h) Railways.

29. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 6th June, is of opinion that the opening of a branch railway line from Trichinopoly to Dondi through Pudukkóttai and Dévakóttai would not be so lucrative to the railway company and advantageous to the public as the opening of a line from Tanjore to Sivaganga through Pudukkóttai, inasmuch as the latter line recommended would connect the three important centres, such as Tanjore, Madura and Pudukkóttai, and prove highly beneficial to the public at large.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, June 6th, 1898.

Advisability of opening a branch railway line from Tanjore to Sivaganga through Pudukkóttai.

30. The Lokopakari, of the 10th June, bitterly complains that many of the porters of the South Indian Railway, instead of serving the purpose for which they are intended by the Railway authorities, form a great nuisance to the passengers in that they thrust rashly into the compartments already filled up such of the passengers as grease their palms with an anna or so and their goods to the inconvenience of the other passengers, and that the stationmasters whose duty it is to attend to such irregularities while away the short time during which the trains halt at their stations in saluting the Government officials and European

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 10th, 1898.

Certain defects of the South Indian Railway requiring the adoption of remedial measures.

officers who happen to be in the train, and in ingratiating themselves into their favour, and concludes with the remark that stationmasters should not be allowed to stay in one and the same station for more than three years and that they should be strictly directed to see that no compartment is overcrowded, that the Brahmins engaged for the purpose of supplying the passengers with water discharge their duty properly, and that unwholesome articles of food and other eatables are not allowed to be sold at the station premises, as such a practice is the cause of the outbreak of cholera.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 25th, 1898.

Disregarded accommodation of 3rd-class passengers.

31. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th June, complains that the 3rd-class compartments attached to the "local train" of the Madras Railway Company subject passengers to very great inconvenience owing to abundant excessive leakage in the rainy season, and calls the attention of the authorities concerned to the matter. The article hopes that the complaint of the people will at last rouse the Railway authorities to pay proper attention to the comfortable accommodation of passengers who travel by the 3rd class and who are by far the greatest number of passengers of all classes.

(i) Public Works.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, June 18th, 1898.

Desirability of diverting the courses of certain rivers southwards to ward off famine.

32. The Jananukulan, of the 18th June, endorses the opinion of an engineer that if the courses of the Ganges, the Indus, and the Brahmaputra, which now discharge their contents into the sea, be diverted in such a way as to make them flow southwards as far as the Cape Comorin by digging a big canal in the centre of the peninsula, India would never suffer from drought, and thinks that if Government should stand as a surety, many a capitalist of this country and of England would come forward to be the shareholders of a large company and execute the work with success.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, May 28th, 1898.

Remarks on the encouragement of arrack vendors on the part of Government.

33. The Agnikulathithan, of the 28th May, referring to the facts that the Legislative Council of the Government of Ceylon has levied duty on arrack exported from Colombo and that the arrack shopkeepers of Madras petitioned the Board of Revenue representing the loss they sustain in consequence, regrets to observe that Government sent a reply to the aggrieved petitioners stating that the liquors of Calicut and Palghat are as strong as that of Colombo, and that it would adopt the necessary measures to afford the arrack vendors of Madras all possible facilities in securing liquor from those places. The paper concludes with the remark that Government is not justified in encouraging arrack vendors by adopting the necessary measures to prevent them from sustaining loss in the sale of liquors, unmindful of the horrible consequences of the use of liquor which is not only unnecessary for the people of such a hot country as India, but which is also positively injurious to them in many ways. The paper earnestly hopes that the members of the Legislative Council will spare no pains in pointing out to Government the necessity of levying duty on the arrack imported to Madras from Calicut, and assures that many a family which is now smarting under the abominable effects of liquor will cherish with feelings of gratitude such a benevolent act on the part of the Madras Legislative Council.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 18th, 1898.

Unjust disposal of property for arrears of abkári kist.

34. A correspondent writes to the Kerala Patrika, of the 18th June, that the amounts for which certain revenue inspectors and adhikaries dispose of the moveable property of defaulters by auction for arrears of abkári kist are much lower than the real value, the said revenue inspectors and adhikaries being themselves the buyers thereof.

35. A Tanúr correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd June, complains that, in consequence of the salt sub-inspector of the place not being conversant with the Malayalam language, the persons of the local fish-curing yard are put to great inconvenience in submitting their grievances to him.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 22nd, 1898.

Inconvenience caused by the Tanúr sub-inspector's non-acquaintance with the Malayalam language.

(k) General.

36. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th June, speaks of the high-handedness of the Anglo-Indian papers as follows:—We are sorry to hear that the Englishman and the Capital, which are Anglo-Indian papers published in Calcutta, have induced Government to bring the Amrita Bazaar Patrika into trouble and behave in such a manner as to make it appear that either Government is partial to them or the new Act—the law of sedition—does not apply to them as well. We wonder at the story regarding the interview of His Excellency the Viceroy with a yogi near the Himalayas trumped up by the Englishman in respect of the origin of the bubonic plague. Even granting for sake of argument that such a story finds credence among the masses, is it logical to infer therefrom that the knowledge imparted to the Hindus by the British Government all along has been of no avail? All that we can infer from the story in question is that the British Government has yet to do, in the matter of education, a great deal more than what it has already done. We may even proceed so far as to say that the indifference on the part of Government in educating and civilizing the masses is a sinful act. It is a thousand pities that the vernacular papers, which are the only means of educating the masses in these days when the schools already in existence are abolished and those of indigenous growth are not aided with liberal grant, are discouraged. If Government really wishes that the ignorance of the masses should be dispelled it should, as we remarked on a previous occasion, encourage the native newspapers in all possible ways—particularly by reducing their postal charges. It is only then that Government will acquire sufficient stability. The statement that native newspapers are mischief-makers is a groundless denunciation and is not worthy of belief.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 14th, 1898.

Reflections on the attitude of the Anglo-Indian papers towards the Native press.

37. The same paper does not approve of the several appointments made by His Excellency the Governor in consequence of the demise of the Hon'ble Mr. Grose, and remarks as follows:—The appointment of the Hon'ble Mr. Arundel as a Member of the Executive Council in preference to the Hon'ble Mr. Crole is unjust, as the latter is the senior in point of service, possessing vast experience and administrative skill and as he spared no pains in making an excellent use of the money sent from England during the recent famine. It is a pity that His Excellency the Governor, who has hitherto won a good name for impartiality, should have erred in overlooking the legitimate claims of the Hon'ble Mr. Crole, which is a sore disappointment to the people at large. Rumour has it that His Excellency the Governor contemplates certain arrangements in respect of the question of settlement in this Presidency. Had Mr. Crole been appointed a Councillor, he would have rendered His Excellency the Governor timely help in regard to the question of settlement. The appointment of the Hon'ble Mr. Stokes as Chief Secretary is also open to objection. At the time when he was the Collector of Salem he was guilty of a number of scandals which tended to tarnish the reputation of Government. Although he is the younger brother of Sir Henry Stokes he does not possess even one-hundredth portion of his good qualities. The Hon'ble Mr. Forbes, who has succeeded the Hon'ble Mr. Stokes, is no doubt an able and laborious officer; but we hear that he is hasty and wanting in government of tongue. Mr. Tremenheere, who has succeeded the Hon'ble Mr. Forbes, is a useless officer as he has a proneness to pick quarrels wherever he goes, nor does he possess the necessary ability and good character. In these circumstances, we deeply regret to notice the appointment of these officers by our good Governor on this occasion.

Remarks on the several appointments made by His Excellency the Governor of Fort St. George in consequence of the death of the Hon'ble Mr. Grose.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 18th, 1898.

Certain irregularities in respect of the Madras tram-cars.

38. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th June, complains that the passengers arriving at the Periamet bridge by the tram-cars from Mylapore and Royapet with the intention of going to Egmore have to wait for a considerable length of time before they can enter the cars going to Egmore, which at times do not stop at the Periamet station to take such passengers, and that the passengers wishing to go to Mylapore and Royapet from Egmore experience the same difficulty near the Periamet bridge, and hopes that the necessary instructions will be given to the drivers to stop their cars at the Periamet station when they see the cars of the other sections arrive there.

Sasilekha, Madras, June 28th, 1898.

Agricultural banks.

39. The Sasilekha, of the 28th June, observes that the Government is aware how the ryots of the several districts borrow money at a high rate of interest and become virtual slaves to the money-lenders. Hearing that the Mysore Government has started agricultural banks, His Excellency Lord Wenlock nominated Mr. F. A. Nicholson, the Collector of Anantapur, to work out a scheme for opening such banks. He travelled through Germany, Switzerland and Italy to study the subject, and embodied his observations in two volumes and submitted them to the Government. The Secretary of State also has been for the last two years thinking of establishing such banks. From time immemorial the ryots have been in the habit of borrowing at 12 or 24 per cent. per annum from sowcars and paying kist to the Government. Now if the Government should start such banks, it would be possible for the ryots to mortgage their lands and cattle at low rates of interest and redeem them.

The Government claims the ownership of the land. There need be no fear of the ryots running away to foreign lands with the lands here on their heads. If such banks are instituted there will be rather an equitable distribution of wealth, for the trade of the avaricious sowcars will suffer, and the ryots and others will prosper. Also those who have funds may invest them securely in the banks and rid themselves of all anxiety from robbers, etc. It is on account of possessing such banks that the ryots of France, Germany and Switzerland are enjoying happy lives.

It is not understandable what prevents the Government from embracing a scheme so salutary to the ryots, while it spends crores of rupees yearly without restraint in waging wars and constructing railways. It is doubtful whether the Secretary of State will in the end succeed in instituting such banks, or will silently shelve the whole matter.

Mr. F. A. Nicholson has not only book-knowledge of such banks but also practical experience, he being an eye-witness of the working of such banks in Europe. Why could not Government, asks the paper, appoint him on special duty and see that such banks are established and worked in the several districts before the time for his retirement should come, thus avoiding the necessity of another officer beginning to learn the A B C of the scheme hereafter. The Madras authorities are losing confidence in, and respect for, competent officers. They treat with regard only such as have a smattering knowledge. It does not therefore seem probable that the Madras Government will introduce the agricultural banks. It is hoped the India Government at least will take some interest in the matter and appoint Mr. Nicholson to establish such banks. The paper wishes to see the scheme enforced during the administration of Sir Arthur Havelock, as he is well acquainted with the condition of the ryots.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, June 11th, 1898.

Employment of peons and constables on works of a private and domestic nature.

40. A paragraph in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 11th June, referring to a suggestion of the Mysore Standard that it is advisable to forbid the high native officials under the Mysore Government to employ the constables and peons under them on menial work of a private and domestic nature, says that this practice is not without its parallel in this Presidency, and condemns it in strong language.

41. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 11th June, dwells upon the extreme desirability of opening a poor house in Calicut for the benefit of the lame and the blind whose number increases in almost the same proportion as the increase of poverty in Malabar. If the Government would take the initiative in the matter, the rich and generous among the Malayalis, says the article, will come forward and support the measure with liberal donations. In this connection the article regrets that effect has not been given to the contemplated establishment of a leper hospital in Calicut. It is hoped that the Government will bestow its attention upon the opening of a poor house in Calicut at an early date.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 11th, 1898.

The desirability of opening a poor house in Calicut.

42. A leader in the Manorama, of the 20th June, dwells at some length upon the inadvisability of allowing the situation of adhikaries (village munsifs) to continue as a sort of heritage in certain tarwads in Malabar, and attributes the prevailing irregularities in the mode of revenue collection to this system of appointing village munsifs. The adhikari is an important functionary in the village administration and must, therefore, possess tact, intelligence and some knowledge of law which the present incumbents, as a rule, have not. The article, therefore, concludes with a request that, before the new settlement rules come into force, orders may be issued that educational or other qualification, and not caste and hereditary claim alone, should be considered in appointing adhikaries.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 20th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding the appointment of village munsifs.

43. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd June, writes to it from Neeleeshwaram in the Kasaragod taluk to say that the grievances of the Malayali inhabitants of the place can be redressed by the appointment, as Pudiakotta magistrate, Huzur sheristadar or head clerk, of either Malayalis or of persons well conversant with the Malayalam language. The Government, it is hoped, will give its due consideration to the matter.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 23rd, 1898.

The Pudiakotta magistrate, Huzur sheristadar or head clerk to be Malayalis or persons well conversant with the Malayalam language.

44. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd June, referring to the question put in the House of Commons whether it is not advisable to place some restrictions upon the treatment of the sick in India by native physicians, concurs with the Secretary of State for India in his reply given thereto. The article only regrets the want of an institution in this country for imparting instruction in native pharmacy, and suggests that the Government will do well either to establish such an institution in the country or encourage others to do it.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 22nd, 1898.

How to improve native medical treatment in India.

45. A correspondent to the same paper writes to it from Retutpudiyangadi that the postmaster of Tirúr, instead of delivering letters to addressees, directs them, after a day or two, to the Tanúr post office, or hands them over for delivery to village postmen. Great inconvenience is caused hereby and the attention of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter.

Complaints against the postmaster of Tirúr.

46. A traveller in Malabar writes to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd June, that, owing to the apathy shown by the boatmen in conveying passengers across the many ferries in Malabar, travellers are put to great inconvenience. The boatmen are not adequately paid by the ferry contractors and hence arises the difficulty. It is therefore suggested that boatmen should, hereafter, be paid for their work by the taluk treasury.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 23rd, 1898.

Inconvenience of ferry-crossing in Malabar.

47. A Tirúr correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th June, makes mention of a certain officer of the place who is also an agriculturist. He employs the peons under him to work in the fields as well and put others to inconvenience.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 25th, 1898.

A certain Tirúr officer devoting his energies to cultivation.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, June 18th, 1898.

48. A correspondent named Ghulam Muhiuddin Farooqi, of Madras, writing to the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 18th June, about the plague, says that hundreds of thousands of rupees have been spent by Government for stamping out the plague but to no purpose, as doctors have not been able to treat their patients successfully. The correspondent admits that European doctors are perfect in surgery, but says they are not properly acquainted with the principles of treatment. In many instances in which these doctors have failed, native hakims have succeeded. Hence he suggests to Government the advisability of consulting native hakims in this matter and the issue of orders to the Collectors of districts to this effect.

Suggesting the advisability of consulting native hakims as regards plague preventive measures.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SOUTH INDIAN MITRAN, Dindigul, June 5th, 1898.

49. The South Indian Mitran, of the 5th June, attributes wholesale corruption among officers of all grades to the fact that the giver as well as the receiver of bribes is punished under the Act, and hopes that the authorities will adopt such measures as may seem best to them in view to enable the person who is forced to bribe an officer to bring to light the immoral character of the officer, without himself being brought into trouble later on.

Remarks on bribery.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 16th, 1898.

50. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th June, referring to the committee appointed for reporting on the Madras Tenancy Bill and the refusal of some of the native non-official members to stay at Ootacamund to attend the meetings of the Council and to the resolution of Government that official members should, nevertheless, submit their report on the Bill, remarks that the procedure on the part of His Excellency the Governor is very unjust, and exhorts the people to bestir themselves to memorialize the Parliament in view to have a redress of the grievance.

Remarks on the appointment of a committee to report on the Madras Tenancy Bill.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 23rd, 1898.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd June, thinks it highly desirable that the Madras Government should follow the example of the Bombay and Bengal Governments in prohibiting by an enactment the wholesale adulteration of articles of food on the part of the merchants of this Presidency, some of whom do not scruple to mix the fat of the pig with ghee and sell milk diluted with water to an enormous extent.

Desirability of preventing by an enactment adulteration of articles of food.

52. The same paper observes as follows:—The Madras Tenancy Bill has been referred for opinion to the Hon'ble Messrs. Bliss, Arundel, Crole and Forbes, who are all official members. How can the report submitted by these gentlemen be conducive to the good of the tenants and the zemindars? If a law is to be made as dictated by these gentlemen, why should Government take the trouble to bring the subject before the Legislative Council? We never dreamt that matters would take such a turn during the régime of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock. Even Sir Grant Duff would not have ventured to do such things. What an evil time is this! Alas! this state of things is unprecedented in the history of the Legislative Council! Cannot the official members of the Legislative Council come down to Madras to enable the four non-official native members who cannot afford to stay at Ootacamund to help them in their deliberations? It is necessary tha twe should telegraph to the British public each and every irregularity the Madras Government is guilty of, inasmuch as the Bill will cut short the rights and privileges of the zemindars. It is a pity that God has not blessed the zemindars with moral courage and patriotism while He has showered on them riches.

Remarks on the Madras Tenancy Bill being referred to a Select Committee consisting of official members only.

53. The Agnikulathithan, of the 28th May, writes as follows:—It is highly desirable that the second Appellate Court should consider propositions of fact as well as those of law to meet the ends of justice. It is much better to make the judgment of the Munsif's Court final instead of that of the first Appellate Court in respect of questions of fact, inasmuch as the Munsif's Court examines the parties in person and is therefore capable of deciding cases on their merits better than the first Appellate Court. It is a pity that section 584 of the Code of Civil Procedure tempts the first Appellate Court to abstain from framing issues of law in view to avoid its decision being reversed by the second Appellate Court. It is therefore earnestly hoped that the Viceregal Legislative Council at Calcutta will bestow due attention on this subject and so amend section 540 of the Code of Civil Procedure as to make it obligatory on the part of the second Appellate Court to take into consideration issues of fact as well.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, May 28th, 1898.

A suggestion to amend section 540 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

54. The Andhraprakasika, of the 25th June, speaking of the condition of the zemindari ryots in this Presidency, opines that the Tenancy Bill now under the consideration of the Government will prove a success, if provision be made for the occupancy right of the ryot, for the recovery of rent by the landlord without the necessity of resorting to law courts, for the free and unfettered exercise of rights of ownership by the landlord and for bringing about a feeling of good understanding between the landlord and the tenant.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 25th, 1898.

"Condition of zemindari ryots."

55. The Sasilekha, of the 24th June, says that it has been resolved that the "Government Members"—the Hon'ble Messrs. Bliss, Crole, Arundel and Forbes—should meet, consult and draft the report on the Tenancy Bill without any assistance from the representatives of the people or of the zemindars. There is not the least chance of the report being favourable to the zemindars and the ryots. If Government is to pass Acts disregarding altogether the opinions of the representatives of the people, the intelligent people may infer for themselves what little good there is from the Legislative Council and from the representative members. The people would never have thought even in their dreams that such a great injustice would have taken place in the régime of "our Governor" Sir Arthur Havelock. The passing of an Act on the report dawn by a Select Committee with not even a single representative of the people, is unprecedented in the administration of the British Government. It is only now in the régime of this "our Governor" Sir Arthur Havelock that such a thing as this has commenced. The paper trusts that all the zemindars in the Presidency would convene a large meeting at Madras on the subject of this unjust course of action contemplated by the Government in respect to the Bill that is being framed to annihilate their rights and communicate their opinions to Parliament and thus save themselves. Though our zemindars are wealthy, their lack of knowledge and patriotism brings all these calamities upon them. The zemindars should hasten to explain to Parliament and obtain from it an order postponing the consideration of the draft Bill till the return of the Government from the Nilgiris.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 24th, 1898.

The Legislative Council.

56. The Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd June, desires that, in amending the Madras Tenancy Bill, the Government will welcome the objections of the various classes whose interests are thereby affected, by referring the Bill to such gentlemen as have got experience in the matter, or ask the non-official members of the Legislative Council to meet and submit, before the Select Committee sends in its report, a memorandum of amendments, proposed and passed at their meetings. If neither of the proposals be acceptable to Government, nothing is so good as to quietly submit to what the Government may do at its pleasure, inasmuch as there is no use in discussing the measure in writing. But as there are no circumstances calling for a hurried legislation of the sort and as Government has given promises in certain places to deeply and leisurely consider the representations of the people and then pass the Bill, it prays that Government will consider the Bill more leisurely before passing it.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 22nd, 1898.

The Madras Tenancy Bill.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, June 20th, 1898.

The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 20th June, requests Government to pass the Tenancy Bill into law after a careful and due consideration, otherwise, it says, the relations between landlords and tenants will suffer because of conflicting interests.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 23rd, 1898.

Reflections on the Madras Tenancy Bill.

57. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd June, regrets that, owing to the inability of the four non-official members to attend the meetings, at Ootacamund, of the Select Committee in connection with the Madras Tenancy Bill, the people of the country, for whose benefit the Bill is intended, have not been properly represented. The article deems it very unfortunate that the Government did not think it necessary to discuss such an important Bill in Madras.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 11th, 1898.

Remarks on the Legislative Council of the Native State of Travancore.

58. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th June, writes:—It is to be regretted that the Legislative Council of the Native State of Travancore is not what it ought to be. We have noticed many a case in which the members of the Legislative Council of His Highness the Maharaja of Travancore were utterly incapable of legislating in such a way as to dispel the gloom of superstition that envelops that Native State. Nothing seems to be more anomalous to us than a new amendment of the Indian Penal Code proposed by Mr. Thanu Pillai, the Chief Secretary to the Native State of Travancore, that Brahmins should be exempted from capital punishment even when they are convicted of the heinous offence of murder, on the score that they are holy. It is an admitted fact that capital punishment was not inflicted on Brahmins in times of yore, inasmuch as they were not as a rule found guilty of murder. This was due more or less to the circumstance that Brahmins of former days were of high order and possessed tender feelings. So long as the Brahmins of the present day are not the Brahmins of the by-gone days, it is but just and proper that the same law should apply to all the classes alike in these days. As no civilized nation will ever pardon a murderer, it is earnestly hoped that the Government of Madras will step in to set matters right in the State of Travancore, which seems to be subject to the shackles of superstition.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Devakóttai, June 16th, 1898.

Advisability of encouraging the vernaculars in the several Native States.

59. The Vijayathvajam, of the 16th June, dwelling at length on the pitiable plight to which the several vernaculars of this country have been reduced in consequence of English being the language of the British Government, exhorts the princes and chiefs of the various Native States to transact their business in their own vernaculars and confer high appointments on men that possess creditable attainments in the vernaculars in view to prevent the gradual extinction of those languages.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, June 15th, 1898.

The Mysore Government found fault with for not encouraging native medicine.

60. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 15th June, complains that in these days of English education no encouragement is given to the practice of native medicine, and thinks that it is the duty of Native States to see that the ancient science of India is not lost altogether. Mr. Ramachendra Iyer, a Judge of the Chief Court of Mysore, established an hospital for the practice of native medicine in Bangalore and maintained it for upwards of three years at his own cost, but as the Government of the State did not lend him a helping hand to make it a permanent institution, he has thought fit to withdraw his help and the institution, which had been doing immense good to the suffering people, has been allowed to die.

61. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th June, finds fault with the heads of offices in Mysore for disregarding the claims of the men already in their establishments in filling up vacancies that occur from time to time in their offices. These officials, the paper says, generally import outsiders sometimes to please their superiors by entertaining men recommended by them, at other times to induce their brother officials to admit their own relatives in return for giving places to men recommended by those gentlemen. No one is actuated by considerations of justice or impartiality or the requirements of Government service in the distribution of patronage. In some places are to be found men ignorant of Canarese as Canarese munshis, and men who know nothing of revenue matters doing the work of revenue munshis. Such anomalies, the paper says, ought to be put an end to.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, June 27th, 1898.

Favouritism and jobbery in Mysore Government offices.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

62. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th June, observes as follows:—We regret to hear that the House of Commons has sanctioned the grant of a loan of 100 millions of pounds at the instance of the Financial Member of the Government of India, with the avowed object of enabling the Government of India to liquidate the debt already contracted, to open additional railways in India and to have in reserve a certain sum for the purpose of meeting emergent expenses. It is indeed very strange to note that the Financial Member, who six months ago spoke with vehemence on the prosperity of India and asserted that there was no necessity for England to help India with loan, should speak now in a different strain. Had money been spent more economically in respect of the Frontier wars there would not have been this necessity for borrowing 100 millions of pounds on this occasion. The more Government borrows the greater is the suffering on the part of the people. Government has levied ever so many new taxes and raised the old ones, has had no time to adopt the necessary measures to redress the grievances of its subjects, and has reduced to a considerable extent the sums used to be spent on the spread of education and sanitary reforms. It is a pity that in spite of such a disagreeable state of things Lord George Hamilton and Sir Henry Fowler are of opinion that a time of prosperity for India has set in. It is to be regretted that, since the acquisition of Burma, Government has enhanced the tax on salt, kerosine-oil and piece-goods, and that it has raised land-tax to the extent of five crores within a space of twenty years. No one who has correctly understood the real condition of India can agree with Lord George Hamilton in his opinion about the condition of this country. That a portion of the amount to be borrowed will be utilised in the extension of railways is certain. We earnestly hope that the amount intended to be utilised in that direction will be spent in the improvement of canals, tanks, rivers and wells, which would be of substantial help to the ryots, who form the bulk of the population of this country, and at the same time a timely relief to the poor labourers.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 11th, 1898.

Reflections on the contemplated loan for the benefit of India.

63. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th June, suggests to Government the desirability of translating into various vernacular languages and publishing for general information the recent order of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief that any soldier found guilty of hunting without the necessary permit shall be tried before a court-martial and deservedly punished on conviction, and thinks that such a publication will restore to the masses peace of mind regarding the conduct of the soldiers. The paper adds that it is absolutely necessary to publish also the kind of punishment awarded to the soldiers concerned in the serious cases which reached the ears of Parliament.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 16th, 1898.

Desirability of publishing an order of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and the kind of punishment awarded to the soldiers concerned in the cases which reached the ears of Parliament.

Sasilekha, Madras, June 21st, 1898.

"The Government of India borrowing."

64. The Sasilekha, of the 21st June, notes that the Secretary of State for India has obtained the sanction of Parliament for raising, on behalf of the India Government, a loan of one crore (ten millions) of pounds sterling. The discharge of certain standing debts shortly to fall due, the extension of railways and the holding of a reserve fund against contingencies, were stated to be the threefold object of this enormous loan. In moving for the loan, Lord George Hamilton said in the Parliament—and he was supported by Sir Henry Fowler—that the present condition of India was prosperous, owing to the favourable rate of exchange and increased revenue collections. On another occasion, notes the paper, Lord George represented that India had boundless wealth and that there was no necessity for a subsidy, which Parliament was prepared to vote for India. But he now says that certain old debts have to be discharged by contracting a new one. Lord George Hamilton is thus constantly at variance with himself on Indian affairs in Parliament. How could a man be said to be rich, asks the paper, if he had to contract new debts to pay off old ones. If the Indian minister had accepted the Parliamentary grant three months ago, there would have been no necessity now for raising this loan. It observes that the Government of India has been carrying on the administration with borrowed money only and that it has been unable for want of funds to carry out measures for the benefit of schools, and public works, and for the improvement of sanitation. It regrets that it has been a regular programme with the Government to plead poverty when works of public utility have to be undertaken, to waste millions of money on useless and unnecessary wars, and thereupon to raise enormous loans in England. Various kinds of taxes have been imposed within the last 15 years, but they have in no way been conducive to the welfare of the people. The taxes levied, says the paper, on the very necessaries of human existence, salt, cotton goods and kerosine oil for instance, are wasted on wars waged in hills and dens. The condition of the country being such, it prays that a portion at least of the ten million pounds now to be borrowed might be utilised for works calculated to promote the welfare of the people of India.

Mysore Star, Mysore, June 15th, 1898.

Precautions against plague.

65. The Mysore Star, of the 15th June, after recounting the various drastic measures adopted in Sholapur last year to stamp out the plague, thinks that the measures adopted by the Government to prevent the invasion of plague in any city are all intended for the good of the people, and concludes by saying that no city need fear the plague except those where cow-killing is extensively carried on.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 13 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th July 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| The late wars on the frontiers .. .. .. .. | 203 |
| The probabilities of a Russian invasion of India .. .. | ib. |
| Remarks on Mr. Thorburn's speech at Simla .. .. | ib. |
| The forward policy .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The frontier war and the Indian troops .. .. .. | 204 |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| The resolution of the Visagapatam conference concerning police administration .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Desirability of having an Appellate Court to review the judgments of the Lower Courts in all criminal cases .. | ib. |
| "A negligent act" .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| The administration of jails .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Irregularities in the Cannanore jail .. .. .. | 205 |
| The innocent among the warders of the Cannanore Central Jail not to be transferred .. .. .. | ib. |
| (d) Education— | |
| Nil. | |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Remarks on the publication in the Fort St. George Gazette of a notification by the Revenue officer, Madras Municipal Commission .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Some objections to the appointment of Mr. Appasawmi Vandayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality .. | ib. |
| Remarks on the unsatisfactory state of the public health [illegible] the City of Madras .. .. .. .. .. | 206 |
| Remarks on the appointment of Mr. V. Appasawmi Vandayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality by the councillors .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The resolutions of the Visagapatam District Conference concerning local self-government .. .. .. | ib. |
| The unsatisfactory condition of the municipality of the Civil and Military station, Bangalore .. .. .. | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Remarks on the Forest administration report of 1897 .. | 207 |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Desirability of issuing tickets [half an hour] before the arrival of the train .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Another Deputy Collector also to be appointed for land acquisition for railway purposes .. .. .. | ib. |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Grievances of the ryots of the taluk of Satyamangalam, Coimbatore district .. .. .. .. .. | 207 |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Remarks on the miserable condition of the petty village officers .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 208 |
| A suggestion to reform the present money order system. | ib. |
| The Treasury Deputy Collector, Cocanada .. .. | ib. |
| The post office .. .. .. .. .. .. | 209 |
| Water-supply and sanitation, Simla .. .. .. | ib. |
| Jamahandi .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Delivery of letters by village postmen to be better regulated .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Village officers and their petition .. .. .. | ib. |
| Clerks on pay of 15 rupees per month not allowed travelling allowance .. .. .. .. .. .. | 210 |
| Unjust and inexplicable transfers of hospital assistants. | ib. |
| The camp bazaar stamp vendor remiss in his duties .. | ib. |
| Carelessness of postmen .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The postmen of Chowghat remiss in their duties .. | ib. |
| The bad condition of roads in Cannanore .. .. | ib. |
| Sale of obscene books .. .. .. .. .. | 211 |
| Sowcars and mortgagors .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Mr. Gladstone's funeral .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Advisability of conferring on the people the privilege of electing members to the union, taluk and district boards. | ib. |
| Cotton trade in Bellary .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Reflections on the Malabar Testamentary Act .. .. | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| The Pangalore water-supply .. .. .. .. .. | 212 |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Nil. | |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Remarks on the conduct of the Hon'ble Sir George Moore, President, Municipal Commission, Madras .. .. | ib. |
| Desirability of allowing the people to adopt the necessary measures to ward off the plague .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Certain suggestions to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The intrigues of Anglo-Indian journalists .. .. .. | ib. |
| Exhorting the people of Malabar to contribute towards the Congress fund .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 213 |
| A case of doubtful conversion to Muhammadanism .. .. | ib. |
| Our next Governor-General .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Gnana Chandrika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 1,200 | May 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Sukha Jivani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 300 | 1st and 15th July 1898. |
| 3 | "Gnanodayam" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 1st July 1898. |
| 4 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th July 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 2nd, 9th and 16th July 1898. |
| 7 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 2nd and 9th July 1898. |
| 8 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 9 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 4th ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| 10 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 24th and 30th June and 8th July 1898. |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 500 | 4th and 11th July 1898. |
| 12 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 2nd ,, 9th ,, ,, |
| 13 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 1st July 1898. |
| 14 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 27th June and 4th July 1898. |
| 15 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 26th ,, ,, 3rd ,, ,, |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 16 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 25th, 28th and 30th June and 2nd, 5th, 7th, 9th, and 12th July 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 17 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 384 | June 1898. |
| 18 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | July ,, |
| 19 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakur .. .. .. | 100 | ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 2nd and 9th July 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 1st, 5th, 8th and 12th July 1898. |
| 22 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 2nd, 6th, 9th and 13th ,, ,, |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 4th and 11th July 1898. |
| 24 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 2nd ,, 9th ,, ,, |
| 25 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 1st, 8th and 15th July 1898. |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 30th June and 7th and 14th July 1898. |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 29th ,, ,, 6th ,, 13th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Karnataka Kesari" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | .. | 8th and 11th July 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 29 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 600 | 25th June 1898. |
| 30 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 3rd July ,, |
| 31 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 30th June ,, |
| 32 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 1st July ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 33 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 25th June and 2nd July 1898. |
| 34 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 4th July 1898. |
| 35 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 29th June and 6th July 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 2nd and 9th July 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 37 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 4th, 8th and 11th July 1898. |
| 38 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 2nd July 1898. |
| 39 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 3rd and 11th July 1898. |
| 40 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 5th July 1898. |
| 41 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 11th and 20th July 1898. |
| 42 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 19th March and 8th July 1898. |
| 43 | "Mukhannin-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 300 | April and May 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th July, after giving an account of the debate on the frontier wars in Simla following the lecture by Colonel Hutchinson, says:—Every word uttered by Mr. Thorburn was true. Money has been thrown away on the frontier that was badly wanted in India, money wrung from the ryots, and all for nothing. The tribesmen are as troublesome as ever, and the campaign has been of no use whatever. They would be ready to fight again should the occasion present itself, and thus it would be seen how foolishly the Government had acted. We feel sure the debate would do much good. It will show the people at home that not only do the mass of the people think that these frontier wars are useless, but that high officials of Government are of the same opinion.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 4th, 1898.

The late wars on the frontiers.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 11th July, says:—Herat is the key to India, and the English seeing its importance made war with the Amir twelve years ago and having extorted permission from him fortified the place after their own fashion, and since then have been making unwearied efforts to subdue the frontier tribes in the hope of making Afghanistan instead of India the battle-field with the Russians. But they have not yet succeeded in making a safe passage through the mountainous country between India and Afghanistan, while the Russians have come dangerously close to Herat. If for some cause or other hostilities should break out between Russia and England, the Russians can easily take Herat, and it would be very difficult to dislodge them from it. The Russian influence is increasing in Persia, and should they succeed in getting a sea-port in that country, their power would become irresistible. Their recent acquisitions in China have made the English beg for more territory from the Chinese Government for the safety of Hongkong. France, Germany and Russia are all looking for an opportunity to grapple with the English for the possession of their Eastern dominion.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 11th, 1898.

The probabilities of a Russian invasion of India.

3. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 9th July, characterises Mr. Thorburn's speech at Simla as fully representing the views of the people at large as evidenced by the cheers and applause with which the speech was received. The speech dwelt upon the omission on the part of Colonel Hutchinson to discuss the unnecessary expenditure to the Government entailed by the frontier war. The impressment of men and cattle from the Punjab, the consequent injury to the crops and the still defiant attitude of the Afridis are all touched upon. The article hopes that this discussion of the Government policy with respect to the frontier war and the Tirah expedition will not prove unavailing and declares that the gratitude of the people is due to Mr. Thorburn.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, July 9th, 1898.

Remarks on Mr. Thorburn's speech at Simla.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 4th July, inserts translation of a letter alleged to be written by a native of Pondicherry in condemnation of the forward policy and published in the Crescent of Liverpool, of which the following is an excerpt:—

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, July 4th, 1898.

The forward policy.

It is always the habit of the British to cross swords with their weak and imbecile foes, and they have sent their forces against the brave frontier tribesmen. This action has produced very serious results. The British lost money and precious lives. Many gallant soldiers were hacked to pieces and many European soldiers, Ghurkas and Sikhs were killed. Where now are the followers of Gladstone, who have been boasting of the invincibility of the British army? Now everybody knows its real worth. The Jirghas did not surrender their rifles to the British, but the British lost their rifles and paid money to the clans to keep peace.

With reference to the above letter, the Shams observes that it is ridiculous and is worthy of no credence. All the statements it contains are entirely unfounded. Had the clans been victorious they would not have fled from their native land of Tirah and left room for the British forces. In short, had the writer of the above letter passed some of his days in the British dominions, he would have then known the character of the British rule.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, July 7th, 1898.

5. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 7th July, mentions that though many thousands of rupees have been spent and many valuable lives lost in the late frontier war, yet the people of India have gained many advantages thereby. The Tirah campaign has proved to the British Government that if the Indian sepoys are not superior in bravery to the British soldiers, they are not inferior in this respect, and that they are not only brave but also faithful. These facts have raised them in the estimation of the people of England, who are now beginning to think about sending the Indian sepoys on an expedition to Africa and also to China for garrisoning Wai-hai-wai. A fund, called the Indian Heroes' Fund, has already been established for the benefit of the families of those sepoys who were killed on the frontier.

The frontier war and the Indian troops.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, July 9th, 1898.

6. Concerning the resolution of the conference on the subject of police administration, the Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 9th July, says:—The resolution contains excellent suggestions for a practical reform of the police administration of the Southern Presidency, and we think they merit the consideration of the Government.

The resolution of the Vizagapatam conference concerning police administration.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 30th, 1898.

7. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th June, regrets to observe that the parties are put to no small inconvenience in consequence of the judgments of the Lower Courts being often reversed by the Appellate Courts owing to the highly elastic nature of the existing enactments, and suggests the desirability of having an Appellate Court to revise the judgments of the Lower Courts in all criminal cases, as the existence of such a court is felt to be absolutely necessary in the interest of the poor accused.

Desirability of having an Appellate Court to review the judgments of the Lower Courts in all criminal cases.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, July 13th, 1898.

8. The Andhraprakasika, of the 13th July, referring to the case in which a bricklayer named Periathambi Nayakan was punished by the Chief Presidency Magistrate with a fine of Rs. 100 or rigorous imprisonment for two months for the death of a child of six years old, caused by the fall of a door-frame which it was alleged he had carelessly fixed, suggests a comparison of this case with the Poona Bund Garden case, and remarks that the sentence pronounced upon the bricklayer is excessively severe. It further opines that the fall of the door-frame should be adjudged a mere accident, especially so, when in the other case the European accused was acquitted by a majority of European jurors, pronouncing the grave offence, he was charged with, an accident. As the sentence is too severe, the paper thinks that the High Court should send for the records of the case and take it up in revision.

"A negligent act."

(c) Jails.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 5th, 1898.

9. The Sasilekha, of the 5th July, noting that certain changes were introduced into the administration of jails by Mr. A. G. Cardew, the Inspector-General of Jails, refers to his observation that when rains fail and the price of food-grains rises, the poor of the people by stealing or committing other offences

The administration of jails.

find their way into jails in greater proportions than at other times, and asserts that in India there are more people who would like to live by honest labour than those who do by robbing others. It invokes the Government and the rich zamindars of the country to establish cotton mills and other industries, and thus procure work for the people all the year long so that crime may be checked.

Irregularities in the Cannanore jail.

10. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th June, disapproves of the manner in which certain irregularities on the part of some of the warders of the Cannanore Central Jail were dealt with. The departmental punishment inflicted by the Superintendent of the jail on the warders in question was based on the evidence of a certain convict of Mangalore which was supplemented by that of certain other prisoners, some warders and the registered letter, from Mangalore, written by a relation of the convict who is alleged to have given the bribe to the warders. These warders appealed to the Inspector-General of Prisons against the Superintendent's order with the result that their punishment was cancelled and that those who gave evidence were punished. The article says that the action of the Superintendent in letting off the bribe-giver, who is also liable to punishment, and in awarding only departmental punishments to the guilty warders is objectionable. The article hears that the transfer of all the warders is under consideration which, if true, is very unjust. A re-consideration of the whole matter is therefore recommended, so that the guilty may properly be punished.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 29th, 1898.

The innocent among the warders of the Cannanore Central Jail not to be transferred.

11. A correspondent to the Manorama, of the 4th July, disapproves of the proposed wholesale transfer of the Cannanore Central Jail warders as such a measure is a great hardship to the innocent among them. The irregularities complained of have been found to be due to a want of careful supervision on the part of the Jail officers. It was on this ground that the punishment inflicted on the head warder by the Jail Superintendent was cancelled by the Inspector-General of Prisons. The proposed transfer, therefore, is sure to entail much misery upon the poor innocent low-salaried warders and it is hoped that they will not be punished along with the guilty.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 4th, 1898.

(e) Local and Municipal.

Remarks on the publication in the Fort St. George Gazette of a notification by the Revenue officer, Madras Municipal Commission.

12. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd July, referring to the notification of the Revenue officer, Madras Municipal Commission, published in the Fort St. George Gazette to the effect that no appeal against the valuation and assessment of buildings and lands for the year 1898–99 will be received after the 18th July 1898, observes that the publication of the notification in the Fort St. George Gazette is not enough to make it known to all the rate-payers of the city of Madras, as most of them are not likely to have access to and understand the notification published in English, and suggests the desirability of giving the notification sufficient publicity by getting it read out in the various vernacular languages by beat of tom-tom.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 2nd, 1898.

Some objections to the appointment of Mr. Appasawmi Vandayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality.

13. The Jananukulan, of the 2nd July, strongly objects to the appointment of Mr. V. Appasawmi Vandayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality on the grounds that he generally resides in the village of Pundi, which is outside the limits of the Tanjore municipality, that he is too young to be entrusted with the onerous duties of a chairman, that he is involved in debt, that he was found guilty of a malpractice some years ago at the Matriculation examination of the University of Madras, that he has been a defaulter in the payment of his dues to the Tanjore municipality, and that he deliberately permitted encroachments on public lands. The paper requests Government to bear in mind these facts before it proceeds to approve of the appointment of Mr. Appasawmi Vandayar as chairman made by the councillors.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 2nd, 1898.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, July 9th, 1898.

14. The Vikata Dutan, of the 9th July, regrets to remark that the public health in the city of Madras has been impaired very much of late, and gives out the following as being the main reasons for such a state of things:—

Remarks on the unsatisfactory state of the public health in the city of Madras.

(1) Municipal servants are negligent in the discharge of their duties.
(2) The various localities in which the poor live in cottages are devoid of drainage.
(3) Public latrines are not kept sufficiently clean.
(4) Dust-bins are placed close to the doorways of dwelling-houses.

The paper hopes that the Municipal authorities of the city of Madras will bestow the necessary attention on these points.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 9th, 1898.

15. The Jananukulan, of the 9th July, alluding to the circumstance that fourteen councillors of the Tanjore municipality voted in favour of Mr. V. Appasawmi Vandayar's appointment as chairman, regrets to remark that ten among them are ignorant of the English language and of the Municipal Act, and refers to a number of instances in which Mr. Appasawmi Vandayar was found guilty of misconduct and neglect of duty in his transactions with one C. V. R. M. Raman Chetti, a toll-gate contractor of the municipality. The paper requests Government to bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

Remarks on the appointment of Mr. V. Appasawmi Vandayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality by the councillors.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, July 9th, 1898.

16. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 9th July, in giving an account of the proceedings of the Vizagapatam District Conference, approves of all the resolutions and specially commends to the attention of Government the resolutions concerning local self-government, the Tenancy Bill, and police administration. On the first of these the paper mentions the following as the defects of the present system in the constitution and working of the district boards, viz., (1) that a disproportionately large number of seats on the board is filled by Europeans to the exclusion of the representatives of the cess-payers; (2) that the systematic re-nomination of the same persons has led to the practical exclusion of persons better qualified to take part in local administration; (3) that the proportion of the official element is unduly raised by the election of revenue officials as members; (4) that the provisions in the Act regarding the introduction of the elective system have remained a dead letter; (5) that the district as well as taluk boards have no vice-presidents. The paper then goes on to remark thus:—The provisions of an enactment which has now been in force for seventeen years have been ignored or set aside in a manner which does but little credit to the administration of the Presidency during the long period the Act has been in force. It would have been all the same had there been no enactment in existence. Again the matter of elementary education in the mofussil districts is neglected by the devoting of half the revenue to the opening out and maintenance of communications to the utter exclusion of any aid to education.

The resolutions of the Vizagapatam District Conference concerning local self-government.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 11th, 1898.

17. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 11th July, speaking first of local self-government in general, remarks that local self-government has not hitherto made any great headway in India, and assigns as the cause of this the reluctance of the officials to allow any power to go out of their own hands. They think, says the editor, that it detracts from their dignity to allow the representatives of the rate-payers to have any voice in the affairs of the place in which they reside and which it is their interest to keep in good condition sanitarily and in other ways. The article then goes on to speak of the state of things in the Civil and Military station of Bangalore, where, it says, the President, a Civil Servant, is determined to keep all power to himself. At the last meeting a resolution was brought forward to have a full-time President instead of one with a number of other duties. The municipality is quite prepared to pay the salary of such an official. One would have thought that the President would have welcomed the change as it would have relieved him of such responsibility, but he did not see the matter in this light. The majority voted with him, for they were afraid to vote against him because he was a Magistrate and Collector, and they were, some of them, brewers whose licenses could be cancelled by the Collector, others were lawyers who had to appear before him in his capacity as District Magistrate. The article then points out that the sanitation of the city is very bad, and in parts of it the death-rate is 71 per thousand. All sorts of schemes have been devised from patent latrines to new fangled rat-traps, but the place instead of improving is steadily deteriorating. Half the income of the municipality is spent on sanitation and yet no good result is seen. It is therefore plain that a large portion of the money is wasted. The public works are starved. The editor therefore calls upon the Resident to interfere and send away the President and appoint another who can devote all his time to his duties.

The unsatisfactory condition of the municipality of the Civil and Military station, Bangalore.

(g) Forests.

18. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th June, referring to the administration report of the Forest department for the year 1897, regrets to observe that the cases preferred against the inhabitants by the officers of the Forest department and the income under that head during the year under report were much in excess of those during the year preceding, and that the Board of Revenue has not explained to Government the cause of the excess, and is surprised to note that no substantial good has resulted from the order of Government that in dealing with the offences under the Forest Act great sympathy should be shown. The paper is sorry to observe that the income derived from the levy of fees on grazing grounds during the year under review by far exceeded that of the previous year in spite of the order of Government that the authorities should allow the use of forest lands as grazing grounds gratis in consideration of drought, and concludes with the remark that it is unjust on the part of the authorities to have levied excessive fees on grazing grounds against the distinct order of Government to the contrary.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 25th, 1898.

Remarks on the Forest administration report of 1897.

(h) Railways.

19. The Lokopakari, of the 30th June, suggests to the Railway authorities the desirability of beginning to issue tickets half an hour, instead of five minutes, before the time for the arrival of trains, in view to enable the passengers to buy their tickets at the booking office leisurely without any inconvenience to themselves, as the Railway authorities lose little or nothing by such an arrangement, while it is highly advantageous to the public.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 30th, 1898.

Desirability of issuing tickets half an hour before the arrival of the train.

20. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th June, makes the suggestion that, in consideration of the slow progress in the work of acquisition of land for railway purposes, another Deputy Collector may be appointed in addition to Mr. Rama Rao who is unable to cope with the work, notwithstanding his conscientious discharge of duties, his regular supervision of the revenue inspector's work and his hard-working habits.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 29th, 1898.

Another Deputy Collector also to be appointed for land acquisition for railway purposes.

(i) Public Works.

21. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th June, writes as follows:—The water of the branch canal locally known as the Singappan channel, which has been irrigating fields to the extent of 450 acres of land in the taluk of Satyamangalam, Coimbatore district, has been utilised by the ryots for raising nunjai crops. As the ryots have been paying irrigation cess as well as land assessment and village cess in respect of the lands irrigated by the water of the said channel, Government is in duty bound to have the necessary repairs of the channel effected at its own cost. It is to be regretted that the acting tahsildar of the taluk issued a notice to the ryots requiring them to build troughs, apparently at their own cost, in front of the sluice of the said channel as directed by the maniyamdar or some other officer appointed for the purpose, and giving them to understand that water would not be let out for purposes of cultivation before the completion of such works. It is a piece of injustice to saddle the poor ryots with this work which ought to be done by Government itself. The difficulties attending the execution of such a work when petty officers on low salary are entrusted with it can be better imagined than described, while the tahsildar himself without the aid of an engineer is incapable of getting the work completed satisfactorily, inasmuch as many a dispute will arise among the ryots during the construction of the troughs. Are not the ryots who do not obey the directions of the tahsildar entitled to the use of the water of the channel? Look at the wretched plight to which the ryots have been reduced. It is earnestly hoped that the Collector and the higher authorities will redress the grievances of the poor ryots ere long, as the seedlings are fading away without supply of water, and as the season for cultivation is fast expiring.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 28th, 1898.

Grievances of the ryots of the taluk of Satyamangalam, Coimbatore district.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 2nd, 1898.

Remarks on the miserable condition of the petty village officers.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd July, observes as follows:—The difficulties undergone by the petty village officers employed for the purpose of collecting the Circar dues can be better imagined than described. Their pay ranges only from Rs. 2 to 5, whereas their duties are onerous. They have to submit innumerable reports, and supply themselves at their own cost with the necessary stationery articles. They are obliged to go to the taluk cutcherries at least twice a month, and to supply the tahsildars and other revenue officers with the necessary articles of food when they visit their villages, and must pay the cost of such articles from out of their poor earnings if the revenue officers do not pay for them. It is but just and proper that the pay of these village officers should be raised, that they should be supplied with the necessary stationery articles, that they should not be required to attend the taluk cutcherries too often, that they should be paid batta whenever they are required to do so, and that the revenue officers while they are on circuit should be directed to supply themselves with the necessary articles at their own cost, money being paid in advance.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, July 9th, 1898.

A suggestion to reform the present money order system.

23. The Vikata Dutan, of the 9th July, condemns the present money order system by which small amounts of money orders such as four annas and eight annas are charged at the rate of two annas the commission for a money order for Rs. 10, and regrets to remark that persons wishing to remit sums below Rs. 10 enclose in their letters, at their risk, stamps against the rules of the Postal department, in view to avoid payment of a commission of two annas for such petty sums. The paper suggests the desirability of adopting the money order system that obtains in Italy, by which a person wishing to remit four annas to some one elsewhere is allowed to purchase stamps for four annas and paste them on a post-card and hand it over to the postal authorities, and the postal authority of the place to which the card is directed has to send four annas to the addressee while delivering the card to him.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 1st, 1898.

The Treasury Deputy Collector, Cocanada.

24. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 1st July, referring to the sanction given by the Treasury Deputy Collector at Cocanada to Messrs. Ibrahim Suliman & Co. for the exportation of 20,000 bags of rice from their own wharf allowing the Superintendent of Sea Customs to examine the same there instead of the bags being weighed and exported from the customs house, and to the subsequent refusal of the same privilege to Mr. V. Ramaraju to export 15,000 bags of paddy in the same way, asks whether it is not unjust to give such privilege only to those who buy grain of Messrs. Innes & Co., and not to those who buy of others. He is at a loss to understand the cause of such procedure on the part of the Treasury Deputy Collector, and wishes that the higher authorities will inquire into the matter.

The post office.

25. A correspondent to the same paper, alluding to the custom of requiring all the servants of the post office drawing Rs. 10 and above a month to pay one rupee and all those drawing less than Rs. 10 to pay 8 annas in the month of July every year, in order to make good any loss the public may sustain through any postal servants, asks whether it is lawful to wrench money from all servants of the office indiscriminately, disregarding their innocence, instead of trying to realise it all from those who have actually caused such damage. He opines that in case the culprit pleads inability to make good the loss, it would be greatly becoming if the Government which takes commission should make it good instead of making all the honest servants suffer for the dishonesty of one.

Water-supply and sanitation, Simla.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, July 9th, 1898.

26. The Andhraprakasika, of the 9th July, says that the people of Simla propose that the India Government should grant 20 lakhs of rupees, the estimated cost of the water-supply for, and sanitary arrangements in, Simla, and remarks that, though it is easy to note that the intellect of the residents of the cool climate in Simla is dulled, it is inscrutable with what right they make such a heavy demand, and with what justice they want to make an indent of 20 lakhs of rupees on the India Government which in sooth is the Indian public. When the people's money has already been so much wasted over Simla, it is quite unjust that 20 lakhs more should be demanded from out of the public treasury. The paper suggests that if money is urgently needed a loan should be raised and a tax imposed on the Simla people for its liquidation, instead of throwing such an enormous weight of debt on the Indian public.

Jamabandi.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 5th, 1898.

27. The Sasilekha, of the 5th July, says that Mr. Vaughan as Collector conducted the jamabandi of Kadiri, himself staying with his family at Madanapalle but keeping the Huzur servants at Kadiri. The jamabandi of Kadiri taluk itself continued for three months and there was no remonstrance from the Revenue Board or from the Government. The paper has no doubt that if a Deputy Collector conducted his work similarly he could not have escaped with such impunity. It further notes that the jamabandi of Madanapalle and Kadiri taluks gave much dissatisfaction to the people.

Delivery of letters by village postmen to be better regulated.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 25th, 1898.

28. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th June, complains that the delivery as a rule of letters, newspapers, etc., in amsams is not carried out by village postmen, only such communications and articles sent by post as require the signature of the addressees being delivered by them. Even letters sent by "Bearing" post are destroyed by these postmen who, to avoid the trouble of going to the amsams, pay out the postages due from the addressees, from their own pocket. The article considers it necessary to entertain more hands than there are at present and to sanction, at an early date, the much-needed addition to their pay. A suggestion is also made that signatures of the addressees or other competent persons of their household must be obtained in a tappal book by village postmen as evidence of the delivery of letters, newspapers, etc. The authenticity of these signatures must be verified by comparison of the signatures by postmasters once a week and by the inspector once a month. The attention of the Postal authorities and the Government is invited to the matter.

Village officers and their petition.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 6th, 1898.

29. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 6th July, concurs with the Hindu in the latter's disapproval of the Malabar Collector's remarks that changes in the salaries of village officers can be conveniently made only at the close of the new settlement. The village officers are, all of them, low paid men and have to discharge many onerous duties; they have to go round and collect revenue from amsams, prepare different statements, present themselves twice or thrice a month in cutcherries at a distance of about 20 or 30 miles without any travelling allowance being given to them. They are not provided with stationery for their writing work; they are called upon to procure supplies for officers on circuit in the amsams. Adhikaries (village munsifs) are appointed in accordance with hereditary right, irrespective of the fact that old and affluent tarwads have now dwindled into poverty and insignificance. In these circumstances the editor thinks that some salutary changes in regard to the matter should be made at an early date.

Clerks on pay of 15 rupees per month not allowed travelling allowance.

30. A leader in the same paper strongly disapproves of the Acting Malabar Collector's order that travelling allowance should not be given to clerks, on circuit, receiving a salary of 15 rupees a month. While sufficiently high-paid officials are granted travelling allowance, it is very unjust to withhold this concession from low-salaried clerks whose small pay is only just enough to maintain them. If the Collector is of opinion that such clerks should not draw extra and unnecessary allowance, it would only be fair that they be exempted from accompanying officers on circuit.

Unjust and inexplicable transfers of hospital assistants.

31. A leader in the same paper does not understand how the transfer of hospital assistants presents striking points of difference when compared with transfers in other departments of the service. Sometimes a hospital assistant posted in Cuddapah in January is transferred in February to Cannanore, to Belgaum in the next March, and to Madura in the next April. A hospital assistant who is put to great inconvenience thus has only to go to Madras once to obtain a permanent posting in a desired place. How this is effected the article is unable to see. Instances also are not few in which hospital assistants are not transferred from places in which they have been working for many years although, in accordance with a certain Government order on the subject, such permanent retention is not to be allowed. The article expresses its surprise that the attention of the authorities concerned has not as yet been directed to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 9th, 1898.

The camp bazaar stamp vendor remiss in his duties.

32. A Cannanore correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 9th July, complains that owing to the absence from his shop of the stamp vendor near the camp bazaar, the people living in the neighbouring amsams are put to great inconvenience and invites the attention of the tahsildar and the other authorities concerned to the matter.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 3rd, 1898.

Carelessness of postmen.

33. A paragraph in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 3rd July, hears that complaints against postmen in petty interior towns are often justly made and invites, therefore, the attention of the inspectors of post offices to the matter.

The postmen of Chowghat remiss in their duties.

34. A correspondent writes to the same issue of the paper from Chowghat that owing to the negligence of the postmen of the place in the matter of delivering letters and money orders, people are put to great inconvenience. The postmaster of the place not being well conversant with the Malayalam language, the postman attached to the office is enabled to have his own way in the delivery of letters and articles by post to the people at large.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 9th, 1898.

The bad condition of roads in Cannanore.

35. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 9th July, makes mention of the evil effects of the "A system" contract on roads in Cannanore, and hopes that the bad condition of the road leading vid Chalat to Baliapatam—for the repairs of which a sum of Rs. 300 has been sanctioned—will receive the attention of the contractor in time.

36. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 4th July, writes that the manager of Messrs. Thacker & Co., booksellers, has been brought to book for having sold obscene works, and observes that the destruction of such books and pictures is indispensable, for all (whether males or females) are likely to be demoralized by possessing them.

Sale of obscene books.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, July 4th, 1898.

37. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 20th June, quotes an article from a local English contemporary in which the attention of the Government of India is directed towards the absolute necessity of passing such a measure as would facilitate the redemption of the mortgaged property, and observes that the present system of mortgage is ruinous, inasmuch as dishonest sowcars, who lend money, sell mortgaged jewels or moveable property at half their real value, whenever any mortgagor fails to pay either the principal or interest for some months, and sometimes it so happens that sowcars give articles of less value in return for the mortgaged articles. The Qasim appeals strongly to Government to pass such a measure as would compel the sowcars to acknowledge receipt of the articles mortgaged in a document specifying their weight and their approximate value.

Sowcars and mortgagors.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, June 20th, 1898.

38. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 7th July, writing of the estimation in which Mr. Gladstone was held by the British Government, says that at the funeral ceremony of Admiral Lord Nelson, forty thousand pounds sterling were spent by the British Government. His coffin, which was made of the mast of a French ship taken in war, was followed by the seven sons of the then King of England. Even greater honour was shown to the body of the Duke of Wellington, for whose funeral ceremony nearly one hundred thousand pounds were spent. Whereas only two thousand pounds were spent in the funeral ceremony of Mr. Gladstone. This shows the estimation in which he was held by the Government.

Mr. Gladstone's funeral.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, July 7th, 1898.

III.—Legislation.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th July, referring to the stout refusal on the part of the official members of the Select Committee appointed to report on the Local Boards Bill to grant the people the privilege of electing members to the union, taluk and district boards, when it was claimed by the Hon'ble Messrs. Jambulinga Mudaliyar and Ratnasabapathy Pillai, earnestly hopes that His Excellency the Governor will be graciously pleased to grant the privilege in question, when the Bill is to be brought before the Legislative Council for disposal, in consideration of the fact that Government is on the whole pleased with the municipal administration of this Presidency and that the Hindus are capable of managing with success a gigantic institution like the Mahajana Sabha.

Advisability of conferring on the people the privilege of electing members to the union, taluk and district boards.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 5th, 1898.

40. The Sasilekha, of the 5th July, says that the cotton merchants in the district of Bellary are imposing upon their customers by mixing sand and grits with cotton before pressing it into bales. If such dishonesty is to continue, the safety of the cotton trade of this Presidency will be endangered. It recommends that Government should pass an Act to suppress such dishonesty.

Cotton trade in Bellary.

Sasilekha, Madras, July 5th, 1898.

41. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th June, referring to the Testamentary Bill passed at the last sitting of the Madras Legislative Council, finds it difficult to reconcile the provision of the said Bill authorising any Malayali to leave all his property by will to whomsoever he likes, with that of the Marriage Registration Act which requires that one half of a person's self-acquired property should fall to the share of his wife and children and that the other half should go to the tarwad. The article declares its opinion that a clause should be inserted in the Marriage Registration Act that, in cases in which no will has been written, the self-acquired property should be equally shared by wife and children on the one hand and the tarwad on the other.

Reflections on the Malabar Testamentary Act.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, June 25th, 1898.

The suggestion is also made that competent and responsible persons only should be allowed to attest a will as witnesses.

The attention of the Government is invited to these matters.

IV.—Native States

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 4th, 1898.

42. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th July, points out certain defects in the administration of the water-supply in Bangalore, and thinks that the management should be taken away from the hands of the Public Works Department and entrusted to the President of the municipality.

The Bangalore water-supply.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 30th, 1898.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th June, condemns the Hon'ble Sir George Moore, President, Madras Municipal Commission, for his having disturbed the procession in connection with the Garudochavam of the Alagasingaswami at Triplicane on the morning of the 29th June, by directing his coachman to disperse the crowd of devotees that assembled there for the purpose of worship, and is surprised to note that the gentleman behaved in such an offensive manner in spite of the fact that he has been in this country for a considerable length of time. The paper concludes with the remark that the gentleman was guilty of the same offence during the recent Brahmochavam at Mylapore, which wounded the feelings of the people. The paper hopes that His Excellency the Governor will bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

Remarks on the conduct of the Hon'ble Sir George Moore, President, Municipal Commission, Madras.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, July 4th, 1898.

44. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 4th July, endorses the opinion of the Amrita Bazar Patrika that the plague-affected persons should be allowed to be treated after the native custom in the same manner in which the patients affected with small-pox are, in consideration of the fact that the various measures adopted by the natives in their treatment of persons suffering from small-pox are more or less calculated to serve the purpose for which the segregation sheds are intended, and concludes with the remark that the best way to stamp out the plague is to leave the people to take care of themselves, after referring to the circumstance that the plague has considerably subsided in Bombay ever since the Bombay Government allowed the people to adopt the necessary precautions and remedial measures.

Desirability of allowing the people to adopt the necessary measures to ward off the plague.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, July 9th, 1898.

45. The Vikata Dutan, of the 9th July, eulogising the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals organized by Native and European gentlemen in view to relieve the sufferings of the dumb creatures, suggests to the society the desirability of engaging as its agents men who are found to possess tender heart abhorring any the least cruelty to animals, and of adopting the necessary measures to put a stop to the killing of dogs brought up in dwelling houses as pets in the presence of their masters. The paper draws the attention of the society to the rumour that its agents at times harass the owners of even healthy animals by getting them fined and thus abuse the principles of the society.

Certain suggestions to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Sasilekha, Madras, July 1st, 1898.

46. The Sasilekha, of the 1st July, writes thus:—Anglo-Indian journalists are unreasonably charging the Native journalists of Northern India with sedition and are eagerly proposing their prosecution. It is at the instance of the Bombay Times of India a year ago that Mr. Tilak was placed in this plight. Now the Calcutta paper, the Englishman, is complaining against the Amrita Bazar Patrika, while the Allahabad Pioneer charges the Gujirat with sedition; they demand their prosecution. After all, this kind of writing has become the livelihood of the English journalists. They want to feather their fortunes by doing evil to the Native journalists.

The intrigues of Anglo-Indian journalists.

47. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 25th June, calls upon the people of Malabar to use every effort in their power in view to making the next meeting of the Indian National Congress to be held in Madras a success. The people are requested to contribute money towards the purpose.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 25th, 1898.

Exhorting the people of Malabar to contribute towards the Congress fund.

Referring to the same subject, a leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th June, says that Mr. Ryru Nambiar, a High Court vakil and the Secretary to the Madras Congress Committee, had exhorted some of the rich landlords of North Malabar to collect public subscriptions besides contributing themselves towards the funds necessary for the expenses in connection with the congress.

48. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 9th July, reports that a certain Krishnan Vydien of a respectable family in Calicut had some time ago intimated to the Collector his desire to embrace the Muhammadan religion. The paper now hears that the man, at present, is in Coimbatore and that, from some of his letters, it is evident he has not been converted. The Mappilas, on the other hand, say that he went to Coimbatore after being converted. Opinion seems to be divided among his old-caste men. The Mappilas, especially those of the Ernad taluk, are fanatics and are easily provoked to a revolt. The attention of the Collector is invited to the matter with a view to warding off any riot that may possibly occur.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 9th, 1898.

A case of doubtful conversion to Muhammadanism.

49. A leader in the same paper raises the question as to who is to be the next Governor-General of India, now that Lord Balfour of Burleigh and Lord Cromer have declined the offer. The present unsatisfactory financial condition of India might presumably have been the reason of their declining to accept the high position. However, the article hopes that the next person on whom the choice falls will be sufficiently able as a financier to successfully cope with the present impoverished state of the country.

Our next Governor-General.

---

ERRATA.

In the third line from the last in para. 22, page 189 of Report No. 12 on Vernacular Newspapers for fortnight ending June 30—

For the word "no" read "not", and in the last line of the same paragraph for the word "wrote" read "write".

[Issued 23rd July 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 14 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st July 1898.

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| Disturbances in China | 217 |
| Spain, America and England | ib. |
| England and Turkey | ib. |
| The proposed visit of the Emperor of Germany to Jerusalem, Egypt, etc. | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| Necessity to reform the Police department | ib. |
| Alleged high-handedness of the police in Tirúr | 218 |
| Police beat to be introduced in Pudiyara division of the town of Calicut | ib. |
| Petty thieves and pickpockets in camp bazaar, Cannanore, and in big bazaar, Calicut | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Remarks on a criminal appeal preferred to the Madras High Court against a decision of Mr. Gopala Nayar, the deputy magistrate of Salem | ib. |
| Remarks on an order of the sub-magistrate of Uttamapálaiyam prohibiting private vakils from pleading in his court | ib. |
| "Killed by accident again" | 219 |
| The Barrackpore murder case | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Dr. Miller's opinion that the Lower Secondary examination should be abolished | ib. |
| Moyan Training school, Calicut | 220 |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Remarks on the appointment of Mr. P. V. Appasami Vandayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality | ib. |
| Desirability of appointing Mr. P. V. A. Vandayar as the chairman of the Tanjore municipality | ib. |
| Certain suggestions in regard to the municipal return of births and deaths | ib. |
| Remarks on the chairman of the Tanjore municipality. | ib. |
| The miserable condition of the Malabar-Wynaad road | 221 |
| The insanitary condition of the different towns in Malabar to be brought before the Government | ib. |
| The "Captain's tank" in Calicut doing more evil than good | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Grievances caused by the proposed Calicut-Cannanore railway line trespassing upon the precincts of a temple in Tiruvangad, Tellicherry | ib. |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Certain suggestions in regard to the water-course of the river Cauvery | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| A suggestion to minimise the expenditure under the head "Travelling allowance" | 222 |
| Desirability of revising the list of Government holidays. | ib. |
| Income-tax | ib. |
| Agricultural banks | 223 |
| Remarks on the irrigation of fields in Malabar | ib. |
| Sanitation neglected in Tanúr | ib. |
| Suggestion regarding appointments in the Kasaragod taluk | ib. |
| Dead body near Tirúr railway station | ib. |
| The conviction of the accused in the Barrackpore murder case | 224 |
| Suggestions regarding post office in Calicut | ib. |
| The proposed sanitary arrangements at Simla | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Necessity for an enactment regulating the conduct of the Judges while they address the jury | ib. |
| Necessity to legislate against exorbitant rates of interest | ib. |
| "The plight of zamindari ryots" | ib. |
| The Madras Tenancy Bill. Ryots and tenants | 225 |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Inadvisability of engaging Government servants for the improvement of Native States | 226 |
| Appointment of youngsters as magistrates and munsifs | ib. |
| The impropriety of getting a bride for His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore from Northern India | ib. |
| A certain munsif of Travancore has received a bribe of 500 rupees in appointing a copyist | ib. |
| Only the Manorama of Calicut in favour of the amended Penal Code for Travancore regarding Brahman culprits | 227 |
| Beggars suffering from loathsome diseases hanging about the streets in Kóttayam on market days | ib. |
| Police corruption in the Native Cochin State | ib. |
| Administration of the Cochin State by the Diwan | ib. |
| Dacoity and oppression in Native Cochin State | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Nil. | |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Inadvisability of appointing Europeans to be the tutors of minor zamindars | ib. |
| Remarks on the medical practice by quacks | 228 |
| Remarks on the opinion of the Secretary of State about India | ib. |
| Poverty of India | ib. |
| Outrages on natives | 229 |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Vidya Varthamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 150 | May 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 15th July 1898. |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. | 600 | 1st and 15th July 1898. |
| 4 | "Gnanodayam" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 15th July 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South India Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 15th and 25th July 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 23rd and 30th July 1898. |
| 7 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 16th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| 8 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 9 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 15th ,, 22nd ,, ,, |
| 10 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 22nd ,, 29th ,, ,, |
| 11 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 4th, 11th and 18th July 1898. |
| 12 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 18th and 25th July 1898. |
| 13 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 16th, 23rd and 30th July 1898. |
| 14 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 15th and 22nd July 1898. |
| 15 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 60 | 11th, 18th and 25th July 1898. |
| 16 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 17th and 24th July 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 17 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 14th, 16th, 19th, 21st, 23rd, 26th and 28th July 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 16th and 23rd July 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 15th, 19th, 22nd, 26th and 29th July 1898. |
| 20 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 16th, 20th and 23rd July 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Karnataka Prakasika .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 18th and 25th July 1898. |
| 22 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 16th, 22nd and 30th July 1898. |
| 23 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 22nd and 29th July 1898. |
| 24 | "Karnataka Kesari" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 25th July 1898. |
| 25 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 21st and 28th July 1898. |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 20th ,, 27th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 27 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 600 | 5th and 15th July 1898. |
| 28 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 13th ,, 24th ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 11th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 30 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 11th ,, 21st ,, ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 31 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 9th and 16th July 1898. |
| 32 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 11th ,, 18th ,, ,, |
| 33 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 6th, 13th and 20th July 1898. |
| 34 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 16th and 23rd July 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 35 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 18th and 25th July 1898. |
| 36 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 12th ,, 19th ,, ,, |
| 37 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 15th ,, 20th ,, ,, |
| 38 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 18th ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 39 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 15th ,, 23rd ,, ,, |
| 40 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 8th, 15th, and 20th July 1898. |
| 41 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 15th and 22nd July 1898. |
| 42 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 21st July 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 18th July, speaking of the revolt of the people in China, says that it is a great pity that just when a great many of its towns have already been seized by the various European powers, the people of the country should rise in revolt of a very serious kind. From what is going on in the empire, the paper thinks that its downfall and dismemberment is not far off.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 18th, 1898.

Disturbances in China.

2. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 14th July, has an article under the heading "Who is entitled to the aid of England—Spain or America?" to the effect that it is true that Spain has been pursuing a very extraordinary policy for the last three centuries acceptable to some but irritating to others, yet England is not so despicable as she is described by American historians. During the late Peninsular war, the Spanish leaders showed great friendship towards England, and helped Wellington to reach Waterloo safely at a time when America, of whose alleged staunch friendship England now boasts, created fresh difficulties for England, by declaring hostilities against her. This being the case, the editor says it does not become England from selfish motives to conclude a treaty with America.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, July 14th, 1898.

Spain, America and England.

3. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th July. The Anjuman-i-Hind (place of publication not given), writing of the relations between the British and Turkish Government, says the British Ambassador at Constantinople has recently written to the Porte in an authoritative manner to say that if passports are not granted to British subjects intending to travel through Turkey, who now experience great difficulty in getting them, they will travel without passports in His Majesty's territories, and that he (the Ambassador) will himself make arrangements for their safety.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, July 15th, 1898.

England and Turkey.

Again, as regards the temporary increase by the Turkish Government of wharfage and resulting refusal to pay of certain English merchants, who were prevented from landing goods at Constantinople, the British Government has, through its Ambassador, demanded compensation from the Porte for the loss sustained by the English merchants in consequence of the prohibition, and has also informed the Porte that the amount received from other English merchants in excess of the usual rate will be deducted from the tribute of Cyprus. The Anjuman regrets that the British Government instead of asking for the settlement of these petty matters amicably, uses unnecessarily so authoritative a tone.

4. The Alhami of the 25th July. The Times (place of publication not mentioned), referring to the proposed visit of the Emperor of Germany to Jerusalem, Egypt, etc., says the Emperor after personally seeing the progress made in Egypt, in all directions, will acknowledge the necessity for the continuance of the British occupation. The Alhami refutes the above statement and observes that the result of the visit will be of quite a contrary character as the policy of the Kaiser is not less hostile to England than that of Russia. It is even possible that this visit will tend to the final settlement of the evacuation question.

Alhami, Madras, July 25th, 1898.

The proposed visit of the Emperor of Germany to Jerusalem, Egypt, etc.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th July, referring to the agitation in England about the re-formation of the Police department of this country, remarks that it is absolutely necessary on the part of Government to adopt such measures as will ameliorate the condition of the Police department, in that the reputation of the British Government is tarnished by the high-handedness of the officers of that department.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 19th, 1898.

Necessity to reform the Police department.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 16th, 1898.

6. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 16th July, writes from Tirúr that one Koyassankutti, adhikari of Vallikkunnamsam, was arrested and kept under custody by the police, according to popular report, out of sheer personal spite. It is reported that the evidence to justify the arrest was collected after the adhikari had already been kept in confinement. If the popular report turns out to be true, the high-handedness of the police ought to be visited with suitable punishment from the authorities. It is hoped that the inspector who investigates into the matter will do the needful.

Alleged high-handedness of the police in Tirúr.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 13th, 1898.

7. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th July, expresses the hope that, in consideration of the growing importance of the "Pudiyara" division of Calicut where the Mission Tile factory and the centres of coir manufacture are situate, the system of "police beat" by constables would be introduced there. The rowdyism and the frequent occurrence of theft there render such a measure highly desirable.

Police beat to be introduced in Pudiyara division of the town of Calicut.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 23rd, 1898.

8. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd July, reports that the Cannanore correspondent of the paper complains of the pickpockets and petty thieves that roam about in camp bazaar. The attention of the police is invited to the matter. Another paragraph in the same issue of the paper complains of a similar state of things in the Calicut big bazaar.

Petty thieves and pickpockets in camp bazaar, Cannanore, and in big bazaar, Calicut.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 16th, 1898.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th July, referring to a criminal appeal preferred to the Madras High Court against a decision of Mr. Gopala Nayar, the Deputy Magistrate of Salem, observes as follows:—The complaint preferred by the District Magistrate against Mr. Gopala Nayar, the Deputy Magistrate, is that the latter upsets cases without recording in detail his judgment. District Magistrates used to find fault with their Deputy Magistrates, being prevailed upon by the Police Superintendents. The case under reference is one of that nature. Mr. Gopala Nayar is an honest person to the best of our knowledge and will not allow himself to be guided by the whims of his higher authorities, and is not therefore liked by the District Magistrate, although he is high in the estimation of the people. We are far from saying that Mr. Gopala Nayar is infallible. The appeal under reference seems to have been preferred in view to honour the police which is prone to fabricate cases and to get the poor innocent punished when it is incapable of bringing to book the real offenders, which Mr. Justice Davies who heard the appeal did not seem to ignore.

Remarks on a criminal appeal preferred to the Madras High Court against a decision of Mr. Gopala Nayar, the Deputy Magistrate of Salem.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, July 22nd, 1898.

10. The Agnikulathithan, of the 22nd July, referring to the order issued by the Sub-Magistrate of Uttamapálaiyam, Periyakulam taluk, in the district of Madura, prohibiting private vakils from practising in his court, regrets to remark that the poor inhabitants of Uttamapálaiyam are put to unnecessary expense and trouble by being driven to the necessity of having recourse to vakils possessing sannads, of whom there are only two or three in the said village, and hopes that the sub-magistrate will withdraw his order ere long in consideration of the facts that Government has not amended the section of the Criminal Procedure Code which authorises private vakils to practice, and that the State of Travancore also thought it inadvisable to dispense with the services of private vakils, on the ground that the poor people in petty cases cannot afford to engage the services of vakils holding sannads who should be paid liberally in criminal cases and in consideration of the fact that the High Court recently rejected the memorial submitted by a number of vakils holding sannads, praying for the abolition of the system of allowing private vakils to plead.

Remarks on an order of the Sub-Magistrate of Uttamapálaiyam prohibiting private vakils from pleading in his court.

11. The Andhraprakasika, of the 20th July, while commenting on a case noted in the Amrita Bazar Patrika, in which Mr. J. T. McIntyre, a railway engineer at Madoodabad, was fined Rs. 800 for firing at a marriage procession and causing grievous hurt to seven people, killing one of them, observes that it is evident that the magistrate was convinced of the death of the person, but he did not inflict an adequate punishment on the engineer. Refuting McIntyre's allegations advanced in his defence that he fired in the air only to threaten the people and that his second charge from the rifle was due to his fall by accident while going in a hurry to stop the beating of the drums, the paper says that it is at a loss to know why he should have used shot if his motive were only to threaten the people. The presiding magistrate would have inflicted, it further says, a suitable punishment so as to produce a deterrent effect had not nationality and religion stood in his way. Such "accidents" by shooting are daily increasing and the magistrate not only failed to inflict a proper punishment but also, by subjecting the accused to a fine of Rs. 800, gave room for the surmise that the engineer was practically acquitted.

"Killed by accident again."

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, July 20th, 1898.

12. The Sasilekha, of the 22nd July, referring to the Barrackpore murder case, observes that in this country frequent reports of murders by Englishmen are heard of. It is also a well known fact that the Judges are not able to punish them as English juries on some plea or other do not find them guilty. Under these circumstances it should be considered that the proceedings in the said murder case had a satisfactory termination. In this case three soldiers were charged with the murder of Dr. Sircar. The Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court, Sir Francis Maclean, assisted by nine jurymen, patiently tried the case. As the jury found the soldiers guilty of only causing grievous hurt and not of murder, the Judge was obliged to agree with them. However he sentenced the soldiers to seven years' rigorous imprisonment, the highest penalty prescribed in the Indian Penal Code for grievous hurt. This decision of the Judge has to a certain extent tended to remove the reproach attaching to the Courts of Justice. The paper regrets to note that the jury was kind to the soldiers, their countrymen, but it never pitied Dr. Sircar, an innocent old man who was an honorary magistrate and the chairman of the Barrackpore municipality. But Sir Francis Maclean in explaining to the jury the facts of the case exhorted the jury to note that there was a widespread impression that the British jury does not find an Englishman guilty, and also said that the life of the poorest Indian was as precious as the life of any Englishman in this country. It is this exhortation that led the jury to find the soldiers guilty at least of the minor charge. If there are many such upright Judges there would be no obloquy on the British justice. There would then be an increased appreciation of British rule and a closer union between the Englishmen and the Indians.

The Barrackpore murder case.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 22nd, 1898.

(d) Education.

13. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th July, refers to the opinion expressed by the Rev. Dr. Miller in the late issue of "The Madras Christian College Magazine" that the effect of requiring young boys to pass the Lower Secondary examination before they can appear for the Matriculation examination is far from being a wholesome one. The system of educating young lads by encouraging "cram" for the purpose of pushing these lads through the Lower Secondary examination, is mischievous in its working and has the effect of producing in the minds of boys an impression that the passing of an examination is the sole end of education. In England, before students can appear for the examination corresponding to the Matriculation of this University,

Dr. Miller's opinion that the Lower Secondary examination should be abolished.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 20th, 1898.

they are not required to pass any intermediate examination and even in Madras in Dr. Miller's College, boys are not prepared for the Lower Secondary examination. The article quite concurs in Dr. Miller's views and recommends that either the Lower Secondary examination may be abolished or that certain salutary changes may be made in the mode in which it is conducted.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 24th, 1898.

Moyan Training school, Calicut.

14. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th July, protests against the appointment of Miss Harris as the headmistress of the Moyan Training school for girls at Calicut, and the injustice done to the 2nd mistress, Mrs. Mathews, who is in every way qualified for the post of headmistress of the institution, and whose only disqualification, if colour is a disqualification, is that she is a native. The school was established to commemorate the name of Moyan Kunhi Raman Nair, and the institution was meant to encourage education among native girls. The exclusive employment of Eurasian or English ladies as headmistresses is not quite just and is contrary to the original intention of its founder.

(e) Local and Municipal.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 16th, 1898.

Remarks on the appointment of Mr. P. V. Appasami Vandayar as chairman of the Tanjore municipality.

15. The Jananukulan, of the 16th July, writes as follows:—Mr. P. V. Appasami Vandayar should not be appointed chairman of the Tanjore municipality on the ground that he resides neither within the municipality nor within two miles of the limits thereof. It is hoped that His Excellency the Governor in Council will be pleased to take into consideration the circumstance that Mr. P. V. Appasami Vandayar is not qualified to be appointed chairman under sections 10-A and 19 (1) (iv) of the Madras District Municipalities Act, 1884.

INDIA MITRAN, Tanjore, July 15th, 1898.

Desirability of appointing Mr. P. V. A. Vandayar as the chairman of the Tanjore municipality.

16. The India Mitran, of the 15th July, observes that of the two candidates—Mr. P. V. A. Vandayar and Dr. Nailer, M.B.—for the chairmanship of the Tanjore municipality, the former is the fittest person, as he can devote all his time and attention to the municipal administration of Tanjore, redressing the grievances of the people, as he is a wealthy gentleman pursuing no occupation to earn his livelihood, and that Dr. Nailer is not likely to do justice to his work as chairman as he has to attend to a number of other onerous duties and as he may be transferred by Government all on a sudden to some other district. The paper hopes that, in consideration of these circumstances, Government will be pleased to confirm the nomination of Mr. Vandayar as the chairman of the Tanjore municipality.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 23rd, 1898.

Certain suggestions in regard to the municipal return of births and deaths.

17. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd July, complains that the weekly return of births and deaths, which is now prepared for each week ending with Friday, and published in the Fort St. George Gazette on the following Wednesday, does not serve the purpose for which it is intended owing to the delay of four days in the interval, and requests the Municipal authorities to prepare the return in future for each week ending with Tuesday, so that the return will appear in the Gazette without any delay. The paper suggests the desirability of furnishing the editors of newspapers with copies of such returns to enable them to inform their readers of the state of public health, even as season reports are placed on the editors' table for the information of the public at large.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 23rd, 1898.

Remarks on the chairman of the Tanjore municipality.

18. The Jananukulan, of the 23rd July, referring to the question put by Mr. Muttukumarappa Muppanar—"Is it a fact that two municipal peons on municipal pay were doing private service in the house of M.R.Ry. K. Kaliyanasundaram Iyer Avargal, a councillor?"—and to the silence maintained by the chairman of the Tanjore municipality, observes that the public at large are not pleased with the reticence of the chairman on the subject and his omission to insert the question under reference in the agenda accompanying the notice convening a meeting of the councillors.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 13th, 1898.

19. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th July, reports that an inhabitant of Wynaad has given a detailed account to the Madras Mail of the extremely bad condition of the Malabar-Wynaad road and attributed the high famine price of rice in Wynaad to the difficulties of traffic experienced in consequence of the unsatisfactory, nay, miserable, condition of the road mentioned. The Malabar district board pleads want of funds. The Government does not sanction any provincial grant for the purpose. The condition of the road will be worse next year. The editor of the Mail endorses the remarks and the article therefore hopes that the Government will bestow some consideration on the matter.

The miserable condition of the Malabar-Wynaad road.

20. A leader in the same paper expresses its regret that the Government did not approve of the suggestion made by the Sanitary Commissioner for Madras to appoint in each district an additional sanitary inspector in view to improving the sanitary condition of the different towns. The Government not only refused to sanction the proposal, but has also declared it unnecessary to set apart in the district board budget the annual allotment of about 4,000 rupees for purposes of sanitation, the removal of filth, etc., from the towns and the various other sanitary needs of towns. The towns of Tanúr and Ponnáni are inhabited, for the most part, by Mappilas and are in a very filthy condition and are thus liable to be attacked by epidemic diseases. To look after the internal sanitary condition of the towns and villages is as important as, if not more so than, the plague examination and quarantine system obtaining at certain stations, and the article therefore calls upon the taluk boards to bring the question again before the Government.

The insanitary condition of the different towns in Malabar to be brought before the Government.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 20th, 1898.

21. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th July, invites the attention of the Calicut municipal council to the inconvenience and, very often, the danger to which the public are exposed owing to the present state of the "Captain's tank" in Calicut. Only the other day that a lad was rescued from being drowned in the tank.

The "Captain's tank" in Calicut doing more evil than good.

(h) Railways.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 29th, 1898.

22. A correspondent writes to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th June, that the petition submitted to the Government regarding the proposed railway line from Calicut to Cannanore passing close by the "Daivathar Matam" temple of the Tiruvangad amsam, Tellicherry, has been sent to the Kóttayam tahsildar for report. The temple in question comes under the definition of the term "Kshetram" (temple) as given in the Railway Act, and Mr. Strange, the engineer deputed in connection with the railway extension work, was of the same opinion. It is therefore hoped that the Government will decide the matter in such a manner as not to wound the religious feelings of the people.

Grievances caused by the proposed Calicut-Cannanore Railway line trespassing upon the precincts of a temple in Tiruvangad, Tellicherry.

(i) Public Works.

INDIA MITRAN, Tanjore, July 16th, 1898.

23. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 15th July, writes as follows:—It is to be regretted that the Government of Mysore has begun to utilise to the largest extent possible the waters of the Cauvery for the agricultural purposes of that State. It is a pity that the Government of Madras is contemplating the Certain suggestions in regard to the water-course of the river Cauvery.

desirability of opening a number of channels and constructing dams on both sides of the Cauvery and of carrying its waters far into the interior so as to irrigate the nanjai lands. This measure will, no doubt, seriously interfere with the unmolested enjoyment of the waters of the Cauvery on the part of the inhabitants living from time immemorial on the banks of the river. As Government has erected large embankments in view to prevent inundation in the months of Auni and Audi, the free water-course of the river will, in the space of a few years, be often obstructed here and there by mounds of sand. The inevitable consequence of such an action on the part of Government must be that in course of time the bed of the river would rise much higher than that of the adjoining villages and that the river itself would be little more than a channel. Even when there is a small current in the river we notice innumerable breaches everywhere and serious loss to the ryots and Government in consequence. The mounds of sand and the inconveniences arising therefrom may be avoided if the current of the Cauvery be not obstructed and if the anicuts be so adjusted as to allow the water to pass below freely whenever it is required.

(k) General.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 15th, 1898.

A suggestion to minimise the expenditure under the head "Travelling allowance."

24. The Lokopakari, of the 15th July, complains that some of the officials do not scruple to draw travelling allowance by false diaries, and hopes that the higher authorities will be on the alert and detect such unscrupulous characters and award them the exemplary punishment of dismissal instead of merely transferring them from one place to another, as such a severe measure will tend to reduce the expenditure of Government under the head "Travelling allowance" to a considerable extent.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 26th, 1898.

Desirability of revising the list of Government holidays.

25. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th July, rejoicing at the intention of Government to revise the list of Government holidays for its Muhammadan servants, hopes that the list of holidays intended for the Hindu servants will also be revised after a reference to the non-official gentlemen of the Hindu community, as the present list of holidays meant for the Hindus is not satisfactory.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 15th, 1898.

Income-tax.

26. A Penukonda correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 15th July, says that the revenue officers are causing much grief to the poor in assessing and collecting income-tax. There are no definite rules for the imposition of this tax. The authorities are assessing it as it suits their fancy. The will of the revenue inspectors and the village officers—karnams and munsifs—is law in the villages. Their reports are confidential. Though the people complain against the unreasonable imposition of the tax, there is none to hear them. The rich merchants in cities keep accounts of their income and expenditure and are thus able to get the tax reduced by producing them for inspection, while the petty traders and the poor husbandmen in villages, being unable to write, do not keep any such accounts. Their profits never come up to Rs. 500 a year, and much less do they exceed that amount. It is not possible to describe the sufferings which the poor people undergo from the imposition of this tax, when they do not get enough even to eat, on account of the failure of crops, in consequence of the failure of rains. Now the tax is being levied even on the income of the coolies who drive goods-carts between the railway station and the merchants' godowns in Hindupur. Is it possible for them to earn an income of Rs. 500 a year? Is it possible for them to meet the interest on the loans raised for the purchase of carts and bullocks, to maintain themselves and their families and also to pay this tax—all these from their income? The Government should carefully inquire into this matter.

27. The same paper says that the Mysore Government has sanctioned the opening of a bank, with a capital of Rs. 15,000, at Chicknayakkanhalli, at the request of the people. The ryots there own 140 acres and 34 cents of land worth Rs. 42,785, with debts to the extent of Rs. 5,064. The paper is confident that this bank will be productive of much good to the ryots, and asks why the Madras Government should not follow the example set by the Mysore State and institute such banks at least in a few districts, and thus save the poor ryots from falling into the hands of the sowcars. In this respect the people's prayers are mere cries in the wilderness.

Agricultural banks.

28. A leader in the Manorama, of the 11th July, hears that a sum of about five lakhs of rupees has been sanctioned for advances under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts for the whole Presidency for the current year, but regrets that Malabar has not been allowed to profit, in any way, by the concession. Malabar very often suffers from want of rain and the construction of anicuts has been rendered a necessity. The construction of anicuts in Native Cochin and Chittoor has produced good and satisfactory results as regards crops. The article therefore invites the attention of the Government to this matter.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 11th, 1898.

Remarks on the irrigation of fields in Malabar.

A leader in the Manorama, of the 18th July, invites the attention of the Government also to the question of advising and encouraging cultivators in providing themselves with suitable contrivances, such as, for example, the "Chicago air-motor pump," which will facilitate the irrigation of fields in cases of failure of rain.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 18th, 1898.

29. A correspondent writes to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th July, from Tanúr that the sanitation of the place has, since 1st July, been neglected. The place is usually in a very filthy condition and the unfortunate neglect of its sanitation at this time is sure to pave the way for the spread of cholera. The attention of the Collector is therefore invited to the matter.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 13th, 1898.

Sanitation neglected in Tanúr.

30. A leader in the same paper notices that a very great majority of the inhabitants of the Kasaragod taluk, south of the river Chandragiri, are Malayalees and therefore the proposed entertainment of a Malayalee clerk in the Mangalore District Court is a very desirable step. A Malayalee clerk is also necessary in the Huzur cutcherry. The present Sub-Judge of the place, M.R.Ry. U. Achutan Nayar Avargal, who is a Malayalee, is trying, the paper hears, to obtain a transfer to some place in Malabar; if the transfer is granted, it is requested that another Sub-Judge, well conversant with the Malayalam language, may be posted in his stead. The article further requests that the Kasaragod taluk munsif and the Hosdrug sub-magistrate may, for the same reason, be appointed either from among the Malayalees or from those well conversant with the Malayalam language. If it be not found feasible either to transfer that portion of the Kasaragod taluk which lies south of the Chandragiri river to the jurisdiction of the Malabar district, or to make Malayalam the court language of that portion of the taluk, the article hopes that the Government would, at least, approve of the suggestion already made, viz., to appoint Malayalees or others conversant with the Malayalam language to responsible offices in courts in that taluk.

Suggestion regarding appointments in the Kasaragod taluk.

31. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th July, writes from Tirúr that the dead body of a man of the Chetti caste, not belonging to those parts, was found near the railway station, the body exhibiting no signs of death from illness. Occasionally such corpses are seen on the Tirúr railway bridge and in the river below; but how such deaths came about has always remained a mystery. Murders are perpetrated in these parts with greater impunity than in the Mappila-inhabited Ernad taluk.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 20th, 1898.

Dead body near Tirúr railway station.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 23rd, 1898.

The conviction of the accused in the Barrackpore murder case.

32. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd July, referring to the trial and conviction of the three soldiers concerned in the Barrackpore murder case, says that the jury could not but return a verdict of guilty as having, at least, caused grievous hurt, owing to the impartial and able summing up of the Judge to the jury. There have been instances in which natives had been shot dead by Europeans, but in which the accused Europeans were let off on a verdict of "not guilty" by the jury. It is in view of such instances that the question of abolishing trial by jury in India should be raised. It is hoped that in such cases the Judge will pay particular attention to the facts before him.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 24th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding post office in Calicut.

33. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th July, suggests that, in consideration of the increase of work in the Calicut post office, some additional clerks may be appointed and increase of pay awarded to the existing clerks. It is also suggested that a commodious building may be utilised for office purposes. The attention of the Postmaster-General is invited to these suggestions.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, July 14th, 1898.

The proposed sanitary arrangements at Simla.

34. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 14th July, mentions news from Simla to the effect that 20 lakhs of rupees are required for sanitary purposes there, and that the people of the place are of opinion that this amount should form a charge on the Government of India. The editor does not know why the Government of India should alone bear such charges, when the Government of the Punjab also enjoys the cool climate of Simla. The people of India have already been burdened with the charges incurred by Government owing to the annual exodus and by the construction of buildings at Simla. It is therefore inadvisable that they should be further burdened with these sanitary charges.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 14th, 1898.

Necessity for an enactment regulating the conduct of the Judges while they address the jury.

35. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th July, observes:—It is to be regretted that in criminal cases the Judges while addressing the jury prejudice their mind against the accused, the result of which is miscarriage of justice. The Judges instead of merely explaining to the jury the facts recorded in the case, go at times beyond their bounds and mention a number of irrelevant things which are calculated to mislead the jury as in the case of Mr. Tilak. We are of opinion that a Judge is not justified even in referring to a number of cases previously disposed of and in explaining certain clauses of the Act to the jury, for such a procedure on the part of a Judge is tantamount to his suggesting to the jury the kind of verdict they should pronounce in the case. It is therefore highly desirable that there should be an enactment prescribing certain conditions which the Judges should abide by while they address the jurymen, as the absence of an enactment regulating the attitude of the Judges towards the jury is productive of manifold evils.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 19th, 1898.

Necessity to legislate against exorbitant rates of interest.

36. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 19th July, dwelling at length on the various circumstances which drive the poor ryots of this country to the painful necessity of running into debt, requests Government to pass an enactment vitiating exorbitant rates of interest demanded by the money-lenders whom the ryots resort to when coercive measures are adopted by the Revenue authorities for recovering the kist even in times of total failure of harvest.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, July 16th, 1898.

"The plight of zamindari ryots."

37. B. Seshagiri Rao, B.A., a correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 16th July, in criticising the statement made by the Raja of Bobbili in the Legislative Council that the zamindari ryots are much better off than the jerayati ryots, and that their love and attachment to their proprietors are stronger than those of the other ryots, refers to the very poor condition of the Vizianagram ryots. And in further support of his criticism he takes up the Punganúru estate in the North Arcot district and depicts the oppressed condition of the ryots and employés there. The Samsthanam imposes taxes that were never known before and that are even against rules, and energetically collects them by threats and tricks, but they never interest themselves in the welfare of the ryot. Heaven knows when and by whom the tanks were dug. Not a single pie has been spent on their repairs. In their present condition, even though they get full supply twice or thrice a year, they do not contain sufficient water for the irrigation of the lands under them. In addition to these circumstances the greedy zamindar has been for the last two or three years taxing the waste lands lying fallow from time immemorial to the great annoyance of the ryot. It is impossible to describe the misery of the ryot, his helplessness to protest against such injustice and his inability to pay the taxes imposed. When some of the ryots boldly declined to pay such unwarranted taxes they were most unjustly deprived of their appointments as headmen or monigars. The correspondent desires to know how the zamindar has obtained such authority. For the expenses of the ensuing marriage in the Raja's family, not only the Raja's servants but many others state that, as a matter of fact, four annas were collected from the ryot on every rupee of the sist. It is known throughout that the Raja with his Diwan and Tahsildar went round the estate. The Almighty Being knows the immense difficulty to which the helpless ryots were put on this account. Stating that such is the miserable condition of the ryots, the correspondent narrates a case of oppression to the servants. A newly-appointed clerk was sent to examine the accounts of a village accountant and having found that a ryot, who from his own exertions had turned a portion of his inam dry land into wet land, was charged under both heads, the immemorial custom being to charge only for wet cultivation, he set right the accounts obtaining the sanction of the head clerk of the office. For this supposed offence—it was perhaps regarded as treason—he was dismissed from service, the head clerk was fined a rupee for sanctioning it and the sheristadar who approved of it was suspended for three months. The correspondent concludes his sketch with the hope that the Tenancy Bill will prove to be a great boon to the ryots.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, July 30th, 1898.

The Madras Tenancy Bill. Ryots and tenants.

38. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 30th July, remarks as follows on the Madras Tenancy Bill:—The great anxiety of Government is to place ryots on proprietary estates on the same footing as ryots in ryotwari tracts. The Bill introduces a body of rules and regulations which it will take a long time for proprietors and their tenants to reconcile themselves to. In the face of the divergent views expressed on the matter and the strong opposition and conflicting opinions evoked by an almost identical measure prepared by the committee appointed by Government in 1888, we cannot expect that this measure, whatever may be the care bestowed on it by the special officer deputed by Government, will be passed into law with any undue hurry. Notwithstanding all the correspondence which had been going on for the past several years, no attempt has been made to ascertain by actual inquiry the conditions of the Presidency calling for reform. It has been assumed that what is good for Bengal is good for Madras. The object of the Bill is to define the status of the ryot in proprietary tracts. But what is the status given him by the Bill? Apparently it is an occupancy right in the land held by him. A ryot is defined as a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of agriculture, horticulture or grazing. This is all that the Bill gives the ryot, notwithstanding the various proceedings recorded by Government and the Board of Revenue, declaring that the ryot in proprietary tracts held a status analogous to his neighbour in the ryotwari tracts, and that he was proprietor of the soil. The Bill therefore instead of improving the status of the zamindari ryot lowers it. The Bill confers on the ryot surface rights only and not any right to the minerals. It is faulty in its definition of the term ryot, describing him as holding land for purposes of agriculture, horticulture or grazing, against all previous declarations of Government. In regard to the provisions regarding enhancement and reduction of rents, the substance of all the rules relating to this matter is that the Collector is to fix a fair and equitable rent. Except in cases when enhancement is claimed on the ground of increase of productive capacity of the soil by fluvial action, no limit is fixed, as in Government tracts, that the proprietor should not take more than one half of the net produce. The jurisdiction given to the Revenue authorities is not satisfactory and there is no reason why the procedure laid down in the Rent Recovery Act should be altered. The Government of India lays down as a condition that non-occupancy rights should be declared non-transferable except with the consent of the proprietor, but it is absurd that the Government of India should impose conditions affecting the people of the Madras Presidency. The year 1871 is taken as the starting point for upsetting the relations and setting aside the practice that had come to exist between the proprietor and his tenants, during this period of more than a quarter of a century. The Bill affects interests vast, ancient and most vital. The discussion of a measure of such a magnitude should be free from prejudice, and the balance be held fairly between all parties concerned.

IV.—Native States.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 28th, 1898.

Inadvisability of engaging Government servants for the improvement of Native States.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th July, referring to the contemplated settlement of lands in the Native State of Cochin, observes as follows:—It is not desirable that this State should engage highly-paid servants whose services are lent by Government to cope with the increase of work, since there are already in the State many who hold high offices, whose services may be utilised by slightly increasing their present pay; and the persons who are already employed in the State should be directed to go to the British territories and acquire a technical knowledge of the special work they are required to do. During the régime of Sir T. Madhava Rau the State of Travancore never sought the help of Government servants even for a temporary period.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, June 20th, 1898.

Appointment of youngsters as magistrates and munsifs.

40. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 20th July, points out that the appointment of young men, who have just passed out of their colleges by cramming and who have no experience of the world, as amildars, assistant commissioners and munsifs is a cause of great annoyance to the people who resort to their courts, because these young men treat them with insolence and harshness. The paper therefore suggests that the youngsters so appointed must be made to work at head-quarters for some time until they get some experience.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, July 20th, 1898.

The impropriety of getting a bride for His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore from Northern India.

41. The Suryodaya, of the 29th July, says that the idea of getting a bride for His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore from some of the Northern States of India originated with the Diwan and other Madrasis, who perhaps have an ultimate object in doing so. The late Maharaja expressed a wish that the daughter of Dalavoy Deva Raj Urs should be received into the royal family as the consort of the Prince, and with this view the girl was educated with the Princesses. The editor thinks that as Mysore is a unique country and stands far above all other Native States in India in every respect, it is not proper to look for a bride for the young Maharaja in any other Native State.

Manorama, Calicut, July 11th, 1898.

A certain munsif of Travancore has received a bribe of 500 rupees in appointing a copyist.

42. The Manorama, of the 11th July, has inserted, in its issue of the said date, under the heading "Certain Munsifs of Travancore," a paragraph taken from an issue of the Malayala Manorama, which says that a certain munsif has conferred the vacant situation of a copyist under him upon one who cannot write even the Malayalam language well, although candidates of superior claim and qualification had applied for the same. The munsif received a bribe of 500 rupees in return for the favour. The attention of the High Court of the country is invited to the matter.

43. A paragraph in the Nazrani Dipika, of the 11th July, writes that, among the many English and Vernacular newspapers that have discussed the amendment of the Penal Code for the Travancore State exculpating Brahman culprits, guilty of murder, from the extreme penalty of the law, only the Manorama of Calicut has given its opinion in favour of the amendment.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Kottayam, July 11th, 1898.

Only the Manorama of Calicut in favour of the amended Penal Code for Travancore regarding Brahman culprits.

44. A correspondent to the same issue of the paper invites the attention of the sanitary officers to the very objectionable practice of vagrant beggars who suffer from loathsome diseases hanging about the roads and streets in Kóttayam on market days dressed in filthy stinking rags and begging alms from the passers-by.

Beggars suffering from loathsome diseases hanging about the streets in Kóttayam on market days.

45. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 16th July, in complimenting Mr. Rajagopalachari, the Diwan of Cochin, upon the suppression of bribery in different branches of the service in the Cochin State, regrets that the corruption of the Police department of the State has not received the Diwan's proper attention. The high-handedness and irregularities of the Police officers receive no check whatever from the unsuspecting and inefficient Superintendent. Reforms and innovations in this department of the Cochin service are imperatively necessary and the attention, therefore, of His Highness the Raja and the Acting Diwan of Cochin is invited to the matter.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, July 16th, 1898.

Police corruption in the Native Cochin State.

46. A correspondent to the same issue of the paper, in reviewing the criticism of the Diwan's administration of the Cochin State, published in the Madras Standard, writes that the actions of the Diwan, complained against by the critic, have proved in almost all the instances beneficial to the State and that the Diwanship of Mr. Rajagopalachari has been so far a success. The suppression of bribery is instanced as a very important and salutary measure. The appointment of a Brahman teacher in the Ernakulam College, who was for some time tutor to the Acting Diwan's sons, is disapproved of.

Administration of the Cochin State by the Diwan.

47. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th July, reports that oppression of the people and dacoities of a daring nature are rife in Peringottukara and other parts of the Native State of Cochin; cattle-lifting and other thefts are of frequent occurrence. The investigation and trial of these criminal acts are conducted in a very unsatisfactory and suspicious manner and, but recently, the accused concerned in a case of timber-lifting were acquitted for reasons which are not very clear. The complainant in this case was Ramachandra Iyer, the Trichur Zillah Judge's brother. It is strange that the perpetration of such daring crimes has not roused the head of the Police department from his apathy, but the article hopes that the Cochin Government will devote its attention to the matter and rid the people at an early date of these turbulent and oppressive gang of robbers.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 20th, 1898.

Dacoity and oppression in Native Cochin State.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

48. The Lokopakari, of the 15th July, condemns the system of appointing Europeans to be the tutors of minor zamindars, on the ground that the minors who are taken by their European tutors to the hills for a period of six months in a year imitate their tutors in acquiring the habit of hunting and drinking, and that on their attaining the majority they do not scruple to give up the religion and caste observances of the Hindus.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 15th, 1898.

Inadvisability of appointing Europeans to be the tutors of minor zamindars.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengódu, July 17th, 1898.

49. The Viveka Thivakaran, of the 17th July, regrets to observe that the lives of the people are at stake in consequence of the medical practice on the part of a large number of native quacks, and hopes that the Viceregal Legislative Council will pass an enactment prescribing a certain standard of proficiency to be acquired by men who come out as medical practitioners.

Remarks on the medical practice by quacks.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 23rd, 1898.

50. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd July, writes as follows:—It is to be regretted that the Secretary of State for India betrays ignorance of the real state of things whenever he has to speak about India. His exaggerated account of the prosperous condition of this country is as ridiculous as the expression of a buffoon on the stage. His assertion that the natives of India are wanting in administrative skill and acumen to manage political affairs with success, and that the people living in the territories subject to native administration are in a wretched plight is a striking instance of his ignorance. It is surprising to note that the Secretary of State ignores the condition of pauperism to which the people of this country have been reduced in consequence of the British administration of the country during the past forty years and the indebtedness of the Government of India in spite of the boasted administrative skill on the part of the English. The Secretary of State would have heard of the rule of this country by 'Akbar' and of his able minister 'Todar Mall,' and of such men as 'Nana Farnavis,' 'Raja Chandu Lal,' 'Poorniah,' 'Raja Sir T. Madhava Rau,' and 'Sir Salar Jung' whose sagacity in politics contributed to the prosperity of this country to no small extent. The Government of Mysore was involved in debt to the extent of eighty lakhs of rupees as the result of its management by the British Government for the space of a century, whereas under the native rule the Government of Mysore during the past seventeen years liquidated the whole debt and brought about several changes for the better. It is a pity that in spite of such astounding facts the Secretary of State gives expression to such notions as make us feel sorry for his ignorance.

Remarks on the opinion of the Secretary of State about India.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, July 22nd, 1898.

51. The Suryodaya, of the 22nd July, has a leader to the following effect:—The politicians of India are crying themselves hoarse to bring to the notice of the people of England that India is suffering from poverty, while the Anglo-Indians who govern India are trying as much to make it out that India is rolling in wealth. Some of the far-seeing friends of India asked the Ministry to appoint a Parliamentary committee to inquire into the condition of India, but the present Government is too powerful to listen to such a request. Nothing is as yet known as to the decision that the Royal Commission on Indian expenditure appointed some time ago has come to. Somehow or other the people of Great Britain are kept in the dark as to the real state of this country.

Poverty of India.

We who are born here and obliged to live on insufficient food, and decimated by famine every two or three years, do not require any statesman to tell us that we are poor. How poor India is we know, because we can see the people starving when for want of sufficient rain in any year the price of food rises ever so little.

What is the cause of this poverty? Our missionary friends say that it is due to increase of population and to reckless expenditure on marriage and other ceremonies of the Hindus and to the fondness of our women for ornaments. But let us see how far they are right.

In England the population has increased fourfold within the last few years, but the people are not poor for that reason. We never spend so much on marriage and other things as the Western people do. In fact we are a remarkably economical people, although we spend a little more than usual on festive occasions. So this cannot be the cause of our poverty.

In every country women are fond of ornaments. Our women like to have silver and gold ornaments, but the women of the West spend their money on dress, which, of course, when once used becomes almost valueless when compared with silver and gold jewels.

There is no doubt that the people of the West spend more on ornamentation than the people of India.

Nor can expenditure on marriages be the cause of India's poverty. The rich and the poor here spend an amount on such ceremonies which is proportionate to their incomes. We therefore think that the causes of poverty must be sought for elsewhere.

To us it seems these causes are two, viz., the Mussalmans who conquered India settled here and gave the high appointments to the natives of India. But the English people look upon India merely as a field for acquiring the means for their happiness, and retain the highest appointments for themselves. They come to India and when they have amassed sufficient wealth or earned a comfortable pension go back to England and pose as authorities on Indian questions and abuse the land which gave them the wealth on which they fatten.

Another cause of the poverty of India is the maintenance of an army larger than her needs demand, to meet a possible Russian invasion. To maintain this useless army we are kept in a state of semi-starvation. The fear of a Russian invasion is put forward whenever the people are to be silenced like the "Goggaya" with which we frighten children whenever they are restive. Even supposing this fear of the Russians is a real fear, why should not native troops be employed? Did not the native regiments show as much bravery as, if not more than, the British troops in the frontier wars? The employment of Indian soldiers would involve much less expenditure while the efficiency would not be less. But this is not done partly because our rulers have no confidence in us and partly because such a course would conflict with the interests of the ruling race.

Since such a vast army cannot be kept in idleness, opportunities are sought to give it work by picking quarrels with the neighbouring tribes. It is only this desire to give the idle army some work and to extend English dominions that Lord Dufferin conquered Burma and Manipur, and the recent war on the frontiers was undertaken. Notwithstanding the fact that the country is groaning under the burden of famine and pestilence, money is wrung from it and thrown on the barren hills on the Afghan frontier. The people of England would not pay a pie towards the expenses of these wars. Such is Christian charity! Our resources are thus wasted on unproductive enterprises without our consent, and yet the missionaries overlook these important causes of India's poverty and taunt us with the little expenses which we occasionally incur for a little diversion from our sufferings.

52: The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th July, has a leading article in which it remarks:—It is a matter of regret that of late there have been numerous attacks of natives by Europeans. So common have these become that we scarcely see a week pass without reading an account of one or more in the newspapers. These outrages are no less than a scandal to the ruling race, and something should be done to stop them.

Outrages on natives.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 25th, 1898.

The article then tries to assign reasons for the frequency of these outrages and says that they are due to the fact that in these days more Europeans come to India than was the case formerly; Europeans, too, who, unlike those who come to enter the service of Government permanently, have no interest in the country and in the people. There is more travelling among them now and they scarcely stick to one place and have no character to maintain among their neighbours, and are removed from the influence of their own countrymen. Most of the outrages are committed by soldiers who become lawless as soon as they are out of their barracks. Another cause of these outrages is, in the opinion of the editor, the light punishment dealt out to the offenders, if at all any punishment is inflicted. In many cases the offenders go scot-free, the Judges and juries thinking, or professing to think, they were not guilty.

The article therefore thinks that if nothing else will put a stop to these outrages, a special Act ought to be passed by the legislature to provide a sufficient remedy, as otherwise they bring the European name and the Government into disrepute together with the law.

[Issued 8th August 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 15 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th August 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| Fresh rising on the frontiers .. .. .. .. .. | 233 |
| Probabilities of a war between England and Russia .. | ib. |
| Comment upon the war between Spain and the United States. | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| A grievance of a prisoner .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Remarks on the Tiruvarur police .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Changes to be made in the constitution and the working of the Police training school at Vellore .. .. | 234 |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Unjust transfer of a case from the file of the stationary magistrate, Calicut .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The vagaries of the District Judge of Tellicherry .. | ib. |
| Inconvenience of holding courts in amsams .. .. | ib. |
| Dr. Suresh Chandar Sircar's murder .. .. .. | ib. |
| European murderers .. .. .. .. .. .. | 235 |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Reflections on the present system of education .. .. | ib. |
| The desirability of a board Mappila school in Tanúr .. | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Inconvenience caused by the use of a spot in Madras as municipal conservancy cart-stand .. .. .. | ib. |
| Desirability of transferring municipal overseers from place to place .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Latrines in Cocanada .. .. .. .. .. | 236 |
| A branch hospital to be opened in Calicut .. .. | ib. |
| Drawbacks of the public works department of the Calicut municipality .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Late embezzlement of the Malabar district board money . | ib. |
| The "A system" contract to be superseded by contracts given severally to many .. .. .. .. .. | 237 |
| A secretary to be soon appointed to the Calicut municipality .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Calicut municipal public works to be better executed .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The water of the Buckingham canal in Mylapore .. | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Necessity for the appointment of a responsible officer to be in charge of the Karikal-Peralam Railway .. | ib. |
| Complaints against the South Indian Railway Company. | ib. |
| Indifference of the South Indian Railway Company to cases of theft .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Recommending postponement of disputed cases in the remuneration for land acquired for railway purposes .. | 238 |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—*cont. | |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Scarcity of water in Virudupatti and certain suggestions to mitigate the sufferings of the people .. .. | 238 |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Remarks on the tours of Governors and Viceroys .. | ib. |
| "Exchange compensation allowance" .. .. .. | ib. |
| Recent Postal Regulations .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Zamindari of Vizianagram .. .. .. .. | 239 |
| Nambudiris not necessary to perform certain religious rites in Benares .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| To cause a certain proclamation to be made by the religious heads of the Mappila community .. .. | 240 |
| Recommending increase of salary to branch postmasters. | ib. |
| Suggestions regarding Chéváyúr stamp-vendor .. .. | ib. |
| Kite-flying in Madras .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The 12th of Rabi-ul-Aval, the third month of the Muhammadan year .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Indebtedness of India .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Appointment of Mr. Muhammad Rasa Khan as a permanent District Collector .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Codification of the personal laws of natives of India .. | 241 |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| The Nizam's Minister disobeying the orders of the Nizam .. | ib. |
| Objections against the selection of a bride from the north for His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore .. .. .. | ib. |
| Maharani's girls' school, Mysore .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Desirability of establishing a mining school in Mysore .. | ib. |
| Praying that a certain tract of land may not be constituted a reserved forest .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Wholesale employment of Brahmans in the Cochin service.. | 242 |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Certain suggestions to Government for alleviating the sufferings of the ryots .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The crops of Malabar in no flourishing condition .. .. | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Remarks on Lord George Hamilton .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Advisability of compulsory segregation of lepers in Madras . | 243 |
| Waste of money on fireworks, etc., on the occasion of His Excellency the Governor's tour .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Work for the next meeting of the National Congress .. | ib. |
| The Laccadives to be restored to Sultan Ali Raja of Cannanore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 850 | July 1898. |
| 2 | "Pariyan" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 28th July 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st Aug. 1898. |
| 4 | "Sukhajivani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 250 | 1st and 15th Aug. 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th Aug. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 6th and 13th Aug. 1898. |
| 7 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 30th July and 6th and 13th Aug. 1898. |
| 8 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st and 8th Aug. 1898. |
| 9 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 29th July and 5th and 12th Aug. 1898. |
| 10 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 25th July and 1st and 8th Aug. 1898. |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 400 | 1st and 8th Aug. 1898. |
| 12 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 100 | 1st ,, 25th ,, ,, |
| 13 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 14 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 700 | 8th ,, 13th ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 20th and 27th July and 3rd and 10th Aug. 1898. |
| 16 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 6th and 13th Aug. 1898. |
| 17 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 7th Aug. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 30th July and 2nd, 4th, 6th, 9th, 11th and 13th Aug. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Satva Sadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 250 | 30th July 1898. |
| 20 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | Aug. 1898. |
| 21 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 384 | July ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 30th July and 6th Aug. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 30th July and 3rd, 10th and 13th Aug. 1898. |
| 24 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 2nd, 6th and 9th Aug. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 1st and 8th Aug. 1898. |
| 26 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 4th ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| 28 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Bangalore .. .. | 80 | 6th ,, 13th ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Karnataka Kesari" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 30 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 800 | 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 600 | 25th July 1898. |
| 32 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 860 | 24th ,, and 3rd Aug. 1898. |
| 33 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 3 th ,, 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 23rd and 30th July and 6th Aug. 1898. |
| 35 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 550 | 25th July and 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 27th ,, ,, 3rd ,, 10th ,, 1898. |
| 37 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 30th ,, ,, 6th Aug. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 38 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 23rd and 30th July and 8th Aug. 1898. |
| 39 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Royapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 31st July 1898. |
| 40 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 31st ,, and 7th Aug. 1898. |
| 42 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Royapet, Madras .. | 550 | 4th Aug. 1898. |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 18th, 21st, 25th and 28th July and 1st Aug. 1898. |
| 44 | "Munshur i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 7th May 1898. |
| 45 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 31st July ,, |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 11th August, says:—The Government is engaged in constructing a road in the Tochi Valley on the North-Western Frontier of India. Last week a party of Muhammadans attacked the gang of coolies that were working on the road, killed seven of them and seriously wounded twelve. Besides this several other tribes are amassing troops and making other preparations for war. All this makes us fear that Government may have to send another expedition to the frontier for further subduing the tribes.

Fresh rising on the frontiers.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Aug. 11th, 1898.

2. The same paper says:—The British and Russian Governments are contending with each other as to who should advance money to China for constructing a railway across the country. Once when the Shah of Persia wanted to raise a loan in the British market, the Russian Government prevented him from doing so, and he had to give up the attempt. Now the Russians have acquired a port in the Persian Gulf, and are trying to make it a station for the Russian navy. The people in England therefore apprehend that ere long England may have to declare war with Russia.

Probabilities of a war between England and Russia.

3. A leader in the Manorama, of the 25th July, gives an account of the Spanish-American war, and, in commenting upon the same, expresses its opinion that though Spain engaged in the war, in defence of its right, the United States of America were actuated by the laudable and generous motive of granting a republic to Cuba. The article gives a warning to other Governments not to place restrictions upon the liberty of their subjects.

Comment upon the war between Spain and the United States.

Manorama, Calicut, July 25th, 1898.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

4. The Jananukulan, of the 6th August, writes as follows:—When Mr. Kasivisvalingam Pillay, the present sub-magistrate of Tiruvadamarudúr, was the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi, he convicted one Arunachellam under sections 380 and 450, I.P.C. (calendar No. 77 of 1898) and sentenced him on the 1st March 1898 to rigorous imprisonment for four months, giving him the option of either paying a fine of Rs. 2 or continuing to be in the jail for a month and-a-half more. The prisoner was immediately sent to the jail at Tanjore and, owing to want of sufficient accommodation there, he was subsequently taken to the jail at Trichinopoly. In the mean while, the police at Tiruvádi recovered the said fine of Rs. 2 by attaching some property of the accused found in his house and remitted the sum to the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi. The prisoner should have been released on the 1st July 1898 after the lapse of four months as his fine had been recovered. As the Superintendent of the Jail at Trichinopoly was not informed of the recovery of the fine, the prisoner was not let off on the 1st July 1898. When the father of the accused reported the matter to Mr. Rangachariar, the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi, no attention was paid to it. He thereupon paid to the Superintendent of the Jail at Trichinopoly Rs. 2, the amount of fine imposed on the prisoner, and obtained the release of his son. Twenty days elapsed in the interval. Who is responsible for the unlawful imprisonment of the prisoner for a space of twenty days! What has become of Rs. 2 recovered on the first occasion? We hope that the higher authorities will take due notice of this subject.

A grievance of a prisoner.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Aug. 6th, 1898.

5. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 13th August, complains that the police establishment of Tiruvarur is culpably negligent in the discharge of its duty and that in consequence wicked characters harass the people with impunity and some of the local merchants do not scruple to hoodwink the poor people of the place by using false weights and measures. The correspondent hopes that the higher authorities of the Police department will increase the number of constables to be posted at this place in view to enable the people to lead a comfortable life.

Remarks on the Tiruvarur police.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Aug. 13th, 1898.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 27th, 1898.

Changes to be made in the constitution and working of the Police training school at Vellore.

6. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th July, is of opinion that the training which Police officers have to undergo in the Vellore police school is not very efficient. The pupils in the school are for the most part either graduates in arts or experienced and efficient head constables. Instruction is imparted in the Evidence Act, Medical Jurisprudence and other legal studies, besides exercises in drill, gymnastics, measuring places and drawing plans thereof, etc.; the training in all these has to be completed in a course of three months. It is as difficult for the head constables to study the Evidence Act, Medical Jurisprudence, etc., as it is for the graduates fresh from the college to practically acquaint themselves in such a short time with police work and regulations and, therefore, to instruct both these sets of officers in the same class does not seem to be a very efficient measure. The article, therefore, suggests that some salutary changes should be made in the matter.

(b) Courts.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 24th, 1898.

Unjust transfer of a case from the file of the stationary magistrate, Calicut.

7. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th July, reports that, in compliance with the request of one Madathil Avulla, the complainant in a certain case before the stationary magistrate of Calicut, the said case was posted for hearing before the deputy magistrate of the town and that this transfer from the file of the former court was made in accordance with a false representation against Mr. Subramanya Iyer, pleader and the stationary magistrate, by the said complainant. Mr. Subramanya Iyer obtained sanction to prosecute the complainant, but the latter was let off on tendering an apology. The article considers it unjust that the transfer of the case from the file of the stationary magistrate should have been granted by the deputy magistrate under the circumstances detailed above, and that the complainant should have been thus let off.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 27th, 1898.

The vagaries of the District Judge of Tellicherry.

8. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th July, makes some remarks against the hasty and unsatisfactory disposal, by the District Judge of Tellicherry, of original and small cause suits which come for hearing before him. He does not sift evidence, but admits as true whatever karanavars of tarawad may depose to. The appearance and features of witnesses are not at all observed, no trouble is taken to ascertain the social and local customs and manners, and cases are disposed of at the rate of not less than thirty within three hours, to the great hardship and sorrow of the clients. Extraordinary value is attached in the disposal of cases to receipts of all kinds, regardless of their authenticity or otherwise. The attention of the High Court is invited to these vagaries of the District Judge.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 3rd, 1898.

Inconvenience of holding courts in amsams.

9. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 3rd August, dwells upon the inconvenience and increased expenses caused to the clients by the magistrates holding courts in amsams, when out on circuit in connection with revenue affairs. The article suggests that some arrangements should be made by the magistrates in order to minimise the inconvenience, etc., above mentioned.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Aug. 4th, 1898.

Dr. Suresh Chandar Sircar's murder.

10. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 4th August, refers to the punishment awarded to the murderer of Suresh Chandar Sircar at Calcutta, and observes that full justice has been done in the case. The Mukhbir hopes that this will serve as an example to the wicked-hearted "red-coats" who will in future abstain from committing acts likely to cast a slur on the fair name of their own community and that of their just and equitable Government, and winds up with a prayer that the name of the British Government may not be eclipsed.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Aug. 8th, 1898.

11. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 8th August, mentions that the Chingleput district police has requested the military authorities to make over the European soldier named Knight of the 19th Hussars, who shot a native lad on the 30th July, to them for trial, and observes that the accused will not meet with his deserts by whatever court he may be tried. These European oppressors regard natives as mere birds or animals. They are generally let off scot-free on some pretext or other or escape with slight punishment.

European murderers.

(d) Education.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 11th, 1898.

12. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th August, referring to an article written by the Principal of the Mannárgudi College published in the Madras Mail, suggesting the desirability of introducing an intermediate class for the students of the 3rd form on the score that they are not able to complete the prescribed portions of the text-books in the course of a year in the 3rd form, observes that a student in these days has to spend a period of 14 years before he passes the B.A. degree examination, whereas in former days a period of 12 years was enough to complete his scholastic learning, and that it is painful to note that the Principal of the Mannárgudi College is trying to make matters worse. The paper is of opinion that in spite of the costly and toilsome learning received by the young men of the present day, they find it extremely difficult to secure employment, and doubts whether so much of expense and so many years of study are absolutely necessary to acquire the knowledge required of a Bachelor of Arts. The paper concludes with the remark that unless the present system of education is reformed, no good is likely to result from it in the long run.

Reflections on the present system of education.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 6th, 1898.

13. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 6th August, writes from Tanúr that nearly the whole of the local Mappila community are uneducated and illiterate and likely, therefore, to cause trouble to the Government by their predisposition to commit riots, murders, robbery, etc., like the Mappilas of Ernad. It is, therefore, desirable that a board Mappila school should be permanently established in Tanúr. The Mappila janmies are in favour of such an institution, and the Government, it is hoped, will bestow its consideration on the matter.

The desirability of a board Mappila school in Tanúr.

(e) Local and Municipal.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Aug. 6th, 1898.

14. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 6th August, bitterly complains that the use of a piece of land adjoining the Public Workshop near Seven Wells as municipal conservancy cart-stand subjects the large number of workmen employed in the workshop and the large number of devotees resorting to the Dakshinamurthi Mutt in the neighbourhood to difficulties which can be better imagined than described, and is surprised to note that the Madras municipality has not taken the necessary steps for the removal of conservancy carts from the spot in question, although its attention was drawn to the nuisance complained of.

Inconvenience caused by the use of a spot in Madras as municipal conservancy cart-stand.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Aug. 10th, 1898.

15. The Desabhimani, of the 10th August, is surprised to see some of the overseers of the municipality of Cuddalore stationed in one and the same place for a period of about 15 years, whereas such revenue officers as the kurnams and the maniyamdars are often transferred from place to place, and concludes with the remark that allowing municipal overseers to remain in one and the same place for a considerable length of time is not calculated to promote the interests of the divisions they are in charge of.

Desirability of transferring municipal overseers from place to place.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 10th, 1898.

Latrines in Cocanada.

16. A "patriot" in the Andhraprakasika, of the 10th August, draws the attention of the municipal authorities to the great inconvenience felt by the poor townsfolk and the visitors (on business) of Cocanada and Jagannathapore for want of sufficient number of public latrines of good size. The municipality sold away the vacant open lands on the outskirts of those towns to people other than the resident inhabitants, and houses were built there to the discomfort of the old residents. More than 4,000 people live in those parts and the latrines there are hardly sufficient for their requirements. While this is so, the police under the pretence that they are directed by the higher authorities to report two cases of nuisance a day, go about every nook and corner and indiscriminately charge all people, whether old or infirm people, ignorant children or strangers, instead of warning them of the would-be consequences of a breach of the law and thus preventing the nuisance. He concludes with the prayer that the authorities would take pity upon the suffering people and stop the police nuisance and construct more latrines of larger size on the western side of these towns.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 6th, 1898.

A branch hospital to be opened in Calicut.

17. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 6th August, expresses the desirability of opening a branch hospital in Calicut in consideration of the large increase of persons that resort, both as in-patients and out-patients, to the existing local municipal hospital. The medical officer and his staff find it very difficult to cope with the work of the hospital and many patients are obliged to go away without being attended to. The opening of a new branch hospital at some desirable distance from the present hospital is as important as that of the poor-house, the necessity for which was advocated in the columns of this paper a few weeks ago. The article says that both these proposals demand the serious consideration of the municipal council and hopes to see them soon carried out.

Drawbacks of the public works department of the Calicut municipality.

18. A leader in the same paper dwells, at some length, upon the very unsatisfactory condition of the roads, drains, etc., in the municipality of Calicut, and regrets that the annual allotment of not less than 1,000 rupees made by the municipal council is injudiciously and unfairly spent. The article is of opinion that the overseer is to blame in the matter. The way in which the repairs of roads, drains, etc., are made leaves very much to be desired; in fact, it is doubtful whether any good is done to the roads, drains, etc., by the work executed by the municipality in connection therewith. The public works department of the municipality demands better attention and the article hopes that the council will bestow its consideration on the matter.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 8th, 1898.

Late embezzlement of the Malabar district board money.

19. A leader in the Manorama, of the 8th August, in commenting upon the late conviction of Assistant Engineer Donaghue, remarks that the large sum of 15,000 rupees, including pleaders' fees, has been lost to the district board of Malabar in connection with the said affair. Out of 15,000 rupees, the sum of 10,000 rupees, which is found to have been embezzled by the Assistant Engineer, together with another sum of 1,000 rupees recently found missing by the auditing officer, had been paid from the treasury on the authority of the cheque issued by the District Board Engineer. It was the District Engineer's duty to have seen that the money was properly spent. That he should not have been held responsible for the embezzlement of such a large sum seems to be strange. The article, in conclusion, hopes that, in future, expenditure on district board account will be duly supervised and regulated.

20. Another leader in the same issue of the paper reports that the results of the "A system" contract are far from being satisfactory, and that the continued practice of giving the road-repair contract to one man when the sum spent on the business amounts to over 2 lakhs of rupees is not advisable. Good results and gain to the municipality have resulted from calling for tenders from different persons for the execution of municipal work, and the article, therefore, suggests that the contract for the repair of roads in interior parts should be given to more persons than one. If the President of the district board does not take the necessary steps in the matter, the article hopes that the attention of the Government will be directed to it.

The "A system" contract to be superseded by contracts given severally to many.

21. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th August, complains of the inconvenience caused to the public by the delay in appointing a secretary to the Calicut municipal council and invites the attention of the Government to the matter.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 10th, 1898.

A secretary to be soon appointed to the Calicut municipality.

22. Another leader in the same issue of the paper endorses the remarks of the Kerala Patrika in connection with the unsatisfactory condition of the Calicut municipal public works and invites the attention of the chairman to the matter.

The Calicut municipal public works to be better executed.

23. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 1st August, refers to the repeated complaints made by the inhabitants of Mylapore to the effect that the water of the Buckingham canal percolates into the well water used by the inhabitants for drinking purposes and thus brings on elephantiasis. The Shams expresses concurrence with these views and requests Government to depute a qualified medical officer for inquiry.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1898.

The water of the Buckingham canal in Mylapore.

(h) Railways.

24. The Lokopakari, of the 29th July, regrets to note that the passengers of the Karikal-Peralam Railway are at a loss to know the person to whom they are to submit their grievances, as the railway in question is subject to the control of both the French and the English Governments, and hopes that some responsible officer will be appointed to be in charge of the said railway in view to redress the grievances of the poor passengers.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 29th, 1898.

Necessity for the appointment of a responsible officer to be in charge of the Karikal-Peralam Railway.

25. The Agnikulathithan, of the 13th August, regrets to observe that the South Indian Railway Company makes it a point to appoint as station masters Europeans and Eurasians in preference to natives and that such a policy is not commendable, seeing that European passengers on the South Indian Railway are comparatively very few in number and that the native passengers contribute largely to the enormous income of the company. The paper regrets also to remark that the signallers of the Telegraph department attached to the South Indian Railway are paid at the outset only 5 rupees which is but a pittance, whereas the signallers of the Madras Railway Company start with a pay of Rs. 17½. The paper concludes with the remark that the South Indian Railway Company does not provide the passengers during festivals with a sufficient number of carriages, and hopes that the authorities concerned will see their way to mend the matters here complained of.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Aug. 13th, 1898.

Complaints against the South Indian Railway Company.

26. The Jananukulan, of the 13th August, referring to a case in which the South Indian Railway Company declined to accept liability in respect of the loss of a portion of a consignment of paddy handed over to the servants of the company on the JANANUKULAN, Tuticorin, Aug. 13th, 1898.

Indifference of the South Indian Railway Company to cases of theft.

Máyavaram-Muttupet Railway line, regrets to remark that it is unjust on the part of the company to be indifferent to thefts committed on the railway without caring to bring to book the culprits with the aid of the railway police, and hopes that Government will bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 25th, 1898.

Recommending postponement of disputed cases in the remuneration for land acquired for railway purposes.

27. A leader in the Manorama, of the 25th July, urges the necessity of postponing, for at least three months, all cases of remuneration for land acquired for purposes of the railway line from Calicut to Cannanore, in which there is disagreement between the karanavars and the successors so as to enable them to settle in a competent court their claims for the acceptance of remuneration.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 6th, 1898.

Scarcity of water in Virudupatti and certain suggestions to mitigate the sufferings of the people.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th August, bitterly complaining about scarcity of water in Virudupatti, which has a population of about 16,000 inhabitants, says that, in consequence of scarcity of water the project of establishing cotton mills, which would have been the means of helping the poor in the town, was given up, and that the sufferings of the people are indeed very great. The correspondent suggests the desirability of supplying the town with sufficient water either by diverting the course of the water that used to flow through the forest to the north of the town, or by conveying to the town the water of the river Periyár through channels or pipes or by pumping out water from the sources of fresh water-supply in some of the places adjacent to the town.

(k) General.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, July 25th, 1898.

Remarks on the tours of Governors and Viceroys.

29. The Nilalochani, of the 25th July, speaking of the manifold advantages resulting from the tours made by Governors and Viceroys, observes that they will produce the desired effect only when the inhabitants are afforded all possible facilities to enable them to submit their grievances in person, and when the authorities making the tour travel in company with their Private Secretaries alone ten or fifteen miles into the interior on all sides of the places they choose to halt at and personally acquaint themselves with the real condition of the ryots, and that of their cattle, sources of water-supply, crops, etc., without being satisfied with visiting some public places here and there which are decorated in view to honour them. The paper concludes with the hope that His Excellency the Governor of this Presidency will be graciously pleased to find out the real wants of the people during his intended tour.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 2nd, 1898.

"Exchange compensation allowance."

30. The Sasilekha, of the 2nd August, mentions that the Secretary of State for India has ruled that the Members of the Viceroy's Council and of the Legislative Councils of Bombay and Madras are not entitled to the exchange compensation allowance. As a recompense for this the salaries of the Members of the Governor-General's Council are increased from Rs. 6,400 to Rs. 6,666, and those of the Councils of Bombay and Madras from Rs. 5,120 to Rs. 5,333. The paper observes that, while large portions of the population of this country are painfully suffering for not being able to pay the cist and while a multitude of people are starving for want of food, the salaries of the English officials are nevertheless raised.

Recent Postal Regulations.

31. The same paper characterises the attitude of the Government towards the vernacular press as uncharitable and arbitrary. It observes that the Government revised its Acts to repress the so-called seditious tone of the press in Northern

India, and that the Bombay Government appointed a committee of censors to watch the press there. Fortunately for us, says the paper, there is not the least ground for suspicion of sedition among us, but yet the Government by its recent changes furthered the convenience of the English papers and curtailed the privileges of the vernacular papers. It was hitherto usual to charge on newspapers an half-anna for ten tolas and one quarter of an anna for less than three tolas. By the recent modification six pies are charged for twenty tolas and three pies for four tolas. It exposes the disproportion involved in charging three pies for four tolas, while only six pies are charged for twenty tolas, and surmises that it is perhaps the intention of the Government that the vernacular papers should be of the present small size and that these papers should never be able to use better paper or secure more advertisements and thereby become prosperous.

Speaking of another alteration, that is, the abolition of the "privilege system," the paper criticises the reflection of the Madras Mail that the vernacular papers played false in giving the postal authorities wrong information as to the number of subscribers at the end of the month and then in actually posting more papers than the given number of subscribers. It flatly denies the statement and argues that before the beginning of the month the proprietor reports to the head office that a certain number of papers will be posted and this information is transmitted to the sub-offices which receive the papers not exceeding what is mentioned in the report. How can any fraud occur? Fraud is possible only when the subordinate and superior officers of the post office conspire with the proprietors of papers, taking bribes from them. It concludes with an appeal to the editors of the vernacular papers that they should send in a joint memorial to the Government on this subject. Otherwise the Indian National Congress should take up the question and communicate its resolution thereon to the Government of India.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 9th, 1898.

The Zamindari of Vizianagram.

32. The Sasilekha, of the 9th August, says that though some general good has resulted from the appointment of Mr. Willock as Collector in charge of the Vizianagram estate, yet the poor have suffered seriously. He has dismissed 200 petty officials in the service of the estate. These unfortunates, being at a loss to find a means of livelihood elsewhere, are loudly lamenting. Besides these, a number of others had their salaries cut short. This misfortune has fallen to the lot of only those getting Rs. 30 and less. Many are paid now less than Rs. 10. It is a practice of the Government to reduce the allowances of sweepers and other menial servants, whenever expenditure is required to be cut short. Mr. Willock has just followed the example of the Government in this respect. The zamindari annually yields about 22 lakhs of rupees. Deducting 10 lakhs for peshcush and other expenses, there is left a balance of 12 lakhs. While the highly paid idlers are left to themselves, the unfortunate wretches living from hand-to-mouth, maintaining themselves and their families with a paltry sum of four annas a day, are at once ruined. This is the beneficial result of Mr. Willock's administration! It is certainly a sad disappointment. The paper prays that Her Highness, the mother of the late Maharaja, may interfere and protect the many miserable families!

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 25th, 1898.

Nambudiris not necessary to perform certain religious rites in Benares.

33. A leader in the Manorama, of the 25th July, remarks that the order passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces to the effect that other Brahmans than the Nambudiris of Malabar may well be allowed to perform the religious rites of the "Badaryashram" temple of Benares is rather unjust, and suggests that the Nambudiris should submit a petition to the Lieutenant-Governor regarding the matter. If their prayer is not granted by him, the article suggests that the Government of India may be petitioned in respect of the matter, and hopes that the necessary inquiry will be made by that Government through the Government of Madras.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 30th, 1898.

34. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 30th July, makes the suggestion that the Collector of Malabar and the District Superintendent of Police will do well to cause a proclamation to be made by the religious heads of the Mappila community that, in their opinion, any person may be allowed the liberty of forsaking their religion when, after embracing it, he loses his faith in it. A notice to this effect must also be put up in the Mappila mosques. The article is of opinion that such a step will act as a preventive against any fanatical outbursts consequent upon the recent conversion of one Krishnan Vydier to the Mappila religion and his subsequent apostasy therefrom.

To cause a certain proclamation to be made by the religious heads of the Mappila community.

35. A leader in the same paper suggests that in view to the improvement of the unsatisfactory working of the branch post offices, competent persons should be employed as postmasters on an increased salary, with a definite understanding that they should not have other business also to attend to.

Recommending increase of salary to branch postmasters.

36. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper invites the attention of the tahsildar to the inconvenience caused to the people by the Chéváyúr stamp-vendor not residing there, and suggests that either a new stamp-vendor should be appointed at Thondayatt, an important locality of Chéváyúr, or that the Chéváyúr stamp-vendor be transferred to Thondayatt.

Suggestion regarding Chéváyúr stamp-vendor.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1898.

37. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 1st August, complains that though under the Police Act kite-flying is penal, yet this offence is committed in Madras. People of all ages fly kites even on public roads and in front of police constables with impunity and cause great inconvenience and trouble to passers-by as well as injury to telegraph and tramway wires. The Shams suggests the advisability of putting a stop to the sale of kites by declaring sellers of kites punishable.

Kite-flying in Madras.

38. The same paper says:—The 12th of Rabi-ul-Aval, which is the birthday of the prophet, is as sacred with Muhammadans as Christmas day is with Christians, and requests Government to include it in the list of gazetted holidays granted to Muhammadans.

The 12th of Rabi-ul-Aval, the third month of the Muhammadan year.

ALHAMI, Madras, July 31st, 1898.

39. The Alhami, of the 31st July, has an extract from the Paisa Akhbar, of Lahore, to the effect that indebtedness of India has reached such an extent that a step further in this direction will reduce that country to bankruptcy. If the method of the present administration is not thoroughly amended, famine and frontier war will invariably recur every fifth and second year respectively, necessitating the contraction of further loans. How long will bankers advance money and on what terms? If the increase in the national debt keeps on progressing in the present rates, India will surely become unable to pay even the interest. The Paisa winds up the article with a remark that the idea of contracting loans should be given up and savings should be effected for liquidating the present debt. Otherwise the prestige of Government will suffer.

Indebtedness of India.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Aug. 4th, 1898.

40. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 4th August, notes with great pleasure the appointment of Mr. Muhammad Raza Khan, of the Provincial Civil Service, as a pukka Collector, and observes that the native community owes a deep debt of gratitude to His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock for making this appointment.

Appointment of Muhammad Raza Khan as a permanent District Collector.

III.—Legislation.

41. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 13th August, deprecates the idea of codifying the Hindu and Muhammadan laws on the ground that such a codification would tend to stereotype the existing evil customs and will hinder the silent influence of social and political changes from bringing about a wholesome reform. On the other hand to embody the changes that are silently taking place in these two societies in the code would give a shock to the feelings of the orthodox who always form the majority of a community.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Aug. 13th, 1898.

Codification of the personal laws of natives of India.

IV.—Native States.

42. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th August, says that the Nizam commanded the minister some weeks ago to relieve certain high officials of their appointments, but that for reasons best known to himself the minister has not carried out the orders of His Highness. The paper wonders how the Nizam could brook such disobedience in his minister and thinks that the minister might have the support of the Resident.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 8th, 1898.

The Nizam's Minister disobeying the orders of the Nizam.

43. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st August, raises several objections to the proposed selection of a bride for His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore from among the Rajput princesses. In the first place, it says, there will be a difference of religion which is a serious matter. Then there is the question of language, the Maharaja's mother-tongue being Canarese, and that of a Rajput princess, the Hindustani. There can be no common means of communication until the princess learns Canarese or English or the Maharaja himself becomes able to converse in Hindustani. Then again the customs of Northern India are different from those prevailing in this part of the country, and the people of the north are not so far advanced as those of Mysore. For these reasons the paper thinks it would be better for the happiness of His Highness that a bride should be selected from Mysore itself.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 1st, 1898.

Objections against the selection of a bride from the north for His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore.

44. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 4th August, says that the amount of money expended on the Maharani's girls' school, Mysore, is disproportionately large owing to the maintenance of an F.A. class for three girls who are induced to continue their studies by means of large scholarships, and thinks that it is a great mistake to maintain a costly staff of teachers for such a meagre F.A. class, the students of which do not seem to have sufficiently advanced to successfully pass such a difficult examination as the F.A. of the Madras University.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Aug. 4th, 1898.

Maharani's girls' school, Mysore.

45. The Suryodaya, of the 12th August, says that in view of the fact that the people of Mysore are becoming poorer year after year, owing to various kinds of taxes, and also seeing that the country is rich in minerals, it is highly desirable that a mining school should be established in the province to teach the people to utilize this mineral wealth and also to give useful occupation to a portion of the population.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, Aug. 12th, 1898.

Desirability of establishing a mining school in Mysore.

46. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 23rd July, disapproves of the proposed measure to constitute the land extending to the east of Muthalapura and to the west of Puthenvalikkara, to a distance of a mile and having a breadth of a mile and-a-half, into a Government reserved forest, on the ground that many tenants have built houses there and laid the land under cultivation; besides the proposed tract of land affords pasture to cattle. The article, therefore, appeals to the present Diwan not to constitute the land into a reserved forest merely for the sake of the few teak trees that grow there.

Malayala Manorama, Kottayam, July 23rd, 1898.

Praying that a certain tract of land may not be constituted a reserved forest.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam Aug. 6th, 1898.

47. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 6th August, invites the attention of the Government of Madras to the wholesale and unfair employment, in the Cochin service, of not less than thirty Brahmans from outside the Cochin State, and to the fact that the Brahman influence in the Cochin Huzur Cutcherry has very much increased since Mr. Swaminatha Iyer's appointment as Acting Diwan.

Wholesale employment of Brahmans in the Cochin service.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SOUTH INDIAN MITRAN, Dindigul, Aug. 5th, 1898.

48. The South Indian Mitran, of the 5th August, comparing at length the present poor condition of the soil with its fertility in the past, observes that agriculture suffers in the main in consequence of the facts that in certain places only a limited quantity of water is allowed to flow into wet lands, that dry lands are irrigated at the expense of wet lands, that cattle become emaciated and die for want of sufficient fodder as they are not allowed to enter forests even in places where there are no grazing grounds, that manure has become very dear and costly owing to the severity of Forest laws, and that ryots, under the present system, find it very difficult to get loans under the Agriculturists' and Land Improvement Loans Acts. The paper requests Government to arrange for the better irrigation of wet lands, to allow in the forests certain grazing grounds for cattle, to permit the ryots to get leaves, etc., from the forests for purposes of manure, to adopt the necessary measures for breeding good oxen and to empower the village munsifs themselves to grant loans to the ryots in view to enable the latter to carry on their agricultural operations with success.

Certain suggestions to Government for alleviating the sufferings of the ryots.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 1st, 1898.

49. A leader in the Manorama, of the 1st August, reports that there is no prospect of good crops in Malabar this year owing to the failure of rain when it was needed and its excess when it was not required. The cultivators sink into debt and the opinion that the crops of Malabar are in a flourishing condition is not warranted by fact. It is hoped that the Government will take the trouble to ascertain the real state of the crops.

The crops of Malabar in no flourishing condition.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 2nd, 1898.

50. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd August, observes as follows:—It is an undoubted fact that the Hindus entertain a very low opinion of Lord George Hamilton, the Secretary of State for India, inasmuch as his attitude towards India and her children is anything but satisfactory. It is to be regretted that he has done nothing to deserve the gratitude of the Hindus, and that he never forgets to eulogise the merits of the European members of the Indian Civil Service and to speak disparagingly of the Hindus whenever there is any opportunity for him to do so. Respectable men in England have begun to hate him in consequence of his having condemned Lord Ripon whose meritorious services to India are embalmed in the memory of the Hindus to this day. His statement that sedition has been thoroughly rooted out of India presupposes that the Hindus from the Himalayas to the Cape Comorin were disloyal and that he and the Government of India endeavoured to cause to disappear such a mischievous element. No one who has correctly understood the condition of this country and the character of its inhabitants can never be led to believe that the Hindus are disloyal. It is Sir George Hamilton that is answerable for any discontent on the part of the people of this country caused by the irregularities of the Government of India. In fine, the words and actions of the Secretary of State for India are unbecoming the dignity of the position he holds. In these circumstances, the people of this country are of opinion that a great blunder was committed in appointing Lord George Hamilton as Secretary of State for India in preference to a number of competent persons liked by the Hindus.

Remarks on Lord George Hamilton.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th August, says that lepers in Madras prove to be a great nuisance to the public inasmuch as they resort to public places freely either begging or otherwise engaged. The paper suggests to Government the desirability of detaining them in the Government Lepers' Hospital and remarks that they do not seem to care for the police. The paper hopes that the Madras public will erect a building for lepers and adopt measures for detaining therein forcibly such of the lepers as are found straying about in public places, after obtaining the necessary permission from Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 6th, 1898.

Advisability of compulsory segregation of lepers in Madras.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th August, hears that some of the people of Trichinopoly intend to spend the amount of subscription collected to accord a fitting reception to His Excellency the Governor on fireworks and other diversions, and hopes that His Excellency would discourage such waste of money on things which are calculated to give only a temporary sensuous pleasure.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 8th, 1898.

Waste of money on fireworks, etc., on the occasion of His Excellency the Governor's tour.

53. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st August, expresses satisfaction that Mr. A. M. Bose has been invited to preside at the next meeting of the National Congress and that the public of Madras have already commenced work in connection with the meeting. It then points out the various questions that are pressing on the attention of the people, which should be discussed at the coming congress meeting, and remarks thus—

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 1st, 1898.

Work for the next meeting of the National Congress.

(1) There is the frontier policy which brought about the war, and cost a large sum of money and many valuable lives and was quite uncalled for. The congress should insist upon a definite policy being laid down which the Government should be bound to follow.

(2) Then there is the currency question. The present haphazard way in which monetary matters are managed is a disgrace to the rulers and to the country.

(3) Then the plague regulations will have to be discussed. These have given much annoyance to the people.

(4) In the next place the restrictions put upon the press require to be considered, and the absurd meddling with the press should be rectified.

(5) Then as regards Madras the Tenancy Bill, which in its present form does not seem to please the people, should be modified.

54. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th August, is very glad to observe that Her Majesty the Queen, Empress of India, has conveyed to the Sultan Ali Raja of Cannanore, through the Secretary of State for India, her special thanks for the address and casket sent by the Raja as a mark of loyalty to Her Majesty. The article says that dissatisfaction is expressed by the people, in general, owing to the island of Laccadives not being restored to the Sultan.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 10th, 1898.

The Laccadives to be restored to Sultan Ali Raja of Cannanore.

ERRATA.

In the Report on Vernacular Newspapers for fortnight ending 31st July 1898—

Page 217, paragraph 5, line 2—for the word "re-formation" read "reformation."

Page 218, paragraph 10, line 4—for the word "practising" read "practicing."

Issued 23rd August 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 16 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st August 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|---|---|
| I.—Foreign Politics. | |
| The situation in China .. .. .. .. .. .. | 247 |
| The new Viceroy of India .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Amir of Kabul .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The Far Eastern question .. .. .. .. .. | ib |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| A complaint against Police officers at public fairs .. | ib. |
| Rowdyism of Mappilas in Calicut .. .. .. .. | 248 |
| Suggestion to check police high-handedness in rural parts .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Unjust decision of the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, in the matter of certain police irregularities .. | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| A complaint against the district munsif of Tiruvarur .. | ib. |
| A complaint against most of the existing village munsifs and magistrates .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| A complaint against the jurisdiction of the District Munsif's Court at Periyakulam .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| A remark on the Hon'ble Mr. Justice J. A. Davies .. | 249 |
| A remark on the Madras High Court .. .. .. | ib. |
| Acquittal of Europeans who shoot natives .. .. | ib. |
| Rude behaviour of the second-class magistrate of British Cochin .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| District munsif of Panur unacquainted with Malayalam. | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| Mappila education .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The passing of a resolution in the Senate of the Bombay University .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 250 |
| Education of Mappilas .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| Certain suggestions to the Negapatam municipality .. | ib. |
| A suggestion to the taluk board of Negapatam .. .. | ib. |
| A suggestion to the Madras municipality .. .. | ib. |
| Complaint about the unsatisfactory nature of water-supply at Dindigul .. .. .. .. .. | 251 |
| Plague-panic at Anantapur .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Plague-panic in Bellary .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The plague preventive measures in Bangalore .. .. | ib. |
| How plague was introduced in Bangalore .. .. | ib. |
| A leper-house in Calicut desirable .. .. .. | 252 |
| Laying of water-pipes in Bangalore .. .. .. | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Nil. | |
| (h) Railways— | |
| Inequitable remuneration for lands acquired for railway purposes .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Insufficient remuneration for lands and houses acquired for railway purposes .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |

| | Page |
|---|---|
| II.—Home Administration—cont. | |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Nil. | |
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Remarks on the Registration department .. .. | 253 |
| A suggestion to Government regarding the measures to be adopted for preventing the spread of the plague .. | 253 |
| Desirability of adopting the necessary measures to prevent the spread of cholera in the taluk of Tiruppattúr .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| A suggestion to the Madras Electric Tramway Company. | ib. |
| Remarks relating to the Hon'ble Mr. Crole .. .. | ib. |
| Famine, pestilence and fire .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Increase of sickness in Madras .. .. .. .. | 254 |
| Grievances of karnams .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| To improve the condition of the Temmalpuram branch post office .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 255 |
| Transferring of postal runners .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Office quarters to be provided for Nemmara branch post office .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Reduction of postal charges on newspapers .. .. | ib. |
| A suspected case of plague in Madras .. .. .. | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| Necessity for legislation regarding the management of temple endowments .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Inadvisability of compulsory vaccination .. .. .. | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Changes in the Mysore local service examination rules .. | 256 |
| Fraud practised by one Narayana Pattar in the Native Cochin State .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Bribery and corruption in Travancore .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Complaint against the Nemmara police in Cochin State .. | 257 |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| The condition of the people of the taluk of Tiruvannámalai. | ib. |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Reflections on the bubonic plague .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Religious tracts in circulation .. .. .. .. | 258 |
| The coming Viceroy .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Plague preventive measures to be adopted in Bangalore .. | ib. |
| Tours of Governors .. .. .. .. .. .. | 259 |
| The speeches of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock during his tour .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The new Viceroy .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Preparations for the next meeting of the congress at Madras. | ib. |
| Our next Viceroy .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Plague preventive measures .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The pier in Calicut to be either repaired or demolished .. | 260 |

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Vidya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 150 | June and July 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 1st Aug. 1898. |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th " " |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 4 | "South India Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 15th and 25th Aug. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 5 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 20th and 27th Aug. 1898. |
| 6 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 20th " 27th " " |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th " 24th " " |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 21st Aug. 1898. |
| 9 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 20th and 27th Aug. 1898. |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 17th " 24th " " |
| 11 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 15th " 29th " " |
| 12 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 400 | 15th, 22nd and 29th Aug. 1898. |
| 13 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 20th Aug. 1898. |
| 14 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 15th " " |
| 15 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 450 | 13th and 20th Aug. 1898. |
| 16 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 15th " 22nd " " |
| 17 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 31st July and 14th and 28th Aug. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 16th, 18th, 20th, 23rd, 25th, 27th and 30th Aug. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | July and Aug. 1898. |
| 20 | "Satva Sadhani" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 250 | 31st Aug. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 21 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 1st March 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 13th and 20th Aug. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 16th, 19th, 23rd, 26th and 30th Aug. 1898. |
| 24 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 17th, 20th, 24th and 27th Aug. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 15th, 22nd and 29th Aug. 1898. |
| 26 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 20th and 27th Aug. 1898. |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 18th " 25th " " |
| 28 | "Karnataka Kesari" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 15th " 29th " " |
| 29 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. | 400 | 26th Aug. 1898. |
| 30 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 800 | 17th and 24th Aug. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasséri .. .. | 600 | 5th and 15th Aug. 1898. |
| 32 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 900 | 13th Aug. 1898. |
| 33 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 400 | 10th and 20th Aug. 1898. |
| 34 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 1st, 11th and 21st Aug. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 35 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 13th and 20th Aug. 1898. |
| 36 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 570 | 15th " 22nd " " |
| 37 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 17th " 24th " " |
| 38 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 740 | 13th, 20th and 27th Aug. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 39 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 15th and 22nd Aug. 1898. |
| 40 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 6th, 13th and 20th Aug. 1898. |
| 41 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 15th and 15th Aug. 1898. |
| 42 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 14th " 21st " " |
| 43 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 18th " 25th " " |
| 44 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 4th, 8th, 11th and 15th Aug. 1898. |
| 45 | "Munshur-i-Muhammadi" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 400 | 17th May 1898. |
| 46 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 5th and 20th Aug. 1898. |
| 47 | "Ain-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | July 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 15th August, speaking of the situation in China, says that the rivalry between Russia and England is likely to lead to a war, and thinks that the object of England in China should be to train the native Chinese to withstand any attacks from the outside. It believes that the Chinese would make good soldiers if properly trained and led. But it is hoped that a settlement would be made of the disputes in the Far East without resort to war, although the outlook at present is gloomy.

The situation in China.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 16th, 1898.

2. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 18th August, in discussing at great length the appointment of Mr. Curzon, M.P., to the Viceroyalty of India, writes that it is evident from the new Viceroy's views expressed on different occasions that he is an advocate of the Forward Policy, but that in consideration of the present financial crisis in India, it is possible that he will give up that policy. It is hoped that he will act in such a way as to make himself popular and that he will look to the comfort of the poor Indian ryot.

The new Viceroy of India.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Aug. 18th, 1898.

3. The same paper quotes an article from the Habl-ul-Matun, of Calcutta, of which the following is an excerpt:—The Amir, with a view to become absolutely independent, wants to have an ambassador of his in London, and to carry out this project he is about to send letters on the subject with a special embassy to London. But the Amir's success in this direction is doubtful, inasmuch as the English Cabinet generally and the Secretary of State in particular are against such an arrangement. It is alleged that the frontier war is the outcome of the Amir's displeasure at not having hitherto succeeded in his attempts. If the Amir does not succeed in his present mission to London, there is a probability that some new war will take place on the frontier. There will be no peace on the frontier unless the Amir attains his object of becoming an independent sovereign, though he is in some respects independent still in foreign affairs he is not so, for he cannot communicate with other powers except with the permission of the British Government.

The Amir of Kabul.

4. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 25th August, in regard to the Far Eastern question, writes that, in consequence of the line of policy adopted by China and of the state of her ministers, her corrupt and improvident officers and of her ill-disciplined and disorganized military force, there is every probability that the country will be broken up and distributed amongst several European powers. The conquest of Persia and of the Persian Gulf was the great aim of Peter the Great and other succeeding Emperors of Russia. Russia has to some extent been successful in her attempts and has conquered a greater portion of the Persian Empire. England is by herself a single power. She is matchless in her naval power but her land force is not equally good. The frontier wars are just ended. There has been a great loss of lives and money in this operation. It is now advisable for England to strengthen her land force.

The Far Eastern question.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Aug. 25th, 1898.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. A correspondent to the Satya Vartamani, of the 15th August, bitterly complains that at public fairs held at Tirumangalam, Usilampatti, Chekkanúttu and other places, Police officers do not scruple to receive bribes from merchants and connive at their using false weights and measures, and concludes with the remark that the higher officers do not attend such fairs and exercise due control over their subordinate officials. The

A complaint against Police officers at public fairs.

Satya Vartamani, Pasumalai, Aug. 15th, 1898.

correspondent hopes that the authorities will bestow due attention on this subject and redress the grievance of the poor people that resort to such public fairs.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1898.

Rowdyism of Mappilas in Calicut.

6. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 13th August, reports that the people of the Vella and Natakkavu Deshoms of Calicut are troubled much by the notorious bad characters among the Mappilas of those places and invites the attention of the police to the matter.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 24th, 1898.

Suggestion to check police high-handedness in rural parts.

7. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th August, dwells at great length upon the abuse of power by head constables in remote rural parts in their dealings with the innocent and illiterate people of those parts and suggests, as a partial check to their high-handedness, the creation of wealthy, honest and respectable bench-magistrates in those places. The successful working of the Panchayat system in rural parts warrants the adoption of some such course. The attention of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter.

Unjust decision of the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, in the matter of certain police irregularities.

8. A leader in the same issue of the paper referring to the decision that was arrived at by the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, in the matter of certain irregularities which prevailed in his office and which were recently brought to light, says that the decision of the Superintendent, which resulted in the transfer of the Reserve Police Inspector Mr. Walter to Cuddapah, was unjust and unsatisfactory; and attributes it to his incapacity and inefficiency. It appears that Mr. Walter had brought certain serious charges against the Head-quarter Inspector, but the Superintendent without either examining the records or persons referred to in the charges disposed of the matter on the strength of the explanation given by the Head-quarter Inspector. The article while commenting upon the subject makes the suggestion that at this juncture an able and strict Superintendent of Police is required in Malabar.

(b) Courts.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1898.

A complaint against the district munsif of Tiruvarur.

9. The Lokopakari, of the 21st August, complains that parties are put to no small inconvenience and difficulties in obtaining copies of judgments in the District Munsif's Court at Tiruvarur, and referring to an instance in which a party was not, even till the month of August, furnished with a copy of the judgment delivered in a certain case in January last, asks —"What can the parties wishing to prefer appeals do, if there is such an inordinate delay in furnishing them with copies of judgments?" The paper hopes that the district munsif of Tiruvarur will set matters right in the interest of the poor parties that resort to his court.

A complaint against most of the existing village munsifs and magistrates.

10. The same paper complains that many of the village munsifs and magistrates at present are utterly incapable of discharging the duties they are entrusted with and possess little or no knowledge of even their own vernaculars, and that, in consequence of such a state of things, the poor villagers are subject to great inconvenience and the higher officers to unnecessary trouble, and hopes that Government will bestow its much-needed attention on the subject and adopt the necessary measures for appointing as village munsifs and magistrates competent men possessing a fair knowledge of their vernaculars and of law.

SOUTH INDIA MITRAN, Dindigul, Aug. 25th, 1898.

A complaint against the jurisdiction of the District Munsif's Court at Periyakulam.

11. The South India Mitran, of the 25th August, complains that the authorities have included within the jurisdiction of the new District Munsif's Court at Periyakulam the Revenue circle of Nilakkóttai and a portion of Kannivádi, which is a source of great inconvenience to the parties coming from those places, as Periyakulam is far away from them, and suggests the desirability of including them within the jurisdiction of the District Munsif's Court at Dindigul. The paper hopes that the legal practitioners, the zamindars, the mittadars and the people will memorialize the Sessions Judge on the subject pointing out the blunder committed by the authorities in fixing the jurisdiction of the District Munsif's Court under reference.

A remark on the Honourable Mr. Justice J. A. Davies.

12. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th August, referring to the poignant remark passed by the Honourable Mr. Justice J. A. Davies a few days ago regarding an advocate of the Madras High Court, observes that the remark refers not only to the particular vakil who erred in the opinion of the Judge but also to the whole class of vakils. The paper thinks that such a sweeping remark reflecting discredit upon the bar as a whole, while only a particular individual is deserving of censure, is unjustifiable, and asks —"Would the Judge have behaved in this manner if he were in England?"

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 25th, 1898.

A remark on the Madras High Court.

13. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th August, observes as follows:—We regret to hear that the Honourable Mr. Justice Davies of the Madras High Court foams at the mouth with rage particularly during the afternoon and ill-treats the members of the bar. He put to disgrace an advocate of the Madras High Court by remarking that everything that fell from his lips was a lie. This was not the first instance in which the Judge lost his temper in this manner. On a former occasion he was unusually angry with a vakil named Mr. Desika Charriar while the latter was reading certain records and remarked that he would suspend him. Is the Judge empowered to do so? We know of a time when the late Justice Sir Muthusawmy Iyer and others were Judges they behaved nobly and never lost their temper. It is a pity that the dignity of the Madras High Court is gradually disappearing in consequence of want of patience on the part of the Honourable Mr. Justice Davies. It is desirable that all the members of the Madras High Court Bar —Vakils and Barristers—should co-operate in adopting the necessary measures to set matters right.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 27th, 1898.

Acquittal of Europeans who shoot natives.

14. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd August, says that a new reason has been found out for acquitting Europeans who shoot Indians, and that is the "faulty construction of the gun."

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

Rude behaviour of the second-class magistrate of British Cochin.

15. A leader in the Nazrani Dipika, of the 20th August, remarks that the second-class magistrate of British Cochin behaves rather rudely towards the clients, specially Christians, and warns him not to continue the practice.

[NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanam, Aug. 20th, 1898.

District munsif of Panur unacquainted with Malayalam.

16. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 27th August, writes that the parties in the Panur Munsif's Court are put to great inconvenience owing to the munsif being unacquainted with the Malayalam language.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 27th, 1898.

(d) Education.

Mappila education.

17. A leader in the Manorama, of the 15th August, while approving, in general, of the measures for improving the system of Mappila education adopted by the Government on consideration of the reports on the subject, submitted by the Collector of Malabar and the Director of Public Instruction, remarks that it is not very desirable to teach Mappila boys in Primary schools exclusively intended for them. It will afford an additional incentive to an industrious application to their studies, and will create in them a healthy spirit of rivalry and emulation, if they be taught in schools along with their Hindu brethren.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 15th, 1898.

The article also takes objection to the proposal not to appoint Malayali Hindus as inspectors of Mappila schools, and it considers it unnecessary to appoint separate persons as inspectors of ordinary schools and Mappila schools. An inspector who has charge of both kinds of school is able to find out, on comparison, the drawbacks of a particular sort and is therefore in a position to remove them accordingly.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1898.

A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th August, referring to the same subject, remarks that the proposed system of Mappila education is well calculated to accomplish the object aimed at.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 17th, 1898.

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 17th August, in connection with the same subject, says that it does not see what purpose is served by the reservation that Hindus other than Malayalis are eligible to be appointed as inspectors of Mappila schools.

ALHAMI, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1898.

18. The Alhami, of the 21st August, in writing that an important resolution has been, at the suggestion of Mr. Ranade, passed by the Senate of the Bombay University to the effect that candidates who fail in an examination shall be allowed to appear again for examination in those subjects only in which they fail, observes that this change will tend to the development of education and increase the number of qualified candidates.

The passing of a resolution in the Senate of the Bombay University.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

19. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 22nd August, in regard to the measures recommended by the Director of Public Instruction for the education of Mappilas, states that the Mappilas will be much benefited and that Government will be relieved of any apprehensions as to further outbreaks, if the above suggestions take practical shape.

Education of Mappilas.

(e) Local and Municipal.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Aug. 15th, 1898.

20. The Nilalochani, of the 15th August, bitterly complains that the sufferings of the people of Negapatam can be better imagined than described owing to want of good water-supply, although there exist in the town very many tanks most of which are absolutely useless for drinking purposes. The paper observes that the municipality of Negapatam is not prepared to undertake water-works as they are likely to cost about ten lakhs of rupees, and concludes with the remark that the municipality, which seems to spare no pains in preparing good and smooth roads for the use of coaches and bicycles, will do well to turn its attention to the improvement of the existing tanks some of which will meet the pressing demands of the public, provided that the people are prevented from bathing in them and that they are duly supplied with fresh water from time to time by opening feeder channels and adopting other necessary measures.

Certain suggestions to the Negapatam municipality.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1898.

21. The Lokopakari, of the 21st August, draws the attention of the President of the Negapatam taluk board to the wretched condition of road No. 35 on the frontier of Mudikondan, Nannilam taluk, and hopes that an amin will be appointed to see if the cocoanut and other trees standing on the said road are properly supplied with water and are in good condition.

A suggestion to the taluk board of Negapatam.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 23rd, 1898.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd August, observes as follows:—It is the Madras municipality that is responsible for the sanitation of the city specially at this time when cholera has made its appearance and increased doubly the rate of mortality. It is a pity that while the Madras municipality is very careful in taking to task those who violate the provisions of the Municipal Act, it does not exercise sufficient supervision over its own servants. It is desirable that the municipality should keep the streets clean and thus teach the inmates of dwelling houses the necessity of observing the laws of sanitation in the interior of their places of residence. We do not see the reason why the municipality should keep the lanes and alleys unclean, while it is overcareful in keeping the Beach Road as clean as possible. It is to be regretted that the city is sadly wanting in public latrines. It is expedient that a public latrine should be constructed on the bank of the Cooum river near the Sub-Registrar's office on the Mount Road at any rate.

A suggestion to the Madras municipality.

23. The South India Mitran, of the 25th August, bitterly complains that the difficulties experienced by the people of Dindigul to secure a sufficient supply of good water can be better imagined than described, in spite of the facts that Government has spent to the extent of Rs. 85,00,000 on water-works and that a separate water-tax is being levied. The paper also remarks that the Police authorities of the place are not able to detect and bring to book the wicked characters who do not scruple to stop the service pipes with pegs and deprive the people of the use they may have of even the little water that is available there, and hopes that the Chairman of the Dindigul municipality will bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

South India Mitran, Dindigul, Aug. 25th, 1898.

Complaint about the unsatisfactory nature of water-supply at Dindigul.

24. A correspondent from Anantapur to the Sasilekha, of the 26th August, says that the people of the town, having heard of three deaths from plague at Guntakal, are alarmed, and that the Ceded districts on the borders of the Presidency of Bombay being generally insanitary, the authorities should direct their special attention to them. The very word mari (plague) is striking terror into the hearts of the people there.

Sasilekha, Madras, Aug. 26th, 1898.

Plague-panic at Anantapur.

25. A correspondent to the same paper says that the fear of the epidemic has, as everywhere else, been harassing the minds of the people in Bellary. The Collector has directed the municipality to let him know whether it would be advisable to appoint civil officers or military officers to detect persons attacked by the disease. Dr. Williams, the medical officer, has proposed, Mr. Abraham seconding him, at a meeting of the municipal council, that military officers should be appointed. While two of the members were neutral, Mr. V. Ramachandra Rau, the Revenue officer, and the remaining councillors declared it would be prudent to appoint only civil officers, stating that the very presence of, and the hubbub created by, military officers might cause terror to the people. It was, therefore, the opinion of the meeting that plague measures would be better carried out if civil officers were appointed and a few Hindu and Muhammadan gentlemen were asked to assist them. If Mr. J. T. Lever, the present Treasury Deputy Collector of the place, who is able to speak Telugu well, were delegated to this duty, it would be possible for him to satisfy the people and take them peaceably to the distant hospitals. The misfortunes and troubles of Bombay were all due to the appointment of the military officers. The correspondent concludes with the prayer that the Government would appoint only civil officers and not others.

Plague-panic in Bellary.

26. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th August, finds fault with the plague authorities for not issuing the plague notifications sufficiently early before the actual appearance of the epidemic in the city (Bangalore) to prepare the minds of the people for the appearance of the dread visitor, and so as to allow them time to point out what was objectionable in the regulations and have it changed.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 29th, 1898.

The plague preventive measures in Bangalore.

27. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 24th August, thinks that the appearance of the plague in Bangalore was due to the laxity of the plague inspecting doctors at railway stations and their allowing the servants of Europeans to come into the town from infected places without due examination.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Aug. 24th, 1898.

How plague was introduced in Bangalore.

KARNATAKA KESARI, Bangalore, Aug. 29th, 1898.

The Karnataka Kesari also expresses the belief that it was due to the neglect of the plague inspecting officers at the railway stations that plague cases were allowed to enter into the city of Bangalore, and hopes that stricter vigilance would be exercised hereafter at least.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1898.

28. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 13th August, is glad to notice that the Calicut municipal council is concerting measures to give vagrant lepers a separate house to live in, to prevent their mingling with others in thickly-peopled bazaars and markets. The article suggests that care should be taken to see that the proposed leper-house is situate in a sufficiently unfrequented locality.

A leper-house in Calicut desirable.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 8th, 1898.

29. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 8th August, refers to the pipe-laying work carried on in Bangalore for supplying drinking water, and hopes that the Municipal and Irrigation authorities of the city will, as soon as possible, make provision for laying pipes in Black Pally, Pension Lane, New Police Lane and Broadway, as, it says, these are the chief centres where epidemic diseases generally break out for want of pure drinking water.

Laying of water pipes in Bangalore.

(h) Railways.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

30. A leader in the Manorama, of the 22nd August, learns that the Collector of Malabar has issued instructions to fix the same rate of remuneration for all lands acquired for railway purposes, whether situated in town or in interior parts, and remarks that such a proceeding is unjust and inequitable. The values of lands in town and interior parts largely vary and great loss will often be incurred both by the Government and the owners of lands if a uniform rate of remuneration is insisted on. Often, also, inadequate remuneration will lead to expensive litigation and the article therefore recommends that the order may be reconsidered.

Inequitable remuneration for lands acquired for railway purposes.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 27th, 1898.

31. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 27th August, complains of the very insufficient remuneration awarded in respect of houses and lands appropriated for railway purposes, and remarks that, in consequence thereof, the owners of the said property feel much aggrieved. Another source of grievance is the practice adopted by the Government of awarding remuneration for only the front-yard of a house when that alone is needed for railway purposes, the owner being coolly asked to do, as he liked best, with the house that would necessarily be rendered unfit for purposes of residence. The article instances a certain respectable house in Calicut Nagaram, viz., Kandankulangara, as a case in point. The attention of the Deputy Collector and other authorities is invited to these matters.

Insufficient remuneration for lands and houses acquired for railway purposes.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 18th, 1898.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th August, referring to the enormous increase of income to Government from the Registration department and to its satisfactory working, regrets to observe that Government does not set to ameliorate the condition of the officers of that department, although it consists of educated men who are thoroughly conscientious in the discharge of their onerous duties, and that the prospects of these officers are very dull compared with those of the officers of the other departments of public service. The paper regrets also to note that there is considerable room for complaint in respect of commission granted to the several registrars, and concludes with the hope that Government will post registrars according to their grades of service.

Remarks on the Registration department.

33. The Agnikulathithan, of the 20th August, referring to the cases of bubonic plague that have recently occurred in this Presidency in spite of strenuous efforts on the part of the Madras Government to ward it off, observes that the few cases under reference would not have occurred had the medical officers discharged their duty properly at the railway stations, and trusts that Government will strictly direct the officers specially appointed for detecting plague-patients to examine the passengers without observing distinctions of caste and position, in consideration of the fact that most of the cases now reported on seem to have been brought in by the menial servants of the European officers coming from infected areas.

A suggestion to Government regarding the measures to be adopted for preventing the spread of the plague.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Aug. 20th, 1898.

34. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 21st August, reports that cholera has broken out in the taluk of Tiruppattúr (Madura district) and that 500 persons have already succumbed to it. The correspondent regrets to note that the necessary measures are not being adopted to prevent the spread of the epidemic although there is a sub-magistrate at Tiruppattúr and a Local Fund hospital at that place.

Desirability of adopting the necessary measures to prevent the spread of cholera in the taluk of Tiruppattúr.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1898.

35. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th August, hopes that the Madras Electric Tramway Company will not allow their tram cars to be overcrowded at a time like this when public health is very unsatisfactory, in view to prevent the spread of epidemics.

A suggestion to the Madras Electric Tramway Company.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 27th, 1898.

36. The same paper writes as follows:—We regret to hear that the Honourable Mr. Crole is not to be appointed a Member of His Excellency's Council. This is indeed a very bad time for India. If the Honourable Mr. Crole be appointed a Councillor he would enter into the feelings of the people of this country and conduct matters in such a way as to avoid all disturbance at a time like this when this Presidency is threatened with the plague, inasmuch as he has a peculiar love for the natives and is a friend of many of them. During the recent famine he spared no pains in making the best use of the money that had been sent from England for the relief of the distress of the people of this country, in visiting the famine-affected districts and in doing the needful. It is to the misfortune of the people of this Presidency that such a gentleman as the Honourable Mr. Crole, who has been contemplating certain important reforms, is not to be appointed a Councillor. It is, however, hoped that the Honourable Mr. Arundel and Mr. Sturrock who is likely to succeed the Honourable Mr. Bliss will give His Excellency timely advice in the administration of this Presidency.

Remarks relating to the Honourable Mr. Crole.

37. Muhammad Husain Siddiq, a correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 17th August, writes that it is known too well to all how badly people suffer for want of food and water during these famine days. To aggravate the sufferings, there is no work available at Settigunta village, Cuddapah district, by which people may obtain a livelihood. It is indeed hard to procure drinking-water as the wells are completely dried up. There is a certain well in this village, which is the only source of good water for the people. Fortunately the water in this well is not yet exhausted. The correspondent notes with regret that some day or other this well would subside with the immense crowd that surround it at all times to draw water. On petitioning several times to the District Collector and other officers to repair the well, strict orders were passed that the Government would attend to it only when the people agreed to pay half the charges to be incurred in the repairs. It is surprising, says he, that the Government are not able to spend Rs. 300 on the said repairs of the well in the village which yields an annual revenue of about Rs. 8,000. While such is the condition of men, the hardships of the poor dumb creatures, numbering 11,085 animals, are indescribable. These form the wealth of the poor ryots. Proverbially speaking, as misfortunes never come single, nearly 350 of the cattle died of a cattle-disease called 'Saruku.' The demands from the Forest officers for the grazing fees at Annas 6, Annas 3, Annas 1½ for each head of cows, buffaloes and sheep, respectively, are very annoying. There is not a bit of land for the cattle to graze on without payment of fees. The Forest Settlement officer turned a deaf ear to the prayers of the villagers. Fire also finds it a proper opportunity under these pitiable circumstances to reduce villages to ashes. He concludes with an appeal asking for a remedy for the said cattle-disease.

Famine, pestilence and fire.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1898.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 23rd, 1898.

Increase of sickness in Madras.

38. The Sasilekha, of the 23rd August, regretfully notes that there has been heavy mortality in Madras during the past few weeks, and that it is rising higher and higher every week. It attributes this to the insanitary condition of the city, and says it is acknowledged by many that the cause of the deplorable condition of the city is the Cooum. The Government resides seven months in the year in the refreshing atmosphere of the Nilgiri Hills and is indifferent to the condition of the people in this city. The Government has no funds to provide for the necessary comforts of the people, yet it considers it fit to sanction a lakh and a half of rupees for turning the Hobart Park into a playing ground for high officials, and to provide ten thousand rupees for the repairs of the ball-room in the Governor's palace. Large sums of money are spent every year on the Guindy mansion which is seven miles away from the city and where the Governor does not reside even for a month during the year. All these works are easily financed, but funds are not available to improve the condition of the Cooum! The paper is of opinion that the Government and not the municipality should bear the cost of "cleansing" the Cooum.

There are, observes the paper, only 220 public latrines for a population of four lakhs and sixty thousand; these are not sufficient and they should necessarily be increased in number. The allowance for toties must be raised and their number augmented by the municipality. The area of the city being 27 square miles, there must be a sufficient number of subordinates to carefully supervise it. In short, the Government, the Police and the Municipality should take real interest in the matter and prevent the death of 350 people weekly, caused by the negligence of the authorities. It is not proper they should delay while so many people die every week.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 27th, 1898.

Grievances of karnams.

39. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 27th August, says that karnams keep regular accounts of the revenue collected. They go round the fields and demand from the ryots all arrears of revenue, even at the risk of offending them. They work unceasingly day and night, in the sun and rain, only with a hope that their future prospects may be improved. Even the surveying work, which had been carried on by a separate staff, was required to be done by the karnams. So they had to employ men at their own expense for the work and buy village survey plans, paper, and necessary survey implements. After the whole work was completed, the block system, adopted till then, was changed and the whole survey had to be made anew. The karnams have very much to do and they suffer much. Though they had already once passed the examination in surveying, they were required to spend 15 days every year in the taluk head-quarters in preparing for the examination, and to pass it again and again. Those that came out in the first class in one year, passed only in the second or third class in the following year. Such practice is unknown in the case of any other examination.

The condition of the karnams is really pitiable. They are almost famishing from sheer want of food. His Excellency Sir Havelock is requested to relieve the karnams, with his wonted earnestness in the cause of justice, from the necessity of attending the survey schools or to grant them batta.

40. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 13th August, complains of the very unsatisfactory condition of the Temmalpuram branch post office, but he does not express surprise at it, seeing that the postmaster is paid only 2½ rupees, every month, while no suitable building is set apart for the office. The income from the office is sufficiently high to warrant its being raised to the rank of a sub-office. The attention of the Superintendent of Post offices and of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter.

To improve the condition of the Temmalpuram branch post office.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1898.

41. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th August, reports that postal runners are ill-treated by their immediate superiors, the mail overseers who, if they cannot obtain any perquisite from the runners, transfer them to other places and put them to great inconvenience. It is suggested, therefore, that mail overseers should not be empowered to transfer runners, but should be asked to report irregularities on their part, if any, to postal inspectors, who, in their turn, should report to the Superintendent if any transfer is desirable.

Transferring of postal runners.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1898.

42. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 20th August, dwells at some length upon the unsatisfactory condition of the Nenmara branch post office for which no suitable building is provided. The correspondent invites the attention of the Superintendent of Post offices and the other authorities concerned to this subject and hopes that arrangements would be made to enable the public to transact money order, savings bank and insurance business at the office. The income from the office is sufficiently large to admit of these measures being adopted.

Office quarters to be provided for Nenmara branch post office.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 20th, 1898.

43. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 4th August, mentions that a notification has been recently published by the Government of India reducing postal charges on newspapers of some weight, and cancelling the order for the free despatch of exchange papers, and observes that the reduction of charges will be beneficial only to English papers, which are comparatively heavier than native papers, and the cancelment of the order for the free despatch of exchange papers will tell hardly upon native papers as their financial condition is not satisfactory. The Qasim concludes with the remark that it would have been much better if the Government had amended the said order by reducing the present number of exchange papers.

Reduction of postal charges on newspapers.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 4th, 1898.

44. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 22nd August, in regard to a suspected case of plague in Madras, writes that it is advisable that the Ulamas of Madras should again perform prayers to prevent the spread of this epidemic into Madras. All citizens should be very careful as regards sanitation. This epidemic will not be put down merely by the measures adopted by Government unless the public help Government in the matter.

A suspected case of plague in Madras.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

III.—LEGISLATION.

45. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd August, is glad that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock is aware of the necessity for legislation in the matter of temple endowments, and says that the Government of India's policy of non-interference with the temple endowments is based on a misconception, inasmuch as any improved legislation will no more be such interference than the extremely unworkable enactment under which those endowments are now administered.

Necessity for legislation regarding the management of temple endowments.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

46. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 20th August, hears that a Bill has been brought before the British House of Commons regarding the inadvisability of compulsory vaccination, as it has been found that Inadvisability of compulsory vaccination.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 20th, 1898.

vaccination is not an unmixed blessing and that children die of a sort of disease in the arm-pit consequent upon vaccination. If the Bill be passed in England, a similar Bill may also be passed in India as it is very likely that compulsory vaccination in India may likewise produce the evil effects complained of in England. Compulsory vaccination has been in vogue in England for the last 100 years and distrust has also been felt in its good results. Is it then to be wondered at, remarks the article, that opposition has been presented against the new anti-plague inoculation?

IV.—Native States.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 29th, 1898.

Changes in the Mysore local service examination rules.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th August, complains that the changes made in the Mysore local service examination rules are too hard, and calls upon the Examination Board not to bring them into force in the current year when many Government servants are on urgent plague duty, and have no time to prepare for the examination, and may be compelled by circumstances to absent themselves from the examination.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Aug. 20th, 1898.

Fraud practised by one Narayana Pattar in the Native Cochin State.

48. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 20th August, invites the attention of the Cochin Government to the fraud practised upon so many as 5,500 persons by one Kothapurath Vatakké Matathil Ramaswami Pattar's son, Narayana Pattar, who proposed to dispose of, by raffle, the 22 items of landed property on which he possessed kanom right, and thus collected money from them at the rate of $3\frac{1}{2}$ rupees from each. It is 3 years now since the money was collected, but nothing more than that has, as yet, been done. The people have been imposed upon by pledges of good faith and it is the duty of the Government to see that the innocent people are not deceived.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, Aug. 20th, 1898.

Bribery and corruption in Travancore.

49. The Malayala Manorama, of the 20th August, while commenting upon the administration of Travancore, writes (in English) thus:—

"As we have often remarked, bribery and corruption prevail in the State to a frightful extent. Rightly or wrongly, the idea is largely entertained that no claim of justice or humanity is more powerful to move the minds of officials than the glitter of gold or the allurements of pleasure. We must also repeat in this connection that the absence of any encouragement to honest officials, the feeling that there was nothing irreconcilable between official efficiency and promotion on the one hand, and the utmost unscrupulousness and self-seeking, on the other, and the belief that all dereliction of one's proper duties may be patched up by a mixture of self-assertion and sycophancy are answerable for the present deplorable condition. If many of these incorrigible offenders now put on the garb of honesty, it is only for a time, and is due not to any permanent reformation of their character, but to their prudential desire to ascertain beforehand which way the wind blows in the new administration. We have often been found fault with by one section of the public for venturing to make such general assertions without committing ourselves to any definite statement. We are also told by another section that corruption is so universal in this country that, howsoever persistent our protests may be, it is impossible for us to convey even an approximately correct impression of the magnitude of the evil. There may be some truth in what our critics say. General allegations are not as profitable as the bold and circumstantial mention of names and incidents. Further, if we can believe all we hear about official morality in Travancore, the public service must be declared to be rotten to the core. Nor is there any reason to doubt the correctness of the popular verdict. Persons giving bribes, may promise to keep the affair a profound secret. But when once their object is accomplished, it is not their interest to consult the safety of the obliging official by observing unqualified reticence about the transaction. Hence it is passed from one person to another until at last it becomes an open secret. Such open secrets abound about many of our officials. All these we are prepared to grant. But it is manifestly impossible for us to take upon ourselves the task of prosecuting and supplying proper evidence against all or any considerable portion of them, or of incurring the whole responsibility when these attempts prove unsuccessful. Therefore fully realising that our methods are imperfect and unsatisfactory, we have yet resolved to stick to the course of indirectly bringing to the notice of Government isolated cases of official misbehaviour. But we may assure our readers that in every case before we give publicity to any such charge, we have made it a point to satisfy ourselves that the matter had assumed intolerable proportions. If only Government will take note of these and institute vigorous proceedings instead of dragging witnesses from place to place and day to day and thus squeezing out of them all desire to enter upon such risky, thankless and eventually fruitless undertakings, we venture to hope that our imperfect attempts may also, after all, be efficacious, in however small a degree, in eradicating from Travancore all those baneful tendencies which are now eating into the very vitals of our public service. As an effective remedy for all this, we should like to see in the first place, some practical proof of the determination of Government not to tolerate in future any misconduct on the part of its subordinates. This may be conveniently done by getting rid of a few more of the most notorious members of the service, by pensioning some, by degrading others, in short by striking a wholesome terror into the breasts of all by meting out well-deserved but long-delayed rewards to at least a few persons. The effect will be magical as we remarked it to have been demonstrated to be by H.H. the late Maharaja in Travancore, by Raja Sir T. Madava Rau in Baroda, and by Mr. Rajagopala Chari in Cochin.

"It will be also found to be of great use if persons, who have grown old and who possess no acquaintance with the English language, be gradually compelled to retire from all responsible posts, and their places filled by younger men with due educational qualifications. The introduction of members of different communities into the same department such as the Revenue and others, also will foster a spirit of healthy rivalry among them, and thus raise the tone and efficiency of the whole service. The recognition of merit alone as a qualification for entrance into the Judicial department and the consequent variety of communities that are represented in its ranks are the principal contributory causes of the comparative superiority of that service. If the same course is adopted in the Revenue and Magisterial departments, and also if the scale of salary obtaining there is so revised as to place them on a footing of equality with the Judicial branch, and as to hold out sufficient inducement for honest and upright men to enter into them, we feel certain that all scandals about our Tahsildars and Magistrates will soon vanish, and that they will command as much respect and public confidence as many of our Munsifs and Judges are now able to do."

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Aug. 24th, 1898.

Complaint against the Nemmara police in Cochin State.

50. A correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th August, invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar to the insecurity of person and property in Nemmara and the neighbouring places. It appears that several K.Ds. living in those parts commit dacoities, sometimes inflicting severe torture upon the inmates of the house, and when the matter is reported to the local police they are said to be very indifferent in inquiring into such cases. The correspondent adds that these policemen have been kept in the place for too long a time and unless some of them are transferred these crimes will go undetected.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Aug. 23rd, 1898.

The condition of the people of the taluk of Tiruvannámalai.

51. A correspondent of the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd August, regrets to report that the people of the taluk of Tiruvannámalai (South Arcot district) are destitute of all means of sustenance, and that their cattle are actually dying for want of grazing grounds, and requests Government to sympathize with them in these hard days, to allow them to use forest lands as grazing grounds for their cattle, and to order the repair of the several tanks of that taluk in view to enable the poor people to earn their livelihood by labour at least.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Aug. 27th, 1898.

Reflections on the bubonic plague.

52. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th August, writes as follows:—Whether the bubonic plague to which thousands of people have succumbed in India is altogether a new disease unknown to our ancestors or a disease known to them and handed down to us is a question of paramount importance at a time like this. We are in receipt of three small books which answer this question. They were published by Pundit Muthusawmy Abricon of the Karunanithi Vithya Sala at Manampuchavadi near Tanjore. On a perusal of these books we understand that a description of the bubonic plague and its successful treatment find place in the ancient medical books of India.

Witnesses are cited to bear testimony to the fact that persons affected with plague at Bombay, Hubli and other infected areas were cured of the disease with the medicine known as "the Karunanantha Sanjeevi" discovered by the Pundit in question. It is the duty incumbent on the said Pundit to draw the attention of the people and the Government to the efficacy of his medicine. If the medicine is to produce the desired effect, Government is sure to encourage our Pundit and render him all possible aid even as it has done to Dr. Haffkine. If the medicine is proved to be inefficacious and unworthy of notice, it is but necessary that people should know that it is so.

The paper then quotes from the books under reference a number of extracts from old Tamil medical works giving a description of the disease and explaining its various causes which seem to have a close resemblance to what is said of the plague by the doctors of the present day.

KALINGA, Chicacole, Mar. 1st, 1898.

53. The Kalinga, of the 1st March, contains the following article:—

Religious tracts in circulation.

"Certain tracts have recently been in circulation among the villages. They state that Sri Jagannathaswami will soon incarnate as Kaliki (the last of the ten great avatars of Vishnu), kill the wicked and protect the pious. In every village people must read any number of chapters from Srimath Bhagavatam (a religious work) and offer plantains, cocoanuts, cheese, sugar, and (the sacred) drink prepared of ghee and honey to Sri Jagannathaswami and devoutly partake of the same. Many troubles and hardships shall befall those that either neglect to do so or disbelieve this sacred letter. Those who see this letter should each make five copies of it and send them on to the other villages. If that is not done, the elder Panda will sustain serious loss. These are the words uttered by Sri Jagannathaswami presenting himself in vision to the elder Panda." The paper remarks that such writings as this will only augment the ignorance (of the people).

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 15th, 1898.

54. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 15th August, thinks that while the knowledge with which the coming Viceroy is credited of the Afghan question may be valuable to India in counteracting the designs of Russia, there is also a danger that he may interfere too much in the affairs of the surrounding country and rouse the tribes into rebellion. The paper says that what is wanted in a Viceroy at present is attention to the internal affairs of the country. The expenditure should be reduced and the people made as happy as possible, and hopes that Mr. Curzon will prove the right man in the place.

The coming Viceroy.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Aug. 18th, 1898.

The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 18th August, writing on the same subject, approves of the appointment and hopes that the new Viceroy will belie the fears entertained about him that he will plunge the country into war with the frontier tribes and the Russians.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Aug. 20th, 1898.

The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 20th August, speaking on the same subject, says:—The difference of opinion as to his (Mr. Curzon's) fitness for the office arises from his known and open opposition to the designs of Russia both in the near and far East, and it is apprehended that in his position as Viceroy he would be an additional weight in the balance should Her Majesty's present Government be compelled to resist Russia's designs at the cost of a declaration of war.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

55. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd August, suggests, as some of the preventive measures to be adopted against plague in Bangalore, that all beggars of whatever class they may be, who now go to beg alms from house to house with a vessel in their hands should be prevented from doing so, and should be made to assemble in one particular place from which alms should be distributed; that the coolies who have come down to the city to work in the construction of the new buildings under construction should be sent back to their homes, as they are very dirty and bathe but rarely, if ever; and lastly that the authorities should see that the measures they adopt for segregation, etc., are not so harsh as those adopted in Hubli.

Plague preventive measures to be adopted in Bangalore.

56. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th August, in a leading article says that Governors while on tours through the districts are not allowed to see the real state of the places they visit. Long before the arrival of the Governor the place is cleaned, at least such parts of it as he is expected to see, and is made to put on its best appearance. The paper therefore is of opinion that if our rulers want to see a place as it is, they must pay surprise visits and travel incog.

Tours of Governors.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 29th, 1898.

57. The same paper says that the speeches of His Excellency the Governor of Madras during his recent tour through the Southern districts of the Presidency have made a favourable impression on all people, and trusts that the promise of these early years will be completely fulfilled before His Excellency resigns the reigns of administration into the hands of his successor.

The speeches of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock during his tour.

58. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 24th August, says:—Whether a Conservative or a Liberal be our Viceroy it is the same to our people their pockets become empty. The only difference is that the Conservatives are harsh even in their speech, while the Liberals are soft-speaking, but their deeds are no better than those of the Conservatives. The out-going Viceroy is of the latter class. His fault is that he listened too much to the advice of those around him and was therefore the cause of all our troubles. It is to be hoped that the coming Viceroy will use his own independent judgment. What is to be regretted is that Englishmen when they come out to India become quite changed from what they were in England. For some years past the Viceroys have been paying too much attention to foreign affairs and too little to the internal administration of the country. We therefore wish that the new Viceroy will use his experience, firmness and learning to promote the internal prosperity of the empire.

The new Viceroy.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Aug. 24th, 1898.

59. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 13th August, appeals to the people of the Madras Presidency generally and of Malabar, in particular, to come forward and collect subscriptions to be sent to the Congress Committee at Madras, with a view to making the next meeting of the congress, in Madras, a success. It is suggested that a committee should be formed in Malabar to collect subscriptions from the people at large and elect delegates to the congress.

Preparations for the next meeting of the congress at Madras.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 13th, 1898.

60. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 17th August, concurs with the Hindu in the opinion that, in the event of the Right Honourable George Curzon being appointed Viceroy of India, there is every probability of a war breaking out between England and Russia. Mr. Curzon had repeatedly remarked that the existence of a Russian port in the Persian Gulf would prove prejudicial to the interests of British commerce. The possession by Russia of a port in the Persian Gulf is reported in the Russian papers, and this causes alarm to the Hindu. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 20th August, in commenting upon the appointment of the Right Honourable George Curzon as Viceroy and Governor-General of India, remarks that our future Viceroy, while in England, has discovered talents and capacity of a very high order, and possessing as he does a distinct personality, the article hopes that he will not blindly submit to all the dictates of the Secretary of State for India.

Our next Viceroy.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 17th, 1898.

61. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th August, fears that plague might soon attack Madras and thence spread over the whole Presidency. The article advocates the adoption of preventive measures and suggests that Tirúr may be constituted a plague-inspection station. It also suggests the publication, in the vernacular newspapers, of the translations of the precautionary and remedial measures against plague.

Plague preventive measures.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 24th, 1898.

KERÀLA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 27th, 1898.

62. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 27th August, invites the attention of the authorities concerned to the dilapidated and dangerous condition of the Calicut pier and recommends that, at an early date, it should be either repaired or demolished, the wooden planks thereof being, in the latter case, put up to auction.

The pier in Calicut to be either repaired or demolished.

ERRATA.

In the Report on Vernacular Newspapers for the fortnight ending 15th August 1898—

| | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Page 233, | para. | 4, | line | 21, | for | "days!" | read | "days?" |
| " 242 | " | 50 | " | 17 | " | "never" | " | "ever." |
| " 243 | " | 51 | " | 6 | " | "Lepers'" | " | "Leper." |

[Issued 8th September 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL.

No. 17 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th September 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

---

PAGE

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

Remarks on the indifference of the British Government to the grievances of the Indians in Transvaal .. .. .. 263
Probability of another expedition to the frontier .. .. ib
The Persian Gulf problem .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—
Necessity to reform the Police department .. .. ib.
Gambling due to want of police vigilance .. .. 264

(b) Courts—
Desirability of opening a Sub-Judge's Court in the district of Salem .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Certain suggestions in regard to village munsifs .. ib.
Perversity of European jury in cases of Europeans accused of murder .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Praying for the reconsideration of a certain High Court circular .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
High Court's circular regarding encumbrance certificates ib.
Law touts .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 265
Alleged murder of a native committed by a European in Hyderabad (Sindh) .. .. .. .. ib.
Ill-feeling between the Vakils and some of the Judges of the High Court at Madras .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—
Nil.

(d) Education—
A suggestion to the Director of Public Instruction .. ib.
A remark on the Madras University .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—
Insanitary condition of Ayyankulam at Tanjore .. ib.
A suggestion to the Plague Commissioner in Bangalore .. 266
Insult to the Municipal Commissioners in Dharwar .. ib.
Desirability of giving an opportunity to native physicians to find out a cure for the plague .. .. .. .. ib.
Repairs of roads in the Calicut municipality .. .. ib.
Suggesting the establishment of quarantine stations in Hospet and Harihar .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—
Nil.

(g) Forests—
Nil.

(h) Railways—
Nil.

(i) Public Works—
Nil

(j) Salt and Abkári—
Nil.

PAGE

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont.

(k) General—
Observations on the enormous income of Government .. 266
A request to the District Collector of Tanjore .. .. 267
Death-rate in Madras .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Release of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Tilak's release .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Election of Dharmakarta, Ekamreswar temple, Madras. 268
Separation of the Revenue and the Magisterial functions. ib.
Difficulties of crossing Kana .. .. .. .. ib.
Adhikaries in Chirakkal taluk oppressing people .. ib.
Release of B. G. Tilak .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Plague precautions in Malabar .. .. .. .. ib.
Proposed reduction in the inland postage rates .. .. 269
Mr. Crole .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Persian and Hindustani Translatorship .. .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Hereditary Village Service Act .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Discussion regarding the new Sedition law in Parliament .. 270

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Necessity for opening schools for the benefit of the Catholic Christians inhabiting the coast from Trivandrum down to the Cape Comorin .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The relations between Native Princes and the Political Agents .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The practice of giving bonuses to retiring officials .. .. ib.
The hardships of the ryots in Mysore .. .. .. .. 271
The annoyance of the people by subordinate officers of the Plague department in Bangalore .. .. .. .. ib.
How to improve the condition of the Travancore girls' schools .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Acting Resident at Hyderabad .. .. .. .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Nil.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Reflections on the release of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. ib.
Necessity to set apart more money for the use of the religious institutions of India .. .. .. .. .. .. 272
Remarks on Lord Salisbury .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Tribute paid by India to England .. .. .. .. ib.
The English rule in India .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The plague rules kill more people than the plague itself .. ib.
Pension paid to the family of the Raja of Manipur .. .. 273
The release of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Relaxation of plague rules desirable in the case of Malabar .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 850 | Aug. 1898. |
| 2 | "Gnana Chandrika" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | June ,, |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st Sept. 1898. |
| 4 | "Sukha Jivani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. | 250 | 1st and 15th Sept. 1898. |
| 5 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 15th Aug. and 1st Sept. 1898. |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 6 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th Sept. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 7 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 3rd and 10th Sept. 1898. |
| 8 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 9 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 10 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,200 | 31st Aug. and 9th Sept. 1898. |
| 11 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 3rd and 10th Sept. 1898. |
| 12 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 31st Aug. and 17th Sept. 1898. |
| 13 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 5th and 12th Sept. 1898. |
| 14 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 400 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 27th Aug. and 3rd and 10th Sept. 1898. |
| 16 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 29th ,, ,, 5th Sept. 1898. |
| 17 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 450 | 3rd Sept. 1898. |
| 18 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 4th and 11th Sept. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 1st, 3rd, 6th, 8th, 10th and 13th Sept. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 384 | Aug. 1898. |
| 21 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | Sept. ,, |
| 22 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakur .. .. .. | 100 | 1st Aug. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 23 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 15th Mar. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 27th Aug. and 3rd Sept. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 31st Aug. and 3rd, 7th, and 10th Sept. 1898. |
| 26 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 2nd, 6th and 9th Sept. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 5th and 12th Sept. 1898. |
| 28 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 2nd ,, 9th ,, ,, |
| 29 | "Karnataka Kesari" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 150 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| 30 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 2nd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 31 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 1st, 8th and 15th Sept. 1898. |
| 32 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 31st Aug. and 7th and 14th Sept. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 33 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 10th Sept. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 700 | 10th Sept. 1898. |
| 35 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 550 | 12th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 10th ,, ,, |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 37 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 29th Aug. and 5th and 12th Sept. 1898. |
| 38 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 27th ,, ,, 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 39 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th ,, ,, 5th Sept. 1898. |
| 40 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 28th ,, ,, 11th ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 21st ,, ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 42 | "Naier-i-Asifi" .. .. .. | Mylapore, Madras .. | .. | 1st and 8th Sept. 1898. |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 22nd, 25th and 29th Aug. and 1st Sept. 1898. |
| 44 | "Ayin-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 500 | Aug. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th September, writes as follows:—It is to be regretted that the Transvaal High Court has passed a judgment that the Indians in Transvaal should not be granted license to carry on trade at that place apparently on the score that the European trade there is at stake, in consequence of the fact that the Indians sell their articles at lower rates than the European traders do, inasmuch as the Indians can afford to live on a smaller income than their European brethren. Does it stand to reason to prevent the Indians from carrying on their trade on this ground? Is it just and proper on the part of the British Government to be disinterested spectators of the grievances of the Indians in Transvaal without trying to redress them? Will the British, who treat their own countrymen with partiality to the detriment of the interests of the Indians in their own territories, intercede on behalf of the aggrieved Indians in a foreign country? It is a pity that the British, who take pride in being the rulers of India, do not appear to feel it their bounden duty to guard the interests of their Indian subjects.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 8th, 1898.

Remarks on the indifference of the British Government to the grievances of the Indians in Transvaal.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th September, understands that an attack was made by the Bajouris on the Nawab of Dir, who has been entrusted by the British Government with the duty of guarding the Chitral road. The Nawab having thus become an object of hatred to the neighbouring Pathans, it is feared that the Indian Government may feel compelled to send an expedition to subdue those tribes and to support the Nawab.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 5th, 1898.

Probability of another expedition to the frontier.

3. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th September, writes that the question of the Persian Gulf has been taken up by the Turkish press for discussion. It is stated that England is trying to secure possession of the Persian Gulf and, having this object in view, has sent warships to Bagdad; besides this it may be noted that the British Consul and other British officers are engaged in surveying the place under the pretence of travelling. It is also rumoured that there is a secret understanding between the British Government and Yusuf-bin-Ibrahim, who has been helped with weapons, etc., and that the safety of Turkish interests thereby seems to be imperilled. The Tilism in conclusion remarks that these circumstances should induce Persia and Turkey to safeguard their respective interests in the Persian Gulf by helping each other.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, Sept. 5th, 1898.

The Persian Gulf problem.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

4. The Lokopakari, of the 9th September, writes as follows:—There can be no two opinions as to the necessity of reforming the Police department which is at present rotten to the core. The evils arising from the circumstance that promotions in the Police department depend more or less on the number of cases detected and the number of persons convicted, are manifold, inasmuch as the Police officers are tempted to concoct cases and to get innocent persons convicted, actuated by motives of self-aggrandizement. It is therefore desirable that the higher authorities of the Police department should exercise strict supervision over their subordinate officials and see that such of the Police officers as are concerned in cases proved to be concocted, are deservedly punished. It is necessary that all petty cases should be tried by the village magistrates themselves and that the Police officers should have no interference whatever with them. It is Lokopakari, Madras, Sept. 9th, 1898.

Necessity to reform the Police department.

advisable to appoint village panchayats (arbitrators) and to rule that appeals against their decision may be preferred to honorary magistrates. It is highly expedient to put a stop to the unwarranted interference on the part of the Police officers in petty cases. If Government be pleased to reform the Police department on the lines herein suggested, the people would have no occasion to complain against that department.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 10th, 1898.

Gambling due to want of police vigilance.

5. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th September, contains the report of a correspondent that certain kinds of gambling are carried on to the annoyance of passengers on either side of the road from Kuttungal in Chávakkát to Enamakkal and Kunnamkulangara, and the opinion is expressed that it is mostly due to lack of vigilance on the part of the police.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 6th, 1898.

Desirability of opening a Sub-Judge's Court in the district of Salem.

6. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th September, referring to the memorials submitted to the Madras High Court and to the Local Government praying for the opening of a Sub-Judge's Court in the district of Salem, instead of allowing a large number of undisposed-of appeals to be transferred from the District Court of Salem to that of Coimbatore, does not see the reasonableness of transferring cases from one court to another, and remarks that such a procedure subjects the parties and their vakils to inconvenience. The paper asks—"Why should Government plead financial difficulty when it is asked to do such things as are calculated to improve the comforts of the people, while it lavishes the revenues of this country on useless wars?"

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 9th, 1898.

Certain suggestions in regard to village munsifs.

7. The Lokopakari, of the 9th September, complains that village munsifs do not exercise their civil functions properly, and suggests the desirability of requiring them to dispose of all suits the value of which is less than Rs. 20, and of appointing as village munsifs such persons as are found competent for the post after holding competitive examinations for the purpose. The paper thinks that such an arrangement will be highly beneficial to the villagers at large.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 12th, 1898.

Perversity of European jury in cases of Europeans accused of murder.

8. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th September, referring to the remark by Mr. Justice Amir Ali, of Calcutta, that "such verdicts as these can only reflect discredit on the jury system of this country," and to the approval with which that remark has been quoted by the Anglo-Indian papers, says: "We do not question the correction of the observation. The verdict was perhaps a perverse one, and if it were so, we should not at all be surprised to learn that it was the effect upon Indian jurors of the persistently perverse verdicts which Anglo-Indian jurors bring in the case of Europeans accused of murder and other serious crimes."

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 5th, 1898.

Praying for the reconsideration of a certain High Court circular.

9. A leader in the Manorama, of the 5th September, remarks that the recent High Court circular requiring decree-holders to produce certificates from registry offices specifying the encumbrances, if any, upon any property prior to its being attached, is calculated to do more harm than good to the people for the obvious reason that the disposal, in accordance with the new rule, of property in satisfaction of decrees will involve delay, extra and unnecessary expenses, great loss of money and other evil consequences. The article, therefore, prays that, in the interests of the aristocratic landed proprietors, the order may be reconsidered by the High Court and cancelled at an early date.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 10th, 1898.

High Court's circular regarding encumbrance certificates.

10. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th September, notices with pleasure a circular issued by the High Court requiring that applications for attachment of immoveable property should be accompanied by encumbrance certificates relating to the property from sub-registrars in order to strengthen the position of the person purchasing the property at auction.

Law touts.

11. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 5th September, with reference to an order recently issued by Mr. B. H. Chester, Senior Magistrate of the Town Police Court, prohibiting law touts from appearing in courts, thanks Mr. Chester and observes that parties are put to great loss owing to these law touts. They frame false charges and commit all sorts of roguery. They are to be found in numbers in Triplicane and Mylapore. Many persons are being ruined by them. The Shams in conclusion requests the Judicial authorities to adopt measures for putting a final stop to the mischief committed by these touts.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Sept. 5th, 1898.

Alleged murder of a native committed by a European in Hyderabad (Sindh).

12. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 1st September, mentions that a European has recently been tried by a Magistrate in Hyderabad (Sindh) for shooting a native dead and discharged on the plea that the shooting was accidental as the gun, which was fired, had some defect in its construction. The editor says this is a fresh plea on which Europeans, murdering natives, are let off scot-free.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 1st, 1898.

Ill-feeling between the Vakils and some of the Judges of the High Court at Madras.

13. The same paper notes with regret that ill-feeling has been created between the Vakils and some of the Judges of the High Court at Madras as it is alleged that Mr. Justice Davies treats the Vakils harshly.

(d) Education.

A suggestion to the Director of Public Instruction.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th September, requests the Director of Public Instruction to prescribe uniform text-books throughout the Presidency suited to the various standards and to get all of them published as before at the expense of Government, without allowing the school authorities to use such books as may seem best to them, which, the correspondent thinks, subjects the student population to great inconvenience, as certain books introduced by the authorities of some schools are not available at the time when they are absolutely required for use and as books are introduced and thrown out according to the whims and fancies of the teachers and the managers of the schools.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 6th, 1898.

A remark on the Madras University.

15. The Lokopakari, of the 9th September, referring to the regulation framed by the Madras University that students should salute their teachers when they happen to meet them and that teachers should superintend the dwelling-places of their students, observes that it is not desirable to compel students to show respect and that it is not possible for teachers to inspect the spots occupied by each and every student. The paper concludes with the remark that it is useless to frame unworkable rules according to the whims and fancies of the authorities.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 9th, 1898.

(e) Local and Municipal.

Insanitary condition of Ayyankulam at Tanjore.

16. The Jananukulan, of the 27th August, bitterly complains that the Tanjore municipality has not directed its much-needed attention to the most insanitary condition of the Ayyankulam tank situated in the Western Street at Tanjore, and observes that the smell emanating from the dirty water of the tank, which is resorted to by the public, is most offensive and is the immediate cause of the spread of cholera which has already carried away many people.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Aug. 27th, 1898.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore Sept. 12th, 1898.

17. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th September, is of opinion that since most of the plague cases that have occurred in the City of Bangalore have been confined to a single spot, the most effectual measure for stamping it out would be to vacate all the houses in that spot and to keep them vacant for some months.

A suggestion to the Plague Commissioner in Bangalore.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Sept. 15th, 1898.

18. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 15th September, relates an incident in Dharwar in which it is stated that a woman from Hubli, who had come to pay a visit to her son-in-law in Dharwar, was attacked with plague and was taken to the hospital and died there. Whereupon the house in which she had lodged was disinfected by the Municipal authorities. The son-in-law, who was a Brahmin, and whose house had been thus disinfected and, in his opinion, polluted on the day on which he was to perform the annual ceremony of his father, was so much affected by it that he committed suicide. The Municipal Commissioners questioned the Collector about the incident, but the latter was so incensed at this that he threatened the commissioners with immediate forcible ejection if they should persist in questioning. Whereupon five of the commissioners immediately resigned and left the place.

Insult to the Municipal Commissioners in Dharwar.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Sept. 15th, 1898.

19. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 15th September, says that plague is a disease which was not unknown to the ancient writers on medicine in India, and therefore the ancient books must contain directions for its treatment. The paper therefore desires that Government would give an opportunity to native doctors to try their mode of treatment on some of the patients.

Desirability of giving an opportunity to native physicians to find out a cure for the plague.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 10th, 1898.

20. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th September, referring to the repairs of municipal roads in the Calicut municipality, makes the following remarks:—It is useless and a loss to the municipality to expend money upon opening various bye-lanes which have remained filled up for many years and are of no use to the public when there are other lanes equally convenient. Those that should be repaired first are lanes which lead to main roads and are much frequented by the people. The funds allotted should first be appropriated for the repair of roads that are indispensable in every locality and the surplus, if any, should be applied to others that are next in importance. In the repair of roads the mud-walls on either side are repaired and the roads are widened. There is no doubt that this is a source of loss and hardship to the owners of adjoining lands. If the municipality wants to widen its roads, let it acquire the lands required therefor under the Land Acquisition Act.

Repairs of roads in the Calicut municipality.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 1st, 1898.

21. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 1st September, approves of the plague preventive measures adopted by Government, and, with reference to the plague in Bangalore and Hubli, says that platform examination of passengers is quite insufficient to prevent infection being carried to other places and, in suggesting the advisability of putting the passengers from affected parts in quarantine for at least three days, asks the Collector and Municipal Chairman of Bellary to establish quarantine stations in Hospet on the Hubli-Guntakal line and in Harihar on the Bangalore-Hubli line for the purpose.

Suggesting the establishment of quarantine stations in Hospet and Harihar.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 6th, 1898.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th September, observes as follows:—Although the income accruing from the various departments enjoyed by Government is indeed enormous, it is a pity that Government pleads financial difficulties when it is requested to effect such reforms as are calculated to promote the comforts of the people. Government regrets its inability to open additional courts of district munsifs and to raise the salary of some of the district munsifs, in spite of the fact that the income in the shape of court-fee stamps is so great that a large surplus is shown under that head. Government is not inclined to raise the low salaries of the servants of the taluk cutcherries notwithstanding the excessive income derived in the shape of land-tax. Government is reluctant to encourage the officers of the Registration department by raising their pay, ignoring the fact that that department yields immense income. Why should Government waste so much of money in waging useless wars with hill tribes? Who is to be benefited by acquiring hills and jungles? To utilise the revenues of a country in executing the necessary public works and in effecting internal reforms is the characteristic feature of a good Government. If the Government of India refrains from engaging itself in wars and curtails its expenses as much as possible, it would be in a position to avoid running into debt and to effect various local salutary reforms. It is hoped that the new Viceroy will bestow the necessary attention on this subject.

Observations on the enormous income of Government.

23. The Lokopakari, of the 9th September, referring to the order issued by the Head Assistant Collector at the instance of the Tahsildar of Nannilam that money should be paid only to those persons in whose names the cheques are issued at the Nannilam taluk treasury, thinks that the order subjects the parties to inconvenience, and hopes the District Collector will direct payment of money as before to the certified agents of the persons entitled to receive the money.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 9th, 1898.

A request to the District Collector of Tanjore.

24. The Sasilekha, of the 2nd September, referring to the increased death-rate in Madras for the week ending the 26th August 1898, remarks that while a great many are daily dying here, the Government is comfortably enjoying the salubrious climate of the Nilgiri hills.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 2nd, 1898.

Death-rate in Madras.

25. The Sasilekha, of the 6th September, referring to the release of Mr. Tilak, remarks that the Government fancifully believing that the English-educated people of India were trying to undermine the very foundations of the British Indian Empire, amended the Indian Penal Code, Criminal Procedure Code and the Post Offices Act, making such modifications as at once to strike the Native Press dumb. There is not the least doubt that all this has been done without mature consideration and in a hasty hurly-burly manner. The attempts of some friends of India in Parliament did also prove fruitless. Certain benign gentlemen in England, such as Professor Max Müller, Sir William Hunter, Sir Richard Garth and others, submitted a memorial to Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria through the Parliament, and, the paper believes, Her Majesty with her usual kindness for the people of India ordered the release of Mr. Tilak.

It adds that the next thing to look for is the repeal of the amendments referred to in the codes, and that the people should be agitating about the matter till such repeal is brought about.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 9th, 1898.

Release of Mr. Tilak.

26. The Andhraprakasika, of the 10th September, commenting upon the release of Mr. Tilak, remarks that it would have been very commendable if it had been effected six months ago. Certain irresponsible editors of newspapers created rumours of sedition and the Government, without due investigation, believed them and imagined that Mr. Tilak had already raised a second mutiny and that some further momentous treachery was yet in store. Truth takes its own time to see the light. So, has the Bombay Government learned at last that the apprehensions of last year were all illusory and it has begun to mend what it has misdone. The loyalty of the people of India, the paper says, is sure and steady and quite intact.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Sept. 10th, 1898.

Mr. Tilak's release.

27. The same paper, with reference to the recent election of a Dharmakarta for the temple of Ekamreswara in Sowcarpett (Madras), says that Mr. Sulla Guruswamy Setty, B.A., B.L., and one Mr. Manikya Mudaliar, a relative of the late Dharmakarta, Muniswamy Mudaliar, stood as candidates. Either through the carelessness of the municipality or otherwise, worshippers from Kondur, Avadi, Tinnanúr and other villages came down and gave their votes for Mr. Manikya Mudaliar, the successful candidate, while only the citizens of Madras voted for the other. The inhabitants of the city are very much against Mr. Manikya Mudaliar succeeding as Dharmakarta; for, while Mr. Munuswamy Mudaliar was the Dharmakarta, many articles belonging to the temple were either sold or disposed of at a public auction. So the paper says, the election of Mr. Manikya Mudaliar augurs disaster to the temple. It asserts that the Government would do well to make the property of the temple secure, by appointing a Receiver or by taking it into its own custody, or by at least appointing another co-Dharmakarta with Manikya Mudaliar. The paper deems it absolutely necessary that there should be two Dharmakartas now, as was the case some time ago.

Election of Dharmakarta, Ekamreswar temple, Madras.

28. The same paper alludes to the reply given by Diwan Bahadur Raghunatha Row to the objections raised by His Excellency the Governor against the proposed separation of the revenue and the magisterial functions, on the score of want of funds. Diwan Bahadur Raghunatha Row has, it says, clearly pointed out the possibility of effecting the said separation without incurring any additional expenditure. The policy of appointing stationary sub-magistrates has been everywhere successful. Though the conduct of the officials in the collection of revenue is blameable, complaints are not reaching the ears of the higher authorities as the same person happens to be both the judge and the accused. The paper believes that if His Excellency does not now entertain the same fears or doubts as he did once, he will not be unwilling to sanction the reform proposed by Raghunatha Row, at least as regards the district of Tanjore.

Separation of the Revenue and the Magisterial functions.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Sept. 7th, 1898.

29. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 7th September, writes to it from Nenmara that merchants are waylaid and robbed of their articles of commerce by Malayas infesting Kana, which is situate on the way leading to Pollachi. It is impossible for persons travelling in groups of fewer than 50 men each to pass Kana unmolested and safe, and seldom do even such large group escape from injury from being pelted with stones or, in some other manner, savagely attacked. The attention of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter.

Difficulties of crossing Kana.

30. A paragraph in the same paper reports that about five adhikaries in Chirakkal taluk do all that in them lies to oppress the people and invites, therefore, the attention of the Tahsildar to the matter.

Adhikaries in Chirakkal taluk oppressing people.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Sept. 10th, 1898.

31. Referring to the release from gaol of Bal Gangadhar Tilak, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th September, observes:—We are very much rejoiced that at least now this measure has been resolved upon by Government who, at the instigation of certain persons and on account of the panic caused by the murder of two Europeans, were led to this harsh policy towards one who is a friend of the virtuous and in whose innocence the people believe, but we regret the want of conscientiousness on the part of responsible officers.

Release of B. G. Tilak.

32. A leader in the same issue of the paper, referring to the plague measures proposed for adoption in Malabar, makes the following suggestions:—The proposal to erect segregation sheds is no doubt laudable, but the sheds should not be in the places proposed, but should be in some less populated parts of the town. The practice of building houses in groups being very rare in Plague precautions in Malabar.

Malabar, the separation of permanent residents would not be so very necessary. What the Government should now first do is to prevent people coming in from infected parts. From Malabar many people go for work to the Mysore gold-fields. They should when they come back be examined under the quarantine system before entering the district. The commerce of Nilambúr and the Wynaad being mostly with Mysore, people are always going to and fro by those parts. Examination is indispensable in these parts also. The system now in force of examining passengers by rail should also be modified. The present examination is only nominal. The examination is usually confined to those who hold through tickets. Persons changing their tickets at intermediate stations escape the present examination. A method by which they can be found out should also be introduced. If this is not done, the plague will first appear in the interior parts and this will not so soon reach the notice of the authorities.

33. The Alhami, of the 11th September, in regard to a proposed reduction by the Government of India in the Inland Postage rates, observes that the increase in the weight of inland letters weighing half a tola will cause a loss of nearly 8 lakhs of rupees to the State and thinks that this may lead to increased taxation to make up for the loss of revenue. It is of opinion that the change will only benefit the wealthy and that it is therefore inexpedient.

ALHAMI, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1898.

Proposed reduction in the Inland Postage rates.

34. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 8th September, states that it presumes that Mr. Crole, First Member of the Board of Revenue, who was placed on special duty in connection with the Tenancy Bill, has resigned his seat on the Local Legislative Council, because he has not obtained the Councillorship which has fallen vacant in consequence of Mr. Grose's demise. The editor remembers that Mr. Crole delivered a very forcible speech in favour of Muhammadan education and the employment of Muhammadans in the public service a year or two ago and regrets that His Excellency the Governor recommended Messrs. Sturrock and Arundel for the vacant office to the Secretary of State and ignored the claims of Mr. Crole who is, he says, an able and independent civilian.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 8th, 1898.

Mr. Crole.

35. The same paper says that the Muhammadan community of Madras, which hoped that one of its qualified members might be appointed to the acting Translatorship, as was promised, has again been disappointed.

The Persian and Hindustani Translatorship.

III.—LEGISLATION.

36. The Andhraprakasika, of the 10th September, criticising the rules relating to the Hereditary Village Service Act, remarks that it took three long years for the rules under section 20 of Act III of 1895 to be framed, though His Excellency the Governor gave his assent to the said Act before the 6th of August 1895. As regards rule 20, which provides that an appeal to the Board should be forwarded through the District Collector, who is required to forward the same with the records of the case and with a report dealing with any new allegations made in the appeal, the paper raises some objections. Some of the Collectors themselves thought it would be better if the appeals were sent directly to the authorities; Mr. Spring Branson, the late Advocate-General, was of the same opinion. The Secretary to the Karnams' Association of Cocanada, as also the karnam of Bápatla (Kistna), made suggestions to the same effect. When new points are raised in the Collector's report, the appellant must have notice of the same in order that he might know them for giving a satisfactory explanation if he could. But such an opportunity is denied to him. The report is written after the investigation is made. Does the rule mean, it asks, that a copy of the report should be given to the appellant before it is sent up to the Board? Is the appellant at liberty to make his own remarks on the report of the Collector? How is the supplemental appeal of the appellant to be forwarded to the Board? It asserts that the rule must make it possible for "appeal-petitions" to be sent direct to the Board. A karnam in the taluk of Bápatla pointed out that justice would be done only when both parties were allowed to discuss the matter in appeal before the Board, either in person or through counsel. Stating that the Board replied that it would not accept the suggestion on "public grounds," the paper desires to know what those grounds are. It concludes that the rules framed by the Board are unsatisfactory, unreasonable and unjustifiable.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Sept. 10th, 1898.

Hereditary Village Service Act.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 12th, 1898.

Discussion regarding the new Sedition law in Parliament.

37. A leader in the Manorama, of the 12th September, after giving an account of the recent discussion in Parliament regarding the new Sedition law, refers to Lord Hamilton's argument that a change in the law had been in contemplation for many years and by various Governments in England, and asks why a law which had after so much consideration been rejected as unnecessary was so hastily enacted by him, and says that the objection to the measure was mostly met by heaping a shower of abuse on the newly educated classes.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Aug. 29th, 1898.

Necessity for opening schools for the benefit of the Catholic Christians inhabiting the coast from Trivandrum down to the Cape Comorin.

38. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 29th August, observes that the Catholic Christians inhabiting the coast from Trivandrum down to the Cape Comorin subsist in the main on fishing and that they may be treated as backward classes as very few among them are educated. The paper suggests the desirability of opening one or two schools to ameliorate the condition of this class of people in consideration of the fact that their occupation as fishermen contributes to the revenue of the State to an appreciable extent.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 5th, 1898.

The relations between Native Princes and the Political Agents.

39. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th September, in giving the translation of an extract from the Manchester Guardian in which that paper points out the desirability of establishing a judicial court to decide upon complaints made by Political Agents against Native Princes in India, remarks that this idea is not a novel one, but has been the subject of long consideration by the authorities. If such a tribunal had been established, the course adopted with regard to Cashmere and Jhallawar would have been quite different. It is now a firm belief in the minds of the people of India that in a contest between the Political Agent and the Native Prince the latter must go to the wall. The Native Raja has to be in constant dread not only of the Political Agent but even of his own Diwan, because the latter always plays into the hands of the former for his own safety. Things were a little better in the days of Mulhur Rao Guicwar, for then there was at least a semblance of a trial.

The practice of giving bonuses to retiring officials.

40. The same paper condemns the practice in the Mysore Government of giving large bonuses to officials on their retirement in addition to the regular pensions to which they are legitimately entitled. The bonuses lately given away or about to be given away are—

| | Rs. |
|---|---|
| Sir K. Seshadri Iyer .. .. .. .. .. | 4,00,000 |
| Mr. T. R. A. Thumbu Chetty .. .. .. .. | 1,00,000 |
| Khan Bahadur Abdul Rahiman .. .. .. .. | 15,000 |
| Mrs. Macintire .. .. .. .. .. .. | 22,500 |

The paper hopes that the Government would put a stop to this unnecessary expenditure.

41. The Suryodaya, of the 2nd September, calls the rain that has been falling for the last few days "revenue showers," meaning thereby that although owing to want of rain in the early part of the monsoon the crops have withered, yet the Government which takes into account the whole quantity of rain in the year and does not consider whether it is timely and useful to the ryot or not, will be led by the present fall to think that there has been enough of rain and therefore there is no necessity for any remission of revenue.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Sept. 2nd, 1898.

The hardships of the ryots in Mysore.

42. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th September, points out that the people of Bangalore are more afraid of the plague rules than of the plague itself on account of the high-handed proceedings of the subordinate officers of the Plague department. It is said that these enter houses and create a great deal of fuss even when they are convinced that there is no plague case in the house. Some of them levy blackmail from the people by threatening them with segregation and inoculation. The paper calls upon the higher authorities to prevent this annoyance to the people, and suggests that a few men might be appointed to lecture to the people and point out to them what the Government wants them to do and how they should behave when there are cases of plague in private houses.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 5th, 1898.

The annoyance of the people by subordinate officers of the Plague department in Bangalore.

43. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 27th August, notes a general aversion among the public of Travancore to send girls to schools owing to the fact that the Travancore girls' schools have of late fallen into disrepute. The article considers it necessary to remove such an antipathy from the minds of the people and suggests, accordingly, that the college at Trivandrum intended for imparting higher education to females may, in consideration that the same purpose is served by the local Mission institution, be abolished and that the Principal of that College, Miss Williams, may be appointed Principal of the Normal School. This measure can be given effect to without additional expenditure to the Government, and the attention, therefore, of Diwan Krishnaswami Rao is invited to the matter.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Aug. 27th, 1898.

How to improve the condition of the Travancore girls' schools.

44. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 1st September, states that Mr. Crawford, the Acting Resident at Hyderabad, has set apart a day in every week for the granting of interviews to the public and that he is on this account getting popular. This, the editor states, gives people much pleasure as the Hyderabad public had, since the advent of Mr. Plowden in Hyderabad, never experienced such courteous treatment at the hands of the Resident.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 1st, 1898.

The Acting Resident at Hyderabad.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th September, rejoicing at the release of Mr. Tilak, observes as follows:—The release of Mr. Tilak after so much hubbub cannot reflect any credit on the Bombay Government as its past conduct has been the cause of immense heart-burning to the people at large who are anxiously waiting to hear him speak. The Bombay Government seems to have made some arrangement with a vakil who is a particular friend of Mr. Tilak. It is likely that one of the conditions imposed by the Bombay Government is that Mr. Tilak should not allow himself to be congratulated by the public. Is it possible for the people to refrain from manifesting their spontaneous and enthusiastic delight at the release of Mr. Tilak? The Bombay Government has made not only Mr. Tilak but also its own delusion and cruelty known throughout the length and breadth of this country. It is just and proper that the Bombay Government should abolish the punitive police force and release certain others whom it has sent to jail in a state of excitement, as such an act would to some extent make amends for all the confusion it has been the cause of.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 8th, 1898.

Reflections on the release of Mr. Tilak.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Sept. 10th, 1898.

46. The Agnikulathithan, of the 10th September, observes that, from the revenues of this country, the Government of India sets apart for the use of the religious institutions of the Hindus a sum which is very insignificant compared with the enormous amount provided for the use of the Ecclesiastical department in England, and sincerely hopes that provision for a larger sum will be made in the Indian Budget so as to grant the religious institutions of India the necessary aid, in consideration of the circumstance that they are mismanaged and that their funds misappropriated by their managers, in consequence of the fact that Government does not exercise the necessary supervision and control over them.

Necessity to set apart more money for the use of the religious institutions of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 13th, 1898.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 13th September, writes as follows:—With reference to the statement made by Lord Salisbury in his speech in connection with the recent agitation in England about Compulsory Vaccination, that to administer Britain against the wishes of the British is inexpedient, although the Government of India is at liberty to do what it pleases irrespective of the opinion of the Hindus, we are sorry to say that Lord Salisbury is entirely mistaken. It is in India that Government should study and act up to the wishes of its subjects more than in Britain; for, if the people in Britain are opposed to a particular measure, all that could happen there would be the retirement of one of the parties constituting the Government; whereas in India, if the people come to know that Government disregards their views, the result would be disastrous to both the rulers and the ruled. The recent agitation in India may be quoted as a glaring instance in point. Had Government acted showing due deference to the feelings of the people of this country, how smoothly would matters have gone on! When we take all these circumstances into consideration, it naturally follows that the higher authorities in whose hands rests the administration of this country are sadly wanting in foresight.

Remarks on Lord Salisbury.

DHEERANJANI, Atmakúru, Aug. 1st, 1898.

48. The Dheeranjani, of the 1st August, states that what the English take home amounts to 12 per cent. of the revenues of India, and that they having secured for the people peace, comfort and immunity from foreign invasions, and having also contributed to the improvement of their knowledge and conferred innumerable blessings on them, it is not much that the people should let them have that at least. They are not, however, working for the Indians, as they seem to suppose, for nothing. The English have not been losers in conquering India. They have already got back what they might have spent for all the wars they waged in India. Further the expenditure concerning the maintenance of all the regiments of the Native sepoys and the English soldiers is met from the public revenues of the country, while the English have not expended a pie of their own for the people of India.

Tribute paid by India to England.

49. The same paper, giving a brief history of Jehanghir, says that although he appointed proper persons for the administration of justice, and although the Muhammadan emperors in general possessed many good qualities, life and property were insecure. The English, who succeeded the Muhamadan sovereigns, have been governing the country with a constant eye to justice, and the people have enjoyed happiness and liberty under their rule. The paper prays for the perpetuity of their reign.

The English rule in India.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Sept. 2nd, 1898.

50. The Suryodaya, of the 2nd September, says that more people died in Bombay from the violent measures adopted by the authorities for segregation and house-to-house visitation than from the plague itself, and that when the rules were relaxed the number of the so-called deaths from plague diminished. The paper, therefore, thinks that it is sufficient if the gravity of an epidemic of plague were made known to the people and then

The plague rules kill more people than the plague itself.

they may be left to take care of themselves. The Government would thus save a great deal of worry to the people and a large item of expenditure to itself.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 5th, 1898.

51. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th September, understands that Maharaja Kulachandra, of the Manipur royal family, is paid only Rs. 20 per mensem by the Government although his family consists of six souls.

Pension paid to the family of the Raja of Manipur.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 12th, 1898.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th ptember, in expressing its satisfaction at the ease of Mr. Tilak, says that simply because tv European were assassinated on the Jubilee night the Government was alarm and was led into the belief that there was a conspiracy on foot to destroy the British power in India and so wanted to make its power felt and Mr. Tilak was chosen as the victim. "The whole proceedings of the Bombay Government was foolish in the extreme," says the editor, "and the folly of the Government of India in extending section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code was greater still." The effect of the prosecution and the incarceration will, the editor thinks, be that Tilak will be looked upon as a martyr and his influence will be greater than ever before.

The release of Mr. Tilak.

Manorama, Calicut, Sept. 5th, 1898.

53. A leader in the Manorama, of the 5th September, while advocating the adoption of precautionary measures in Malabar against plague, declares it unnecessary that, in the event of plague breaking out in Malabar, the system of compulsory segregation should be enforced, only such being conveyed for purposes of treatment to segregation camps as are either willing to go there or are too poor to afford to get private medical advice. In Malabar, Mappilas as well as Hindus live, as a rule, in houses having each a big and extensive compound and whenever, among them, anyone is attacked by contagious diseases, such as small-pox, etc., he is isolated first and then subjected to good medical treatment. Again, the Malayalees, Hindus as well as Mappilas, are a class that clings tenaciously to their traditions and customs, and form, comparatively speaking, an illiterate section of the people. The enforcement of the plague rules will, therefore, be revolting to their feelings. In these circumstances, the article recommends moderation in the adoption of plague measures and the relaxation of the segregation system as a special concession to Malabar.

Relaxation of plague rules desirable in the case of Malabar.

[Issued 23rd September 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 18 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 30th September 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

I.—Foreign Politics. — Page

Reforms to be made in Mahé .. .. .. .. .. .. 277
Alliance about to be entered into between China and Japan .. ib.
The Cretan affairs .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Visit of the Khedive to Europe .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The British Government and the Soudan .. .. .. 278
Caisar William's visit to Egypt .. .. .. .. ib.
The British Government and the King Sanilik .. .. ib.
Morroco .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Ill-treatment of the people of India by the Australians .. 279
The Afridis .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Russia and England .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Cretan affairs .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The German and Turkish alliance .. .. .. .. ib.
Friendly relations between Russia and England .. .. 280

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—

A remark on weights and measures .. .. .. ib.
Fraudulent appropriation of Government money by police constables .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—

European murderers .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—Nil.

(d) Education—

Remarks on the income of the Madras University .. ib.
The Secretary of State for India and higher education .. ib.
A young Malayalam munshi for the Calicut Convent objectionable .. .. .. .. .. .. 281
The Madrasa-i-Azam .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

A remark on the Cuddalore municipality .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the Tanjore municipality .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to the Vániyambádi municipality .. .. ib.
A suggestion to the Madras Railway authorities and the Tiruvottiyur union .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Certain suggestions to the Madras municipality .. .. 282
Remarks on the Assistant Health officer of the Madras municipality .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Party feelings in the municipal elections of Nellore .. ib.
Nuisances committed by horsekeepers and coachmen .. ib.
The defects in the plague operations in Bangalore .. ib.
People's complaints about plague preventive measures .. 283
Irregular procedure of the Tellicherry municipal council .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Neglected sanitation in Calicut municipality .. .. ib.
Appointment of paid municipal secretaries .. .. 284

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Remarks on rule No. 20 of the rules under the Madras Act III of 1895 .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A complaint against the Collector of North Arcot .. ib.

(g) Forests—

Oppression by forest officials .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration—cont. — Page

(h) Railways—

Certain suggestions to the South Indian Railway authorities and to the District Magistrate of Cuddalore .. 285

(i) Public Works—

"Sangam villagers' grievances" .. .. .. .. ib.

(j) Salt and Abkári—Nil.

(k) General—

Remarks on the appointment of tahsildars .. .. ib.
Complaint against some postal peons .. .. .. ib.
A remark on Government grant to the Young Men's Christian Association .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Government grant to the new buildings of the Young Men's Christian Association .. .. .. .. 286
Sub-registrars' practices .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Loud cries of the delta-ryots in Nellore .. .. .. ib.
Observations on the Plague regulations, the Frontier policy and the amendment of the Indian Penal Code .. 287
The new postal rules concerning the despatch of newspapers .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Suggestion to translate Medical Jurisprudence into the vernacular languages .. .. .. .. .. 288
A separate medical officer to be stationed at the Mysore boundary for plague inspection duty .. .. .. ib.
Additional arrangements to be made in the Nenmara post office .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Desertion of Mappila sepoys .. .. .. .. ib.
Despotism of petty officials in interior parts .. .. ib.
Peons employed in domestic works .. .. .. .. ib.
Stamp value calculated on both kanom and kushikkur (improvement) .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Collectors of districts to appoint tahsildars .. .. 289
Sanitation neglected in Tanúr .. .. .. .. ib.
The Native press .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Dearness of grain .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Theft .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Bombay Government and the plague rules .. .. ib.
Invitations by the Viceroy and his daughter's wedding. ib.
Plague at Dharwar .. .. .. .. .. .. 290
Meetings at Triplicane .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The plague in Madras .. .. .. .. .. ib.

III.—Legislation—Nil.

IV.—Native States.

A complaint about the working of the plague regulations in Bangalore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Spreading the plague .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Some suggestions regarding plague rules .. .. .. 291
Mr. Plowden's return to Hyderabad .. .. .. .. ib.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People—Nil.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Necessity for a police establishment at the Aralúbely frontier .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Unreasoning opposition to plague rules how to be dealt with. ib.
Cherumars bought as slaves in Malabar .. .. .. ib.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Vidya Vartamani" | Madras | 150 | Aug. 1898. |
| 2 | "Gnana Chandrika" | Do. | 2,000 | July and Sept. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" | Pasumalai | 600 | 15th Sept. 1898. |
| 4 | "Kalanidhi" | Coimbatore | 150 | 15th " " |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South Indian Mitran" | Dindigul | 600 | 15th and 25th Sept. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" | Madras | 200 | 17th and 24th Sept. 1898. |
| 7 | "Vikata Dutan" | Do. | 1,400 | 17th " 24th " " |
| 8 | "Arya Jana Priyan" | Do. | 500 | 16th " 24th " " |
| 9 | "Lokopakari" | Do. | 2,000 | 16th " 23rd " " |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" | Cuddalore | 320 | 14th " 21st " " |
| 11 | "Nilalochani" | Negapatam | 300 | 19th Sept. 1898. |
| 12 | "Sajjana Patrika" | Do. | 400 | 19th and 26th Sept. 1898. |
| 13 | "Jananukulan" | Tanjore | 200 | 17th " 24th " " |
| 14 | "Travancore Abhimani" | Nagercoil | 2,600 | 12th, 19th and 26th Sept. 1898. |
| 15 | "Agnikulathithan" | Madras | 700 | 17th and 24th Sept. 1898. |
| 16 | "Viveka Thivakaran" | Tiruchengódu | 400 | 18th Sept. 1898. |
| 17 | "Varavarthamani" | Pollachi | 400 | 24th " " |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" | Madras | 900 | 17th, 20th, 22nd, 24th and 27th Sept. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Hindujanasamskarini" | Madras | 384 | Sept. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Kalinga" | Chicacole | 200 | 1st April 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" | Bellary | 350 | 10th, 17th and 24th Sept. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Andhraprakasika" | Madras | 600 | 14th, 17th, 21st, 24th, and 28th Sept. 1898. |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" | Do. | 470 | 13th, 16th, 20th, 23rd, " 27th " " |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" | Bangalore | 320 | 19th and 26th Sept. 1898. |
| 25 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" | Do. | 80 | 17th and 24th Sept. and 1st Oct. 1898. |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Patrika" | Mysore | 3,000 | 29th Sept. 1898. |
| 27 | "Suryodaya" | Bangalore | 400 | 16th " " |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" | Mysore | 800 | 21st and 28th Sept. 1898. |
| 29 | "Karnataka Kesari" | Bangalore | 150 | 19th " 26th " " |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 30 | "Malayali" | Tangasseri | 600 | 15th Sept. 1898. |
| 31 | "Kerala Chandrika" | Calicut | 800 | 14th and 25th Sept. 1898. |
| 32 | "Kerala Mitram" | Cochin | 255 | 11th " 21st " " |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 33 | "Malayala Manorama" | Kóttayam | 1,000 | 17th and 24th Sept. 1898. |
| 34 | "Manorama" | Calicut | 550 | 19th Sept. 1898. |
| 35 | "Kerala Sanchari" | Do. | 700 | 14th and 21st Sept. 1898. |
| 36 | "Kerala Patrika" | Do. | 700 | 17th " 24th " " |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 37 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" | Triplicane, Madras | 300 | 19th and 26th Sept. 1898. |
| 38 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" | Rayapet, Madras | 600 | 17th " 24th " " |
| 39 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" | Triplicane, Madras | 50 | 15th Sept. 1898. |
| 40 | "Alhami" | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 18th " " |
| 41 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" | Rayapet, Madras | 550 | 15th and 22nd Sept. 1898. |
| 42 | "Naier-i-Asifi" | Mylapore, Madras | [illegible] | 15th " 22nd " " |
| 43 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" | Bangalore | 550 | 5th, 8th and 12th Sept. 1898. |
| 44 | "Manahur-i-Muhammadi" | Do. | 400 | 16th June 1898. |
| 45 | "Mulk-o-Millat" | Hyderabad | 150 | 10th Sept. " |
| 46 | "Muqannin-i-Dakhan" | Do. | 300 | June and July 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. A Mahé correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 14th September, invites the attention of the French Government to the great inconvenience to which the inhabitants of Náluthará are subjected in consequence of the post of the adhikari (village munsif), the French school and the Malayalam school of the locality having been done away with. An adhikari there is necessary inasmuch as, otherwise, people will have needlessly to walk three miles in order to obtain receipts for payment of taxes, and also to obtain passports for conveyance of articles upon which duty is leviable. The want of schools there will be much felt by the school-going population. Curtailment of expenditure can be effected with better results in other ways. The Port officer's pay may be reduced from 160 rupees to 15 rupees. The functions of the Governor and the Judge can be combined in one. The attention of the French Government is invited to such matters as these.

Reforms to be made in Mahé.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1898.

2. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st September, learns that an alliance is about to be entered into between Japan and China. This alliance, the article believes, will have the effect of throwing an almost insurmountable barrier in the way of the realisation by the European powers, specially Russia, Germany and France, of their fond hope of dividing the Empire of China among themselves. The army and navy of Japan are very strong and allied with Chinese troops which, with proper training and discipline, will acquire new strength, they will form more than a match for any European power.

Alliance about to be entered into between China and Japan.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Sept. 21st, 1898.

3. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan of the 15th September. A correspondent from Candia, describing the disturbed state of Crete, writes that the result of the autonomy there has been that the Cretan assembly has requested the Admirals to establish military police force, and observes that the Christian powers are to be blamed for the refractory attitude assumed by the Cretans which will, it is certain, result in great bloodshed. The correspondent in conclusion observes that government on a firm basis would be established in Crete, if matters were left to the entire discretion of the Sultan of Turkey and his able councillors.

The Cretan affairs.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, [Sept. 15th, 1898.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 19th September, has a translation of an extract from the Al-Muvaid (an Arabic daily of Cairo) to the following effect:—

Visit of the Khedive to Europe.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1898.

One of the editors of the Liber Barwell (sic) (place of publication not given) had an interview with Mustafa Afindi Kamil who is now at Paris, and asked him the following questions regarding the visit of the Khedive to that city:—

Editor.—What is the object of His Highness in coming over to Paris?

Afindi.—So far as I am aware, His Highness has come over to Europe to recruit his health.

E.—Does the Egyptian nation concur with him in his views and procedure?

A.—Yes, it does. The Egyptians regard him as very dear to them. They boast of his virtues and excellent qualities. His dignity is being increased day by day on account of the policy pursued by the English against him. The attachment and loyalty of the people towards him remain the same. It is very pleasing to note that the whole Egyptian nation which was, during the Arabi Pasha's rebellion, the bitterest enemy of the late Khedive, is to-day loyal to Abbas Pasha against the English. The Egyptians are at present quiet. This is due to the Khedive himself, for he knows that the bettering of his country depends on his keeping quiet and awaiting the action of Europe. He tolerates other religions and hence his non-Muhammadan subjects love him as much as his Muslim subjects do and his inclination towards European civilization endears him to those Europeans who may happen to visit his country.

E.—What are his views as regards France?

A.—France is dear to His Highness, since no Egyptian, whether low or high, has yet forgotten the aid given by France in 1840 to Muhammad Ali Pasha in spreading the light of civilization in that country. It now behoves the French Republic to put pressure upon England to respect the rights of Egypt and its ruler.

The British Government and the Soudan.

5. The same paper publishes a translation of another extract from the same paper, the Al-Muvaid, to the effect that the English with the object of creating a second India in Africa occupied Egypt, interfered in Soudan affairs, severed the connection of that province with Egypt and thus creating a general insurrection in that country, sent an expedition against the Soudan and crushing the Durvishes have now established an office in London with a secretary at its head for transacting affairs connected with the British colonies in Africa and the Soudan. After the capture of Khartoom they will pull aside the curtain of deceit which they have placed before the eyes of Europe and Egypt. It is said that the Uganda garrison has been directed to proceed to India through Khartoom, Berber and Swakin, and that the English will plant the flag of England in Khartoom if it falls. This, the editor thinks, is impossible as the road to Khartoom is very difficult to traverse and if Khartoom falls, England will be obliged to plant the Egyptian flag there on political grounds. However it is very evident that England intends to annex the Soudan so that British troops may be able to pass through Khartoom, Berber and Swakin to India and vice versâ, and if after a time England should cease her connection with India, Soudan may become the abode of the English.

These are the objects of the English, but those who are in favour of the British occupation of Egypt say that the English gave their troops to help in the capture of Soudan and advanced loans to the Egyptians and did not insist on repayment. These favours are like the favours of a despotic Government which exacts work from ryots and grants their own implements to them as presents to work with. Such is the procedure followed by the English who are trying to capture the Soudan, the property of the Egyptians, with the aid of the Egyptians.

Qaisar William's visit to Egypt.

6. The same paper has a translation of another extract from the Al-Muvaid to the following effect:—All the English papers in Egypt in commenting on the approaching visit of the Qaisar William to Egypt say that the Egyptians intend to make preparations on a very large scale to welcome His Majesty and to lay their complaints before him against the oppression practised by the British and against their occupation of Egypt. They also observe that the Qaisar is in favour of the occupation and so his visit will prove beneficial to England. All this is done, the Al-Muvaid says, to lower the Emperor in the estimation of Egyptians. But the Egyptians know that he is a sincere friend of the Khedive and that he will never help England in her false claims to the occupation of that country.

The British Government and the King Manilik.

7. The same paper refers to a Reuter's telegram from Cairo that King Manilik, from the progress made by the English towards the western parts of the Nile, suspects that they will take possession of the provinces of Gedarif and Galabat which the King claims as belonging to himself, and observes that should the English advance, it believes that there will be much bloodshed in Africa.

ALHAMI, Madras, Sept. 16th, 1898.

Morroco.

8. The Alhami of the 16th September. A Tunis correspondent of the Habl-ul-Matin, of Calcutta, writing of the present state of Morroco, says that all the European powers have their mouths open to swallow up that country. France and England have great influence there. But the Sultan has, through foresight, established friendly relations with Germany so that he may remain fearless, for a time at least, of their wicked encroachments.

9. The same paper. A correspondent named Mulla Mirza Khan Sahib, writing from Fiji, says that Indians are ill-treated by the Australians who do not wish that the former should go to their country, and asks the Indian press to invite the attention of Government to this. The editor observes that the correspondent might have become aware of the intentions of the British Government from the reply recently given by His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to the address of the people of Tanjore. The Indian press as well as many English papers bitterly complained against the harsh treatment experienced by the people of India at Natal, but neither the Government of India nor the Secretary of State for the Colonies can mend matters either in Natal or in the Transvaal where Indians are treated harshly.

Ill-treatment of the people of India by the Australians.

10. The same paper hears that the Afridis have not yet desisted from committing mischief, and that they held a meeting on the 31st August at Tirah in which a resolution was unanimously passed to the effect that the remaining rifles, to be delivered to the British Government as fines, should be withheld until Government agreed to their terms, viz., the continuance of their allowance, the reduction of salt-tax and the sending back to them of the tribal women who had taken refuge in British territory. The Alhami asks Government to treat the frontier tribes with severity, so that they may acknowledge the supremacy of England.

The Afridis.

The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 19th September, as regards the above, prays to God that the Afridis may not declare hostilities so that India may be saved from further loss.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1898.

11. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 24th September, has an extract from the Riaz (place of publication not mentioned) to the effect that it is understood that Russia has closed the way of the Black Sea fleet from Sebastopol to Nikolif for fear of Sebastopol being bombarded by the British as Russia has excluded England from trade with China. The Riaz observes that it is advisable that the British Government should have an agreement with the Sultan that the British fleet may be allowed to pass through the Dardanelles and so reach the southern parts of Russia freely in case of necessity.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Sept. 24th, 1898.

Russia and England.

12. The same paper, in giving an account of the affairs at Crete, says that England has always befriended Turkey in political matters, has saved her twice from Russian oppression and has acted very leniently in the recent Cretan crisis. This being the case it is not clear why the Turkish authorities should have allowed the present crisis to happen. The editor, in conclusion, asks the Turkish authorities to deal severely with the perpetrators of the crime and hopes that this slight affair will not strain the relations between England and Turkey.

Cretan affairs.

13. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar of the 12th September. The Habl-ul-Matin, of Calcutta, writes that Germany is making all possible efforts to strengthen the bonds of friendship between herself and Turkey. Having this object in view she has consulted Turkey regarding the construction of certain important roads. Turkey, on the other hand, purchases all her military stores and ammunitions of war from Germany. The Habl-ul-Matin observes that the Turkish alliance is very beneficial to the commercial interests of Germany and that the friendship of Germany is not based on any self-interested motives.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Sept. 12th, 1898.

The German and Turkish alliance.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1898.

14. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 22nd September, contains an article contributed by a correspondent calling himself Rashid-i-Thanavi, regarding the friendly relations now existing between Russia and England, in which he says that the leading papers were fondly imagining that there will be a partition of Turkey between several European powers, and that Russia will with the help of England take possession of the Turkish capital and imprison the Sultan (on these powers as enemies of the Sultan he invokes a cause), and observes that England relying on her recent alliance with Russia put pressure on the Sultan in the Armenian affair.

Friendly relations between Russia and England.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 17th, 1898.

15. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th September, observes as follows:—A correspondent has invited our attention to the facts that weights and measures used by merchants are not uniform throughout the Presidency and that weights are used in certain parts of a district in the sale of some articles, whereas measures are used in certain other parts of the district in respect of the same articles. The merchants of Madras are in the habit of striking off their measures in their sale of grain, etc., as this practice enables them to reduce to a considerable extent the quantity of the articles sold by them. It is desirable that the authorities concerned should bestow their attention on this subject.

A remark on weights and measures.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1898.

16. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 14th September, finds fault with the Police Inspector of British Cochin for not properly dealing with two delinquent constables who, under false pretences, billed for and obtained travelling expenses incurred in escorting a prisoner from Arukkoota to Cochin. The article recommends that Mr. Naidu, Police Inspector at Chowghat, may be deputed to institute inquiries into the matter with a view to the constables in question being properly punished.

Fraudulent appropriation of Government money by police constables.

(b) Courts.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Sept. 10th, 1898.

17. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 10th September, notes that a European named Knight has been committed to sessions for having fired at a native lad in Madras, and observes that it cannot think of any single instance in which a European has been awarded capital punishment for murdering a native.

European murderers.

(d) Education.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Sept. 17th, 1898.

18. The Agnikulathithan, of the 17th September, referring to the enormous income enjoyed by the Madras University in the shape of examination fees, suggests the desirability of utilizing a portion of the said income in adopting the necessary measures for getting the Indian Civil Service Examination instituted in India and in rendering poor schools the necessary pecuniary aid.

Remarks on the income of the Madras University.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 19th, 1898.

19. A leader in the Manorama, of the 19th September, remarks that the utterances of the Secretary of State for India with regard to the Indians who have received higher education, as to how they seek Government employment and failing to obtain it, find fault with the Government and create disaffection, etc., perhaps point to a project on the part of that functionary to do away with higher education. It might be this view, says the article, that encouraged Sir M. M. Bhownaggree to speak in Parliament on the evil effects of higher education.

The Secretary of State for India and higher education.

20. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 24th September, hears that the Manager of the Calicut Convent School of the Sacred Heart has recommended a young man for the post of Malayalam munshi in that school. In the interests of the school the article protests against such an appointment, and when persons pretty advanced in life with better university qualifications and more profound knowledge of the Malayalam language are available, it sees no reason why a young and, on that account, objectionable candidate should be chosen for the post. The attention of the Director of Public Instruction is invited to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 24th, 1898.

A young Malayalam munshi for the Calicut Convent objectionable.

21. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 22nd September, has a long article on the Madrasa-i-Azam in Madras. It says that this institution is getting worse day by day owing to the indifference of the Muhammadan community, the inattention of Government and the neglect of the present Director of Public Instruction. The late Mr. Grigg, who was very interested in Muhammadan education, once proposed to introduce religious instruction into the Madrasa along with secular education and called for the opinion of the various local Muhammadan associations on the subject. But his suggestions were not attended to by the Muhammadan community. The carelessness of Government in the matter of Muhammadan education is as clear as daylight. The frequent representations of the Muhammadan community have been as a cry in the wilderness. The unsatisfactory results of the public examinations show that an entire change in the staff of the institution is absolutely necessary, the present staff being incompetent. It is to be regretted that Dr. Duncan seems to take no interest in Muhammadan education. The editor further suggests that the local Anjumans take up this question. The transfer of the institution to a better building is still hanging fire, though Government about two years ago proposed a site in Chepauk. The delay on the part of Government is astounding.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1898.

The Madrasa-i-Azam.

(e) Local and Municipal.

22. The Desabhimani, of the 14th September, regrets to note that the municipality of Cuddalore has directed that the owners of dwelling houses should remove the grass growing opposite to their houses and that, in default, they should pay an additional tax of two annas, and concludes with the remark that the order of the Cuddalore municipality is felt to be a hardship by the people who are now groaning under the effects of famine.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Sept. 14th, 1898.

A remark on the Cuddalore municipality.

23. The Jananukulan, of the 17th September, bitterly complains that the smell arising from cess-pools into which the various drains of the town of Tanjore flow is most offensive, as it is not cleansed every day, and condemns the Tanjore municipality for its indifference and neglect in the discharge of its duty.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Sept. 17th, 1898.

Remarks on the Tanjore municipality.

24. The Gnanachandrika, of the month of September, suggests the desirability of constructing a bridge over the Pálár which surrounds Vániyambádi on all sides, as the people are subject to great inconvenience when there are freshes in the river, and a public latrine at the bazaar street, and hopes that the local municipality will adopt the necessary measures for redressing the grievances of the people.

GNANACHANDRIK, Madras, September 1898.

A suggestion to the Vániyambádi municipality.

25. The Lokopakari, of the 23rd September, complains that the passengers are subject to great inconvenience and hardship for want of lights in the road leading from the village to the railway station and at the railway station premises itself in Tiruvottiyur to the sacred shrine situated therein thousands of devotees resort particularly on Fridays, and draws the much-needed attention of the Tiruvottiyur union and the Madras Railway authorities to the subject.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 23rd, 1898.

A suggestion to the Madras Railway authorities and the Tiruvottiyur union.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Sept. 24th, 1898.

Certain suggestions to the Madras municipality.

26. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 24th September, attributing the recent improvement of public health in Madras to the various sanitary reforms introduced by the Madras municipality, observes as follows:—"There is still considerable room for improvement. It is to be regretted that the Madras municipal conservancy carts do not care to remove the rotten carcasses of rats, cats, snakes and other animals which lie on the road side forming a great nuisance. The smell felt at the beach near the old Ice House building is most offensive and must tell on the health of the ladies and gentlemen that resort to the beach for enjoying the sea-breeze. The people complain that the pipe-water used in Madras gives out a very bad smell on certain occasions and is full of insects which cannot be detected by the naked eye. The state of public latrines built here and there in Madras is anything but satisfactory, inasmuch as hundreds of people are allowed to ease themselves simultaneously in those places and to wash their private parts at the small pools situated in the neighbourhood. Nothing can be more revolting to our feelings of decency than such a dirty practice, the inevitable result of which is danger to the health of the people resorting to such latrines. It is earnestly hoped that the Madras municipality will bestow the necessary attention on these points and adopt such measures as will tend to promote the welfare of the citizens of Madras."

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 24th, 1898.

Remarks on the Assistant Health officer of the Madras municipality.

27. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th September, reports that the Assistant Health officer of the Madras municipality sent home one of the peons of the Municipal office who had complained to him that he had an attack of cholera, and that the peon succumbed to it on the following day. The paper condemns the Assistant Health officer for his not having rendered his office peon the necessary medical aid and for his having allowed him to return home in an infectious state, and asks—"How is it possible to combat the plague with the help of such a Health officer who does not care to protect his own office peon at a critical moment?"

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Sept. 28th, 1898.

Party feelings in the municipal elections of Nellore.

28. An inhabitant of Nellore writes to the Andhraprakasika, of the 28th September, entreating the Collector to convene a public meeting of the inhabitants in connection with the recent municipal elections to ascertain the real state of affairs and then send a report to the Government about the same, as Mr. Macleane did once before under similar circumstances when so directed by the Government. He earnestly prays that the Government may not take away the right of election that it has so kindly granted to the inhabitants of the place, even should the Collector recommend so.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 27th, 1898.

Nuisances committed by horse-keepers and coachmen.

29. The Sasilekha, of the 27th September, remarks that though the servants of the municipality (Madras) are taking proper steps for preventing the plague, they are not taking greater care than before to keep the streets and gutters free from dirt and filth. The horsekeepers and coachmen never bathe and in most cases dwell with their families in stables amidst dwelling houses, with no necessary latrines. These dirty menial servants, who are the personification of Impurity, are obliged to make the road-side gutters more and more filthy and insanitary. No attempt to check this disgraceful nuisance has yet been made. The paper thinks that the city would become a little more cleanly if the municipality would attend to it.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 19th, 1898.

The defects in the plague operations in Bangalore.

30. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 19th September, makes the following suggestions for remedying what it considers defects in the plague administration in Bangalore:—

(1) The management of the segregation camps is very unsatisfactory, therefore the medical officers in charge of them should be changed at once.

(2) The disinfection near the railway station of the bodies and clothes of those who want to travel by the railway should be discontinued and instead of that a competent doctor should be stationed there to examine the would-be passengers and grant certificates to those who are free from any symptoms of the plague.

(3) Men who are suffering from ordinary fever should not be taken to the segregation camp and there subjected to the treatment of European doctors.

(4) Competent medical officers should be appointed to inoculate willing persons in their own houses. If this is done women and children will be willing to get inoculated.

The paper hopes that as there is nothing objectionable in these suggestions, the Government would speedily see its way to carry them out.

The Suryodaya, of the 16th September, writing on the same subject, says that as the people of Bangalore are not accustomed to live in thatched sheds, such of them as have to remove there think it a great hardship to be obliged to go and remain in such sheds. It is therefore suggested that some street houses might be chosen for the purpose.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Sept. 16th, 1898.

31. A correspondent to the same paper says:—In reality there is plague in Hindupur, but nobody knows how many have died of it. The authorities are making all preparations for meeting it. They are going from house to house, and forcibly inoculating everybody and are thus oppressing the people. Many who have relations living in the Mysore territory have gone to reside with them and the lower classes of people are running away to different places. The petty plague officers are putting all sorts of restraints on the freedom of the people. They do not allow them to keep their cattle near. But the people have been accustomed to live in this manner for years without being any the worse for it. It is therefore unjust on the part of Government to disturb them in this way. What has the Government been able to do in Bombay after all the money that was spent, and with all the skill of so many doctors?

People's complaints about plague preventive measures.

Plague patients if they are natives are obliged to leave their homes and go into sheds in the open air, but if Europeans and Parsis they are allowed to remain in their own houses.

The papers say "How can people get on if Government shows this kind of partiality? The fact is that this is a time of universal destruction, whatever the Government intends for the good of the people turns out ill, and the result is a misunderstanding between the rulers and the ruled. The people fear to complain to Government of the oppression they suffer at the hands of the petty officers. The papers refuse to publish any complaints that may be made. We are therefore in a state of despair, and God alone can save us!"

32. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 14th September, states that in the vacant place of a councillor who had been chosen by the Government for the D ward of the Tellicherry municipality, the council have recently elected a councillor of the C ward. This procedure of the council is in apparent contravention of the right of Government to nominate a councillor for the D ward; the vacancy created in the C ward the council hope to fill by the exercise of its franchise. The attention of the Collector is invited to the matter.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1898.

Irregular procedure of the Tellicherry municipal council.

33. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 24th September, in reviewing the report of births and deaths in the Calicut municipality for the month of August 1898, remarks that though the total number of deaths during the month was not so large as it was in the corresponding months of the preceding year, the rate of mortality from such general diseases as fever and piles shows an increase in the current year over that of 1897. The

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 24th, 1898.

Neglected sanitation in Calicut municipality.

article quite concurs with the medical officers in their opinion that this increase should be attributed to the insanitary condition of the town. The scavengering system, as at present carried on, is very objectionable in its working tending, as it does, to the wide diffusion of foul gases from the scavengers' carts which are allowed to remain on the public roads. The Sanitary Inspectors very often neglect their duties. The attention of the Municipal council is invited to these matters.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1898.

Appointment of paid municipal secretaries.

34. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 22nd September, writes that the system of appointing paid municipal secretaries under the new District Municipalities Act, which, it was supposed, would put a stop to all misunderstandings between councillors, has proved a failure, inasmuch as the Negapatam municipality has had to bring the conduct of its secretary to the notice of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Sept. 17th, 1898.

Remarks on rule No. 20 of the rules under the Madras Act III of 1895.

35. The Agnikulathithan, of the 17th September, writes as follows:—Rule No. 20 of the rules framed under the Madras Act III of 1895, which says that "Appeals to the Board of Revenue shall be forwarded through the District Collector who shall forward the same to the Board of Revenue with the records of the case and with a report dealing with any new allegations that may be made in the petition," is felt to be a hardship by the people at large. It is necessary that the appellant should be duly informed of any new fact included in the report, so that he may be in a position to explain it. It is a pity that there is no such provision in the rules. The people eagerly hope that the appellants will be permitted to submit their appeals to the Board of Revenue direct. It is to be regretted that there is no provision in the rules under reference allowing the appellant to represent his grievances to the Board of Revenue either in person or by his agent. The Board of Revenue is of opinion that it cannot allow personal representations on public grounds. What those grounds are we do not see.

A complaint against the Collector of North Arcot.

36. The same paper referring to a case in which a piece of land worth Rs. 30 at Mukuntharayapuram, Wallajah taluk, North Arcot district, was sold at public auction for the recovery of 2 pies due by the owner—a shrotriemdar—in spite of his protest that his land ought not to be sold as he was not a defaulter, observes that the shrotriemdar filed a suit in the District Munsif's Court, Sholinghur, and recovered as his costs only Rs. 22 after having incurred a loss of about Rs. 400, not to speak of the worry and annoyance he was subject to for a period of one year and eight months, and that the aggrieved party was so generous as to refrain from prosecuting the village karnam and the munsif who had been the cause of the mischief. The paper concludes with the remark that it was unjust on the part of the Collector not to have taken due notice of such a grave irregularity.

(g) Forests.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 23rd, 1898.

Oppression by forest officials.

37. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 23rd September, says that the forest regulations are felt to be very hard by the poor ryots of Kottakóta, Narasingapully, Siddharámpuramu and other villages in the taluk of Penukonda. As the petty forest officials are unmerciful towards the ryots, these are unable to bear the oppression and so have determined to leave their homes for some other places. The present forest ranger and sub-magistrate being reasonable men, the correspondent hopes they will expose the faults of their subordinates and relieve the distress of the poor people.

(h) Railways.

38. The Desabhimani, of the 21st September, complains that the waiting room intended for the 3rd-class passengers at the railway station at Tirukkóyilúr is too small and incommodious, and draws the attention of the Traffic Manager to the inconvenience caused to the passengers in consequence. The paper also complains that the passengers are harassed by robbers on the road between Kallakurchi and Tirukkóyilúr, and hopes that the District Magistrate will direct the police constables to be on the alert.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Sept. 21st, 1898.

Certain suggestions to the South Indian Railway authorities and to the District Magistrate of Cuddalore.

(i) Public Works.

39. A correspondent (Vannety Lakshmi Narasiah) to the Andhraprakasika, of the 28th September, writes that from the time the Sangam project was opened, water was let into canals freely and the ryots got on without any troubles. But this year water is allowed only by turns for two days out of every five days though the canals are full. The difficulties in consequence are indescribable. He remarks that he never even dreamed of the ryots meeting with such hardships in the reign of Her Majesty the Empress Victoria, and concludes with the prayer that the officers of the Public Works Department may consider about the situation of the cultivators and relieve their distress.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Sept. 28th, 1898.

"Sangam villagers' grievances."

(k) General.

40. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th September, writes as follows:—It is a pity that Government has left the appointment of tahsildars to the sole discretion of Collectors. As the Board of Revenue had hitherto to confirm such appointments made by Collectors, the latter had to appoint only competent and deserving men as tahsildars. The recent order of Government dispensing with the interference of the Board of Revenue in such appointments is likely to leave the appointment of tahsildars practically in the hands of Huzur Sheristadars and Treasury Deputy Collectors; for the Collectors who are constantly transferred from one district to another cannot help depending on their Huzur Sheristadars and Treasury Deputy Collectors for the necessary information regarding the qualifications of persons to be appointed tahsildars. The inevitable result of such a state of things would be that those persons who ingratiate themselves with the Huzur Sheristadars and Treasury Deputy Collectors would be appointed tahsildars. As tahsildars are very important Revenue officers on the proper and efficient discharge of whose duty depends the success of the Revenue Department, it is very essential that due attention should be paid to the appointment of these officers. In these circumstances, it is not desirable that the Board of Revenue should be deprived of the power of confirming the appointment of tahsildars made by Collectors.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 17th, 1898.

Remarks on the appointment of tahsildars.

41. The Desabhimani, of the 21st September, bitterly complains that some postal peons are in the habit of making a private use of the newspapers that are sent by post without delivering them to the addressees, and hopes that the Postal authorities will bestow the necessary attention on the subject and award such peons exemplary punishment.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Sept. 21st, 1898.

Complaint against some postal peons.

42. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th September, is surprised to hear that Government has sanctioned a grant of about Rs. 25,000 for the use of the Young Men's Christian Association at a time when want of funds is pleaded by Government for anything and everything.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 27th, 1898.

A remark on Government grant to the Young Men's Christian Association.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 27th, 1898.

43. The Sasilekha, of the 27th September, observes that Christian missionaries from America have found an association called the Young Men's Christian Association with no other intent than to tempt young men to adopt their religion, and are erecting buildings for the association opposite the Law College buildings. They do not profess to give any secular education. Yet the Government has thought it necessary to make a grant of as much as Rs. 24,963, out of a sum of Rs. 30,000, sanctioned in the budget of this year for educational buildings. It says that the people are very sorry to note that so much money is thus given away to the "association" at a time when even very useful and necessary works are postponed for want of funds. It is further curious that a portion of the building is to be let after its completion. It considers it becoming that the Government should re-consider its grant.

The Government grant to the new buildings of the Young Men's Christian Association.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Sept. 17th, 1898.

44. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 17th September, writes that as the fees for documents presented for registration in the offices of sub-registrars are not fixed, trouble and confusion are caused to the parties. To enhance the sub-registrars' commission on Government registration fees, they are charged inordinately at single rates in some cases, at double rates in some other cases, and at prohibitory rates in others. Documents are registered even in midnights and on Sundays if these illegal emoluments are forthcoming. False registrations of documents and antedated registrations used to be obtained by heavy payments to the officials. The correspondent prays that these facts may be brought to the consideration of the truth-loving Hon'ble Mr. P. Rajaratnam Mudaliar, and effective steps be taken to check the disreputable conduct of the sub-registrars, which leaves a deplorable stain on a department that is the most excellent of all departments.

Sub-registrars' practices.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 16th, 1898.

45. A ryot from Nellore writes to the Sasilekha, of the 16th September, about the immunity with which the engineering staff commits various irregularities, while the ryots are growing despondent on account of the absence of water in the canals and the keeping off of the rains. It was for a long time the rule, as well as the practice, to complete repairs to the canals under the "project" before the 15th of July, and to allow all the river water to flow into the canals, while only the water above the level of the anicut was let into the sea, the gates of the anicut being kept closed. Traffic carts usually crossed the river over the anicut, but while floods came on and water flowed over the anicut, the traffic had to suffer, and in consequence the collections at the toll-gates diminished. The municipal contractors, suffering loss thereby, persuaded the anicut superintendents to raise the flood-gates, so that the water might flow off through them instead of over the anicut, and the authorities did so to benefit the contractors at the expense of the ryots, who suffered seriously. The Executive Engineers, sub-divisional officers, and anicut superintendents were the principal agents that brought about these sufferings of the ryots.

Loud cries of the delta-ryots in Nellore.

When Mr. Ramaswamy Iyer acted as the Head-quarter Deputy Collector of the place, he saw through the mischief and mended matters by getting it ruled that the anicut gates should not on any account be raised, after the 15th of July until the fields were ripe. This was a boon to the ryots, which they enjoyed happily for the last ten years. In fasli 1307, Mr. V. T. Srinivasa Iyengar was the sub-divisional officer of the delta. When the river was full, he allowed even 12 and 13 feet of water to flow in the canals. The tanks were filled and a good supply was ready for use. To the great misfortune of the ryots, Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar was transferred from the place and an European without any practical knowledge was appointed Executive Engineer, and, to add to the grievance, a sub-divisional officer was also appointed, who is no better than the engineer, while the other officials are useless men. All this portends very great disaster to the delta.

The correspondent proceeds to say that, by the end of July, there was some water in the Pennaru which supplied some of the canals partially. A few of the ryots began cultivating the wet lands; but the Vallur canal of the Servepalle branch is left dry, as the repairs having been finished, the arrival of the sub-divisional officer was awaited. He (the correspondent) fails to see why the inspection should have been deferred till the end of July when men and cattle were in such a distressed condition for want of water. He states that on the 28th, 29th and 30th of August when floods came on, the old story of raising the gates was repeated and water was allowed to flow off in vain into the sea. Otherwise, there could have been water enough to supply the canals for a month at least. Only 7 feet of water is now allowed in the canals though the Superintending Engineers directed that 9 feet of water in the day-time and 8 feet in the night should be let in.

The correspondent states that one morning, in the face of a full flood, the gates were all opened, though it had always been usual till then to close them on such occasions. Even now there is only 9 feet of water in the canal.

The correspondent complains that to certain questions of a friend of his, the anicut superintendent gave evasive and indifferent answers.

Thus the unfortunate cultivator finds no means of getting relief. The Revenue officers are deaf to all complaints, though they are strictly regular in collecting the revenue. The correspondent asserts that the Government is lamentably neglecting the interests of the distressed husbandman and repeats that the mischief of allowing the river water to flow into the sea is committed simply to benefit the municipal contractors. He is at a loss to know what has induced the anicut authorities to look to the profits of the contractors so much at the risk of causing serious loss to the farmers. He asks why water should be so meagrely distributed to the cultivators while the river is full and a plentiful supply can be had. The anicut was constructed neither for goods traffic nor for profiting the contractors. The Government will be deplorably neglecting the cause of the ryot, he says, unless it issues a general order that not a drop should be allowed to escape in vain into the sea until the fields are ready for harvesting.

Observations on the Plague regulations, the Frontier policy and the amendment of the Indian Penal Code.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 26th, 1896.

46. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 26th September, speaking of the necessity for holding a meeting of the National Congress this year, remarks as follows:—From a sanitary point of view it would perhaps be well not to have the meeting, but on the other hand, there are so many matters that require to be discussed that the risk must be run. The Plague regulations must be taken in hand, the Frontier policy must be discussed and the extension of section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code must also be considered. As regards the first, there is so much chopping and changing about, that the people are frightened and run away from the towns as soon as the plague enters, not so much for fear of the disease, as for fear of Plague regulations. Rumours of all sorts are spread abroad; they say the Government wishes to do all sorts of terrible things, and they hide cases of plague. Rules should be laid down for the whole of the country, and with as little interference about them as possible. Then there is the frontier business. The late war caused a large sum of money to be spent uselessly. It has shaken the confidence in the authorities as regards frontier affairs, and in all probability this want of confidence extended to other doings of the Government. Then there is the extension of section 124-A, a work uncalled for and unnecessary. It should be undone and the spectre of sedition exorcised.

The new postal rules concerning the despatch of newspapers.

47. The same paper fears that the new rules discontinuing the registration of newspapers despatched will lead to an increase in the number of complaints made by subscribers that newpapers are not duly received by them, as there will be no check whatever on the petty officers of the Postal department from misappropriating the papers after destroying the labels attached thereto.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 17th, 1898.

48. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 17th September, states that, under existing circumstances, it is difficult to get at the truth in cases of death occurring, in divers ways, inasmuch as the head constables whose duty it is to report on such occurrences, are, for the most part, not conversant with the English language and also do not submit correct and satisfactory reports. They are further unacquainted with the simplest rudiments of Medical Jurisprudence and, on cross examination, therefore, their evidence invariably breaks down, and many true cases have thus to be dismissed It is suggested, therefore, in the interest of the police and the public, that Medical Jurisprudence should be translated into the vernacular languages and published for general information. The attention of the Government is invited to the matter.

Suggestion to translate Medical Jurisprudence into the vernacular languages.

49. A leader in the same paper remarks that it is a very unjust and inadvisable proceeding to require the apothecary posted at Battery to carry on also plague inspection duty at the Mysore boundary at a distance of 13 miles, and suggests, therefore, that a special officer be stationed there and a dispensary also opened at the place. The article hopes that the Collector and the Government will bestow their attention upon the matter.

A separate medical officer to be stationed at the Mysore boundary for plague inspection duty.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1898.

50. A Nenmara correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 14th September, writes that the people of that place are put to great inconvenience in consequence of no arrangements being made in the local post office for the acceptance or payment of money by the Money Order system. The attention of the authorities is invited to the matter.

Additional arrangements to be made in the Nenmara post office.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 17th, 1898.

51. A correspondent from Cannanore writes to the Kerala Patrika, of the 17th September, that about four or five Mappila sepoys have absconded, presumably because the 25th Regiment are under orders to go to Bangalore. It is suggested that steps be taken to prevent further desertion and also to bring back the deserters as they may hereafter prove a source of very great trouble and oppression to the public.

Desertion of Mappila sepoys.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1898.

52. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 14th September, dwells at great length upon the oppression and despotism to which the illiterate people of interior parts, especially the northern portions of the Chirakkal taluk, are subjected by the village officers, revenue inspectors, police constables and Salt and Abkári peons of those localities. In the eyes of the uneducated, helpless inhabitants of those parts, the petty officials above mentioned are their all-powerful rulers and the arbitrary acts of the latter tend only to confirm them in their belief. To draw batta allowance on false pretences, to threaten the people with fresh levying of income-tax, to make false entries in the paimash accounts, to refuse to grant receipts for taxes paid, to dispose of the property of people for arrears of revenue, at very low prices and without giving notice to the owners, are only some of the high-handed proceedings of the village munsif and his karnam (menon). The attention of the authorities is invited to these matters.

Despotism of petty officials in interior parts.

KERALA MITRAN, Cochin, Sept. 11th, 1898.

53. A leader in the Kerala Mitran, of the 11th September, suggests that some steps should be taken by the Government to put a stop to the unjust practice, of superior officers, of employing peons in doing the menial work of their household.

Peons employed in domestic works.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 17th, 1898.

54. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 17th September, disapproves of the practice, among certain sub-registrars, of calculating stamp value separately upon the kanom amount as well as on improvement (kuzhikkur) in a case of assignment of land.

Stamp value calculated on both kanom and kuzhikkur (improvement.

This practice is upheld by the Revenue officers. In accordance with the provisions of the Stamp Act, improvement (kuzhikkur) is merged in the kanom amount. The present system followed by the sub-registrars, though it is a source of gain to the Government and the stamp-vendors, is surely a very unjust and inadvisable procedure. It is hoped that the Government would pass just and favourable orders upon the subject.

Collectors of districts to appoint tahsildars.

55. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st September, remarks that the order recently passed by the Madras Government investing Collectors of districts with the power of appointing tahsildars, is calculated to prove harmful in its working. With the withdrawal of the discretionary power exercised hitherto by the Board of Revenue either to confirm or reject a Collector's nominee to the post, the Collectors or very often the Huzur Sheristadars and Treasury Deputy Collectors are allowed to have their own way in the appointment of tahsildars. Collectors of districts are given frequent transfers and they are not, therefore, in a position to know the comparative merits of the different candidates for the post in a particular district. They are, therefore, compelled to act upon the recommendation of their Sheristadars who very often suggest the wrong man for the appointment.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 21st, 1898.

Sanitation neglected in Tanúr.

56. A Tanúr correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 24th September, writes that since the sanitary establishment of the town has been done away with, the place has literally been gorged with rubbish and filth which pave the way for the breaking out of epidemic diseases. It is suggested, therefore, that at least half the number of former coolies and a maistry with a low pay may be employed for purposes of looking after the sanitation of the town. The Collector of Malabar and the Head Assistant Collector of Palghat will, it is hoped, bestow their attention on the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 24th, 1898.

The Native press.

57. With reference to some letter of Mr. Norton's, the Naier-i-Asifi, of the 15th September, observes that the actions and doings of European society are legitimate objects of criticism by the Native press and that the latter, if independent, need not hesitate to express that criticism with reference to any member of the community, however highly placed even of royalty itself.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept., 15th 1898.

Dearness of grain.

58. The Alhami, of the 18th September, complains that grain is getting dearer day by day in spite of the fact that it is brought in abundantly, and says that this is due to the negligence of the authorities.

ALHAMI, Madras, Sept. 18th, 1898.

Theft.

59. The same paper in connection with the theft recently committed in the bungalow of the Police Commissioner, Madras, complains that thefts are on the increase and that not a single day passes without one or more cases of theft.

Bombay Government and the Plague rules.

60. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 19th September, refers to the order passed by the Bombay Government for amending the Plague regulations, and observes that it appears from the order that the Bombay Government approves of some of the suggestions in the petition presented to it by the traders and believes that the other suggestions will also be approved as, it says, the British Government is very just and equitable.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1898.

Invitations by the Viceroy and his daughter's wedding.

61. The same paper has an extract from the Agra (place of publication not mentioned) to the effect that Capital (an English paper published in Calcutta), with reference to the approaching marriage of His Excellency the Viceroy's daughter, says that persons invited will not dare to refuse the invitation, but will be obliged to attend the ceremony with presents according to English custom. It suggests the advisability of putting a stop to such invitations by the Viceroy.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1898.

62. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 22nd September, referring to a case of suicide at Dharwar where a Hindu priest whose house had been disinfected by a person of low caste put an end to his life, says that since measures are now being promptly and vigorously taken against the plague in Madras, the authorities should respect the customs and religious scruples of the people.

Plague at Dharwar.

The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 22nd September, alludes to the same case of suicide and echoes the sentiments expressed by the Mukhbir.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Sept. 26th, 1898.

63. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 26th September, in regard to the proposed holding of meetings at Triplicane, to concert measures against the plague, writes that the Plague regulations recently framed by the Government of India are very satisfactory. It is hoped that people now will have no cause for any complaints. There are now no such obstacles in the way as were the cause of outbreaks in Bombay. The editor says that had these measures been at first adopted there would have been no riots. In short he thinks that Madrasis have no cause to fear the Plague regulations in any way.

Meetings at Triplicane.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1898.

64. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 22nd September, writes that the citizens of Madras ought to take a lesson from the shameless action of the people of Bangalore. They should bear well in mind that plague, like all other infectious diseases, must be treated by medical experts. Government has, in consultation with the ablest medical authorities, framed Plague regulations that are consistent with the welfare of the public, and therefore every one ought to abide by them. The Naier is of opinion that no attempts will be of any avail unless the Ulamas and leading Muhammadans of Madras try to allay any doubts or fears that may exist amongst their co-religionists.

The plague in Madras.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 26th, 1898.

65. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 26th September, refers to a case in which the body of a tailor who had died suddenly of excessive drinking was allowed to lie on the road for more than twelve hours to the infinite disgust of all the inhabitants and of the passers-by. The disposal of the dead body, it would appear, was delayed by the plague authorities not furnishing soon the necessary certificate that the death was not due to plague.

A complaint about the working of the Plague regulations in Bangalore.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Sept. 17th, 1898.

66. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 17th September, says that the cause of the rapid spread of the plague is the stringency of the rules about segregation. The people, to avoid the inconvenience of segregation by giving information to those on plague duty, bury their dead in their own houses in shallow graves. The people also run away to neighbouring villages and carry with them the germs of the disease. The aversion of the people to segregation is due to the fact that not only are children parted from their parents, wives from their husbands, but what is of more importance to the devout Hindu, he is unable to perform those daily oblations and ceremonies which can only be rightly performed at the family altar; and all this merely to satisfy the fear-begotten ideas of plague precautions which, such authorities as Drs. Blainey and Neild Cook, have pronounced of but doubtful value. One or two recent events show that all is not as it should be, and that the advocates of the so-called scientific plague precautions, which did so much harm wherever tried, are at work in Bangalore. The deputation of special officers to study plague disinfection as practised in Hubli and the appointment, as Chief Plague Superintendent, of a young military officer are events that have created great deal of terror in the minds of the people. The paper, therefore, urges on the authorities in the City of Bangalore to introduce no scheme without first feeling the pulse of the native community.

Spreading the plague.

67. The Karnataka Kesari, of the 26th September, after answering most of the objections raised by the people against Plague rules, suggests that disinfectants should be sold cheap and the poor people who cannot afford to buy them should be supplied with them gratis by Government. Another suggestion made by the paper is that poor people who have to live by their daily labour should be supplied with money for their daily expenditure when they are confined in segregation camps, and just when they are leaving them.

KARNATAKA KESARI, Bangalore, Sept. 26th, 1898.

Some suggestions regarding Plague rules.

68. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 22nd September, with reference to a report that Mr. Plowden has expressed his willingness to stay in Hyderabad for a further period of two years and is expected to be in Hyderabad early in November, pities that unfortunate province for the calamity that is about to fall upon it in the person of Mr. Plowden.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1898.

Mr. Plowden's return to Hyderabad.

The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 22nd September, expresses similar sentiments in regard to Mr. Plowden's return to Hyderabad.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

69. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 12th September, suggests the desirability of opening an efficient police establishment at the Aramboly frontier, Travancore, in view to put a stop to the depredations of the Maravars who do not scruple to commit dacoity and other heinous offences with impunity, and concludes with the remark that the police establishment recommended would be an efficient check against the smuggling of tobacco frequently complained of and would be the means of increasing the revenue of the state in the shape of tobacco duty.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Sept. 12th, 1898.

Necessity for a police establishment at the Aramboly frontier.

70. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 19th September, finds fault with the Plague Commissioner for parleying for a long time with a Muhammadan in whose house a plague case had occurred and who persisted in refusing to remove to another house, which was pointed out to him. The editor fears that the lower orders will be encouraged in their lawlessness by the way the man was treated, and thinks it a pity that the Plague Commissioner did not see his order carried out at once, for had he done so a good deal of lawlessness might have been prevented.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 19th, 1898.

Unreasoning opposition to Plague rules how to be dealt with.

71. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 24th September, states that slave-trade—to put down which wherever it exists Englishmen are so generous and ready—exists in a certain form among cultivators of the soil in Malabar, specially Mappilas. The Cherumars, an extremely poor race that knows not what liberty is, are bought sometimes at the rate of 8 rupees each by the cultivators who employ them on their farms and treat them as part and parcel of their holdings. The slave-Cherumars have great regard and affection for their masters and will not reveal anything calculated to push their masters into jeopardy. The article, however, gives a hint that the slave-Cherumars call their masters by the title of Thamburan (a king or god), while they call other Mappilas by the simple name Mappila. The amsam revenue inspectors, says the article, will be able to give additional information regarding this nefarious practice. The attention of the Collector and the Government is invited to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 24th, 1898.

Cherumars bought as slaves in Malabar.

[Issued 8th October 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 19 OF 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th October 1898.

CONTENTS.

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS. PAGE

Influence and counter-influence in China .. .. .. 295
Drawing a contrast between the power of Russia and that of England .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
England and other European powers .. .. .. .. ib.
The Cretan affairs .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Candian affairs .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The alleged invasion of India by Russia .. .. .. 296

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—

Gambling in the village of Vadakudi in Madura district. ib.
Desirability of appointing as station-house officers men of education, experience, position and prestige .. ib.
A complaint against the Tanjore police .. .. .. ib.
Neglect of duty on the part of the Railway police .. ib.
The Police department .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Police constables and head constables to be transferred from Calicut .. .. .. .. .. .. 297

(b) Courts—

Remarks on the High Court Judges .. .. .. ib.
Unequal justice administered in courts .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—Nil.

(d) Education—

A grievance of the Local Fund Board schoolmasters .. ib.
Mappila education .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

A remark on the attitude of the Madras municipality towards the dhobies .. .. .. .. .. 298
A protest against the election as a councillor of Mr. Sanjeevi Pillai for Manambuchavady ward, Tanjore .. ib.
Contemplated taxation by the Cannanore municipality .. ib.
Cannanore municipality .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The refusal of the Local Government to sanction certain amount required for the plague preventive measures.. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—Nil.

(g) Forests—

Certain suggestions regarding the Forest department. ib.

(h) Railways—Nil.

(i) Public Works—

Grievances of the ryots in the Nellore delta .. .. 299

(j) Salt and Abkári—Nil.

(k) General—

Desirability of separating the magisterial and revenue functions .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A protest against the transfer of the post office from Pasumalai to Tiruparankunram, contemplated by the authorities .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Reflections on the Honourable Mr. Ratnasabapathy Pillai's suggestion to Government about the desirability of separating the executive and judicial functions .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 300

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont. PAGE

(k) General—cont.

Remarks on village pattamaniyamdars .. .. .. 300
Retrenchment of expenditure and the annual exodus to the hills .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Required an hospital at Mangalagiri .. .. .. ib.
Matters that should engage the attention of the coming Viceroy .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Inconvenience due to the Kallai bar being not opened .. ib.
A clerk appointed to act for a district registrar in preference to a sub-registrar .. .. .. .. 301
Meeting between the Talipparamba police inspector and Chirakkal Thamburan .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Undue collection of survey fees .. .. .. .. ib.
Inconvenience felt by people in interior parts .. .. ib.
A dispensary for Tandr .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Branch dispensary at Chalil to be retained .. .. ib.
Murder in Kuzhalmannam, Palghat taluk .. .. ib.
Treatment of plague patients by native physicians .. ib.
A general meeting of the Muhammadans in Triplicane. 302
The plague .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Release of Mr. Tilak .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The order for the destruction of rats .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion regarding plague preventive measures .. ib.
Law regarding vaccination .. .. .. .. ib.
Theatrical companies in Bangalore .. .. .. ib.
Budget estimate of the office of the Persian and Hindustani Translator to Government and Examiner in Hindustani .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION—Nil.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

Advisability of putting a stop to the practice of dedicating girls to temples .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The plague in Bangalore .. .. .. .. .. 303
Defects in the plague operations in Bangalore .. .. ib.
Emigrants to Peerimet .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Plowden .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

Sufferings of the poor agriculturists .. .. .. .. ib.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

A remark regarding a certain notification of the Tramway Company .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 304
A protest against the erection of plague sheds on the high road leading to Tiruparankunram, Madura district .. ib.
Enhancement of the value of the rupee—a source of material loss to the Indian subjects .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Certain suggestions to the authorities about the plague .. ib.
Sufferings of the labouring classes in Ceylon .. .. .. ib.
How to deal with an epidemic of plague .. .. .. 305
The Congress meeting to be held or not .. .. .. ib.
Appealing to collect funds for the Congress .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Gnana Chandrika" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 2,000 | Aug. 1898. |
| 2 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | Sept. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "Sukha Jivani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. | 250 | 1st Oct. 1898. |
| 4 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 1st ,, ,, |
| 5 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 6 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th Oct. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 1st and 8th Oct. 1898. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 2,000 | 30th Sept. and 7th Oct. 1898. |
| 9 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 28th ,, ,, 5th ,, ,, |
| 10 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 300 | 26th ,, ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 400 | 3rd and 10th Oct. 1898. |
| 12 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 13 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 14 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 15 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 16 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 17 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Tiruvadi .. .. .. | 100 | 1st ,, 8th ,, ,, |
| 18 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 400 | 1st Oct. 1898. |
| 19 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 9th ,, ,, |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 29th Sept. and 1st, 4th, 6th, 8th, 11th and 13th Oct. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 21 | "Satwasadhani" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 250 | 30th Sept. 1898. |
| 22 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | Oct. 1898. |
| 23 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 200 | Sept. ,, |
| 24 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakur .. .. .. | 100 | ,, and Oct. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 25 | "Vignanavardhani" .. .. | Rayadrug .. .. .. | 100–150 | 15th Oct. 1898. |
| 26 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | ,, April ,, |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 1st and 8th Oct. 1898. |
| 28 | "Krishna News" .. .. .. | Bezwada .. .. .. | .. | 3rd, 10th, 17th and 24th Sept., and 1st and 8th Oct. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 29 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 30th Sept. and 4th, 7th and 11th Oct. 1898. |
| 30 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 1st, 5th, 8th and 12th Oct. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 31 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 3rd and 10th Oct. 1898. |
| 32 | "Suryodaya" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 23rd Sept. 1898. |
| 33 | "Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini" .. | Do. .. .. .. | 80 | 8th Oct. 1898. |
| 34 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 6th and 13th Oct. 1898. |
| 35 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Mysore Star" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | .. | 15th Sept. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 37 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasseri .. .. | 600 | 25th Sept. and 5th Oct. 1898. |
| 38 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 860 | 5th Oct. 1898. |
| 39 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 20th and 30th Sept. 1898. |
| 40 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 1st Oct 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 41 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 1st and 8th Oct. 1898. |
| 42 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 550 | 26th Sept. and 3rd and 10th Oct. 1898. |
| 43 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 28th ,, ,, 5th Oct. 1898. |
| 44 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 1st and 8th Oct. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 45 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 3rd and 10th Oct. 1898. |
| 46 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 1st Oct. 1898. |
| 47 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th Sept. and 5th Oct. 1898. |
| 48 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 2nd and 9th Oct. 1898. |
| 49 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 5th Oct. 1898. |
| 50 | "Naier-i-Asifi" .. .. .. | Mylapore, Madras .. | .. | 29th Sept. and 6th Oct. 1898. |
| 51 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 15th, 19th, 22nd, 26th, and 29th Sept. 1898. |
| 52 | "Manshur-i-Muhammadi" .. | Do. .. .. | 400 | 25th July 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 8th October, calculates, from recent events that occurred in China, that Russian influence which has Li Hung Chung for its exponent is gathering strength and that the English will have to bestir themselves with vigour to make good their position in China. To prevent the possibility of Russian influence becoming paramount in China, the English will have to take prompt action.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, Oct. 8th, 1898.

Influence and counter-influence in China.

2. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 3rd October, says it is commonly alleged that Russia ranks first in strength among the powers of Europe, but the most extensive and the most powerful empire in the world is that of Britain on which the sun never sets.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Oct. 3rd, 1898.

Drawing a contrast between the power of Russia and that of England.

3. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 15th September, commenting on the political aspect of Europe, says that since the time that an alliance was formed between Russia and France, England has been spending crores of rupees in strengthening her fleet. The editor is of opinion that other useful works will be neglected if the whole of the finances of England are utilised in this direction.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Sept. 15th, 1898.

England and other European powers.

4. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 29th September, with reference to the present state of affairs in Crete, writes that experience has shown that the Sultan of Turkey is a forbearing and compassionate ruler who pardons his Christian subjects even when they attack the lives and property of his Muslim subjects. The Christian powers, on the contrary, loudly complain whenever any fracas occurs between Christians and Muhammadans, and the latter are compelled to seek for redress. We learn from the writings of certain British historians that the Turkish Mussulmans are more forbearing than the Christians. It was only when the Turkish Mussulmans could no longer bear the high-handed dealings of their Christian neighbours that they took up arms. To blame the Turkish Mussulmans and to connive at the unbearable doings of the Christians is not fair and just. The Muhammadans were regarded as aggressors, during the recent Armenian outrages, but this has been disproved by the commission which conducted the inquiry into the matter and the result is that the Sultan's enemies, i.e., the Christian powers, have been put to the blush. The paper further says that Italy has come forward with a request to the Christian powers to compel the Sultan to recall his troops and officers within a fixed time from Crete. This suggestion of Italy is in the opinion of the editor perfectly absurd.

Naier-i-Asifi, Madras, Sept. 29th, 1898.

The Cretan affairs.

5. The same paper, in regard to a Reuter's telegram of the 29th September to the effect that Jamad Pasha will withdraw the Turkish force from Candia and that Colonel Chermside (sic) will take possession of the city as soon as reinforcements are received, and in refutation of an allegation that the Muslims are always the aggressors, writes that the complaints of the Muslims of Candia are reasonable. The Christians outnumber the Muslims in Crete. After the recent outrages by the Christians the Mussulmans of Crete abandoned their homes and sought refuge in Candia. There they had to contend with many hardships and much adversity. Their villages have been reduced to ashes and their mosques defiled by Christians. They have been at last reduced to such extremities that they have been obliged to accept menial service under a British officer for a few shillings. How, asks the editor, will 30,000 Mussulmans be able to support themselves in this way? When they, who are suffering in this way, hear that their Muslim brethren are being bullied by Christians, will it not rouse their indignation? They should not be blamed at all, if they resort to force, and it will be no fault of the

The Candian affairs.

Turkish army if they help their helpless co-religionists. They should certainly not be expelled from the city for this.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Sept. 26th, 1898.

6. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 26th September, commenting on the alleged impending invasion of India by Russia in consequence of her relations with England being strained owing to Chinese affairs, regrets that the British Government has not yet made arrangements to close the roads against Russia through which former invaders of India reached this country.

The alleged invasion of India by Russia.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Sept. 26th, 1898.

7. The Nilalochani, of the 26th September, complains that gambling is carried on on a very large scale in a village named Vadakudi in Madura district, apparently at the connivance of the Police officers who are bribed, and draws the attention of the Deputy Tahsildar of Tiruppattúr division to the nefarious practice in question. The paper thinks that if the headmen in charge of the gambling houses and the village munsif are sent to jail, gambling would be a thing of the past in the place under reference.

Gambling in the village of Vadakudi in Madura district.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 30th, 1898.

8. The Lokopakari, of the 30th September, complains that such heinous offences as murder committed in villages are not brought to light in consequence of the fact that the police and the village officers act collusively in hushing up such cases, and suggests the desirability of appointing as Station-house officers, on decent pay, men of education, experience, position and prestige; for, such men are not wanting in these days of competition when several persons are without employment even after having passed higher examinations.

Desirability of appointing as Station-house officers men of education, experience, position and prestige.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 1st, 1898.

9. The Jananukulan, of the 1st October, referring to cases of theft and mischief by fire committed at short intervals in September last in the Northern street at Tanjore, observes that the inhabitants of that locality do not seem to spend their nights without anxiety and disturbance, and that such a state of things is not complimentary to the police of Tanjore. The paper is surprised to hear of such disagreeable reports in spite of the high position Mr. Parangusam Naidu, the Tanjore police inspector, holds in the estimation of the higher authorities, and hopes that the Police will be on the alert and bring to book the culprits and adopt such measures as will ensure safety.

A complaint against the Tanjore police.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 8th, 1898.

10. The Jananukulan, of the 8th October, regrets to report that theft of property is of frequent occurrence on the South Indian Railway, and observes that such an unpleasant state of things is not complimentary to the Railway police.

Neglect of duty on the part of the Railway police.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 7th, 1898.

11. The Sasilekha, of the 7th October, writes that the Government should take care to appoint a very able man to administer the Police department, and that it should be spending sufficient money to secure all necessary reforms. It condemns the practice of extolling such officers as able officers who manage to place a number of cases before magistrates and get the accused punished. This principle simply encourages concoctions of false cases and brings the innocent into trouble. The judges that are acquainted with the doings of the police, discredit them and let off the culprits. This is all due to the appointment of illiterate men as constables, and of half-educated men as station-house officers, sub-inspectors and inspectors. Of the 300 inspectors that are in this department, only 31 are B.As. and 33 F.As. These too have found a place in the department only through the beneficial reforms introduced by Mr. Hammick.

The Police department.

The paper concludes that if the Government desires to rule the people beneficiently, it should appoint a capable man like Mr. Hammick as the head of the department, give the posts of sub-inspectors, inspectors and assistant superintendents to such as have passed higher examinations, and increase the salaries of constables and station-house officers to get better men.

Police constables and head constables to be transferred from Calicut.

12. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 1st October, invites the attention of the authorities concerned to the evil effects necessarily attendant upon allowing police constables to remain in any one place without being transferred. The article expresses its surprise at the fact that even in Calicut, the head-quarters of the Malabar police, constables are posted, it would appear, permanently.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 1st, 1898.

(b) Courts.

Remarks on the High Court Judges.

13. The Swadesamitran, of the 13th October, writes as follows:—It is really strange that the Judges of the same High Court materially differ in their opinion. We do not contend that the Judge who proceeds to pass his judgment to-day in deciding a particular case should blindly follow the footsteps of another Judge who decided a similar case on a former day. What we propose is that the Judge who decides a case to-day should state his reasons for his not deciding the case in the same manner in which his predecessor or another Judge decided a similar case on a former occasion, as such a procedure is sure to make the parties believe that there is no miscarriage of justice.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 13th, 1898.

Unequal justice administered in courts.

14. The Sasilekha, of the 4th October, states that in Calcutta one Mr. Law, a cooly-contractor personating a "Police Superintendent," took a Brahmin girl forcibly to a magistrate for pandering to his lust. This shameless wretch was only fined Rs. 100. A carriage-examiner of the Bengal Central Railway stole a gold watch and chain worth Rs. 1,300. This "white thief" was let off scot-free upon furnishing a security of Rupees 1,000. A native who committed theft of a bag of rice was sentenced to nine months' rigorous imprisonment by the Chief Magistrate in Calcutta. The paper exclaims "Lo! how equitable these decisions are!" and asks if such dispensers of justice are of any good to the country.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 4th, 1898.

(d) Education.

A grievance of the Local Fund Board schoolmasters.

15. The Lokopakari, of the 30th September, bitterly complains that the condition of the poor schools under the management of Local Fund Boards is deplorable as the payment of the salary due to the teachers employed therein is kept in abeyance for a period of 4 or 5 months for want of sanction, and hopes that the Local Fund authorities will bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 30th, 1898.

Mappila education.

16. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th September, remarks that Mappila education in Malabar, if it is carried on on the principle that Mappilas only should teach Mappila boys, will not prove successful in its working. The few educated Mappilas of North Malabar, some of whom have passed the Matriculation, F.A., and even the B.A. degree examinations, did not find it necessary that they should be taught by Mappilas. The article does not also see the necessity of a special Mappila sub-inspector for North Malabar. Mappila boys should be taught by capable teachers of whatsoever caste or creed in public schools resorted to by their Hindu or Christian brethren. The article in conclusion expresses its surprise that the Director of Public Instruction does not seriously take the matter into his consideration.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 28th, 1898.

(e) Local and Municipal.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Oct. 1st, 1898.

A remark on the attitude of the Madras municipality towards the dhobies.

17. The Vikata Dutan, of the 1st October, does not think it reasonable that the Madras municipality should prosecute the poor dhobies who wash the clothes entrusted to them with the purest available water drawn from wells, and asks—"Is it possible for the poor dhobies to construct for their use big tanks and other reservoirs?" The paper concludes with the remark that the Madras municipality is in duty bound to provide the dhobies with such reservoirs as will answer their purpose before it proceeds to take them to task.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 1st, 1898.

A protest against the election as a councillor of Mr. Sanjeevi Pillai for Manambuchavady ward, Tanjore.

18. The Jananukulan, of the 1st October, objects to the election as a councillor of Mr. Sanjeevi Pillai for Manambuchavady ward, Tanjore, on the score that his brother and brother-in-law are municipal contractors, and hopes that Government will take into its consideration such a circumstance before proceeding to confirm the appointment of Mr. Sanjeevi Pillai, as the municipal administration will materially suffer in consequence of the close relationship of a councillor with the municipal contractors, and refers to a case in which the said contractors were let off with a warning for an offence for which any other than they would have been severely punished.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 8th, 1898.

Contemplated taxation by the Cannanore municipality.

19. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 8th October, hears that the Cannanore municipal council meditate levying a tax of one anna per head towards the expenses of improving the scavenging system of the town. The attempt at improving the sanitation of the place is indeed a laudable one, but that the poor among its inhabitants should be required to pay monthly a tax of one anna per head is certainly a grievance. A poor family may consist of fifteen or sixteen individuals with an income just sufficient to maintain them. Now the municipal council require them to pay monthly 15 or 16 annas out of their very limited income towards scavenging work. Again, a very rich man living perhaps alone has, in accordance with the rules of the municipal council, to pay only one anna a month. Thus, says the article, the system of taxation adopted by the council leaves much to be desired and it therefore urges upon the council the reconsideration of the matter. The example of the Calicut and other municipalities should serve, says the article, as a guide to the Cannanore municipal council.

Cannanore municipality.

20. A correspondent to the same paper complains of the lack of efficient sanitary overseers and sub-overseers in the Cannanore municipality. Disapproval of the contemplated levying of tax upon the people of Cannanore is also given expression to. The correspondent also does not see the necessity for spending the slender means of the municipality upon many Maramut works.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Oct. 6th, 1898.

The refusal of the Local Government to sanction certain amount required for the plague preventive measures.

21. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 6th October, in mentioning with great regret the flat refusal of the Local Government to sanction the amount asked for by the municipality to meet the expenses that would be incurred on account of the plague preventive measures, observes that the Local Government instead of offering pecuniary help to the municipality has suggested the enhancement of municipal taxes, which will on no account be welcomed by the public. The Naier hopes that Government will reconsider this very important matter satisfying the people as regards its plague measures.

(g) Forests.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Oct. 1st, 1898.

Certain suggestions regarding the Forest department.

22. The Agnikulathithan, of the 1st October, eulogising His Excellency the Governor of Fort St. George for the issue of a recent order in respect of the Forest department, which is calculated to alleviate the sufferings of the people in consequence of the rigour of the forest rules, observes as follows:—It is desirable that the fees levied from the poor people who stand in need of forest produce for their livelihood as well as those levied on grazing grounds should be reduced, that the poor agriculturists should be permitted to take a reasonable quantity of forest produce exclusively for their domestic purposes, subject to the supervision of the Forest officers, and that the cases of infringement of forest rules brought by the Forest officers should be carefully investigated by some trustworthy authority, for the Forest officers are in the habit of fabricating cases and subjecting innocent persons to punishment when they do not grease them.

(i) Public Works.

23. A ryot from the Nellore delta writes to the Sasilekha, of the 30th September, that the action of the Anicut authorities in raising the flood-gates against the flood, contrary to custom, has not only prejudiced the ryots but also caused loss to the Government. When the water in the river abated, the authorities tried to close the gates, but their attempt failed. The ryot has been deprived of the use of the river water; the tanks are empty; the sun is scorching; the river has almost dried up. To add to these misfortunes, the writer complains that another serious blunder has been committed by the delta officials. All the water in the Sarvepalle canal has been let out into the sea through Nakkapalle canal. This has been done, it is said, simply to remove the silt from the bed of the former canal. If this is true, the correspondent remarks that, when a considerable sum of money is expended and a stated time fixed for repairs to the delta, it is quite unjust to the ryots that valuable water should thus be wasted, instead of spending money for the removal of silt, and that repairs should be attended to during the cultivation season instead of during the appointed times.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 30th, 1898.

Grievances of the ryots in the Nellore delta.

(k) General.

24. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th September, observes as follows:—The sufferings of the people in consequence of the fact that Revenue officers are vested with magisterial powers have been minimized since the appointment of stationary sub-magistrates. Until the revenue and magisterial powers are totally separated from each other the people are sure to have some room or other for complsint. His Excellency the Governor pleaded want of funds when the people represented their grievances on this point during His Excellency's recent tour. The various newspapers clearly pointed out that the suggestion herein made can be carried out without any additional outlay. The circumstance that deputy tahsildars have to discharge magisterial duties also is a source of annoyance to the people, on the ground that these magistrates post cases for hearing during their circuit, while it is possible for them to dispose of the few cases that are preferred to them during their stay at the head-quarters. The parties are put to great inconveniences and difficulties in consequence of their being required to appear before the semagistrates during their circuit, inasmuch as the latter at times halt at unimportant hamlets where the parties could hardly secure meals for them. This grievance of the people can be remedied only by the total separation of the revenue and judicial functions.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 29th, 1898.

Desirability of separating the magisterial and revenue functions.

25. The Satya Vartamani, of the 1st October, observes that the post office at Pasumalai in Madura district has been of immense use to the inhabitants of Pasumalai and has been a source of good income to Government, and that it is not at all desirable to transfer the post office from Pasumalai to Tiruparankunram as contemplated by the authorities, in consideration of the existence of a college, a normal school, a vedavidyasala and a printing press at Pasumalai where a post office of a higher grade is absolutely necessary.

SATYA VARTAMANI, Pasumalai, Oct. 1st, 1898.

A protest against the transfer of the post office from Pasumalai to Tiruparankunram, contemplated by the authorities.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 4th, 1898.

Reflections on the Honourable Mr. Ratnasabapathy Pillai's suggestion to Government about the desirability of separating the executive and judicial functions.

26. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th October, referring to the suggestion made to Government by the Honourable Mr. Ratnasabapathy Pillai pointing out the desirability of separating the executive and judicial functions, observes that the members of the Legislative Council of these days unlike those of the former days vie with one another in doing whatever that is calculated to promote the interests of the people they represent and in securing their good-will. The paper concludes with the remark that the idea entertained by Government that the Collector who is the highest local authority of the district should have all powers vested in him for the efficient administration of the district is the recondite cause of the reluctance on the part of Government to separate the two functions, and that the financial difficulty pleaded by Government cannot be the real cause, in that Government never keeps in abeyance, for want of funds, anything which it really wishes to carry out.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Oct. 8th, 1898.

Remarks on village pattamaniyamdars.

27. The India Mitran, of the 8th October, regrets to say that village pattamaniyamdars are, as a class, men possessing little or no education, and thinks that they should not be vested with both the civil and the magisterial powers and that they should be appointed on the recommendation of District Judges and other Civil and Criminal authorities and not by Collectors on the recommendation of tahsildars.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 30th, 1898.

Retrenchment of expenditure and the annual exodus to the hills.

28. The Sasilekha, of the 30th September, referring to the Government orders for the curtailment of expenditure, remarks that the Government would do well to lessen the expenditure incurred on account of the annual exodus to the hills, and suggests that when the Government has necessarily to go there, the "gentlemen" should be required to bear their own expenses individually.

KRISTNA NEWS, Bezwada, Sept. 10th, 1898.

Required an hospital at Mangalagiri.

29. The Kristna News, of the 10th September, speaking of the great need for an hospital at Mangalagiri (Kistna district), says that the two divisions of the town are very close to each other, and the population is large, but that good native physicians are rare. Those who desire to have recourse to English treatment have necessarily to go either to Guntúr or Bezwada. Further, the town being a place of pilgrimage, pilgrims visit it in large numbers. It is therefore absolutely necessary, says the paper, that there should be an hospital there.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 10th, 1898.

Matters that should engage the attention of the coming Viceroy.

30. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th October, after expressing its fears that the coming Viceroy holding as he does strong views about the Frontier question might re-open that question, and to finish the work that was taken in hand try to subdue the tribes and bring them under the direct rule of the British, says it will be a great relief to all should he keep clear of all frontier complications and devote his sole attention to the internal administration of the country. There are many reforms that are required in the land; the taxes are very heavy; the expenditure is beyond the means of the people. If Lord Curzon will turn his attention towards the revenue, see where a saving can be effected, where a tax can be taken off, how the aspirations of the people can be satisfied, he will deserve well of the people.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 1st, 1898.

Inconvenience due to the Kallai bar being not opened.

31. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 1st October, reports that timber-merchants are put to great inconvenience in consequence of attempts not being made to open the Kallai bar. The attention of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter.

A clerk appointed to act for a district registrar in preference to a sub-registrar.

32. A paragraph in the Manorama, of the 26th September, states that one of its correspondents takes objection to the procedure whereby the second clerk of the Tellicherry district registrar's office was appointed to act as registrar for a week when the latter officer took leave, the nearest sub-registrar's claims being passed over. This procedure is said to be in contravention of the Registration Act.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 26th, 1898.

Meeting between the Talipparamba police inspector and Chirakkal Thamburan.

33. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th September, gives an account of the incident relating to what took place when the Talipparamba police inspector Mr. Bappu and his coachman had the misfortune to be met on the way by the Chirakkal Thamburan. The police inspector and his coachman were made to get clear of the public road to prevent pollution to His Highness' person. The police inspector, the article hears, has reported the matter to his superior, and the article therefore hopes that some general rule to be observed in similar cases will be laid down by the authorities concerned.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 28th, 1898.

Undue collection of survey fees.

34. A leader in the Manorama, of the 26th September, remarks that the way in which Survey officers grant receipts for payment of fees in connection with land survey, leaves much to be desired, inasmuch as the description, extent, etc., of the lands are not shown in them. More fees than are due are, as a consequence, extorted from the people. Such irregularities exist most in the Ernad taluk and the attention of the Survey Superintendent is invited to the matter.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 26th, 1898.

Inconvenience felt by people in interior parts.

35. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 5th October, attributes the domineering influence exercised by petty officials and village officers among the illiterate people of remote interior parts to the failure on the part of tahsildars personally to go to the amsams on circuit and ascertain the wants of the people direct from them. Tahsildars often obtain information from the clerks and other officials who are entrusted with the work the tahsildars have to do. Another source of grievance to the people living in amsams is the want of convenient roads. These matters deserve immediate consideration.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 5th, 1898.

A dispensary for Tanúr.

36. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th October, invites the attention of the Government to the necessity of opening a branch hospital in Tanúr. A suitable building for the dispensary can very easily be found.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 5th, 1898.

Branch dispensary at Chalil to be retained.

37. A correspondent to the Manorama, of the 10th October, protests against the proposal to do away with the branch dispensary at Chalil, which is of great service to the afflicted humanity in that locality. The proposal must, on no account, be countenanced.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 10th, 1898.

Murder in Kuzhalmannam, Palghat taluk.

38. A leader in the same paper brings before the Magistrate and the Inspector of Police the disappearance of one Churathil Ganapati Nayar of Kuzhalmannam amsam, Palghat taluk. The article hears from a Palghat correspondent that the said Ganapati Nayar was enticed from his house in the Ponnáni taluk where he owned some lands, by means of a letter alleged to have been written to him by Kuthanur Natuvathachan, and that, before he reached Kuzhalmannam, he was murdered and his body mutilated.

Treatment of plague patients by native physicians.

39. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 29th September, in regard to the recent plague regulations passed by the Government of India, says that we ought to be grateful to the Government for having granted us the option of being treated, if plague patients, by native physicians, and that Government also will afford some aid if funds are raised by private sources.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Sept. 29th, 1898.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 3rd, 1898.

40. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 3rd October, reports that a general meeting of the Muhammadans of Madras was held in the Triplicane Big Mosque on Friday the 31st August, under the presidency of Muhammad Mahmud Khan Bahadur, for the establishment of a hospital and segregation camp, for gosha ladies, at their own expense.

A general meeting of the Muhammadans in Triplicane.

41. A correspondent writing to the same paper about the plague thinks that prayers are the only medicines that will prove effective against the plague, and asks his co-religionists to hold special services for the purpose.

The plague.

42. The same paper refers to the release from jail of Mr. Tilak on the unexpired portion of his sentence being remitted, and asks the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces to show a similar indulgence towards the editor of the Jami-ul-Ulum who was convicted and sentenced for a similar offence.

Release of Mr. Tilak.

43. The same paper refers with approval to the resuscitation by the police of the order for the destruction of rats, etc., and says this measure is necessary for the public safety.

The order for the destruction of rats.

44. A correspondent writing about the plague to the same paper fears that native passengers from affected parts will possibly get down from the train a station or two beyond the inspection station at Perambúr to avoid being medically inspected and arrive at Madras by roads, and asks the Plague administrative authorities to take preventive measures accordingly.

A suggestion regarding plague preventive measures.

45. The same paper. The Paisa Akhbar mentions that the English law regarding vaccination is quite different from the Indian law. Under the former, vaccination is discretionary, but under the latter it is compulsory in some places in India. The editor does not understand the difference and observes that the law should be the same in India especially because some of the people of India do not like to be vaccinated.

Law regarding vaccination.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Sept. 29th, 1898.

46. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 29th September, complains that theatrical companies keep on playing in Bangalore notwithstanding the fact that plague is raging there. The editor fears that, if such companies be allowed to continue to play, it will be injurious to the health of the inhabitants and hopes that the Plague authorities will put a stop to them.

Theatrical companies in Bangalore.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 10th, 1898.

47. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 10th October, professes to have got hold of a Government order containing the budget estimate of the Hindustani Translator's and Examiner's office, and commenting thereon considers the charges very high. The editor thinks no European is competent to discharge the duties of the office and hopes a native will get it.

Budget estimate of the office of the Persian and Hindustani Translator to Government and Examiner in Hindustani.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SOUTH INDIAN MITRAN, Dindigul, Oct. 5th, 1898.

48. The South Indian Mitran, of the 5th October, regrets to report that the wretched practice of allowing girls to be dedicated to temples as dancing women is not curbed by the Government of Pudukkóttai although the British Government has ruled against it. The paper hopes that the authorities of Pudukkóttai will adopt the necessary measures to put a stop to the practice complained of, as women dedicated to temples prove to be prostitutes sooner or later and form dangerous elements of society.

Advisability of putting a stop to the practice of dedicating girls to temples.

49. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 3rd October, draws attention to the fact that the fear of plague having driven most of the shopkeepers and merchants away from Bangalore, those that are compelled by necessity to remain in the city find it difficult to get the necessaries of life. The paper fears therefore that starvation may soon begin to add its victims to those of plague. It is of opinion that people leave the city not from the fear of the plague but from their aversion to segregation, and even the very spread of the plague is, in a measure, due to this aversion, inasmuch as people conceal cases of plague and even bury the dead bodies within the houses to avoid segregation and thus give scope for the infection to spread. The paper therefore thinks that it would be well to do away with segregation altogether. The people should be taught how to disinfect their houses and the disinfectants should be kept within their easy reach and then they should be left to themselves. The measures at present employed have not stopped the progress of the plague anywhere, and those who prescribe such measures themselves know very little of the disease and till they learn more of it, it is very unwise to harass the people with remedies of doubtful efficacy.

The plague in Bangalore.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 3rd, 1898.

50. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th October, complains that the practice of carrying away plague patients to the hospital deprives the native physicians of an opportunity of trying their medicines on plague patients. This, says the paper, is the more deplorable, because it is a well-known fact that the English medicines are powerless in plague cases. Another defect in the administration is the neglect of the sanitation of the city in the bustle of segregation, disinfection, etc. Dr. Haffkine's serum has run short and people are flocking for inoculation only to go back disappointed. The paper therefore draws the attention of the authorities to the matter.

Defects in the plague operations in Bangalore.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 10th, 1898.

51. A correspondent to the Malayala Manorama, of the 8th October, dwells at some length upon the privations and hardships suffered by coolies that go to the malarious hilly region of Peerimet. The poor people that go there in search of work find hard taskmasters and, attacked by malarial fever, they are compelled to return to their homes, many dying on the way. It is hoped that the kind and gracious Maharaja and his Diwan will concert measures to minimise the misery of the poor labourers.

Emigrants to Peerimet.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Oct. 8th, 1898.

52. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 6th October, with reference to a rumour that Mr. Plowden has applied for the Chairmanship of the Nizam's State Railway, fallen vacant by the death of Mr. Oldfield, asks, "Is there any one who does not wish that Mr. Plowden should bid good-bye to Hyderabad?"

Mr. Plowden.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Oct. 6th, 1898.

53. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 5th October, writes that Sir Trevor Plowden has applied for three months' leave and that it is also rumoured that he has applied for the Chairmanship of His Highness the Nizam's Guaranteed State Railway which has fallen vacant by the death of Mr. Waterfield, and trusts that Sir Trevor may obtain still higher appointments and at the same time leave Hyderabad for ever.

Mr. Plowden.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Oct. 5th, 1898.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

54. The Agnikulathithan, of the 8th October, after describing at length the sufferings of the poor agriculturists even in the districts which are not famine-stricken in the opinion of Government, observes that the poor ryots are unable to avail themselves of the loan to be granted under the Land Improvement Loans Act, in consequence of hard-heartedness on the part of the village officials and the subordinate Revenue officers through whom applications for loan have to pass, and hopes that Government will bestow the necessary attention on the subject and adopt such measures as will facilitate the grant of loans to the agriculturists under the Act. The paper suggests the desirability of getting tanks and other sources of water-supply repaired by opening relief works which will be of immense help to the poor ryots who starve for want of employment, and trusts that the management of such relief works will be placed under the immediate control of Collectors, in view to prevent contractors and taluk officials from misappropriating the money intended for such useful purposes.

Sufferings of the poor agriculturists.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Oct. 8th, 1898.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 1st, 1898.

A remark regarding a certain notification of the Tramway Company.

55. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st October, referring to a notification by the Tramway Company to the effect that natives who are found adjusting their hair and chewing betel-leaves in the tram cars will be handed over to the police, writes as follows:—Europeans and Eurasians are at liberty to smoke in the tram car, although, when objected to, they have to smoke at the back part of the car. On the other hand, the Hindus are strictly prohibited from adjusting the hair and chewing betel-leaves while they are in the tram car. This notification shows that even in the tramway administration distinction of race is observed.

Satya Vartamani, Pasumalai, Oct. 1st, 1898.

A protest against the erection of plague sheds on the high road leading to Tiruparankunram, Madura district.

56. The Satya Vartamani, of the 1st October, strongly objects to the erection of plague sheds in the open ground on the high road leading to Tiruparankunram, Madura district, on the score that the said road is a public thoroughfare passed by thousands of pilgrims that resort monthly and even weekly to Tiruparankunram—a place of great pilgrimage, and observes that the erection of segregation sheds in the spot under reference will greatly facilitate the spread of the disease throughout the district, inasmuch as large crowds of labourers work in the neighbouring fields almost all the day long, and a channel which flows beside the site in question is a source of water-supply to several inhabitants who are sure to catch the contagion should they drink its water which must become infectious if the plague patients or their attendants have anything to do with it.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 4th, 1898.

Enhancement of the value of the rupee—a source of material loss to the Indian subjects.

57. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th October, observes that a great deal can be said on the material loss entailed on the Indian subjects in consequence of the enhancement of the value of the rupee, and refers to it as an instance in which Government takes an unfair advantage of the ignorance of the people of this country and subjects them to great loss without being noticed by them.

Agnikulathithan, Madras, Oct. 8th, 1898.

Certain suggestions to the authorities about the plague.

58. The Agnikulathithan, of the 8th October, suggests the desirability of sending competent natives to the places where the poor and ignorant live to advise them as to how they should behave should the bubonic plague visit Madras and explain to them the necessity of observing the laws of sanitation and so forth, as well as the well-meant proposals of Government to ward off and stamp out the epidemic, instead of adopting measures to set up segregation sheds, etc., at a great cost which may eventually end in a heavy "Plague tax."

India Mitran, Tiruvadi, Oct. 8th, 1898.

Sufferings of the labouring classes in Ceylon.

59. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 8th October, regrets to observe that the poor natives of this country who resort to Ceylon for employment as labourers in the coffee estates of that island are maltreated by their European masters, who, says the correspondent, do not scruple to violate the chastity of the poor women of the labouring classes, and that the Judicial authorities of the place do not administer justice properly as they are bent upon ingratiating themselves with the European proprietors of the coffee estates.

60. The Suryodaya, of the 23rd September (received in this month), says that Drs. Blaney and Cook have pointed out that compulsory segregation in camps instead of stamping out the plague has the very opposite effect of serving to spread it the more, owing to the aversion of the people to segregation, who try to conceal plague patients and even to bury the dead within the houses. The paper therefore makes the following suggestions which it says embody the opinion of the people generally:—That whole houses in which plague cases occur should be segregated; such of the people as require the assistance of Government in disinfecting houses, etc., should receive it readily; men coming from infected places should be strictly examined and no suspected person should be allowed to enter the town; people should be permitted to build caste hospitals as they please. In fact no more restrictions should be imposed by Government on the liberty of the people in the case of plague than in the case of cholera or other similar infectious diseases.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Sept. 23rd, 1898.

How to deal with an epidemic of plague.

61. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 3rd October, thinks that the intermission in the activity of the Congress committee in Madras is due to the fear that plague may ere long invade Madras, but says that nothing short of the actual appearance of the plague in the town of Madras should prevent the assembling of the Congress, so important are the subjects that await discussion at this year's meeting.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 3rd, 1898.

The Congress meeting to be held or not.

62. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 8th October, appeals to the people of Malabar to come forward and concert measures towards collecting subscriptions for the next session of the Indian National Congress to be held in Madras in next December. The National Congress, the article says, has become a potent factor for good in the country, and all sums of money spent in its behalf will be well spent. The people of Calicut are, in particular, requested to attend the meeting to be held in the Jubilee Town Hall and contribute their mite towards the Congress fund.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 8th, 1898.

Appealing to collect funds for the Congress.

[Issued 22nd October 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL.

No. 20 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st October 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

---

I.—Foreign Politics. — Page

Cretan affairs .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 309
The blessed humanity of Europe .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Sultan and the four great powers .. .. .. .. ib.
England and Turkey .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—

Pickpockets at the railway gate between the Robinson Park and the Monegar Choultry .. .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—

A suggestion regarding the cases brought against the editors of newspapers .. .. .. .. .. 310
European murderers .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

Certain suggestions in connection with the Village officers' special test .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Suggestion to abolish the Upper Secondary examination .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

Wretched condition of a road, etc., in the district of South Arcot .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to the Madras municipality in regard to its attitude towards the dhobies and cowherds .. ib.
The misuse of a tank at Tiruppugalur .. .. .. 311
Certain suggestions to the Madras municipality in respect of the sanitation of the City of Madras .. .. ib.
Remarks on the appointment of chairmen of some major unions .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Desirability of rendering the Madras municipality pecuniary aid, and of paying batta to the poor who get themselves inoculated .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Evils of appointing Collectors and Deputy Collectors as Presidents of District and Taluk Boards .. .. ib.
Unjust ruling of the Tellicherry municipal council .. 312
Improvement to be effected in the Periyapuram school.. ib.
Students not ferried free over Uliyangod kadavu, the boundary between Kasaragod and Chirakkal taluks .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Remarks on His Excellency's reply to the Kistna District Association .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Revenue Settlement Report .. .. .. .. ib.

(g) Forests—

Nil.

(h) Railways—

Nil.

(i) Public Works—

Nil.

II.—Home Administration—cont. — Page

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Irregularities in the chowki at Mahe .. .. .. 313

(k) General—

Necessity for a post office at Muriyur, Madura district .. ib.
A protest against the use of certain buildings in Triplicane as hospitals .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Reflections on the appointment of Native Collectors .. ib.
A forgerer in the taluk of Penukonda .. .. .. ib.
Bribes taken by Plague officials .. .. .. .. 314
Insanitary condition of the delta villages in Gódávari and Kistna .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Conduct of certain public servants in Manjéri .. .. ib.
Daring and atrocious crime by the Mappila sepoys .. ib.
Rama Rau, Deputy Collector, holding court until very late hours .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 315
Grievances in Walavanad taluk .. .. .. .. ib.
High-handedness of Mappila sepoys .. .. .. ib.
Postal notice regarding money order and value payable forms .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
An Englishman killing his children .. .. .. ib.
Plague riot at Trichinopoly .. .. .. .. ib.
Ill-treatment of natives by Europeans .. .. .. 316
Inoculation .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The necessity of the appointment of a lady doctor in Bangalore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Segregation laws .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

III.—Legislation.

Nil.

IV.—Native States.

Plague rules in Bangalore .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Changing plague rules in Bangalore .. .. .. .. ib.
The progress of plague in Bangalore .. .. .. .. ib.
Bribery of a certain magistrate .. .. .. .. 317
Cochin Anjal department .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Government to provide Vernacular schools .. .. ib.
Mr. Crawford, the Acting Resident at Hyderabad .. .. ib.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

A subject for the consideration of the ensuing Congress .. ib.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

A suggestion to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Railways versus Irrigation .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Payment of a grant in aid of the Young Men's Christian Association building .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Caste hospitals in Malabar necessary .. .. .. .. 318
Rude behaviour of Ottappálam stationmaster towards passengers .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Anti-plague inoculation .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th Oct. 1898. |
| 2 | "Sukha Jivani" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. | 250 | 15th " " |
| 3 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 15th " " |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 4 | "South India Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 15th and 25th Oct. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 5 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 15th, 22nd and 29th Oct. 1898. |
| 6 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 15th and 22nd Oct. 1898. |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 16th " 24th " " |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 2,000 | 14th Oct. 1898. |
| 9 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 15th and 22nd Oct. 1898. |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 12th " 19th " " |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 400 | 17th Oct. 1898. |
| 12 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 15th and 22nd Oct. 1898. |
| 13 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 16th " 30th " " |
| 14 | "Janannkulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 15th Oct. 1898. |
| 15 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 17th and 24th Oct. 1898. |
| 16 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 400 | 15th " 22nd " " |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 17 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 15th, 18th, 20th, 22nd, 27th and 29th Oct. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 18 | "Hindujanasamskarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 384 | Oct. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. " | 200 | 1st and 15th May 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 15th and 22nd Oct. 1898. |
| 21 | "Krishna News" .. .. .. | Bezwada .. .. .. | Not known. | 22nd Oct. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 15th, 19th, 22nd, 26th and 29th Oct. 1898. |
| 23 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 14th, 18th, 21st, 25th " 28th " " |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Karnataka Prakasika" .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 320 | 17th, 24th, and 31st Oct. 1898. |
| 25 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 20th and 27th Oct. 1898. |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 19th " 26th " " |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 27 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasseri .. .. | 670 | 15th Oct. 1898. |
| 28 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 840 | 15th " " |
| 29 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Manpanam .. .. | 500 | 10th and 20th Oct. 1898. |
| 30 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 11th " 21st " " |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 31 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 15th and 22nd Oct. 1898. |
| 32 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 550 | 17th Oct. 1898. |
| 33 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 12th and 19th Oct. 1898. |
| 34 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 725 | 15th " 29th " " |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 35 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 17th and 24th Oct. 1898. |
| 36 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 8th, 15th and 22nd Oct. 1898. |
| 37 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th Oct. 1898. |
| 38 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 23rd " " |
| 39 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 12th and 19th Oct. 1898. |
| 40 | "Naier-i-Asifi" .. .. .. | Mylapore, Madras .. | .. | 13th " 20th " " |
| 41 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 3rd, 6th and 10th Oct. 1898. |
| 42 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 180 | 8th Oct. 1898. |
| 43 | "Ain-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 500 | Sept. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 17th October, in commenting upon Cretan affairs thinks that Musalmans will gradually lose their sovereign rights and privileges in Crete on account of the new arrangement.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Oct. 17th, 1898.

Cretan affairs.

2. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 13th October, in a long leading article on the present political situation in Crete, written evidently by an educated Muhammadan who knows English, speaks in very contemptuous terms of the "blessed humanity of Europe." He says that this humanity is nothing but self-interest, selfishness, pitilessness and a cloak for an attack on His Highness the Great Sultan of Turkey. He thinks the Christians of Crete will massacre the helpless Muhammadans of that island, as soon as the Turkish soldiers are withdrawn, and asks what necessity there is for the European powers to insist on this, and how the suzerainty of the Sultan can be upheld when he has no troops there.

Naier-i-Asifi, Madras, Oct. 13th, 1898.

The blessed humanity of Europe.

3. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 12th October, on the same subject observes that the four great powers of Europe (viz., England, France, Italy and Russia) have united together to threaten His Majesty the Sultan and have sent their fleets to the Dardanelles to support their threats. The editor asks sarcastically whether the Sultan will remain in Turkey or run away to Africa, when he hears of the fleets' arrival at the Dardanelles. If he is the same Sultan who crushed the rebellious Armenians, he is not likely to care in the least for any threats of the great powers of Europe.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Oct. 12th, 1898.

The Sultan and the four great powers.

4. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 13th October, writes that England is trying to form a friendly alliance with America and Germany, but it does not see what England will gain by it. It regrets that the greatest statesmen of England have entirely forgotten the lessons taught by Lord Beaconsfield. It is a fact that England rules a larger population of Muhammadans than any other kingdom. England ought therefore to endeavour to conciliate Muhammadans. Instead of this she has adopted a policy prejudicial to Muhammadan interests. The present crisis in Crete is a sufficient proof of this statement. From information gathered from unprejudiced English papers, it is clear that the trouble in Crete is the natural and direct result of England's lack of foresight in allowing the British Admiral to make a change in the administration of the tithe revenue without having previously consulted the other powers. If Admiral Noel had not done this Crete would not now be in a blaze. An alliance with Turkey is unquestionably essential to keep Russia at bay and to counteract the designs of that country. The editor trusts that England will give up her present short-sighted policy and cultivate friendship with Turkey.

Naier-i-Asifi, Madras, Oct. 13th, 1898.

England and Turkey.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. A correspondent to the Agnikulathithan, of the 15th October, observes that the railway gate lying between the Robinson Park and the Monegar Choultry is shut against public traffic even before the trains leave the Ráyapuram railway station on the east and the Washermanpet railway station on the west, and that pickpockets are busy in their nefarious act during the time that the people are obliged to stand there, and hopes that the police constables who are said to connive at the offence committed by pickpockets will be on the alert and bring them to book.

Agnikulathithan, Madras, Oct. 15th, 1898.

Pickpockets at the railway gate between the Robinson Park and the Monegar Choultry.

(b) Courts.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 15th, 1898.

A suggestion regarding the cases brought against the editors of newspapers.

6. The Jananukulan, of the 15th October, enumerating the various privileges kindly conferred by Government on the press, hopes that Government will adopt the necessary measures to have a preliminary enquiry made in view to see if there is prima facie evidence in support of a prosecution against the editor of a newspaper, prior to the commencement of a formal trial, and to have such cases tried by the Judicial authorities of the places wherein such newspapers are published.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Oct. 3rd, 1898.

European murderers.

7. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar of the 3rd October. The Paisa Akhbar, of Lahore, with reference to a recent Madras Command order, under which the Commanding officer at Poonamallee, Madras, is empowered to engage Mr. Nelson, Barrister-at-Law, to defend Private Knight, who has been committed to the Sessions for having shot a native lad with his carbine, remarks that the Military authorities will not allow their soldiers to suffer through want of proper legal aid, and asks who will engage the services of some good lawyers on behalf of the murdered lad. His death itself is sufficient proof that he was shot with the carbine of the accused. The Paisa says that Europeans are accustomed to use their guns in a very rash and negligent way, and that the authorities should punish those who offend in this way severely.

(d) Education.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Oct. 22nd, 1898.

Certain suggestions in connection with the Village officers' special test.

8. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 22nd October, hopes that those who pass the Village officers' special test will be ranked in one and the same class, that those who fail to pass the test once will be allowed to appear for it a second time without being required to attend the school all the daylong, that those who do not pass the test in the first class will be permitted to appear for the examination again and again until they pass it in the first class without being required to pay the prescribed examination fee, and that the results of the examination will be published within five days from the date of examination.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 19th, 1898.

Suggestion to abolish the Upper Secondary examination.

9. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 19th October, expresses its opinion that it is high time to do away with the Upper Secondary examination in which, since its institution, very few candidates have been successful.

(e) Local and Municipal.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Oct. 12th, 1898.

Wretched condition of a road, etc., in the district of South Arcot.

10. The Desabhimani, of the 12th October, complains of the wretched condition of the frontier road leading from Cuddalore to Salem through Vriddhachalam, which subjects the travellers to inexpressible hardship. The paper also reports that the authorities do not take due care of the trees standing on the sides of the roads in the South Arcot district, and that the safety of the travellers is at stake in consequence of neglect of duty on the part of the police.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Oct. 15th, 1898.

A suggestion to the Madras municipality in regard to its attitude towards the dhobies and cowherds.

11. The Agnikulathithan, of the 15th October, does not think it desirable that the Madras municipality should proceed to prosecute the dhobies and cowherds all at once after having suffered them to have their own way hitherto, and advises the municipality to give these men the necessary instructions as to how they should behave, to arrange for inspecting the places they occupy and to warn them of the consequences of their neglect to act up to the directions given to them before it proceeds to take them to task.

12. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 17th October, reports with regret that the tank known as the Thachan Pillayarkulam, which is a source of good water supply to the inhabitants of Tiruppugalur, is used by a dhoby for washing dirty clothes, and draws the attention of the authorities to such a piece of irregularity which, the paper thinks, is not at all desirable at a time when public health is in great danger owing to the prevalence of epidemics.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Oct. 17th, 1898.

The misuse of a tank at Tiruppugalur.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th October, writes as follows:—The erection of segregation sheds and other measures to ward off the plague will not produce the desired effect in Madras unless and until the following suggestions are carried out promptly:—

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 18th, 1898.

Certain suggestions to the Madras municipality in respect of the sanitation of the City of Madras.

(1) The Madras municipality should make the necessary arrangements for having the latrines attached to private dwelling houses thoroughly cleansed both in the morning and in the evening with the help of an additional staff of scavengers, for which an extra tax may be levied.

(2) The Madras municipality should give its subordinate officials strict instructions directing them to inspect the latrines attached to private houses and report on their unsatisfactory condition then and there in view to prosecute such owners or occupants of houses as are found guilty of neglect in attending to the sanitation of their houses in the manner directed by the municipality.

(3) One of the influential gentlemen in each street should be asked to supervise the houses situated in the street in which he lives, and to impress on the occupants and owners of the houses under his supervision the necessity of carrying out the instructions of the municipality in regard to sanitation.

14. The Desabhimani, of the 19th October, writes as follows:—Many of the bigger villages of Kallakurchi have been made major unions. The appointment of chairmen for these unions is ridiculous. With the exception of a few chairmen the others are the village munsifs themselves who are utterly incapable of managing their duty even as munsifs, as they possess little or no education. How can we expect these men to attend to the sanitation of the villages committed to their care? As these munsifs are not treated even by the peons of the taluk cutcherry during the time of the recovery of kist in a manner becoming their dignity as chairmen of major unions, how can they occupy a respectable position in the estimation of the inhabitants who witness their wretched plight in the presence of taluk officials? Government seems to appoint these illiterate men as chairmen, while competent men are available for the purpose, in view to make it appear that the natives are altogether incompetent to exercise the privilege of local self-government granted to them.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Oct. 19th, 1898.

Remarks on the appointment of chairmen of some major unions.

15. The Vikatadutan, of the 22nd October, says that it is highly desirable that Government should render the Madras municipality the necessary pecuniary aid enabling it to adopt precautionary measures to ward off the plague, and that it is just and proper that the poor who get themselves inoculated should be given batta for a couple of days, as they will be unable to do any work immediately after inoculation.

VIKATADUTAN, Madras, Oct. 22nd, 1898.

Desirability of rendering the Madras municipality pecuniary aid, and of paying batta to the poor who get themselves inoculated.

16. The India Mitran, of the 22nd October, states with regret that the local district officers do not pay any the least attention to the grievances of the people represented in the Vernacular newspapers of their districts, and remarks that the municipal work seriously suffers and that the grievances of the people are not redressed in consequence of the fact that Collectors and Deputy

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Oct. 22nd, 1898.

Evils of appointing Collectors and Deputy Collectors as Presidents of District and Taluk Boards.

Collectors, whose criminal and revenue work is so heavy that they can hardly find time to attend to municipal matters, are appointed Presidents of District and Taluk Boards respectively.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 12th, 1898.

17. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 12th October, dwells at some length upon the injustice done to toll-gate keepers by certain second-rate officials who, possessing as they do, a passport exempting them from payment of toll fees, are enabled to defraud the toll-contractors of a portion of their income by an abuse of the concession granted to them. The Tellicherry municipal council also have inflicted another loss upon toll-contractors by their late ruling that vehicles that enter the municipality should be liable to the payment of a certain rate of fees; this ruling has the effect of inducing carriage owners to keep their carriages outside the municipality beyond the toll-gates. The attention of the board is invited to the matter.

Unjust ruling of the Tellicherry municipal council.

18. A correspondent to the same paper hears that, though the District Board had repeatedly pleaded want of funds for taking the Periyapuram Primary school under its management, it has now sanctioned a small amount towards the improvement of the school building. The correspondent writes that the furnishing of the school with suitable benches and seats is also very desirable at the present moment as the strength of the school has largely increased. The attention of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter.

Improvement to be effected in the Periyapuram school.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 15th, 1898.

19. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 15th October, disapproves of the decision made by the Collector of South Canara that students of the Payyanúr Board Primary school should not be exempted from payment of ferry due against the provisions of section 16 of the Public Ferries Act, II of 1890. The article hopes that, at the beginning of the next official year at least, the President of the Canara District Board will re-consider and countermand his former decision.

Students not ferried free over Uliyangod kadavu, the boundary between Kasaragod and Chirakkal taluks.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 29th, 1898.

20. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th October, referring to the sympathetic manner in which His Excellency replied to the Kistna District Association which represented the grievances of the ryots in consequence of the classification of lands for purposes of settlement, observes that the Government of India is not likely to permit the Local Government to grant the poor ryots such concessions as may seem best to it, on the score that any leniency on the part of the Local Government must necessarily tell on the total revenue and prevent the Government of India from incurring expenses of war, etc., and concludes with regret that the enormous sum of hundred crores of rupees spent by the Government of India on wars which had little or nothing to do with the Madras Presidency is after all nothing but the revenue collected from the poor ryots of this country who labour in the fields being subject to the scorching heat of the sun.

Remarks on His Excellency's reply to the Kistna District Association.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 15th, 1898.

21. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 15th October, in reviewing the Revenue Settlement Report of the Board of Revenue with the G.O. connected therewith, lays stress upon the fact that the famine and pestilence which raged in Malabar last year were the result of failure of crops and consequent poverty in the land. Village officers do not, as the Board think, understate the prospects of crops, but rather err on the other side. A large portion of the arrears of revenue is due from Sultan Ali Raja of Cannanore, but pending the decision of the Secretary of State for India regarding his affair, those arrears cannot be recovered.

Revenue Settlement Report.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

22. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 29th October, hears from a correspondent that irregularities of procedure are quite common in the chowki at Mahe, and invites, therefore, the attention of the authorities concerned to the matter.

Irregularities in the chowki at Mahe.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 29th, 1898.

(k) General.

23. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th October, observes with regret that the want of a post office at Muriyur in the district of Madura is keenly felt by the inhabitants of that town in that many of them are Nattucottaichettis (a class of traders) who have mercantile dealings with their agents at Singapore, Penang, Colombo and other places, and that the Postal authorities have not redressed the grievance of the people in spite of their repeated solicitations on the subject.

Necessity for a post office at Muriyur, Madura district.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 18th, 1898.

24. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th October, disapproves of the proposal of the Madras municipality to make use of certain buildings in Triplicane as hospitals, on the score that the said buildings are located in thickly populated places and that there are two schools in Veeraragava Mudali Street in Triplicane.

A protest against the use of certain buildings in Triplicane as hospitals.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 20th, 1898.

25. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd October, referring to His Excellency's statement that he felt unique pleasure at the appointment of Mr. Muhammad Raza Khan as the Collector of Kurnool, observes that this gentleman is the only native who holds the post of a Collector at present although ten years ago it was decided by the Government of India and the Secretary of State for India, on the recommendation of the Public Service Commission, that about one-seventh of the total number of Collectors may be natives. The paper further remarks that Mr. Manavedan Raja, who was the Collector of Anantapur, has since been transferred to the Judicial department as a Judge, on the score that he did not act up to the wishes of his European subordinates such as the Sub-Collector, the Engineer, the Forest officer, etc., that Mr. Muhammad Raza Khan also will be removed from his Collectorship if he fails to meet the wishes of his European subordinates, and that Government seems to think that the natives are wanting in administrative skill, ability, impartiality and self-respect which are the essential requirements of a Collector. The paper referring to the late Mr. Justice Muthusawmy Aiyar and a number of Bengalis who discharged the onerous duties of Judges and Collectors with great credit, concludes with the remark that if Government take the trouble to find out competent men among the natives and confer on them high appointments, such men are sure to prove worthy of the position they hold.

Reflections on the appointment of Native Collectors.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 22nd, 1898.

26. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 14th October, writes that a mischievous rogue in the village of Kottakota, of the taluk of Penukonda, has been causing serious trouble and vexation to the people in his neighbourhood by dexterously forging names and exactly imitating the handwriting of others. Wicked people go to the rogue and secure false receipts, promissory notes and other documents, and in consequence of this many innocent men have been ruined, and the village headmen are often brought to trouble. To avoid this danger, the correspondent suggests that instead of the receipts that the village headmen grant for payments of revenue, receipts like those which the Municipal authorities grant for house-taxes may be introduced. He hopes that the Head Assistant Collector and the Tahsildar would enquire into the unfortunate condition of the inhabitants of the village in which the forgerer lives and relieve the people from his wicked machinations.

A forgerer in the taluk of Penukonda.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 14th, 1898.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Oct. 26th, 1898.

27. The Andhraprakasika, of the 26th October, says that it has come to know that Government officials who grant passports to passengers, take bribes from them. It remarks that it would be good for the country if one or two of them were punished.

Bribes taken by Plague officials.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 25th, 1898.

28. The Sasilekha, of the 25th October, writes that the villages in the deltas of the Gódávari and Kistna rivers are in a very insanitary condition. The Government is neglecting to make the necessary improvements. The inhabitants are ignorant of the ordinary hygienic laws, and even if they happen to know any of them, they have no money to undertake to do what is necessary to improve the sanitation. For six months in the year the deltas are almost immerged in water. When rain falls heavily the water collects into deep channels around the villages transforming them into so many islands, and in some cases the people are unable to go across and are confined to their homes. Before the embankments of the Gódávari were raised, the dangers from floods had been greater. The villagers in consequence were obliged to dig pits near their houses for obtaining earth to raise the grounds before building their houses on. The result was that the rain-water filled these pits and the filth collected therein was emitting the foulest smell possible. The population has now increased twofold and there is scarcely room enough for men to live comfortably in these high-ground villages, not to speak of the want of proper accommodation for cattle-sheds and hay-stacks. The paper says that the causes of the insanitary condition of these delta lands are the extending of the ploughing fields to the very thresholds of the dwelling houses, the allowing of houses to be built in unhealthy localities, the want of vacant grounds sufficiently extensive for the general needs of the villagers and of common pasture-lands for cattle to graze freely, and the absence of latrines and burning ghats. Convenient vacant lands were existing in considerable numbers in the reigns of the old Hindu and Muhammadan sovereigns for the use of cattle, etc. They have now been turned into ploughing fields. The present misfortunes are due to the Government having, with a view to secure the largest amount of profit from the delta lands, granted them without reserving vacant grounds anywhere for common use among villagers. The paper concludes with the prayer that the Government may take into its consideration the condition of the people of the two districts and bring about all necessary improvements to make them healthy. Though they are becoming rich by the Gódávari and Kistna "projects," they suffer much from diseases owing to the unhealthy condition of their villages.

Insanitary condition of the delta villages in Gódávari and Kistna.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 12th, 1898.

29. A Manjéri correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 12th October, writes that it has become very common even among officials to resort to the objectionable practice of disposing of by raffle cheap and ordinary articles with the view of making money thereby. He also writes that the local sub-registrar and the 3rd munshi Gopalakrishna Iyer as secretaries, and the permanent head munshi Sankunni Menon as treasurer, have collected funds for erecting a choultry in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, but they have kept the names of subscribers and the amount collected strictly secret. He asks whether the rules of conduct of public servants countenance any such practice and suggests the advisability of publishing translation of those rules for general information.

Conduct of certain public servants in Manjéri.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 15th, 1898.

30. An article in the Kerala Patrika, of the 15th October, invites the attention of the Collector and Police Superintendent of Malabar to the most audacious attack upon, and extortion of Rs. 250 from, a Brahmin stamp-vendor, perpetrated in broad daylight and in the presence of by-standers, by four Mappila sepoys. The people dread these sepoys so much that it is doubtful whether they would even give evidence against the guilty sepoys. The article hopes that necessary steps will be taken by the Collector, District Superintendent of Police, and the Colonel of the regiment to bring the delinquents to just and proper punishment.

Daring and atrocious crime by the Mappila sepoys.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 19th October, devotes a column to the description of this atrocious crime, but reports that the money extorted amounted only to Rs. 212. The attention of authorities is invited to the matter.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 19th, 1898.

31. A paragraph in the same paper complains of the very late hours kept by M.R.Ry. Rama Rau Avargal, Special Deputy Collector, and his court, whereby parties living at great distance from Calicut are put to great inconvenience and difficulty. The article hopes that the Deputy Collector will bestow his consideration upon this matter.

Rama Rau, Deputy Collector, holding court until very late hours.

32. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 29th October, attributes the deterioration of crops in the Walavanad taluk chiefly to the ravages of wild beasts and also to cattle-lifting which is connived at and often encouraged by certain influential persons and the police constables of the place. The indifference of the magistrates acts but as an incentive to the practice. The proposed transfer of the Cherpalcheri Magistrate's Court to Ottappálam will only make matters worse.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 29th, 1898.

Grievances in Walavanad taluk.

33. A leader in the same paper cites yet another instance of the rowdyism, turbulence and audacious overriding of the law, on the part of the Mappila sepoys of Cannanore. A number of workmen (sawyers) in the employ of a rich local merchant were attacked, brutally injured by some of these sepoys and cruelly robbed of their earnings. Ever since the formation of the Mappila sepoy regiment in Cannanore, the public of that place have been victims to these sepoy outrages. The article, therefore, renews its oft-reiterated prayer that the Government would be pleased to pass orders in view to the people of Cannanore being rid of these dangerous sepoys.

High-handedness of Mappila sepoys.

34. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 3rd October, with reference to a postal notice to the effect that the postal money order and value payable forms which have been hitherto supplied gratis to the public will in future be sold at the rate of two annas per fifty forms, observes that it is presumed that the Postal authorities have made this rule to make up the loss from the new Penny Postage system introduced for the benefits of Europeans alone, and says that this new rule will not be welcomed by the public, inasmuch as the poor cannot afford to buy these forms. The editor in conclusion asks why the Postal authorities should extract money from the pockets of the public by such means when it realises an annual profit of eight or ten lakhs of rupees, and what profit it will make by fixing a postage charge of one pice on each copy of exchange newspapers which have hitherto been sent post free.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Oct. 3rd, 1898.

Postal notice regarding money order and value payable forms.

35. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 15th October, states that an inhabitant of the suburbs of London being unable to bear starvation mercilessly butchered his innocent children, and remarks that Europeans alone commit diabolical deeds like this.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Oct. 15th, 1898.

An Englishman killing his children.

36. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 17th October, has a letter from a correspondent at Trichinopoly giving an account of the plague riot committed by some Muhammadans of the place, and believes that this is due to bad characters alone and not to any respectable Muhammadans.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Oct. 17th, 1898.

Plague riot at Trichinopoly.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Oct. 6th, 1898.

37. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar of the 6th October. The Paisa Akhbar, of Lahore, refers with regret to the throwing of a native punkah-puller into a certain well at Nasirabad by two soldiers, and says the only preventive measure worthy of being adopted in this case is the award of deterrent punishment.

Ill-treatment of natives by Europeans.

38. The same paper in commenting on the inoculation process advises its readers to get themselves inoculated once at least, assuring them that the process has proved advantageous.

Inoculation.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Oct. 10th, 1898.

39. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 10th October, approves highly of the plague preventive measures adopted in Bangalore, and says that since the public of Bangalore have not been unjustly oppressed by the subordinate officials, there is no cause for any disturbance. The editor draws the attention of the authorities to the necessity of the appointment of a lady doctor to inoculate gosha ladies.

The necessity of the appointment of a lady doctor in Bangalore.

Naier-i-Asifi, Madras, Oct. 20th, 1898.

40. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 20th October, writes that the public ought to be highly obliged to His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock for having passed segregation laws which do not in any way affect the religious rites and ceremonies of the Hindu and Muhammadan communities.

Segregation laws.

IV.—Native States.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 17th, 1898.

41. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th October, thinks that as segregation does in no way stop the progress of plague, while on the other hand the fear of it makes people conceal real cases of plague and thus help to spread the infection, it is highly desirable that the segregation camps should be done away with at once and people be simply asked to report any cases of plague that may occur in their homes. The editor believes that such a step would not make the plague increase more than it is doing now.

Plague rules in Bangalore.

The same paper points out that almost all the mofussil villages in Mysore complain that they are becoming overcrowded owing to the emigration from Bangalore, and calls the early attention of the authorities to this fact and recommends that the Government officers in each village be formed into a board to look after the health of each village.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 24th, 1898.

The same paper in its issue of the 24th October says that the spread of plague would be considerably checked if Government would put an end to segregation camps and if the money now spent on them were used in cleansing the city which is now very bad in respect of sanitation.

42. The same paper says that the people of the city were very much rejoiced to hear the order of Government promulgated through the ward-officers in each ward on Thursday the 20th making segregation optional, and allowing the treatment of patients at home by native vaidians and hakims. But before this order could be acted upon another came forth that that order was to be kept in abeyance until further orders.

Changing plague rules in Bangalore.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 31st, 1898.

43. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 31st October, remarks:—Inoculation, which was considered the only protection against plague, has proved not to be so in Bangalore, as a great many who had been inoculated have died within the last two weeks. From the way in which the segregation and contact camps are being managed they appear to be a means invented purposely for depriving men of their life, honour and wealth and fill the pockets of those placed in authority over them. In maintaining these camps the Government must be spending enormous amounts of money, but they have only led to the corpses of high caste people being carted

The progress of plague in Bangalore.

find buried by the Pariahs without any ceremonies. There is a belief, not unsupported by experience, gaining ground in the people that the very sight of these camps is so frightful as to bring on fever at once. The paper therefore calls upon the Government to put an end to the system of segregation camps, the very name of which has become such a terror to the people.

Bribery of a certain magistrate.

44. A paragraph in the Manorama, of the 17th October, reproduces a correspondent's communication to the Malayali that Magistrate C. M. Vurgese, B.A., who tried the Kayamkulam Elephant case, received a bribe of Rs. 2,000 in connection therewith both from the complainant and the defendant, and that a certain person has submitted a petition to the District Magistrate setting forth these allegations. On 28th ultimo he made a deposition that he would give the necessary evidence; and the list of witnesses to be cited was accordingly given then.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 17th, 1898.

Cochin Anjal department.

45. A correspondent writes to the Malayala Manorama, of the 15th October, that the appointment of Anantanarayana Aiyar, manager of the Police Superintendent's office, to the post of Anjal (Postal) Superintendent, is calculated to prove prejudicial to the efficient working of the Anjal department when it is borne in mind that as an acting Tahasil on more occasions than one, Anantanarayana Aiyar proved himself a failure. The attention of the Diwan is invited to the matter.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, Oct. 15th, 1898.

The Government to provide Vernacular schools.

46. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 29th October, invites the attention of the Cochin Government to the advisability of providing Vernacular schools for the benefit of that illiterate section of the people known as "Kanakkans."

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 29th, 1898.

Mr. Crawford, the Acting Resident at Hyderabad.

47. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 2nd October, says that since Mr. Crawford's appointment to act as Resident at Hyderabad a great change has occurred in the behaviour of His Highness the Nizam who now receives the Acting Resident with great cordiality and returns visits in the same spirit. This shows that as His Highness is extremely loyal to the Imperial Government, he treats its representative with much respect provided he does not exceed proper bounds.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Oct. 22nd, 1898.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

A subject for the consideration of the ensuing Congress.

48. The Agnikulathithan, of the 15th October, describing at length the sufferings of the people in the mofussil in consequence of excessive rain in some parts and drought in certain other parts, suggests the desirability of opening Agricultural Banks in view to enable the poor ryots to cultivate their lands instead of roaming about in search of occupations, and earnestly hopes that the subject will engage the attention of the ensuing Congress.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Oct. 15th, 1898.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

A suggestion to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

49. A correspondent to the Vikatadutan, of the 22nd October, referring to the practice of making the cock and other birds fight with each other in a state of excitement and to the bullock race indulged in by unscrupulous vagabonds, and dwelling at length on the excruciation to which the dumb creatures are subjected, draws the attention of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for adopting the necessary measures to put a stop to the cruel acts complained of.

VIKATADUTAN, Madras, Oct. 22nd, 1898.

Railways versus Irrigation.

50. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th October, says that the Government of India has made a great mistake in paying more attention to railways than to irrigation. Railways, as a rule, do not pay, and even the Madras Railway which has been working for the last forty years costs the Government a good deal annually in the shape of guaranteed interest. But with irrigation works it is different. They have paid well wherever constructed, and have not only made the neighbouring waste tracts smiling and prosperous but have brought increased revenue to the State. It is therefore a false policy to expend on railways the money which might be more profitably employed in the construction of irrigation works.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 17th, 1898.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Oct. 26th, 1898.

Payment of a grant in aid of the Young Men's Christian Association building.

51. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 26th October, observes that the Madras Government which refused to aid the City Municipality in meeting plague charges, and pleads want of funds for many other necessary and useful measures, has sanctioned a grant of Rs. 24,000 in aid of the Young Men's Christian Association. This association, says the paper, is too rich to be a proper object of such generous help.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 15th, 1898.

Caste hospitals in Malabar necessary.

52. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 15th October, expresses its gratitude to Government for the various anti-plague measures adopted by it, and appeals, at the same time, to the people of Malabar to concert measures of their own for establishing caste hospitals in the district where caste differences are prevalent to an enormous extent. The article advises the people to profit by the example set by different communities in Madras and other places.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 15th, 1898.

Rude behaviour of Ottappálam stationmaster towards passengers.

53. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 15th October, complains of the rude behaviour of the station-master of Ottappálam towards respectable passengers.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 17th, 1898.

Anti-plague inoculation.

54. A leader in the Manorama, of the 17th October, endeavours to impress upon the people the necessity of anti-plague inoculation, and advises the aristocracy to popularise it among its tenants and dependants in remote interior parts. The article recommends, however, that a thorough medical examination of the persons to be inoculated should be made prior to inoculation.

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 21 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th November 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

I.—Foreign Politics. — Page

England and Turkey .. .. .. .. .. .. 321
Evacuation of Crete by the Turkish troops .. .. .. ib.
The Sultan and the powers .. .. .. .. ib.
England's hostile attitude towards the Ottoman Empire .. ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—

Remarks on the Police and the Village officers .. .. ib.
Inefficiency of the police of Jammalamadugu, Cuddapah. ib.
Unlawful practice of the police on plague duty in the Calicut railway station .. .. .. .. .. 322
Counterfeit coins fraudulently used by some .. .. ib.
Remarks on the Chalavara house-breaking and theft case .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Charge of bribery against the Badagara police inspector. ib.

(b) Courts—

Complaints against the Village Munsif's Court of the taluk of Pattukkóttai .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A remark on the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi .. .. 323
A suggestion to the sub-magistrate of Tiruvarur .. ib.
Magistrates on circuit holding courts .. .. .. ib.
Palghat munsif's court .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

A suggestion to the authorities concerned regarding the Middle school at Tirutturaippúndi .. .. .. ib.
B.A. degree examination centres .. .. .. .. ib.
Mappila education .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

Certain suggestions to the Negapatam municipality .. 324
Remarks on the Negapatam municipality .. .. ib.
Complaints against the Tiruvádi union .. .. .. ib.
Complaint against the Lalgudi union .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the Tiruvádi union .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to the Negapatam taluk board .. .. 325
Appointment of a chairman for the Tellicherry municipality a necessity .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on the Tellicherry municipality .. .. ib.
Grievances caused by the Calicut municipality .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Nil.

(g) Forests—

Nil.

(h) Railways—

The new additional Deputy Collector in Malabar for railway land acquisition purpose .. .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration—cont. — Page

(i) Public Works—

Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Nil.

(k) General—

A suggestion to Government regarding the plague .. 325
Certain suggestions to the Postal department .. .. 326
Desirability of sending to the editors of Vernacular newspapers the various circulars and orders issued by Government in connection with the plague .. .. ib.
Grievances of the inhabitants of the village of Pukkarumbai in the taluk of Pattukkóttai .. .. .. ib.
Maintenance for the family of the late T. Sundaresa Iyer .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The plague .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Governor's recent visit to Bezwada .. .. .. ib.
Terror of Mappila sepoys in Cannanore .. .. .. ib.
Questions for interpellation at the meeting of the Legislative Council, Madras .. .. .. .. .. 327
Another instance of Mappila sepoy outrage .. .. ib.
An inefficient clerk in the Tellicherry post office .. ib.
Appointment of passed men as adhikari and menon (karnam) .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 328
Muhammadans in the public service .. .. .. ib.
The Shrievalty of Madras .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Corruption in Plague department .. .. .. .. ib.
Murder of the tahsildar of Hindupur .. .. .. ib.
Chinese and the Christian world .. .. .. .. ib.
Suggesting the establishment of a Pasteur Institute in India .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The process of inoculation .. .. .. .. .. 329

III.—Legislation.

Nil.

IV.—Native States.

A suggestion to the State of Travancore .. .. .. ib.
Efforts of the people to suppress the plague in Bangalore .. ib.
The disastrous effects of the plague in Bangalore .. .. ib.
Operation of the plague rules in the villages of Mysore .. ib.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Nil.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

A hint to Government regarding the plague .. .. .. ib.
A hint to the Collector of Tanjore district .. .. .. 330
Remarks on the President of the Welby Commission .. ib.
A suggestion to Government regarding the plague .. .. ib.
Inquiry into the matter reported upon by Police Inspector Mr. Bappu .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Outrages committed by "Kabul people" .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" | Madras | 800 | Oct 1898. |
| 2 | "Vidya Vartamani" | Do. | 150 | Sept. and Oct. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 3 | "Satya Vartamani" | Pasumalai | 600 | 1st Nov. 1898. |
| 4 | "Sukha Jivani" | Bangalore | 250 | 1st ,, ,, |
| 5 | "Kalanidhi" | Coimbatore | 150 | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 6 | "South Indian Mitran" | Dindigul | 600 | 5th Nov. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 7 | "Vettikkodiyon" | Madras | 200 | 5th and 12th Nov. 1898. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" | Do. | 2,000 | 28th Oct. and 4th and 11th Nov. 1898. |
| 9 | "Desabhimani" | Cuddalore | 320 | 26th ,, ,, 9th Nov. 1898. |
| 10 | "Nilalochani" | Negapatam | 250 | 24th and 31st Oct. and 7th Nov. 1898. |
| 11 | "Sajjana Patrika" | Do. | 400 | 24th ,, 31st ,, ,, 7th ,, ,, |
| 12 | "Jananukulan" | Tanjore | 200 | 29th Oct. and 5th Nov. 1898. |
| 13 | "Travancore Abhimani" | Nagercoil | 2,600 | 31st ,, ,, 7th ,, ,, |
| 14 | "Varavarthamani" | Pollachi | 400 | 29th ,, 1898. |
| 15 | "Vikata Dutan" | Madras | 1,400 | 5th and 12th Nov. 1898. |
| 16 | "Arya Jana Priyan" | Do. | 500 | 1st and 8th Nov. 1898. |
| 17 | "Agnikulathithan" | Do. | 700 | 5th Nov. 1898. |
| 18 | "India Mitran" | Tiruvádi | 100 | 22nd Aug., and 8th, 15th and 22nd Sept., and 1st and 8th Nov. 1898. |
| 19 | "Viveka Thivakaran" | Tiruchengódu | 400 | 6th Nov. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Swadesamitran" | Madras | 900 | 1st, 3rd, 5th, 8th and 14th Nov. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 21 | "Satwasadhani" | Madras | 250 | 30th Oct. 1898. |
| 22 | "Dheeranjani" | Atmakur | 100 | 1st Nov. 1898. |
| 23 | "Messenger of Truth" | Madras | 4,000 | Nov. 1898. |
| 24 | "Andhrabhashasanjivani" | Do. | 200 | Oct. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 25 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" | Bellary | 350 | 29th Oct., and 5th and 12th Nov. 1898. |
| 26 | "Krishna News" | Bezwada | Not known. | 29th ,, ,, 5th ,, 12th ,, ,, |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 27 | "Sasilekha" | Madras | 470 | 1st, 4th, 8th, 11th and 15th Nov. 1898. |
| 28 | "Andhraprakasika" | Do. | 600 | 2nd, 5th, 9th and 12th Nov. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 29 | "Vrittanta Patrika" | Mysore | 3,000 | 3rd and 10th Nov. 1898. |
| 30 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" | Do. | 800 | 2nd ,, 9th ,, ,, |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 31 | "Malayali" | Tangasseri | 670 | 25th Oct. and 5th Nov. 1898. |
| 32 | "Kerala Chandrika" | Calicut | 840 | 4th Nov. 1898. |
| 33 | "Nasrani Dipika" | Mannanam | 500 | 31st Oct. and 10th Nov. 1898. |
| 34 | "Kerala Mitram" | Cochin | 255 | 1st and 11th Nov. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 35 | "Malayala Manorama" | Kóttayam | 1,000 | 29th Oct. and 5th Nov. 1898. |
| 36 | "Manorama" | Calicut | 550 | 31st ,, ,, 7th ,, ,, |
| 37 | "Kerala Sanchari" | Do. | 700 | 2nd and 9th Nov. 1898. |
| 38 | "Kerala Patrika" | Do. | 725 | 5th Nov. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 39 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" | Triplicane, Madras | 800 | 31st Oct. and 7th Nov. 1898. |
| 40 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" | Rayapet, Madras | 600 | 29th ,, 1898. |
| 41 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" | Triplicane, Madras | 50 | 25th ,, ,, |
| 42 | "Alhami" | Ice House Road, Madras. | 200 | 6th Nov. ,, |
| 43 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" | Rayapet, Madras | 550 | 26th Oct. and 2nd Nov. 1898. |
| 44 | "Naier-i-Asifi" | Mylapore, Madras | .. | 27th ,, ,, 3rd ,, ,, |
| 45 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" | Bangalore | 550 | 20th and 31st Oct. 1898. |
| 46 | "Mulk-o-Millat" | Hyderabad | 150 | 22nd ,, 29th ,, and 5th Nov. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 27th October, inserts a translation of an article headed "England and Turkey" from the Beluchistan Gazette, of which the following is an excerpt:—The policy now adopted by England as regards the Cretan question no doubt tends towards jeopardizing the Sultan's power. England knows full well that she rules a larger proportion of Muhammadans than any other power. It is certain that on the good-will of the Muhammadans depends the stability of the Indian Empire, for they alone include the warlike element. Therefore the editor humbly requests that the British Government will be more friendly towards Turkey and hold a neutral position as regards the settlement of the Cretan question; for, by doing so, it will make the Muhammadans more loyal than before and on the north-western frontier there will be continual peace.

England and Turkey.

Naier-i-Asifi, Madras, Oct. 27th, 1898.

2. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 2nd November, says that a telegram from Candia regarding the evacuation of Crete by the Turkish troops announces that Jews will also leave the place along with the Turks since they expect no such protection under any other ruler as is afforded to them under the Turkish Government.

Evacuation of Crete by the Turkish troops.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Nov. 2nd, 1898.

3. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 3rd November, quotes an article from the Al-Mahrusa, of which the following is an excerpt:—The Sultan's peaceful and affable disposition may be proved by the fact that he quietly yielded to the note of the powers regarding the withdrawal of the Turkish forces from Candia. Had not the Sultan kept the welfare of the people in view, he would have had recourse to some measures that would have tended to the maintenance of his prestige, for he has lakhs of Mujahids (warriors for the faith) who are ready to unsheath their swords at a moment's notice.

The Sultan and the powers.

Naier-i-Asifi, Madras, Nov. 3rd, 1898.

4. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th November, inserts a translation of an article written in the Turkish language by a correspondent in Turkey to the effect that England's hostile attitude towards the Ottoman Empire is evidenced by the fact that she has with roguery and deceit, and actuated by sinister motives, joined France and Russia against Turkey.

England's hostile attitude towards the Ottoman Empire.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Nov. 7th, 1898.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

5. The Lokopakari, of the 28th October, observes that the Police and the Village officers who are expected to help one another in detecting criminal cases, do not scruple to co-operate in hushing up criminal cases, and that it is desirable that the Police Inspectors and the Stationary Sub-Magistrates should be directed to go to the villages within their jurisdiction all on a sudden and examine the diary kept by the Police officers in view to see whether the criminal cases occurring in the villages are duly recorded by them then and there.

Remarks on the Police and the Village officers.

Lokopakari, Madras, Oct. 28th, 1898.

6. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 11th November, says that for the last two or three months deplorable murders have been committed in the Jammalamadugu division, Cuddapah district. Such crimes are due to party feelings amongst the people. It is not found possible to punish the culprits as the police think that sufficient evidence is not obtainable for securing conviction, though it is generally known to all who the culprits are. This state of things encourages villains to perpetrate crime

Inefficiency of the police of Jammalamadugu, Cuddapah.

Sasilekha, Madras, Nov. 11th, 1898.

after crime without fear of punishment. Last month the High Court reversed the sentence of the Sessions Judge of Cuddapah in the case of a man who committed a murder in Gollalagudur, and acquitted the prisoner. After his return the inimical feelings between parties were inflamed and the consequence was that two more murders took place in his village. It has become a wide talk that a man might commit murders in the taluk of Pulivendla with immunity. The correspondent regrets that the police there is so weak and inefficient.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 5th, 1898.

Unlawful practice of the police on plague duty in the Calicut railway station.

7. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th November, invites the attention of the authorities concerned to a report regarding the objectionable practice indulged in by the police posted on plague duty in the Calicut railway station of making money by illegal means.

Counterfeit coins fraudulently used by some.

8. A correspondent writing to the same issue of the paper invites the attention of the police to the fraud practised upon people in Eranjoly, Nettur and other interior parts of Tellicherry by certain persons who palm off upon the people as genuine, coins which are made of lead and therefore counterfeit.

Remarks on the Chalavara house-breaking and theft case.

9. A leader in the same paper writes that, though the Chalavara house-breaking and theft case is sub judice in the Angadippuram magistrate's court, it ventures to observe that the accused should not have been admitted to bail prior to the examination of the adhikàri, whose delay in going to the scene where the theft took place is said to be the ground for the grant of bail. The antecedents of the accused are very much against him.

Regarding the same subject a special correspondent writes to the same issue of the paper to say that he hears that the police are in favour of the accused who is detested by the people in general, that they (the police) do not hold proper inquiry into the matter, and that the head constable who framed the charge against the accused did not care to conduct the prosecution. The correspondent believes that while such gross indifference is shown by the police in this important case, the conduct of the inspector, Vasu Menon, in conducting personally another case of petty nature cannot be pronounced satisfactory.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1898.

Charge of bribery against the Badagara police inspector.

10. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th November, says that many are the complaints made against the Badagara police inspector, and hears further that the heads of the Christian community at Chómbal have brought forward "five or ten" cases of bribery against that official.

(b) Courts.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

Complaints against the Village Munsif's Court of the taluk of Pattukkóttai.

11. The India Mitran, of the 22nd August, writes as follows:—The taluk of Pattukkóttai contains about 1,000 villages, and of the 200 village munsifs that are employed in the whole taluk, 30 or 40 munsifs only may be supposed to do their work properly, while the others are unable to attend to their judicial work as their time is fully occupied in the discharge of revenue duty. In consequence of such a state of things the poor creditor who wishes to recover Rs. 10 from his debtor is driven to the painful necessity of spending nearly double that amount if he files a suit in a District Munsif's Court. It is therefore desirable that district munsifs should hold their court once in three months in convenient centres, and that competent men should be appointed village munsifs by the Judicial officers subject to the control of the High Court.

12. The India Mitran, of the 22nd September, complains that the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi, who devotes a greater portion of his time to the hearing of nuisance cases, apparently because he has very few criminal cases to try, levies indiscriminately very heavy fines on those who are found guilty of offences relating to nuisance.

A remark on the sub-magistrate of Tiruvádi.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Sept. 22nd, 1898.

13. The Lokopakari, of the 4th November, praising the sub-magistrate of Tiruvarur for the efficient manner in which he administers justice, hopes that he will avoid holding his court in the night in the interest of the poor parties.

A suggestion to the sub-magistrate of Tiruvarur.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Nov. 4th, 1898.

14. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 4th November, complains of the great inconvenience and extra expenses incurred by parties in cases to be heard by magistrates while on circuit. The trial of cases though previously arranged has, however, to be postponed from time to time owing to unforeseen interruptions, such as excessive rain, flooded roads, sporting habits of the magistrates and other similar causes. The attention of the Government is invited to the inconvenience and the unnecessary and extra expenses that such procedure brings upon parties.

Magistrates on circuit holding courts.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 4th, 1898.

15. A correspondent writes from Palghat to the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th November, to say that a stamped cadjan document kept in safe custody has been stolen from the local munsif's court, and hopes that the matter will be properly inquired into.

Palghat munsif's court.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 5th, 1898.

The same correspondent writes that the delay in enforcing the new rules regarding stamp-vendors is apparently due to information having reached Government that the stamp-vendors intended to resign in case the commission hitherto allowed to them was reduced to 1½ per cent. The correspondent invites the attention of the Government to the inconvenience to which people in the interior parts will be subjected under the new rules.

(d) Education.

16. The India Mitran, of the 22nd August, protests against the proposed abolition of certain classes of the lower standard of the Tirutturaippúndi middle school, and observes that they can be maintained with the fees collected from the pupils of those classes as the school is now in a flourishing condition and is popular. The paper hopes that the President of the Taluk Board of Tirutturaippúndi will give up the idea of abolishing the classes under reference as the people do not relish such an idea.

A suggestion to the authorities concerned regarding the Middle school at Tirutturaippúndi.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

17. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th November, recommends the University of Madras to grant the request made by the mofussil candidates for the ensuing B.A. degree examination to be held in January next to constitute Trivandrum, Mangalore, etc., as centres of examination, having regard to the facts that it is very likely that plague will break out in Madras by that time, and that the rigour of the quarantine rules to which students, when travelling, will be subjected has the effect of inducing parents not to send their sons to Madras for the examination. The article further says that the University will incur no loss by granting the prayer of the students.

B.A. degree examination centres.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 5th, 1898.

18. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th November, gives the substance of a few of the remarks regarding Mappila education that appeared in the Pioneer. The encouragement and facilities afforded to the Mappila community in the matter of education, upon which a sum of about Rs. 25,000 has been spent annually, have not, even after 30 years, produced any remarkable change for the better in the condition of the Mappilas. The practice of requiring exclusively Mappila school inspectors to teach Mappila boys is sure to lead, says the Pioneer, to evil results. The Pioneer also doubts whether Mappila education on the new lines recently proposed by the Director of Public Instruction will lead to any beneficent results. The article in the Pioneer further doubts whether there exists among the Mappilas any disinclination to being taught by Hindu or Christian teachers.

Mappila education.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1898.

(e) Local and Municipal.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Oct. 24th, 1898.

Certain suggestions to the Negapatam municipality.

19. The Nilalochani, of the 24th October, reviewing the report of the Negapatam municipality for the official year 1897–98, observes as follows:—It is to be regretted that the Municipal authorities utilize the earth dug out of the ground adjoining the boundary walls of the dwelling-houses, instead of bringing in new earth for the purpose of metalling the streets. It is hoped that the municipal councillors will put a stop to this practice, inasmuch as it drives the owners of such houses to the necessity of repairing at their cost the walls left in a dangerous condition in consequence of the act complained of. It is desirable that the Negapatam municipality should direct its attention to the improvement of water-supply and to the opening of an industrial school, that the necessary arrangements should be made for improving the condition of the cess-pools in view to prevent them from giving out an offensive smell, and that the Municipal authorities should undertake the direct management of municipal conservancy carts, etc., instead of entrusting the contractors with such an important work as that.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Oct. 24th, 1898.

Remarks on the Negapatam municipality.

20. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 24th October, observes that the municipal work of Negapatam suffers to a large extent in consequence of misunderstanding between the chairman and the secretary, and attributes such an unpleasant state of things to the fact that the duties of the secretary and the chairman are not properly defined. The paper hopes that Government will be pleased to hold the secretary responsible for the efficient management of the municipal work and to direct the chairman to exercise his general supervision over the secretary's work and bring to the notice of the councillors any neglect of duty on the part of the secretary and other matters of importance, and adds that such an arrangement will be attended with success.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

Complaints against the Tiruvádi union.

21. The India Mitran, of the 22nd August, observes that there is no necessity for an increase of house-tax in Tiruvádi union as contemplated by Government, and that the municipal administration of that union is most unsatisfactory in every respect, and suggests the desirability of curtailing the expenses as much as possible without increasing the income by raising the taxes unnecessarily.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Sept. 8th, 1898.

Complaint against the Lalgudi union.

22. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 8th September, writes with regret that the municipal administration of the Lalgudi union is anything but satisfactory in spite of its having enhanced house-tax considerably, and observes that the President of the Taluk Board is not at all justified in directing the owners of dwelling-houses to demolish the pials with superstructure, if any, in front of their houses, even without granting them the necessary compensation.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Nov. 1st, 1898.

Remarks on the Tiruvádi union.

23. The India Mitran, of the 1st November, regrets to say that the articles which appear in that paper pointing out certain irregularities connected with the Tiruvádi union are not heeded by the taluk and the district boards, that the work of the Tiruvádi union materially suffers in consequence of the fact that Mr. Rangasawmi Naidu has been the chairman of that union for a period of 12 years—ever since its establishment, and that in the matter of the enhancement of house-tax there has been considerable injustice, the chairman having been partial to those to whom he is under obligation for some reason or other.

24. The Lokopakari, of the 4th November, suggests to the taluk board of Negapatam the desirability of including Sanna Nannilam and other neighbouring villages in the Nannilam union, and observes that such an arrangement will enable the Nannilam union to incur the expenses necessary for improving the condition of the road between the Kasba town of Nannilam and Sanna Nannilam, which is now infested with robbers and poisonous insects.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Nov. 4th, 1898.

A suggestion to the Negapatam taluk board.

25. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd November, complains that the Tellicherry municipal council have not as yet disbursed to teachers in Mappila schools the result-grants in respect of examinations held last year. The examinations for the current year are about to begin shortly. The correspondent also complains of the very unsatisfactory condition of the roads and lanes. In conclusion, he hopes that Government will soon appoint a permanent chairman for the municipality, as all the irregularities complained of are the direct result of the want of such a one.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 2nd, 1898.

Appointment of a chairman for the Tellicherry municipality a necessity.

26. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th November, complains of the delay in the appointment of a secretary or a chairman to the Tellicherry municipal council, and also of the delay in the disbursement of results grant to teachers in spite of a petition presented by them on the subject. In this connection, the correspondent brings to notice the ability, prudence and quiet good work shown by the manager of the Municipal office, Mr. Krishna Rao, on former occasions.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 5th, 1898.

Remarks on the Tellicherry municipality.

A leader in the same issue of the paper endorses the remarks made by the correspondent and hopes that the appointments of secretary and chairman will soon be made, and that the results grant will soon be disbursed to the teachers whose salaries are already low.

27. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th November, complains of the irregular conduct of the municipal tax-collectors of Calicut, who break forcibly into houses and cause great inconvenience and trouble to the inmates thereof. The correspondent further says that paths not generally frequented by officials are allowed to be overgrown with thorny bushes; the four or five tanks whose water is much used by the inhabitants of the F and G Divisions are neglected by the municipality and allowed to remain in a very miserable condition.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1898.

Grievances caused by the Calicut municipality.

(h) Railways.

28. A leader in the Manorama, of the 7th November, expresses its regret that Government did not appoint the sheristadar of the Malabar Collector's office or a qualified tahsildar of the district as additional Deputy Collector in connection with the acquisition of land for the Calicut-Cannanore Railway. The newly appointed Deputy Collector, M.R.Ry. Sita Rao Pantulu Garu, however able he may be in other respects, is not at all conversant with the nature of the jenmam and kanom tenure of land in Malabar, nor is he conversant with the language of the district. He has no experience whatever of Malabar and his appointment is therefore ill-advised.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 7th, 1898

The new additional Deputy Collector in Malabar for railway land acquisition purpose.

(k) General.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 5th November, thinks that Government should not permit any of its European Civil Servants to ventilate his opinion regarding the plague, that the patriots of this country in whose words the people have faith should be asked to give

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 5th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding the plague.

the masses the necessary instructions as to how they should behave, and that the mere issuing of a number of circulars, notices and orders in connection with the plague is not enough to produce the desired effect.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Aug. 22nd, 1898.

Certain suggestions to the Postal department.

30. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 22nd August, suggests the desirability of fixing money order commission at the rate of 1 anna for every Rs. 5 up to Rs. 15, and 3 annas for every Rs. 25 above that sum, and postage at the rate of 3 pies for 5 tolas and 6 pies up to 20 tolas in respect of book-post, of reducing the present insurance charge by 2 annas and of directing that a post-box should be kept in the premises occupied by every village munsif, and that he should be authorized to sell postage labels for the convenience of the inhabitants.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Sept. 8th, 1898.

Desirability of sending to the editors of Vernacular newspapers the various circulars and orders issued by Government in connection with the plague.

31. The India Mitran, of the 8th September, suggests the desirability of furnishing the editors of Vernacular newspapers with the translation of the various circulars and orders issued by Government in connection with the plague, and observes that such a procedure will enable the masses to have a knowledge of the measures adopted by Government regarding the plague.

Grievances of the inhabitants of the village of Pukkarumbai in the taluk of Pattukkóttai.

32. A correspondent to the same paper regrets to note that thoroughfares in the village of Pukkarumbai in the taluk of Pattukkóttai are shut against public traffic by one Mr. Govindasawmi Naidu and others to the great inconvenience of the inhabitants, and hopes that the Deputy Collector and the Tahsildar will adopt the necessary measures.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Nov. 4th, 1898.

Maintenance for the family of the late T. Sundaresa Iyer.

33. The Sasilekha, of the 4th November, referring to the murder of Mr. T. Sundaresa Iyer, B.A., prays that the Government should carefully investigate into the case and severely punish the culprits, and make provision for the maintenance of his (Sundaresa Iyer's) widow and children. It remarks that when pension is granted to the families of English officers who have been murdered under similar circumstances, it is only just that the same kindness should be shown to the native officials also.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 12th, 1898.

The plague.

34. The Andhraprakasika, of the 12th November, gives an account of the recent plague cases in Madras and thinks that unless passengers from plague-infected areas are quarantined for ten days at Arkonam and such other places on the borders of the district of Madras, there can be no chance of preventing the dreadful demon from establishing itself in Madras.

KISTNA NEWS, Bezwada, Oct. 29th, 1898.

The Governor's recent visit to Bezwada.

35. The Kistna News, of the 29th October, giving an account of His Excellency's visit to Bezwada, says that the people of the place were unnecessarily put to much inconvenience and trouble in consequence of the mismanagement of things by some of the officials. Though His Excellency was to leave Bezwada for Masulipatam in the night at 11 P.M., passenger-boats were ordered not to ply even during the day. His Excellency knew nothing about such unreasonable arrangements. If such grievances are brought to his notice, the paper hopes such irksome arrangements will not be repeated anywhere during his future tours.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 31st, 1898.

Terror of Mappila sepoys in Cannanore.

36. A leader in the Manorama, of the 31st October, regards it as very unfortunate that, in spite of the united and repeated representations by the Vernacular press of Malabar regarding the atrocities and horrors committed by the Mappila sepoys of Cannanore, Government have not been pleased in this one year and a half to pass orders ridding the public of Cannanore of these dangerous men. The extortion from the Brahmin stamp-vendor of a sum of Rs. 212 in broad daylight was followed only a few days ago by the still more barbarous assault on some workmen, and the terror created among the people by these ruffians is so great that adhikaries and liquor (?) shopkeepers have had to suspend their due remittance of money into the taluk treasury.

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd November, in dealing with the same subject, characterises the policy of Colonel Burton in having enlisted in the regiment Mappila K.Ds. and convicts as short-sighted and foolish. The article enumerates the various stages in the path of ruffianism of these sepoys unreproved and unchecked by the authorities. The article hopes that Government will, however, soon restore Cannanore to peace and security by properly dealing with the sepoys.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 2nd, 1898.

37. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th November, hopes that the following questions will attract the attention of some of the Hon'ble Members of the Madras Legislative Council, and be made the subject of interpellation at its next meeting :—

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 5th, 1898.

Questions for interpellation at the meeting of the Legislative Council, Madras.

(1) Will the Government be pleased to make an estimate of the number of inhabitants of Cannanore who have had to remove their earrings from their persons ?

(2) Is the Government aware of the number of K.Ds. among those enlisted in Cannanore as Mappila sepoys ?

(3) Will the Government be pleased to ascertain the cause of the high famine price of articles that should have daily been supplied to the town from the interior parts ?

(4) Has the Government any objection to ascertaining why the Mappila sepoys, who a few months ago broke into a kshethram (temple) in Kannur and committed riot, were let off, while some of the Hindus were prosecuted and convicted in connection therewith ?

(5) Will the Government be pleased to call for an explanation as to the number of petitions that had been received regarding the riot and extortion committed by the Mappila sepoys in several parts of Cannanore, and also as to the steps taken in regard to the matter by those in authority ?

(6) Will the Government be pleased to ascertain the number of cases of theft that occurred in the city of Cannanore in one year, and the number of those cases in which they have been successfully inquired into ?

(7) Will the Government be pleased to call upon the colonel in command to submit a list of the Mappila sepoys that desert the regiment every month ?

(8) Will the Government be pleased to ascertain on what grounds such deserters, on return, are re-enlisted ?

(9) Will the Government be graciously pleased to pass orders transferring the Mappila sepoys from Cannanore to Burma or any other place ?

(10) If the Government is pleased to pass such orders, may not steps be taken to give early effect to such transfer ?

38. A Cannanore correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th November, gives another recent instance of outrageous behaviour on the part of Mappila sepoys. A servant-maid, who was carrying tiffin to the record-keeper of the local taluk cutcherry, was attacked near the sepoys' hotel and wantonly robbed of the tiffin as well as of the simple ornament (tali and mani) worn by her on the neck, which ornament was cut asunder by means of a knife.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1898.

Another instance of Mappila sepoy outrage.

39. A correspondent to the same issue of the paper writes to it from Tellicherry to complain of the rude behaviour of the Registration and Savings Bank clerk of the local post office to persons who go there on business and of his delay in the despatch of work, and suggests that the clerk may be transferred elsewhere.

An inefficient clerk in the Tellicherry post office.

Appointment of passed men as adhikari and menon (karnam).

40. A Tanur correspondent writes to the same issue of the paper to say that the Periyapuram adhikari and menon have been dismissed from the service, and suggests that the vacancies should be filled by the appointment of men qualified by examinations.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Oct. 27th, 1898.

Muhammadans in the public service.

41. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 27th October, with reference to an order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal relating to the appointment of a fair proportion of Muhammadans in the public service of Bengal, observes that the British Government has been issuing similar orders regarding the employment of Muhammadans, but it is regrettable that the heads of departments do not put them into practical shape but merely pigeon-hole them. "So far as this Presidency is concerned, we can safely assert that the Muhammadans here have but a small share in the public service, and in some offices there is not a single Muhammadan to be found. It is always the case that whenever any vacancy in any department occurs, it is filled either by a Brahman or some other Hindu. It is only fair that all castes should get an equal share in the public service; since men of other castes have great influence in Government offices, Muhammadans have no chance of getting any vacant post. Even European officers do not take any notice of Muhammadans, but yield to the influence of their native assistants who are mostly Brahmans and other Hindus." The editor concludes this article by asking the local Anjumans and newspapers to do their best to represent the grievances of their community to Government till they are redressed.

The Shrievalty of Madras.

42. The same paper, with reference to the Shrievalty of Madras which will fall vacant at the beginning of next year, observes that Nawab Saiyid Muhammad Sahib Bahadur was the first Muhammadan who was appointed to this post, but it was only for a year, whereas Europeans and Hindus held it for years together. Hence it is hoped that Sir Arthur Havelock will appoint some Muhammadan to the office of the Sheriff as this community has stronger claims than any other.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Oct. 20th, 1898.

Corruption in Plague department.

43. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 20th October. The Madras Times says, on the authority of one of its correspondents, that a merchant from Bangalore who recently arrived at Salem had to give an illegal gratification of Rs. 20 before he could get a pass. If this is true, the Qasim observes the man who received the bribe should be detected and punished severely.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Nov. 2nd, 1898.

Murder of the tahsildar of Hindupur.

44. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 2nd November, refers with regret to the murder of the tahsildar of Hindupur, and suggests that the culprits should be detected and punished severely, and that a pension should be granted to his dependants as an encouragement to other brother officials to perform their duty without hesitation.

Chinese and the Christian world.

45. The same paper thinks that the reason why the Chinese do not sympathise with Christians as much as they do with Muhammadans is that their religious principles as well as those of the Muhammadans are nearly alike, in that the Chinese can take more than one wife, they can divorce them and they can buy and sell slaves. They are required to lead a pious and economical life and be obedient to their parents. This the civilised Christian world laughs at. The Chinese need not put up with the caprices of their wives as Christians do. These differences in religion induce the Chinese to detest the Christians and be favourably disposed towards the Muhammadans.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Nov. 3rd, 1898.

Suggesting the establishment of a Pasteur Institute in India.

46. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 3rd November, on the authority of one of his contemporaries, writes that 19 soldiers who have been bitten by rabid dogs were sent to the Pasteur Institute of Paris for treatment, and that the charges incurred for sending them come to about 19,000 rupees. The paper with reference to the above asks with surprise why Government does not think of establishing a similar institute in India.

47. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th November, with reference to the process of inoculation, says that the idea that inoculation is a preservative against plague is simply fanciful. The editor asks whether inoculation will immune a man from plague if he is "fated" to die of it.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Nov. 7th, 1898.

The process of inoculation.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

48. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 7th November, regrets to report that the Medical department does not relish the idea that the State should prefer men who receive their education elsewhere to those who are well trained by clever doctors in this country, and hopes that the State will avoid such an unpleasant state of things.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Nov. 7th, 1898.

A suggestion to the State of Travancore.

49. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 2nd November, says that the people of Bangalore seeing that the measures adopted by the Government to segregate infected persons do more harm than good, held a meeting in the previous week and resolved to appoint one or two private gentlemen in each street to inspect the houses and to send the plague-stricken people to hospitals and to make arrangements to remove dead bodies and generally to inspire courage in the people. The paper calls upon the Government to come to the assistance of the committee so appointed and give them every facility in their work.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Nov. 2nd, 1898.

Efforts of the people to suppress the plague in Bangalore.

50. The same paper in another paragraph laments the condition to which the once happy Bangalore has been reduced by the plague. It says that the town has been almost deserted, trade has stopped and those that still remain in the city can hardly get their supply of necessaries. No carts arrive from the villages whose people are terribly afraid of going into the city.

The disastrous effects of the plague in Bangalore.

51. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 9th November, points out that owing to the rule that every death in a village should be reported to the patel and the cause of death ascertained before the dead body is disposed of, the people in the villages are put to great inconvenience, because the formality of giving information, in the first instance, to the village munsif, his conveying the information to the police station, the police then holding an investigation on the body and the obtaining of permission from the magistrate to bury or burn the body,—all this entails a great deal of delay, and the inconvenience to which the inmates of the house and the neighbours are put is very great, not to speak of the danger of keeping a dead body exposed for a long time if the death was due to plague.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Nov. 9th, 1898.

Operation of the plague rules in the villages of Mysore.

The paper, therefore, invites the attention of Government to the matter.

A correspondent from Nanjangod to the same paper gives an account of two cases of plague in that village having been cured with homely medicines by two women of the place, and says that it would be better if Government would allow home segregation instead of taking the patients to segregation hospitals.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

52. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st November, praising the Government for the various measures adopted in view to ward off and suppress the plague, hopes that Government will watch the conduct of the Plague officers who are, in the opinion of the paper, a terror to the people,

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Nov. 1st, 1898.

A hint to Government regarding the plague.

inasmuch as credit or discredit due to Government with reference to the plague depends more or less on the manner in which the said officers conduct themselves in the execution of their duty.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Nov. 5th, 1898.

A hint to the Collector of Tanjore district.

53. The Jananukulan, of the 5th November, draws the attention of the Collector of Tanjore district to the misappropriation of lands dedicated to the temple at Tiruvarur, yielding an annual income of Rs. 15,000, which was intended by the donors for feeding the poor and giving the youngsters instruction gratis in the Vedas and the religious literature of the ancient Hindus, and hopes that the Collector will arrange for instituting the necessary inquiry in regard to the said endowment.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 8th, 1898.

Remarks on the President of the Welby Commission.

54. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th November, regrets to note that Lord Welby, the President of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the expenses of the Government of India, has not as yet submitted his report, although fourteen months have elapsed since the close of the inquiry, and concludes with the remark that the President of the Commission is in duty bound to submit his report although he has not been paid for his work.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Nov. 8th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding the plague.

55. The India Mitran, of the 8th November, reports that more than 90 per cent. of the ignorant people who have not had the benefit of Western civilization are of opinion that inoculation and other measures adopted by Government in connection with the plague are intended more or less to sacrifice a large number of people in view to save the precious life of Her Majesty the Queen, Empress of India, whose health is becoming more and more unsatisfactory in consequence of old age, and that all efforts to convince such people of the real state of things will be of no avail, as they are determined to fall victims to the plague in their own houses rather than allow themselves to be taken to the segregation sheds and hospitals. The paper referring to the unpleasant incidents that recently occurred in Bangalore, Hindupur, Salem, Krishnagiri, Coimbatore, Conjeeveram and Trichinopoly, hopes that Government will be pleased to caution those men who spread all sorts of false rumours about the plague calculated to create unnecessary alarm, and to make segregation also optional.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 31st, 1898.

Inquiry into the matter reported upon by Police Inspector Mr. Bappu.

56. A correspondent to the Manorama, of the 31st October, suggests the advisability of the Collector of Malabar himself or the Sub-Collector holding special inquiry into the matter reported by Police Inspector Mr. Bappu against the Chirakkal Raja. He holds that this important affair should not be entrusted, for purposes of inquiry, to the tahsildar as he may, according to the usual method, call upon the adhikari for inquiry and report, and this adhikari may in his turn depute his peon to hold the inquiry.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 5th, 1898.

Outrages committed by "Kabul people."

57. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 5th November, writes that some "Kabul people" on their way from Cannanore to Tellicherry forcibly dispossessed poor inhabitants on the way of their domestic animals and any other property that the depredators were able to lay their hands on. They committed similar ravages in the shops and certain houses in Tellicherry.

[Issued 23rd November 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 22 OF 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 30th November 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS. PAGE

Comments on the withdrawal of Turkish forces from Candia. 333
The Egyptian question .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Extensive military preparations by the British Government. ib.
Turkey and Germany .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Evacuation of Crete .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The English and the Egyptians .. .. .. .. ib.
Frontier disturbances .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The Cretan affairs .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 334
The visit of the Emperor of Germany to Turkey .. .. ib.
Russian invasion on India .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a) Police—

Use of false weights and measures in the district of Madura .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Necessity to reform the police constablery .. .. ib.
Chalavara theft case and the police .. .. .. ib.
Oppression by the police constables of Manjéri .. ib.
Arrest of a notorious bad character .. .. .. ib.
Gambling in Chowghat .. .. .. .. .. 335
Cases of theft in Calicut town .. .. .. .. ib.

(b) Courts—

Remarks on the district munsif of Valangaman .. ib.
Document missing in the Palghat munsif's court .. ib.
Inconvenience experienced by people owing to the magistrate keeping late hours in the court .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

Mappila education .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion for establishing agricultural schools .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

Remarks on the Negapatam municipal council .. 336
Insanitary condition of certain parts of the Cuddalore municipality .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to Government regarding its attitude towards the villages to be brought under the operation of the Municipal Act .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A complaint against the President, Municipal Commission, Madras .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to the Madras municipality .. .. ib.
Elective franchise to be granted to the local boards .. 337
Unsatisfactory state of the Vaccination department in Malabar .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Nil.

(g) Forests—

Nil.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION—cont. PAGE

(h) Railways—

Suggesting the advisability of making better arrangements for third-class passengers .. .. .. 337

(i) Public Works—

Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Nil.

(k) General—

Desirability of opening a post office at Samayapuram (Trichinopoly district) .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Objection to the sale of meat in places other than markets .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Separation of judicial and executive functions .. .. ib.
The plague and the collection of kists in Maddikarra .. 338
Misconduct of subordinate officials on plague duty .. ib.
Irregularities in the Talipparamba post office .. .. ib.
Branch post offices .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Strained relations between the Kavalappara Nethiar and the manager .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Atrocities of the Pathakkalas of Anjerakandi .. .. ib.
Kabul and the English .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The process of inoculation .. .. .. .. .. 339
The murder of the tahsildar of Hindupur .. .. ib.
Imported plague cases in Madras .. .. .. ib.
Plague Commission .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
G.O. regarding the birthday of the Prophet .. .. ib.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Remarks on the amendment of the Indian Evidence Act .. ib.
A suggestion for a provision in the Hindu law .. .. ib.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

The reason why segregation is distasteful to the people .. 340
The people of Mysore overjoyed at the order making segregation optional .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The recent riot in Seringapatam .. .. .. .. ib.
Piracy committed near Cochin .. .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Crawford, the late Acting Resident at Hyderabad .. ib.
Mr. Plowden's return to Hyderabad .. .. .. ib.
Mr. Plowden and the Lieutenant-Governorship of Burma .. ib.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

The indebtedness of the cultivators of India .. .. .. 341

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

A hint to Government regarding the plague .. .. .. ib.
A suggestion to Government regarding the plague .. .. ib.
Necessity on the part of Government to render the Madras municipality pecuniary help in connection with the plague. ib.
A suggestion to the Madras University .. .. .. ib.
Dread of anti-plague inoculation .. .. .. .. ib.
The Cannanore plague .. .. .. .. .. 342
The approaching National Congress .. .. .. .. ib.

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Gnanachandrika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 2,000 | Oct. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th Nov. 1898. |
| 3 | "Trichi Nesan" .. .. .. | Trichinopoly .. .. | .. | 15th " " |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 4 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 15th and 25th Nov. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 5 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 500 | 16th and 24th Nov. 1898. |
| 6 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 2,000 | 18th " 25th " " |
| 7 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 12th, 19th and 26th Nov. 1898. |
| 8 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 16th Nov. 1898. |
| 9 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 400 | 14th, 21st and 28th Nov. 1898. |
| 10 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 19th and 26th Nov. 1898. |
| 11 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 14th " 21st " " |
| 12 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 19th " 26th " " |
| 13 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,400 | 19th " 26th " " |
| 14 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 21st Nov. 1898. |
| 15 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Tiruvádi .. .. .. | 100 | 22nd " " |
| 16 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 400 | 19th " " |
| 17 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 20th " " |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 18 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 16th, 18th, 21st, 23rd, 25th and 28th Nov. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 19 | "Kalinga" .. .. .. .. | Chicacole .. .. .. | 200 | 1st June 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 19th and 26th Nov. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 21 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 16th, 19th, 23rd and 26th Nov. 1898. |
| 22 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 18th, 22nd and 25th Nov. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 23 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 17th and 24th Nov. 1898. |
| 24 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 16th " 23rd " " |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 25 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasseri .. .. | 670 | 15th Nov. 1898. |
| 26 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 840 | 14th and 24th Nov. 1898. |
| 27 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 21st Nov. 1898. |
| 28 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 21st " " |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 29 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 12th and 19th Nov. 1898. |
| 30 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 550 | 14th, 21st and 28th Nov. 1898. |
| 31 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 16th and 23rd Nov. 1898. |
| 32 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 725 | 12th, 19th and 26th Nov. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 33 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 14th and 21st Nov. 1898. |
| 34 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 12th " 19th " " |
| 35 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th Nov. 1898. |
| 36 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 9th, 16th and 23rd Nov. 1898. |
| 37 | "Naier-i-Asifi" .. .. .. | Mylapore, Madras .. | .. | 10th, 17th " 24th " " |
| 38 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 3rd, 7th, 14th and 17th Nov. 1898. |
| 39 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 12th and 19th Nov. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Shams-ul-Akhbar contains an article contributed by Mustafa Kamil to The Al-Muvayyid, of Cairo, of which the following is an excerpt:—The submission of the Sultan to the collective note of the powers regarding the withdrawal of Turkish troops from Candia has been wrongly interpreted by his opponents who have commenced making virulent attacks upon him. Had they any sense of justice in them, they would have attacked Europe and its civilization and politics rather than the Sultan. What right have the European powers to interfere in the matters of the Sultan, and what caused them to interfere in the affairs of Crete? Why do they not interfere in Cuba and in India? Are not Spain and England Christian kingdoms? In these circumstances, all Muhammadans should take warning and should clearly understand that their safety depends on rallying round the banner of the Sultan and ceasing to place confidence in Europe. Muhammadans have hitherto been under the mistaken impression that European civilization and politics were based on the principles of preserving the balance of power and observing the principles of justice.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, Nov. 14th, 1898.

Comments on the withdrawal of Turkish forces from Candia.

2. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 9th November, writes thus on the Egyptian question:—The sympathy of France with Egypt is undoubtedly based on self-interested and diplomatic motives and proves her ambitious design of getting a share of the country along with England. This seems to be a foolish idea. France is always engaged in devising some plan which may lead to a rupture between England and Turkey. The Mukhbir observes with regret that Germany, Russia and France all have designs on the Sultan. It wants to know why the far-sighted British Government does not support the Sultan. It hopes that England may again cultivate cordial relations with Turkey, so that the Sultan may remain safe from other powers.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Nov. 9th, 1898.

The Egyptian question.

3. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 23rd November, does not know why the British Government is making extensive military preparations, and suggests that these preparations may be due to the contemplated establishment of British power in Egypt.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1898.

Extensive military preparations by the British Government.

4. The same paper. A correspondent writing from Constantinople says that it is alleged that an alliance has been formed between Turkey and Germany regarding (1) Turkish trade with Germany, (2) grant of loans to Turkey if required, and (3) the evacuation of Egypt by the English.

Turkey and Germany.

5. The same paper, regarding the evacuation of Crete by the Turkish troops, says that the European powers did not fulfil their engagements but acted in a deceitful manner as regards Crete. The editor thinks that the last disturbance there is due to the powers alone.

Evacuation of Crete.

6. The same paper says that it is understood from reliable source that since the capture of Khartoom the English have become exceedingly proud and conceited and now hold the Egyptians in contempt. The editor thinks that the relations between the Egyptians and the English are getting strained day by day and that the result will possibly be a disturbance.

The English and the Egyptians.

7. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 19th November, says that the north-western frontier is again disturbed and Government is again preparing to suppress the disturbances. The editor thinks these disturbances will never be put down unless the Khyber be taken and the frontier Pathans drawn to the side of the English.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Nov. 19th, 1898.

Frontier disturbances.

8. The same paper says the English threatened to bombard the island of Crete unless the old fort and ramparts were demolished, the troops there disarmed and the Turkish troops withdrawn. But the Sultan's courageous reply refusing to do all this and declaring that even the appointment of a Governor must be subject to his approval, quieted the English.

The Cretan affairs.

9. The same paper says that the visit of the Emperor of Germany to Turkey has greatly displeased the English since they think that the Egyptian question will now be re-opened.

The visit of the Emperor of Germany to Turkey.

10. The same paper fears that the railway lines constructed by Russia in Central Asia will facilitate a Russian invasion of India.

Russian invasion on India.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

South India Mitran, Dindigul, Nov. 15th, 1898.

11. The South India Mitran, of the 15th November, regrets to note that in Periyakulam taluk and other places in the district of Madura merchants use false weights and measures with impunity, and that the Police officers instead of bringing the culprits to book, connive at the offence, being greased by the merchants, and draws the attention of the authorities to the cheating complained of.

Use of false weights and measures in the district of Madura.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Nov. 26th, 1898.

12. The Jananukulan, of the 26th November, referring to a number of cases in which police constables were found guilty of the very crimes they are intended to detect, observes that the moral tone of the police constablery is very unsatisfactory in consequence of the fact that the men appointed as constables, as a rule, belong to the dregs of the native community, possessing neither education nor upright character. The paper earnestly hopes that the authorities will bestow the necessary attention on the subject and reform the Police department ere long.

Necessity to reform the police constablery.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Nov. 12th, 1898.

13. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th November, reports that Thottappaya Moidu, the accused in the Chalavara theft case, is in the good graces of the police and that he has, after his admission to bail, threatened to be a source of further trouble to the people. The article also states that the head constable who framed the charge against the accused has been transferred to Tellicherry. The case is still sub judice, but the object of the leader is to show that the police are indifferent in the matter. To seek the assistance of a character like Moidu who is held in much dread by the people, in order to arrest culprits and runaway convicts, is not a very advisable course for the police to pursue. The special attention of the District Magistrate and the Superintendent is invited to the matter.

Chalavara theft case and the police.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Nov. 16th, 1898.

14. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th November, complains of the oppression of the poor people of Manjéri by the police constables who have been newly transferred to the place. They have, all of them, been drawn from the "Reserve."

Oppression by the police constables of Manjéri.

15. The same paper reproduces a passage that appeared in the Manorama regarding the inconvenience to which wayfarers from Calicut Nadakkavu to Malapparamba are put by the notorious bad characters that infest those places. One such character was arrested last Thursday and taken to the police station. It is hoped that the Police Inspector and the Town Magistrate will bestow their attention on the matter.

Arrest of a notorious bad character.

16. A Chowghat correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 19th November, invites the attention of the local Police and Magistrate to the practice of gambling indulged in these parts generally and even in the market so near the Magistrate's Court. The people in general are put to great inconvenience thereby.

Gambling in Chowghat.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 19th, 1898.

17. A leader in the Manorama, of the 14th November, reports that housebreaking and theft are of very frequent occurrence now-a-days in the town of Calicut, and offenders are properly dealt with only when they are caught red-handed. The article hopes that Mr. Lafrenais, Inspector of Police, and the other Police officers of the place will show greater zeal in the detection of crimes in future.

Cases of theft in Calicut town.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 14th, 1898.

(b) Courts.

18. The Jananukulan, of the 19th November, is sorry to hear that the district munsif of Valangaman annoys the parties and their vakils and is very unpopular.

Remarks on the district munsif of Valangaman.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Nov. 19th, 1898.

19. A leader in the Manorama, of the 14th November, regards it as very unfortunate that official irregularities should prevail in the Palghat Munsif's Court and that documents should be found missing. The article suggests that, henceforward, copies of all non-registered documents should invariably be made, that they should be compared with the originals by the vakil and his gumastah, that both the copies and the originals should bear the signature and stamp of the court, and that the original should be handed over to the client, the copy being kept safe in the custody of the court. Such documents should, in the case of a taluk cutcherry, be kept in the treasury attached thereto.

Document missing in the Palghat Munsif's Court.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 14th, 1898.

20. A Tirúr correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th November, complains of the very late hours at which the local magistrate, M.R.Ry. T. C. Govinda Kurup, goes to and leaves the court, thus inconveniencing the parties a great deal.

Inconvenience experienced by people owing to the magistrate keeping late hours in the court.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 12th, 1898.

(d) Education.

21. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th November, regrets to see that the different measures adopted by the Government to improve the state of Mappila education in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad have proved unsuccessful, but does not wonder at it inasmuch as the Mappila boys of those taluks to whom education is intended to be imparted are, owing to their extreme poverty, compelled to earn what little they can towards maintaining themselves and their poor family. Unless, therefore, the Government is prepared to provide for the boarding and other expenses of the poor Mappila pupils, the system of Mappila education as followed by the Government will not, says the paper, be productive of much good. Under the circumstances, the article suggests that it will be a right step in the right direction to establish industrial institutions of the nature of boarding schools in the two taluks where Mappila boys may be trained in useful works of industry. Along with such training they may be given elementary education. The attention of the Government is invited to the matter.

Mappila education.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 12th, 1898.

22. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 19th November, states that thousands of people are at present in a distressed condition being unable to get employment. The editor admits that Government cannot employ all that qualify themselves every year for the public service, and suggests the advisability of establishing agricultural schools.

A suggestion for establishing agricultural schools.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Nov. 19th, 1898.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Nov. 14th, 1898.

Remarks on the Negapatam municipal council.

23. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 14th November, regrets to observe that the poor secretary to the Negapatam municipality was suspended at the instance of the chairman who brought to the notice of the councillors certain petty irregularities on the part of the secretary, and that the summary disposal of the case by the councillors without giving the secretary a fair opportunity to submit his explanation regarding the charges brought against him is unjust and improper, and hopes that Government will be pleased to take his case into its deep consideration.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Nov. 16th, 1898.

Insanitary condition of certain parts of the Cuddalore municipality.

24. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 16th November, regrets to state that cholera, which has recently broken out in Surappa Naickan chavady of the 3rd division and in Bandipalayam of the 2nd division, is due entirely to the most insanitary condition of the said places and the roads leading to them, which was not attended to by the Cuddalore municipality then and there in spite of frequent complaints in the papers on the subject.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding its attitude towards the villages to be brought under the operation of the Municipal Act.

25. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th November, writes as follows:—It is really surprising to note that some villages do not relish the idea that their villages should be brought under the operation of the Municipal Act and made unions at a time like this when the congress aims at acquiring more and more political privileges. The reason of this is obvious. Except in the case of long-standing municipalities, the members of some of the newly-formed municipalities and unions practically enjoy little or no independence inasmuch as most of them are Government servants. In consequence of such a state of things the sanitary and other arrangements made by Government in such villages do not produce the desired effect and are repugnant to the feelings of the villagers. It is a thousand pities that Government has done little or nothing to enlighten the people living in such parts of the country as do not enjoy the blessings of civilization; nor does it encourage the Vernacular newspapers which are calculated to do the noble work of educating the masses. If the Government be pleased to leave the internal management of the villages to the inhabitants themselves and to refrain from exercising strict official control over them for some time, we are morally certain that the people in the mofussil will welcome the operation of the Municipal Act as a blessing conferred upon them, and that the object of Government will be gained in the long run.

AGNIKULATHITHAN, Madras, Nov. 26th, 1898.

A complaint against the President, Municipal Commission, Madras.

26. The Agnikulathithan, of the 26th November, is sorry to hear that the President, Municipal Commission, Madras, wrote to the Superintendent of the Workshop at Perambúr and got one of the servants of the Madras Railway Company dismissed on the score that he had given vent to his feelings at the hubbub caused in his house by the Municipal officers in connection with a recent plague case in Washermanpettah, and that a grave-yard kanakapillai living in the said house was dismissed for his not having taken the inmates of the infected house to the segregation shed. The paper dwells at length on the injustice of the procedure adopted in the case of the two poor persons in question.

A suggestion to the Madras municipality.

27. The same paper suggests the desirability of getting notices, orders etc., issued by the Madras municipality from time to time published in the Vernacular newspapers for the information of the public at large, and hopes that the Madras municipality will follow the example of the Local Government in purchasing all the Vernacular newspapers which will enable that body to know then and there what the grievances of the people are and what they think of its administration.

28. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 26th November, referring to the constitution and working of the district and taluk boards in Malabar, says that, if certain desirable changes are not effected in the system of working these boards, no good purpose can be served by them except putting Government to unnecessary expenditure. It remarks that the majority of the members of the district board are generally tahsildars and landlords who have no experience in local self-government and whose seats on the board are due to their influence with some of the high officials in the district. It appears that these members do not generally give out their independent opinion on matters coming before the board for fear of incurring the displeasure of the president and the vice-president, but only nod assent to what the latter say. The article, while commenting upon the matter at some length, suggests that for the efficient working of the local boards they should be remodelled on an electoral basis, at least half the members thereof being returned by the people.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 26th, 1898.

Elective franchise to be granted to the local boards.

29. Another leader in the same issue of the paper comments upon the unsatisfactory state of the Vaccination department in Malabar and remarks that the irregularities prevailing in the department are mainly due to the vaccinators being inefficient, ill-educated and ill-paid. The attention of the President of the Malabar District Board is invited to the necessity of reorganising the department by the introduction of educated men on higher salaries.

Unsatisfactory state of the Vaccination department in Malabar.

(h) Railways.

30. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 12th November, says that railway companies derive a comparatively larger profit from third-class passengers than from first and second class passengers, and suggests the advisability of making arrangements for the greater ease and comfort of the third-class passengers.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Nov. 12th, 1898.

Suggesting the advisability of making better arrangements for third-class passengers.

(k) General.

31. The Trichi Nesan, of the 15th November, suggests the desirability of opening a post office at Samayapuram (Trichinopoly district) in consideration of the fact that there is a temple therein which is visited by hundreds of devotees on Tuesdays and Fridays, that large fairs are held weekly, that there is a police station, and that public officers often halt at that place.

TRICHI NESAN, Trichinopoly, Nov. 15th, 1898.

Desirability of opening a post office at Samayapuram (Trichinopoly district).

32. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 16th November, regrets to report that mutton is sold indiscriminately in Puduppalayam, Manjakuppam, Tiruppápuliyúr and other places adjoining the kasba town of Cuddalore, the very sight of which is most repulsive to the vegetarians who deem it an unbearable nuisance, and hopes that separate places like markets screened from public view will be set apart for the sale of such articles.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Nov. 16th, 1898.

Objection to the sale of meat in places other than markets.

33. The Andhraprakasika, of the 26th November, arguing in favour of the question of separating the judicial from the executive functions, makes a reference to the letter of the Honourable Mr. Ratnasabhapati Pillai to the Secretary to the Government and states that Diwan Bahadur Raghunadha Rao held the same view. It enumerates his suggestions for making it feasible to separate the said functions without at the same time increasing the Government expenditure to any great extent. The paper concludes that, as the gentlemen named above know all about the country and

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 26th, 1898.

Separation of judicial and executive functions.

have gained a sound experience in the responsible positions which they held, their views must be regarded as authoritative, and believes that, if the measures which they have suggested should be carried out, the country would become more prosperous.

The plague and the collection of kists in Maddikarra.

34. A correspondent to the same paper writes from Maddikarra, Pattikonda taluk, Kurnool district, that, as plague is prevalent in the outlying villages, the ryots are not able to procure advances on cotton, either cleaned or uncleaned, for paying Government kists. Money-lenders are not inclined to lend money to the cultivators as the plague panic impels them to regard life as very uncertain. So the correspondent requests the Government to postpone the collection of kists for two months.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 19th, 1898.

Misconduct of subordinate officials on plague duty.

35. The Andhraprakasika, of the 19th November, says that it has often heard of the dishonest conduct of the subordinate officials on plague duty, who, while examining passengers, exact bribes from them, threatening them with detention on refusal. If this be true and if for a paltry four-anna piece plague patients are let into a large town by such rogues, the paper exclaims "how great will be the mischief done!" It prays that the Plague Commissioner will carefully inquire into the matter and extirpate such infamous villainy.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 16th, 1898.

Irregularities in the Talipparamba post office.

36. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th November, complains of the irregularities in the Talipparamba post office, and requests that the Superintendent may be pleased to pass orders transferring the local postmaster.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 19th, 1898.

Branch post offices.

37. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 19th November, complains of the great irregularities in the delivery of newspapers and postal articles by branch post offices, and instances the hard case of an applicant to a peon's place under the Sub-Assistant Inspector of Girls' Schools, Coimbatore range, having had to lose the appointment owing to the irregularity in the delivery to him of a certain communication. This incident, if true, reveals a state of affairs in the management of branch post offices, which demands the attention of the authorities concerned.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 12th, 1898.

Strained relations between the Kavalappara Nethiar and the manager.

38. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th November, regards it as very unfortunate that the relations between the Kavalappara Nethiar and the manager are very strained. Such strained relations tell much against the tenants and dependents of the Nethiar and prevent the management of the estate being smoothly carried on. This unfortunate state of affairs is said to be the result of the undue interference of the manager in matters relating to the Kottaram (palace). The manager, though honest and able, is old enough to be retired on pension. The article suggests that another person may be appointed as manager in place of the present one who may be retired, and invites, therefore, the attention of the Collector to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 19th, 1898.

Atrocities of the Pathakkalas of Anjerakandi.

39. An Anjerakandi correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 19th November, complains of the atrocities committed upon poor tenants and labourers of that place by the Pathakkalas (members of an old and wealthy Mappila family) whose acts of high-handedness and injustice are second only to those of the Mappila sepoys of Cannanore in point of enormity.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Nov. 12th, 1898.

Kabul and the English.

40. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 12th November, mentions that in the workshops at Kabul, in which machines of various kinds are manufactured, many people earn their livelihood, and gladly notes that in a country, which was once the centre of bloodshed and disturbances, callings are now pursued tending to develop its civilization and resources. This, the editor says, is due to the English alone.

41. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 10th November. A correspondent writes that the ignorant folk of Madras indulge in wild speculations and conjectures as regards inoculation, saying that the Queen-Empress is ill and that it is proposed to kill several thousands of people as a sacrifice to restore her to health. Inoculation has been invented as the easiest mode of killing the required number by the injection of poison into their bodies.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Nov. 10th, 1898.

The process of inoculation.

42. The same paper, with reference to the brutal murder of the tahsildar of Hindupur, concurs with the Madras Times in the suggestion that Government should in such cases grant pensions to the widows of the victims, and hopes that Government will sanction some pension for the unfortunate widow of the late tahsildar of Hindupur as a token of its appreciation of his services.

The murder of the tahsildar of Hindupur.

43. The same paper states that a Hindu, who came from Bangalore and has stayed in Tiruvattur High Road, has suddenly been attacked with high fever and that buboes also appeared in his neck, and says it is expedient that in future no one from Bangalore should be allowed to come to Madras, and that as long as this rule is not adopted Madras will be exposed to danger.

Imported plague cases in Madras.

44. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 14th November, in disapproving of the Plague Commission appointed in England under the presidency of Professor Fraser, remarks that, as many eminent doctors have already made inquiries as to the plague, the Commission will not produce any good result, but cost India a great deal of money.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Nov. 14th, 1898.

Plague Commission.

45. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 23rd November, gratefully approves of the G.O. regarding the grant of a holiday for the birthday of the Prophet.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1898.

G.O. regarding the birthday of the Prophet.

III.—LEGISLATION.

46. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 21st November, dwelling at length on the uselessness of depending on the statement made by the prisoner in his defence, observes that the prisoner is likely to tell a number of lies in view to bring to trouble the witnesses who depose in favour of prosecution, and that it is highly expedient that there should be an enactment to prevent such an unpleasant state of things as the Evidence Act at present does not seem to contain any provision on the subject, and concludes with the remark that the new amendment of the Evidence Act is totally useless and will subject the accused to danger and that ridiculous consequences will be the result.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Nov. 21st, 1898.

Remarks on the amendment of the Indian Evidence Act.

47. The Andhraprakasika, of the 16th November, reviewing the judgment of Justices Parsons and Ranade in a case of marriage between a little girl 3½ years old and a boy 7 years old performed by the mother of the bride during the absence of the father and against his will, remarks that it is very undesirable that the legal privileges of the father should be encroached upon by others, and hopes that the legislature will enact a rule that no person shall have a right to perform the marriage of any girl without the permission of her father as long as he discharges his legal responsibilities and has not lost his legal rights by any misconduct.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1898.

A suggestion for a provision in the Hindu law.

IV.—Native States.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Nov. 17th, 1898.

48. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 17th November, says that one reason why segregation is objected to by the people is that when they have once been taken out of their houses they cannot get back the things that were in their houses safe. The paper therefore suggests that those entrusted with the work of disinfecting the houses should make a list in duplicate of all furniture and other things found in the house and have it signed by the owners as well as by the chief disinfecting officer and a copy of it should be delivered to the owner, the other being retained by the officers, so that if any article is missing the Government may make good the loss.

The reason why segregation is distasteful to the people.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Nov. 23rd, 1898.

49. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 23rd November, after pointing out the various evils to which segregation gives rise on account of the fear and ignorance of the people, expresses great satisfaction at the verbal orders passed by the Plague Commissioner of Mysore making segregation optional, and hopes that he will stick to the resolution and not cancel his order as was done on a former occasion.

The people of Mysore overjoyed at the order making segregation optional.

50. The same paper does not agree with those who maintain that the Government was not justified in firing upon the rioters in Ganjám, but says that the responsible officers acted with the greatest amount of tact and gave orders for firing upon the crowd only when all other means of quieting it had failed and when the situation became critical.

The recent riot in Seringapatam.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Nov. 16th, 1898.

51. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th November, reports that, owing to the piracy generally committed on the sea situate between Munambu Pallippuram and Ayyikkodu near Cochin, trade by sea between Cochin and its northern parts is rendered quite unsafe. In spite of the measures adopted last year to put down such piracy, the vessels loaded with bags of rice, sugar, etc., belonging to Messrs. Kadankandi Moidin Kutti and Maliyakkal Kadir Haji were some time during this month plundered and despoiled of their cargo. The owners of the vessels have put in petitions regarding the subject to the British Resident, Police Superintendent of the Cochin State, the Diwan of the Travancore State and the Cochin Deputy Collector. The attention of the authorities concerned is invited to the matter.

Piracy committed near Cochin.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, Nov. 12th, 1898.

52. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 12th November, says that it is understood that Mr. Crawford, the late Acting Resident at Hyderabad, will be appointed to act for Mr. Cunningham as Foreign Secretary, and hopes that during his tenure of office there will be peace in Hyderabad, and His Highness the Nizam have the opportunity of expressing his historical love to the Imperial Government.

Mr. Crawford, the late Acting Resident at Hyderabad.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Nov. 9th, 1898.

53. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 9th November, writes that some are pleased and many are displeased at the return of Mr. Plowden to Hyderabad. No doubt several beneficial changes have taken place during his time. Many officers belonging to foreign provinces who were in power in Hyderabad were removed from their appointments. If the ill-feeling now supposed to exist between His Highness the Nizam and the Prime Minister be removed through Mr. Plowden, then he will be regarded as the patron of Hyderabad.

Mr. Plowden's return to Hyderabad.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1898.

54. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 23rd November, says that it is rumoured that Mr. Plowden will probably succeed the present Lieutenant-Governor of Burma when the latter retires during January next, and hopes that the rumour will become a fact since Mr. Plowden is very painstaking and faithful in the discharge of his duties.

Mr. Plowden and the Lieutenant-Governorship of Burma.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

55. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 12th November, says that the British Government, which has been for many years past considering how to improve the land under cultivation and how to better the condition of the indebted cultivators in India, has as yet done nothing. The editor thinks that manure is the only thing that will improve the land and cause it to yield more than it has hitherto done. If it be used largely, the condition of cultivators will be bettered.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Nov. 12th, 1898.

The indebtedness of the cultivators in India.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

56. The Agnikulathithan, of the 12th November, observes that the people are greatly alarmed at the hubbub caused by the Plague officers, however sincere they may be, and suggests the desirability of asking some one of the respectable men living in the neighbourhood of the house visited by the plague to help the Plague officers in explaining beforehand to the inmates of the infected house the object of the measures to be adopted by the officers, and of directing native sepoys of good behaviour and trustworthy men among the people to guard such houses instead of deputing Police officers for the work.

Agnikulathithan, Madras, Nov. 12th, 1898.

A hint to Government regarding the plague.

57. The Lokopakari, of the 18th November, suggests to Government the desirability of requiring all the inhabitants of a village to vacate it with their goods as soon as cases of plague occur in it, and occupy any other uninfected area they please, so that the dwelling-houses of the infected village may be thoroughly disinfected during the absence of its inhabitants, and observes that such a measure will save the expense of maintaining an establishment, etc., for the suppression of the epidemic in such a village and relieve the Government as well as the inhabitants of a good deal of labour and trouble.

Lokopakari, Madras, Nov. 18th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding the plague.

58. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th November, referring to the fact that the Madras Government has asked the Government of India to help the Madras municipality with a loan of two lakhs of rupees enabling it to adopt the necessary measures for combating the plague, does not relish the idea of the said sum being paid as a loan repayable, as it does not stand to reason that the poor inhabitants of Madras, who are not responsible for the spread of the plague which has travelled from foreign countries, should be saddled with the expenses necessary for its suppression. The paper concludes with the remark that it is incumbent on Government to do all in its power to save the people from the ravages of the epidemic, and that it is but just and proper that Government should pay gratis a moiety at least of the money required by the Madras municipality to adopt the necessary measures in connection with the plague.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 18th, 1898.

Necessity on the part of Government to render the Madras municipality pecuniary help in connection with the plague.

59. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st November, draws the attention of the Madras University to the Government order which permits Government servants of the various sects of the Hindu community to take their own days for the Krishna Jayanti holiday, and hopes that the Madras University will not hold the B.L. degree examination on the Pongal day.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1898.

A suggestion to the Madras University.

60. A leader in the Manorama, of the 14th November, suggests the desirability of instructing the illiterate section of the people of Malabar in regard to the efficacy of anti-plague inoculation by causing a series of lectures on the subject to be delivered by competent men. Intending

Manorama, Calicut, Nov. 14th, 1898.

Dread of anti-plague inoculation.

lecturers are invited to communicate with the editor of the paper within 15 days, showing what remuneration, if any, they require for their services. The article also suggests that Sanitary officers in the municipality should be required to lecture to the people.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 23rd, 1898.

The Cannanore plague.

61. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 23rd November, regrets to hear that the proposal of the authorities to transfer the 25th Regiment from Cannanore to Bangalore has been deferred for one year owing to the plague in Bangalore. It says that this regiment, which is composed of ignorant and mischievous Mappilas, is termed the "plague of Cannanore" and is more dreaded by the local inhabitants than the plague itself. The article refers at length to the mischievous propensities of these Mappila sepoys and the abortive measures employed by the people to check them, and remarks that it is a wonder that the Government shows so much indifference to this public grievance which has been a subject of frequent comment and correspondence in the papers for a long time.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 24th, 1898.

The approaching National Congress.

62. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th November, referring to the approaching Indian National Congress and commenting upon the usefulness of that institution, says that the indifference of the Malayalis in the matter of collecting funds and electing delegates is very reprehensible. The opinion is expressed that, as it is very difficult for the Calicut Congress committee to collect, by public subscriptions, Rs. 3,000, which is the sum allotted to Malabar, they should either make house-to-house collections or divide the district into different divisions and appoint some zealous and earnest workers to make collections in their respective divisions.

[Issued 8th December 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 23 of 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 15th December 1898.

---

CONTENTS.

I.—Foreign Politics. Page

The alleged ambition of the European powers .. .. 345
The Egyptian question .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The alleged massacre of prisoners of war at Omdurman .. ib.
Order for repairing the fortifications on the frontier .. ib.
A proposed mission to Kabul .. .. .. .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police—

Inefficiency of the police in Proddatur (Cuddapah) .. ib.
Suggesting certain reforms in the Police department .. ib.

(b) Courts—

Remarks on the acquittal of the accused in a theft case .. 346
Punishment to those who use obscene language on the public roads .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(c) Jails—

Nil.

(d) Education—

Suggestions regarding Mappila education .. .. ib.

(e) Local and Municipal—

A remark against the Tanjore municipality .. .. ib.
Remarks on a Local Fund choultry in Dindigul .. 347
A suggestion to the Chairman of the Dindigul municipality .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Collector of Malabar to inquire into the irregularities connected with the election of a councillor of the Cannanore municipality .. .. .. .. .. ib.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement—

Remarks on the Survey and Settlement department .. ib.

(g) Forests—

Nil.

(h) Railways—

Reflections on the opening of railways in India .. .. ib.
Special Deputy Collector Sita Rao Pantulu to be retained for acquiring lands for the Calicut-Cannanore Railway. 348

(i) Public Works—

Nil.

(j) Salt and Abkári—

Grievances of the toddy-drawers of Cannanore .. .. ib.

II.—Home Administration—cont. Page

(k) General—

A suggestion to Government regarding the plague .. 348
Objectionable procedure on the part of the Plague officers ib.
A suggestion to the Plague Commissioner .. .. .. ib.
Wanted another apothecary .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Bribery case against Khanderau, a village accountant .. 349
Grievances of hospital assistants .. .. .. .. ib.
Complaining that opium-sellers at Muradabad sell it as they please .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Adulterated ghee .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The plague .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Muhammadans in the public service .. .. .. ib.
Grant of a holiday to Muhammadans on the birthday of their Prophet .. .. .. .. .. .. 350
Recent riots in Seringapatam and Ganjám .. .. ib.
Plague at Bangalore .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
The evil results of plague measures .. .. .. ib.
The Shrievalty of Madras .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Rules regarding the pilgrimage to Hedjaz .. .. ib.

III.—Legislation.

A case in which action should be taken under the Age of Consent Act .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 351

IV.—Native States.

A suggestion to the Travancore State .. .. .. ib.
The alleged misconduct of a Plague medical officer .. ib.
The abolition of segregation in Mysore .. .. .. ib.
Plague in the village of French Rocks .. .. .. ib.
Plague in certain villages in Mysore .. .. .. 352
Disapproving of the amalgamation of Malayalam schools with English schools in the Cochin State .. .. .. ib.
Complaining of the want of drugs in some of the hospitals in Travancore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Revenue department in Travancore .. .. .. .. ib.
Remarks on a circular issued by the Travancore High Court. ib.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Nil.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Some objections to the proposed war against the tribes on the north-western frontier .. .. .. .. .. ib.
Partiality on the part of Her Majesty's Ministers .. .. 353
Remarks on the late Famine Commission .. .. .. ib.
Poverty in India .. .. .. .. .. .. 354

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 1st Dec. 1898. |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 1st ,, ,, |
| 3 | "Trichi Nesan" .. .. .. | Trichinopoly .. .. | .. | 1st ,, ,, |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 4 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 5th Dec. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 5 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 3rd and 10th Dec. 1898. |
| 6 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,100 | 3rd ,, 10th ,, ,, |
| 7 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 8th Dec. 1898. |
| 8 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 2,000 | 2nd and 9th Dec. 1898. |
| 9 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 3rd Dec. 1898. |
| 10 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 30th Nov. and 7th Dec. 1898. |
| 11 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 5th Dec. 1898. |
| 12 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 400 | 5th ,, ,, |
| 13 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 3rd and 10th Dec. 1898. |
| 14 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 1st Dec. 1898. |
| 15 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 27th Nov. 1898. |
| 16 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 400 | 5th and 26th Nov. 1898. |
| 17 | "Prapanja Mitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 2,000 | 9th Dec. 1898. |
| 18 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 28th Nov. and 5th Dec. 1898. |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 19 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 30th Nov. and 2nd, 5th, 7th, 9th and 12th Dec. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 20 | "Hindujanasamakarini" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 384 | Nov. 1898. |
| 21 | "Messenger of Truth" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 4,000 | Dec. ,, |
| 22 | "Satwasadhani" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 250 | Nov. ,, |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 23 | "Vignanavardhani" .. .. .. | Rayadrug .. .. .. | 100—150 | 15th and 31st Oct. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Kistna News" .. .. .. | Bezwada .. .. .. | Not known. | 26th Nov. and 6th Dec. 1898. |
| 25 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 3rd and 10th Dec. 1898. |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 26 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 470 | 29th Nov. and 2nd, 6th, 9th and 13th Dec. 1898. |
| 27 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 600 | 30th ,, ,, 3rd, 7th and 10th Dec. 1898. |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 28 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 1st, 8th and 15th Dec. 1898. |
| 29 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 30th Nov. and 7th Dec. 1898. |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 30 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasseri .. .. | 670 | 5th Dec. 1898. |
| 31 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 840 | 4th ,, ,, |
| 32 | "Nazrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 30th Nov. 1898. |
| 33 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 1st Dec. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 34 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 3rd Dec. 1898. |
| 35 | "Manorama" .. .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 550 | 5th ,, ,, |
| 36 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 7th Dec. 1898. |
| 37 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 725 | 3rd and 10th Dec. 1898. |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 38 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 28th Nov. and 5th and 12th Dec. 1898. |
| 39 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 26th ,, ,, 3rd Dec. 1898. |
| 40 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 25th ,, ,, 5th ,, ,, |
| 41 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras .. | 200 | 4th Dec. 1898. |
| 42 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 7th ,, ,, |
| 43 | "Naier-i-Asifi" .. .. .. | Mylapore, Madras .. | .. | 1st and 8th Dec. 1898. |
| 44 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 17th and 21st Nov. 1898. |
| 45 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 26th Nov. and 3rd Dec. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 26th November, says that the European powers are very ambitious and that among these England ranks first. She has made innumerable conquests already and yet it is understood that she intends making further conquests.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Nov. 26th, 1898.

The alleged ambition of the European powers.

2. The Alhami, of the 27th November, writes that from information received from reliable sources it is clear that the British have become very proud since the victory at Khartoom and regard the natives of Egypt with contempt. It is feared that this hostility between the English and Egyptians will end in serious fighting. The Egyptians are not to be blamed for this. The present crisis requires that the Egyptians should be friendly with the English, though it is certain that the English are not pleased with the Khedive for his having undertaken a journey to Constantinople. The English press goes to the absurd length of saying that the Khedive will be deposed and that the war preparations in England are directed against Egypt. At any rate, the Egyptian question will assume a serious aspect in the near future. The Egyptian papers are inciting the Egyptians to be prepared for the opposition of the British.

Alhami, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1898.

The Egyptian question.

3. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 3rd December, as regards the victory over the Durvishes and subsequent alleged massacre of captives by the English, says that as Napolean Bonaparte, at the close of the 18th century, cast a slur on Western civilization by putting to death all prisoners of war, so the Soudanese battalions at Omdurman acted at the close of the 19th century.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Dec. 3rd, 1898.

The alleged massacre of prisoners of war at Omdurman.

4. The same paper. The Oudh Akhbar refers to the order of the Government of India for repairing the fortifications on the frontier, and hopes that special attention will be paid to the fortifications at Malakhand and that the forts at Somana, Lochart and Gulistan will be renewed so that the frontier tribes may not be able to take them.

Order for repairing the fortifications on the frontier.

5. The same paper. The Vakil-i-Hind hears that a mission will shortly be sent to Kabul under the orders of Lord Curzon and believes that Lord Curzon will put an end to the troubles caused by the Afridis and thus save the people of India from being burdened by additional taxes on their account.

A proposed mission to Kabul.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

6. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 6th December, complains that the police of his place (Proddatur, Cuddapah) are not working efficiently. The burglars that committed a theft of Rs. 10,000 some time ago have not as yet been arrested. On the 21st of November another instance of burglary took place and considerable property was lost. For some time past many serious crimes have been committed in this locality. The police are engaged more in getting hold of nuisance cases and other trifling offences, while the perpetrators of heinous crimes are successfully evading justice.

Sasilekha, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1898.

Inefficiency of the police in Proddatur (Cuddapah).

7. The Alhami, of the 27th November, says that the Police department requires considerable overhauling. The pay of its subordinate officers such as sub-inspectors, deputy inspectors, constables and chowkidars

Alhami, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1898.

Suggesting certain reforms in the Police department.

is very inadequate. It is useless for Government to expect honesty from low-paid officers who receive Rs. 7 and 5 monthly. It is merely for this reason that respectable men and persons of good moral character do not join this department; for no constable can get any promotion in the police unless he acts against his own conscience. The Police department has become very notorious. It can only be reformed in one way, i.e., by appointing men of high respectability and morality on high salaries. Another defect to which attention is drawn is that the police does not act up to the adage "Prevention is better than cure." In other words, the force does not try to prevent any offence being committed, but it makes inquiry into offences after they have been committed.

(b) Courts.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 3rd, 1898.

Remarks on the acquittal of the accused in a theft case.

8. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 3rd December, referring to a case in which one Thottapaya Moidu was charged before the Stationary Magistrate of Angadipuram with house-breaking and theft at night, says that the magistrate was not justified in having disbelieved the story of the prosecution and the evidence of the prosecution witnesses and acquitted the accused without even examining any witness for the defence. The article while criticising the judgment of the magistrate as well as the conduct of the police who inquired into the matter and charged the accused, remarks that the acquittal of the accused on his plea that the case was a maliciously concocted one, and that too in the face of the strong evidence adduced by the prosecution, was very unjust. The opinion is expressed that if the Sessions Court does not interfere in the matter and do justice, the vagaries of the police will be more and more oppressive to the people.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1898.

Punishment to those who use obscene language on the public roads.

9. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 7th December, writes that a native has been sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for two weeks by the Presidency Magistrate, Black Town, for using obscene language on the public roads, and hopes that blackguards like this man who take pleasure in using such language will be awarded deterrent and exemplary punishment.

(d) Education.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1898.

Suggestions regarding Mappila education.

10. A leader in the Manorama, of the 5th December, notices with pleasure the measures devised by Government for encouraging Mappila education in Malabar and suggests for the consideration of Mr. Parsons, who is reported to have been appointed Special Commissioner in connection with the Mappila education, that when the Mappila Training school is transferred to Malapuram, its standard should be raised from the Malayalam Special Upper Primary grade to the English Lower Secondary grade, as the present standard will not create a taste in them for higher education. This will not put the Government to any additional expenditure, for the services of the students undergoing training might, with advantage, be utilised for teaching the 1st, 2nd and 3rd forms.

(e) Local and Municipal.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Dec. 3rd, 1898.

A remark against the Tanjore municipality.

11. The Jananukulan, of the 3rd December, referring to Suit No. 273 of 1897 in which the Tanjore municipality was directed by the district munsif of Tanjore to pay the plaintiff Rs. 10 his damages as well as his costs, condemns the Tanjore municipality for neglect of duty, and exhorts the people to meet and move that the total cost of the suit should not be met with from the Municipal fund, which is public money, in view to teach the municipality a sharp lesson.

12. The South Indian Mitran, of the 5th December, writes:—There is a Local Fund choultry in the town of Dindigul. It is usually occupied by Government officials who go on circuit; other travellers do not generally resort to it. We suggest the desirability of demanding rent from Government officials for the days during which they halt there, as they draw travelling allowance, and from other travellers who may choose to stay there for more than a prescribed number of days, so that the income derived from these sources will enable the authorities to engage a paid watchman to be in charge of the choultry.

SOUTH INDIAN MITRAN, Dindigul, Dec. 5th, 1898.

Remarks on a Local Fund choultry in Dindigul.

13. The same paper regrets to report that the grievances of the people often expressed in its columns are unheeded by the authorities, and hopes that the chairman of the local municipality will turn his attention to the sanitation of Dindigul, which is very unsatisfactory in spite of the fact that there is a sanitary inspector on a salary of Rs. 50 per mensem.

A suggestion to the Chairman of the Dindigul municipality.

14. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 7th December, invites the attention of the Collector of Malabar to the several petitions which he receives about certain irregularities in connection with the election of municipal councillors. It hopes that the Collector will institute proper inquiries about these and particularly about the one he seems to have received in connection with the election of Mr. Rego as a municipal councillor of Cannanore.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 7th, 1898.

Collector of Malabar to inquire into the irregularities connected with the election of a councillor of the Cannanore municipality.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

15. A leader in the Manorama, of the 5th December, observes that although the Madras Government has spent nearly 3½ crores of rupees in connection with the Survey and Settlement department for 1897–98, yet the condition of the landholders instead of improving has begun to decline. This, it observes, is due to the increase in land revenue and the absence of a permanent settlement.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1898.

Remarks on the Survey and Settlement department.

(h) Railways.

16. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th December, referring to one of the speeches delivered by Lord Curzon in England, in which he dwelt on the necessity of opening more railways in India, observes as follows:—Railways are no doubt beneficial to the people in various ways. The dark side of the picture should not be ignored. As about eight crores of rupees are paid annually to the railway shareholders in England out of the taxes collected from the people of India, in the shape of interest for the capital laid on the railways in this country, as railway materials are to be purchased in England, as several Englishmen earn much by being the directors of Indian Railway Companies and by being employed under such companies as Railway officers, and as English merchants can manage to carry on their trade even in villages if railways are more and more extended, it is evident that England is greatly benefited by Indian railways. It is therefore that capitalists in England continually induce the Government of India to open railways in this country. In these circumstances we suggest to Government the desirability of raising small loans in this country, though at a higher rate of interest, and of extending railways by degrees, so that the interest paid by Government may not go to foreign countries to the detriment of India. This idea will not suggest itself to self-interested Englishmen.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1898.

Reflections on the opening of railways in India.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 10th, 1898.

17. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th December, observes that the action of Mr. Dance in recommending Government to dispense with the service of Mr. Sita Rao Pantulu, Special Deputy Collector, is in the opinion of the public not judicious, inasmuch as the work of acquiring lands will be finished sooner if there are two Deputy Collectors and the various cases can be properly inquired into and justice meted out to the parties.

Special Deputy Collector Sita Rao Pantulu to be retained for acquiring lands for the Calicut-Cannanore Railway.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 10th, 1898.

18. A Cannanore correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th December, states that tappers for sweet toddy are put to great inconvenience owing to the delay in getting the trees numbered by the abkári officials and the consequent interruption to their work and trade. It further states that this irregularity is characteristic of the range of the new local Sub-Inspector Mr. K. V. Kannan Nair.

Grievances of the toddy-drawers of Cannanore.

(k) General.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Dec. 1st, 1898.

19. The India Mitran, of the 1st December, dwelling at length on the dangers of defective inoculation and on the evils of house-to-house search by European soldiers, hopes that Government will adopt the necessary measures for watching that inoculation is not made compulsory, and that persons are carefully examined by Medical officers before they are inoculated, and that Government will avoid engaging the services of soldiers in house-to-house search as their very presence fills the minds of the masses with fear and is the cause of great consternation and disturbance.

A suggestion to Government regarding the plague.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 2nd, 1898.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 2nd December, reports as follows:—It is to be regretted that the Plague officers are guilty of misdemeanour. A certain gentleman who got himself inoculated twice in Bellary was compelled to take a passport at Arkonam by an European Medical officer who said that passengers from Bellary should take passports in spite of their being inoculated. When the said passenger who had arrived at Cuddalore on the 20th ultimo was about to leave that place for Kumbakónam on the 23rd idem, the railway guard at Cuddalore marked the word "Plague" on his ticket in red ink. The poor passenger was surrounded to his great annoyance by the Plague officers on his reaching Kumbakónam. While Government has ruled that those who hold inoculation certificates should be permitted to proceed without being required to take passports, why did the Plague officers in question harass the poor passenger in this manner? Will such a conduct on the part of the Plague officers encourage men to get themselves inoculated? It is therefore earnestly hoped that the Plague officers found guilty of such irregularities will be deservedly punished.

Objectionable procedure on the part of the Plague officers.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Dec. 3rd, 1898.

21. The Vikata Dutan, of the 3rd December, suggests to the Plague Commissioner the desirability of sending some of the Plague officers street after street and asking the people whether they are willing to get themselves inoculated.

A suggestion to the Plague Commissioner.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1898.

22. A correspondent from Proddatur (Cuddapah district) to the Sasilekha, of the 6th December, writes that some fifty persons are now required to present themselves for medical examination before the doctor (apothecary) of this place for having been in contact with plague patients. The apothecary is, therefore, unable to attend to his usual work satisfactorily. The correspondent prays that the Government will appoint another apothecary to attend to the plague measures and cases.

Wanted another apothecary.

23. The Vignanavardhani, of the 15th October, referring to the bribery case against Khanderau in connection with the free advances granted to poor ryots from the famine charity fund in the village of Gonabavi, Rayadurgam taluk, says that the tahsildar recorded the depositions of the editor of the paper and of some poor ryots, and forwarded the records to the Collector, but nothing has come out of it. The money that ought to have been given to the poor ryots has not yet been recovered from the bribe-taker and returned to them. The paper is surprised to see that a bribe case should be left undecided for one whole year, and thinks that Khanderau is therefore a lucky man. It hopes that justice will be done soon.

Bribery case against Khanderau, a village accountant.

VIGNANAVARDHANI, Rayadrug, Oct. 15th, 1898.

24. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 5th December, complains of the frequent transfers of hospital assistants from one district to another without any cause, and also of the hardships to which they are subjected to by their official superiors. The hospital assistants who are employed on plague or other special duty and who have no permanent appointment are, it appears, put to great difficulties (in the matter of drawing their allowances) by the authorities under whom they are employed. The correspondent invites the attention of Government to the necessity of redressing the grievances of the hospital assistants above referred to.

Grievances of hospital assistants.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1898.

25. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 26th November, says that it is complained that a dealer in opium at Muradabad sells the drug as he pleases and asks the authorities of the place to mend matters if what is said is correct.

Complaining that opium-sellers at Muradabad sell it as they please.

MULK-O-MILLAT, Hyderabad, Nov. 26th, 1898.

26. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 17th November, writes on the authority of its correspondent (name not mentioned) that adulterated ghee, which is extensively sold in bazaars, causes different epidemic diseases to break out, and suggests the advisability of passing an enactment prohibiting its sale.

Adulterated ghee.

QASIM-UL-AKHBAR, Bangalore, Nov. 17th, 1898.

27. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th November, regarding the plague at Bangalore observes that those who are fated to die of plague are dying and must under any circumstances die. The public are put to great inconvenience and hardship on account of the plague measures that are now being introduced. These measures instead of doing any good have caused much mischief and bloodshed.

The plague.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Nov. 28th, 1898.

The same paper writes that owing to the rumours that are being circulated in Madras in connection with the plague the public, especially the female section, are panic-stricken. The effect of the unjust orders and improper management of the Government is that of pouring oil on fire.

28. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 1st December, writes that during the times of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock's predecessors, the claims of Muhammadans on high and responsible posts were sadly ignored. It may be justly admitted that during the present administration things have changed and that now Sir Arthur Havelock appreciates the claims of capable Muhammadans. Previously to the present administration the appointments of Sheriff and of Revenue officer of the municipality once monopolized by members of other nationalities have lately been given to Muhammadans. Besides His Excellency has appointed a young educated Muhammadan as an Assistant Superintendent of Police and another highly respectable young man as a Deputy Collector. In consequence of these appointments Sir Arthur has achieved wide popularity during the short period of his administration. The editor winds up his article by requesting His Excellency to nominate a Muhammadan to the Shrievalty on its falling vacant next year and direct the heads of departments to see that the claims of educated Muhammadans are not set aside or overlooked.

Muhammadans in the public service.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Dec. 1st, 1898.

Grant of a holiday to Muhammadans on the birthday of their Prophet.

29. The same paper says that the recent Government order relating to the grant of a holiday to Muhammadans on the birthday of their Prophet cannot be viewed with approval.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1898.

Recent riots in Seringapatam and Ganjám.

30. The Shams-ul-Akhbar of the 5th December. A Mysore correspondent, with reference to an article on the recent riots in Seringapatam and Ganjám, contributed by a Bangalore correspondent, writes thus:—"I do not wish to contradict the statements of your Bangalore correspondent; for he, with a view to court the favour of Government, misrepresents the real events that took place in Seringapatam and Ganjám, when he states that the inhabitants of those places were the aggressors and that Government was quite just in having recourse to volley-firing. Should I attempt to contradict the above statements, I should be considered guilty of harbouring hostile feelings towards Government, and I do not know how I might be dealt with. I was an eye-witness of the sorry spectacle at Ganjám. It is beyond doubt that the people of Ganjám acted very rashly, but it is also true that the Government officials dealt with them very unjustly and cruelly. The procedure adopted by Government now-a-days is no doubt high-handed and merciless. The people are, with reference to the action of Government officials and the reserve police force, repeating this couplet—

"'You (Government) commit injustice and exercise oppression and then complain against people.

"'It is true, sir; times and manners are changed.'"

Plague at Bangalore.

31. The same paper, with reference to the plague at Bangalore, observes that the "unlawful interference" of Government and its tormenting regulations are the direct outcome of the general unrest. Had these measures been not so strict and cruel, people would have had no reason to throw the dead bodies of their relatives and friends into the streets, and into the enclosures of their houses and gardens.

The evil results of plague measures.

32. The same paper, on the same subject of plague, writes that the murder of the Hindupur tahsildar has been the result of the plague measures adopted by Government. These measures instead of checking the disease have been the cause of riots and bloodshed.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1898.

The Shrievalty of Madras.

33. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 8th December, on the authority of the Madras Mail, writes:—"Contrary to our expectations, Mr. W. E. Smith, of the firm of Messrs. W. E. Smith & Co., Chemists and Druggists, has been appointed Sheriff for the next year. It is much to be regretted that the Muhammadan community has been disappointed this time and for this we are very sorry and have serious cause of complaint against the nomination."

Rules regarding the pilgrimage to Hedjaz.

34. The same paper, with reference to the orders issued by Government in regard to the pilgrimage of intending pilgrims to Hedjaz this year, observes that this order will meet with the approval of the enlightened portion of the Muhammadan community and the ignorant mass will take it an encroachment on their religious liberty, and therefore it is suggested that the leading members of the community should use their best endeavours to conciliate their co-religionists and create good-will in their hearts towards Government. The Naier in conclusion suggests that Government relax the rules in favour of those obstinate people who, in spite of the friendly advice of Government, are at all hazards bent upon going on the pilgrimage and issue similar orders to its subordinate officials.

III.—Legislation.

35. A paragraph in the Manorama, of the 5th December, says that a correspondent has written to the paper that a Mappila girl of ten years of age living in Pudukkaya, near Niliswaram, has been in the family way these four or five months and such cases no action can, perhaps, be taken under the Age of Consent Act.

A case in which action should be taken under the Age of Consent Act.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1898.

IV.—Native States.

36. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 5th December, suggests to the authorities the desirability of guarding with sufficient police constables the place between the eastern part of the Asumbu hill and the sea-shore, and thinks that the recent dacoity would not have taken place at Varizur had there been an efficient police establishment at the place referred to.

A suggestion to the Travancore State.

Travancore Abhimani, Nagercoil, Dec. 5th, 1898.

37. Certain correspondents to the Nilalochani, of the 5th December, regret to state that the conduct of the Plague officers is anything but satisfactory, and that they are found guilty of the most serious offences committed with sinister motives, and as an instance in point cite the following case, which they say is rumoured in the district:—When a Nattukottai Chetti accompanied by his wife arrived at Keeranur Kulathur, one of the inspection stations appointed by the State of Pudukkóttai, he was directed by the Medical officer of the place to stay there for ten days as he was infected in the doctor's opinion. The Medical officer in charge of the station promised to let him go in the event of his paying him a certain amount. The poor man, who had no money with him at the time, offered his valuable ring as bribe. The officer refused to accept the gift and demanded ready cash. When the traveller pleaded inability to pay money on the spot and promised to remit the sum demanded on his reaching Pudukkóttai, the inexorable officer suggested to the traveller that he might leave his wife and ring at the station until he could go to Pudukkóttai and return with the promised amount. Though the traveller was stung to the quick at the suggestion, yet finding no other course open to him he ran post-haste to Pudukkóttai, leaving the ring and his wife at the station, brought the money demanded of him and redeemed his wife and the ring thereafter.

The alleged misconduct of a Plague medical officer.

Nilalochani, Negapatam, Dec. 5th, 1898.

The correspondents dwelling at length on the heinousness of the offence described above, earnestly hope that Government will adopt the necessary measures to put a stop to such a disagreeable state of things.

38. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 1st December, does not approve of the recent order of the Mysore Government making segregation entirely optional, and allowing patients to be segregated in their own houses. It says that if in any town or village there should be any large number of attacks, Government will find it impossible to prevent communication between inmates of the affected houses and those of others. It further points out that the people's dread of segregation is entirely due to their not having seen the conveniences of the segregation camps and the care with which the patients are treated there.

The abolition of segregation in Mysore.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Dec. 1st, 1898.

39. A correspondent to the same paper from the village of French Rocks in Mysore complains that plague is making terrible havoc in that village although a great many of the inhabitants have fled away or are camping out. He says that, with the exception of scavengers, there are no men to carry the corpses to the cemetery and the people suffer great hardships on account of the difficulty in getting the necessaries of life. The correspondent invites the immediate attention of the authorities to the matter.

Plague in the village of French Rocks.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Dec. 15th, 1898.

Plague in certain villages in Mysore.

40. Correspondents of the Vrittanta Patrika, of the 15th December, from the villages of Dommasundra and French Rocks in Mysore, complain that plague is making great havoc in those villages and that the authorities have not yet made arrangements to disinfect the houses or to do anything to help the people in tiding over the calamity. The houses that have been abandoned are said to be plundered by thieves, and the correspondents therefore call the attention of the Government to the matter.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Dec. 1st, 1898.

Disapproving of the amalgamation of Malayalam schools with English schools in the Cochin State.

41. A leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 1st December, invites the attention of the Diwan of Cochin to the evil consequences which are likely to follow from amalgamating Malayalam schools with English ones. It observes that as Malayalam is the mother-tongue of the Cochin public, and as it is with the aid of the mother-tongue that boys are able to master a foreign language, care should be taken to ground them thoroughly in their mother-tongue at the very beginning.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Dec. 3rd, 1898.

Complaining of the want of drugs in some of the hospitals in Travancore.

42. An article in the Malayala Manorama, of the 3rd December, invites the attention of the authorities concerned to certain hospitals, in the Travancore State, which are not furnished with medicines and to the great inconvenience the people undergo in consequence. It observes that this state of things is due to the negligence of the officer who is responsible for the distribution of medicines to the various hospitals.

Revenue department in Travancore.

43. A leader in the same issue of the paper observes, with reference to Mr. Rees' review of the Travancore administration, that, in order to have equal justice meted out to the people, the services of superannuated and old-fashioned officials must be dispensed with and the eligibility for the higher posts should not be restricted to any one particular community. It further observes that no permanent improvement can be made in the Revenue department, which is very defective in various points, unless the whole department is thoroughly reorganised.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1898.

Remarks on a circular issued by the Travancore High Court.

44. A leader in the Manorama, of the 5th December, referring to a circular issued by the Travancore High Court for the better investigation of crimes such as murder, dacoity, etc., observes that if the same system is introduced into the British State the investigation of such crimes by the police will be improved and there will be no fear of anybody tampering with the evidence. According to this system the magistrates have to visit the scene of the offence themselves and institute proper inquiries on the spot. It further observes that the magistrates at present do not take the trouble of making any personal investigation in such cases as the High Court often gives judgment without paying any attention whatever to the evidence obtained by the magistrates from local investigation.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1898.

Some objections to the proposed war against the tribes on the north-western frontier.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th December, regrets to hear of the preparation on the part of the Government of India to quell the disturbance caused by the "Mad Fakir" on the north-western frontier near the Himalayas, and asserts that the contemplated war will only involve India in deeper debt and subject the poor Indians to greater sufferings, not to speak of the loss of the precious lives of men and horses and camels that may die in enormous numbers in consequence of cold and other adverse climatic conditions, while the advantages would be few even if the English should gain the day, as the territories to be acquired are hilly and capable of yielding little or nothing and as the tribes to be conquered are rude and uncivilized. The paper concludes with the remark that Government will do well to be content with the present vast Indian Empire, the administration of which is not an easy thing, and to devote all its attention and energy to the amelioration of the condition of its Indian subjects whose grievances are manifold, and that the wars like the proposed one must necessarily prevent Government from adopting such measures as will promote the welfare of its subjects; for Government will have little or no time to turn its attention to the administration of this country when it is engaged in useless and expensive wars.

Partiality on the part of Her Majesty's Ministers.

46. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th December, observes as follows:—It is to be regretted that the Ministers of Her Majesty the Gracious Queen-Empress of India are extremely partial to the people of the islands of Fernandez and St. Vincent in having granted them enormous pecuniary help in consideration of the loss said to be sustained by the people in consequence of a hurricane, while they refused to render the poor Indians any help last year when they were groaning under a great national calamity. All the help that we received was only from the people of England and not from Government. It is an admitted fact that England does not derive from such islands as are above referred to even one-hundredth part of the advantage derived from India. All that we want England to do is nothing but justice and not favour. Does it stand to reason and is it just and proper that poor India should be saddled with the heavy expenses of the recent frontier war which was undertaken in view to prevent the Russians from prevailing upon the tribes inhabiting the territories on the north-western frontier to become their allies? While the Ministers are too ready to favour the European population of the islands in question and render them voluntary aid, they are extremely reluctant to do us even bare justice. The secret is that the Ministers are afraid that the people of those islands would throw off England's yoke and assert their independence, whereas they know too well that the Indians are mute creatures.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1898.

Remarks on the late Famine Commission.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th December, writes as follows:—There is no Government on the face of the earth so merciful, wise and powerful as the British Government. It is really strange that the subjects of such an excellent Government are frequently worried by famine. How is it that the countries of Europe do not suffer from famine so often as India? At the time when Lord Elgin appointed a Famine Commission last year, the people thought that the Commission would inquire into the real causes of the frequent occurrence of famine in India and suggest preventive measures. We now understand that the object of the Commission was quite different. Government is of opinion that to ward off famine is as impossible as to prevent the occurrence of any phenomenon in nature, that the people of this country have no other alternative than to groan under the effects of famine, and that the only course open to Government is to render the famine-stricken people the necessary pecuniary aid out of the amount of taxes collected from the people themselves. What a strange opinion this is! Nothing will induce us to agree to this opinion. We are morally certain that famine will entirely disappear from the land if Government rules this country like other countries, treating the people with justice, minimising the taxes levied on them, giving the representatives of the people due share in the administration of the country and adopting the necessary measures to favour the progress of indigenous trade and commerce, by preventing the interference of foreigners. Had the Famine Commission been appointed for concerting such measures it would have been really beneficial. We cannot resist the conviction that the expense incurred in connection with the recent Commission which was appointed merely to revise the existing Famine Code is a waste, and that the work done by the said Commission could have been done by any one of the Secretaries to Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 9th, 1898.

48. The Andhraprakasika, of the 3rd December, descanting on the poverty-stricken condition of most of the ryots in India, says that their poverty is due to the following causes :—

Poverty in India.

(1) The land-tax being increased almost 50 per cent. every 30 years.

(2) The ryots being ousted from their fields in default of payment.

(3) The ryot having to pay the tax whether there be a crop or not. He is consequently driven to the money-lender, who allows the principal sum advanced to increase immensely by adding compound interest to it and the debt continues unpaid for many generations and if anything remains of the produce after the payment of the taxes, it is carried away by the creditor.

The paper says that it is possible only for the Government to rescue the cultivator from such a condition and suggests the following measures :—

(1) The constant increase of taxes under the plea of settlement should be discontinued. This measure will have a wholesome influence on the ryot to improve the fertility of his lands diligently.

(2) The irrigation channels feeding the fields should be kept always in good order.

(3) The Government should relieve the ryot from the trouble and turmoil caused by the subordinate revenue officials and allow him fair time to enable him to strike an advantageous bargain for the sale of his produce before paying taxes.

(4) A few agricultural banks should be established in certain chosen localities. Much good will result to the ryots who may borrow from those banks when necessary and pay back in due time.

If the British Government shrinks from taking such steps, it shall have to spend lakhs, nay crores, of rupees, whenever famine makes its dreadful appearance, to relieve the sufferings of the dying thousands. If the amount it may have to spend on a single occasion, in that way, is expended on channel works, etc., the Government, it says, will not be under the necessity of having to spend even a pie on droughts.

[Issued 24th December 1898.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 24 OF 1898.

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS EXAMINED BY THE TRANSLATORS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

FOR THE

Fortnight ending 31st December 1898.

CONTENTS.

| I.—Foreign Politics. | Page |
|---|---|
| The alleged renewal of troubles on the frontier .. .. | 357 |
| The opening of a college at Khartoum .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| II.—Home Administration. | |
| (a) Police— | |
| A remark on the Police officers .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Police Assistant Superintendents .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The high-handedness alleged to be practised by the police .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| (b) Courts— | |
| Remarks on the present system of appointing jurors .. | 358 |
| Acting against the Age of Consent Act .. .. .. | ib. |
| Two European doctors charged with kicking a native servant .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Encroachment on the religious rites by a Judge .. | ib. |
| (c) Jails— | |
| Nil. | |
| (d) Education— | |
| A suggestion to the Madras University .. .. .. | ib. |
| Disapproving of the appointment of Mr. Parsons as a Commissioner to concert measures for Mappila education .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Remarks upon the Government order passed in connection with the late Mappila riots at Manjéri .. .. .. | 359 |
| Noting that in the recent Matriculation and F.A. examinations held at Kóttayam there were only very few question papers in some of the covers .. .. | ib. |
| (e) Local and Municipal— | |
| A complaint against the union of Tiruchengódu .. | ib. |
| Complaints about the tax-collectors of the Calicut municipality and some suggestions to avoid those evils .. | ib. |
| Approving of the election of Mr. A. Chathu as Municipal Secretary of the Tellicherry municipality .. .. | 360 |
| Bombay municipality and the plague .. .. .. | ib. |
| (f) Land Revenue and Settlement— | |
| Nil. | |
| (g) Forests— | |
| Coimbatore south forest grievances .. .. .. | ib. |
| (h) Railways— | |
| A suggestion to the Railway authorities about Kumbakónam railway station .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The inconvenience of the passengers on account of the rude behaviour of the Calicut railway station orderly. | ib. |
| (i) Public Works— | |
| Necessity to attend to the repair of the tank in Vilayampattu, Tiruvannámalai taluk .. .. .. .. | ib. |

| II.—Home Administration—cont. | Page |
|---|---|
| (j) Salt and Abkári— | |
| Nil. | |
| (k) General— | |
| Remarks on European soldiers in India .. .. .. | 360 |
| A remark on the Agricultural College at Saidapet .. | 361 |
| A remark on the reply to the Honourable Mr. Subba Rao Pantulu's query at the last meeting of the Legislative Council about Messrs. Hogg and Francis of the 4th Hussars, Secunderabad division .. .. .. | ib. |
| A suggestion to the Tramway authorities .. .. | ib. |
| A complaint against a clerk of the office of the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Reflections on the question put by the Honourable Mr. P. Ratnasabapathy Pillai at the last meeting of the Legislative Council about the rupees coined before 1840 .. | ib. |
| Calling the attention of the authorities to the practice of gambling carried on near the Mahé ferry .. .. | 362 |
| The vagaries of the vagabonds of Calicut and how to stop the same .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Disapproving of the proposed removal of the Post office of Calicut from its present place .. .. .. | ib. |
| Landlords and land-taxes .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Interpellations in the local Legislative Council .. .. | ib. |
| III.—Legislation. | |
| A protest against the passing of the Bill for the compulsory registration of births and deaths in villages .. .. | 363 |
| Remarks on the Bill for the compulsory registration of births and deaths in villages .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The inconvenience the people are subject to owing to the want of a permanent Sub-Judge at Cochin .. .. . | ib. |
| IV.—Native States. | |
| Certain grievances of some of the subjects of the State of Travancore .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 364 |
| The way in which inoculation should be carried on in Travancore State .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Drawing the attention of the Diwan of Cochin to the want of some canals for the use of the cultivators .. .. | ib. |
| Some suggestions regarding the recent circular of the Travancore High Court for the better investigation of crimes .. | ib. |
| V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People. | |
| Nil. | |
| VI.—Miscellaneous. | |
| Certain suggestions to Government in regard to the improvement of the condition of the peasants .. .. .. | 365 |
| A suggestion to Government regarding the proceedings of the local Legislative Council .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| A suggestion to Government regarding the female coolies that are taken to Singapore, Penang and other places .. | ib. |
| A curious death .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| Two Nairs imitating inoculating officers and getting money from the people .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | ib. |
| The alleged seditious conduct of a daffadar and the police .. | 366 |

| No. | Names of newspapers. | Place of publication. | Number of copies ordinarily issued. | Dates of papers received and examined during the fortnight. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | TAMIL. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 1 | "Viveka Chintamani" .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 800 | Nov. 1898. |
| | Bi-monthly. | | | |
| 2 | "Satya Vartamani" .. .. | Pasumalai .. .. .. | 600 | 15th Dec. 1898, |
| 3 | "Trichi Nesan" .. .. .. | Trichinopoly .. .. | .. | 15th " " |
| 4 | "Kalanidhi" .. .. .. .. | Coimbatore .. .. | 150 | 15th " " |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 5 | "South Indian Mitran" .. .. | Dindigul .. .. .. | 600 | 15th and 25th Dec. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 6 | "Vettikkodiyon" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 200 | 17th and 24th Dec. 1898. |
| 7 | "Vikata Dutan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 1,100 | 17th Dec. 1898. |
| 8 | "Arya Jana Priyan" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 500 | 1st, 16th and 24th Dec. 1898. |
| 9 | "Lokopakari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 2,000 | 16th and 23rd Dec. 1898. |
| 10 | "Agnikulathithan" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 12th, 20th and 27th Dec. 1898. |
| 11 | "Prapanja Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 2,000 | 16th and 23rd Dec. 1898. |
| 12 | "Desabhimani" .. .. .. | Cuddalore .. .. .. | 320 | 14th Dec. 1898. |
| 13 | "Nilalochani" .. .. .. | Negapatam .. .. | 250 | 12th and 19th Dec. 1898. |
| 14 | "Sajjana Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. | 400 | 12th, 19th and 26th Dec. 1898. |
| 15 | "Jananukulan" .. .. .. | Tanjore .. .. .. | 200 | 17th and 24th Dec. 1898. |
| 16 | "India Mitran" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 100 | 8th, 15th and 22nd Dec. 1898. |
| 17 | "Viveka Thivakaran" .. .. | Tiruchengódu .. .. | 400 | 4th and 18th Dec. 1898. |
| 18 | "Travancore Abhimani" .. .. | Nagercoil .. .. .. | 2,600 | 12th, 19th and 26th Dec. 1898. |
| 19 | "Varavarthamani" .. .. .. | Pollachi .. .. .. | 400 | 10th, 17th " 24th " " |
| | Tri-weekly. | | | |
| 20 | "Swadesamitran" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 900 | 14th, 16th, 19th, 21st, 26th and 28th Dec. 1898. |
| | TELUGU. | | | |
| | Monthly. | | | |
| 21 | "Dheeranjani" .. .. .. | Atmakur .. .. .. | 100 | 1st Dec. 1898. |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 22 | "Kistna News" .. .. .. | Bezwada .. .. .. | Not known. | 13th and 20th Dec. 1898. |
| 23 | "Sanmarga Bodhini" .. .. | Bellary .. .. .. | 350 | 17th " 24th " " |
| | Bi-weekly. | | | |
| 24 | "Andhraprakasika" .. .. .. | Madras .. .. .. | 600 | 14th, 17th, 21st and 24th Dec. 1898. |
| 25 | "Sasilekha" .. .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 470 | 16th, 20th, 23rd " 27th " " |
| | CANARESE. | | | |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 26 | "Vrittanta Patrika" .. .. | Mysore .. .. .. | 3,000 | 22nd and 29th Dec. 1898. |
| 27 | "Vrittanta Chintamani" .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 800 | 14th " 21st " " |
| | MALAYALAM. | | | |
| | Tri-monthly. | | | |
| 28 | "Malayali" .. .. .. .. | Tangasseri .. .. | 670 | 15th Dec. 1898. |
| 29 | "Kerala Chandrika" .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 840 | 13th " " |
| 30 | "Nasrani Dipika" .. .. .. | Mannanam .. .. | 500 | 10th and 20th Dec. 1898. |
| 31 | "Kerala Mitram" .. .. .. | Cochin .. .. .. | 255 | 11th " 21st " " |
| | Weekly. | | | |
| 32 | "Malayala Manorama" .. .. | Kóttayam .. .. | 1,000 | 10th, 17th and 24th Dec. 1898. |
| 33 | "Manorama" .. .. .. | Calicut .. .. .. | 550 | 12th, 19th " 26th " " |
| 34 | "Kerala Sanchari" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 700 | 14th and 21st Dec. 1898. |
| 35 | "Kerala Patrika" .. .. .. | Do. .. .. .. | 725 | 17th " 24th " " |
| | HINDUSTANI. | | | |
| 36 | "Shams-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 800 | 19th and 26th Dec. 1898. |
| 37 | "Jaridah-i-Rozgar" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. .. | 600 | 10th " 17th " " |
| 38 | "Tilism-i-Hairat" .. .. .. | Triplicane, Madras .. | 50 | 5th Dec. 1898. |
| 39 | "Alhami" .. .. .. .. | Ice House Road, Madras .. | 200 | 11th and 21st Dec. 1898. |
| 40 | "Mukhbir-i-Dakhan" .. .. .. | Rayapet, Madras .. | 550 | 21st Dec. 1898. |
| 41 | "Naier-i-Asifi" .. .. .. | Mylapore, Madras .. | .. | 15th and 22nd Dec. 1898. |
| 42 | "Qasim-ul-Akhbar" .. .. .. | Bangalore .. .. .. | 550 | 28th Nov. and 1st Dec. 1898. |
| 43 | "Mulk-o-Millat" .. .. .. | Hyderabad .. .. | 150 | 10th Dec. 1898. |

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Mulk-o-Millat, of the 10th December, with reference to the alleged renewal of troubles on the frontier, says that it behoves Lord Curzon to hand over the management of the districts which were included in India during the time of Maharaja Ranjit Sing, or to take possession of the Khyber Pass. Unless this be done, the editor is of opinion that fighting about the pass will never cease.

Mulk-o-Millat, Hyderabad, Dec. 10th, 1898.

The alleged renewal of troubles on the frontier.

2. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 21st December, with reference to the rumour of the opening of a college at Khartoum cabled by "Reuter," observes that the British are mere guests in Egypt and the attempt to establish their supremacy there will be fruitless. The hoisting of the British flag along with the Egyptian standard after the victory at Khartoum was a mere sign of their victory, but no proof of their permanent occupation of Egypt. The establishment of a college by the British at Khartoum, based on mere political motives, will not apparently be welcomed by the Egyptians.

Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1898.

The opening of a college at Khartoum.

II.—Home Administration.

(a) Police.

3. The Jananukulan, of the 24th December, referring to a number of cases in which the Police officers were found guilty of tormenting the accused in view to compel them to say they were guilty of certain offences, observes with deep regret that the Police officers do not serve the purpose for which they are intended, and hopes that Government will spare no pains in reforming the Police department ere long.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Dec. 24th, 1898.

A remark on the Police officers.

4. The Sasilekha, of the 16th December, complains that appointments of Assistant Superintendents of Police are conferred on European youths who are incapable of passing higher examinations in the Civil and Military departments, and that in the case of natives, even though learned and possessing robust physique, this favour is denied them. Of late, the Governor graciously declared to appoint native gentlemen also as Assistant Superintendents if they passed the examinations prescribed. Accordingly three Brahmins and one Eurasian sent in their applications. The Police Inspector took their measurements and found two of them satisfying the conditions. They were required to present themselves before the doctor for medical examination on the 20th of November. The very same day the Chief Secretary to the Government wrote to him that the Government did not want to examine them. Thus were the four applicants somehow got rid of. It hears that two European youths are invited for service and that they alone are being examined. This is all very surprising, says the paper, and it remarks that such a course of conduct does not become the Government. There is no doubt, it says, that the two young men will pass the examination and will get appointed as Assistant Superintendents of Police. What is the necessity of any examination for them asks the paper. Their white skin, and the fact of their being connected with some influential European officers as relatives or friends, are sufficient recommendations for such appointments. The paper concludes that though the Government is quite willing to give the people higher appointments, misfortune is standing in their way.

Sasilekha, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1898.

Police Assistant Superintendents.

5. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 1st December, bitterly complains against the high-handed actions of the police generally, and mentions as a further proof of this, a case in which the police at Bombay caused the Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, Dec. 1st, 1898.

The high-handedness alleged to be practised by the police.

death of an accused party while extorting confession and threw the body on the road to escape being charged for the murder. The culprits—a jamadar and another officer—have, however, been arrested and placed in custody. The editor asks the authorities to inflict exemplary punishment on them.

(b) Courts.

PRAPANJA MITRAN, Madras, Dec. 23rd, 1898.

Remarks on the present system of appointing jurors.

6. The Prapanja Mitran, of the 23rd December, states as follows:—It is to be regretted that those who are appointed jurors in the mofussil are, as a rule, incompetent to discharge the onerous duty that devolves on them, inasmuch as the list of men qualified to sit as jurors is now being prepared by the karnam and other village officers under the orders of the tahsildar. Miscarriage of justice is the inevitable result of this system. It is desirable that the list of men competent to serve as jurors should be prepared either by the District Court or by the Collector's office in future. It is hoped that the authorities will bestow the necessary attention on this subject.

ALHAMI, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1898.

Acting against the Age of Consent Act.

7. The Alhami, of the 11th December, approves of the sentence of imprisonment awarded by the Calcutta High Court to the culprit who by cohabitation with his young wife, who was under the age of consent, caused her death and thinks that the sentence should have been still more severe and that the parents of the deceased should have also been punished for allowing the crime.

MUKHBIR-I-DAKHAN, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1898.

Two European doctors charged with kicking a native servant.

8. The Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of the 21st December, writes that Drs. Flening and Copcutt, attached to the Military Station Hospital at Calcutta, were charged with kicking their native servant and injuring his left leg, and that notwithstanding the evidence of the Alipur Police Hospital doctor as to the serious nature of the injury, it is reported that the case will be compromised by the payment of a couple of rupees to the injured person. With reference to the above the Mukhbir remarks that this is a non-compoundable offence and that the accused should either be punished or acquitted. If the case be allowed to be compromised by the payment of a rupee or two to the poor servant, European gentlemen will continue the practice of assaulting natives. It is therefore advisable that justice should be done and exemplary punishment inflicted on the accused.

NAIER-I-ASIFI, Madras, Dec. 22nd, 1898.

Encroachment on the religious rites by a Judge.

9. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 22nd December, with reference to the flat refusal of the Sessions Judge of Dacca to allow an interval of five minutes to a Muhammadan juror to say his prayers, observes that this encroachment on religious rites by the Judge was condemnable. It is incumbent on the Bengal Government to make a thorough inquiry into the affair and if no proper notice be taken of the above matter, it will wound the feelings of Muhammadans very much.

(d) Education.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Dec. 12th, 1898.

A suggestion to the Madras University.

10. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 12th December, suggests to the authorities the desirability of holding the Matriculation and F.A. examinations of the Madras University at Nagercoil, in consideration of the fact that the candidates who have to go from South Travancore to Trivandrum to attend the said examinations are put to great inconvenience owing to want of sufficient accommodation at Trivandrum.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1898.

Disapproving of the appointment of Mr. Parsons as a Commissioner to concert measures for Mappila education.

11. A correspondent to the Manorama, of the 12th December, states as follows, with reference to the commission appointed for concerting measures for Mappila education:—It is indeed surprising to hear that Mr. Parsons is appointed a Commissioner to concert measures for Mappila education.

Although the Government has spent many lakhs of rupees in connection with Mappila education, still no results to any appreciable extent are forthcoming; such being the case the appointment of an officer on such a high salary is unnecessary. The opinion of the Director of Public Instruction and of Mr. Dance, Collector of Malabar, who have much experience in these matters, is already before the Government. When there is no money in the country to meet the special wants of the people in this time of famine and pestilence, it is highly desirable that such large and unnecessary expense should be avoided. If any measures are to be taken, they can easily be managed by the Collector or the Sub-Collector of Malappuram while they are on circuit. If this large amount of money is spent so as to mitigate the evils of poverty among the Mappilas, then there will be at least some good. Such being the case the appointment of this commission is an unnecessary expense.

The editor is also of the same opinion.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 17th, 1896.

Remarks upon the Government order passed in connection with the late Mappila riots at Manjéri.

12. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 17th December, states, with reference to the Government order passed in connection with the late Mappila riots at Manjéri, that the cause of these riots is the backward state of education among the Mappilas and the hardships they are made to suffer by their jenmies. It hopes that the Government will take steps to remedy these evils.

Nasrani Dipika, Mannanam, Dec. 20th, 1896.

Noting that in the recent Matriculation and F.A. examinations held at Kóttayam there were only very few question papers in some of the covers.

13. A paragraph in the Nasrani Dipika, of the 20th December, states that during the recent Matriculation and F.A. examinations held at the Kóttayam C.M.S. College, when the cover containing the Geometry question papers was opened only four or five Geometry papers were found in it and the remaining papers were on another subject and consequently the questions in Geometry had to be dictated to the candidates.

(e) Local and Municipal.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Dec. 14th, 1896.

A complaint against the union of Tiruchengódu.

14. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 14th December, accuses the present chairman of the union of Tiruchengódu of indifference and neglect of duty, and regrets to note that sanitation in particular is not properly attended to, in spite of the fact that the chairman spared no pains in enhancing the taxes paid by the inhabitants.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 24th, 1896.

Complaints about the tax-collectors of the Calicut municipality and some suggestions to avoid those evils.

15. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 24th December, while noticing with pleasure some of the changes which the Municipal Secretary of Calicut has made in the Municipal office, observes that there are some points to which the secretary has not directed his attention. The Menons who collect the municipal taxes give the people a good deal of trouble. Notices informing tax-payers that they are to pay their taxes within fifteen days from the date of the notice are served only one or two days before the final date. As these are served during the absence of the male members of the house, the fact is very often not brought to the notice of the head of the house. To rich persons a small fine would not matter much; but with the poor people it is different and they have to suffer a good deal. These frauds can be detected only by the authorities concerned and if they make it a point to inspect how many bills have been served by each Menon daily, and if they will enforce that the date of serving the bill should be entered in it, there will be no cause of complaint by the people. Further, some of the Menons take more money than is properly due from some persons and give receipt for only the amount due. It hopes that the authorities concerned will take proper measures to remedy those evils.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 21st, 1898.

16. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st December, with reference to the election of Mr. A. Chathu as Municipal Secretary of the Tellicherry municipality, observes that the election of Mr. Chathu is on the whole a judicious and well advised one. The Collector and the Sub-Collector have strongly recommended Mr. Chathu to Government, and it hopes that the Government will not raise any objection to this appointment as the Tellicherry municipality is at present sorely in need of an able and energetic secretary.

Approving of the election of Mr. A. Chathu as Municipal Secretary of the Tellicherry municipality.

ALWAMI, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1898.

17. The Alhami, of the 11th December, says that the Bombay municipality having spent its funds in exterminating the plague is now hard-pressed for money and suggests to the Government of India that it should help the municipality in the same way as European Governments do for defraying the charges incurred on account of epidemic diseases in Europe.

Bombay municipality and the plague.

(g) Forests.

VARAVARTHAMANI, Pollachi, Dec. 17th, 1898.

18. The Varavarthamani, of the 17th December, regrets to note that the elephants of the south forest in the district of Coimbatore devastate the crops on the adjacent patta lands and prove dangerous to the lives of the labourers working in the neighbouring fields, and hopes that the authorities will adopt the necessary measures to redress the grievances of the people.

Coimbatore south forest grievances.

(h) Railways.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Dec. 22nd, 1898.

19. A correspondent to the India Mitran, of the 22nd December, complains of the difficulties and inconveniences the third-class passengers are put to owing to want of sufficient accommodation at the Kumbakónam railway station premises, and hopes that the authorities will bestow the necessary attention on the subject.

A suggestion to the Railway authorities about Kumbakónam railway station.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 17th, 1898.

20. A paragraph in the Kerala Patrika, of the 17th December, invites the attention of the authorities concerned to the great trouble and inconvenience to which the passengers are exposed on account of the rude behaviour and other misdemeanours of the Calicut railway station orderly, Kanaran Nair, and it hopes that the authorities concerned will see to this and transfer Kanaran Nair to some other place.

The inconvenience of the passengers on account of the rude behaviour of the Calicut railway station orderly.

(i) Public Works.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Dec. 14th, 1898.

21. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 14th December, regrets to observe that the tank in the village of Vilayampattu, Chengam division, Tiruvannámalai taluk, does not serve the purpose for which it is intended as the two sluices attached to it are out of order and cannot retain sufficient quantity of water to enable the poor villagers to carry on their agricultural operations, and that the absence of good roads between the said village and the neighbouring villages subjects the inhabitants to inconveniences and difficulties which can be better imagined than described, particularly during the rainy season.

Necessity to attend to the repair of the tank in Vilayampattu, Tiruvannámalai taluk.

(k) General.

INDIA MITRAN, Tiruvádi, Dec. 15th, 1898.

22. The India Mitran, of the 15th December, writes:—European soldiers in India are not deservedly punished by Judges for their atrocities; their misdemeanour is more or less due to the view taken by the English papers of the natives of India. It is no wonder that European soldiers as well as English papers look down upon the natives of this country, as Sir George Hamilton himself has remarked that India is peopled by savages,

Remarks on European soldiers in India.

It is earnestly hoped that the next Viceroy, who is reported to be an "expert in politics," will redress the grievances of the people and adopt such measures as will promote the happiness of his subjects.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1898.

23. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th December, says:—Although eight lakhs of rupees have been spent in connection with the Agricultural College at Saidapet since its establishment, how are the agricultural classes of the community benefited thereby? It is only very few of the students that received their education in the said college that are employed as managers of coffee plantations, while the others are employed in places where they have little or no occasion to make use of their knowledge of agriculture. Unless Government adopts the necessary measures to point out to the agricultural classes the striking difference between the agricultural operations conducted on scientific basis and those carried on otherwise, the peasants are not likely to improve and the money spent on the Agricultural College is a waste.

A remark on the Agricultural College at Saidapet.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Dec. 17th, 1898.

24. The Vikata Dutan, of the 17th December, referring to the reply made by the Honourable Mr. Forbes to the Honourable Mr. Subba Rao Pantulu's query at the last meeting of the Legislative Council about the conduct of Messrs. Hogg and Francis of the 4th Hussars, Secunderabad division, that Government had no information on the subject and that a report would be called for, observes as follows:—It is surprising to hear that Government is not aware of the disturbance in question although it took place 7 or 8 months ago. It is not complimentary to Government to plead ignorance of such a strange incident as the one referred to by the Hon'ble Native Member. It is hoped that Government will be more diligent in such matters for the proper administration of justice, as the atrocities of soldiers are heard of almost everywhere.

A remark on the reply to the Honourable Mr. Subba Rao Pantulu's query at the last meeting of the Legislative Council about Messrs. Hogg and Francis of the 4th Hussars, Secunderabad division.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Dec. 24th, 1898.

25. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 24th December, finds fault with the Tramway authorities for their allowing passengers to stand on the footboards attached to the cars, which is dangerous, and hopes that the authorities will not allow men to get into the cars when there is no room in them, and will arrange to run separate cars exclusively for the use of women.

A suggestion to the Tramway authorities.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Dec. 24th, 1898.

26. The Jananukulan, of the 24th December, reports that one Davarajachariyar, who is employed as a clerk in the office of the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi, is a member of a company named the "Mathanthara Elakkoottoo Cheettoo Company" (monthly auction joint stock company), and that the said clerk and one Mr. Sadasiva Tiruvadiar, the president of the company, are at variance with each other in connection with an auction. The paper thinks that the connection of the said clerk with the company is against the rules regulating the personal conduct of public servants, and concludes with the remark that the conduct of the clerk in question is highly suspicious, as he pays the company a monthly subscription of Rs. 25 while his monthly salary is only Rs. 15. The paper hopes that the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi will bestow the necessary attention on the subject and do the needful.

A complaint against a clerk of the office of the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 28th, 1898.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th December, referring to the question put by the Honourable Mr. P. Ratnasabapathy Pillai at the last meeting of the Legislative Council whether the rupees coined before 1840 are rejected in the railway booking offices and to the reply given by the Honourable Mr. Stokes, writes as follows:—There is little or no use in merely putting a question of this kind. Some of the rupees tendered to the railway station-masters by the poor villagers are likely to be the rupees coined before 1840, inasmuch as they have currency only in the mofussil and have no occasion to reach the Paper Currency office in Madras. The difficulty and disappointment the poor villagers are put to when the coins tendered by them are rejected by the Railway authorities can be better imagined than described. It is hoped that Government will issue orders that station-masters, bank agents and other officers should receive the rupees coined before 1840 as well as light and counterfeit coins and remit them to the Paper Currency office, instead of directing such authorities to return them to the parties who are not responsible for the technical defect noticed in them, so that in the course of a few years all objectionable coins will cease to exist. It is hoped that Honourable Members of the Legislative Council will see this suggestion carried out at the next meeting of the Council.

Reflections on the question put by the Honourable Mr. P. Ratnasabapathy Pillai at the last meeting of the Legislative Council about the rupees coined before 1840.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Dec. 14th, 1898.

Calling the attention of the authorities to the practice of gambling carried on near the Mahé ferry.

28. A Mahé correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 14th December, invites the attention of the authorities concerned to the great inconvenience and dangers which the passers-by are subject to, owing to the vagabonds of the place carrying on gambling on the public road near the Mahé ferry. He states that no respectable persons are allowed to pass by unmolested and the petty thefts which now and then take place in the vicinity are, he states, due to the same cause.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 17th, 1898.

The vagaries of the vagabonds of Calicut and how to stop the same.

29. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 17th December, states that it is a well-known fact that Calicut is infested with vagabonds of all description who of late have become imperious and overbearing owing to negligence of the local sub-magistrates. After Mr. Chandan was posted thither as sub-magistrate, the persecution of respectable men and women by these vagabonds has decreased to a considerable extent owing to the severe punishment which he metes out to them. Consequently it is highly desirable that Mr. Chandan should be made to continue at Calicut for some time longer, and the correspondent hopes that the Collector will see to this.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 24th, 1898.

Disapproving of the proposed removal of the Post office of Calicut from its present place.

30. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 24th December, observes that it will be a source of great trouble to the people to remove the Post office of Calicut from its present place to another building near the Telegraph office. It appears the inhabitants of the place have petitioned the authorities to have the Post office removed to a building near the railway station. It is highly desirable that the authorities concerned will consider the matter and do the needful.

Alhami, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1898.

Landlords and land-taxes.

31. The Alhami, of the 11th December, thinks that the reason why landlords get involved in pecuniary difficulties is that Government collects land-tax in cash and not in kind. The editor suggests the advisability of collecting the taxes in kind instead of in cash as hitherto.

Naier-i-Asifi, Madras, Dec. 22nd, 1898.

Interpellations in the local Legislative Council.

32. The Naier-i-Asifi, of the 22nd December, says that the reply of Government to the question put by the Muhammadan member of the local Legislative Council as to the reform of the Madrasa-i-Azam is far from satisfactory. The above question has been before Government for several years. It is a matter for regret that neither the Director of Public Instruction nor the Government has paid any attention to this important question. It is not clear why Government is so slow in redressing the grievances of Muhammadans. For four years the question of the transfer of the building of the Madrasa has been under consideration. Now that Dr. Duncan has submitted his proposals, it is hoped that Government will consider them at an early date and put them into practical shape. The Naier further says that Government has given the same stereotyped answer to the question relating to the paucity of Muhammadans in the Revenue department of the public service, and remarks that young Muhammadan graduates should be given every encouragement by Government. Most of them who are unsupported will not get promotion unless somebody helps them. Unless Government promotes educated Muhammadans it will be clear that it is afraid of the other section of its subjects who predominate in the public service.

III.—Legislation.

33. The Prapanja Mitran, of the 23rd December, objects to the passing of the Bill for the compulsory registration of births and deaths in villages on the ground that the contemplated Act is likely to give room to vexatious prosecutions and subject the poor and ignorant villagers to inconvenience and hardship, and suggests the desirability of appointing officers who should be directed to go from village to village and record births and deaths after due inquiry, instead of making it compulsory on the part of the inhabitants to report the occurrence of births and deaths in their houses.

Prapanja Mitran, Madras, Dec. 23rd, 1898.

A protest against the passing of the Bill for the compulsory registration of births and deaths in villages.

34. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th December, dilating on the advantages of registration of births and deaths in villages, agrees with the Honourable Mr. Sankara Subbier in thinking that Government and not the villagers is to be blamed for the unsatisfactory manner in which the register of births and deaths in villages has hitherto been kept. The paper observes that the villagers who are totally ignorant of law should not be expected to go to the registrar of births and deaths and get occurrences of death recorded in their registers at the time of mourning, and contradicts the statement made by the Honourable Mr. Ratnasabapathy Pillai that the villagers are sufficiently enlightened to appreciate the proposed measure in regard to the compulsory registration of births and deaths in villages, by referring to a case in which an European of Madras who pleaded ignorance of law was fined for his not having reported a birth in his house. The paper further observes that while the Europeans living in the Presidency town plead ignorance of law, it does not stand to reason that the poor and illiterate villagers should be taken to task for such ignorance. The paper concludes with the remark that registration of births and deaths in villages should not be made compulsory on the part of the villagers, and that the village officers should be directed to make the necessary enquiry and report such occurrences to the officers appointed for the purpose.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Dec. 24th, 1898.

Remarks on the Bill for the compulsory registration of births and deaths in villages.

35. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st December, referring to the Sub-Court of Cochin, states as follows:—In accordance with the order of the Government to appoint a Deputy Collector with the powers of a First-class Magistrate and Sub-Judge in place of a permanent Sub-Judge at Cochin, the seven amsams of Manappuram had to be placed under the jurisdiction of the Palghat Sub-Judge. The inconvenience and troubles to which the people are subject owing to this arrangement are very great. The people living at Manappuram have to come all the way to Palghat. As the Sub-Judge and the Deputy Collector are one and the same person, he is not able to do justice to his work as Sub-Judge. As a Revenue officer he has to be out on circuit at least for six months in the year and consequently his time to look into matters judicial is indeed very limited. Another source of trouble is the constant transfer of Deputy Collectors. When a new man comes, he has to be invested with the powers of a Sub-Judge by the Government which takes some time. Sometimes the Deputy Collector of Wynaad is placed in charge of Cochin also and he can find no time to perform his duties satisfactorily, and the consequence is the people suffer great hardships. It appears that the

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Dec. 21st, 1898.

The inconvenience the people are subject to owing to the want of a permanent Sub-Judge at Cochin.

people of Cochin have resolved to send a petition to Government requesting the Government to appoint a permanent Sub-Judge for Cochin, and to bring the seven amsams of Manappuram under his jurisdiction and to give to the sheristadar the powers of a deputy tahsildar. It hopes that the Government will approve of this and comply with the request of the people.

IV.—Native States.

Travancore Abhimani, Nagercoil, Dec. 19th, 1898.

Certain grievances of some of the subjects of the State of Travancore.

36. The inhabitants of certain villages in the State of Travancore regret to observe as follows in the Travancore Abhimani of the 19th December:—Although we are the subjects of the State of Travancore, we do not enjoy the privileges which the other subjects of the State enjoy. As we are left unguarded on the north owing to the absence of proper boundaries on that side separating the territories occupied by us from those belonging to the British subjects, we are harassed by the Maravars and other marauders, and are obliged to pay excise duty as British subjects for tobacco and other articles. We therefore pray that the Maharaja will redress our grievances ere long.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, Dec. 10th, 1898.

The way in which inoculation should be carried on in Travancore State.

37. A paragraph in the Malayala Manorama, of the 10th December, points out how inoculation should be carried on in the Travancore State, so as not to cause any disturbance among the people. The Government should, it states, select some trustworthy hospital assistants and compounders and place them under a medical officer who enjoys the confidence of both the public and the Government. They should then go from place to place and with the assistance of the local authorities try to impress upon the minds of the people the advantages of inoculation by a short speech and then inoculate those who are willing to undergo the operation.

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, Dec. 21st, 1898.

Drawing the attention of the Diwan of Cochin to the want of some canals for the use of the cultivators.

38. A leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 21st December, while referring to the good and beneficial work which Mr. Rajagopalachari, Diwan of Cochin, has done during the last two years, invites his attention to the following grievance of the people of Cochin:—The cultivators of Chellanum, Andikatavu, Kandikatavu, etc., suffer much owing to the absence of a canal to carry off the surplus water from the fields. A petition, to have a canal opened, has been presented to the Government by the cultivators of the aforesaid places and the Government had sanctioned the construction of a canal. But when the canal in the course of its construction reached the fields belonging to the Tirumala Devaswam, a petition was sent by that Devaswam to the Government stating that they were not willing to have a canal opened through their fields, and thus the work fell through and nothing has been done in the matter up to this time. Mr. Rajagopalachari will, we hope, see to this and have the necessary canals opened for the use of the cultivators.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, Dec. 24th, 1898.

Some suggestions regarding the recent circular of the Travancore High Court for the better investigation of crimes.

39. A correspondent of the Malayala Manorama, of the 24th December, referring to the recent circular of the Travancore High Court for the better investigation of crimes, observes that the magistrates do not at all take any interest in investigating into crimes, such as murder, dacoity, etc., themselves, but leave everything in the hands of the police who, according to their whim and caprice, collect evidence and the magistrates only weigh such evidence and decide the cases. It hopes that the Government will take steps to find out whether the magistrates act in accordance with the new circular and in cases of default take proper measures to set them right.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

40. The Lokopakari, of the 23rd December, observes as follows:—The condition of the poor peasants of this country is most deplorable. Most of them are driven to the painful necessity of mortgaging their plough and other agricultural implements, and are unable to pay the Circar dues, to purchase seed-grain and to maintain their families. The Revenue officers spare no pains in recovering from the ryots their kist by adopting coercive measures. Although Government has saved many ryots by opening relief works and by granting remission of kist, it has yet to do a good deal more. It should adopt the necessary measures for supplying the peasants with sufficient quantity of water to enable them to carry on their agricultural operations with considerable facility. As the ryots are put to great inconvenience and have to secure the good-will of several persons if they are to get loan under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, it is desirable that Collectors should go to the several villages of their districts, personally satisfy themselves as to the real condition of the peasants through the village accountants, munsifs, etc., and sanction loans then and there to the deserving. Government will do well to teach the villagers the art of agriculture by prescribing as text-books manuals on agriculture in such of the village schools as seek its pecuniary aid and to encourage the poor ryots, instead of rich agriculturists, to cultivate waste and poramboke lands.

Lokopakari, Madras, Dec. 23rd, 1898.

Certain suggestions to Government in regard to the improvement of the condition of the peasants.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th December, suggests to Government the desirability of getting the proceedings of the local Legislative Council translated into the several vernaculars and published for the information of the public.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 14th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding the proceedings of the local Legislative Council.

42. The Lokopakari, of the 16th December, referring to a case in which two female coolies, the natives of this Presidency, who refused to sign in Penang an agreement to work in that place for the space of a year, were sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for three months by the magistrate of Penang and dilating on the unreasonableness of the punishment, requests the Madras Government to rule that no female cooly should be taken to Penang, Singapore and other places from this Presidency, unless the terms of agreement are clearly explained to her in the presence of the village munsif and her consent duly obtained.

Lokopakari, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1898.

A suggestion to Government regarding the female coolies that are taken to Singapore, Penang and other places.

43. The Talipparamba correspondent of the Manorama, of the 26th December, states that in Natuvil Desam of Chalil amsam, 12 miles away from Talipparamba, four Nairs died in the following manner:—These men suffered from fever for two days and after that they had swelling on their necks. These swellings after some time extended to their stomach and the four succumbed to the malady. He further states that on being informed by the adhigari and the police, the local magistrate together with the medical officer of the place went immediately to the place of death.

Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 26th, 1898.

A curious death.

44. A paragraph in the same paper states that a Trichur correspondent of the Kerala Sanchari says that two Nairs of Calicut, giving out that they were inoculating officers, frightened the Elavas of Peringot near Trichur, and showing those ignorant people some printed papers informed them that they would be punished by the Government if they did not submit themselves to be inoculated. They further gave out that in the majority of cases inoculated persons die and they had no option but to suffer themselves to be inoculated as it is the order of the Government to do so. The poor people gave them some money in order that they might not be inoculated, and they having in this manner collected some forty rupees have bolted away from the place.

Two Nairs imitating inoculating officers and getting money from the people.

Alhami, Agra, Dec. 11th, 1898.

The alleged seditious conduct of a daffadar and the police.

45. The Alhami, of the 11th December, mentions that the Bengal Police recently charged a daffadar for sedition. The court of first instance convicted and sentenced him to imprisonment and this sentence was confirmed by the appellate court, but the Calcutta High Court reversed the conviction and discharged the accused holding that the alleged charge of sedition does not fall within the purview of the new Sedition law. The editor observes that the law has given the police wide scope for tormenting innocent people.

[Issued 11th January 1899.]